Much Opposition To Senate Rural School Measure

Miss Beulah Speer, Eastland county school superintendent, is in receipt of a letter from L. D. Borden, chief supervisor of rural schools for the department of education at Austin, in which he points out some of the objections the department has to the senate rural aid bill, which recently passed that body. He also speaks of the Wallace bill in the house, which department of education endorses. Miss Speer is very much opposed to the senate bill and says that should it become a law there is only one rural school in Eastland county that would be able to secure state aid. Following is part of Borden's letter to Miss Speer: "The senate has just passed a rural aid bill which eliminates some of the most valuable provisions for which the county superintendents over the state and the state department of education have been working in order to raise the standards of our rural institutions of education. One of these is for industrial education. It also provides that a school, before it can employ two teachers, must have an enrollment of at least 56 scholastics, and before the school can be entitled to three teachers it must have at least 96 scholastics. "The bill throughout is as impracticable as these provisions just stated. It further practically places the distribution of the funds in the hands of the county superintendents. "Mr. Wallace of Teague has introduced a bill which the department endorses and which looks to the further betterment of the rural schools. This bill will be brought up for consideration very soon."

Eastland County Registers 41 Cars During Past Week

A summation of the new cars registered in Eastland county during the week ending May 21, 1927, show 41 cars and trucks registered. Four were led the list, with Chevrolet a close second, there being sixteen Ford sold and 13 Chevrolets. This record indicates that business in the automobile industry is brisk and that dealers all over the county had a share in the number of cars sold. VAPOR EXPLOSION BURNS EASTLAND MAN SERIOUSLY M. V. Harrison, 32, of Eastland and an employee of the Arab Gasoline corporation, was painfully burned about the face and lower body in a gasoline vapor explosion at the Arab Gasoline corporation's plant on the Johnson farm a few miles north of Eastland yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Harrison, who is married, was rushed to Eastland where he was given medical attention. Physicians say he will recover.

How Dry Is Dry In Washington?

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON. — Senator William Cabel Bruce of Maryland told the Senate last session that you could put all the personally dry senators in a taxi cab. If a fellow were to believe all he heard in these precincts, he would admit that Bruce had exaggerated. The popular impression is that you could put all the personally dry senators on a bicycle. Giving no more notice to such base canards who leave every senator fighting for the seat on the bicycle for the sake of the folks back home, it must nevertheless be said that some politically dry senators fully appreciate the fact that there are at this moment no more filibusters and all night sessions during which the sergeant-at-arms may be ordered to break into their diversions and bring them into the chamber. That happened one night during the Boulder Dam filibuster in the last session, to the great embarrassment of perhaps a half dozen senators who were dragged in unexpectedly. The aforesaid situation calls to mind the case of a very illustrious politically dry senator who was poured into the chamber to help vote for war against Germany. A woman who had two grown sons and hadn't raised them to be soldiers was in the gallery, and she had her eye on this senator. She was convinced that the public interest required facilities at such a time. She wrote a scorching letter to the unfortunate man. And then she sent a copy of the letter to every member of congress. One of the most eminent dry senators of the present day, recently officiated at the awarding of golf tournament prizes in one of Washington's most fashionable and exclusive country clubs. Without blinking an eye, he presented with more or less appropriate remarks a silver flask, a cocktail shaker and a lemon squeezer. That is to say, he gave the winners everything necessary for a lively party—except the bottle of gin.

Wild Gas Well is Still Shooting Flames And Heat 200 Feet in Air

By United Press.
BORGER, Texas, May 27.—The death toll in the Sanford oil well explosion and fire had increased to eight today. Six men remain here in a hospital seriously burned. The big well was set off yesterday morning as workmen prepared to "blow" it in and since then it has been spouting flames, accompanied by intense heat, 200 feet into the air. Attempts to extinguish the fire today failed and oil men indicated they would wait until this evening or tomorrow for additional fire-fighting equipment. The well was known as McClellan No. 1. The premature explosion was believed to have brought on by what is known in oil field parlance as a "gasser" measuring about 1,000,000 cubic feet. Sanford, 15 miles from here where the well is located, was abandoned today. A few of the oil boom shacks have been dragged away from the well. The town is one of many hastily built population centers in the Panhandle oil fields.

Night Watchman At Tool Company Plant Slugged

Jim Mathis, night watchman of the Eureka Tool company, Ranger, according to a report from that company today, was hit on the head by an unknown assailant, with a piece of iron pipe last night about 11:30 o'clock as he stepped into the blacksmith shop on his nightly rounds. It was said that Mathis was knocked down and almost out, but that he fired two shots and then crawled into the company's office, where a physician was summoned and he was given medical aid. His injuries are not considered serious, it is said. Earlier in the evening some boys had been seen loitering around some of the company's cars and it was stated by an official of the company that this was the third or fourth time some one had been heard prowling around the company's premises at Main and South Hodges streets. The police were notified but no arrests have been made.

Radio For Deaf And Dumb Is Rep. Jack's Offer

By United Press.
AUSTIN, May 27.—While the appropriation for the state school for deaf was under consideration in the house today, Representative Nathaniel Jacks, of Dallas, offered an amendment for appropriation of $300 for purchase of radio set for students. For a few moments there was debate. When Representative Sheats got to the floor he asked: "Don't you know all of these students are deaf and dumb? A radio would not be of any use to them?" "I was just waiting for someone to discover that fact," Jacks said. "I withdraw my amendment."

With delivery of the note, Britain and Russia, two of the greatest countries in the world have severed diplomatic relations.

Many Eastland People Attend Bedford Supper

More than 25 carloads of Eastland people, including the Eastland band, went to Bedford last night on the occasion of the ice cream and pie supper given at that place by the Bedford boys' and girls' club. The purpose of the supper was to raise funds with which to pay the expenses of representatives of the club to the agricultural short course at A. & M. college in July. As a result of the sale of pies, which were auctioned off by J. C. (Jess) Day of Eastland, $36, a sufficient sum to pay the expenses of one boy and one girl from the club to the A. & M. short course, was raised. The Eastland band furnished music for the occasion. Talks were made by various visitors from Eastland and Cisco, including George W. Briggs, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, and J. E. T. Peters, secretary of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce.

