

TWO OF TRANS-PACIFIC PLANES MISSING

AMERICANS ARE WARNED AGAINST GOING INTO INTERIOR CHINA

ADVISE THAT CIVIL WAR FLAMES AGAIN

Washington Decides Upon Strict Policy Of Neutrality There

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The United States government today decided to issue another warning to American missionaries to keep out of the interior Chinese districts where civil war is flaming again.

At the same time the administration decided upon a policy of strict neutrality as between the factions. Efforts of certain foreign groups to take advantage of Chinese international dissension are frowned upon here.

With the Chinese situation growing daily more chaotic and delicate this government will content itself of assuring protection for Americans in Shanghai and other concentration points while refraining from action aimed to thwart legitimate aspirations of the awakening Chinese people, it is said.

The President Goes for a Gallop

President Coolidge, with his ten-gallon hat and buckskin gloves, is shown here on his favorite mount, Mistletoe, just before starting on a gallop over the Black Hills of South Dakota. The president rode to Mt. Rushmore the other day for the ceremony marking the beginning of work on the Jefferson-Lincoln-Roosevelt Memorial, which is to be executed out of native rock by Gutzon Borglum. This excellent NEA photo is one of the very few ever taken of President Coolidge on horseback.

GAYLORD RIDDLE, FORMER RANGER BOY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Gaylord Riddle, son of Mrs. Albert Riddle of Ranger, was killed in an automobile accident yesterday morning in Glendale, Calif., his mother was advised by a wire yesterday, but no details of the accident that cost this fine young man his life was given.

The message, received here yesterday afternoon brought sorrow to many, as the victim of the accident was born in Ranger on Sept. 24, 1892, and spent a great portion of his life here. Then he was closely related to some of Ranger's most prominent families and at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Martha Rawls, his mother's heart is almost broken.

Mrs. Riddle had a letter from her son on Aug. 4, a birthday letter, as that was her birthday, and she was expecting him to stop in Ranger on his return to New York, as that was where he made his home, only recently going to California.

The deceased was educated at Stamford college and in the spring of 1918 when his country called for volunteers in the United States aviation corps, he volunteered and served with honor throughout the duration of the war, coming to Ranger and spending two years after his discharge in 1920.

In his army career the government kept him at Columbia university long enough to give him a special course in hydroplane work.

He was an expert automobile mechanic and followed that line of work during the war, when he worked on airplane motors.

He was a member of the Ranger Masonic lodge and of the Methodist church. Those who knew him best say of him that he had all the attributes that go to make a real man, a good son, father and citizen, and their heads are bowed low in grief that he should have been called away so early in life from those who love and need him.

The body will be sent to Stamford, where his father, the former Albert Riddle of Ranger and Stamford, and a baby brother are buried, but the date for the funeral has not yet been set.

Members of his immediate family surviving are his mother, a daughter 12 years old, a sister, Mrs. Franz Koldfeld of Denison, and a younger brother, Leon Riddle of Denison, his grandmother, Mrs. Martha Rawls, and a number of aunts, uncles and cousins, including Mrs. John M. Gholson and Mrs. W. R. Bowden of Ranger, Mrs. George Davenport of Eastland, Mrs. J. E. T. Peters of Cisco, Mrs. H. B. Lane of Stamford, and R. B. Rawls of Port Worth.

Three Hundred Gather At Water Rights Fight

Speakers Declare West Texas Wants Only Justice, Not Making Fight on State Board Of Water Engineers

By United Press.
ABILENE, Texas, Aug. 18.—West Texas considerably wrought up over the rights of water users was represented by more than 300 agriculturists, business men and others from cities of this section at a conference here today.

Many lively verbal debates were heard as the meeting got under way shortly before noon. Representatives of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, declared that the battle over water rights was to become one of the leading issues in the state.

Many leaders in the state's development were here for the meeting including J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls, Congressman Tom Blanton, Abilene, and Dean T. U. Taylor, of the State University. All of them were expected to address the assemblage during the afternoon.

In a speech at the opening of the session Congressman Blanton charged that power syndicates are attempting to gain control of the waters of the Colorado River. "It is an assault on the rights of Texas people who are dependant on waters of this stream for their livelihood," he said.

Judge C. L. McCartney, of Brownwood, addressing the meeting stressed that no fight was being waged on the state board of engineers or the syndicate power company, Dallas, but that justice was sought.

A resolution was to be passed this afternoon, making it explicitly understood that the state board was not censored for granting a water permit to the syndicate company in Brown county, but asking that the permit be rescinded and the entire matter reopened.

The resolution also provided that "if the present laws do not safeguard municipal and farm interests, against power development" legislation would be sought at the next legislative meeting.

MISS DORAN AND FROST STILL OUT

Many Destroyers And Submarines Search For Missing Planes

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—With two trans-pacific planes hours overdue at Hawaii and known to be out of fuel, fears were strengthening early today minute by minute that the Dole race born in tragedy may cost more lives before the final chapter can be written.

The biplane, Miss Doran, was eight hours past the deadline at the same time. Neither has been sighted nor heard since plunging into the ominous fog banks bordering the Pacific at San Francisco Tuesday afternoon.

A general search of the 2,408 miles of sea separating the Golden Gate from Hawaii is already under way.

Hopes For Frost

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—Hope persisted here early today that Jack Frost's Golden Eagle may have made a forced landing on some obscure spot on the island of Oahu. This was based on two radiograms from the Radio corporation station at Honolulu yesterday immediately after the arrival of the Woolaroc at Wheeler field and preceding by over an hour the arrival of the Aloha.

The first message received at 3:15 p. m., Pacific time, said that a yellow plane thought to be the Aloha, had been sighted first over Koko Head and later on Diamond Head on Oahu. After a long lapse of time the yellow painted Aloha arrived unexpectedly from another direction.

A second message saying that the original information was then thought to be erroneous was filed. It was hoped now that the yellow monoplane first reported may have been Frost's plane, which was gold and orange.

Navy Sends Help

Big Crowd Greet Chamberlin At Denison, Iowa

By United Press.
DENISON, Iowa, Aug. 18.—Rain over the city today cut down but little the size of the crowd which turned out to greet Clarence D. Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flyer, and did not at all dampen the enthusiasm of the thousands of hero worshippers.

BILLIONS IN CONSTRUCTION.

