Officer Shoots When Horseman Will Not Halt

R. A. Allen, former soldier, employed at the N. C. Hudson teaming camp, was shot from his horse shortly before midnight Christmas night when he refused to halt for Officer F. D. Black, of the Ranger police department. Officers Black and P. B. Hunt were investigating the hold-up of Joe's cafe, on Pecan street, when Allen came by. "Halt! we've officers!" Black called. "Don't give a whoop who you are," was Allen's retort, according to the police. Black called again and then fired, first in the air, with no effect and then at the rider, who fell from his horse and came running toward the officer with his hands in the air. He was taken to the Midway garage and then to the Ranger General hospital. His wound is not dangerous, the bullet passing through the right side above Allen's belt. In a statement made to Sergeant Reynolds, Allen exonerated the officer for the shooting. "I was investigating the hold-up of Joe's cafe, on Pecan street, was robbed of $60 in cash by three unmasked bandits a few hours before Allen was shot. It was this robbery that the officers were investigating. The three men, two of them between 22 and 25, and an older man, entered the cafe at 8:30 p. m. Mr. Epps said. They told him to hand over what cash was in the register and when he showed no signs of complying one of the three drew a gun and covered him while a companion went through the cash register. The meat market and grocery store at Pecan and Hunt streets was robbed three weeks ago and the police arrested one of the alleged bandits in Ranger and two other suspected of implication are held by Arkansas officers, on information sent out by the Ranger police department.

21 Are Hurt in Rail Accidents

The injured man was accompanied to the hospital by his mother.

DUTCH WOMEN ARE DEMANDING THEIR RIGHTS

THE HAGUE.—The ideals and ideas of Dutch women, for centuries confined to children, kitchen and church, have undergone a change and the daughters of the land of windmills and canals are making a strong fight for their rights. Several great organizations have been formed for improvement of the conditions of women. With the revision of the Dutch constitution last year, women obtained full suffrage, and the result is that now there are women in nearly every town council. Realizing, however, that possession of the vote alone does not decide the lot of women, the promoters of the movement are now seeking to bring about changes in the laws and regulations which discriminate against the sex economically and socially. "According to the Dutch law," said Mrs. Wijnandts Francken, one of the leaders of the women's movement, "the father has practically 'all the say' about the education of the children. He decides as to their future, consents to their marriage and sends them wherever he likes. Of course, this is of no importance whatever in a good marriage, where father and mother together debate about such things, but this power of the father may easily be abused. I know of several cases, in which the father deliberately took a child away and hid it from its mother, without the latter being able to do anything against this course, as the law was on the side of the father. "Another thorn in the flesh of the Dutch woman is that she must promise obedience to her husband in the vow of marriage. Now, please don't think that these women are averse to rule and order. They only want to be the equals of their husbands, not their housekeepers. "As things are now, a Dutch woman has to suffer almost anything from a tyrannical husband and nothing short of adultery or bodily ill usage can rid her of his despotism. "One of the greatest obstacles these women leaders have to overcome is the conservatism of the old-fashioned women, who, especially in the rural districts, form a great part of the population. But the women who are fighting for the betterment of their sex hope in the end to succeed in conquering this prejudice."

"Broken Blossoms" Broke House Records.

D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" broke all house records at the Liberty theater yesterday in its first showing in this city.

Weeping women and frightened little girls, men in sinister paleness and an audience tense with unfathomed emotions follow the exquisite story of "Broken Blossoms" as it mutely unfolds under waves of poignant music.

"Broken Blossoms" is the most tragic, the most beautiful thing that has ever reached the screen. It is a drama of wistfulness, of ungracious satire, of love and of furious reality. It is reversing the old order which showed the yellow man in a heathen state of revulsion and the white man filled in contrast with brotherly love.

Based on a tragic tale of London's Chinatown, pictured as artistically as only Griffith can picture a story, "Broken Blossoms" is a heart-breaking fragment of screen poetry. It is only in poetry that the sordid, brutal phases of life can be seen through a glamor of beauty, and that is what literally occurs in this picture.