Friendship For France May Be Put In Statement

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A statement of renewed friendship for France probably will be made soon by the United States government. France's stirring welcome to Capt. Charles Lindbergh and French foreign minister Briand's suggestion of an enduring peace treaty between the two countries will be the occasion for this action. It will probably take the form of a personal letter by Secretary of State Kellogg in reply to a letter from Robert Underwood Johnson former American ambassador to Rome, urging this government to act on Briand's proposal. Kellogg is expected to write Johnson that relations between the two governments are based on lasting friendship which should never be broken, pointing out that the Franco-American treaty of 1914 "for additional evidence of peace" embodies that friendship.

Woman Reports Being Grabbed By Man in Dark

Coming home alone from a picture show last night about 10:15 o'clock, Mrs. James Boze, who lives on South Hodges street, Ranger, was grabbed by a man, who knocked her down and tried to choke her, just as she passed some bushes on the old teacherage grounds on Elm street, according to her report. Mrs. Boze, according to her husband, screamed, and the man fled. She described him as being dressed in overalls and a light shirt and as being a white man, low in stature. Mr. Boze, said that he had been to an American Legion meeting and came home about fifteen minutes after Mrs. Boze reached home and found her in a very nervous condition. After getting her nerves quieted, he went to the police station and notified them but found no trace of the man. Other than being badly frightened and very nervous, Mrs. Boze was unhurt.

Further consideration was temporarily suspended to permit disposal of some local measures. When the bill is taken up again it will be considered section by section for further amendments. There is every indication that the measure will be finally disposed of during today. From the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, $13,000 was cut which had been sought for purchase of additional land. Representative Pope had $50,000 inserted in the appropriations for the state school for the deaf for a gymnasium.

PLAYING THE GAME

By MARY K. BROWNE

I can remember the days when victory was in more or less easy grasp. When you could go to big luncheons, be social and polite, eat ice cream and cake, return to the tennis court and win in spite of being "stogy" and slow, I can remember when a good forearm drive and nothing much else would win for you.

Today victory is a fast pace maker. The winner must be on his toes every moment, fit and in top form. How to get that way presents somewhat of a problem. It means absolute concentration on the one game in which you wish to excel. It means sacrifice and hard work with other interests to a degree subordinated.

You can not set your own pace. Like the contestants in a six day bicycle race you must "sprint" when the other fellow does or lose out.

A short absence from actual competition may mean that even though you have not lost ground, your opponents have improved while you were standing still.

I was very much interested to read in one of Bobby Jones' recent articles, that he had just been watching another golfer put to try and improve his own putting stroke. Most players if they had had Bobby Jones' ability as a putter would be satisfied and not try to improve, but also they would not go on and on to victories as Bobby Jones has.

The game is not standing still and

Music Pupils To Give Recital At Church Tonight

J. M. Edwards will present his senior pupils in a recital tonight at the Methodist church, Ranger, at which time the following program will be given at 8 o'clock:
 "Smilin' Through" (Penn), Jack Galway.
 "Compensation" (Carrie Jacobs Bonds), Miss Sandefur.
 "Love Came Calling" (Zamecnik), Miss Emma Stephens.
 "Who Is Silvia" (Schubert), Mrs. Allison.
 "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" (Marshall), Miss Dalmont.
 "Crisisima" (Penn), Mrs. Steve Christensen.
 "Coming Home" (Willeby), Miss Schmuck.
 "Jean" (Johnson), Mrs. Peters.
 "West of the Great Divide" (Williams), Mrs. Turner.

what was good enough yesterday may not be good enough to win from the same player tomorrow.
 William Tilden must improve his tennis, I believe, to win from the Frenchmen Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet. I expect these Frenchmen to be even better than they were in 1926.
 Helen Wills will have to play better than she did when she won the championship in 1925 to hold her own this year.
 Gene Tunney may have to fight a better fight than he did against Jack Dempsey to hold his title.

Nearly There

The going is "tougher" each year. It is thrilling.
 It reminds me of two American women golfers discussing the difficulties of combating the elements (wind and rain) on the different golf courses in England and Scotland. In one it aroused all her sporting instincts. She said she felt as though she were battling a forest fire which had to be extinguished and loved the zest of such a fight. The other player, a far better golfer, after one round in the rain and wind just wanted to cry and come home.
 Well, the sport field is no place for a cry baby nor indifferent players. They will be "sunk" into oblivion. His supremacy in tennis apparently means a great deal to France's first Davis Cup tennis star and holder of our national title, for Rene Lacoste is a very deep student of the game. He keeps notes on the different players in the form of a card index. As he has played he writes down what has appeared to be his opponent's weakness and what is the best way to play them. He works and works at his game.
 Babe Ruth, I understand, must go without his luncheon in order to keep his speed of foot and thus increase his hope to win.
 The athlete must forgo drink, smoking and late hours to keep fit if he hopes to win.
 In fact to win one must almost cease to be an individual and become a "force" in the one game in which he is looking for victory.

Ranger Lions Preparing For Benefit Show

Every member of the Ranger Lions club is to have a part in making the club benefit show a success. Committees have been appointed to handle every department and all report they are making fine progress with their respective jobs.
 They have mapped out a system of publicity which will be rapidly followed from now on to the night of the show, which is next Thursday night.
 Circulars have been printed and will be spread broadcast in every city, village and hamlet in the Ranger trade territory and it is expected that they will produce their show to a capacity house.
 A press agent has been appointed.

The Writing in the Sky

Trouser Skirts Popular Among Refined Women

By United Press.
NEW YORK—What's good for the goose is good for the gander! Sometimes! Men have proven that trousers are the most comfortable apparel for one's lower extremities but women have found knickers so revealing and unbecoming as to contradict the effect of comfort.