(From Manufacturers Record.)
 Never before in the history of this paper has it been possible to publish such a list of great enterprises now under construction in the south as we are giving today. Hydro-electric enterprises by the dozens, involving expenditures for individual plants from a few million dollars up to one which will require an investment of over $50,000,000; great cement plants costing from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000;
 enormous hotels and office buildings; railroad bridges, highway bridges, bank buildings, harbor improvements, all combine to make such a showing for construction work in the south as has never before been made in this section, and possibly never before made in any section of the United States. Here is unrolled a panorama of vast enterprises of every variety.

Capital from other sections is pouring into the south by the hundreds of millions. Southern capital is joining in the work of southern upbuilding.

In this survey we have not touched on the great highway building work under way, we have not included thousands of smaller enterprises under construction, but have only selected here and there in different parts of the south some striking phases of material advancement, leaving to the reader's imagination to fill in the picture, the outlines of which we have simply broadly sketched.

Here is a story of material advancement that really beggars description, and somewhat staggers the imagination as one attempts to grasp its full meaning and the effect which the enterprises now under way will have in tremendously stimulating further development.

Surely Secretary Hoover made a safe prediction when a few days ago
 in an interview with the Nashville Tennessean and other southern papers he said:
 "Industrially, the south is a section of the world where the largest development must take place in the next 25 years."

Shortly before his death Henry M.
 Flagler, the great empire builder of Florida, said to the editor of the Manufacturers Record in a somewhat stronger statement even than that of Mr. Hoover:
 "The next quarter of a century of material advancement belongs to the south."

Mr. Flagler had backed his faith in Florida and the south by the investment of from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 of his own money, and his prediction as to his own beloved Florida and the south at large, and the predictions of the Manufacturers Record for more than 40 years, are now being fulfilled almost beyond the dreams of the past.

The above article from the Manufacturers Record seems to indicate that the greatest development in the United States for the next 25 years will be in the south, and that this big development era is just getting under way.

When the progress that has been made in the south the past few years is reviewed it hardly seems possible that this section of the country has merely just been getting ready for a big development era. It hardly seems possible that one section of the country can claim as much attention as is indicated by events of the past few years here in the south. But there is no reason for a misreading of the signs of the times, there is no excuse for misinterpreting the actual events of progress in this great section of the country.

The south is due for a period of intensive development. It is due for the development of its agricultural possibilities and its commercial and industrial possibilities.
 The people of the south should get ready for this development for all indications are that it is coming and that it will last for the next quarter of a century.

GARDEN PARTY AND BARBECUE GIVEN FOR DALLAS GUEST

A garden party at the home of
 Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murray, at 912
 Strawn Road last night, honored Mrs.
 D. S. Bodenheimer of Dallas, charming guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. R.
 Newnham and afforded a most delightful evening for those invited to meet Mrs. Bodenheimer.

The Murrays, like several other Ranger families have been cultivating a rear garden as well as front and side lawns, and the result of their efforts formed an ideal setting for the fresco party of last evening.

Comfortable chairs and plenty of light from electric lights strung across the lawn added charm to the garden, while a long table laid in white, had an appeal all of its own and only one announcement that dinner was served, was necessary to call guests away from their chairs
 to their places at the long well filled table.

A menu of barbecued chicken, potato salad, stuffed eggs, pickles,
 olives, rolls, potato chips, lemonade,
 ice cream and homemade cake was enjoyed by Messrs. and Mmes. George Kelley, Walter Burden and son, Hall
 Walker, M. R. Newnham and children, Mmes. Nannie Walker, D. S. Bo-denheimer, Jerome McLester, and daughters, Rena B. Campbell, Messrs.
 W. D. Conway, W. W. Housewright
 and Miss Maurine Tipton.

After the meal music and conversation was enjoyed. Mrs. M. R. Newnham gave several piano numbers and accompanied by Mrs. Murray on the madolin played several of the old, old songs, that are ageless. Doris Murray a pupil of Mrs. Newnham's gave one or two piano selections but the real treat of the evening came when Mrs. Bodenheimer, a lady who admits she lived in the age of hoop skirts and bustles, played the Wedding March, sang a lovely love song, and favored her listeners with several other airs
 of a day that is past and gone, providing without a shadow of a doubt that she is one who is meeting each advancing year with the background of her past, the charm of the present and the hope of the future—in other words, growing old gracefully.

CHOIR PRACTICE TONIGHT OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

Members of the Methodist Choir
 are asked to be present at the choir practice tonight as at this time the choir will practice songs that are to be sung at Cisco on Monday night, when this choir will appear on the program of the Christian Church Encampment to be held at Lake Cisco.

RAINBOW ORDER ORGANIZED WITH CLASS OF THIRTY-FIVE

Thirty-five Ranger girls were initiated into the Order of Rainbow, last night at the Masonic Hall. Officers for the order were elected and installed and after the ceremony refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the members of the De Moly Chapter, in the banquet hall of the lodge.

The class numbered thirty-nine but four were absent and will be initiated later. The ceremony of initiation into this beautiful order was conducted by Mrs. Harden of Eastland and a number of Eastland Rainbow girls, in the ceremonial hall, which was decorated in orange and black.

After the installation of officers,
 these officers took their places and presided.
 The organization of the Rainbow
 Order was sponsored by the Eastern Star members and has been going on for several months. That so large a class was possible, speaks well of the efforts these women have made to formulate such a worthy order in Ranger, for Ranger girls, and many good times are anticipated by the members. The chapter will meet twice a month.

Officers elected and installed were:
 Mother Advisor, Mrs. Olive Harman.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS REPORT BIG ACTIVITY

Vol Davenport, former chief of police of Ranger, although out of politics, is doing quite a bit of dabbling in real estate. He called at the Times office today and reported several sales.

Ed Myers has purchased through him the J. C. Rust property on South Austin street, which included two houses and two lots.

Gene Reynolds has purchased five acres out of the W. H. Smith tract on the Strawn highway, and Mrs. Blythe, five acres out of the same tract.

Ranger Lions

Ranger Lions met in regular weekly session today and enjoyed an informal meeting. There was no set program but W. C. Hickey made a talk on plans relative to Ranger's Home-Coming Oil Jubilee, and Dr.
 Logsdon on Lion activity.

Three new applications for membership were read and passed to the membership committee.

The Army and the Navy, the two contending sides in a membership contest, had their guns trained on each other but no real firing was done. Each has an application that has been o. k'd and are scrambling around to break the tie.

Lion Craig and Lion Moore are the generals in charge of the contest.

Ranger Business

 Oyster Supply

Ivo Novakovich of the City Fish Market, Ranger, has returned from a trip to New Orleans, where he went to look after the oyster supply for the coming months.

