

BABY BURNED AT HASKELL

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Jerry Marshall, genial operations manager of Southern Air Transport, young in years but old in the flying business, lets us know that his company intends making Big Spring a base of operations for the new air mail lines.

Passenger reservations and weather reports between Dallas and El Paso will continue to be handled here. A radio beacon, throwing rays from here to Dallas and El Paso, will be installed here.

This beacon is one of the most uncanny things, to the payman, that has been developed to make flying safer. A ship, flying in fog or other weather conditions making it difficult to lay a course by ground observations, will receive continuous signal "dot-dash, dot-dash, dot-dash" like that, so long as it stays on the course. When it flies to the left a different kind of signal comes in and when to the right still another signal notifies the pilot how to steer his course.

In addition, Marshall, said, a complete shop will be installed in the building erected at the airport for their purpose, and a crew of experienced airplane mechanics sent here from Dallas.

In connection with announcement of the designation of Big Spring as junction point for the transcontinental line and the spur route from San Antonio, it should be gratifying to local people to read an editorial of Sunday in The Midland Reporter-Telegram. Midland fought very hard for the designation, just as did Sweetwater and Abilene, and naturally was somewhat disappointed.

The generous attitude taken in this editorial is, we believe, expressive of the spirit of the people of that city—a town whose people, rich and poor alike, stay in there and pitch for the town.

THE AIR MAIL DECISION

Midland, Sweetwater and Abilene well congratulate Big Spring upon her good fortune in being designated as the air mail stop and junction of the southern line. Incidentally, this is the second occasion upon which Big Spring has been smiled on by good fortune within recent weeks, the announcement that the Texas and Pacific Northern would build a rail line from that city coming like a thunderbolt from the sky a few weeks ago.

However, Midland and the other cities contending for the mail stop need suffer no remorse. It has been predicted time and again by aviation enthusiasts that air mail will be serving practically every important stop within the next few months.

Records show that Midland has approximately three times the air passenger traffic of any of the intermediate stops between El Paso and Fort Worth. Mail planes will carry passengers and will make all of the stops. Eventually, the decision of the post office department to pick up mail at the local port will be voluntary, it is believed.

Local aeronautics committees, the owners of commerce, the airport and operators, civic leaders and others left no stones unturned in the fight to have Midland made the air mail stop and junction.

The Reporter-Telegram's individual opinion on the decision to make Big Spring the stop is that geographical advantages favored that city as a junction point from San Antonio and San Angelo. It was logical that the junction point would be the initial air mail stop and on the east-west route.

Congratulations, Big Spring! And congratulations to Texas, especially West Texas, upon receiving the facilities of air mail from the east, south and west.

Pessimism Is Not Justified Says Survey

Recurring Prosperity Is Pointed To In Monthly Review

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The latest industrial reports, by no means justify the exaggerated pessimism that has been visible in some quarters, states the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, its monthly review of business and financial conditions which has just been published.

"Such a view is as incompatible with past experience and present facts as is the attitude of those who have consistently refused to face the truth that the world is in the midst of genuine and severe business depression," the Survey concludes. "Overcast and distorted views either give rise to unwarranted hopes and encourage false starts that can only end in further slumps, or dampen confidence and delay the return of prosperity.

"There is nothing abnormal or unprecedented about the present situation. It is a perfectly natural reaction, such as has been witnessed many times in the past and will continue to recur at intervals as long as our economic organization is what it is. The return of the next wave of prosperity is a inevitable and certain as was the termination of the last wave. Slowly but surely, the forces that will bring about revival are at work.

"Seasonal upturns in some branches of business activity have been noted during the last few weeks. In most cases, these represent a somewhat belated start, since the beginning of the autumn revival is usually witnessed in August.

Seasonal Rise

"Thus far, there is no clear indication whether the slight advances in industrial operations and trade volumes have any significance, beyond the usual stimulus provided by the advent of the autumn season and the movement of the crops. It is evident, however, that they have resulted in a more cheerful business sentiment, which is in itself a small influence in the right direction.

"It is recognized, of course, that some of the basic conditions necessary to immediate business recovery are still lacking. Commodity prices, particularly prices of farm products, have declined further. Wheat at primary markets has reached the almost unprecedented low level of 80 cents a bushel. The stock market has not displayed any sustained strength, nor has the volume of bank credit given any clear sign of increasing demand for funds for commercial purposes. These conditions however, have existed for some time and are now accepted as inevitable features of the major depression through which the world's commerce is passing. Business men are in mood to derive encouragement from any improvement in the outlook, and improvement is visible in certain directions.

Outlook Better

"The trend of commodity prices, for example, in the last two months has been in marked contrast to the swift and steady drop that has been under way for about a year.

Air Mail Plans Being Formed

Light Rainfall Followed By Cloudy Monday

Following light precipitation at intervals Saturday and Sunday, dense fog hovered over Big Spring early Monday and cloudy to partly cloudy, sultry weather continued through the day.

Temperature Monday afternoon had climbed considerably compared with the slightly chill breezes of Sunday.

By The Associated Press

Rains Sunday and Saturday night officially ushered in autumn with an auspicious downpour which benefited pasture lands and feed crops over nearly all of the west, northeast, and central Texas and scattered sections of South Texas. Temperatures dropped over the entire state and the most severe drought in years appeared definitely dispelled.

Rains varying from light showers to hard downpours measuring one and a half inches fell in many West Texas counties, including Fisher, Callahan, Dawson, Stone, Fisher, Bosque and Wichita.

In Central Texas, cotton picking was halted but whether the crop was damaged had not been determined. The temperature dropped to 59 degrees at Waco as a rain set in early Sunday and continued throughout the day. Temple, Corsicana and San Antonio reported heavy showers. Corpus Christi and Nueces county also were drenched.

Dallas, Fort Worth and Waxahachie reported steady rains during the day.

Equipment To Be Installed By Operators

Grading, Enlargement Of Administration Building Asked

Four thousand dollars will be invested at once in equipment for the Big Spring Airport by Southern Air Transport, subsidiary of The Aviation Corporation, which will operate the new southern transcontinental air mail line with Big Spring and Junction point for the main line and the spur route from San Antonio.

Inspection

Jerry Marshall, S. A. T. operations manager, who inspected the field with directors of the airport corporation Sunday, said Monday, before leaving for an inspection flight to San Antonio, that a radio beacon, and shop would be installed at once, along with other improvements.

Aside from some grading and filling on the field the airport company will be asked to spend no money except to build an addition to the administration building.

The added space will include a mail room, a pilot's room and office space. There will be pilots at the field much of the time, especially those on the Big Spring-San Antonio run, who will arrive at 10:35 a. m. and depart at 4:55 p. m.

The shop building erected along with the hangars when the airport was first equipped will be occupied by a well-equipped shop by S. A. T. Marshall said a crew of mechanics will be sent here from Dallas.

Garner Manager

Lee Garner, a Big Spring man who has been managing the airport several weeks, will remain in that capacity until a change is contemplated, said Mr. Marshall. Garner's wide acquaintance with the people of Big Spring and his untiring energy make him valuable, it was declared.

The radio beacon will control flight of ships between Dallas and El Paso, being of value during fog or other low visibility conditions. It operates in this manner: the pilot receives a certain signal so long as he is flying in the "ray." Different kinds of signals are received by the ship when it veers either to the right or left of the "ray," which projects along the shortest course between the points.

