Could Deduct For Defense Expansions

WHO? IT?

Maybe twin sons had something to do with it, but this Mr. Whozit has loved boys so much that he has made them his hobby. Nothing pleases him more than his position as chairman of the local Boy Scout district and the fact his sons hold Eagle badges. Still, he finds time to head a business that reaches almost into every home in Big Spring and surrounding territory. Although he only came here a decade ago from Sulphur Springs, he has long been regarded as a community leader, being a director in the chamber of commerce, a member of the American Legion and an officer in the Episcopal church. He got his degree from the University of Michigan, but practically all his adult life has been spent in Texas. See him and his employees, who affectionately call him "the Boss," later in The Herald's "let-Acquainted page."

Modes For Fall Stress Slender Silhouette

Mrs. Ann Darrow of Montgomery Ward's fashion department, has just returned from Fort Worth where she attended the semi-annual Ward Fashion Clinic, conducted by Miss Olive Smith, nationally known stylist and fashion authority.

"This winter's fashions show a trend toward quieter femininity... a subdued, well-bred gentility... so becoming to American women," says Mrs. Darrow. The new silhouette is graceful, slender and willowy. Skirts are straighter; shoulders are less exaggerated; waistlines are natural. Many coats and dresses give an illusion of slim length by "side draping."

"This year's fashions are more adaptable to the busy life of an American woman. There is far less definition between 'dressy' and 'sports' clothes, which is certainly a boon to the woman who must dress on a limited budget. The majority of costumes can be worn with equal assurance to the office, to shop in, to luncheon, dinner, or to the movies.

"Simplicity is the keynote of this year's fashions. Simplicity of line... simplicity of color. Black looms on the fashion horizon as the most important basic color, with restrained browns, greys and wines in second place. Navy, too, is a good fall basic color. Brilliant color contrasts in collars, belts, and jewelry add interest and novelty.

"Simple dresses lend themselves to all kinds of accessory changes. Skirts are short and youthful. Tailored styles are often softly feminine... sometimes classically tailored, with pleated skirts, nicely detailed bodices and little collars. Afternoon dresses acquire distinction by side draping, front fullness and lower waistlines.

"Hats are no longer crazy. They, too, reflect good taste and breeding. Light-hearted and frivolous... yet combined with a serene sanity. For one thing, they cling firmly to the head through busy winter winds. Deftly manipulated turbans, off-the-face berets and forward-tilted toques... all are on to stay. Mannish sports hats are classic or softly feminine. Bright feathers and veils add a dash of color. Rich velvet will be seen everywhere.

"Pumps... not plain ones, but pretty, trimmed pumps... are worn with dressy, semi-dressy, and even casual clothes. The lasts are shorter looking this year and infinitely more flattering. Wedge and other novel heels add zest to the shoe picture.

"Handbags were never prettier... nor more practical. Every bag is capacious... as useful as it is decorative. Soft draping, meticulous tailoring and little dressmaking trims reflect the new feminine trend. Long oblong pouches are particularly exciting.

"Trimmed gloves are feminine and flattering... add drama to your costume. Classic untrimmed gloves remain a favorite, to be worn for every occasion."

Louisiana In Another Hot Vote Fight

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Louisiana politicians again are neck deep in another furious political campaign that promises to become almost as bitter as last winter's election fights which defeated the Long forces.

The new administration headed by Governor Sam H. Jones has declared war on Louisiana's entire house delegation in congress, and is seeking to oust all 8 representatives on Sept. 10 in the democratic primary.

Furthermore Jones has served notice that the fight will go on against the last unopposed remnants of the Long machine, Senators Ellender and Overton, when they come up for re-election in 1942 and 1944 respectively.

But to make the campaign more interesting than ever, there has been a renaissance of the republican party in Louisiana following the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie for president, and republican congressional candidates are running in four of the state's eight districts.

The Jones forces are firmly convinced, they say, that they can wipe the slate of all the present representatives, all of whom were elected by or put into office while the old Huey P. Long machine held sway. Toward that end the new administration has perfected a coalition with the old regular democrats in New Orleans for a ticket to eliminate the city's two incumbents in the house.

Rene A. Derouen, house veteran, has announced he would retire because of ill health. His action automatically made Vance Plauche, campaign manager for Jones during last winter's six-month-long campaign battle with former Governor Earl K. Long, the nominee in the seventh district, traditionally democratic.

Curiously enough Long himself though not a candidate really opened the verbal fireworks of the campaign with a statement bitterly assailing Jones, the new state whom he said had run out on every campaign pledge, and who he claimed has fastened themselves a tighter state dictatorship than his brother had contemplated doing.