Mr. Novakovich, in speaking of his trip said that just how much damage
 the flood will do to the sea food business at New Orleans is not known and probably won't be known for thirty days.

"It is hard to tell just how much damage has been done to the oyster business along the coast. Morean City suffered most and there will be no oysters shipped from there this season. It looks like the best oyster beds at New Orleans have been saved,
 but it is hard to tell until the water
 finally recedes.

 amateur rat catcher now claims the rat catching championship of the United

Smith, after weeks of futile sniping quieter methods.

He constructed a huge steel trap,
 filled it full of the best American cheese and planted it.

Next morning, according to his own statement, he found it filled with 40
 rats.

He has had no more trouble with
 rats.

Bobs Are Here To Stay, Waves Are Rage In Paris

Special Correspondence.
 PARIS, Aug. 18.—When you hear of revivals of long hair in Paris, set it down as the bunk.

The bob is here to stay. Parisiennes tell you it is the symbol of their new emancipation. To abandon the bob for long hair would be to degenerate back to the repressed era of corsets, bustles, and hair rats.

Pluffy coiffures with a few chic curls encircling the face are the latest conceit of hair-dressers who are governed by the edicts of the Institute des Coiffures des Dames de France. And waves are the rage. In fact, all Paris is a perfect sea of waves that swirl in undulating bil-lows on feminine heads from the Boulevard des Italiens to the Arc de Triomphe.

Some of the more advanced bou-vardieres affect long bangs which creep down over the brows. But all fashionable coiffures are shaped to the contour of the head. At night in the smart cafes of Montmartre or in theatres of the Champs Elysees you may see ears peeking out of the headdress—the better perhaps to catch the nefest gossip tidbit of Carol's proposed coups for the Roumanian throne.

Faiblese is the motif of Parisian make-up now. To be fashionable, you must be pale. Face powders which gave a white, ghost-like, mysterious air are the present mode. Paris is full of chic semi-invalids who have a fragile look, suggestive of hot-house flowers. Rouge splashed generously on the lips lends a crimson contrast to dead-white complexions, while blue tints in triangles on the eyelids gives the orbs a phosphorescent appearance.

Different make-up for day and night is correct. For daytime Paris-iennes cosmetize themselves into a suggestion of faint rosiness to connote activity when they ride in the Bois or shop in the Rue de la Paix.
 But night brings an era of death-like pallor. The appearance of these lovely phantoms under the electric lights is haunting in the exotic and outre impression it leaves.

ARMS BAN IN PHILIPPINES

By United Press.
 MANILA.—The smuggling of firearms into the Philippines has reached a point obliging the constabulary to intervene for the preservation of order.

Special instructions just issued to the bureau of customs at the behest of the constabulary, provide that all crews of vessels entering the Philippines from the United States or Honolulu must be carefully searched before being granted the freedom of the city's bars and bright lights.

Constabulary agents recently investigated the increase in crimes of violence and concluded that the tendency was due to the illegal importation of revolvers and shot guns.

CHAPLIN PLAYS LEADING ROLE IN NEW PICTURE

Famous Divorce Suit Hearing Comes Up August 22, Play Promises to Have Sensational Run

By DAN CAMPBELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)
LOS ANGELES.—The eternal problem play of the movies—"Marriage and Divorce" will open a sensational run in the courts here Aug. 22 with the "King of Clowns" and his girl wife playing the eluding roles.

Charles Spencer Chaplin, crowned king in the hearts of a million kids, portrays a new role without benefit of the baggy pants, the cane, the derby hat, and the shuffle that made him famous, with his reputation, his millions and the custody of his children at stake.

Opposing him is the Cinderella of the Celluloid, Lita Grey Chaplin, who as the comedian's wife played a part coveted by thousands of movie-struck girls who followed the glamorous trail to Hollywood, but from which she seeks freedom on charges running the gamut of spicy grounds for divorce.

An imposing array of legal talent awaits the moment when the court bailiff will affect his regal but ephemeral gesture of importance and the anticipated throngs of sensation seekers settle down for choice morsels of the film colony's most colorful divorce scandal.

Famous Attorneys
One side, Gavin McNab, of Roscoe Arbuckle case fame, and Loyd Wright will represent the comedian, while Edwin T. McMurray, Mrs. Chaplin's uncle, and the firm of Young and Young will oppose them.

Between the drab lines of legal phraseology that compose the 62-page complaint, Lita Grey Chaplin paints a pathetic and sordid picture of her life with the great laugh maker, who tore the worries of life from the movie mob, but filled his home with hate, intrigue and even degeneracy, the girl wife alleges.

The comedian and Lita Grey were married at Empalme, in the State of Sonora, Mexico, Nov. 25, 1924. Mrs. Chaplin asserts that her husband "entered into the marriage without any intention of carrying out his legal and marital obligations" and that he married her "for the sole and selfish purpose of protecting himself from criminal prosecution for felony."

Hardly before the signature of the Mexican minister, who married them was dry, Chaplin is alleged to have remarked: "This marriage won't last long. I'll make you so damn sick of me that you won't want to live with me."

Sensational Charges
He charged her with being a "gold digger" and a "blackmailer" her complaint asserts and declared that she was ruining his career. He is further alleged to have told her that "the marriage relation militated against his success" and "that if she had not been selfish" she would have done what "many other women had done for him."

Around "the other women" in the case, the interest of the film colony is centered. These phantom figures of perfume and richly dressed women of the movies moved through the drama as outlined in the divorce complaint sounding an ominous warning of further scandal in unknown quarters.

"A certain prominent moving picture actress"—is the phrase that punctuates the legal wording at frequent intervals and serves as an element of suspense.

Without naming her Mrs. Chaplin speaks frequently of a particular "other woman" asserting that on one occasion Chaplin "bluntly and boastfully said: 'Yes it is true, and I am in love with her, and don't care who knows it. I am going to see her when I want to and whether you like it or not. I don't love you and I am only living with you because I had to marry you.'"

Mrs. Chaplin states that the comedian "publicly and privately associated with other women to her humiliation and distress and to her exclusion and neglect."

She alleges that a "certain young woman" visited the Chaplin mansion while she was away and that the woman's automobile was seen standing in front of the house for several hours on four consecutive days.

Counter Charges
She charges that Chaplin never showed a "normal, usual or proper fatherly interest in, or affection for" the two minor children, that he attempted to lock her out of the house; threatened to kill her; suggested that she take her own life and as a climax and the deciding issue in their two years of marital warfare, ordered her guests from the house and humiliated her.

