Due to the summer recess it is unlikely the trial will start before the October term.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Liberia today paid in full its war debt to the United States. The minister of the small African republic tendered to acting secretary of the treasury, Mills, a check for $35,600 paying off the principal and accrued interest. In a letter, secretary Mellon congratulated Liberia on being the first country to liquidate its obligation resulting from the world war. He pointed out that the settlement here is heavily upon the tiny republic with its 4,000,000 population as larger debts weigh upon Great Britain and Italy.

Levine said he had chosen a pilot from among five French applicants and would announce his name as soon as a contract was actually signed.

Sick Boy On Tramp Steamer Treated By Radio on Land

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—An 8-year-old boy who lay suffering from an intestinal disorder on the tramp steamer Nora, 1100 miles off San Pedro, apparently was recovering today under treatment prescribed by radio. The plight of the boy became known when the Wilmington operator of the Radio Corporation of America picked up a message from the Nora asking that physician be found to administer treatment by radio. The operation operator called the emergency here and gave symptoms of the boy's illness as received from the nurse. Full instructions for treatment were relayed back to the vessel at sea.

Pioneer Hawaiian Flyers to Come Home on Steamship

HONOLULU, July 6.—Lieutenant Albert Hagenburger and Lester Maitland were to sail today for San Francisco over the route which a few days ago they negotiated in slightly more than 24 hours in their Fokker monoplane. They were the first men ever to make a flight from mainland to Hawaii. The plane is to be left here in custody of the army.

DEVELOPING INTEREST IN COURTHOUSE

Inaugurate Speaking Campaign to Continue Throughout This Week.

Interest in the $300,000 bond election for the purpose of building and equipping a new, modern, fire-proof courthouse to replace the present building, which, aside from being entirely inadequate, is reported by various architects and engineers as unsafe for human life and the valuable records of Eastland county, is growing as the time for the election, which is Saturday, July 9, approaches. Proponents of the proposed issue say that it is only necessary to get the facts to the voters for them to make up their minds to vote for the bonds. The fact that the building is too small, not fire-proof and that it has been condemned as unsafe, and also that the county is now having to rent quarters for a number of its departments and will soon have to rent others, is enough to convince most anyone that it is economy to build a new building now, proponents of the bond issue say. A number of speakers, addressing the voters in the interest of the bond issue, spoke at different places over the county during the latter part of last week and were well received. This week the same kind of a campaign will be carried on throughout other portions of the county. Following are the speakers and the places where they will speak tonight: V. T. Seaberry at Staff, Joe Jones at Ehr, L. H. Flewellen at Okra, J. S. Grisham at Desdemona, C. B. Frost at Seranton. Judge R. L. Rust of Eastland, who is noted as a singer and composer of songs of all descriptions, has written the words and music to a campaign song for the bond issue which he will sing tonight at Okra.

Kimes and Doolin Are Held Without Bail In Okmulgee

OKMULGEE, Okla., July 6.—Matthew Kimes, Oklahoma outlaw and his alleged confederate, Ray Doolin, captured with him recently at Grand Canyon, Ariz., must stand trial for double bank robbery at Beggs, Okla., and the killing of police chief W. J. McNally. The pair given preliminary hearing here today were ordered held without bail. Both pleaded not guilty.

PRODUCTION BOOSTED IN POOL TO 2,750

This Is Second Well for McLester Both On Big Thorpe Lease

Another 1,000 barrel well came in today in the Gordon pool ten miles northwest of Ranger and about eight miles almost due north of Eastland. It is the No. 2 Thorpe of the McLester Oil company which came in at the regulation depth, about 3,800 feet. This is the fourth oil producer in this rich pool and the second for the McLester company. There is also one big gas well, the No. 1 Thorpe of Root and Fehl of Eastland which is making about 15,000,000 cubic feet of wet gas and spraying a small amount of oil. The four oil producers in the pool are making a total of about 2,750 barrels daily. The two McLester wells on the Thorpe are making a combined production of a little more than 1900 barrels. The No. 1 Good of the Belva Oil company is making about 550 barrels and the No. 1 Ramsower of the West Adams Petroleum company (Col. Robert D. Gordon) is making between 225 and 250 barrels on a daily average. The Gordon well is now more than seven months old and is one of the most consistent producers anywhere in Eastland county. The coming in of the No. 2 Thorpe for a good producer was no surprise. It is located well within the proven area of the pool and was expected to be at least as good a well as its initial production shows. There are several other wells drilling in the pool, or near it that should be completed within the next ten days or two weeks. One of these is the No. 3 Ramsower of the West Adams Petroleum company, another is the No. 2 Higginbotham of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company and still another is the No. 2 Watson of Root and others.