"I do not care to hold public office," he said, "but I intend to play a small part in wresting the governorship from the biggest bunch of double-crossers, high hats, plutocrats and turncoats that ever held office in this state or in this union."

Long, recently indicted for alleged embezzlement in padding New Orleans dockboard payrolls just before the February primary, called the indictment the "smallest, meanest piece of skullbuckery ever perpetrated on a man," and charged efforts were being made to "blacken and destroy me" because "I know enough about this state, its functions, government, etc., to be in a position to expose them."

Besides seven of the incumbents, 21 other democrats and 4 republicans aspire to the house of representatives. Name calling such as typified the winter campaign is under way on every stump now.

The defeat of the entire house delegation, if accomplished, probably will be unique in recent American history. Two of the incumbents are ten-year veterans in Washington, while five are relative newcomers having first been elected in 1934.

A mirage seen recently in the vicinity of the Thousand Islands was the first reported in the area in 17 years.

Senate Banking Unit Approves FD Loan Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Creation of a $500,000,000 fund, requested by President Roosevelt, to assist the western hemisphere in meeting economic conditions caused by the war was approved 8 to 6 today by the senate banking committee.

Legislation providing the fund would increase the capital and lending authority of the government's expert import bank from the present $200,000,000 to $700,000,000.

Chairman Wagner (D-N.Y.) said there had been an "unfortunate difference of opinion" among committee members over the White House approval and that Senator Taft (R-Ohio) would file a minority report in opposition.

Wagner said those who voted for the half-billion dollar fund were Senators Barkley (D-Ky.), Miller (D-Ark.), Clark (D-Idaho) and Wagner.

Opposing the legislation were five republicans—Senators Taft,

President of North Dakota, Townsend of Delaware, Danaher of Connecticut, and Tobey of New Hampshire—and a single democrat, Adams of Colorado.

BARKLEY SILENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, looked at the August 1st on his calendar today, sighed and told reporters that he had given up predicting when congress would adjourn.

"I don't even think about it anymore," he said.

Gregg County Man Re-elected Clerk For 22nd Time

LONGVIEW, Aug. 2 (AP)—Gregg county citizens scanned records today seeking to prove that Dush Shaw, their county clerk, is the oldest office-holder in the southwest from a standpoint of continuous service.

Winner of another two-year term in Saturday's primaries, Shaw will have served 23 consecutive terms—a total of 44 years—at the end of his new incumbency. Taking office in 1896 when Gregg county's old courthouse was brand new, Gregg folk call him "the man who wore out one courthouse." His offices now occupy a part of the county's new official center.

He seldom takes the stump. Most of his campaigning is done by personal conversations with voters.

At the turn of the century, Shaw did all the work in his office. When Gregg's oil boom unfolded, however, a peak of 30 employees was reached. Now there are 10 including the clerk, himself.

SALT SHIPMENT LEAVES HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The first cargo of salt to be exported in considerable quantity from Texas was being loaded aboard the Yugoslavian freighter Vid yesterday.

The load of 5,700 tons of bull rock salt will sail for Japan at the end of the week.

The salt was mined at Hockley, Texas, near here.

Kovacs' Antics On Net Court Pay Off

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP)—Tennis Doctor Frank Kovacs says that if you have trouble with your forehead, the best thing to do is to hit your racket and that will teach the darned thing to behave.

If your backhand won't work right, toss your racket as far as you can and then stroll leisurely over to pick it up. Dr. Kovacs doesn't know why this cure works, but he is satisfied that it does.

The young player from Oakland, Calif., has tried all these stunts and a good many others during the course of this summer's tournament play. Perhaps he wouldn't prescribe them for anyone else, but in his case they seem to relieve the tension of a hard match or to do something which enables him to settle down and play his best.

Other cures which Kovacs has been known to use:

For trouble with your footwork, stop the match, call for scissors and cut your slacks down to shorts; if you're already wearing shorts, take your socks off, hit the ball, punch a line man in the nose, visit an adjoining court and watch the match there, be anything—but for Pete's sake be funny.

Kovacs couldn't try all these remedies for erratic play yesterday but his outbursts entertained the gallery in the course of his tough match with George Toley of Los Angeles in the quarter-final round of the Meadow club invitation tournament. Kovacs finally won 4-6, 14-12, 6-1. Perhaps it was Frank's antics that turned the trick, for Toley tightened up and lost his advantage on three occasions.