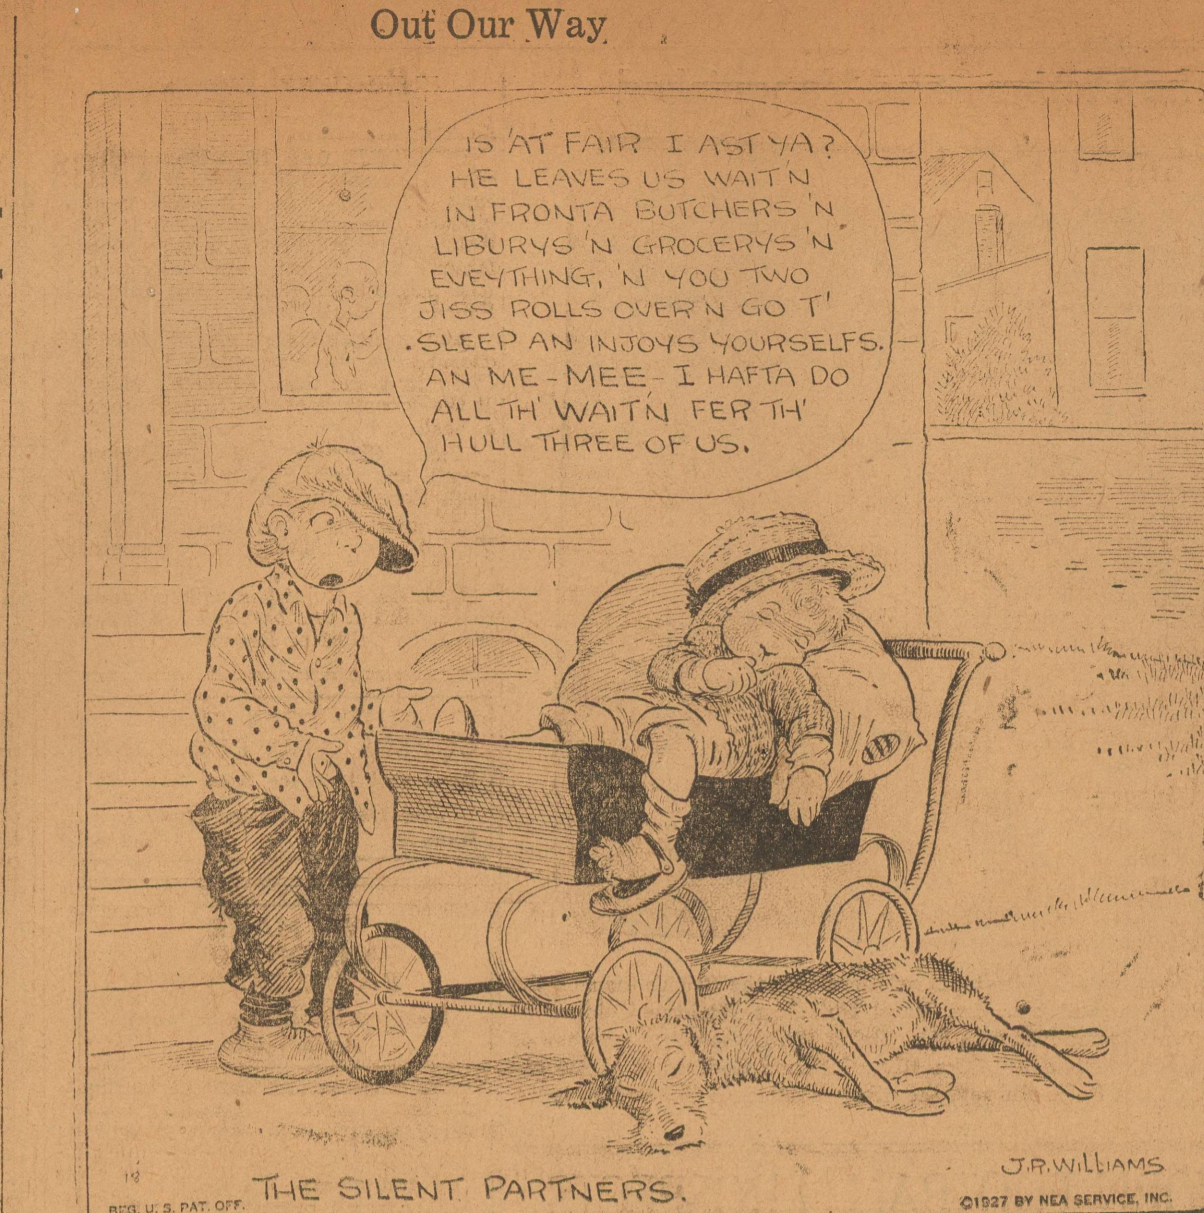

The latter incident occurred according to the complaint, on the night of Nov. 29. Mrs. Chaplin alleges that she brought guests home from a dinner at the Biltmore hotel and a few minutes after the party arrived Chaplin came to the head of the stairs and "called in a very rude and preemptory manner, and within the hearing of the guests."

"Get that wild bunch of people out of here, get them out and get them out quick," Chaplin is alleged to have said to his wife.

The guests left immediately and Mrs. Chaplin left the next day going to the home of her grandparents. She did not return to the Chaplin mansion again until the comedian left for the east and a court order again installed her legally.

Chaplin categorically denies all charges made by his wife and in turn makes several sensational allegations of his own. Among these are intimations having to do with a "young automobile salesman" whom he claims his wife associated with. He further hints at certain affairs on a trip his wife made to Honolulu.

Silent Officer Of Law At Coleman Never Uses Gun

By United Press.
COLEMAN, Texas, Aug. 18.—Coleman claims to have the quietest deputy sheriff in America. He is Rush Johnigan, 50, a powerful appearing man who wears a six-shooter and a 10-gallon hat. He has never found it necessary to use the gun.

Johnigan has held his office under four sheriffs and during his career every person he has ever arrested has found it useless to argue the case out of court. The reason is simple. Johnigan has been a deaf mute since he was a small child.

His friends point out that he is an unusually efficient officer because he spends no time talking politics or listening to discussions of cases. Johnigan's keen ability to "read" faces has enabled him to accurately forecast the verdict of the jury in many court cases here in recent years.