PLANE CRASHES INTO LAKE, 4 MEN ARE DEAD

Residences of Men Who Plunged Into Lake Washington Unknown, Thought to be California.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 6.—The residence of four men had not been learned this morning who late last night plunged to their death in Lake Washington, when the plane in which they were riding fell into the lake from a height of 1,000 feet. The dead: Harry Johnson, the pilot, John Dach, Fred Standiff, Robert Wollin. An automobile belonging to Dach has been found bearing a California license and it is believed the men are Californians. Three of the bodies were recovered late last night, but the body of Dach had not been found. According to persons who saw the plane fall, the machine was flying over the lake when suddenly it dived downward. NOSE DIVE KILLS ONE, FATALLY INJURES ANOTHER. WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 6.—Captain Curtis Wheeler, New York, was killed and Lieutenant Carl Soeks, also of New York, was probably fatally injured today at Pine Camp when their airplane went into a nose dive and fell 1,000 feet at the national guard training camp here.

FRENCH FLYER WALKS AFTER MEETING BYRD

Maimed Aviator Leaves Arm Chair for First Time Since World War.

PARIS, July 6.—While newscasters screamed, a broken, pain-wracked human war wreck walked for the first time in nine years today when his fellow aviator, Commander Richard E. Byrd shook hands with him. Byrd and his crew of the monoplane America were visiting disabled and maimed aviators many of whose faces were masses of scarred flesh, the result of crashes and burning airplanes, at the historic Invalides. Captain Le Gendre was sitting in his wheel chair as he has done since a crash in 1918 when nearly every bone in his arms and legs were broken. With the aid of steel braces he could sit upright. "You give me courage," he said suddenly when Byrd shook hands with him. Without hesitation he got to his feet for the first time since the war and started walking with the American aviator. "Sit down, sit down," nurses screamed hysterically. "No, I want to walk," he replied and leaning on the arm of Lieutenant George Noville of Byrd's crew, walked 50 yards to Napoleon's tomb and back to his chair. Tears streamed down his face. Byrd, his face showing emotion, said, "This is sufficient recompense for the hardships I went through on my flight—but nothing compared to yours." Le Gendre resumed his seat and watched Byrd visit all of the maimed men in the hospital.

Juarez Once Bad Town Becoming Quiet, Orderly

EL PASO, July 6.—Juarez, Mexico, once famed in fiction as the "hell hole" of the border is rapidly becoming as placid and civilized as any American city of its size. Tourists within its borders are guaranteed much the same protection they would receive in their home town. Chief of Police Valentina Onate of the Mexican city is stamping out lawlessness as rapidly as possible according to Tom Armstrong, chief of police of El Paso, Onate, according to Armstrong is giving American officers the greatest cooperation they have received from any city official Juarez has ever had. Tourists who are robbed in Juarez in most cases have themselves to blame, said Armstrong. Fined with the ambition "to paint the town red" they go into side streets flashing money and jewelry in a manner they would never do even in an American city. Americans arrested in Juarez are shown every courtesy. They are not held incommunicado as is commonly supposed but, on the contrary are given every opportunity to employ counsel, complete bond and dispose of their cases, according to Armstrong.

OWNER GUN WHICH WAS USED IS HELD

Believed Negro Can Establish Identity Of Guilty Persons.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 6.—One negro was in custody here today and others are being questioned by Sheriff W. A. Pierce in an effort to locate the negro man and woman believed to be slayers of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weatherby and their son, 4, and daughter, 7. According to Pierce the negro held is the owner of the pistol with which Mr. and Mrs. Weatherby were shot. It is believed the negro can establish the identity of the negro to whom he loaned the gun a short time before June 26, the date the murder is believed to have occurred at the Weatherby farm north of here.

MENTALLY DEAD WOMAN PUZZLE TO PHYSICIANS

Enters Ninety-Fifth Day Of Unconscious State. Husband Has Faith In Recovery.

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—Mumbling inaudible words, but showing slight improvement daily, Mrs. Clara Drummond the "mentally dead" woman entered her 95th day of unconsciousness. Six days ago Mrs. Drummond was brought to a hospital here from Fresno, where she went into a coma after an attack of carbon monoxide poisoning. While physicians worked tirelessly about their task of trying to bring the woman back to consciousness and expressing little hope that she would recover, her husband never gave up the battle. Feeling that everything had been done in Fresno by physicians, he brought her to Los Angeles where he placed her under the care of W. K. Peacock, a specialist. A shrill scream of fright and the futile, but desperate attempts have renewed Drummond's faith in his wife's recovery.

CARS SMASH AT STREET CORNER, NO ONE HURT

Two Ford cars collided at the intersection of Commerce and Pine streets, Ranger this morning and although the cars were badly wrecked no one was hurt.

Burnett County Man Appointed To Succeed Bethea

AUSTIN, July 6.—George Christian, a member of the state board of pardons, has been appointed by Governor Moody as a judge of the commission, assisting the court of criminal appeals to succeed Judge Lamar Bethea, an appointee of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, whose term has expired. Christian, former district attorney of Burnett county and later assistant attorney general when Moody was attorney general, has served on the state board of pardons since the beginning of the administration of Moody as governor. Announcement of his successor on the pardon board has not yet been made.