Trouser-skirts, the latest style affected by sportswomen, have more in their favor than knickers since they are trousers and skirts combined so ingeniously that one cannot detect the trouser portions. Knickers failed to appeal to the refined woman because they were so generally worn by factory girls and housemaids on holiday hiking tours. They proved common in more ways than one.

There are numerous ways of making the new trouser-skirts, all of which seem decidedly modest when compared to mannish knickers. Trouser-skirts give the freedom of knickers and look, at the same time, like skirts. Some of the smartest sports suits are made with divided skirts. As a rule the skirt are pleated in front and at the sides dividing in front and attaching to the rear of the skirt which is flat and unpleated. Often a panel is used at the front to cover the divided skirt effect. Some models are merely wide pleated trousers with rear and front skirt panels. One very good looking trouser-skirt combination has knickers over which is worn a wrap-about skirt which buttons at one hip, left open down the side. The over-skirt in this case has side-pleats at the side opening which conceal the fact that the skirt is open at the side.

Dresses as well as suits may be made with trouser-skirts this season. For tennis or golf purposes, dresses with divided skirts are most appropriate. I have seen these models made in flannel and crepe de chine and as a rule they have little over-blouses which extend to the hips. A pleated trouser-skirt is concealed by a front pleated panel.

To my mind, the only successful trouser idea for women will be the skirt and trouser combination which permits freedom without appearing vulgar.

Expect Big Crowd At Breckenridge Ranger Ball Game

The game to be played in Ranger Sunday between the American Legion team of Ranger and the Gulf Production company's team of Breckenridge will be a sort of a two-in-one affair, as while this game is in progress an amplifier will carry the Fort Worth-Dallas game play by play all over the field and grandstand.

The Exide Battery company will furnish the radio for the occasion. Much interest is being manifested in the game by Ranger folks and a good crowd is expected.

Texas University Graduates Four From One Family

Special Correspondence.
AUSTIN, May 27.—Four members of one family graduating from a university is unusual enough in itself, according to members of the University of Texas faculty, but when three out of the four receive the highest degrees offered in the institution, it constitutes a record, they say. During commencement at the university in June four members of the Whyburn family will receive degrees from that institution.

W. M. Whyburn and G. T. Whyburn, brothers, will each receive doctor of philosophy degrees in mathematics with minors in chemistry. Mrs. W. M. Whyburn will receive a masters degree in anthropology and Mrs. G. T. Whyburn will take her bachelor of arts degree in mathematics.

Both the men are members of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity.
W. M. Whyburn, who is on leave of absence from Texas Technological college at Lubbock, will spend the coming year at Harvard and the University of Chicago doing research work on a National Research Council Fellowship which was recently awarded to him. G. T. Whyburn will remain at the University of Texas and will teach in the mathematics department.

SPORT ODDS AND ENDS

NATIONAL OPEN.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 26.—The Oakmont Country club golf course, scene of the 1927 national open championship play in June, will be at least two strokes harder than when the amateur championships were played there in 1925.

The course, long famous for its hazards, both marcelled traps and mountainous bunkers, has been made more dangerous by the addition of two new holes.

A fairway and green was never more thoroughly trapped and bunkered than Oakmont's new fifteenth. Along this stretch which has been lengthened to 475 yards, hazards lurk everywhere for those whose direction is the least faulty.

In the new sixteenth, Oakmont has conceived one of the most difficult short holes in the country. A carry of 234 yards to the green, they must be well high perfect to avoid trouble.

A bunker adroitly placed in mid-fairway will engulf short tee-shots. Pulled drives will be emmeshed in deeply corrugated traps at the left of the green. Push shots will catch two deep traps or roll down a decided slope to the right.

On this hole, it must be in there or trouble plenty will result.

Aside from these changes the Oakmont course where the open will be held is practically the same as when Dave Herron ascended the amateur throne in 1919 and when Bobby Jones defended the same title in 1925.

The Oakmont layout now measures 6,965 yards and is about as long and hard as the law allows. Par on the course, however, remains at 72.

Nearly all of the country's headlines have at some time or other, however, grappled with the Oakmont traps and none will journey to the open under-estimating the task cut out for them.

GERMAN HORSES.
Americans who play the "sport of kings" are going to have some real figuring to do during the late fall meets.

Early in July the S. S. President Grant is scheduled to bring a large shipment of German horses to this country to compete on American tracks, according to commerce department advisers. The horses are thoroughbreds and are described as "the best now racing in Germany."

Those who refer to form charts or records of past performances before placing bets will have a tough task doping out the German entries.

"GOLF"
British broadcast announcers are worried over the question as to whether golf should be pronounced "galf" or "goff". In a recent broadcast announcement the speaker pronounced it "goff"; whereupon the broadcasting company was besieged with complaints from golfers all over the southwest part of England to the effect that they didn't know what the broadcaster was talking about. Investigation revealed that throughout that section of England "Golf" is almost universally pronounced "goff".

FLOOD REGION NEEDS MEN'S CLOTHING
Mrs. R. H. Hodges of Ranger has a telegram from the school health nurse, Mrs. Abland, who was ordered to report for Red Cross duty in Alexandria, La., last Monday, asking that Ranger send some men's clothing there as that seems to be the most needed article of wearing apparel in her district.

Anyone who will donate any kind of men's clothing will kindly notify Mrs. Walter Burden, phone 345, Ranger, who will see that the bundles are called for.

Rangerites Will Be in Poppy Garb All Day Saturday

Ranger will be in poppy attire Saturday if the plans of the members of the auxiliary of the American Legion, Carl Barnes Post No. 69, are carried out, for they are determined to have Ranger go over the top in Saturday's sale.

Poppy headquarters will be at the Citizens State bank and will open for business at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Members of the auxiliary will sell poppies made by disabled soldiers on the streets and then visit every home in the city with the hope of placing at least on poppy.

Those who buy poppies are asked to year them on Monday, May 31, as that is Memorial Day, in memory of those boys who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war.

President Coolidge has asked that the American people buy many poppies this year so that the work of taking care of the disabled veterans may go on uninterrupted.

These poppies are made by service men who before the war were "even as you and I," held good jobs and did a man's work in the world—today they make poppies while they await the final call.

