RANGER WOMAN KILLED BY CAR ON HIGHWAY

BRITISH DELEGATES WILL RETURN TO ARMAMENT CONFERENCE

IS CROSSING ROAD ON WAY TO NEW HOME

Another Automobile Swerves Into Ditch In Avoiding Crash

A tragedy that appalled Ranger occurred at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening, when Mrs. Ella Thompson, 61, wife of M. Thompson, while crossing the highway about a quarter of a mile west of Ranger was struck by a west bound automobile, owned by Carl Maynard of Ranger and driven by Miss Elva Richardson, 18 year old daughter of Marvin Richardson, who lives near Ranger. The aged woman received injuries that resulted in her death at 11:45 o'clock Friday night at the City-County Hospital, where she was taken a few minutes after the accident.

Her daughter, Mrs. Rosa Mixon of Olden and Mrs. C. W. Hargraves of Ranger, were with her when the accident occurred, but escaped being hit.

Mrs. Mixon and Hargraves were calling on Mrs. Thompson. Recently she and her husband had built and furnished a little home across the highway and she wanted the visitors to go over with her to see her furniture.

According to Carl Maynard, he and Miss Richardson, who is said to be a good driver, were traveling at about twenty-five miles an hour and headed toward Eastland on the right hand side of the road. He stated that Miss Richardson was driving the car, and that he saw three women standing in the road, as if confused and that he took hold of the steering wheel and threw the car to the left as far as he could so as to avoid hitting them, and tried to take the ditch, but it seemed that one of them

Mercedes to Get Natural Gas For Use This Winter

MERCEDDES, July 23.—Natural gas will be available here this fall, it was announced by officials of the Rio Grande Valley Gas company, following the delivery of a franchise to them by city officials.

The franchise is similar in form to others held by the company along the Missouri Pacific railway.

Vast Throngs Visited Cisco at Lake Opening

Ranger and the rest of West Texas turned out en masse to celebrate the formal opening of Laciaco swimming pool and the dedication of the bridge that spans the Cisco Dam, Friday night.

Miss Lella Robertson of Clyde, was acclaimed the queen of the Bathing Beauty Revue, which was participated in by many West Texas beauties.

Miss Eulalia Gavit "Miss Brady" was second and Miss Genevieve Lyon, who was entered as Miss Kleinman of Cisco was third.

Miss Ella Joy Ingram "Miss Ranger" was met with a loud round of applause as she appeared on the walk that led to the golden horseshoe over the lake, around which the entrants walked, pranced or danced, pausing for a moment before the judges boat for their inspection.

"Miss Ranger" was also among those who made a second appearance before the judges but was eliminated in the final decision.

"Miss Fort Worth" and "Miss Dallas" were popular entrants and while not in the judging received much applause as they made their round of the brilliant horseshoe.

Gives Air Party

Theatre parties and dinner dances are quite antique these days. Miss Helen M. Walker of Detroit, recently treated her friends to a flying party over Detroit in a Ford plane. Oh, Yes! A good time was had by all.

MASONIC LODGE IS IN TURMOIL IN OKLAHOMA

Reports Say One Faction Would Expel Governor Johnston, Home Lodge Rallies To Aid

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 23.—The Oklahoma City Times said Saturday that members of Governor Henry S. Johnston's home Masonic Lodge at Perry, had rallied to his support in an attempt to halt an effort to expel the governor from the order because of his refusal to discharge Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, his confidential secretary.

The Times printed resolutions purported to have been passed by the Perry Lodge number 78 A. P. and A. M. in a late meeting Friday night. It said the Perry Lodge specifically repudiated "this clandestine and illegitimate attempt to use our fraternity for a purpose so reprehensible."

The same newspaper said copies of the lengthy resolution in which the members of the Perry lodge charged a scheme to injure the governor through manipulation of the Masonic order was well under way, were forwarded to the governor and grand master and grand secretary of the order.

The Times further asserts "for many weeks, whispers have been heard that a certain element in the fraternal order has been agitating a movement to bring about the expulsion of the governor from the grand lodge."

