Woman's Town Talk

If you looked at and listened to the Big Spring Legion drum and bugle corps Monday and did not feel proud something's wrong with you.

The Legion post does a lot of good work but development of this musical organization to such a degree of efficiency in a short period crowns a two-year list of achievement that further merits appreciation of and co-operation with the Legion post.

A few of the legion boys have sort of had an idea. The Herald was "agin" them because it disagreed editorially to some extent at least with their actions and policies of the Legion nationally. They're all wrong about that.

The Legion long ago justified its existence in a number of ways. As in all organizations its leaders sometimes make mistakes and perhaps in some instances their policies have injured the Legion to some extent because of too much political activity but by and large the Legion serves a good purpose.

The Big Spring post is one of the most active in Texas.

Now, what about improving our Big Spring band by providing good uniforms and in this and other ways raising interest in the organization to a point that will attract more active players for it?

When we entertain the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention here next spring we'll have to have a band. While we were preparing to win that convention it was our idea if winning it caused Big Spring to do nothing more than develop her hand the effort would be worthwhile.

Recently the matter of how to provide band uniforms was being discussed informally when someone mentioned how nicely the Colorado Gold Medal band is attired.

One business man asked "Well, how do they do it?"

We do not know as yet but we do know they do it all right and we know what Colorado, Midland, Sweetwater and a lot of other towns have done toward developing a band Big Spring can do also.

Possessing a fine band is not of as great and lasting value as some things that can happen to a town but it is worth possessing anyway.

Under the circumstances, without uniforms or other needed equipment and without any special attention or interest on the part of the public the band we have has done exceedingly well. Its members are good ones all right. But Big Spring could have a 40-piece band that could rank among the very best in the state.

Hah. We'd look good entertaining the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention without a band of our own. What are we going to do, borrow Colorado's or Midland's?

Let's begin thinking about this matter. We can solve it all right.

Texas And Her Peaks

MOST PEOPLE, including a majority of Texans, think of Texas as a prairie state, with few genuine mountains and almost no commanding peaks.

Well, the adventures of the dirigible Akron over the mountains of West Texas recently should set a good many people right concerning the topography of Texas.

The great ship finally got over the mountain barrier, but only after a struggle of many hours.

Texas has the highest mountains in the United States with the exception of those in the Rocky Mountain and Sierra Nevada regions, but few Texans and fewer residents of other states know it. There are numerous peaks in the Davis Mountains towering six, seven and eight thousand feet and more. Farther north the Guadalupe hills are by no means pygmy hills, El Capitan, the king of Texas peaks, stands 10,000 feet above sea level. It is the roof of the Guadalupe. The peak is 5,500 feet, so those in search of a considerable cliff have no difficulty in finding El Capitan.

Only in recent years have Texans begun to discover their own wonderland of mountains and seashore. They are coming to the slow realization that Texas scenery is as beautiful and majestic as that furnished by any other state. As our system of highways comes into being, we will begin to use them to find new beauties within our borders.

And Nothing Can Be Done About It

SPORTS ON PARADE
By CURTIS BISHOP

Agitation for the county baseball league is growing. As is planned there will be four clubs, Coahoma, Foran, Tigers, and either the Moody Oil team or Lex James' Big Spring club. There will be no dues to speak of, no eligibility squabbles, no championship trophy. The teams will play each other and win if they can. The home club must furnish balls or else the visitors will. It doesn't make any difference really. A third party may even be induced to put up a supply. Umpires will be tolerated if they act right but are by no means necessary. Playing fields must have four bases of no particular kind, size, or shape. Each club must have as many as six men on the field and no more than thirteen.

Social Item: J. Gordon Bristow has returned to San Angelo for a more or less extended visit. He will take part in the West Texas golf tourney, meet, this next, or maybe it was last month. All applicants for the fullback's place next fall may write him care of, Sports Department, San Angelo Morning Times.

Sweetwater will lose six men by graduation this year. Strother, Eldred, Henson and one or two other stars are included in the list, but the name of Mike Hicks is not included among the diploma grabbers. Perhaps, however, Hicks has finished only athletically and not scholastically. Strother is the graduate of note. The little, friendly "atom" made a good guard for the Mustangs last year. His chief bid for fame outside of his gridiron ability is the "wad" of gum that he carries at all times.