Poppies are inseparably connected with Flanders Field where "poppies grow, between the crosses, row on row."

THIRTY ALLIED NEWS AGENCIES ARE IN SESSION NOW AT WARSAW

By United Press. WARSAW, May 27.—Representatives of most of the 30 so-called "Allied News Agencies" are meeting here for their annual conference, in executive session. This is the organization of which the various official and semi-official, and otherwise governmentally controlled or aided press associations of Europe are the dominating element, and which is knit together by interlocking contracts and exclusive news exchange arrangements. According to previous announcement of the secretariat, the conference is purely private and no report of the proceedings is to be given out for publication. Among the subjects to be discussed during the week will be censorship, expedition of transmission for press dispatches, news, copyright and property right in news. On the last-named topic, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, one of the members of the combine, has been especially invited to address the conference. Other questions of a more intimate nature, in connection with interrelations of various members and financial problems involved, will also be considered. It is expected that the course of the conference will be directed mainly by the "big four" of the combine, viz: Reuters of Great Britain;

Wolff of Germany; Havas of France, and Stefani of Italy. Among other members, besides the Associated Press of America, are Tass, of Russia and Rengo of Japan. Considerable interest attaches to the conference in view of possible action it may take on problems to be discussed at the general conference of newspaper publishers and press agencies which is to be held in Geneva the latter part of August, under the auspices of the League of Nations and at which both the "Allied Agencies" and the various independent agencies, such as the United Press, will be represented. It will be recalled that the preliminary press agency conference in Geneva last year whose sessions were open to the public, went on record in favor of international recognition of the principle of property right in news at the same time registering its conviction that official governmental news cannot be made the exclusive property of any one agency, official or otherwise. The "Allied Agencies" represented at this Geneva conference accepted the foregoing proposition as advanced by the United Press and the other powerful independent agencies, which have always functioned successfully, without any financial support from their home governments or affiliation with any of the official, semi-official, or subsidized agencies.

DOCTOR DENIES PREVENTION OF DISEASE BREEDS UNFIT RACE

By United Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana, May 27.—The campaign for the prevention of such diseases as tuberculosis does not permit the unfit to survive thus resulting in the breeding of an inferior race, declared Dr. H. S. Jennings, director of the zoological laboratory of Johns Hopkins University in an address before the National Tuberculosis association here today. Dr. Jennings challenged the claim that propagation of so-called unfit individuals could be stopped by limiting public health work, and by permitting preventable diseases to continue unchecked in order to eliminate defectives through a process of survival of the fittest. Dr. Jennings described how substances existing in the parents before the birth of a child, called "genes," by their action and interaction are responsible for the physical and mental characteristics of the offspring. These may often remain in abeyance in one generation and reappear in another. "The method of allowing the individual's own defects to destroy him," said Dr. Jennings, "is not only hideously repulsive to our instincts, but a knowledge of heredity and genetics show it to be ineffectual; it does not get rid of the defective genes. Most gene defects are recessive; they are therefore carried by ten times as many health individuals not showing the defects, as by individuals in which the defects are manifest. The children of such healthy individuals receive defective genes, as do the children of defective individuals. To merely cut out the defective individuals themselves; particularly to do that only weakly, haltingly, death overtakes them—would result from withdrawal of public health measures—that will not touch the root of the trouble. There can be little doubt that, other things being equal, some genetic constitutions are more readily attacked by plague, by smallpox, by typhoid, by pneumonia, by tuberculosis, than are others. Certain constitutions yield more readily to extremes of temperature to exposure to the elements to unfit food. Certain combinations of genes are more likely to come off victorious in a struggle with a wild cat; or to survive a bite from a rattlesnake. Under such emergencies, those genetic combinations which survive are more desirable. And removing any of these sources of danger—cutting off plague or pneumonia or wild cats or rattlesnakes, or subjection to cold—does permit combinations of genes to survive and propagate that otherwise could not do so. "But for all such cases the essential question is this: If the environmental agent—whether disease, whether or wild beast—can be controlled prevented from attacking men, are the individuals thereby saved undesirable, unfit, in other respects to be citizens of the world? The victims of small pox, yellow fever, hookworm, malaria, or sunstroke, frostbite, lions—are they individuals with such serious genetic defects as will make them or their descendants obnoxious, degenerate, members of the community—even when those plagues have been banished by hygiene and invention? "For most of the matters with which the public health worker deals there appears to be no indication whatever that the individuals preserved are undesirable, or at a disadvantage in a world in which the attacking agent has been controlled; in that the individuals whose genes are playing an important role. "Absolute rest comes close to being a specific cure for tuberculosis," said Dr. Alfred Henry of Indianapolis in an address last night before the association. "Nutritious food, fresh air, suitable medical management and a proper mental attitude on the part of the patient, also contribute toward recovery." The session last night was held for the purpose of reviewing progress in tuberculosis work. Dr. Hoyt E. Dearholt of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, attributed the present interest in various lines of health education to the success achieved in getting public support for tuberculosis clinics and sanatoria by the vast army of professional and volunteer health workers. "However," he added, "a majority of patients still come to physicians for diagnosis in an advanced and less curable stage, so much remains to be done. Magnificent results are theoretically possible, but the public at large must accept in time and follow faithfully the means for cure and prevention laid down by physicians and health workers." Engineers Seek For Methods To Stop Accidents

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., May 27.—Fewer automobile accidents and more dependable driving will be the keynote of the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers beginning here today. The emergency stopping of cars in half the time and space now required will engross an entire session devoted to brakes, including internal brakes, non-ferrous metal brake materials, brake testing and adjusting, and brake lining tests. The meeting immediately precedes the Memorial day automobile race at Indianapolis, in which advanced ideas of automotive construction are given a thorough test.

BUYERS OF MOTOR CARS AND GAS PAY $1,000,000,000 ROAD COSTS

Motor car drivers last year paid taxes, averaging 2.38 cents per gallon, on almost 8,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline. The aggregate of this tax was $187,603,231.