Passenger reservations and weather reports will continue to be handled here for all stations between Dallas and El Paso on the regular passenger line, said Mr. Marshall. In addition to the manager, and radio operator, already on duty, and the mechanical crew, an assistant dispatcher will be stationed at the port.

To San Antonio

Marshall arrived Sunday and was the guest of friends in the city. He was to leave this afternoon for a surveying flight over the spur route to San Antonio in a Fairchild T-7 seven-passenger ship brought from Dallas during the morning for that purpose.

The grading work on the field is necessary to make it safe for tri-motor ships, loaded with both passengers and mail, to land.

The airport officials promised to have this work, and the administration building enlargements, done by October 15, when air mail.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 29 (AP)—Deposits of twelve Dallas banks showed an increase of $11,608,528.94 as of September 24, the day state and national banking departments asked for a statement of condition, over the last June 30 total. Resources increased $16,218,999.06. Total deposits were $176,339,850.

HOUSTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—An increase of $6,368,381 in Houston bank deposits was shown by the national bank call as of September 24 compared with that of October 4, 1929. An $11,468,964.89 increase was shown over deposits as of June 30, 1930.

Secretary Wilbur Brands Charge Favoring Large Oil Companies Mere Nonsense

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—A charge of favoritism toward large oil companies leveled at Secretary Wilbur by Ralph S. Kelley, chief of the field division of the general land office at Denver was characterized today by the interior secretary as "nonsense."

The Kelley accusation was contained in a letter announcing his resignation which the field man made public yesterday.

Kelley asserted that in the past five years the large oil companies, "because of great political and other pressure brought to bear upon the secretary" had received favorable consideration in spite of his wringings to the contrary. No change in this state of affairs, he said, had occurred since Mr. Wilbur took office with the Hoover cabinet.

The Denver man said public lands in Colorado held an oil reserve containing petroleum valued low at more than forty billions.

"This is the huge prize," he said, "to which the large oil interests are endeavoring to secure titles by fraud and failure to comply with the United States mining law requirements. These oil interests are thoroughly organized and act concertedly in bringing pressure to bear upon the department to induce it to give them these valuable oil lands, to which they are not rightfully entitled. Among those in this combination are several of the very concerns whose fraudulent poses in the investigations and trials of former Secretary of the Interior Alben B. Fall, Harry Sinclair and others.

"In my opinion," he added, "the adjustment of the titles to these oil lands in such manner that the rights of the public therein shall receive adequate protection transcends in importance any other matters pending before the interior department in many years."

Interior officials said every effort was being made to recover oil lands in Colorado in instances.

Anybody Can Go Up Says Jerry Marshall, Of Female Aviators

Jerry Marshall, manager of the S. A. T. in Texas, has his own ideas about flyers—and women flyers in particular.

"All they want is publicity," said Marshall.

"They carry a 'mechanic' in the plane and a publicity agent on the ground. They do nothing to advance aviation as a science or an industry.

"You do have to hand it to Amelia Earhart, however," he said.

"She is a fine little lady. She loudly says that she was just a passenger on that memorable flight across the Atlantic and that all the credit is due her pilot.

"But the rest of them—they hop from place to place and glad hand all of the ladies clubs."

Asked about Elinor Smith, the women's altitude record holder, he said, "Yeah? Well the only place she went was up, wasn't it?"

"Anybody can go up."

He continued, "Now the flyers that have my admiration are the old timers—the ones who entered aviation when it was just a gamble. They are hard as a boot too, those old birds. Their faces are brown and weatherbeaten and they have managed little more than to keep out of debt, and hang reputations as crack-jack flyers and fine fellows. They are the ones I take my hat off to."

And Jerry could well take his hat off to himself, also.

He learned to fly in 1922 in New Mexico, and has been hard at it ever since.

With his University Flying Circus he barnstormed all over the United States, hopping passengers at a date when an airplane over a town caused the inhabitants thereof to rush to windows and the flying field.

Tourist Robbed By Youth Whom He Gave A Lift

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Sept. 29 (AP)—A man had befriended, beat and robbed R. E. Gosnell, Phoenix, Ariz., tourist, about 6:30 o'clock Monday morning and threw him out of his car six miles south of here.

Gosnell, teller in a Phoenix bank, was going east on a vacation. He told Sheriff Barker of Parker county that he drove into a filling station "about 90 miles west of Fort Worth at 4 o'clock" and saw a young, overalled man talking to a policeman. He offered to give the young man a "lift."

Since he had driven all night, Gosnell said, he became drowsy and permitted the passenger to drive. Gosnell fell asleep at Weatherford the young man turned south, and reaching a point six miles from town, suggested the tourist with a pistol, robbed him of $50 body out of the car and turned around. Officers believe the man continued toward Fort Worth in the car.

Gosnell was not seriously injured. A dairyman saw him pitched out of the car and brought him to a hospital here.

Although the tourist was unable to name the town where he picked up the stranger officers believe it was Ranger.

Gosnell's car is a black six-cylinder coupe bearing the Arizona license 353-355. His assailant, he said, is heavy in stature, has dark complexion and is dressed in blue striped overalls with a soft hat.

Sheriff Barker said the description corresponds to that of a man who broke jail at Abilene Sunday after being arrested for robbing a tourist in a similar fashion.

Football Game Monday Feature At Regional Fair

2-Year-Old Awakes Dad, But Too Late

Father Twice Tries To Rescue Infant From Flames

HASKELL, Texas, Sept. 29 (AP)—His two-year-old son waked Floyd Rogers at Haskell at 6 o'clock Sunday evening as the kitchen was enveloped in flames, but the youngster was too late to save his six months old sister, whose charred body was taken from the fire a few minutes later by Arthur Hays, fireman.

In Carriage

Mary Ruth Rogers, infant daughter, was asleep in her carriage in the kitchen and her brother Billy Jean, 2, and sister Dorothy May, 4, were playing in the room when the mother went across the street in the front-room after returning from a fishing trip.

Mrs. Wayne Perry, next door neighbor, saw the flames in the Rogers kitchen and called firemen. They arrived about the time the baby wakened his father.

The father twice attempted to rescue his daughter and was preparing to return to the task when Hays discovered the carriage and brought it out. The baby was dead. An oil stove had been burning in the kitchen.

Crawford Hotel Barber Shop To Re-Open Tuesday

Modernistic fixtures in color scheme of ivory and green are features of the Crawford Hotel Barber Shop which will open in its new Third Street location of the hotel building Tuesday. The space was formerly used by the Chamber of Commerce.

The shop is managed by Virgil B. Smith who has had charge of the two-chair shop just off the lobby for the last two and one-half years. The new location is larger than the old room and three barbers will be employed. Besides Mr. Smith, the manager, there will be Fred Campbell, who has been with the shop for some time and Doyle Hold.

The three barbers are graduates in barber science and are prepared to render the most skillful and scientific services.

Mr. Smith invited all his old patrons and new ones to visit him in his new location.

Widow And Friend Plead Not Guilty To Murder Charge

AKRON, O., Sept. 19. (AP)—The widow of Clarence R. Barnes, Akron roofing salesman killed by a dynamite explosion that wrecked his borrowed automobile, and her alleged paramour pleaded not guilty today to charges of first degree murder.