Midland will lose her two cracks, Lloyd Burris and Neel McCall. Burris made many of the all-district selections in a backfield men, while McCall probably made all of them. Burris was a small edition of Tack Dennis and no doubt a better field runner. He punted, passed, called signals, backed up the line, ran interference, and bore the brunt of the ball-carrying.

San Angelo will lose Harrison, the shifty little quarterback that decided on his own initiative to transfer from Brownwood. Schurhard and Delker, both all-district men on very close to being so, will be on hand next year.

Colorado's one man football, basketball, and track team will be back next year. Stagner is due to be one of the crack athletes of District 2.

Another social item: Big Ben Anthony, who lettered five or six years at Claco high, a couple or more at Bryan Academy, one at Brownwood, was captain of the Texas Tech frosh in 1930 and a member of the Coeden and Bankers baseball nines in the city league of 1930 has moved to Brownwood.

Joe Davis has, we are informed, become ranking No. 1 of the city's racketeers and is quite liable, we are also told, to be that way for the rest of the summer and in fact for a few years to come. Davis will be, barring broken legs, one of the outstanding schoolboy winners in the state next year. And there's a kid who dropped out of school last fall who fits in with Joe in a nice double

Robbins And Quails Lose In Golf Play

Local Player Carries Nix To 20th Hole, Rose Whips Champion

LAMESA—In the exhibition golf foursoms in which Charles Quails, West Texas champion, of Post, and Shirley Robbins of Big Spring matched Frank Rose and E. C. Nix, Jr. of this city here May 30, Rose and Nix won by a score of 5 and 6.

Rose defeated Quails 4 and 3, while Nix had to go to the 20th hole before he could shake Robbins. Quails and Robbins sank low ball on the 22nd hole, when Robbins made a sensational putt from the edge of the green for an eagle 3. Rose was the most consistent player in the foursome, driving approaching, and sinking putts at will, while Quails, although having several mad holes, was able to stage sensational comebacks to make pars, birdies, and eagles. He holed out on the 6th hole, 35 yards from the green, having par 3; he holed out on the 7th hole, 15 yards from the green for a birdie; he sank a long putt on the 13th hole for an eagle.

Local golfers believe this to be the best golf foursome that has ever been played on the local course. A gallery of one hundred or more followed the foursome, which was arranged by local golfers in connection with the Decoration Day Postal Workers Conference program here.

Darrow Pulls Out Of Holes; Tyler Winner

Charley Biggs Shuts Out Panthers With Four Hits

GALVESTON—George Darrow, Buccanier left hander, pitched himself in and out of threatening holes here Tuesday night frequently to thrill the most blasé baseball fan, but when he came out of the last one in the ninth by forcing Parham to ground out with the bases loaded, he had defeated the Houston Buffs, 5-3 to take the single game that will be played in Galveston.

The Buccanier left hander gave up nine hits, four of which were of the fluke variety, and four bases on balls, but he came through with enough stuff in the pinches to leave nine men stranded on bases.

Players Disciplined; Umpire Scolded

CLEVELAND—William Harridge, president of the American League, fined Milton Gaston, Chicago pitcher, $500 and suspended him for ten days as a result of the fight here yesterday between George Morarity, umpire, and four members of the Chicago team.

The other Chicago players were fined but not suspended, while Morarity was severely reprimanded for "neglect of duty."

Lou Fonseca, manager, was fined $200; Charlie Berry, catcher, $200, and Frank Grube, catcher, $100. Johnny Butler, Chicago coach, was suspended for five days.

In reprimanding Morarity, Harridge said the umpire should have removed Berry and Fonseca for their conduct during the game.

Harridge stated in a typewritten report that Gaston was the only one whom his investigation proved to have taken part in the fight in the dressing rooms here.

Butler had been ordered out of the game following a dispute yesterday. He will not be paid during his five-day suspension.

Proration Suit Is Being Held

HOUSTON, (UP)—Oil operators, seeking to loosen the Texas Railroad Commission's partial padlock on their East Texas wells, testified in federal court yesterday that the commission's proration orders cause the waste of natural resources they are intended to avert.

Several oil companies and individuals with East Texas properties are seeking a federal injunction restraining the commission from enforcing the orders.

David M. Lide, of the Lide-Rowe Oil company, told the three federal judges hearing the arguments it was "impossible to prevent waste under the present allowable of 59 barrels a day."