In addition, they paid $288,282,352 in motor vehicle registration and license fees. About 95 per cent of gasoline taxes and 93 per cent of motor vehicle registration fees, went to building and maintenance of highways.

If to this total be added special taxes imposed on buses and trucks; property taxes on automobiles; the taxes paid by the petroleum industry and the automobile manufacturers, a total far above $1,200,000,000 is reached. That is, the people who buy, operate and manufacture motor cars, and who produce, buy and burn gasoline, are considerably more than paying the nation's good roads bill, which now runs according to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, just about $1,000,000,000, annually.

Gasoline taxes are now assessed in forty-five states and the district of Columbia. The only ones which do not impose this tax are Massachusetts, New York and Illinois. A number of states increased the gasoline tax within the past year, but none reduced it. The tax ranges from 1 cent per gallon in Rhode Island and Texas to 4 cents in Arkansas, Florida, Nevada and North Carolina, to 4 1-2 cents in Washington and 5 cents in Kentucky and South Carolina. The gasoline tax net collections, by states for 1926 were:

Alabama	$2,558,651
Arizona	978,204
Arkansas	3,585,304
California	16,502,123

EXTRA-INNING GAME USUALLY PITCHER'S JINX

A jinx appears to follow pitchers who go the route in record-breaking extra-inning games in the majors.

Will this jinx cast its spell over Bob Smith of the Boston Braves and Guy Bush of the Chicago Cubs, heroes of recent overtime contests between those two clubs?

On Saturday, May 14, Bush pitched 18 innings to beat Boston, 7-2. Charley Robertson, who had performed superbly for the Braves for 17 innings, was derided in the 8th under a barrage of base hits.

The two clubs were scheduled to play the following Monday, but it rained. On Tuesday, May 17, the same clubs battled for 22 innings before a decision was reached, Chicago again winning. This time, 4-3.

Bob Smith, Boston's crack right hander went the entire route for Boston. Bob Osborne, working the last 14 innings for Chicago, held the Braves runless.

Will these two record-breaking performances of 40 innings in two consecutive games have any detrimental effect on the pitchers who officiated?

nings, practically three games, marked the finish of Cadore and Oeschger as major league stars, for both began to slip immediately afterwards.

Strain of Long Games Severe
Leon Cadore, after being cut loose by Brooklyn tried to stick with several other clubs in both leagues but just couldn't deliver. The heart was there but the long strain of that record game had taken the fire out of his arm.

Joe Oeschger managed to stick around a trifle longer. Cadore is out of baseball entirely, but as late as this spring Oeschger was trying to make the grade in the Southern League. I believe he failed.

It is a matter of baseball record that practically every pitcher who took part to any extent in these remarkable games, started on the down grade immediately following the super-pitching feats.

Will Bob Smith, who toiled 22 innings for Boston in one game, and Charley Robertson, who worked 17 innings in another, pay the penalty by having the lame arm jinx camp on their trail? Will Guy Bush, who pitched 18 innings and Bob Osborne, who performed in 14 sessions for Chicago, pay the penalty with a bad arm?

It is to be hoped that these four crack pitchers will suffer no ill effects, but precedent sets the odds all against them.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Billy Wells, Nyda Lomax, and Winnie Shelton, department store employees, are taken as wards into the home of their employer, T. Q. Curtis, for one year, because he wants to help them further their ambitions. Billy, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who is sincerely ambitious, the other two having lied to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity.

A battle starts between the girls when they learn that T. Q. intends adopting one of them when the year is up. T. Q. does not know they have learned his intention. Billy is unwillingly drawn into the battle, and this, together with her infatuation for Dal Romaine, nephew of Mrs. Meadows, the hostess, causes her to lose interest in her violin. Through everything, she tenderly remembers Clay Curtis, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music at night.

Romaine accompanies Billy on a shopping tour and directs her to a certain shop where she spends more than she should. As they ride toward the country, Billy sees Nyda Lomax and Eddie Banning, her chauffeur-sweetheart of department store days. Puzzled by their secret meetings, Billy wonders just what the relation is between these two.

At a house in the country, Billy succumbs to Dal's hypnotic charms and allows him to make love to her. He tells her she belongs to him but begs her to keep their love-making a secret. When she leaves him, she goes to the home of her mother to think over all that has happened. While at home, she sees Clay again and almost forgets that she is in love with Romaine.

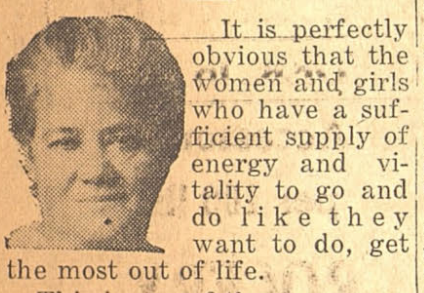

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

During the week that followed Dalhart Romaine did not give Billy Wells much opportunity to forget that she was in love with him, but he took care that no one else should know their secret.

His favorite calling hour was be-

Healthy Women Get Most Pleasure

It is perfectly obvious that the women and girls who have a sufficient supply of energy and vitality to go and do like they want to do, get the most out of life.

This is one of the reasons so many thousands of women and girls everywhere are now using St. Joseph's G. F. P. to build them up and strengthen them.

Mrs. Viola Fulco, who lives in Shreveport, La., at 1453 Laurel St., says, "I really owe half the pleasure I get out of life to St. Joseph's G. F. P. Before I started using this medicine, my work tired me so, I never felt like going out and enjoying myself. But now I have so much strength and energy, I get my work done in hardly any time, and am never too tired to go and have a good time."

In many instances St. Joseph's Antiseptic Powder used externally in connection with St. Joseph's G. F. P. will be found very soothing.

Frank Reedy in charge—27 years' experience

Her voice betrayed her terrible disappointment. "Oh, hello, Ralph."

between ten and eleven o'clock in the morning, when T. Q. Curtis was at the store, Nyda at the Cordelia Mount School for Kindergarten Teachers, and Winnie at the Knox Secretarial College.