Mrs. Barnes, 37, and the alleged lover, Marshall W. Cornell, 48, a paper hanger who claims he formerly was a Chicago attorney asked for a preliminary hearing, which was set for Friday.

LONDON WOOL

LONDON, Sept. 19. (AP)—The offerings at the wool sales today amounted to 10,511 bales, of which 8,500 were sold. Fine kinds were in quiet demand at current rates, but other offerings were slow and in buyers' favor. Medium scoured were frequently withdrawn owing to low bids. South Americans were also quiet and not all were sold. Punta Arenas best greasy crossbeds brought 12 3-4d.

For the new school term the American Automobile association, sponsors of the patrol system, has adopted uniform standards for the entire nation to increase efficiency and foster public interest.

In addition to work in this field, which has even spread to Hawaii, where patrolmen are known as junior police, safety education will reach nearly 2,500,000 children as a part of the regular curricula of schools.

The value of this comprehensive program of promoting safety has been credited by the national conference on street and highway safety, operating under chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, with a marked reduction in child fatalities.

"Reduction in child deaths, credited to safety education and school patrols," Secretary Lamont said, "is the one redeemable feature in the whole situation of traffic mortality. Safety records of Chicago show that the number of children under 15 years of age who were killed by automobiles was reduced from 188, when the patrols were first established in 1926, to 166 in 1929.

Detroit, with 108 fatalities among children in 1928, when 340,111 pupils were enrolled, had a reduction to 88 fatalities in 1929, when the enrollment was 402,670.

Al Simmons Most Apt To Bust Up Game

Philadelphia Slugger's Bat Will Be Constant Threat

BY ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Collectively, the Cardinals have a heavier hitting outfield array than the Athletics; but in the robust person of Aloysius Harry Simmons the American League champions possess the slugger most apt to break up a ball game on short notice.

Rival managers and pitchers have no hesitation in saying they would rather see any member of the A's except Simmons come to the plate in a pinch. Simmons started the winning rallies for the Mackmen in the last two games of the 1929 world's series. What he left undone in his outfield mates, George (Mule) Haas and Edmund (Ding) Miller, finished very neatly.

In the Shibe Park clubhouse of the A's, Bing Miller still includes among his cherished souvenirs the warclub from which flew the two base hit that decided the final game of the battle with the Cubs last year.

Miller and Haas have not been hitting any where near their best this year. Haas has been a casualty, but their series records help offset the fact that the St. Louis outfield trio of George Watkins, Chuck Fey and Taylor, Douthett has been hitting at a .355 clip as compared to around .325 for their fourth coming rivals.

Watkins wasn't on the regular roster of the Cardinals, reporting for spring training at Bradenton, Fla., last winter, but the Rochester recruit has been one of the National League sensations, a big factor in the late rush of the Cardinals to the front. His batting has been heavy, close to .370 as well as timely.

Douthett is well below his companions in the hitting column but the fleet Cardinal fly-chaser is one of the best defensive men in the game. He is a natural ballhawk and a streak on the bases.

Haas's career at one time almost was checked by eye trouble but he has come back and hit around .340 all this year. He is a terrific line hitter and like Simmons, can break up a ball game.

The National League champions are better equipped in outfield reserves with a .370 slugger, George Fisher, ready to step into an emergency situation. Ray Blades, who doubles as a coach, also is available for outfield duty.

The Athletics have a prize recruit in Jim Moore, Texas League product, who joined the team just in time to help win a few ball games and become eligible for the world's series. In his first thirteen major league games he hit .378. Homer Summa is a veteran utility man.

Three Intersectional Games On This Week's Schedule Of Southwest Loop Squadrons

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Southwest Conference's "bigger and better" football week dawned today, with three schools bearing down in final preparation for intersectional battles that will head-line the nation's grid program Saturday.

Topping the week's card in standpoint of popular appeal is the battle between Southern Methodist University's aerial circus and the colorful Notre Dame eleven at South Bend, Ind. The Mustangs, an easy victory over Howard Payne under their belts, were confident they finished polishing their offense to be used against the Rockmen.

Taylor To Purdue Catching the same train north with the Mustangs Wednesday at termion will be the Big Baylor University squad, bound for Lafayette, Ind., and a skirmish with the Purdue Boiler-makers, 1929 champions of the Big Ten. They will make most of the trip together, en route to a common cause in an effort to gain prestige for the Southwest Conference. Prospects were not so bright for the Bears, as they made an indifferent showing in defeating the Denton Teachers, a weak outfit, 25 to 0, in their opener Saturday.

A third squad bound for intersectional wars this week were the Texas Aggies, who Saturday will clash with the Nebraska Cornhuskers, coached by Dana X. Bible, former Aggie mentor, at Lincoln. The Bellmen, generally picked to finish in the second division in the conference race, looked surprising strong in overwhelming the Southwestern University Pirates, 43 to 0, a far better showing than Rice Institute had made against the same team.

Frogs vs. Cowboys Although they were not billed for one of the spectacular fraying this week, the champion Texas Christian University Frogs continued to demand attention as the result of their strong showing in preliminary tussles. In their third appearance Saturday, the Frogs stopped a strong Austin College team, 33 to 7, running their total points to 120. The illustrious Leland scored his fifth and sixth touchdowns, one of them on a 19-yard gallop. Lisle, Kangaroo back, supplied the game's feature with a 99-yard run for his team's score after intercepting a Frog aerial.

Saturday the Schmidtmans will show their wares to West Texas fans, meeting Simmons University Cowboys in their annual bout at Breckenridge, neutral ground. University of Texas, victorious over the Texas Miners from El Paso, 28 to 0, in its inaugural, was to stay at home again this week and engage the always troublesome Centenary Gentlemen at Memorial Stadium. Last year the Gents gave the Longhorns a fit battle, finally going down, 20 to 0, against the Miners Saturday.

Coach Littlefield's eleven failed to show the power expected of it, running up a score largely through breaks of the game. Victorious over College of Ozarks, 27 to 0, in their starter, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks were scheduled to meet Tulsa University at Tulsa, Okla. The Porcupines moved into the "dark horse" category by their impressive play against the Ozarkians, who are

Babe Pitches And Wins Last 1930 Contest

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

Only one place in the lineup of the two big leagues was in doubt as the teams went out for their final games yesterday and the New York Giants decided that by defeating the Phillies, 7 to 6, in a ten-inning struggle to hold third place in the National League by a one game margin over the erstwhile league leaders from Brooklyn.

The Giants used five groundmen, came from behind to tie the score in the ninth inning and won in the tenth. The Robins did their best to gain a tie, defeating the Boston Braves, 6 to 3, Hollis Thurston gave eight hits and drove in four runs with three of Brooklyn's 15 hits, including the only home run of the game.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals finished a new pitching star to take their final game from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 1. Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, recently of the Western and Texas Leagues, held the Pirates to three hits and shut them out after his first major league inning.

The New York Yankees brought forth an old timer of the hurling ranks, none other than Babe Ruth himself, and won a 9 to 3 decision from the Boston Red Sox. The Babe had not pitched a full game in nine years, but he did it in his old time form yesterday, giving only two hits in the first five innings.