WOMEN'S DECLINING YEARS MADE HAPPY

The age-old impression that a woman is "old" in every sense of the word after she has reached middle age is rapidly being thrown aside as more and more women start using St. Joseph's G. F. P. during this period.

This vegetable compound contains such well-known roots and herbs as Blessed Thistle, Blue Cohosh Root, Squaw Vine, Life Root Plant, Helonias Root, Star Grass, Cramp Bark, etc., which your family physician will tell you have been used for years in building up and strengthening women.

Among the many thousands of women who are now using and praising St. Joseph's G. F. P. is Mrs. Marguerite Rose, who lives at 905 Kentucky Ave., San Antonio, Texas.

She says, "Although I am 73 years old, I feel strong and healthy, have a good appetite and sleep like I did when I was a girl. I really enjoy life and I believe this is all due to my using St. Joseph's G. F. P., as it is only since I have been using this medicine that I have felt so strong."

Fix Your Wobble Pump Mister, Is New Wise Crack

By United Press.
DALLAS, Aug. 18.—The current wise crack in this vicinity received its origination after the trouble encountered by Capt. William P. Erwin in his attempt to make a non-stop flight from Dallas to San Francisco. Erwin had trouble with his wobble pump on the plane and was forced to land before reaching San Francisco. At the Dallas-Waco Texas league baseball game here, Umpire Tom Erwin called one that several fans thought was wrong. One spectator yelled: "Hey, Erwin! Fix your wobble pump."

The total value of merchandise exported through Texas ports last year was in excess of $670,000,000, an amount greater than the South's total exports in 1910.

Disposition Is One of Pitcher's Biggest Assets

By BILLY EVANS.
To a majority of the present day fans, Nick Altrock is known only as the baseball clown who makes the folks laugh with his pantomime comedy.

Years ago Nick was one of the game's greatest southpaws. There never was a more serious pitcher. He took to clowning after he lost his effectiveness.

Altrock, as a star, was known as a smart pitcher. He didn't have a word of stuff but he used every ounce of it to advantage. He worked much after the manner of Herb Pennock of the Yankees and had about the same repertoire.

Without a doubt, he had the greatest motion to first base of any southpaw I have ever seen in action. The deceptive motions of present day pitchers are all based on Altrock's original methods. It was tough to steal on him.

Nick will neither affirm nor deny a story that in the ninth inning of a tight game he passed three batters rather than give them a chance to hit, and in turn picked each one of them off first base to retire the side.

Assets of Great Pitcher.
On Aug. 2, the day Washington fans paid tribute to the twentieth anniversary of Walter Johnson as a big league pitcher and a member of that club, I sat on the bench with Altrock, discussing Walter and his remarkable career.

Naturally we talked of the great speed Johnson had when he broke in of his uncanny control for a fast ball pitcher, as well as many of the remarkable feats he had performed, such as shutting out the New York club in three consecutive games, pitching 56 consecutive innings without being scored on, registering more than 100 shut-outs and so on down the line.

These things brought up the question as to what makes a great pitcher—which is the most important asset?

Nick listened to the discussion of several of us and then in one of his serious moments, which are few now that he is supposed to clown it for the edification of the fan, he threw new light on the pitching situation.

Altrock Gives Views.
"Walter Johnson is the greatest pitcher the game has ever known because he possesses the ideal disposition for a hurler.

"Time, Johnson had a world of stuff, but the proper mental attitude is what enabled him to reach the dizzy position he now holds in baseball.

"One cannot be a great pitcher unless he has the right disposition. No player who ever wore a Washington uniform can recall the slightest criticism from Johnson no matter how poorly he played. No umpire can ever remember his protesting a decision.

"Johnson throughout his career has accepted the good and bad breaks in the same methodical manner. Nothing has ruffled him. No matter how things were breaking he always continued to give his best.

"I can name 25 pitchers in the American league today who would be twice as efficient if they weren't crabs, sulking every time a teammate makes a costly error or they believe the umpire has kicked one.

"Whatever fame I attained as a pitcher was due more to my disposition than my stuff. I let the umpires umpire and knew every one of my teammates was doing his best."

Altrock's theory that a proper disposition is a pitcher's greatest asset is something new, but I am of the opinion that Nick has hit the nail on the head.

LONGHORN FOOTBALL PROSPECTS DEPEND LARGELY ON NEW COACH

By RICHARD VAUGHAN.
AUSTIN, Aug. 18.—With 16 letter men, a number of reserves, and a hoard of freshman players as material, the University of Texas should be a potent but uncertain contender for the 1927 football championship of the Southwestern Athletic conference.

Clyde Littlefield, a new coach in major football, will whip the material into playing shape and on his success in forming a well-coached team will depend part of Texas' fortunes. His coaching will not be unfamiliar to the men, because he has trained most of them as freshmen, but his system will necessarily be new, as he will be coaching his own ideas and not teaching the system of another coach.

A young team will absorb football under Coach Littlefield. Nine of the 16 letter men are playing their second year, and several of the veterans will take the sidelines in deference to more powerful freshmen. A great mass of strong track men will go out for football for the first time and several of them are potential stars.

The men who have played one year before are Dusty Rhoades of Dallas, Herb Tigner of Houston, Jack Cowley of Blossom, Steve Wray of Donna, Ike Sewell of Wills Point, Cotton Mobley of Houston, Bill Ford of Dallas, Tommie Hughes of Texarkana, and Leo Baldwin of Wichita Falls.

John Terrell of Decatur, Pottie McCullough of Waco, Joe King, Johnnie Estes and Ox Higgins of Dallas, Patsy Allen of Luling and Rufus King of Austin will be playing their third seasons.

Should Higgins, Estes, Baldwin and Eddie Beular of Beaumont, the cripples of 1926, suffer no ill consequences from their old injuries, Texas may have a great team. If these four men return in perfect physical condition, they will add dynamite power to the team's punch. Each was all-conference material, but three of them were forced entirely off the team last year because of leg injuries, and much of Higgins' power was drawn by the same trouble.

With seven letter men in the backfield and nine in the line, the veteran material is well divided. And of the double leadership of the team, Captain Higgins will play tackle, while Co-Captain Rufus King will boss the team from the fullback position.

More football material will go out for the team this year than has appeared for practice in many seasons. Besides the men who have played college football before, there will be a number of track and basket ball players who have not competed since high school days. Many of these may not play in a single game this year, but they will help develop other men and they will have learned the system for the next year.

Coach Littlefield's system of play will be difficult to forecast from the standpoint of the one he has used for seven years as freshman coach. During this period, he alternately groomed his charges in the system to be used by the major coach in varsity football and in that to be used by the next gridiron antagonist. Some things can be gleaned from the play of the first-year men, however.