Petty Thieves Steal Anything Says Detective

DALLAS, July 6.—Petty thieves will steal anything from safety pins to circus tents, said Chief of Detectives Charles Gunning here as he glanced over a recent report of burglaries. A barber shop reported the loss of $150 worth of clippers, scissors, combs, tonics and massage cream. A woman reported the loss of 50 feet of garden hose. A portable photograph was taken from another residence and two diamond rings were stolen.

BEGINNING TOMORROW

This paper will publish, beginning tomorrow a series of articles on "Looking into the Future of Aviation in the United States," written by Harry W. Frantz, well-known Washington newspaper correspondent. The feats of Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and Maitland have aroused interest in aviation in this country to an unprecedented pitch. It is commonly predicted that commercial air lines will sprout in every direction and Mr. Frantz in this series of four articles analyses with authority just what the various departments of the federal government may be expected to do in this heralded advancement of aviation. The first installment appears tomorrow. Don't miss any of these articles. Keep up with the times.

BEGINNING TOMORROW ALSO

This paper will publish a series of very interesting stories on what is going on in the interior of China. A correspondent of this paper has been sent 1,000 miles into the interior of that great country to get the true story of what is going on there. The political and military situation in China today has already shaken the Far East and may yet shake the entire world. Don't miss the first of these interesting articles which appear tomorrow.

 The decision today followed several days of testimony produced before the court.

Ranger Rotarians Hear Appeal For New Court House

Former state senator Homer Brelsford of Eastland appeared before the Ranger Rotary club at the noon luncheon today and made a talk on Saturday's election, which will tell the story one way or the other as to whether Eastland county is to have a new courthouse. His sentiments on the subject were decidedly for the court house and were contagious.
 John M. Gholson and Ed Maher made talks on what they had done personally toward thinking and planning on a street paving program, as the Rotary club is anxious to build up enthusiasm for more paved streets in Ranger.

Out Our Way

Ranger Attorney Celebrates Two Anniversaries

July 2 was a two-fold anniversary for Judge A. E. Firmin, veteran attorney of Ranger, as it was not only the fiftieth anniversary of his entering the practice of law but his sixtieth birthday.

Fifty years ago on July 2, A. E. Firmin, then a boy of 18, filed his certificate from the law school in New York city and on Oct. 29, 1880, hung out his shingle at No. 14 Wall street.

Wall street then was not a canyon of skyscrapers but it had a few large buildings as Judge Firmin speaking today of the Wall street of 50 years ago, said that at No. 2 Wall street, there was a new bank building at that time.

Prior to starting out on his own, the young attorney had been manager of the office of W. I. Butler, a first cousin of Chester A. Arthur, the twenty-first president of the United States, and according to Judge Firmin the two men were as much alike as "two black-eyed peas."

Judge Firmin has known a great many men of note in his life and has a storehouse of memories from which he can draw an interesting story for those who love to hear of actual happenings of the colorful days through which he has lived.

Judge Firmin, who has an office in the Guaranty bank building, is the oldest attorney in Ranger and states that in point of actual practice he is the oldest attorney in Eastland county.

Eastland Rotary Sees Picture Of North Pole Flight

Eastland Rotarians, at their meeting today at noon, which was postponed from last Monday, enjoyed a motion picture record of Commander Richard E. Byrd's airplane trip over the north pole, presented by Harold Smith, manager of the Conlee theatre.

Time for holding the noon-day meetings was changed from 12:05 to 12:15 as it was believed the latter hour would be more convenient to a majority of the members.

President Joe Weaver told the members today that he wished to have more said at each meeting about Rotary principles.
 The club also voted to have "Welcome Signs," with the Rotary emblem on them placed at the four entrances to the city of Eastland.

Pimples Cause Folks to Shrink From Attention

Whenever you go out, you can't help but pity the many folks you see trying to have a good time, but are so shrinking and backward about coming near others where their pimples, blotchy and eezemic skin can be seen.

You almost feel like going up to them and telling them that they ought to begin using Black and White Ointment, and Skin Soap, which so many thousands of happy people are depending on to keep their skin clear, smooth and good to look at.

Black and White Ointment, and Skin Soap, are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than two million packages a year. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—Advertisement.

EAST AND NORTH LOOK FOR FIVE-GALLON HATS AND SIX-SHOOTERS

Walter Murray and L. R. Pearson of Ranger, returned last night from their "all-Texas special trip" and report a wonderful time, even better than they had anticipated.

In speaking of some of the high points of the trip, they brought out the fact that the people of the east were much surprised to see the Texas delegation dressed in conventional clothes and although some of the eastern newspapers tried to launch some colorful articles about Governor Dan Moody and his Texas rangers, there was not a five-gallon hat or a six-shooter in the crowd to support their allegations.

The Texans told them that they represented Texas of today and not of yesterday and while Texas had its traditions just as those states have theirs, they lived in today and not in the past and kept abreast if not a little ahead of the times.

Mr. Pearson said that one of the outstanding impressions in the east and the north was the fact that Texas had validated the Archer county road bonds after they had been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of the United States, and were especially interested in Texas and Moody for the reason that they had stood for validating the bonds after they had been declared illegal.