"I don't want to make things harder for you, darling, by antagonizing Mr. Curtis where you're concerned. I believe he's begun to suspect that I love you." His voice dropped to a low, throbbing cadence on the words. "And since he dislikes me so much, I'm not going to be as frequent a guest here as I have been. Aunt Lucia simply refuses to believe that Mr. Curtis doesn't like me, and insists that I come to dinner two or three times a week. But I want to be very careful, for your sake, not to give him cause for suspicion. That's the reason I'm so careful to divide my attentions between you and Nyda and Winnie. But—you know dear heart, don't you?"

She was so absorbed in her love for him and in her crying, desperate need of him, that she hardly realized that she was neglecting her music. On Wednesday, when she had explained to Professor Navratil, haltingly, shamefacedly, that it had been impossible for her to come for her violin lesson on Monday, the music master had curtly informed her that it did not matter, that she had been taking more lessons than were good for her.

"Then you think that twice a week—" she asked falteringly, hoping that her voice did not betray her eagerness to seize this means of escape from what threatened to be a serious financial situation.

"Once a week," Navratil had told her firmly. "I have more pupils now than I can manage."

She despised herself for the swift rush of relief she felt as she calculated how much the new schedule of lessons would save her. She—Billy Wells—she who had prayed on her knees for a chance to study violin under a real master!

But Dal Romaine filled her heart and mind too wholly to allow her much time for brooding over her undeniable loss of interest in her violin. She did promise herself to practice religiously four hours a day, but Dal came every morning, and her violin was laid down with scarcely a sigh so that she might give herself to his arms. And so there was little violin practice in the mornings. The afternoons were delightfully hectic, with bridge parties, shopping sorties, in gay little parties of two or three well-dressed, easy-spending girls; with matinees, concerts and drives, with receiving callers and making calls.

When she did encounter them in the upper halls, slipping about in colorful, rich negligees, or downstairs dressed rather too well for afternoon affairs, the meetings were not pleasant ones. Billy always left them with new thorns in her sensitive heart. She did not mind Nyda's sultry-eyed insolence very much, for she knew that Nyda's life was somehow bound up inextricably with Eddie Banning, no matter how much Nyda would like to snap the bonds, but for Winnie she found herself developing an intense, primitive hatred. There was bitter, open warfare between them, and each knew that the real cause of their enmity was their never-discussed love for Dal Romaine.

One afternoon when Winnie had been called to the phone, and had then dressed in a fury of haste, to rush away to some unmentioned appointment, Billy stood in the hallway of the third floor, holding on to the staircase for support. The look which Winnie had cast at her had been charged with malicious triumph; her lips had been quirked in a mocking, secret-revealing smile.

As Billy stood there, looking cizzily down the well of the circular staircase, winding clear to the first floor, Mrs. Meadows came out of her own room, rustling soft draperies of lilac silk.

"Has Winnie gone, dear? she asked gently, but her pale brown eyes were frowning with worry. "I wanted to give her a message for Dal. I should have spoken to him when I answered the phone—"

She went on, in her soft, complaining voice, but Billy did not hear her. She leaned far over the stair railing, and the only coherent thought in her mind was that if she flung herself into the deep well her heart would never hurt again—

"Oh, dear! There's the phone again! Having three girls in the house—" Mrs. Meadows trailed her draperies into her room to answer the telephone, which had extensions in the bedroom of each of the girls.

"For you, Billy?"

Billy drew back, dazed, nauseated at the thought of what she had almost done. She ran to her room, to answer the call on her own extension, her heart pounding with hope that the call might be from Dal, that he wasn't stealing off with Winnie after all.

"Hello! Billy Wells speaking!"

Her voice was low and breathless. "Hello there! This is Ralph, Billy."

"Oh!" Her voice betrayed her terrible disappointment. "Oh, hello, Ralph! How are you?"

"Great! Listen, Billy, you've been promising to go through the factory with me, and if you're not doing anything else, you might as well come along with me today. What say? I'll call for you in half an hour. You can see 'em assemble an automobile, and if you like the bus, you can take it home with you under your arm. Will you come, Billy?"

Her first thought was that, if she went to the Truman Automobile Factory, she would see Clay. Clay!

She hardly remembered his existence this dreadful, ecstatic, nerve-tearing week, but now she knew she needed more than anything else, for the sake of her sanity, a sight of his dear, kind face, with its wistful boyish black eyes—open, frank eyes, that were never filled with anything more sinister than music-begotten dreams.

"I'd love to, Ralph!" she cried, her voice breaking on a note of tearful gladness.

The Truman factory building sprawled over two acres of valuable ground on the north edge of Colfax. Factory laborers reached it by buses, operated without cost to employees by the Truman company. It had given her a queer shock of pride and grief and anger one day to see Clay Curtis, reared in luxury and natural heir to millions, hanging to a strap in one of those crowded coaches.

Ralph Truman flung out bits of amazing information on the magnitude of the industry. Billy scarcely listened; her nerves were too tense, her head too light and dizzy from lack of sleep to concentrate, but she caught phrases, tried to make them mean something.

"Here we are, Billy dear," Ralph told her, as he swung his car along a curving driveway to park it before an imposing building of white marble, with magnificent Doric columns. "This is the main office building. We'll take just a peep in here, then we'll wander through the plant, and let you see how automobiles are made."

The vastness of the offices bewildered her. It seemed to her that hundreds of stenographers and clerks paused fleetingly at their tasks to smile upon gold-looking Ralph Truman and the small, boyish figure that he was escorting with such evident pride.

They crossed to the factory buildings, Ralph pointing out the landscaped gardens, which would be a mad riot of color in another month or so. The enormous, square building where "parts" were manufactured seemed to be made entirely of windows, glinting brightly in the March sunshine. Even before they entered the building, Billy's ears were assaulted by a subdued rumble of noise, like the monotonous protest of thousands of caged beasts.

"Does Clay work here?" Billy shouted, rising on tiptoe to make herself heard.

His raised eyebrows questioned her.

"Clay!" she shrieked.