The Chicago Cubs came back to beat Cincinnati, 13 to 11, after the Reds had scored nine runs in the second inning. Washington's second pitcher team scored six times in the fifth to defeat Philadelphia's American League champions, 9 to 4, as four acts of the Mack hurling staff worked briefly. St. Louis and Cleveland divided a wild hit collecting 17 hits as they won the first game, 11 to 5, and the Indians unleashing a 20 hit attack to capture the second, 15 to 4. Chicago's White Sox did likewise, hitting safely 15 times as they defeated Detroit 10 to 7 through a strong finish.

CONNIE MACK HIS 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

No. 13—The Proudest Moment

The season of 1929 slipped years from the lean frame of Connie Mack, restored his enthusiasm and eagerness for the game that has been his life.

Nearing his 67th birthday, he was the central figure in one of baseball's most dramatic and exciting triumphs in the world's series.

The fate at last turned in Mack's favor, after a long interval the nation's fandom seemed to unite in "pulling for Old Connie." Hundreds wrote him letters of praise and advice, even warning they were "off him" if the A's did not come through.

There was something remarkable about the march of the A's through out the 1929 campaign, just as there had been in the victorious rush of the Washington Senators in 1925 when Walter Johnson finally enacted the world's series role of popular hero.

"The club this year is working its head off for the man, Connie Mack," Eddie Collins told me one afternoon at Shibe Park. "Of course, we all like to be with a winner, but to a man the A's think more of winning this pennant for Mr. Mack than they do for any extra money or glory they may get out of it."

Nearly twenty years previously Mack's greatest headache had crushed the Chicago Cubs of Frank Chance's day. This time the old master's world's series managerial rival was Joe McCarthy, who was playing on the benches of Cincinnati, a Philadelphia clubman whom Mack had first met on a team in the Athletics.

Mack's strategy and the series had been hitting rallies of the Athletics in the last two games proved well, perhaps we did, but do not forget that my players were forced to fight on the short end of an inning that they returned to 1-1. Mack's strategy in manipulating his pitchers proved a big factor in the series. Not once were the Cubs or the experts able to guess correctly the old master's mound selection, especially when he sent Howard Ehmke in the first game at Chicago.

Ehmke, of little use during the pennant race, was about to be recalled late in the season when he pleaded for a chance to stick and pitch in the world's series. Knowlton called from Florida to receive the $10,000 Philadelphia Award, which Mack knew when he was founded by the late Edward K. Bok to recognize the annual accomplishment contributing most to the city's benefit and fame.

Why, I never see much as moved much less lost my balance," he told me. "I guess, at that, I was the only one who didn't manifest any

Every Man In Good Shape For Conflict

Local Hopfuls Confront Enemy On West Texas Fair Grid

The Big Spring Steers, with a victory over a Class A aggregation behind them, left Sunday to take on the problematic Abilene Eagles Monday afternoon at Abilene as a feature of the West Texas Fair, the fray to start at 2 p. m. today.

With every player on the squad in perfect condition, the Longhorns departed from this metropolis of West Texas confident that for the first time in years they are equal to the lads that bear the black and gold of Abilene High School.

A special train bearing what few supporters there are of the 1929 Steer machine left at 6:35 a. m. today to see the conflict.

The Steers have a 12 to 6 victory over the Mineral Wells Mountain, cers behind them. The Abilene contest is the second Class A conflict of the season for the local aggregation.

The Steers, when they line up against the Abilene Eagles, will present a defense that is going to be hard to get around. Hefty line-men backed by a secondary that is no slouch when it comes to defensive work, is expected to excel against the Eagles.

The youths left Big Spring Sunday at noon, spent the night at the West Texas "Athens" and will be in fine condition to battle with the team on which Dewey Mayhew is pinning his hopes, if any, to carve a name for itself in this tough season of sod.

Reports by quarters of the game will be given at the Herald office. The conflict starts at 2 p. m.

assumption that pipe line companies will take oil ratably from all producers so that producers' output can be kept on a parity, and the whole proration scheme would be destroyed should pipe line companies fail to do their part.

One of the most unusual complaints filed was by a group of royalty owners who, seeking larger dividends, appeared before the commission with a petition claiming that proration actually was causing a waste of oil—white waste was what the proration order set out to correct.

Despite these pessimistic notes, the commission is proceeding on the theory that all these matters will adjust themselves. So far as possible, each field has been left alone, with the local proration committee to settle all disputes. The curtailment program still has 50 days to run, and if it proves workable with developments will be extended for another 90 day period.

First Month Of State-Wide Proration Declared To Be But Partially Successful

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—(AP)—The first month of oil production under Texas' first state wide attempt at proration has been only partially successful, according to those close to the oil industry of the state.

Oil proration went into effect on August 27, with the announced hope that by September 27 production would have been curtailed to approximately 750,000 barrels daily. This figure has by no means been reached, but railroad commission officials, who promulgated the proration order at the request of operators, feel that progress has been made.

Perhaps two fields, or rather one field and one large producing area, are the outstanding delinquents as the first month closes.

The Gulf coast area, comprising thirty odd separate producing fields, was given thirty days to reach its allotted production schedule of 100,000 barrels. Latest available figures from the area indicate that this has not been done, and that the production de-

Argotane Has Made New Man Of Husband

"MY HUSBAND SUFFERED WITH ABDOMINAL TROUBLES BUT NOT A TRACE OF AILMENTS NOW," SAYS LUBBOCK WIFE.

"Well, Argotane has just simply made a new man out of my husband and I can't begin to tell you how happy it has made me," said Mrs. E. G. White of 601 Ave. O, Lubbock, Texas, wife of a well known electrician.

"I certainly wish my husband had gotten hold of Argotane several years sooner," she continued, "for he was in a terrible run down condition and has a very chronic case of stomach trouble. After eating he would be in misery for hours afterward, and would nearly always have to take something for the pain. He did not digest but would lay in stomach, burping and undigested. Everything he ate, soured on his stomach, and he would bloat and have gas on his stomach. He would bloat so after eating that he would be very uncomfortable."

"He was getting to be very nervous and was restless all night long and hardly ever got a good night's sleep. He had a bad case of constipation and was forced to take something all the time."

"We read a lot of statements from Lubbock people about Argotane and found out what it was doing for others, so we decided to give it a trial. It just went right after his troubles, and now he is entirely just a different man. He has a splendid appetite and undigested everything he eats, and isn't bothered with indigestion in the least. He goes about his work now feeling fine. Argotane has helped my husband so, when nothing else did him any good, I am glad to give this statement for his benefit."

Argotane is available at all drug stores.

If Prices Go On Down

The past few months have seen an unpleasant business depression in the United States, although it is not as deep as in the past. In the near future, according to our most trusted economic experts, conditions will pick up. However, there remains one question not generally considered in the prospectus of the future.

Will commodity prices stabilize at their present level or will they continue to slip down the scale toward pre-war levels?

On the answer to that question depends a great deal, most probably they will work up much interest in an abstract discussion of commodity price trends, but the discussion is important just the same.

Writing in the current magazine of The Magazine of Wall Street, John C. Crosswell points out that prices have been declining steadily for about eight months. Right now they are about halfway between the high level of 1928 and the low of 1932.

It is proved to be merely a temporary slump, with a rebound following soon after, as is shown by the fact that 54 prices stabilize where they are or continue on down to the 1932 level or thereabouts we shall trouble. Mr. Crosswell points out that there is grave danger that the latter is what will happen, and the thought does not seem to be optimistic.