Lide recited statistics on wells in four East Texas leases. Some of these wells, he said, were "going dead" because production had been curtailed in obedience to the commission's orders.

A. L. Morgan, Amarillo, attorney for the complainants, and Fred Upchurch, assistant attorney general, defined the issues in the case.

"We allege that the railroad commission is regulating oil withdrawal to meet the market demand and has nothing to do with whether or not there is waste," said Morgan. "Our properties now are prorated to 59 barrels of oil per well. Our wells easily can produce 500 barrels without wasting the oil or hurting the field. Therefore, the Railroad Commission's orders are unreasonable, violate the 14th amendment to the constitution and are arbitrary."

Old Fiddlers To Compete Soon

STAMFORD—The old fiddlers' contest, one of the popular features of the Texas Cowboy reunion each year, promises to have a larger entry list and keener competition than ever during the third annual reunion which will be held in Stamford July 4, 5, and 6. The fiddlers' contest will be held one day only, Tuesday, July 5, the second day of the reunion, beginning at 9 a. m.

Cash prizes totaling $30 will be awarded. No entry fee will be charged and spectators will be admitted free to the city auditorium, where the contest will be held. H. F. Jackson is chairman of the committee in charge of this feature of the reunion.

Only fiddlers fifty years of age, or over, are eligible for the contest. Each fiddler will be limited to two break-down tunes of his own selection. He may play alone or choose his own second. Five judges will decide the winners of the following prizes: First prize, $15; second, $10; third, $5.

Entry blanks must be signed and filed before 6 p. m., Monday, July fourth.

Another feature of the reunion, reminiscent of pioneer days in the West, is the cowboys' square dance which will be held in the city auditorium each night. Judge Chas. S. Coombs, former president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is in charge of this feature.

The dance in the past has been held on an open-air pavilion. It is being changed to the auditorium this year to give larger floor space for the dancers and for the greater convenience of spectators.

Other features of the reunion include the meeting of pioneer cowboys and cattlemen, the big cowboy rodeo for the younger blood, selection of most typical cowboy under 35 years of age and the one over 35, selection of the most attractive girl sponsors from surrounding cities and the big daily street parade.

Business Men To Discuss Advertising In Newspaper Space

NEW YORK—Newspaper advertising as a factor in present day marketing program in business and industry will be one of the important topics to be discussed at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here June 19 to 23.

The newspaper discussions will center in the annual meeting of the Newspaper Advertising Executive association which will be featured as a department of the convention sessions. Newspaper advertising meetings will be held Monday morning, June 20; Tuesday morning and afternoon, June 21, and on Wednesday morning, Don U. Bridge, advertising director of the New York Times and president of the association, will preside. F. W. Wheeler, vice-president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and Vaughn Planey, vice president and art director of the Young and Rubicam advertising agency, will be among the speakers at the newspaper sessions. Program arrangements are in the hands of committee headed by Alvin Magee of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By Laura Lee Brookman

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY DIXON, pretty, 19, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN PHILLIPS, reporter on the Wellington News. Cherry has few friends because her wealthy parents consider most of the other young people of the town socially inferior. She has become acquainted with Phillips without her parents' knowledge.

She and Dan lunch together and are about to start for a drive in Cherry's roadster when another reporter tells Dan that DUKE SMITH, a bank robber, has escaped jail and the city editor wants Dan to find INEZ MALLOY, Smith's sweetheart and get an interview. Dan and Cherry drive to the apartment where Inez is staying. He enters, pointing to a return to 10 minutes, which he does not come Cherry grows nervous and goes into the apartment. Dan finds her in a room and she runs up a stairway and a shot strikes her arm. Cherry faints and recovers consciousness to find herself in a strange room. Dan has bandaged her arm temporarily. He takes her to a doctor's office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

"What is it, Dan?" Cherry demanded. "What happened?"

"Oh, nothing much. Here, says the Santoni's found Inez. Many already have an extra set."

"Then what are you doing?"

Phillips smiled and said, "I've found the girl. She's in the apartment. I'll get her out of there and get her to the hospital."

"But you didn't get a shot in her arm?"

"No, no. I didn't. I got a shot in my arm. I'm going to get it fixed."

"But you didn't get a shot in your arm?"