N. A. T. Has Woman Passenger, First One From Dallas

DALLAS, July 23.—Miss Edwena Harris, secretary to Charles B. Braun division traffic manager of the National Air Transport, Inc., took off this morning for Chicago. She is the first member of the fair sex to make the air trip to the windy city in the passenger planes of the N. A. T.

She will be joined in Kansas City by Miss Florence Littler, who is employed in the N. A. T. office in that city. The two girls will spend their vacation in Chicago and return by air.

Miss Harris said that she was "just thrilled to death" as she stepped aboard the Travelair plane.

Believe Jealousy Prompted Killing Fort Worth Bride

FORT WORTH, July 23.—Jealousy was believed to have been the motive for the killing Friday of Mrs. Myrtle Patz, 37 year old bride of a week, by Ad Harrison, 47, who ended his own life after shooting Mrs. Patz to death.

Harrison, fireman on the T. & B. V. railroad, and roomer at Mrs. Patz's home, shot the woman with her own gun while her husband, Amos E. Patz, Bakersfield, California, stood a few feet away and witnessed the tragedy.

Harrison then turned the gun toward his heart and fired.

LINDBERGH HAS BAD WEATHER IN NEW ENGLAND

Forced By Heavy Fog at Concord After Several Attempts to Make It to Boston, Landing Is Safe

By United Press.

CONCORD, New Hampshire, July 23.—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh, after being lost for several hours in his plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, unable to land in a dense fog, came to the ground here safely at 6 p. m. today.

Thousands who had gathered at the airfield near Portland, Me., to welcome him from that city to Boston on the fourth leg of his national air tour waited in vain while Lindbergh battled doggedly against odds which must have surprised any he encountered on his memorable New York to Paris flight.

Lindbergh was due here late tomorrow on the fifth leg of his tour but adverse weather brought him here 24 hours ahead of his schedule.

The Spirit of St. Louis was not damaged in the landing. Lindbergh arrived over Concord about 5:30 p. m. He circled the city several times and then apparently decided to try and return to Boston. Evidently he found the weather too tricky for comfort, for he returned a short time later and made a perfect landing at the Concord air field.

He was taken to the home of another Colonel, Chas. A. Mason, where he will spend the night.

Coolidge Party Goes Fishing To McKelvie Lodge

MYSTIC S. D., July 23.—President Coolidge brought his Washington party of 85 white house attaches newspaper men and photographers up to Sam McKelvie's fishing lodge near here today to let them see that he really can fish.

Since the president took out fishing at Paul Smith last year he has insisted that all photographers and newspapermen remain away and all information concerning his angling exploits have come from secret service men and friends.

He has maintained that privacy out here.

This time, however, Mr. Coolidge has agreed that photographers may take his picture in action and newspaper men may bring their portable typewriters to write up his dexterity with rod and reel.

Elbe Valley Gets Second Flood In Fort Night

BERLIN, July 23.—Torrents of rain in the Elbe river valley today brought suffering to thousands who had just begun to recover from the effects of a flood a fortnight ago, dispatches received here from Whittenberg said.

The Elbe was overflowing with grave damage in the valley especially the central section of the river.

During the floods two weeks ago one hundred and sixty persons were killed.

Disastrous Flood Hits Sections Of Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 23.—One of the worst floods in the history of this section of Pennsylvania swept practically all of Perry and the upper section of Dauphin county following a cloudburst early today.

A conservative estimate of damages indicated that the losses would run well above the million dollar mark.

The Williamsport division of the Pennsylvania railroad was hard hit and all traffic was at a standstill.

As far as could be learned this morning no lives have been lost.

HAVE CLEAR IDEA WHAT ENGLAND WANTS

Cabinet Has Approved Action Of Delegates At Late Conference

By United Press.

LONDON, July 23.—The British delegation will return to the naval armament conference at Geneva next Thursday. Heartened by the cabinet's approval of its action at the conference and ready to break the cruise deadlock if a way can be found without sacrificing her cruiser demands.

Further discussion was scheduled over the week end between Chas. Bridgeman, First Lord of Admiralty and head of the delegation, Lord Cecil and other delegates and admiralty advisers.