To begin with the psychological effect would be bad. For years we have breathed an atmosphere of rising prices, and it is not surprising that a strike as a nation of pessimists just as the post-war slump made us a nation of optimists.

Secondly, just as the creditor class is hit by a time of rising prices, the debtor class suffers when prices go down. Industrial firms floating bond issues would be hard hit. The luckless farmer, needing an annual mortgage to move his crops, would sweat even more than he is sweating now.

Furthermore, international debts would be seriously affected. Many economists, Mr. Crosswell points out, insist that both German reparations and Allied war debts to the United States will be repudiated if commodity prices generally slip below a level at least 25 per cent below the 1932 level. No one needs to ponder that outlook long to find plenty of cause for the horizon.

To be sure, none of these dire things has happened yet. The present slump may be followed by a strong rebound. Prices may start rising again. The controllers of international credit, Mr. Crosswell asserts, are even now planning to expand credit and thereby send prices upward.

But the situation, at all events, is serious enough to call for real study. The next few years, obviously, will place a premium on cool business judgment, efficiency and brains. The day of the opportunist and the bluffer is about over.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
The New Republican Candidate

Wichita Times
 In choosing Col. William E. Talbot as their candidate for governor, Texas Republicans have done as well as could be expected. He will get as many votes as anyone else they could have chosen. He won't get the 300,000 votes which B. B. Cregar optimistically predicts. He won't get half that many. But he should get the normal Republican vote, plus a few thousand more, perhaps, and that is all that Dr. Butte or anyone else could have done.

PELLAGRA
 Pellagra, prevalent throughout the United States, most particularly so in the southern states, affects no fewer than 100,000 individuals, it is estimated, causing an approximate annual death of 6,000 persons.

Pellagra is most prevalent in the spring and early summer. The explanation is that it follows the restricted and deficient diet of winter months.

Pellagra is especially a disease of the poor man, and of the finicky eater.

The principal symptoms are weakness, nervousness, indigestion and a characteristic skin eruption. It is the latter symptom, the eruption, by which pellagra is most easily recognized. At first the skin affected appears as if sunburned. Blisters may form, and the skin may peel.

In a certain number of cases the skin turns a dirty brown color. It becomes rough, scaly, or cracks and peels.

The skin manifestations are most common on the back of the hands, the back of the feet, the sides or back of the neck, face, elbows and knees. As a general rule when one part is affected, its opposite on the other side will also be affected.

There is also a general sense of fatigue, together with loss of adv.

Dancing Silhouette
 BY NAELIE SUMNER LINCOLN

Synopsis: Dr. Paul Kane is killed by carbon monoxide gas poisoning, and circumstantial evidence points to Jack Winslow, adopted son of Arnold Winslow, as the murderer. Jack has disappeared mysteriously. He loves Lisa Chase, beautiful, capped girl, whom Kane was to have examined in line with the elder Winslow's theory that she is not really a cripple. Winslow also has engaged to Thorne, detective, to prove Lisa's past in an effort to keep her from marrying her. Lisa, the housemaid, on late one night to mail a letter, is terrified to see a woman figure, maddeningly, silhouette against the curtain of a ground-floor window. A few nights later she again sees it, this time inside the house, and faints. Thorne also sees it and pursues it fruitlessly. When he returns Lisa's unconscious form has vanished. He finds her asleep in her room, with no apparent memory of her experience.

Three matches found in Dr. Kane's billfold are the same as those of a box belonging to Lisa Chase, Thorne discovers.

WOMEN AGAIN

The Indians Are Coming is the title of a new movie serial, but as far as movie-making goes the Indians already are here again.

The redskin of course never has left the screen entirely, even if for a period he has been only in "westerns." But now he is returning to prominence.

A studio which has not employed Indians in any number on its lot in the past five years is filming "West of the Law" and "Fighting Caravans" and "Cimarron," another pioneer story will have its quota.

NO MORE PILES

HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, is guaranteed to banish any form of Pile misery. It gives quick action even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and strengthens the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Collins Bros. and druggists everywhere sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it cures you nothing if it doesn't end all Pile agony.

she sense what the woman was saying.

"Come across, sister," and Mrs. Lawrence stopped looking down at Lisa, her feet had and once more in place. "It's easier to pay the price than doin' a term in the pen," she muttered coarsely.

Elsa fumbled in the mesh bag which she had dropped in the inside of her pocket of her fur coat instead of returning it to its usual hiding-place, and drew out fifty dollars in gold.

"You will have to be satisfied with that," she exclaimed, catching Mrs. Lawrence's nuttous glance.

"For now." The woman pocketed the money. "I'll come out for more tomorrow," suggestively, "or perhaps tonight, when the men-folks are home?"

From her bag, which hung conveniently on the arm of her chair, Elsa took a pad and the stub of a pencil.

"Your address?" she asked briefly, and the woman, glancing at her uneasily, saw that she had gone too far.

"What do you want it for?" suspicion overcame her curiosity.

"So that I can communicate with you through others," swiftly, regaining her composure. "Stop," observing the protest trembling on Mrs. Lawrence's lips. "If you want money, it will have to be given to you in my way, or—well, you know the penalty for blackmail."

The woman's color changed.

"I'm stopping at 1819 35th Street," she volunteered, and would have added more but the gate behind them clicked as it swung back into place and Ferguson shambled up to them.

"Is this woman a-botherin' of ye?" he questioned, touching his finger to his cap visor, and with an appreciating glance at Mrs. Lawrence. "Mr Winslow don't permit no trespassin' here."

Elsa pressed the hunted stub of her pencil against the pad as she wrote down the figures in blind haste. Thank God Ferguson had gone.

The effect of the garden's presence on Mrs. Lawrence was marked instantly she was all civility.

Just stopped for a friendly word," she announced softly. Seeing this young lady through the garden gate, sitting here so lonely. Well, I must be off, and she waved her hand courteously as Elsa as she sat through the gate which the scowling Ferguson had opened for her.

Hollywood's Surprising Brunet Shortage

There are plenty of pretty-faced blonds but dark-haired loveliness is rare, says Flo Ziegfeld after picking his first cast for a musical comedy talkie

Ruth Eddins
... one of the radiant blonds ... not to shock audiences with nudity ... but with beauty.

Hazel Forbes ... one of Ziegfeld's favorite beauties ... in his most recent show, "Simple Simon."

Florenz Ziegfeld ... personally, he prefers red heads.

Lora Foster ... just as beautiful, thinks Ziegfeld, as a blond ... but much more difficult to find.

Mary Ashcraft ... pick of the brunet beauties in the film version of "Whoopie"

Gladys Clud ... another of the preferred type of Broadway beauties ... veteran of many glorifications.

Claire Dodd ... represents the perfect blond for screen glorification.

By DAN THOMAS

THERE are more beautiful blonds in this country than there are beautiful brunets. Startling as this statement may seem, it comes from no less an authority than Florenz Ziegfeld, who has "glorified" more girls than any other man in the world.

For years New York theatergoers have wondered why Ziegfeld has expressed a decided preference for brunets and yet has had blonds predominating in his shows. Now the secret is out—it's because the task of finding really beautiful brunets is extremely difficult, while the pretty-faced blond is to be found on all sides.