He may have to invent some new remedies today when he faces National Champion Bobby Riggs in the semi-final. For Bobby, cool and methodical, hammered out a 6-4, 8-6 victory over Hank Prusoff of Seattle. In the other half of the draw, Elwood Cooks, 6-4, 6-4 winner over Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., takes on Don McNeill, who eliminated Frank Guernsey, 6-3, 6-2.

Lamesa Poloists Rank At Top

An all-star quartet of Plainview will substitute for the San Angelo team on the "triple-feature" polo program here Sunday afternoon.

The Plainview squad will oppose the Lamesa Whites in one of the feature bouts. The Lamesa Blacks are scheduled to tangle with the Lubbock foursome with Big Spring and Pecos clashing in the feature attraction.

The program, which will serve to dedicate the new Bennett field west of town, will get underway at 1:30 p. m.

Playing for the Lamesa Whites will be Sol Cleveland and Gus White, both of whom have played with Big Spring, S. R. and E. H. Barron.

Composing the Lamesa Black squad are Bill Boyd, Elmo Smith, Bob Koger and Gus White, Jr.

The Lamesa Whites have copied first place honors in five tournaments the past year. They succeeded in winning all laurels at the Pecos tournament July 4th while other championships have been won at Midland, Lubbock, Plainview and Lamesa. In addition the Whites swept a four game series with the strong Texas A&M club, winning two games in Lamesa by scores of 9-3 and 9-3 and the other pair at College Station, 6-2, and 5-3.

The Whites are scheduled to meet a crack team from Mexico sometime in the early fall.

The Big Spring quartet will be seeking revenge for a defeat inflicted by the Pecos horsemen last week. The Pecos representatives won out, 5 and 4, in an exciting duel at Pecos.

Texans Win At Denver, 13-4

DENVER, Aug. 2 (AP)—Having taken six years to win their first Post baseball tournament title, the Enid, Okla., Champions open today their drive for a second straight crown.

The defending champions' first round opponent is the Denver jewelry team.

Yesterday's results included: Mount Pleasant, Tex., 13, Englewood, Colo., 4.

EDDIE ANDERSON ALMOST CERTAIN TO COACH STARS

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP)—Balloting in the nation-wide football coaching poll indicated today that Eddie Anderson and Mike Scully's Don Faurot were almost certain to land positions on the five-man staff which will direct the all star collegians against Green Bay's pros at Soldier Field Aug. 29.

The races in three other sections—the east, south and far west—were so close that the results probably will not be known until the deadline at midnight Aug. 4.

TEXAN WINS
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 2 (AP)—Billy Peterson of Denison, Tex., eliminated Bryant Bradley of Little Rock, 6-4, 6-1, in a junior singles match of the Arkansas state open tennis tournament yesterday.

Peterson is third seeded in the junior division.

Dizzy Dean To Face Santone Ace Tonight

By the Associated Press
With a couple of pitchers like Bob Muncie and Maurice Newlin, it's not surprising that San Antonio's Missions have battled to an almost certain spot in the Texas League Shaughnessy playoff.

The Missions were an unknown quantity when the season opened, but they've played consistently good ball, staying within striking distance of the leading Houston Buffs. Pacing the drive has been the hurling of Muncie and Newlin.

Muncie is the league leader with 19 decisions. He'll seek his 20th tonight, opposing Dizzy Dean of Tulsa.

Newlin last night hung up his 17th win, beating Tulsa 6-1 with five hits.

Houston divided a double-header with Dallas, winning the nightcap 1-0 after the Rebels took the first game 5-4.

Oklahoma City took a firm hold on fourth place with a double decision over Shreveport, 10-1 and 7-4.

Third-place Beaumont split with Fort Worth, winning the afterpiece 6-0 on Bud Thomas' four hit pitching, but dropping the opener, a 9-4 slugfest.

Show Decrease In Job Placements

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Federal Security Administration today reported that public employment officers found jobs in private industry for 1,500,000 persons during the first six months of 1940.

Officials said this was an increase of 28 per cent over the same period last year.

Job placements during June showed the first decline in four months. They totaled $30,000, or 20,000 less than in May.

Unemployment benefits paid during the first half of 1940 totaled $28,000,000, an increase of $4,000,000 over the same period last year.

BEATEN CANDIDATES GATHER TO EAT CROW

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2 (AP)—Two score unsuccessful candidates for governor since statehood will gather here about Sept. 1 to talk over old times—and eat crow.

But the organizer of the unusual feast, Jess L. Pullen, assistant attorney general, hastened to point out there was nothing symbolic about it.