There is beauty of two kinds in this picture, the literal, visual beauty of the color effects and the photoplay, and then the beauty which shines from the poetic soul of the hero, a young Chinaman, the beauty of his love for the abused little white girl, and fineness of which is sorer than the prize fighter's brutality, and which makes the tragedy bearable.

David Griffith has spread his wings out into the open theater, into the very ether of dramatic adventure where loud words and the imminent physical have no traffic with poetic emotions, lay no destructive impediment upon the shoulders of bitter tragedy, no obvious trickery upon the listening senses. He has plunged deep into the swirling atmosphere of Thomas Burke's "Limehouse Nights" and dwelt in its opiate of Everyland.

Mr. Burke's largest achievement so far, notwithstanding his genius, has been his rare good luck to have had Griffith tell the world where the riches of Burke lie smoldering in good English and the myriad dialects of the oriental docks of Limehouse.

NEWSPAPER IDEALS

A newspaper has a duty to the public that is higher than that of any of the public servants. It has a function, as the mouthpiece of the people, higher than that of any official. Its mission of progress, of civic cleanliness, of constructive criticism and considered commendation is greater than that which could center in any one office, or administration.

THE FIRE CHIEF.

A. Davenport, commissioner of fire and police, has promised an investigation of the alleged inefficiency of the fire chief. An expert who is being brought to Ranger from New York will look into the condition of the fire apparatus which is said to have materially deteriorated under Smith's care. The internal conditions of the department will be probed and in Commissioner Davenport's words, if the charges of inefficiency are well based, "the public will know of it."

It is possible that, as the board of commissioners has considered, the present chief would be a valuable officer if his duties were confined to fire marshal. He is known to be active in seeking and remedying fire hazards. He has had the co-operation of Ranger's best business men in this. His qualifications for this position, which he holds in addition to fire chief, would necessarily be different from that of chief of the department. On Commissioner Davenport's investigation the question now rests.

The high cost of living is not the only problem before America, according to Vice President Thomas B. Marshall. The high cost of leisure is also a menace he says. "One of the old ideas of the republic was that the limit of striving for success was the limit of capacity and endurance," declared the vice president recently. "The real evil which we are confronting today is the high cost of leisure. I speak in a censorious way because I am myself the laziest of the lazy. I only beg the thoughtful consideration of younger men who have the good of the republic at heart, seriously to consider the problem as to whether the only way in which to meet the increasing difficulties of American life is not by additional striving to produce more, to earn more, to economize more and to save more."

Each American citizen has it well within his power to follow the vice president's advice, no matter what his condition. No matter what he is able to earn, whether small sum or great, the securities of the government, thrift stamps, war savings stamps, treasury savings certificates, certificates of indebtedness and Liberty bonds give opportunity to save at least a part of his reward of labor.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS FORM LEAGUE AGAINST 'H. C.'
MITCHELL, S. D.—A "League against King High Cost" has been organized by 200 lads of the local high schools. It has been announced by a student committee here. Army shoes will also be worn. The young women of the school have for some time advocated middie blouses in lieu of expensive waists.

Peacock Made Desdemona Constable; Desdemona Votes to Incorporate; County May Open Road to Thurber