"No, no. I didn't. I got a shot in my arm. I'm going to get it fixed."

"But you didn't get a shot in your arm?"

"No, no. I didn't. I got a shot in my arm. I'm going to get it fixed."

almsude him. Dan Phillips, once his mind was made up, was a determined young man. There was no question in his mind how to meet the situation.

Between Dan's firmness and her own indecision Cherry was helpless. Wild schemes — an invented traffic accident or perhaps a hold-up — came to mind but she was not experienced in deceit. Cherry knew she could never invent a tale that would be believable.

"There's nothing to worry about!" Dan repeated. "I'll explain what happened. Listen, you aren't afraid of those parents of yours, are you?"

"No," she said, none too convincingly.

"Then what's the trouble? Everything'll be all right I tell you."

This was as they were gliding down Sherwood boulevard. Another five minutes and they would reach Briarport, the Dixon home. There was no protection from the chilly wind now. Sherwood boulevard residences were set back from the road. They were large houses with spacious grounds, almost as impressive as the two dozen palatial homes making up aristocratic Sherwood Heights. Briarport had been one of the first half dozen homes erected in the Heights.

"It's the second house on the left," she told him as they rounded a curve.

The second house was half hidden in trees. There was a low stone fence and gate of ironwork. Behind the fence the ground rose gradually to the site where 56 yards back from the street stood the massive gray stone dwelling.

Dan Phillips whistled shortly as he turned the roadster into the drive. "Nice cottage," he said. "Must be about the size of Buckingham Palace."

"Really, Dan," Cherry's voice was a trifle uneasy. "I think I'd better go in alone."

"Can't let you do it."

Exactly before the cobblestone walk he brought the roadster to a halt. Cherry still wore her coat with one arm in its sleeve and the other dangling. The creamy tweed was smudged with dark marks. Her hat was not quite at the proper angle and her nose and cheeks were gleaming and powderless.

Together they walked to the entrance. Before Cherry could put a hand on the door it swung open. A middle-aged woman wearing a cap and apron appeared. "Your mother's waiting for you. Miss Cherry," she said. "You'd better go right into the living room." Seeing the empty coat sleeve, she exclaimed, "Oh, has anything happened?"

"It's all right, Martha. In the living room, you said?"

The servant nodded. She seemed to look askance at Phillips but took his hat as the young man followed Cherry through the broad hall. He caught a hasty impression of dark woodwork and rich, subdued colorings. The furniture looked like old stuff — "antiques," Phillips told himself though he had no knowledge of period decoration.

There was a fireplace at the opposite side of the long room they entered. Yellow, dancing flames flickered on the grate. There was a bowl of red tulips on a table. Standing near the table was a

Bob Slaughter's Ride Saved Huge Ranch and $500,000 For His Father

By AL HILL

The midnight ride of Paul Revere may possess greater historic import, but the half million dollar ride of a ten year old Texas boy makes the famous revolutionary episode fade into insignificance from the viewpoint of bravery, endurance and heroic determination.

While Paul Revere—spring of 1775—rode one horse in one night to spread the warning: "The British Are Coming!" this dauntless lad, Bob Slaughter, rode three horses to exhaustion in forty-one hours for the purpose of saving his father's ranch from the British—in the spring of 1881.

Bob Slaughter rode the three valiant steeds from Dallas to headquarters of the Big Springs ranch, total distance of approximately 335 miles. His first mount lasted for seventy-five miles, the second a hundred and twenty-five miles and his third for 135 miles.

The boy rested only one hour on the entire trip, sleeping for such time while changing mounts after his second horse had dropped at the gate of the Barnes ranch home where Breckenridge now is located.

Unlike Paul Revere, who rode ahead of the British, Bob Slaughter started on his famous ride three days after a party of Englishmen had departed on the long trek from Dallas to the ranch headquarters, in possession of necessary papers with which to take over possession of Col. C. C. Slaughter's property, which papers they had secured through fraud.

Colonel Slaughter had discovered by cable communication to England, that the titled Englishmen with whom he had traded were irresponsible.

Tells Of Ride R. L. (Bob) Slaughter, of Dallas and Lubbock, who, now at the age of sixty-one possesses a fat invigorating tan and physique and true vision of the pioneer plainsman, tells of his momentous ride.