"Maybe some men have 'eaten crow' in defeat but they'd like this kind," asserted Pullen, who thinks a well-fed crow tastes like duck.

"We're going to cook up about 100 birds and there'll be an extra one for each republican," said Pullen who was an also-ran in the democratic gubernatorial primary of 1930.

CLAIMS INSANITY IN GERMANY INCREASES

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—The mode of government in Germany with its accompanying policy upon the fear of its people has caused a considerable number of mental disorders, Dr. George Perret, formerly attached to a Berlin hospital, said in an interview.

Dr. Perret, who came here with his fiancée, Margaret Minge, of Fergus Falls, Minn., and is a Swiss seeking citizenship in this country, told of an increase of insanity in Germany, which he attributed to the fear arising from the sternness of government.

The couple said they left Germany after the invasion of Holland.

PATTERSON RAPPED HARD BY BORGER

The Sports Parade

By Hank Hart

Wiley Moore Ready To Hurl...

Wiley Moore, the former big league hurler who starred mainly in relief roles while under contract to the New York Yankees, will probably be assigned to face the rampaging Lubbock Hubbers for the Borger Gassers tonight in Lubbock.

Wiley to date has been doing plenty of bull pen work and coaching at third base for Gordon Nell's crew.

Bill Scopetone, the former Big Springer who was released by Tony Rego when the Tulsa had his circus here, is clouting at a .355 clip for the Gassers. He rapped out three blows, including two doubles, against the respected Lloyd "Pat" Patterson last night.

Cage Keeton, classy first sacker of the Gassers who was "beamed" by Patterson in last night's bout at Lamesa, once had a trial in the American Association. When felled by Patterson, hit in the temple by one of Pat's fast ones, Keeton was carried from the field, later revived and wanted to continue playing but went to the hospital for a checkup upon advice from Nell.

Bobby Decker, former Big Springer, is not playing regularly with the Borgers because of a throat ailment.

Tate Sure Of Team's Chances...

Jodie Tate, Lamesa skipper, expressed the opinion prior to game time Thursday that Borger, Lamesa, Pampa and Lubbock had the four best clubs in WT-NM league competition at the present time but that the Amarillo Gold Sox would probably finish in the Shaughnessy playoff because of their good start.

Tate, still frantically in need of pitchers, seemed confident that his team could edge within the top four despite the two recent littings administered by the Gassers.

Al Berndt, who tired of waiting for Tate's signal to don the catching harness again, has returned to his home in Yakima, Wash., probably will not return to this sector.

Al checked his job to Timer Pride, waited patiently when told Pride might be recalled by Oklahoma City but long idleness caused him to change his mind.

ROBINSON AND SOTHERN NEW FILM—Edward G. Robinson is back at his bullet-proof best in "Brother Orchid," the new Warner Bros. film playing today and Saturday at the Ritz theatre. An hilarious satire on the denizens of the underworld, "Brother Orchid" tells the story of a gangster who goes running for culture, with side-splitting results. Featured with Robinson are Ann Sothern, as a hat-check girl who takes a good tip; Humphrey Bogart, as a diabolically double-crossing henchman; Ralph Bellamy as the alfalfa grower whose bank-roll isn't hay; and Allan Jenkins as Willie the Knife, a true little cut-up.

Rowe Wins Ninth At Expense Of Yanks

By JUDSON BAILEY
Schoolboy Rowe, who kept the Detroit Tigers on top of the American league in two glorious pennant years when he had one of the best arms in baseball, is still holding them up there.

For a while this spring no one knew whether the big fellow's right arm was well again. He opened the season with a five-hit triumph over Cleveland but his next venture saw him belted off the mound in the second inning.

Today's record of nine victories and two defeats is ample testimony that the schoolboy is doing all right. The only pitcher in the American league with a better mark is teammate Bucky Newsom, who has won 13 and lost two.

It has been in the critical period since Newsom broke his thumb July 17 that Rowe had proved his greatest value to the Tigers, because, taking his regular turn, he has won three consecutive starts.

He pitched seven-hit ball against the New York Yankees yesterday and personally batted in three runs with a triple and a double as the Tigers clawed the world champions 11-2.

This was enough to give the Tigers exclusive possession, again of first place in the junior circuit and also dropped the Yankees out of the first division by a fraction of a percentage point.

The Boston Red Sox took care of clipping Cleveland out of the leadership claim with a 5-3 victory and the Chicago White Sox noosed out the Philadelphia Athletics 5-4 in 11 innings to get its first taste of the rarified upper division air this year.