EASTLAND, Dec. 26.—Commissioners' court met at Eastland in an adjourned regular session with all members of the court present and they talked about many matters of interest to the county.
On Dec. 20 an election was held at Desdemona deciding for vote of 26 to 0 that the progressive town be incorporated and get out of the village class. The return of this election was canvassed and the county judge declared the incorporation of the town.
It being called to the court's attention there were insufficient peace officers at Desdemona and more than 150 of the good people of Desdemona having presented to the court the following petition:
"We, the undersigned citizens of precinct No. 8 of Eastland county, Texas, respectfully petition you to appoint Bob Peacock constable in and for said precinct. We submit this petition because we believe in the honesty and integrity of Mr. Peacock, and know that he is firm and fearless in the discharge of official duties and can give us the protection so badly needed at this time."
The court appointed Bob Peacock to hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. Mr. Peacock appeared before the court and stated that he realizes, after the little flurry at Desdemona, that it would be necessary for him to be an unusually careful and discreet officer and he pledged the court that he was going to act so brightly that he leaned backward. He would be because of being so bright that he yeanned backward.
He assured the court that his conduct would ever be such that it would never bring any discredit upon the good citizens who recommended and elected his appointment and the court acted upon it.
Some time more than a year ago, the commissioners' court was trying to sell the bonds of road districts Nos. 1 and 2, but were unable to do so. Mr. Marston of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company, came to the rescue of the court and agreed to buy these bonds which he did, but asked the court that if he should, he wanted the road east of Fanger connecting the road built by his company opened up.
At that time the court made such an agreement, and later Mr. Marston sold the bonds at a loss of $9,000 to his company, which he said he did not consider a loss but a gift to our road roads. The Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company did all the things they agreed to do, but circumstances prevented the court from fully complying with the things that they agreed to do.
At this meeting the court authorized County Judge J. R. Starnes to advertise for bids for grubbing and clearing and to open the road from Fanger connecting up with the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil road.
The court also authorized and instructed Judge Starnes to offer $1,000,000 of the county road bonds upon the basis of thirty-year serials of forty year serials, under the general terms of county bidding, the court reserving the right to reject any and all bids; the bids to be received on Jan. 12, 1920, at 2 o'clock p. m., and certified New York or local exchange for $25,000 to accompany each bid, subject to the approval of the attorney general of Texas, and other competent bond attorneys, with Judge Woods of Chicago and umpires, Dilons & Clay of New York.

CITY MGR. TURNER PRAISES PARRISH AND POLICE FORCE

Appreciation of the work that the police department has done and is doing is shown in a Christmas letter from City Manager Turner, representing the board of commissioners, addressed to Chief of Police Byron B. Parrish and including all the members of the department.
"The city commission, as well as myself, wish to extend to you the compliments of the season. We realize that our departments have worked under a handicap and that they have had many things to meet that would not be found in a settled, organized town. We realize that in organizing a town the size of Ranger has grown to be in such a short space of time and organizing it after it had reached a very large population made your task more difficult, and I wish to extend the thanks of the administration to you for the splendid manner in which the work of your department has been carried out under very trying circumstances.
"With every wish for a happy New Year,
"M. A. TURNER,
"City Manager."

55 MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED IN DAY AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Dec. 26.—Little things like the cost of beans, bacon, silk hose or fur coats are not worrying one Daniel Cupid, according to M. L. Camp, deputy Dallas county clerk, who recently issued fifty-five marriage licenses in one day. This is the second highest number of licenses in one day recorded here.
"The soldiers didn't get all the girls in this part of the country," Mr. Camp said. "Indications are that the justices of the peace and the ministers are going to have a busy time during the holidays."

City Mgr. Turner Praises Parrish and Police Force

Appreciation of the work that the police department has done and is doing is shown in a Christmas letter from City Manager Turner, representing the board of commissioners, addressed to Chief of Police Byron B. Parrish and including all the members of the department.
"The city commission, as well as myself, wish to extend to you the compliments of the season. We realize that our departments have worked under a handicap and that they have had many things to meet that would not be found in a settled, organized town. We realize that in organizing a town the size of Ranger has grown to be in such a short space of time and organizing it after it had reached a very large population made your task more difficult, and I wish to extend the thanks of the administration to you for the splendid manner in which the work of your department has been carried out under very trying circumstances.
"With every wish for a happy New Year,
"M. A. TURNER,
"City Manager."

55 MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED IN DAY AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Dec. 26.—Little things like the cost of beans, bacon, silk hose or fur coats are not worrying one Daniel Cupid, according to M. L. Camp, deputy Dallas county clerk, who recently issued fifty-five marriage licenses in one day. This is the second highest number of licenses in one day recorded here.
"The soldiers didn't get all the girls in this part of the country," Mr. Camp said. "Indications are that the justices of the peace and the ministers are going to have a busy time during the holidays."