"And how about the little red-head? You aren't going to leave her out entirely, are you?" we inquired. "Now you are touching on my real weakness," declares the theater impresario. "My best answer to that is that my wife and daughter both have red hair. But I always have put red-heads in the same general class with brunets, since their characteristics are more or less the same."

When the time came to select show girls and chorus girls for the films, Ziegfeld found the same condition existed with regard to blonds and brunets. The tow-headed girls suitable for picture purposes were in the majority by a considerable margin.

Before going any further, pause for a moment to find out just what difference there is between a show girl and a chorus girl. Ziegfeld's description of them is that the chorus girl is the little girl who does all the work and the show girl is the big girl who gets all the money. In other words, the chorus girl does all the dancing while the show girl is, in a sense, a prop on the stage. All she does is walk around and look beautiful.

"I have never been in sympathy with this relation," declares the glorifier of the American girl. "In my opinion things should be just the reverse. The chorus girl should be the one who draws the high salary, but as long as the public will pay more to see beauty than it will for talent, this condition must exist."

ZIEGFELD hadn't been in Hollywood very long before he discovered that it is one thing to select a group of girls for a stage show and quite another to pick girls suitable for a screen production. The man whose eye was considered infallible around New York, due to the fact that he managed to present more beauties than any other producer year after year, discovered that even a pair of Harold Lloyd's famous spectacles weren't of much help in the celluloid village. When casting was started for the film version of "Whoopie," Ziegfeld merely did the preliminary picking. Final judgment was left to a comparatively small mechanical device—the camera.

And very often the noted impresario found that he was wrong. Girls whom he would have given jobs in a minute had he been in New York, had to be discarded because they just couldn't get along with the camera. The all-seeing lens of that apparatus picked flaws which were invisible to the human eye, even such a trained one as Ziegfeld's.

On the other hand, he learned something which experienced film directors and producers have known for years—that girls who do not appear striking to the human eye sometimes are the most beautiful when flashed upon the silver screen. Consequently "Whoopie" will present to screen audiences a number of girls who never would have gotten past Ziegfeld's fourth assistant in Manhattan.

Don't get the idea, however, that this man can't pick screen material. He can. And the proof of that is that some who first broke into fame under his banner later achieved even greater success in motion pictures. Among them are Mae Murray, Marion Davies, Billie Dove, Dorothy Mackaill, Phyllis Haver, Jacqueline Logan, Lilyan Tashman and Olive Thomas, who was at the height of her career when she died some years ago.

And there are a great many more out in Hollywood who claim to have been Ziegfeld stars in the past. When the talkies started the westward trek of both the successful and unsuccessful New York stage folk, the majority of girls who had attained no definite achievements claimed to be former Ziegfeld girls. In fact, this claim was made by 80 per cent of the girls who applied for parts in "Whoopie," but, of course, the man for whom they claimed to have worked didn't recognize a great many of them.

SOME might think it strange that these girls should cook up stories of past careers which they never had in order to secure work in pictures. But it isn't. They have learned from experience that the New York show girl has far more chance of getting a job in Hollywood than anyone else. They also know that casting directors as a general rule are not familiar with New York players, even those who were far box office attractions on Broadway. Further than that, they know that a casting director must take their word for what experience they have had because he hasn't time to check on it. And many of them have gotten jobs in just this

HOWEVER, it is possible for girls to wear less on the screen than on the stage and still appear beautiful to the audience.

"That sounds as though we are endeavoring to uncover the girls' bodies as much as possible, doesn't it?" the producer continued. "Such is not the case, however. But theater audiences demand a certain amount of nudity in a musical production. They enjoy looking at a beautiful figure, which naturally is more enticing if covered by just the right amount of clothing—not too much nor too little. And, too, a girl can move about with more grace if not encumbered with too much clothing."

While we were talking of these things, Ziegfeld walked over to a large file of pictures and after looking them over for a few minutes returned to his desk with three large photos which he had selected.

"They were my favorites in my last show," he remarked. "As you can see, two of them, Hazel Forbes and Gladys Glad, are blonds. Lora Foster, the brunet, is just as beautiful in my opinion, but her type are more difficult to find. And all three of them differ in some respects from the girls we used in the picture."

"You can see the difference for yourself by looking over these pictures of Mary Ashcraft and Claire Dodd, who played in the film, 'Whoopie'."

Ziegfeld has a surprising answer to the question of whether or not the public is fed up on musical productions in the talkies. It was not the answer I would have expected.

"Yes, the public is fed up on musical films and it has every right to be," Ziegfeld replied.

"Taking into consideration the kind of musical pictures which have been produced, the only thing that surprises me is that the public didn't turn against them long ago. There have been a few good ones and each one of them has made money, but most of them have been an absolute insult to public intelligence."

HOWEVER, I don't think musical talkies are dead. I believe the public will always patronize good music shows on stage or screen.

Ziegfeld is so firm in his belief that the public never tires of a good show, regardless of its type, that he intends to continue producing shows in New York with the idea of later making them into pictures. In his opinion every screen musical comedy should first be produced on the stage in order to find out just where the laughs are so that the film can be timed accordingly.

One of the greatest difficulties experienced by directors since the introduction of talking films has been the timing of laughs. Audiences very often lose one or two lines of dialogue because of their laughter and there have been other times when entire pictures were practically killed because an audience didn't laugh when it was expected to. There is nothing more deadening than to have an actor pause for a laugh which never comes. That is why comedians have a much easier time on the legitimate stage. There they can wait for a laugh to subside or can keep right on going if a gag doesn't happen to hit the audience.

The long run of "Whoopie" in New York enabled Ziegfeld and Eddie Cantor, who played the lead in both stage and screen productions, to know just where every laugh would come. They timed the picture accordingly and when it was previewed a short time ago in San Diego, they discovered that they hadn't missed the timing once.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Philadelphia, Pa.
I am sixteen and in High School. I have ideals, but because they are high I feel I shall never attain to them. What should one do under the hard conditions when he wants to rise above them?

Look to your ideals. They are the plants in your sky, and God is your sun and shield. The scathing rain cannot touch the stars, but by means of their guides across the waste of waters, and they enable him to reach his appointed haven. Your life's voyage is likewise charted and equipped from above.

In making that voyage do not be afraid of the light involved. Hercules was a very wise man, and he said that strife is the father of all things. This means that every reference to your moral life. You quit the field before the battle is well begun when you yield to the low as against the high in thought, word or deed. A man's true standard of comparison is always above and never beneath him.

Of course, conditions are hard. But what a thrill there is in breathing the steep ascent and pulling against the downward drift! Every exertion upward brings with it strength for the next step. Joy and sorrow, success and failure will attend you. Push ahead, heedless of them and of men's praise or blame. As you ascend with rugged earnestness your outlook will broaden, and mean and despicable behavior take on its sinister aspects.

A sound moral judgment will prevent you from violating your faith in yourself, your fellows or your God. And should you be spared to live our allotted span, an honorable age shall crown your career. So don't give up the struggle.

Birmingham, Ala.
I am a Unitarian. A Unitarian minister tells me I would have to change my faith before I can ever amount to anything spiritually.