As a result of yesterday's three-hour conference with the cabinet the British delegates will return to Geneva with a clear understanding of the concession, if any, it may make and the limit beyond which the government feels it is impossible or unwise to go.

FEDERATION DECLARES FOR PEACE

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The Pan-American Federation of Labor today reiterated its hostility to communism and pledged itself to work for preservation of peace between the United States and Mexico.

The federation delegates in congress here adopted a report of the resolutions committee and findings of the executive committee declaring, "the communist international proclaims itself committed to the philosophy of dictatorship and autocracy which cannot be otherwise than in conflict with freedom and democracy, a gallant foe we might respect but for this foe we have only enmity and contempt."

Chicago Baby Is Fast Recovering From Pneumonia

CHICAGO, July 23.—Artificial respiration today had apparently saved the life of two year old Albert Katzen, who has been suffering a month with pneumonia.

For almost 48 hours doctors despaired of his life as the boy was unable to breathe and owing to infected lungs could not receive oxygen.

Through the regular manner. Doctors formed an artificial breathing tube through his back.

The boys lungs have now started to heal and doctors say that even the necessity of treating the baby with oxygen is growing less. They expressed belief he will soon recover.

Two Workmen Are Believed Buried As Building Falls

PORTLAND, Ore., July 23.—Two workmen are believed to have been buried and smothered to death when an up-town business building being remodeled collapsed here this afternoon.

All available fire and police equipment was rushed to the scene and crews are working frantically to release the prisoners.

GIRL FALLS IN LAKE, SAVED BY GRANDFATHER

Adrienne Flurry of Eastland Has Narrow Escape From Drowning In Lake Kemp Near Wichita Falls

By United Press.

Little Miss Adrienne Flurry, 10-year-old daughter of Judge and Mrs. R. B. Truly of Eastland and who was a pupil the past school season at the west ward school in Eastland narrowly escaped drowning in Lake Kemp, fifty miles above Wichita Falls, Tuesday.

Adrienne, with a number of other children, were in bathing while other members of their families were watching the launching of a big motor boat which Adrienne's uncle was placing on the lake, when she suddenly slipped into deep water and sank. The father of some other children made an attempt to rescue Adrienne but being unable to swim, had to abandon his efforts in order to save his own life.

Judge Truly, who is 70 years of age, saw what was happening and dived into the lake from where he was standing on the bank some fifteen feet from where Adrienne sank. Although the water was more than 10 feet deep, Judge Truly immediately brought Adrienne to the surface where other parties got hold of her and brought her to the shore.

After a few minutes of resuscitation methods Adrienne fully recovered and apparently was none the worse for the experience that came so near costing her life. Judge Truly suffered no ill effects from his experience.

Judge and Mrs. Truly who have been visiting relatives in Wichita Falls for the past ten days, returned Friday night to Eastland. Misses Sybil and Genevieve Truly of Eastland who are on their vacation left Wichita Falls Friday for Eureka Springs, Ark.

Funeral of King Ferdinand Has Been Postponed

BUCHAREST, July 23.—Thousands of Roumanians, city folk and peasants, today swarmed toward Cotroceni palace where lay in state the body of King Ferdinand.

Inside the palace dim lights shrouded the golden room. The coffin was surrounded by flowers and was watched over by a guard of honor. Ferdinand's crown, his marshal Baton and fur cap lay on two purple cushions resting at the head of the coffin.

Burial will be at the monastery at Curtea De Argesch. The funeral services will be held tomorrow, having been postponed a day because of inability of some of the late ruler's relatives to arrive today.

Department of Justice Investigating Movies

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The motion picture industry, headed by Will Hays is under investigation by the justice department for possible violations of anti-trust laws.

Many complaints to the department have charged the industry guided by Hays as having violated both the Sherman anti-trust act and the Clayton act.

Officials of the department admitted a thorough investigation of the allegations is being made. They said such federal procedure is confidential and therefore they could not discuss it for publication.

Upon the results of the investigation however, Attorney General Sargent will decide whether to bring suit against the movie companies. Sargent is now in Vermont where he has spent much of this summer.