"It was the hardest ride I ever made, and I feel sure that few, if any, have ever matched it. "In these days of flying machines and automobiles we smile at a record of three hundred and thirty-five miles in forty-one hours, but go back fifty years and look over the country where no railroads or telegraph had penetrated; where even Uncle Sam had never sent his pony express; where no stage coach rattled, for there was no place to go. The highway was an old Indian trail, used occasionally by the buffalo hunters in hauling their robes to market.

"Back in those days my father had pushed beyond civilization and located the first ranch on the plains, at the extreme head waters of the Colorado river. It was a cattleman's paradise. The grass was luxuriant and nutritious, and no neighbor to worry you. It was free grass, as far as you could see and except for an occasional theft of horses by roving Indians and an occasional loss of cattle by them drifting away across the trackless plains in a snow storm, it was nearly all profit.

lame. Then I staggered to the ground—and well, I am old enough now to admit tears of vexation filled my eyes, for I had tried so hard to make good on this, my first important trip of trust, and I saw it all go up in smoke. "Only a moment was lost, however, for I found and removed the gravel from Mack's frog and I was on that endless trail again. "The sun was lowering, burning hot, squarely in my eyes. Every spot in my body was sorer than the next spot. The foam was baked on my bridle reins and I was miserably used up. But, up to now, twenty hours in the saddle, no blood was on my spurs. They were bright and keen as I looked at them and the long trail ahead and felt that my big game heart beat against my knees. You can't imagine how reluctant I was to begin their merciless use. And well I knew that when I was forced to use the steel that my miles were few indeed.

Face Begins To Tell "After we had reeled off one hundred miles, the killing pace began to show on the game fellow and I would occasionally urge him. The last few miles I saw that I could make the long trail ahead and felt that my big game heart beat against my knees. You can't imagine how reluctant I was to begin their merciless use. And well I knew that when I was forced to use the steel that my miles were few indeed.

Mounts Vicious Horse "Barnes had a fine stallion, a thoroughbred, valued at fifteen hundred dollars. It was too vicious for me to ride. But it was my chance to change horses, at Snyder's old store, forty miles from our ranch, and the skates there were only a few feet apart.

Emergency Cited "An emergency has developed in the last few days which it is my duty to lay before the senate," Mr. Hoover said in opening his address. The chamber was crowded. Almost every member was in his seat, with house members jammed in the rear. The galleries were crowded.

Downward Trend Helped "The continued downward movement in the economic life of the country," the President said, "has been particularly accelerated during the past few days and it is financial program of the government that is superimposed upon other causes, the long continued depression of legislation providing for such reduction in expenses and such additions to revenues as would balance the budget, together with proposals of projects which would greatly increase government expenditures, have given rise to doubt and anxiety as to the ability of our government to meet its responsibilities.

Half-Million Economies "The president coupled with his plea for new revenue an insistence that congress provide for a total of $500,000,000 in economies as the other essential for balancing the budget. Revealing his endorsement of the disputed sales tax, Mr. Hoover explained he was opposed to a general sales tax—which has not been proposed.

Traveler Fast Clip "My own little pony covered the first seventy-five miles. Mack, dear old Mack, reeled off one hundred and twenty-five miles, and the fiery stallion, who objected so much when I first mounted him by the dim light of a lantern in the low ranch barn, carried me splendidly the remaining one hundred and thirty-five miles. The total hours consumed in the journey, including one hour of sleep, was forty-one, a pretty fast clip if you figure it out. "Little did I think, as my mounts skipped swiftly over this beautiful stretch of land that in after years this same scope of country was to be the home of thousands upon thousands of settlers, as the best cattle ranch in all Texas—at one time comprising a million acres of land under lease and ownership of Col. C. C. Slaughter—became changed to an empire of beautiful homes, model farms, and busy bustling cities and towns."

Personally Speaking - Enforcement - Not Repeal

ONLY ONE COURSE TO FOLLOW "There is no room in our national household for two antagonistic systems, one legalizing the liquor traffic, the other outlawing it. As a church, we can follow no course except the one that will reduce the consumption of beverage alcohol to the minimum. We are convinced that national prohibition is that method."