Your question does not clearly state whether you want to know what I think of Unitarians personally or what I think of their theology. The distinction is important. Some men are better than their theology, while others fall in part of what their theology requires. I number Unitarians among my warmest friends, and from the standpoint of Christian character they are in every way admirable.

But I always feel that they have what might be called the irreducible minimum of Christian belief, namely, the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of man, and righteous character as the end of life.

Yeflife has an inward as well as outward aspects. Christian experience, for example means something more than the way in which a man lives before his fellows. If you want to call it mystical I should have no objection. But such an experience depends upon certain beliefs, and it has always seemed to me that Unitarians necessarily limit themselves at this point by the rather severely intellectual character of their religious beliefs.

Many Christians claim that they have "an experience of the presence of the Living Christ." Can a Unitarian have that experience when he denies the reality of the Living Christ? I am not dogmatizing here. I am only suggesting that perhaps your friend is right when he implies that if you go farther in your belief you might find you were going farther in your religious experience.

Brooklyn, N. Y.
If you knew that the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection of Jesus were untrue, would you nevertheless believe in the wisdom and divineness of thought of Jesus Christ and a Christianity?

If yes, then is He not an ordinary Hebrew prophet like unto David or Elijah, great, noble, wise, but nevertheless mortal?

If no, are these unnatural, miraculous phenomena, contrary to reason and unsupported by fact, more important to you than the righteousness and justice of His moral heart?

Nothing connected with the physical life of our Lord can deprive that life of its moral and spiritual transcendence. You rightly emphasize this feature in your remark that Christ's righteousness and justice are the most important elements in the case. Add to these virtues His sacrificial love and its redemptive power and the presentation is complete.

But because He was supremely just and loving and able to transmit His life to believing souls, they naturally sought to explain the mystery of His being. The Virgin Birth, which I accept, was one explanation of that mystery. The Resurrection, which I also accept, vindicated the claim that Christ advanced and banished the fears which had chilled the human heart. Their significance is apparent, and the evidence for the Resurrection has always been convincing for multitudes of intelligent minds.

Yet in the early Church many souls who had not heard of the Virgin Birth felt the conscious presence of their risen Saviour, and governed their lives accordingly. It is that felt presence which sustains the whole Christian system at its center and around it cluster what the New Testament terms its "many infallible proofs."

Trial Of Negro Who Killed Man, Attacked Girl, Puzzles Cops

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 29.—The trial of a negro who shot to death a Houston ice dealer and attacked his companion Saturday night, as they drove through a Houston suburb, continued today to baffle police.

Hundreds from the central state prison farm were brought to the scene in an attempt to trace the steps of H. H. Pevateaux, 35, but the trail was lost near the wooded section where the attractive 25-year-old waitress was assaulted. The ra believed the killer escaped in an automobile.

The woman was confined in a hospital suffering from nervous shock. In a statement to officers, she said the negro leaped upon the running board of the automobile in which she and Pevateaux were riding and commanded Pevateaux to stop the car. When her companion swerved the car sharply in an effort to throw the negro off, she said he shot Pevateaux once.

The car plunged into a ditch and halted. She said Pevateaux got out of the car, walked a few steps and then fell. The negro then compelled her to walk down the road to a grove and there attacked her, the woman said.

Daniel Guggenheim, Philanthropist, Dies

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Daniel Guggenheim, 74, member of the Guggenheim family of mining magnates and well known as a patron of aeronautics, died yesterday of heart disease at his estate, Hempstead House.

He was in poor health when he returned from Europe September 15 and took to his bed last Friday.

Experiments in farm raising in an attempt to halt soil erosion are being tried near Troy, Kas.

(AP)—Police of Dallas and Fort Worth were searching today for a robber who held up J. Frank Smith last night, as he started to enter a downtown telegraph office, compelled him to drive to the outskirts of Fort Worth and robbed him of $250. Smith was preparing to telegraph the money to his wife, formerly Miss Constance Conner of Dallas and Dublin, Texas, who is in Chicago to attend the wedding next Tuesday of her sister, Miss Eva Cooling Conner, and Robert Hancock of Dallas. He is the son of the late Rev. J. Frank Smith, pastor of the congregation which built the City Temple Presbyterian church in the uptown business area here under his leadership.

Another Youth Seeks Junior Plane Record Across U. S. NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 29. (AP)—Bob Buck, 16 year old Elizabeth aviator, took off at 7:10 a. m. today from Newark Metropolitan airport in an attempt to break the junior transcontinental speed record set a few weeks ago by his friend, Eddie Schneider, 19, of Jersey City. Unfavorable weather conditions forced Buck to postpone his take-off five times today. He was promised advantageous winds after he left Columbus, O., his first scheduled stop. He planned to stop also at St. Louis, Wichita, and Albuquerque, flying from there to Los Angeles. Schneider's record was 29 hours and 40 minutes. Buck also intended to attempt to break the west-east record held by Schneider. SECRETARY—where local requirements had not been met. They said notices claiming forfeiture of more than 1,000,000 acres, some held by large oil concerns had recently been posted on these lands. The Kelly letter, Secretary Wilbur added, had not been received at the department.

Will Rogers Writes Of Frog Rodeos In Gold Country

They have a frog rodeo.

BY WILL ROGERS While all I know is just what I read in the scandal sheets, and what I hold a clinic over as I proud hither and non. Well Sir I must tell you more about that mining town of "Bodie," Cal. It was one of the famous mining camps of later days, but had been practically deserted for years, but with the demand for gold here lately and the improved and cheaper method of extracting it, there was a revival of the famous old place. Harry Carr, one of the best newspaper men on this or any other coast had been up there writing wonderful stories of what it meant to a mining town to be revivifying, and about to reach good health again. He claimed the thing was running almost as wide open as one of our big cities, that the gambling and drinking was in a small way on a comparison with New York or Los Angeles. Well in my times, (I am talking like one of the early pioneers) I have seen some of the boys foolishly, and at times otherwise, lay a small wager on the outcome of what later would be apparent as a hazardous game. And in passing by I had peeped in, under swinging doors and there would be men sipping various nectars. Well Mrs. Rogers and I were just out prowling around. We were working on spoiling a fine old classic, and had been taking a great part of the Scenes on the original site where the play was laid, at Lake Tahoe. Mr. Henry King our Director had told me that he had seen just about all of my face that he desired for exterior photographic purposes, and that if I wanted I could head for home, and as they had a few more days work without me I need not be in any hurry to get to home. Well that was right up my alley. I bet a lot of you like this too. I love to drive around and look over queer old places, especially historic old spots. Well that Country up around in the mountains of California, why you could be there from now on just looking at places that you had read about all your life. Right under our nose was "Donner Lake" the place where the most famous of all pioneer stories of hardships, why there was where they had spent the winter within fifteen miles of the summit but just too late to get over. That's where perhaps the only case of cannibalism was ever practiced in our country. It was afterwards admitted on the very best authority that they actually had to resort to the use of human flesh to exist. It was one of the greatest stories of pioneer life. If you haven't read the "Life of the Donner Party" you don't know nothing of suffering and hardships. The California Societies are doing a great deal to preserve the spirits and history of moments like that, and you have a fine spot. Then we went over practically the same route that they hoped to make, from Donner Lake to Sutters Fort (now Sacramento) and through the old fort as it is preserved today by patriotic citizens, and it should be but its kinder a travesty on justice that while they kept the Fort, they did nothing for the man, that made the Fort and saved the early settlers. He died destitute in Washington, trying to get a little dab of money from our great Government, a mere pittance of what he had spent on preserving the life of some of the early settlers. There is a story, the life of that fellow Sutter. All the gold was found on his place. He owned all the country, he developed it, he improved conditions there, and yet by the aid of thieves, courts, and injustice, he lost his whole thing. Yet he had done more for his Country, real constructive work, than Washington had, up to the time he was chosen to lead our Army. California should have maintained his splendor for the balance of his days if he had lived even till Farmers got relief. But you get the life of this fellow Sutter, and it will make any other Autobiography look like the life of an Interior Decorator. But we got to be on our way. Then we went down through all the old early '49 camps. Sutter Creek, Angels Camp, in Calaveras, that's the exact home of Mark Twain's Jumping Frog; and really the story that did more to make Twain than any other one thing he ever did. They have Frog Rodeo there every year, Frog Singing, Frog Jumping, and wind up by eating all the frogs they had—some roasted, and everybody wind up with a Frog in their throat. Then Brets