Deaths from automobile accidents are fewer in congested areas than in those less densely populated.

LATE RALLY IS NIPPED, OILERS NEXT FOES

By HANK HART
LAMESA, Aug. 2—Borger's Gassers outlasted the Lamesa Lobos in a slam-bang baseball skirmish here Thursday evening, winning, 10-9, despite productive late inning home runs by Lloyd "Pat" Patterson and Jodie Beeler.

Gordon Nell's crew hopped on Patterson for eight runs in the first two innings, then spent the next seven rounds adding the tallies that won the ball game as the Tatem rallied spasmodically to keep most of fandom in its seats.

Patterson went the distance and had it not been for two first inning errors might have been able to accomplish his 17th pitching victory of the campaign. As it was, the Gassers employed the misplays to great advantage, scoring five times as Patterson's game gave way under pressure.

Biggest bogie-man was Soney Scopetone, who rapped out a two-run double in the initial heat, another two barger that created two more runs in the second. In addition he had a sixth inning angle.

Bob Crues, former Lamesan who negotiated the route for the invaders, exhibited trickery in holding the Lobos within bounds through seven cantos but he made the mistake of grooving one for Patterson in the eighth. Patterson had been swinging futilely all night but finally caught up with a fat one.

It sailed over the wall in center field and enabled Beeler and Marshall Brown to score ahead of him.

Aroused, Beeler took up a cudgel in the ninth and hoisted one out of the lot for two runs. That brought the Lobos within one run of tying the score but Crues was able to protect his rights to the decision when he forced Brown to sky to Mack Short in deep right field, who backed up against the barrier to gather it in.

Al Carr's triple, double and single featured the lusty Lamesa snare attack. Brown also had three safeties.

The Lobos open a three game series with the Pampa Oilers, WT-NM League leaders, tonight at 8:30.

Today's Great Star—Charlie Landolf, New Castle (Pa.) news: "It was only natural for the Dodgers to bring up Ed Hood from Elmdale. The twirler started out as a southpaw pitcher, suffered a broken arm and converted himself into a right hander."

Here 'n' there: Bill Harnick, former Canisius college great, passed up the Pony league all star game to take the Buffalo (NY) police examination... Only two pitchers, Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove, have ever won the American League's most valuable player award... Wanta bet the third won't be Bobby Feller this fall?

When the Waner brothers were the "faculty" at the world's fair baseball school the other day, the star pupil was a fellow called Bucky Walters, a reformed third baseman. He "snak" in and sat in the audience, and when apprehended afterwards said modestly "I'd a lot rather listen to the Waner brothers than pitch against 'em."

Editorial

Growing in importance is the possibility— even the probability—of receiving thousands of European war refugees into the United States.

An estimated five million men, women and children from northern France, Holland and Belgium already have taken refuge in England, a place that may not be a haven long, and it is planned to distribute these people into other countries as rapidly as possible.

Humanitarian motives would impel this nation taking care of some of these refugees, and something probably will be done for them. There will have to be an answer of the problem of obtaining the money that will be necessary to bring these people to this country and to provide for their support or make them self supporting, and this will be additional to our already large and unsolved relief problems.

In other and happier days United States could have given assistance and homes to such people without a strain on our resources. But in those days we opened our doors to millions of immigrants, some of whom had fled to this country to escape punishment for their misdeeds in their native lands, including attempts to overthrow the government under which they were born.

Now we are going to the other extreme. In many places men and women are being arrested or run out of towns because of refusal to salute the flag, as if compelling such action would make those people really patriotic citizens.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

WASHINGTON—It begins to look as though the people who live in Washington are going to get to vote.

The 60-year battle for suffrage is coming to a head. For the first time, so far as I can find out, citizens of the nation's capital got one of the major parties to stick a silver of a plank in their platform saying: "We also favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

It happened at Chicago and under ordinary circumstances action on the plank would be deferred until after the elections, or in other words until the next session of congress. But it seems certain that congress will work right on through, and already a congressman has thrown down the glove to Rep. Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, saying in effect: "If you and your party are so eager for this suffrage, try don't you get up a measure at once and pass it!"

700,000 WITHOUT VOPE

It should be some kind of a commentary on the loopholes in American government that the nearly 700,000 persons in the District of Columbia do not have the right to vote, self-government, or representation in congress.

There are 14 states that have less or only slightly greater population than the district, yet each has two senators, some as many as three representatives, and all have votes in the electoral college.