The federal trade commission has already cited the Famous Players Lasky corporation for unfair trade practices and ordered it to desist. A court battle to annual the order has been indicated by the company.

Sets Air Mark

Lieutenant Byron J. Connell of the Pacific fleet aircraft squadron took a PN-10 seaplane into the air the other day, carrying a weight of 5500 pounds and remained aloft 11 hours, 7 minutes and 18 seconds, covering a distance of 947.58 miles. It was a new air record, shattering the old mark held by an Italian pilot who remained aloft 5 hours 41 minutes and 1 seconds under the same conditions.

Major Walker tried to bring together warring leaders of the Amalgamated association of street and electric railway employees and the officials of the two subway companies, but Frank Hedley, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company refused to attend the meeting. Hedley said so few of the Interborough Rapid Transit men were members of the association, threatening a strike that it was unnecessary for this company to be represented.

PREPARATIONS ARE RUSHED FOR COURTNEY HOP

Wireless Odjstment About Finished. Only Wait Then Will Be On Fair Weather

CALSHOTT NAVAL BASE, South Hampton, England, July 23.—Wireless adjustment on the Dornier-Napier flying boat in which Captain Frank T. Courtney will attempt a flight to New York by way of Ireland and New Foundland probably will be completed today.

After that the time of departure will depend upon favorable weather conditions.

Captain Courtney will be ready for the start at the first opportunity. He said this morning he was confident he would be able to go within the next few days.

Two Spectators Hit by Foul Balls In Dallas Park

DALLAS, July 23.—The inability of Hack Miller, Dallas outfielder and home run leader "to straighten out" his clouts Friday, almost ended disastrously for the grand stand.

A foul ball from Miller's bat in the fifth inning of the Steers game with Houston fell on Mrs. Jim Riley's head. She is the wife of the Dallas first baseman. The blow raised a welt on her head and she was given medical attention.

An inning later, a foul ball struck a man in the face.

Valley Cotton Is Short But Price Above Last Year

WESLACO, Texas, July 23.—Cotton production in Hidalgo county and most of the lower Rio Grande valley will approximate only 60 percent of the 1926 crop, according to reports from ginners of this section.

Prices, however, will be considerably higher than a year ago. Some of the present crop is bringing as much as 20 cents a pound as compared with 11 and 12 cents last year.

More than 2,500 bales have been ginned at local gins thus far this season and the cotton season is in full swing.

The long drought late this spring is attributed as the cause of the short crop this year.

MAYOR TRIES TO RESTORE PEACE IN RANKS

Threatened Strike Would Cripple City Traffic Seriously

By United Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The peace making efforts of Mayor James Walker apparently was the only thing that stood tonight between the city's six million people and a transit fight that might cripple the city.

Employees of the two great subway systems and the elevated lines have threatened to strike at midnight Tuesday in a controversy over "company unions" and union recognition.

The heads of the workers went into conference with Mayor Walker at the city hall this afternoon and the mayor attempted to persuade them not to walk out.

Major Walker tried to bring together warring leaders of the Amalgamated association of street and electric railway employees and the officials of the two subway companies, but Frank Hedley, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company refused to attend the meeting. Hedley said so few of the Interborough Rapid Transit men were members of the association, threatening a strike that it was unnecessary for this company to be represented.

FROM THE BIBLE
OUR DAILY NEED:—Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Jehovah my rock, and my redeemer. Psalm 19:14.
PRAYER:—O Lord, send us daily help from the sanctuary, and

BETTER CROPS
 According to an estimate made by J. C. Patterson, Eastland county agricultural agent, this county will make more cotton this year than was produced here last year and this in spite of a smaller acreage planted to the staple and more or less infestation by boll weevils and cotton fleas.

This should be interesting news to every man in Eastland county, for it is almost a foregone certainty that the cotton farmers this year will get a much better price for their cotton than they did last year.

Eastland county is producing more of practically every kind of farm products this year than it did last year. Not because there are so many more farmers, not because there is more acreage planted, but because the farmers of Eastland county are farming more scientifically each year. More scientific methods are being employed this year than were employed last year and still more will be in use in the county next year.
 There are also more balanced farming programs being carried out this year than were carried out last year.
 These all make for better farming.