Ralph nodded, looked into her eyes searching for a minute, then, sighing slightly before he smiled, he led her through a maze of narrow aisles, her every step apparently menaced by gargantuan machines, their gleam in black bodies in a frenzy of activity.

She was glad that she saw Clay before he saw her, for he was spared the sight of her flinching as he of his grease-streaked face, and of his crouching, convulsively twitching body. She caught her breath on a sob of pity as she looked at him—at the fear and hatred of the machine which twitched at every muscle in his sensitive face. Poor Clay! All day, every day, hating it, but going thru with it, so that he might keep body and soul together, might prove to a sardonic, kind-hearted, but doubting old man that he, too, was a man. She wanted to cry out to him to come away with her, to shuck off those grease-foul overalls, to go back to his rightful place in the world. But even as she started to cry out to him, in shocked pity and protest, something of which she had been dimly conscious ever since she had entered the factory raved for recognition along every nerve of her musician's body.

There is something within this great, throbbing factory that is to mean much to Clay Curtis. And Billy Wells discovers it.

TELEGRAPHERS MOBILIZED TO COPY BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

By United Press.
LONDON, May 26.—Queen Mary, after a strenuous season of spring housecleaning, social activity and royal courts, celebrated her sixtieth birthday quietly at Buckingham palace today.
Since her birthday immediately followed the strain of Tuesday night's and last night's courts, the queen de-decided to spend the day at the palace. All day long a steady stream of royal, noble, and foreign visitors called at the palace today to pay their respects to the queen, but only a few intimate friends and members of the family were admitted to the queen's audience chamber.

The most prominent callers, at least so far as the queen is concerned were the three royal grandchildren. Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, who is staying with the queen during her parents' absence abroad, and the two sons of Princess Mary. Princess Elizabeth was brought to the queen early in the day from the nursery in the palace and conveyed her greetings to her grandmother in a series of "coos" and "daa's".

All three of the royal grandchildren had either purchased gifts for the queen, or as in the case of Princess Elizabeth, who is still too tiny to make her own purchases, had had her gift for her grandmother bought for her. Each of the three took great pride in presenting the gifts and watching their grandmother open them. Each received in return a shower of thanks and kisses from the queen.

Several members of the royal family called and it is understood that the Prince of Wales and one of his brothers stayed to lunch with the king and queen.
Early this morning a group of special telegraph operators were sent from the central telegraph office to assist in the handling of the many messages of greetings from all parts of the world which flooded into the palace over the special pony wire.

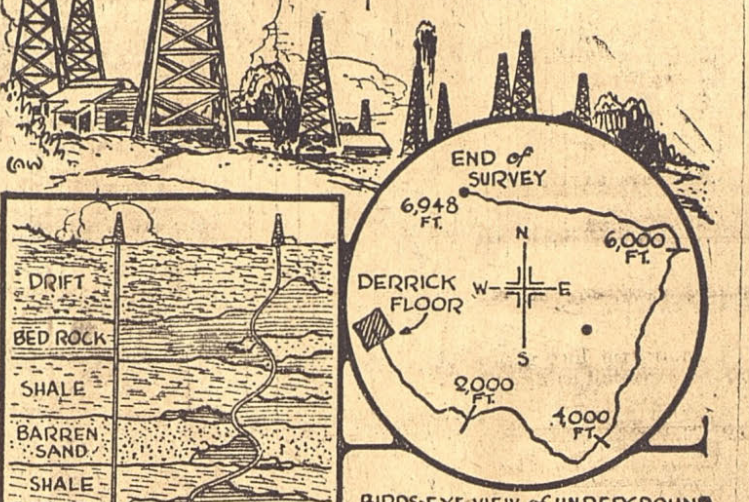

Medical Exhibit Furnishes Thrill For Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER (NEA Service Writer)
WASHINGTON.—The capital of your country got a new kind of thrill last week at the exhibits and side-shows put on for the delegates to the American Medical Association convention, in session here.
Only medical men and their friends were supposed to be in the convention hall, others slipped in, of course.
The biggest drawing card in the convention hall—as well as probably the most valuable to physicians—was the "Fresh Pathology Exhibit." Three counters were covered by trays and filled with sections of the human interior taken from persons who had died within the previous 24 hours.
It appeared just like a butcher shop, with its refrigerator in the rear, but the crowds which congregated about it soon learned differently as the white-clad surgeons picked up the specimens and launched into lengthy discourse on what had been the matter with them.

Hard To Bore A Straight Hole: The Drill Just Will Jay Walk

To bore a hole straight down in the ground is in most geological areas well-nigh impossible. Somewhere in its course the drill encounters a formation so tilted as to

with a well in process of boring. Then there are instances of the drill being started at a point where an oil dome was known to exist, but being so far deflected in its course as entirely to miss the oil sand and produce only a dry hole at a total loss. There is a legend about a man who drilled for several months in the midst of a producing area, but got nothing. Finally the drill point popped out of the ground some hundreds of feet from the starting point! It had made practically a complete circuit under ground. It is not uncommon for a well 6000 feet deep to be 500 feet out of plumb at the bottom.

Among the most interesting of the many devices that science and research have recently brought to the assistance of the oil industry is a mechanism by which the precise course of a drill at whatever depth may be charted. The driller thus knows exactly where he is going and to a certain extent is able with this knowledge to correct the tendencies to deviation.

The surgeons handled the specimens freely, stretching them, carving them with knives and otherwise emphasizing their lectures. It was all very matter of fact and at first surprising to the lay brother, though its benefits were easy enough to understand as two or three men brandished brains or livers on different sides at the same time.
"Unfortunately we haven't got the other kidney and we haven't got the blood vessel, but—"
An entire floor was given over to the Scientific Exhibit. There was a collection of hundreds of articles swallowed by children, huge cases of kidneys, lungs and other organs preserved in alcohol, sections devoted to latest research in this or that disease, long vistas of charts and small movie machines constantly in operation, exposing the most intimate details of anatomy. It was probably the most instructive exhibit of its kind ever gathered under one roof.