Miss Olmace Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hartman, is improving following a tonsilectomy last Saturday morning. She has been removed to her home at 1105 Runnels St. Mr. and Mrs. John Biles, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Notestine and son, and Mrs. John Notestine are leaving early Friday morning for A. & M. College to attend the graduation exercises in which Louis Biles will be graduated.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Yarbro returned Tuesday from a several days visit with Mr. Yarbro's family in Whitney. Mr. and Mrs. B. Reagan returned Tuesday evening from a trip to Richardson Springs and Brady, visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. J. S. Blackford of Stanton is doing nicely following an operation at Big Spring hospital a week ago. She resided here a number of years. Rev. J. Richard Spann returned from Abilene Wednesday afternoon. C. S. Ditts has returned from Tyler. Vernon Manuel arrived yesterday from Kilgore by airplane to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Manuel for several days.

Loving County Sheriff One Of Rabbit Ropers

ODESSA (UP)—The "rodent" jackrabbits held most of the honors as hard riding cowboys and fast looping ropers began the final rodeo here. Sheriff Arden Ross, from Loving County, rode his cotton tail in exactly nine seconds for first place in the initial day event. "Cat" Currie, Midland, roped and tied his rabbit in one minute. Jack McClure, Lovington, N. M., did the trick in a minute and three seconds.

The long-earned rodents, however showed their heels to all of the other contestants, 46 in all. Failure of these served only to encourage the rope twirlers who entered the arena today. A crowd of nearly 40,000, including Judge C. L. Webb, who ruled the jackrabbit a rodder to prevent humane societies stopping the event, cheered Sheriff Ross in his record feat. Loving county, where Ross is the law has been an organized county only since last year. Allen Holder, Rankin, won the wild cow milking event. Charles Jones, Van Horn, was second and Jack McClure, third. Jasbo Fulkerson, Fort Worth, won the bulldogging. Key Dunne, Odessa, was second, and Sherry Rutledge, Pecos, third. Allen Holder won the calf roping with Charles Jones second. Walter Lundy, Odessa calf roper, broke his ankle yesterday in leaping from his horse. J. W. Ray entries won most of the racing events. Wonder Girl and Gold Cravis made record time in the quarter and three eighth races.

Awards in a special rabbit roping event for county judges went unclaimed. None of the judges present could rope a rabbit. The economic disturbance reported by the President was reflected during the day in Wall Street. The stock market went down at the start, revived as the President went to the Hill and endorsed the limited sales tax and then fell again. Downward Trend Helped "The continued downward movement in the economic life of the country," the President said, "has been particularly accelerated during the past few days and it is financial program of the government that is superimposed upon other causes, the long continued depression of legislation providing for such reduction in expenses and such additions to revenues as would balance the budget, together with proposals of projects which would greatly increase government expenditures, have given rise to doubt and anxiety as to the ability of our government to meet its responsibilities.

Young Woman Killed By Horse On Bronte Ranch

BRONTE—Mrs. Joe George Wilkins, 18, was dragged or kicked to death by a horse at a ranch about ten miles northwest of here today. Her husband, about two hundred yards away heard his wife scream and reached the scene to find the horse kicking her. Indications here that the woman had been thrown, and in attempting to dismount had caught her foot in a part of the saddle and had been dragged around in a circle with the horse kicking trying to free itself of the burden. She and her husband were married last September 14.

Open Forum Day Held By Rotarians

Open Forum day was observed by Rotary club in its regular weekly session Tuesday noon at the Settles hotel. T. W. Ashley was program chairman for the day. Miss Claudine Miller and Miss Davis gave two ukulele and vocal duets, which was enjoyed by the Rotarians. Miss Emma Louise Freeman gave two readings "Catching" and "Mule," that brought forth much applause. Dr. Bennett announced the joint meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis clubs for Thursday evening, June 2. The banquet will begin promptly at 7:15 o'clock in the Settles ballroom. A good program has been prepared, according to Dr. Bennett. Shlne Phillips will preside as toastmaster. The aims and objects of Rotary were explained by Dr. Bennett, using a chart to explain the various committees and groups that are assigned to different tasks undertaken by a club. Each member was asked to indicate on a slip of paper the committee he would like to serve on during the coming year. Visiting Rotarians present were: Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield; Vic Behrens, Abilene. Club guests were Miss Claudine Miller, Miss Davis, Ben Cole, of Big Spring; Marshall McCree, American Airways, Abilene.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
Mayor Walker's Easy Money

In his testimony last week, Mayor Walker acknowledged that without any investment on his part he had, in eighteen months, made a quarter of a million dollars in the stock market. After paying taxes it is estimated that he had left about $170,000 which was about five times the salary paid him by the city during the same period. Assuming no risk, performing no service, taking no trouble of any kind, he obtained a claim on the national wealth which it would have raised his own salary, have required seven years' work as Mayor to earn.