"The north and east are taking a lot of interest in Texas," Mr. Pearson said. "They have spent lots of money in buildings and lost some. They are really looking for an outlet industrially and from the standpoint of securities and this 'good faith' tour as some of them called it, gave them a new vision of what Texas has to offer in both cases.

The two trippers stated that the Texas trip was kept free of politics with the exception of what was introduced by northern or eastern newspapers, who tried to boom up Moody as a possible democratic candidate for vice president.

The party itself made no mention of politics. Gato Sells of Fort Worth was the toastmaster at all events and he always told that the trip was a contact meeting, fostered and out for the purpose of talking business with the business men of the north and the east.

Lillian Gish At Lamb Theatre In Scarlet Letter

Lillian Gish, starring in the Scarlet Letter, which was shown yesterday and again today at the Lamb Theatre, Ranger, was a charming Hester Prynne and depicted Hawthorne's lady of the pillory in a real Gish manner.

The play, starts with the courtship of Hester and the minister, while the book starts with the result of their sin.

The play shows some of her heart aches and some of his, while the author of "The Scarlet Letter" never mentioned once in his book whether or not they pined for one another, or whether they ever spoke of love again.

As a picture of those long ago days, when witchcraft was just in its infancy, "The Scarlet Letter" is most educational.

The story of "The Scarlet Letter" that the woman wore as an emblem of her shame on her bosom, so that all the world might know why she was an outcast from society and of the letter "A" which the minister burned into his own flesh, is one that has stirred fiction readers for many years. It is a wonderful film picture, full of color and of history and participated in by hundreds of people all running true to type.

Blondes usually have heavier crops of hair than brunettes. Blonde hair being the finer, a blonde woman usually has about 150,000 hairs on her head, as against 110,000 for a brunette.

WRITER SAYS YOUNG PITCHERS SHOULD WORK FAST, IS POPULAR

By BILLY EVANS.
There are a lot of major league twirlers who consider "13" a jinx, chief among them being Ted Lyons, ace of the Chicago White Sox pitching staff.
In 1925, Lyons scored 21 victories for the Sox, but it took him a couple of weeks before he registered No. 13. It required four or five starts before he was able to get by the alleged hoodoo figures.

This season, after hanging up 12 wins, nine of them in succession, Lyons again found it a difficult matter to go over for victory No. 13. Twice, despite the fact that he pitched six-hit games and deserved to win both contests, he was forced to accept defeat simply because the breaks of the game refused to favor him.
Now Lyons feels better as he beat the Indians the other day to leave 13 behind. The way he is going, he should win 25 ball games for Chicago this year and has a chance to reach the goal of every big league hurler, 30 victories in a season.

Lyons might well be classed the perfect twirler. He has great speed, a fast-breaking curve, a beautiful change of pace, is a brilliant fielder, a good batsman and very fast on the bases. What more could you ask?

Young Pitchers Work Fast.
If I were a young pitcher breaking into the major leagues, I would cultivate speed as to my actions on the mound, rather than dilatory methods now so popular, particularly in the American league.
"Take your time, don't hurry," is the college yell of most big league managers relative to their young pitchers. The thought is that such methods tend to develop poise as well as irritate the opposing batsmen.

Perhaps there is considerable logic to such line of reasoning, but the slow-working pitcher never becomes a truly great favorite with the public, even though he becomes highly efficient and a consistent winner.

As I recall the truly great favorites with fandom over, say the last 20 years, the fast working pitchers stand out. Take the three great right-handers of that period, Mathewson, Johnson and Alexander, and you will find all of them speedy performers.
With any one of the above trio on the rubber, you were assured of a fast game, because there was no waste motion, no dilatory tactics.

Slow Methods Not Popular.
The late Eddie Plank and Rubo Waddell, two of the greatest of modern southpaws, were tough to beat. In a sense, Plank was possibly more valuable as a team player, yet he was also a man compared with Waddell as to public favor.
Waddell didn't waste a second be-and the fact that there is little or no money to be made in this game. Great excitement is provided clocking the time the opposing birds take to complete the course.

Great endurance is shown by the birds who, with a following wind, can fly 60 miles an hour, while their homing instinct makes them superior to almost any weather. If a storm should arise they drop to the ground and wait for it to blow over.
A race in which 6,000 pigeons were competing last year illustrates this point. They were overtaken by a heavy storm, and although some of the birds never reached their home lofts, the majority did so, arriving at their destination at intervals for a week after they were due.

RACE TRACK FIGURE DIES.
By United Press.
SHANGHAI—Foreigners are shedding tears for old Li Hsu-chan, a coolie.
Li is dead. Out of the race course, where he was a familiar figure for many years, he will be missed. Li's rocking sampan, a feeble outcry, a splash in the swift Whangpoo river—then silence.
Fourteen years ago Li appeared at the race course. He was first noted after the races were over. He was laboriously going through the discarded sweep tickets, piecing together the torn tickets, hopefully smoothing out the crumpled ones and searching desperately for small pieces missing. To find a discarded ticket which would entitle him to a prize was the great dream of Li.
Year after year the pathetic old figure turned up at the race course. Long after the last of the patrons had gone he could be seen examining the bits of paper. On nights when he had an extra copper or two the old man, ever an optimist, burned an extra joss stick to his favorite god, praying that good fortune bless him. Li never found a winning ticket.
Today he was buried. Foreigners contributed various sums and a foreign coffin was purchased. Gathered at the coffinside were more than 50 foreigners, including several officials of the racing association. The ceremony was brief yet about it all was a touch of simple tenderness. He was 78 years old.

