"TO CAPTAIN JOHN HUGHES AND HIS TEXAS RANGERS."

The above caption is the tribute Zane Grey pays to the Texas Rangers in dedicating his great novel, "The Lone Star Ranger," to this body of brave men. He says: "In the North and East there is a popular idea that the frontier of the West is a thing long past, and remembered now only in stories. As I think of this I remember Ranger Sitter while he grimly stroked an unhealed bullet wound. And I remember the giant Vaughn, that typical son of stalwart Texas, sitting there quietly with his bandaged head, his thoughtful eye boding ill to the outlaw who had ambushed him. Only a few months have passed since then—when I had my memorable sojourn with you—and yet in that short time Russell and Moore have crossed the Divide, like Ran-

"Gentlemen, I have the honor to dedicate this book to you, with the hope that it shall fall to my lot to tell the world the truth about a strange, unique and misunderstood body of men—the Texas Rangers—who made the great Lone Star State habitable, who never knew peaceful rest and sleep, who are passing, who surely will not be forgotten, and will some day come into their own."

"Lonestar Ranger" Great Picture of Texas Rangers.

"Don't go to history of the distant past for knight errantry and romance. Go to the Texas border," said William Farnum, the noted actor, who has won the plaudits of millions in heroic roles of the West and Southwest. "The Texas Rangers, those brave defenders of the border of Texas, could furnish a new Sir Walter Scott with material for a lifetime—and a long one.

"These men, the Rangers, are made of the stuff of which America well may be proud—a band of the bravest and boldest men that ever made history in this country; and they are still making it in their modest way.

"The Rangers were organized in 1832," Mr. Farnum continued, "and bore the brunt of the conflict when the real gun-fighting men of the world—men who drew first, who mever wounded. The Ranger who merely wounded would consider his duty shirked. They were unrelenting in pursuit and in avenging the death of one of their men at the hands of an outlaw. Their names and their deeds have made the border livable.

"Davy Crockett and other heroes of the Alamo were Rangers. Captain Mc-Nelly's famous band of forty alone made two thousand arrests, besides many killed in fights between '75 and '78, when cattle trustling became rie. Whole herds were driven off by thieves.

"The Rangers, chosen for their absolute fearlessness, carried terror to these outlaws. They were and are the real gun-fighting men of the world—men who drew first, who mever wounded. CONFLICTING AIMS.

(Chicago Tribune.) The American Legion is developing its political influence specifically in two directions. One is for payment from the national treasury to mer who served . The other is for universal military training.

A man who served and who is de prived of ability to support himself because of his service ought to be repaid by the government. A man who finds his abilities impaired, by the loss of hand or foot or by other permanent injury, ought to be compensated. If it were possible, the compensation ought to reimburse him equitably for what he has lost in life. This

Men who served and who are back in civil life with no other injury than the loss of time might look at the in question in another light. They gave up much that was valuable to them. They risked danger and they suffered that city. hardships, but they are back ,and their ability to support themselves and continue in life is not vitally dis-away from civil life. But they have a consciousness of service which is in valuable. They had experiences and they have memories, and not the least important asset in life is the memory of a real service well done.

The Legion backs universal mili tary service. One of, if not the chie of, congressional arguments against this needed military policy is that it is too expensive. The nation cannot afford it. This argument is false, bu it makes an impression.

Congressmen say that the nation will not need to train an army fo the next ten years because for tha period it will have ex-service men who can be relied upon in time of danger That is the nation, seeking to sav money, relies upon the A. E. F. to come to the front again.

We think the men of the A. E. F have done enough for their general tion. The prospects which congress wishes to make their prospects should lie in the future, if they lie anywhere. of the younger men of the generation.

If the United States would train its nineteen-year-old youth, there would be no talk of sending the veterans back into the ranks. The nation actually will think that there is a moral obligation upon these men who have served once to serve again. It does not, seemingly, think there is a mora! obligation upon itself to strengthen its defense rationally.

The two objects of the American Legion conflict with each other. If the veterans press congress for money payments regardless of inability of injury, they may get their recompense but they will increase the national expenditures to such an extent that the economy plea will completely defeat any hope of putting younger men in training.

We shall be paying extraordinarily for a war which has been fought, and laying out nothing to prevent another one being fought. The amount which each able bodied veteran would ge under even a generous scheme of compensation would not do him a great deal of good. It will not do him hal as much good as his own consciousness of service bravely and uncom plainingly performed.

There is no theoretical inequity ir what the Legion asks of congress. There may be a relative inexpediency. That is for the able bodied A. E.

The tonnage now building in the United Kingdom, says the American Chamber, exceeds by 27,732 tons that under present construction in the United States, where the decrease in the building of pay tempore. in the building of new tonnage amounts to 504,000 tons, as compared with the figures for September

The American Chamber remarks that the tonnage under construction may not be so good a basis for judg-ment as the amount of tonnage actually launched, and that the United States is putting ships on the water quicker than Great Britain.

The United States in 1919 constructed 4,735,109 tons as against Britain's 1,951,759 tons, but the horsepower represented by the American ships was only 2,591,210 as against 3,209,040 of the British.

Britain is going in for high-power vessels, while the United States is building more of the "tramp" class.

A review of world tonnage in course of construction shows a decline of about 187,000 tons from the figures for the Sentember. the figures for the September

Standing on Her Feet Torture to This Lady. Had to Ride Everywhere She Went, Until Cardui Brought Relief.

McKinney, Texas.-Mrs. A. B. Stovall, of this place, writes:.. "Sometime ago I was in a critical condition. We only lived two squares from town, yet I wasn't able to walk the two

I had to ride everywhere I went and suffered at that, but not so much as when I tried to walk. Standing on my feet was torture.

My greatest suffering was in my right side. It was so sore and I felt if I stepped down or jarred myself the least bit I could not stand it,-so just walked mostly tiptoe. This kept up until I was just about discouraged and decided I had best try something Someone told me of Cardui, and where it had benefited cases similar to mine. I felt at least it would not hurt to give it a trial.

After my first bottle I felt betterthere was less pain and soreness in After my third bottle of Cardui I was well and have been ever since." Cardui may be just what you need. Try it.—Advertisement.