What form the suffrage measure will take is anybody's guess, but mine is that the district will not get the right of self-government nor representation in congress. They tried the former once and it didn't work. Besides, even a measure just providing for the district's right to vote for president is going to run into difficulties. There are a lot of persons, in congress and out, who feel that district residents should be kept out of the political melee.

McNUTT BANNERS HIGH

With the conventions out of the way and politics settling down to picking over the bones, there's a growing conviction here that Paul V. McNutt came out of Chicago with co's flying.

All over the place you hear how the Indiana boy made good. First, he was wise enough to duck the presidency long before the convention started. A huge picture of Roosevelt covered one wall of his palatial Chicago headquarters. Secondly, concentrating on the vice-presidency, McNutt's organization went into that Thursday session with enough pledges to assure his nomination on the second or third ballot. Even some of his opponents admit that.

It has been said time and again that McNutt could have blocked the nomination of Henry Wallace; probably could have taken it away from him. So it was McNutt who made the real sacrifice for party solidarity when he pulled himself out of the race. That strengthened his following.

It seems inconceivable that McNutt should fail to play a prominent role in the next four years. His refusal to buck Roosevelt permitted him to come out of the fracas with the McNutt organization developing a good deal more horsepower than when he went in.

Political observers here are saying: Keep one eye on Paul V. McNutt.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Have you ever seen a dream walking? I have. It's the Broadway nightclub proprietors. Maybe "daze" would be a better word than "dream." Something's hit them. They don't quite know what. But it all adds up to this: Empty tables. Idle waiters. Maybe it's the weather. Maybe it's the politics. Maybe people prefer to sit by their radios than go out. In any case, the traffic is low, yet the rent goes on, and the license fees and the salaries.

We went into a club last night with seating arrangement for four hundred and found 43 people. We went into another that seats about 300 and found 56. We went into a hotel roof garden that can accommodate 800 people and counted 31. They seemed lost and melancholy. The orchestras were playing their best. But their hearts weren't in it. Their hearts were out of the window with the breezes, or in the manager's office, wondering about their contracts.

It has always been stated that "times of national and international stress—such as wars—people become imbued with a sort of to-hell-with-it-let's-enjoy-life-while-we-can complex. This has been true in the past. It isn't true now. People would rather listen to Willkie or Roosevelt than to Joe Lewis or Milton Berle. They would rather hear a news broadcast than pay a cover charge for the privilege of listening to a "society" orchestra. There will always be nightclubs in New York, and some of them will prosper. But the old, crowded, jammed-up days seem gone.

There is a stenographer in a midtown hotel whose name is Janet Alderman. All day she sits at a typewriter punching out letters but she would rather play Helen Holmes on the top of railroad box cars. She comes from Texas, and twice she has fallen off box cars. What, you will very properly ask, what business has a young girl on the top of box cars? Absolutely none. "But I can't help it," she confesses. "It's a sort of mania. I've been doing it ever since I was big enough to climb upon one. My mother finally sent me to New York to stay with my aunt—just to keep me off box cars."

We record this item purely on the hunch that it may be of use to theorists who may plan to chart the drift of people from rural communities to the big city.

Went to the talkies last night and saw "My Love Came Back." Grand entertainment. . . Played croquet in the afternoon with Mill and Esther Caniff out a Pomona, New York, and won, which is a commentary on the level of the game they play out there. . . I hadn't played in two years. . . Later, driving home, the radio broke down just as a description of an aerial dog-fight over the North sea was coming in from London. . . Cost me $4.25 to have it fixed. . . "The condenser blew out," the man said. . . Which reminds me, I've got five radios, and four of them are broken. . . But if I have them all fixed, then I will be broke.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's only fair, since football coaches over the country soon will begin their annual 10-week headache, to let them in on the infallible system of Coach William Frawley.

Good old Bill—as the alumni might say—never has lost a game, and this is his eight year at it. It's true his season's usually include only one game, but the system still works. Right now Bill is coaching at Pacific U., his star ball-packer is Wayne Morris, and the game—I mean movie—is prospectively entitled "Touchdown."

Good old Bill's system varies from game to game, but it always produces the same result: Victory, either by a touchdown or a field goal or a point after touchdown just as the final gun peps. There are various ways to achieve this end, but the one that never fails is the last-minute note from the hero's girl-friend in the stands, a note saying all is forgiven and she is his and not that city slicker. Once the substitute races in hearing this message, the game is in the bag. Frawley's never seen it fail.

Haj LeRoy, at the age of five, was a cripple from spinal meningitis. At seven he took up dancing, spurred by the proficiency of negro children he saw on the streets of Memphis, where his family has moved from his native Cincinnati. Today, a lean, tall, limber-limbed youth, he's one of the stage's top steppers.