Is it any wonder that the American people are bewildered and angry about stock market speculation? The Mayor's good fortune was the result, it appears, of his friendship with a gentleman who knew how to profit in a bull market. Many other men were equally lucky in those days. But there are a few things about this transaction which stick in one's mind. The first is whether a public man in office or out of it can decently accept a fortune from anybody as a gift. The second is whether a system in which there is so much easy money available for favored insiders is in the long run compatible with any acceptable ideal of social justice. The third is whether it is, in the long run, compatible with the maintenance of public order.

To be sure such spectacular opportunities to acquire unearned fortunes come only once in a great while. The Mayor, as to this speculation, merely participated in the effects of the great inflation. Nevertheless, the question must and will be asked whether the madness of the inflation was not greatly aggravated by the fact that the American people relaxed their moral standards and let acquisitiveness run wild. There has been speculation all through American history; the opening up of a new country is a speculative enterprise and it is not surprising that the speculative spirit, manifested equally in the excessive hopes of the boom and the excessive dependency today, should pervade our life.

But whatever may be done to explain historically our love of speculation, it is clear that among established people who have reached maturity in their mode of life, the greed and acquisitiveness of the speculative spirit are highly dangerous. A man cannot do the public business of the City of New York as it needs to be done if his mind is on the getting and spending of huge sums of easy money. A man cannot administer great corporations which employ armies of men and serve large communities if his judgment is diluted and distracted by huge speculative transactions. A man cannot be a good banker and get himself all mixed up with intricate speculations. A man cannot be a good doctor and keep telephoning his broker between visits to his patients, nor a good lawyer with one eye on the ticker, nor a good journalist breathlessly watching his stocks.

The popular feeling against the stock market will be a good thing for this country if, instead of producing silly laws to protect fools, it engenders a general revulsion against gambling for easy money. The mischief is not curable by laws. The mischief is in the realm of the spirit, in the loss of restraints against the lust for profit. In the submergence of all other conceptions of what life means by the greedy desire to get rich quickly. It would be priggish to single out Mayor Walker for special odium because he forgot as if he had never known what it required in the way of private morality from a public servant. While the boom was on almost every one, who had the opportunity, forgot to be restrained and civilized. So as these revelations come along they call not so much for self-righteous denunciation, particularly from those who are moved by envy or disappointment, but for self-examination and a sincere attempt to re-examine our own motives and our own ideals. In such an examination we shall need to require most searchingly what it is that we mean by the Success which we have worshipped, what it is that we mean by the Prosperity that we have craved.

For these are the two sirens that enchant and seduce us and make us forget the things that count and must be done.

Red, Black, Silver Forms Unusual Club Color Scheme

Mrs. Milburn Barnett was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Delta Han' Aroun' Bridge Club for a very smart party. An effective and unusual color scheme of red, black and silver predominated in the accessories and bridge luncheon covers, which were of grey linen, embroidered with red and black. Red flowers provided a rich floral note.

The members voted to disband the sewing club for the summer. Mrs. Kim Barnett made high score for the club and Mrs. McKee cut for high. Both received hand-painted plaques.

A lovely salad course and iced punch was served to the only guest, Miss Eleanor Guthrie and the following members: Misses Graham, Foose, Lionel McKee, Kim Barnett, J. S. King, Misses Mary Allen and Jeannette Barnett.

Mrs. McKee will be the next hostess.

Lovely Party Given At Mrs. R. H. Carter's

Three Hostesses In Pink And Green Costumes Greet The Guests

Mmes. H. C. Beene and R. H. Carter and Miss Pauline Sullivan were hostesses Tuesday evening for a very colorful and dainty bridge party at the home of Mrs. Carter. Six tables of players attended.

The colors of pink and green prevailed in the lovely costumes of the hostesses, the garden flowers which decorated the room, provided a beautiful atmosphere to play in, and were used in the two courses served during the refreshment hour.