Rush Well In Loving Averages More Than 350

Daily average of 381 5-7 barrels of oil was produced during the week ending last Wednesday by Joe Rush and others' No. 1 Wheat, recently completed producer in the deep, high gravity sweet oil field of Loving county.

The first gauge from 2:40 o'clock September 18 to 7 o'clock the next morning was 330 barrels. Subsequently 24-hour gauges follow: Sept. 20, 480 barrels; Sept. 21, 352 barrels; Sept. 22, 345 barrels; Sept. 23, 340 barrels; Sept. 24, 342 barrels; Sept. 25, 326 barrels.

Rush and others' No. 1 Wheat was completed by shooting pay from 4,271 feet, the top of the Delaware lime, to 4,306 feet, the total depth, with 180 quarts. Location is 16,500 feet from the northwest line and 3 1/2 feet from the southwest well line of section 85, block 1, W & NW Ry. survey.

Andrews Well Strikes Crude

Fuhrman Petroleum Company's No. 1 Ford, section 16, block A-43, Andrews county, which caused much interest a few weeks ago when a strong gas flow was hit, appeared Monday to be a comparatively small producer of oil. Fifteen hours after pay was struck at 4,288 feet, and drilled to 4,294 the small hole had filled 3,000 feet in crude. Total depth was 4,301 feet.

Pessimism

Acute weakness has given way to comparative stability. The preliminary report on foreign trade last month is, under the circumstances, distinctly favorable. The export surplus was the largest for any August since 1921. Although the automobile industry is operating at the lowest level reached so far during the current depression, except for the brief period in the summer when a large plants were shut down entirely for alterations, output is being held very close to the rate of current demand, with marked benefit to the inventory situation.

The latest reports of the weekly steel trade journals are the most optimistic in several months in addition to an increase of a per cent in the rate of operations for the industry as a whole, bringing the current schedule up to 61 per cent of capacity it is stated that a considerable amount of long-lead, re-rolling has come into the market, the improvement, while not rapid, is characterized as consistent.

Perhaps the most significant feature of the recent advance in output is that it occurred as a somewhat tardy response to increasing requirements from foundries and other makers of cast-iron products. In this respect it contrasts with the uptick noted a few weeks ago, which now appears to have anticipated a higher seasonal needs on the part of finished steel producers that did not immediately materialize.

As in the case of several other industrial raw materials, the greater activity of the steel market in recent months has not so much a rise in the rate of current consumption, as a growing disposition on the part of users to cover their future needs at the existing price level. Most mills, however, have chosen not to contract for delivery beyond the first of January. Even on orders for the nearer term, producers are insisting on higher prices than were quoted in recent weeks.

The revival of the market has taken place with little or no aid from the automobile industry and the railroads, ordinarily two of the largest consuming industries. It is apparently due to increasing demand on the part of a wide range of users, particularly radio stove and range, steel barrel, and farm implement producers.

Low Prices Stimulate Buying
In several directions, evidences have appeared that prices are considered at or near the bottom and that buyers are no longer deferring their commitments in the expectation of lower quotations. In the copper industry, several important consumers are reported to have placed large orders covering prospective requirements for several months in advance. A similar situation has been noted in the cotton textile industry, where trade has been partly paralyzed by the weakness of prices of raw material, with the prospect that an upward reaction will take place as soon as buyers become persuaded that the lowest point has been reached. Large industrial consumers of wheat, sugar and other food products have recently availed themselves of the low prices to provide for their needs many months in advance.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 29 (AP)—The opinion that business conditions in the United States is on a more sound basis than it was at the first of the year, was expressed by many of the nation's leading bankers here today as 6,000 members of the American Bankers' Association gathered for their annual convention. They said credit of manufacturers is better.

The textile industry of the south was given as an example. Textile manufacturers, the delegates from that region said, are not making money, but they have smaller supplies on their shelves and consequently a diminished inventory.

Some bankers expressed the feeling the depression has taught more conservative buying and has increased the saving of money, which they considered a sound condition. There is still too much of a buyers' market, it was believed, by many, and that there still is need for retailers to cut their margins of profit as the manufacturers have done.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Secretary Lamont estimated today at least fifty billion dollars will be spent on new residential construction in the United States during the next twenty years, and in addition about $500,000,000 a year during the same period on maintenance and repairs of houses. He was discussing plans for a national conference on home building and home ownership which President Hoover has called.

With recent drops in prices of building material, an ample number of highly skilled building workers available, contractors anxious to obtain work and mortgage money available at reasonable terms, the committee secretary continued, "conditions are now favorable for home builders who have the resources and intend to build to go ahead. In general, conditions are also good for going ahead with repairs, alterations and improvements."

A special study made last week by the committee planning for the conference, of which he is chairman, the secretary added, had given him the views expressed.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Sept. 29 (AP)—Heavy autumn orders have brought a resumption of full time operations at the Summerville cotton mills. The mill are now running five and one half days per week, and a small re shift is operating at night in order to fill large orders which have been received during the last ten days, Colonel John D. Taylor, owner of the mill, said today.

operations are scheduled to begin. "We do not want the airport owners to spend any more money than is absolutely necessary. They have made nothing on the field and neither have we. So long as necessary we are willing to be joint losers with them. The amount of support given air mail will largely determine this," said Marshall.

Houston-Galveston Road Scene Of Two Deaths

HOUSTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Tragedy hovered over the Houston-Galveston highway between Dickinson and Lamarque for an hour Sunday night and took two lives. The dead: Mrs. Hazel Belle Dallas, 62, of Lamarque.

Melvin Joseph McGinnis, 4, Houston.

Mrs. Dallas met death when she jumped from the machine in which she was riding, after a passing car had grazed it or the other side. Little damage was done to either car.

The boy was killed in an automobile crash when another car struck the one in which the boy was riding with his parents, Mr. and Mrs.

Four Women Injured In Prison Fighting

McALESTER, Okla., Sept. 29 (AP)—At least four women prisoners in the women's ward of the state penitentiary here were injured late yesterday in a fracas among a group of women inmates. It was learned today. The ward is situated nearly a mile outside the prison walls.

Both white and negro prisoners participated in the clash which was said to have followed the drinking of a supply of "choc" beer the women made in the ward.