Hollywood has him now for "Too Many Girls." He didn't care for the town his last trip out, in 1937. He was signed for "Start Cheering" and arrived to learn that nobody knew what his role would be. Al Roegell, the sympathetic director, didn't know either—but they invented one.

Hal chuckles as he tells one of those good Hollywood yarns on himself. "My first day," he says, "nobody told me where to go, so I found—stage with a sign over the door that said 'LeRoy Company' and I went in. They were shooting and I watched them work about an hour and then I asked somebody what I was supposed to do. He didn't know, and I mentioned the sign and said I was LeRoy. And then I found out that sign meant Mervyn LeRoy, the director, and there I was, a greenhorn, hornin' in. . . They didn't let me forget it, you bet!"

Ben Hecht, the producer who baits producers, is skimming along through his picture, "Before I Die." His record: four days ahead of schedule the first week; seven days ahead the second week. He is author, director, and actor as well as producer.

The acting was an afterthought. He sought first Ernst Lubitsch, then Alfred Hitchcock, for the role of a city tramp; when they were "unavailable," Hecht awarded the bit to himself.

He is a little worried, however, about this smoothness and speed. He's afraid he should have had a Search, to give his production dignity. Every producer who is any shakes as a producer has a Search. He figures he could start a Search, maybe, for Something to Search For.

The town of Kilgore showed a population increase of more than 1,000 per cent within eight years after discovery of oil in East Texas. Nine other East Texas cities showed an average population increase of 180 per cent.

Regulation of the Texas oil and gas industry by the railroad commission is paid for by the oil industry itself through a special tax on every barrel of oil produced in Texas. In 1938 this tax totaled $600,000.

Chapter 24
GOODBY KISS

"When are you leaving?"
"Tomorrow morning— as soon after the coroner's inquest as it can be arranged. The body is at a mortician's in town. There will be a brief formal inquest—murder by person or persons unknown. The usual thing."
"Oh! I'd forgotten about the inquest— do we all have to be there?"
"No. Just Gerald and I, to describe the finding of the body. Colonel Pennant has arranged that you girls won't be called, except possibly Sandra, who may have to identify the body. These things are only a formality. You won't need to attend unless you want to."

"I don't," I shivered.
"I didn't suppose you would. It's scheduled for ten o'clock tomorrow morning. I expect to get a train out before noon."
"I'd like to go with you," I said, and surprised a quickly veiled gleam in his eyes.
"I'm afraid Ivan would make neither a pleasant nor an adequate chaperon," he said lightly.
"At least as far as Chicago," I continued, as if that were what I had meant all along. "It's time I had meant all along. It's time I was terminating my visit here, as you so aptly suggested last night."

"Please don't. Don't terminate it; and don't remind me of that. I was not myself last night— now get insulted about that, too, if you must. But you know it's true. I think you must like me or you wouldn't continually try to put me in the wrong. And I particularly want you to stay until I get back. I'd like you to keep an eye on Sandra. Cultivate her, see if you can get her to talk. She'll be right here in the building. You may stumble onto something. I have a strong hunch that she's not telling all she knows."

I thought, she isn't the only one. A feeling of helplessness descended on me, and with it an impulse to tell Adam all I knew. I was getting too tangled up in this thing. Why should I let a new loyalty to Julia make me forget that Adam was my friend here—the only one on the post who really mattered?
It isn't easy to jump right into an acknowledgement that you've been holding out on someone you like. I cast about in my mind for ways of leading up to it gradually, but the little moment of intimacy was already gone. Adam was deep in his problem again and the eyes that were fixed on mine were veiled by abstraction. He did not see the words trembling on my lips. And he took my silence for consent.

"I'll try to be back by Wednesday," he said. "If I'm detained I'll let you know. Promise you'll not go out alone at any time. Use my car, by all means, but take someone along. And be back here by dark."

I promised, and he went off to communicate with Colonel Pennant, to arrange about leave and to pack his grip. I know he had not thought of any possible danger to me beyond that covered by his admonitions. He has told me that nothing of the kind even occurred to him. Certainly it did not to me. I did not want him to go. Not because I was afraid, but because I would be lonely without him.

Secret Rapping
I sat down with the play and read it through— or as nearly through as natural boredom permitted. It was an ambitious project, having as its theme nothing less than the restoration of the Romanovs to the throne of all the Russias. Young Alexis, the tsarevitch, like Ivan, had been smuggled out of the country. At a time which appeared to be the near future, his loyal supporters overthrew the Soviet Union to the accompaniment of loud bombings and impassioned speeches.