DR. ANNA EKOLA
A Driller who has spent around $900 treating Rheumatism—a trip to Hot Springs and a lot of unnecessary drugs, is finally on the right track, having his Broken Arches treated. If Rheumatism in the feet and leg muscles was more often correctly diagnosed, in nine times out of ten we would find arch trouble.
One of the first symptoms of the arch breaking down is a feeling of extreme weariness when one is on the feet any length of time. They become tired and ache. They smart and burn. There is pain in the arch at the bottom of heel, around the ankle, and in the muscles of the leg. In cases where one of the heads of the metatarsal bones has been dislocated you sometimes feel a sharp twinging pain often extending up through the calf, knee, thigh, hip, back and at times as far as the back of the neck. These pains are frequently taken for Rheumatism. Metal arch supports should not be worn unless adjusted to fit each foot, as they push bones out of line and weaken the foot. Wizard All-Leather Arch Builder is the only arch builder that can be adjusted to each foot; is light and flexible and will build up the arch by allowing muscular action.

North Sea Is Still Infested With Many Mines

By Associated Press
LONDON. — Until the Germans complete the sweeping of mine fields they laid in the North Sea there will be considerable danger to shipping in waters adjacent to the British isles, say British and American naval authorities. Even after that work has ended, which will not be earlier than next summer, there will be some danger which, they predict, will gradually diminish.
"The American barrage is swept as completely as is humanly possible," Admiral Harry S. Knapp, of the American navy, said to the Associated Press correspondent. "After our area had been pronounced 100 per cent clear we re-swept 860 square miles of it (about 15 per cent) and found only four more mines. These were at a buoyed spot where the sweepers believed they had missed some."
"The greatest menace now," said Lieutenant Commander Benson, of the international mine destroying committee, "is the unswept German area. Until that field has been cleared there will be a good many drifting mines about. Afterward there will be some danger, but it will rapidly diminish as the elements destroy the effectiveness of the mines."
He said the committee accounted for mines as follows: Five per cent explode when laid, 5 per cent are defective, 10 per cent soon become useless through leakage and 50 per cent of the total number laid are destroyed by the different systems of sweeping employed by the British and Americans.
Committee members believe that a great many of the other 30 per cent will be carried by the natural northward currents of the North Sea into Arctic ice packs and destroyed, others will go ashore on the Norwegian coast, as have many already, a great many will become harmless through long presence in the water, and a certain number will be destroyed by patrols which the British navy still is maintaining.
Also the British navy has just armed all merchantmen, except those calling at Irish ports, with high velocity rifles that they may destroy any mine sighted. So many ships calling at Irish ports have been raided for arms that the admiralty believed it inadvisable to add to this danger.
Two Irish fishing boats off Cork recently sighted a drifting mine. The captain or winner was sunk. ASK any doughboy who was "over there" and he will tell you that American railroads are the best in the world.

He saw the foreign roads—in England and France, the best in Europe—and in other Continental countries—and he knows.

The part railroads have played in the development of the United States is beyond measure.

American railroads have achieved high standards of public service by far-sighted and courageous investment of capital, and by the constant striving of managers and men for rewards for work well done.

We have the best railroads in the world—we must continue to have the best.

But they must grow.

To the $20,000,000,000 now invested in our railroads, there will have to be added in the next few years, to keep pace with the nation's business, billions more for additional tracks, stations and terminals, cars and engines, electric power houses and trains, automatic signals, safety devices, the elimination of grade crossings—and for reconstruction and engineering economies that will reduce the cost of transportation.

To attract to the railroads in the future the investment funds of many thrifty citizens, the directing genius of the most capable builders and managers, and the skill and loyalty of the best workmen—in competition with other industries bidding for capital, managers and men—the railroad industry must hold out fair rewards to capital, to managers and to the men.

American railroads will continue to set world standards and adequately serve the Nation's needs if they continue to be built and operated on the American principle of rewards for work well done.