The prizes were exceptionally unique. The first prize, which went to Mrs. Beaudreau, was a vanity. It was wrapped in pink and green to represent an old-fashioned catchel with the handles formed by the ribbons. The low prize went to a little Barley and was a set of imported bath soap in the center of a pink and green pillow. The ribbons were tied in the center of the pillow and contained a spray of pink crepe flowers.

Pink and green mints were passed around during the play. The guests were: Misses Emma Louise Freeman, Polly Webb, Imogene Runyan, Frances and Grace Sullivan, Irene Barnett, Elizabeth Northington, Veda Robinson, Margaret Bettle, Louise Hayes, Lucille Rix, Jamie Barley, Agnes Carrie, Helen Hayden, Jeannette Barnett, Mmes. Tommy Jordan, G. A. Barnett, Ned Beaudreau, Cornell Smith, Clarence Wear, Harold Lytle, Tracy Smith, Cecil McDonald.

How To Obtain Treatment For Cancer

(Eighth of a series of ten articles on cancer issued by the State Medical Association.)
The selection of a physician is always the most important factor and is frequently the greatest problem in the care of cancer cases, since a favorable outcome often depends so much upon accurate diagnosis and competent treatment from the very beginning.

The family physician is generally the first person with whom the patient makes contact. Upon his judgment the final result often depends. He usually finds it necessary to refer the case to a specialist who is more familiar with this type of disease and possesses the required skill and suitable equipment for its accurate diagnosis and correct treatment.

If there is no family physician, reliable advice may usually be obtained from the local medical society, the local hospital, the local nursing association or other local health agencies. In rural areas the county nurse or the state health department may be helpful.

Lack of funds need not discourage a patient from seeking competent medical service. All physicians of recognized ability give due consideration to the financial situation of the patient; and all reputable hospitals regulate their charges accordingly.

Under no circumstances is it wise to select for the treatment of cancer a physician who advertises and promises a cure for cancer, or demands that a fee be paid in advance, or is not willing to call another physician in consultation. Such methods are not practiced by reputable medical men.

Every case of cancer is so serious and so urgent that it is criminal to waste valuable time and money by trifling with non-medical persons who are utterly incompetent to treat this disease.

The American Society for the Central of Cancer, 25 West 43rd Street, New York, will give without cost to any person who desires it, information concerning the places where dependable professional advice may be secured.

Dallas County Fiscal Affairs Before Jurors

DALLAS, (UP)—Judge C. A. Phippen of the district criminal court today ordered a special grand jury summoned to investigate the conduct of all Dallas county affairs.

The special jury was summoned following reports of auditors that $120,000 worth of asphalt had been purchased without asking bids and that a $6,000,000 bond issue had been expended without adhering to plans.

Judge Phippen selected Dr. William M. Anderson, First Presbyterian church pastor; Sam P. Cochran, Masonic official and insurance man; Tom Gooch, editor of the Dallas Times-Herald to choose the jurors.

"Every man directly mentioned or affected by the auditors will be called before the jury but in addition I am earnestly trusting that any man who possesses any knowledge will volunteer," said District Attorney William McCraw.

County Judge F. H. Alexander and the four commissioners have agreed to let an engineer determine whether they received value for money expended. They today authorized a suit against the Dexter Construction company for $1,581, shown in one of the audits as over paid on a small paving job.

K. P. MINSTREL COMING
The Minstrel Show put on by the grand lodge of the K. P.'s in Abilene on May 15, which aroused so much comment and was regarded as one of the best in the country, is coming to Big Spring, June 10 (next Friday) under the direction of the local K. P.'s, announces Frank Jones.

There will be a big parade that day and the show will be given at the high school auditorium. Mr. Jones says that this is a minstrel to look forward to, because it is seldom that a town of this size gets such a good one.

It's as though the tobaccos were "welded" together...

"CROSS-BLENDING" means much more than just mixing tobaccos together. It "welds" together different kinds of the several varieties of tobacco... many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco.

THIS "WELDING" TOGETHER—or Cross-Blending—permits every kind of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. Each tobacco is thus made to yield its finest flavors.

CROSS-BLENDING takes all these pleasing flavors and aromas and combines them into one—the Chesterfield taste. And we think you will agree that it is a far better taste... worth all the extra care that Chesterfield takes to get it.

EVERYTHING that money can buy and that science knows about is done to make CHESTERFIELD milder and taste better.