One of the most persistent styles used on the freshmen was a wide-open formation that unleashed some powerful back to run, kick or pass from 10 or 15 yards behind the line. This style would place Baldwin, a great halfback, in his glory. Baldwin is the type of player who can hit through line or around end from five to an infinite number of yards on this play. He is also a great passer and the best kicker on the team. Beular and Big Un Rose of Dallas will also find this style exactly suited to their talents.

Punting will find Texas with but one great kicking back and that is Baldwin. He ought to send as many 50-yard boots spinning into the air during the campaign as any other man in the conference. Burr McKinnon of Plainview can punt farther than any man on the squad, and he may develop into an all-around player. Paul Krueger of Austin, Big Un Rose and Pan Perkins of Bastrop, from the freshmen, are good kickers with possibilities.

Rufus King, the greatest plunging full in the conference, will do most of the line plowing. He will have the assistance of Krueger and Beular, who is small but carries a punch.

Baldwin, Joe King and Beular can pass well, while Rufus King, who passed most balls last year, is an excellent flinger.

Bill Ford, Big Un Rose and Dusty Rhoades will give the passers excellent targets, since all are receivers above the average.

There is just one right way to keep the skin clear and smooth Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.
You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles, which improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.
"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.
S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

The PENNY PRINCESS

COPYRIGHT 1927 by NEA Service by anne austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Vera Cameron, private secretary in the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., shares an apartment with her attractive aunt, Flora Cartwright, who finds it difficult to realize that this brightly sensible and efficient creature who has never had a real sweetheart is her niece.

On the way to the office, Vera takes a frank inventory of herself to learn why people find her so unattractive. Her nose is classic, her mouth is adorable, but on the other hand, there are her heavily rimmed glasses, a freckle-marred complexion and her plain and sensible clothes.

At the office where she expects to learn of her promotion to the place of secretary to the president, she finds another girl has been given the position. The president cheers her by the announcement of her promotion to assistant to the new advertising manager, Jerry Macklyn. With high hope she raps on the door of her new superior.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II
A lusty young baritone roared "Come in!" a summons which Vera Cameron in spite of the strange new excitement which fluttered her usually well-controlled nerves, obeyed noisily, as all good private secretaries should.

She had entered so noiselessly on her rubber-heeled oxfords that Jerry Macklyn had not heard her, and for a moment she was too astonished to apprise him of her presence. A husky young man, costless, and with his shirt sleeves rolled above the elbow, was hunched before a huge flat-topped desk, which was completely covered with jars and bottles and powder boxes. Beneath his red hair one tanned cheek testified that nature had given him a complexion to harmonize with that amazing hair of his, but the other was completely submerged under a thick coating of cold cream.

"I—I beg your pardon," Vera stammered, unable to make up her mind whether to laugh or to flee, leaving this astonishing young man to his shameless riles of beautification. "Oh, hello! Hello!" Jerry Macklyn's eyebrows descended, his startlingly blue eyes, which had been seriously contemplating his image in a hand mirror, f looded with the light of a totally unembarrassed smile.

"I'm Miss Cameron. Mr. Canfield assigned me to your department," Vera told him in cold, even tones—the impersonal voice which her favorite business women's magazine told her was the correct one for a private secretary to use toward her employer.

"Oh—are you?" The brilliant smile faded out of Jerry Macklyn's blue eyes as he took her in, noted the severe braids of her mousey brown hair, the unsmiling eyes behind horn-rimmed spectacles, the prim mouth, the austere black cloth suit, whose skirt chastely covered her legs.

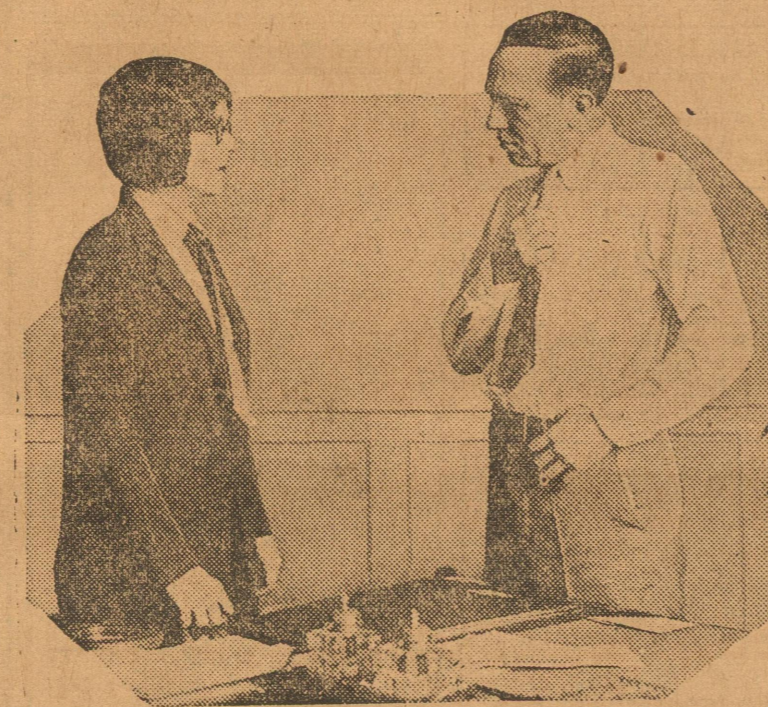

Vera flushed with anger for the second time that day at being appraised and dismissed by an impertinent, hopeful male.

"Of course you are! Glad to have you, Miss—er—Cameron, isn't it?" Jerry Macklyn recovered his confusion by reaching into an open drawer of his desk for a towel, with which he began to rub his cold-cream-ed cheek vigorously. "Just getting acquainted with our line," he grinned at her. "Sure a fancy layout, isn't it? Judas Priest! I didn't know you girls had to wade through all this truck before you were ready to make an appearance. Smells nice, doesn't it?" he asked sociably, the tip of his short, broad nose wriggling as he sniffed the perfumed air about him.

"The perfume used in our cosmetics retails at $8 an ounce," Vera informed him.

"Gosh! That right?" Jerry Macklyn finished scrubbing at his cold-cream-ed cheek and attacked his nose.

"A little of the cold cream rubbed into the lips will enable you to remove the rouge most effectively," Vera told him in even tones, which gave no hint of the desire to laugh which was almost upsetting her morale as a perfect private secretary.