Easy Matter To Overdress Says Fashion Expert

By HEDDA HOYT
NEW YORK, May 26.—When a Miss attempts to make too big a hit at dressing she often hits upon something which makes her miss her goal. So often we see smartly dressed women and girls ruining the entire effect of their smartness by an overdose of chic.
Yesterday, for instance, I saw dozens of women ruining the effect of tailored suits or coats by wearing long-petaled chiffon corsages in pastel tones are meant to be worn with silk frocks and not with tailored street clothes. They should never be worn with coats or suits.
A very usual mistake this season is the wearing of a fox fur-piece with a large-brimmed hat. Where fox is worn the hat should be small. Otherwise the hat-brim catches upon the fur at the rear. Also too much bulk should not be placed about the face.
We large-brimmed hats, small mink or sable neck-pieces are better liked. Numerous are the cases of gray shoes and stockings worn with beige hats, gloves or handbags. Women seem to feel that light-hued accessories are all that is required but when one wears either gray or light beige shoes, then the gloves, handbag fur-piece and hat should be in harmony. Of course, the hat does not always have to follow the color of one's footgear as it may be of a more colorful note.

accessories should be of tailored type. The well dressed woman would not think of carrying a beaded hand bag with a tailored costume, yet we find many women who perhaps feel that they are well dressed doing this sort of thing. Shoes that are too fancy in design are often worn with simple costumes, dressy hats with tailored costumes, etc.

SPRAYED RUBBER WEB CORD FLAT BAND METHOD

BUY WHERE YOU SEE THIS SIGN

Q. How does the Flat Band Method build longer wear into United States Tires?
A. The Flat Band Method, invented and patented by the United States Rubber Company, puts longer wear into a tire because it is the most precise method of tire building ever developed.
It is comparable to the exact engineering practice of bridge design and construction. Just as the position, length and load of each cable in a bridge are calculated and fixed in advance, so with the cords in a United States Tire.
By the Flat Band Method the plies are laid without tension. The length of each cord is precisely right. The relation of the cords, one to another, is exact.
The result is a tire in which uniform tension and strength of every cord are assured. The load is equalized all around. Longer wear follows.

VOTES FOR YOUNG ENGLISHWOMEN DANGEROUS TO PROHIBITION

By C. P. WILLIAMSON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON.—The "cocktail girls" of England will probably ruin Great Britain's chances of getting prohibition at some future date if the government carries out its intention of giving "votes to flappers," according to Dr. Alfred Salter, labor member of parliament.

Dr. Salter, one of the best known of the dry forces in the commons, recently stirred up a national controversy as a result of his charges on the floor of the house that members were attending the session while in a doubtful condition of intoxication.

"Prohibition is not a live issue in England," Dr. Salter told the United Press, "and I do not think that an extension of the franchise to women of 21 and over will have the slightest effect in the matter. Although many people know of the misery that drink brings, I do not think that girls of over 21 would be interested in the least unless they have drunken mothers or fathers.

"On the other hand there are many young girls of that age who are in search of 'life'—the cocktail girls—who drink themselves and enjoy it and their support for the abolition of the evil of drinking can certainly not be counted on."

From a group of opinions gathered by the United Press, both among members of parliament and in prohibition and anti-prohibition circles, it would appear that both sides are looking upon the government's proposal to give the voting franchise to girls over 21 with a great deal of doubt so far as their causes are concerned.

Both sides freely admit that the modern girl with a vote would be a doubtful factor, both in domestic politics and national issues.

H. B. Wilson, secretary of the prohibition organization of England, the United Kingdom alliance, told the United Press, "The young girl today who really wants the vote is engaged more in a 'battle of the sexes' rather than in a calm reflection of how she could best use her vote for the betterment of the country. If the flapper gets the vote, she will be a doubtful factor so far as national issues are concerned until she realizes the power that he vote has. However, I believe that ultimately the vote, if given to young women will bring some decided change in the liquor question as it exists now, even if it does not bring prohibition.

Lady Astor, another prominent dry member of parliament, also pointed out to the United Press the large number of women who drink in England.

"It will take a long time, but it is inevitable that the extension of the vote to girls over 21 will go a long way in furthering the temperance movement," Lady Astor said. "I am convinced that the extension will not only greatly assist in the dry movement, but it may even be a great factor in bringing complete prohibition in England."

Frederick A. MacQueen, conservative, wet member of parliament and always known as a strong opponent of Lady Astor in the house when asked for his opinion on the matter told the United Press, "The only experience I have ever had in the matter has been riding along the streets on the top of an omnibus. The thing that impresses me is the fact that one sees as many women in the public houses as there are men."

Thomas Hynes, legal advisor to the anti-prohibition organization, asserted that although he did not consider that young women, if given the vote, could be distributed on either side of the question, they are "potential danger to the liquor trade of England."

"Propaganda will be the crux of the question if the flappers vote," he told the United Press, "and the religious organizations, especially the more energetic ones, are likely to take advantage of this fact in an attempt to influence the young girl with stories of the evils of drink."

"I do not consider there is an actual element of danger in the flapper vote for the liquor trade. The danger is merely potential."

FOR CONSTIPATION

Mississippi Man Says He Has Found Black-Draught So Satisfactory, He Has No Need to Change.

Wiggins, Miss.—Mr. A. L. Cone, a well known Wiggins resident, says: "I have used Theford's Black-Draught for constipation. I have never had to take a great deal of medicine, but for fully 30 years I have, by using it, known Black-Draught to be a great medicine, and when I found it so satisfactory, I haven't seen any need to change.

"When I get constipated, I feel all out of sorts and tired and sluggish and I take a few doses of Black-Draught. It regulates my bowels and I get all right. My wife takes more Black-Draught than I do. She is a great believer in it too, so we keep it in the house. It will cleanse the system and help you, if you use it as we have."

Constipation leads to a great deal of sickness among those who do not understand its dangers, and who neglect to treat it without delay.

Black-Draught, with its natural, prompt action of its purely vegetable ingredients, quickly relieves constipation and helps to drive out the poisons so as to leave the organs in a state of healthy activity.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

For more than 400 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.