AMARILLO Plans Endurance Air Race To Be Held
By United Press.
AMARILLO, July 6.—An endurance air race will be held here within the near future, according to Sergeant Ira C. Barend, secretary of the Amarillo-Bivins Flying club. Approval of the war department and the aeronautical club of America is now being sought for the race.
The race will be held in connection with a flying carnival, the date of which will be set as soon as plans are complete, Barend said.
The course will be from Amarillo through Wichita Falls, Ft. Worth, Dallas and San Antonio. The flyers will be given time to refuel at San Antonio.

PIGEON RACING.
By United Press.
LONDON.—Pigeon racing is attracting great numbers of new enthusiasts to its ranks, who range from miners to baronets.
The season recently opened with the annual race held at Grantham, where 50,000 birds were released. Three special trains were chartered to transport the birds from the towns of Newcastle-on-Tyne, South Shields and Durham.
The enthusiasm this sport is arousing was recently illustrated in a series of races, when 150 federations entered 1,000,000, and in another series 80,000 birds raced into London.
One reason for the popularity of pigeon racing is its purely sporting

SPORT AND MUSIC.
By United Press.
LONDON.—The passion of Englishmen for sport a passion which supercedes everything, including music, cannot be understood by Chaliapin, the famous Russian basso.
"The English are a strange people," he said. "They have music in their hearts. I have seen it myself at the opera, and when I have gone by their schools and listened to children playing, and to their choirs. They want to sing but they do not sing. In Austria, in Germany, in Italy, and in Russia people sing in the streets, in the villages, and fields, at their work, in restaurants, and everywhere; but there is no music in the English streets or fields. When they sing it is a formal business. If people would sing in the streets in England and at their work everyone would look at them and say, 'Shut up.' They put sports first in England—their cricket, and football, and golf. It is a fanaticism. They put their enthusiasm into it, and they have no vitality left for music. I think it is very good—the sport—but I do not like too much."
A Chicago newspaper is seeking "the best known professional woman in the country," in the belief she lives in Chicago. Let's see, where is Peggy Joyce now?

Gripings by Gus

Well, the boss got back from his long trip with Dan Moody and other Texas celebrities.

If you don't see any more of this column you'll know that he didn't like the sport editor that hired himself during the boss' absence.

It's all right if I do get fired though, because all I set out to do was to give the American legion a little publicity on their ball games, which you'll admit was accomplished.

Something ought to be done about people who go visiting and drive up in front of the visitees house and honk the horn and wait to see if anybody answers. Whenever that happens in front of an apartment house, from two to six necks are stretched in all directions to see who is honking and why.

It might come under the head of sports, but there will be lots of baseball at the show the latter part of this week. Babe Ruth will be there in a picture called "Babe Comes Home." If my show pass is still good I might go up and get a story of the game, besides seeing the show.

Don't forget about the court house election Saturday. Looking around town it is not easy to find anybody that is opposed to it but, at the same time, there is a lot of people that had forgotten there was going to be an election until we run that front page banner about it yesterday.

Here goes for prize offer number one, which is as follows: To the party sending in the best letter telling how they would spend a weeks' vacation if they had plenty of money will be awarded a beautiful advertising folder from one of the country's foremost resorts.
To the party sending in the best letter telling how they would spend a week's vacation if they were broke but needed a little recreation will be awarded a note of thanks bearing the signature of the guy that tries to write for this column. The usual contest rules will apply.

The fourth of July was observed by Cheney people as most of them attended the singing school that is going on at Cheney. Brother Bond and son of Eastland are teaching one of the best schools we ever had and you know we are learning to sing. We are inviting all lovers of singing to meet with us at Cheney, just for a real old time singing, next Friday night.

Mr. Brunnett of Ranger, Elmo Melton, wife and son, Henry of Oakley attended the singing at Cheney the fourth.

The musical at H. D. Browning's Sunday night was well attended and some good music was rendered. A most enjoyable time was had as the Halle Brothers accompanied by Mr. Menie and sons know just how to entertain a crowd.

RURAL COMMUNITY SEEKS WAY TO AID LIQUOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

Taking a rap at that class of men "who cater especially to the practice of defending violators of our liquor laws," and stating that "these men are generally a disgrace to their profession and a menace to society and in many instances could and should be disbanded from the practice of law"; thanking the sheriff's department of Eastland county for its effective cooperation in the locating and seizing of a still recently found in their community; asking other communities to take the steps they are now taking, the citizens of Dan Horn, in a mass meeting held at Mitchell church in the Dan Horn community on the night of July 27, drew up resolutions that show just where that community stands on the liquor question.