"So you have never used any cosmetics except cleansing cream and face powder."

"Thanks for the tip," Jerry grinned cordially, but his eyes were wary and shy, as if he had begun to realize that this impeccable young woman did not approve of him at all. His thick forefinger dug into the opened cold cream jar, brought up a lump big enough to cleanse his entire face and neck. "Guess you know all the tricks, eh?"

"I don't use lip rouge," Vera answered primly.

"Good thing for our business that all girls aren't like you," Jerry mumbled at her through the towel with which he was removing the lather of cold cream tinted with lip rouge.

"What I mean," he added, as he noted the vivid pale, freckled face, "is that it's a good thing for us that a lot of girls need lip rouge."

He pulled back his chair, rose, rolled down his sleeves.

"Did I say I was glad to have you, Miss Cameron? We got a slew of work ahead of us. I asked for the clearest girl in the outfit and they told me that was you. Now, if you'll transfer your belongings from Benham's department to mine, we'll get down to business. By the way, I wish you'd bring me all the pamphlets and other descriptive matter you can lay your hands on. And a sales report showing the relative popularity of the different articles we put out, as well as a chart showing the relative profit. I've got to dope out a big national advertising campaign in double-quick time. And you're going to help me. I understand you know this business from A to Z."

While Vera was carrying out his instructions swiftly and accurately, she revised her first amused and contemptuous opinion of him. He was nobody's fool, and she sensed in his young body and the alert mind that gleamed through his brilliant blue eyes a capacity for work that more than matched her own. She would have to hustle to keep up with him, and that knowledge made her step buoyantly and swiftly.

When she returned to his office he was standing before the exhibit of Peach Bloom cosmetics which he had accumulated on his desk, his flaming head cocked to one side, hands thrust deep into his pockets, a quizzical, calculating gleam in his blue eyes.

"Pretty things, aren't they?" he challenged her. "These black and gold bottles and jars and boxes, with that single spray of peach blossoms are the finest things in the cosmetics line I've ever seen. Makes a girl feel pretty luxurious to dig a hunk of cold cream out of this, doesn't it?" He lifted a black, squat round jar and turned it admiringly in his big hands. "Dull gold top, a gold band around the bottom, and that embossed spray of peach blossoms that look so real, you want to pick 'em off and smell 'em. Ought to photograph like a million dollars, huh?"

"Here is a complete list of our products, Mr. Macklyn, with the comparative charts you asked for," Vera told him.

"Pretty names," he mused, as his bright eyes traveled rapidly down the list. "Peach Bloom Powder, in Blond, Brunet, Titian and Hazel shades—hazell! Guess that's your snide, isn't it, Miss Cameron? I'd take Titian, I suppose," his boyish laugh rang out. "If you hadn't interrupted me, caught me in the act of beautifying myself, I'd have tried it out. They've got the whole bag of tricks, haven't they—skin food, bleach, cleansing cream, hand lotion—what's this—Star Lash?"

"That is a mascara. It comes in both liquid and cake form, in four shades, blond, Titian, brown, and black. It is used to make the lashes look longer and thicker," Vera elucidated primly.

"Judas Priest! No wonder you girls are so irresistible. Tell you what, Miss Cameron, you write me a confidential report on our products, giving me the absolute low-down on 'em, from personal experience, I mean, and I promise nobody else will ever see it. Compare 'em with other brands. I like to know the truth about a line I'm writing copy for, so I can steer a clear of the rocks, if there are any. And while you're doing it, I'll cast my eagle eye over these booklets and the descriptive stuff they wrap around the jars. Got to get acquainted with the stuff right away."

Vera sat for a long time before her typewriter, her hands lying idle in her lap, her face suffused with color. Finally, as if in desperation, she ran a sheet of paper into the machine and began to type furiously. When she had finished, she tore the sheet from the machine and marched into Jerry Macklyn's private office.

"That's a absolutely all I know about Peach Bloom cosmetics from personal experience," she said crisply.

Jerry Macklyn picked up the sheet of paper, read its few lines at a glance, then surveyed Vera Cameron coolly and critically from the crowning braids of her head to the broad toes of her flat-heeled, orthopedic oxfords.

"So you have never used any cosmetics except cleansing cream and face powder," he said slowly. "Hm-m! Now how the devil am I going to know whether this truck is any good or not? Good Lord, I can't really try it out on myself, as I usually do a product I'm planning a campaign for."

He frowned, looked at her flushed face searchingly, then a wide grin stretched his boyish mouth. "I say, Miss Cameron, I've got a whale of an idea. You're my assistant, aren't you? Not just my secretary, but my assistant?"

"So Mr. Cantrell said," Vera answered, her voice trembling with anger. She was going to hate this impudent young red head—

"Now, listen, Miss Cameron. Bend an attentive ear—oh, gosh! you can't! I mean, you can't bend an ear!" he grinned at her, his blue eyes sparkling with wicked gleam. "Your ears are held down too tightly by that crown of yours. Say, I haven't seen a hair-dress like that since my sainted aunt went to her reward. Wait a minute! I apologize! Can't have you sore at me already! Say, this is my proposition. If this stuff," he waved toward the fascinating array of black and gold boxes and jars—"is one-tenth as good as Peach Bloom claims it is, then I can dope out the best doggone advertising campaign that ever hit this old town in the eye. With you!" he concluded triumphantly, pointing a forefinger at her with dramatic suddenness.

"I shall be glad to help," Vera admitted almost eagerly.

"Help! Why, you're going to be the star of this scenario, young woman!" Jerry Macklyn exclaimed. "You know what I'm going to do? I'm going to play Pygmalion to your Galatea—make a beauty out of you with Peach Bloom cosmetics, photograph you at every stage in the transformation, and use the whole bunch of photos in a smashing series of national advertising layouts that will simply knock 'em for a goal! You just wait—"

But Vera Cameron did not wait. With eyes blazing and cheeks aflame, she glared at him for one devastating moment, then turned and fled.

Vera quits her job, but something happens that makes her regret it. Read the next chapter.

World's Grandest Cemetery Seen In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—August tourists, trekking here to look upon the grandeur of the capital, are gazing first on the world's grandest cemetery as they step out of the railroad station.

Between the station and the Senate office building, just a couple of hundred yards from the Capitol itself and on the federal government's own ground, the Memorial Craftsmen of America are putting up their Art and Design Show, where the art of the tombstone designer goes into direct competition with the art of the architect responsible for the Washington Monument, the Capitol, the Congressional Library and the Lincoln Memorial.