I saw Adam again at cold supper in the mess hall, when I gave him back the play with a brief comment that seemed to please him. He ate hurriedly and left before the rest of us were through. I was alone in my room, trying to read, when he came in about ten o'clock. I dropped the book I was holding and smiled, in the foolish hope that he would not notice my eyes were red. He closed the door behind him, looked at me for a moment without saying anything, then put a hand on each of my shoulders.

"I'll be as busy as a boy killing snakes in the morning," he said lightly. "I may not see you."
His hands were holding me, but they did not draw me into his arms. His eyes were luminous and very tender. He bent down and kissed me on the lips.
"Are you yourself now?" I asked as soon as I could.
"Very much so." His hands tightened a little and he shook me lightly, affectionately. "Take care of yourself. And I want you right here when I get back."

He was gone so quickly that I had no time even to say goodby. It must have been about midnight that I heard the light, secret rapping on my door, as if whoever was there wanted to attract as little attention as possible. My room was dark. I had been lying there, smoking and thinking, for about an hour. Sleep was still far from me.
It did not occur to me to be frightened. I turned on a bedside light, went through the sitting room and opened the corridor door.

Sandra slipped in. She had on a terry cloth robe over her nightgown. It slid down for an instant to reveal a red mark on her shoulder—a mark that might have been made by an ungentle hand.

She saw the direction of my gaze and caught the robe together. Her face looked white and stiff.
"May I stay with you tonight?" she asked bluntly. "I know you have twin beds. I could ask Felicia for another room, but I don't want her to know. I trust you."
"What could I say? She volunteered no explanation, and I certainly could not ask for one."

I led her into the bedroom and watched while she turned down the vacant bed and got into it, facing away from me. Then I turned out the light and lay down, respecting her silence, but passionately resenting the invasion of my privacy. My thoughts had been company enough without the intrusion of this alien, uncomfortable presence.

I could not sleep. And though she lay quiet, not turning, breathing evenly, I knew that she was awake. And as the night wore on I could feel her thoughts, too, a dark and dreadful company, between us in the room.

Offer Of Help
I must have slept toward morning, for I roused at the sound of the reveille gun. It woke Sandra, too, if she had been asleep at all. I heard her stirring, heard the bed springs creak when they were released from her weight. She was trying to be quiet, so I did not open my eyes or let on that I heard her, and presently I knew by the slight click of the closing door that she had gone.

I got up then and showered and dressed. It was too early for breakfast, so I solaced my hollow stomach with cigarettes and settled down to my typewriter until I heard sounds from the kitchen.

The mess hall was empty when I went in—it was still early. I breakfasted hurriedly and escaped before the crowd. My brain was seething with plots and characters and I wanted no distraction.
Sandra came to my room about eleven-thirty. She had just returned from the inquest. She apologized for interrupting me, thanked me for letting her stay with me, but still with that reserve which made no explanation and forbade questioning.

I asked her about the inquest. It had been much as Adam predicted— formal identification of the body, medical testimony, a brief account by Adam of the beach party and the finding of the body. Verdict of murder by person or persons unknown.

And Adam, with his grim companion, had started on their journey.
Sandra looked tired and rather cold, as one might who has closed a chapter in her life forever and faces an unknown future. I remembered that Adam wanted me to cultivate her, so when she rose to go I stopped her.

"Stay and have a cigarette with me. I'm ready for a recess!" she asked curiously, looking over my shoulder at the half-typed sheet of white paper.
"Copying a story I finished this morning. It's been hanging around for a couple of weeks—I want to send it off today."
"Oh, I see you write it first on this yellow paper, then you have to copy it. I thought writers just wrote."

"Maybe some of them do. I always have to make a lot of changes."
"Then I suppose when you get it all copied you have to read it over to make sure you've made no mistakes. Maybe I could do that for you—would it be any help?"
I wondered if she really wanted to help or if it was only an excuse to read the story. Some people are funny that way. I publish under a pen name because pulp stuff is pretty sticky, and I cherish the illusion that one day I'll write something good.
"You're welcome to read it if you want to, but it's already been proofread—I usually do that as soon as I finish a page. It's less monotonous that way."
"Oh, I didn't mean—I wouldn't want you to think I was just curious. I really thought I might help. You see, I haven't a thing in the world to occupy my mind."
"Thanks for the offer. If I need any help, I'll let you know."
She took that for dismissal and moved toward the door. But she did not go. There was something on her mind.