The first resolution reads, "That it is the intent and purpose of this meeting to adopt such ways and means that we may more closely and effectively work with the officers of the sheriff and county attorney in Eastland and adjoining counties, looking to a better enforcement of our liquor laws."

The resolution further set forth that the chairman appoint four men from the community to work with him, in acting as a law enforcement committee for the next twelve months.

It was outlined in the resolution that it was not the object of the citizens of Dan Horn community to take the law in their own hands, but to organize so as to cooperate more closely with the present law enforcement machinery.

Parents in the community were urged to be on the lookout for any violation of liquor laws at any parties or entertainments, so as to create a purer atmosphere in which to raise the children of the community.

The community asks that other communities cooperate with it by taking similar action.

DEMPSEY CAN'T COME BACK, SAYS GENE DELMONT, SMART OLD TIMER

By BILLY EVANS. Gene Delmont, lest you have forgotten, was in his day one of the best bantams in the country. Later he drifted into the feather class. In most of his fights he gave away from five to 15 pounds.

The other day I bumped into him in Detroit. He was the same dapper chap and looked no different than he did 10 years ago. If anything, he seemed younger.

After getting out of the fight game, Delmont went into the pictures, appearing in a number of films that called for ring scene. Incidentally, he coached the stars featured in such films, in the art of boxing.

For several years prior to the death of Rudolph Valentino, he kept the matinee idol in condition by boxing several rounds with him daily. Boxing was Valentino's favorite exercise for keeping in shape.

For a time he tried the fight referee stunt but soon retired because, as he put it, the fight fans seemed to think that as a referee he was a good fighter.

"I received more jeers because of one decision I made than for all the poor fighting I ever did during my career," is the way he explains his retirement as a referee.

Fears for Dempsey. Delmont is a close personal friend of Jack Dempsey and no one will be pulling more for him in his coming bout with Sharkey than Gene, yet he has his doubts as to the former champion's chance of pulling a comeback.

When I asked him for his views on Tunney, Sharkey and Dempsey, the cagey veteran replied:

"Any fellow who has been in the ring knows that Jack is kidding himself when he says he is as good as ever. Nothing makes a fighter rustier than lack of work. For about four years Dempsey has done most of his training in evening clothes. The ballroom has been his gymnasium."

"While Jack, as a matter of fact, has taken good care of himself, for he never dissipated, social hours are not ideal training."

"Always a wide open fighter, therefore not hard to hit, Dempsey's greatest asset has been his stamina, the ability to wear down his opponent, in many cases out-game him."

"While I hate to contemplate it, for I will be pulling for Dempsey, I fear Sharkey will prove not only too good a boxer but too strong a fighter for him. He should knock him out."

All of which means that Delmont believes the next battle of the century for the heavyweight championship will be between Tunney and Sharkey.

CHIEF SAYS CO-OPERATION BIG FACTOR IN ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger is a thinker as well as a doer. In an interview Ingram sounded two high notes in his administration, co-operation and efficiency.

"The outstanding duty of my office as well as the duty of every peace officer's should be for the protection of society against crime. I am speaking, of course, in the sense of our relations to men and excluding from consideration that supreme natural duty all men owe to their families."

"The most efficient performance of their duty should be the constant object and purpose of every police officer. The city looks to them for protection against all the ordinary every-day enemies of the social order. Such expectations call for the best we as officers can give."

"The contest we wage with the criminal element is first of all a battle of wits. We are daily called upon to outthink criminals and as that class of men bring new methods into play, the officers of the law are called upon for new methods of combat."

Need Public Aid.

"New problems in dealing with citizens arise from time to time and these problems no matter how trivial must be worked out by the department so as to avoid friction and irritation on the part of the public. These problems are more easily solved by swapping ideas with the public than if the head of the department tried to go it alone without the aid and ideas of others."

"We'd have a hard row to hoe if it were not for the co-operation of the public," Chief Ingram said. "By that I do not mean that we should bow to any person or persons, or that we should be influenced by anything that might be said as long as we are doing our duty. But that does not preclude our courteous treatment, for the person that appeals to the police does it because of a real or imaginary wrong."

"If a wrong has been done it is the duty of the police department to do

WEATHER REPORTS GATHERED FOR FLYERS CROSSING THE PACIFIC

Aviators Contemplating Pacific Flights Will Find Valuable Information in Bulletin Recently Issued

By HARRY W. FRANTZ, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, July 6.—Aviators contemplating a trans-Pacific flight will find valuable climatological data in recent publication of the United States weather bureau, in which information relating to tropical islands of the Pacific ocean has been assembled by W. W. Reed.