Tombstones, tombs, monuments, headstones, footstones, urns and fancy crosses—everything that goes to make modern cemeteries, so artful—are set up in the exhibit, which is under canvas.

A thousand tons of stone are being used. It will be artistically scattered over grass plots with pebbled walks and interspersed with evergreen trees especially brought from President Coodege's home state to mark off the booths.

Senators and their secretaries for the past two or three weeks have been gazing out at the two big tents used to house the exhibits. Something akin to consternation may have struck them as workmen began to move the marble and granite in. Not many senators are here now, but the occasional one who faces a fight for re-election next year probably is glad that the funeral layout, which can be plainly seen from his window, is not permanent.

The exhibitors are mostly manufacturers, quarrymen and designers and the exhibit is meant for the retail trade, but it is open to the public and anyone who cares to march in and whose eye is subsequently struck by a particularly handsome tombstone will not find his business scorned.

The lot on which the million-dollar exhibit is being shown is part of the federal park system and is being devoted to commercial purposes for the first time. As co-custodians of the park land, Vice-president Dawes and Speaker Nicholas Longworth granted permission to the tombstone makers to make themselves at home on the property.

Foreign and American makers will both be represented.

The tombstone men insist that their convention must be taken seriously, but they do not object to nice, refined jokes like the one about the tourists mistaking the exhibit for a memorial to the last Congress and its hopes.

Eastland County Crop Conditions Not So Favorable

Eastland county crop conditions generally are not so good as they were two or three weeks ago. Cotton is needing rain, but with rain the boll weevil would increase its activities. This pest has already done, and is still doing much damage.

The grain sorghum, so far as early plantings are concerned, have matured while later plantings are being cut short to some extent by the dry weather.

Peanuts, except in a few scattered localities, will be cut to almost half a crop because of the lack of moisture unless rain comes within the next few days.

The hot dry weather is causing cotton to open. It is opening stoffly, however.

"GO UP, YOUNG MAN, GO UP" NEW SLOGAN SUPPLANTING GREELEY'S

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

AVIATION SERIES No. 6

WASHINGTON.—Commercial aviation offers "untold possibilities" for the coming generation, and the boys and young men of today will do well to consider this new industry in choosing their future work, according to Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. MacCracken, who is in charge of commercial aviation development for the department.

In an interview the air commerce head threw new light upon the industry's opportunities for the young men of the country, not only as pilots and fliers, but as directors and workers in the vast economic organization that will build itself up around aviation—as heads of air-lines, financiers of its expansion, scientists in its laboratories, engineers in its machine shops, as well as in various side-lines in which the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance man the architect, will have a part.

"A preceding generation," MacCracken said, "received from Horace Greeley this cryptic advice—'Go West, young man, go west.' Today the youth of the nation might well be advised 'Go up, young man, go up!'"

"Aeronautics undoubtedly offers untold possibilities for the coming generation. Those whose spirits respond to the appeal for pioneering can find nothing more fascinating than the opportunities in the field of commercial aeronautics. It requires not only the skilled pilot and the trained mechanic, but it also involves problems which those with many other talents will be called upon to solve."

MacCracken's advice for young men who intend to take up aviation as their life-work is to learn to fly, first, if possible, so that they may have a practical groundwork which will assist them in meeting the problems they will face.

"Air transportation and commercial service must be sold," he explained. "The salesman who himself is a pilot, other things being equal, will far exceed his competitor whose knowledge of aeronautics has been gained from books."

"The same holds true of the financier. Commercial aviation is just entering a transition period in finance. The real aeronautical financiers will be found in the next generation, and the man with practical knowledge of aircraft and their operation who also understands principles of finance, will be best fitted to handle these transactions, which are bound to be of the first magnitude."

MacCracken turned for a brief glimpse, into the various related professions which will have a part in aviation of the future, emphasizing still the value of practical flying experience.

"Already," he said, "some insurance men are specializing in aviation insurance. Because of lack of practical knowledge of aviation, they have made some mistakes, and they are at the present time groping, more or less, in the dark."

"A quarter of a century ago, insurance companies looked askance at the automobile, and if it had not been for the fact that a large portion of the insurance executives owned and operated automobiles, the development of this type of insurance would not have reached its present proportions."

MacCracken spoke of other old and well-established professions which will have their part in aviation of the future.

"Among the professional men," he said, "aviation medicine and air law present new specialties. Even the architect will have to give heed not only to the design of airport buildings, but also to the appearance of all his buildings from the air."

The future executives of large air-lines probably will come largely from the ranks of those who have had flying experience as young men, in MacCracken's opinion.

"Administrative and operating problems of commercial aviation," he explained, "are unlike those of any other means of transportation. For a time many of these executives will have had their early training in other fields of endeavor, but in the future a large percentage of them will be men who have come up from the ranks."

"The man who has as a background for his particular specialty the knowledge and experience of the air pilot will have a distinct advantage over one lacking this training."

MacCracken closed with this startling prediction of the future:

"There is no doubt but that the political and economic history of the world during the next generation will be affected more by aeronautical development than the political and economic history of this country has been affected during the past century by the development of rail transportation."

Foremen Urged To Be At Safety Meeting Friday

Foremen and gang pushers of all companies are requested to attend the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association's Safety meeting at the High school auditorium, Ranger, on August 19, at 7:30 o'clock.

"The foreman's place in accident prevention work," will be discussed by D. J. Wallace of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Mr. Wallace is safety director of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association and C. L. Hightower, with the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company, is chairman of the arrangements committee for the Safety meeting to be held here Friday night.

H. P. Earnest of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, Ranger, who is vitally interested in safety is co-operating with the chairman in an effort to have a good representation of foremen and gang pushers at this meeting.

The Safety Section has been doing fine work in the Oklahoma fields, and these foremen's meetings at frequent intervals are helping to reduce the number of accidents in the oil fields.

IN THE COURTS.

Three Months Old Pullets Lay Eggs With Double Yolk

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Donley, who live on the Strawn Road, near Ranger, are recent converts to poultry raising and are very much pleased over the success that is crowning their efforts. Mrs. Donley reports that some English White Leghorn pullets, bought when one day old and hatched on March second, laid their first eggs three months and eleven days after they were hatched. The eggs had double yolks.

Mrs. Donley says that the pullets are laying better every day and that they were not fed to lay but fed to grow, on regular chicken growing feed.

The pullets are unusually heavy, weighing 6-12 pounds each.