This publication, issued as supplement No. 28 of the monthly weather review, contains British, German and French, as well as American, information concerning climatic conditions in the Pacific. Besides general data concerning temperature, humidity, cloudiness, precipitation and wind, climatological tables are published for Bismarck Archipelago, Caroline Islands, Central Polynesian Sporades, Christmas Island, Cook Islands, Ellice Islands, Fanning Island, Fiji Islands, Gilbert Islands, Guam Islands, Hawaiian Islands, Low (Guamota) Archipelago, Loyalty Islands, Meiden Island, Marianne (Ladron) Islands, Marquesas Islands, Marshal Islands, Melanesia, Micronesia, Midway Island, New Caledonia, New Hebrides Islands, Polynesia, Samoan Islands, Society Islands, Solomon Islands, Tahiti Island, Tonga (Friendly) Islands, Trobriand Islands, Tutuila Island, Woodlark Island and Yap Island. Maps of the larger groups are published.

The tables given would afford valuable data to aviators whether proceeding eastward to Japan or the Philippines or southeastward to New Zealand and Australia.

Most of the oceanic islands of the Pacific lie west of midocean, and practically all are situated west of 130 degrees west longitude, the report states. The region covered by the major subdivisions, Micronesia, Melanesia, and Polynesia, is a vast diamond-shaped area extending nearly 6,000 miles from northeast to southwest (Hawaiian Islands to New Caledonia).

The statistics show the highest mean annual temperature of 83.4 degrees at Nauri, Gilbert Islands, near the equator. The mean annual temperature of the zone from 5 degrees N. to 4 degrees S. exceeds 82 degrees, and that of the zone from about 15 degrees north to about 15 degrees S. is generally above 80 degrees. The symmetry of temperature distribution continues to the limits of the torrid zone as shown by the mean of 74 degrees at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, and Noumea, New Caledonia. The only records of maximum temperatures of 100 degrees or higher are those for stations on Christmas and Fanning Islands.

The table of mean monthly and annual precipitation shows that rainfall is very abundant to excessive in practically all of this Pacific territory. Mr. Reed states. Southern Polynesia, bordering the temperate zone, is the only considerable area from which heavy annual rainfall is not reported; here the mean amount of precipitation annually is 55 to 80 inches.

"In the larger islands and some of the smaller ones the land is sufficiently elevated to give the contrast in amount of rainfall typical of change from leeward to windward exposure. This contrast is well defined for stations in New Caledonia, Fiji, and Samoan Islands, and is annually striking in the values for the principal islands of the Hawaiian group. The annual means for Waiawa (22 inches) and Mount Waialeale (476 inches), both on the island of Kauai, may be considered the extremes for all islands."

The weather bureau tables of wind direction are arranged in three zones. The division is according to latitude, showing northeast wind prevailing north of 7 degrees 30 minutes N., and with the exception of the mid-ocean area, southeast wind prevailing south of 2 degrees 30 minutes S. The intermediate zone is commonly known as the belt of calms.

"In the northern zone the northeast trade wind prevails throughout the year in the Hawaiian Islands, and

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Lincoln Nunnally, elderly American chemist, mysteriously summoned to the queer little jungle-bordered town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil, encounters an old friend, Vilak, who tells him it was he who had sent for him.

Vilak's cousin, Elise Marberry, an American girl, owns a coffee plantation and other land near Porto Verde and has received mysterious warnings to get out of the country. Vilak is alarmed because several deaths already have occurred and the superstitious natives think some supernatural force is at work.

The day Nunnally arrives another man is killed, Tony Barbetta, one of Elise Marberry's foremen. He had been hit with a club in the hands of Limey Potts, another foreman. Before he died a strange paralysis took hold of him, and Vilak confides to Nunnally that he is certain Limey Potts, though he may have struck the victim, was not the murderer.

That evening Vilak induces Nunnally to come with him on a visit to the house of Gaylord Prentiss, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise. Vilak believes Prentiss is somehow involved in the mysterious deaths.

Before going to Prentiss' place, Vilak and Nunnally call on Elise Marberry. After a few minutes, Vilak, out of a clear sky demands of Elise what took place in her house that afternoon.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

Elise's face clouded. Her black eyes half closed to avoid the steady gaze of Vilak's. "I don't know what you're talking about," she murmured.

"You know perfectly well. I could tell the minute you sat down there and began beating with your fan in that staccato fashion that something was wrong. You don't get rhythmic unless you're absorbed. You can't lie to me, my dear."

"Besides, all the furniture in this room has just been moved. And not carefully moved either. Moved in haste. I can tell by the scratches on the floor and the bruised places on the rugs. I should say it was about five o'clock. There are tiny bits of cracker crumbs scattered about, so you must have been having tea at the time. Possibly the maid in her haste knocked the crackers over. Certainly it was after you had been attacked in the road and after poor Tony was killed."

"You know about that attack on me, too? I thought you would."

"Of course. It's my business to know everything. That's why you got me down here. Come. Tell me the truth. Don't mind Nanny. He's one of the family. What happened here this afternoon?"

She folded the fan together with a snap. "I didn't want to tell you now. I didn't see any need of frightening Mr. Nunnally. I didn't like to talk about these tragedies while he was here. But I guess he knows enough anyway. Something did happen. You were right about the time, too. Quite close to tea. I had come back from town, not really much upset by Tony's shout along the road—I hadn't heard about the poor fellow's death then—and was sitting on the veranda with Tinky, when I decided to go into my bedroom and get one of those new books that came from the States the other day. Usually I go into the bedroom by the door directly off from the veranda. This time, for no particular reason, I happened to go through the door near the living room."

She paused a moment, then went on. "I reached it and was about to put my hand on the knob when you can believe that I was amazed to hear the sound of faint breathing inside. For I make a particular point of letting none of the servants in there except Hannah, my cook, whom I brought from the States, and she was in the kitchen."

"I looked through the keyhole. And behind the curtain, beside my bed, I saw the perfect outline of a man's body. Then I acted like a fool. Instead of sensibly going and getting some of the servants and a pistol, I reverted to the young lady of the Victorian period that I so much detest and screamed. I suppose my nerves were affected more than I had thought after that scare on the road. Of course, whatever the reason, it ruined everything. The man inside heard me and darted out through the veranda, without my so much as seeing him, for naturally when I was screaming I wasn't thinking about keeping my eyes on the keyhole.

"Nobody saw him, in fact, though we turned every room upside down, in the belief that he might have hidden in some other part of the house. But he wasn't there. It's quite likely he got up on the roof and jumped down when it got dark. There are plenty of places to hide there and I didn't think of it until too late. I am luckier than I deserve to be. If I'd gone into my bedroom the way I do ninety-nine times out of every hundred, our uninvited guest would have had me in there alone and I would have been helpless."

Vilak meditatively traced with his shoe tip the conventionalized roses worked into the design of the parquet floor. "Nothing in the house touched? No jewels? No papers?"

"Nothing. But something outside the house was. Something quite serious."

The Mongolian cast of Vilak's eyes brightened as he leaned forward attentively. "And that was?"

"Guns. Every one of the rifles we had in the storehouse has been stolen. Except the pistol I have in the bedroom, the whole fazenda is absolutely without a weapon. And the singular part of it is that there wasn't a trace of how they could have been taken, though the ground was terribly soggy everywhere about and every step made a print three or four inches deep. And they could not have disappeared since I observed this afternoon for the first time I did in coming back from town after my scare was to get some more cartridges for my revolver. It's positively uncanny how those guns disappeared. Schwartz, my German foreman, swears he saw nobody. But, however they did it, the point is that now we are absolutely without firearms."

Vilak snapped open his cigaret case. "Will you believe now that your life is in danger every hour you remain here?"

She nodded. "Yes."

"Do you realize that the one employee on whom you could wholeheartedly rely and who has been more or less your bodyguard has been put out of the way and that the next blow may logically be directed against you? That you haven't the slightest idea where the blow is coming from, why it's coming and that with the exception of your colored cook you haven't a single worker you can trust?"

"Yes."

"Will you take the first and only boat that leaves here next week and go to Rio de Janeiro?"

"Certainly not."

"Suppose I order you to go. What then?"

"I'll merely ask you where you get your authority."

Vilak swung on his heel toward the chemist. "There you are," he said, with a mock gesture of resignation. "I told you it would happen. But I know better than to waste time arguing with her. I'm going out to look at that storage house. My respected relative can come along if she wants to."

They walked out the door into the clear night, and going to a small cottage where four great shadowy warehouses loomed blackly against the horizon, found Schwartz, the German who had charge of the fazenda properties. He was a little man, quite fat, apparently much too fat for his comfort or his arduous duties for great heavy tear bags swelled under his eyes and his skin was splotted here and there with areas of asthmatic purple. Yet his areas betrayed none of his bodily laziness, being polite but tinged with the short curt note of one accustomed to command.

His great distress over the theft of the afternoon was quite apparent when Elise and her two companions knocked at his door, explaining that she wished to take Mr. Davis and his friend to the shed where the theft had been committed.

"Ach, it's terrible, terrible. Fraulein Marberry," he murmured as he led the way to a small stone building near the edge of a wood where the rifles and more valuable tools were kept. "I gif you mine word I am afraid. And I, Adolf Schwartz, am not a coward. Once before has this happened. Ven I was on der veldt in South Africa on der estate of a rich Englishman. Von night all der guns disappears and der next before he can get new ones, for der city iss many miles away, someone iss come and kill him in his bed, why knows nobody. Ach, I like not to think of deess days." He shuddered.

"I tells you, Miss Marberry, I stay. But if I iss you I go away."

They neared a clump of bushes not far from the shed. "Stop here a minute," Vilak asked. The others halted. He drew out his flashlight and stepping carefully ahead, directed it to the footprints deep in the mud. "They were of two sorts, one small, gracefully shamed, the other broad and squarish. Those big ones are yours, of course?" he asked Schwartz.

"Ya, ya," the German answered eagerly. "I makes dem ven I come mit Miss Marberry tonight. It iss no use for you to look, Herr Davis. We haf look, und look, und look, till our backs break, and we find nuddings. How they have get dem digms out ven all der doors and windows iss locked. I, Adolf, do not know.