About forty farmers, most of them boys and girls, and we call them farmers because they are farmers in the making, leave Eastland county today for the agricultural short course at A. & M. College. These will bring back a great many ideas on improved farming. These will be put into use next year in nearly every community in the county and will bear fruit in the way of increased crops, better live stock on the farm and better methods of marketing farm products.

Barring decidedly unfavorable climatic conditions this county should produce considerably more on its farms next year than will be produced this year.

MORE ACCIDENTS
 Deaths and serious injuries from accidents, many of which are easily avoidable continue at an alarming rate throughout Texas, according to the Texas Council of Safety. And as might be expected the automobile continues the main source of accidents.

According to this council there were a total of 80 persons killed in Texas during the week from July 8 to July 15. Of this number, nine, or nearly one-third of them were killed by automobiles. Eight were caused from drowning, four from firearms, three from falls, three by railway trains and three from all other causes. During the same week there were 116 injuries which did not prove fatal and 70 of these were caused by automobiles.

Until the strict licensing of automobile drivers is commenced we may expect a continuance of this high death rate from automobile accidents. Every driver of a car should be licensed and there should be an age limit under which driving will not be permitted under any conditions. Until this or an equally effective remedy is introduced, backed up by severe penalties we may expect a high death rate from auto accidents.

CISCO'S CELEBRATION
 The city of Cisco staged a really wonderful celebration Friday in the dedication of its big bathing pool and other major projects.

Few cities in Texas a dozen times
 the size of Cisco have undertaken such a stupendous program as has this little city. The beautiful lake is an asset of which any city in the Southwest should be proud and the bathing pool when completed will probably have an equal nowhere in the country.
 The city of Cisco has spent a vast amount of money in building its big dam, constructing the bathing beach and in making other improvements at this new pleasure resort. If there be those in this section of the state who have not visited the resort they should do so at once. It is a revelation of what can be done by a community that has a common purpose in view and works for the accomplishment of that purpose.

This resort has been the dream of the people of Cisco for years past.
 They have visioned it by day and by night and they have planned and worked diligently for the realization of their dream.

It is a credit to the foresight, ability and determination of the people of our sister city.

RANGER WOMAN KILLED BY CAR ON HIGHWAY

was in front of the car before he could stop.
 A Dodge car following Maynard's car, said to belong to the Bridgeport Machinery Company, and driven by Geo. H. Freze, was completely demolished when in order to prevent further casualties, the driver took a chance by taking the ditch and his car turned over twice, according to Mr. Freze, who saw the accident as his car approached behind Maynard's car, the woman seemed to have become confused. Neither he nor his companion, N. J. Hatten received serious injuries.

Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Hargraves had hold of the mother's arm and had stepped out on the highway, when they saw the lights of the approaching car and stopped and according to C. W. Hargraves, they thought that all three had stopped when they saw Mrs. Thompson still going.

The injured woman suffered a broken left arm and one leg was crushed from the knee to the ankle.

Surviving are her husband, M.
 Thompson, watchman at the Texas-
 Pacific yards, three sons, Chas.
 Thompson of Ranger, and Tom and Louis Thompson of Humble, four daughters, Mrs. Rosa Nixon of Olden, Mrs. Ellen Carter, Mrs. Ellen Har-

WAR AGAINST ILLITERACY IN PHILIPPINES HAMPERED

By United Press.
MANILA.—The National Supreme council's ambitious program for banishing illiteracy from the Philippines has fallen away to a skeleton of its former robust proportions.

The Council is an amalgamation of the leaders of the two political parties, Nacionalista and Democrat, and is essentially political. In the haste and excitement of its formation a year ago, the National Committee on Education was born.

Volunteers were recruited in all municipalities and barriers for the purpose of organizing classes and putting a rudimentary education within reach of persons beyond the school age. How far the plan was carried out will never be known.

In large centers it gained considerable impetus but lacked the central directing force necessary to keep it going. The Filipino Teachers Federation in rushing to the rescue and an effort will be made to remove the plan from the shaky political structure of the Council and shelter it within the Federation.

Evangelist Of Angelus Temple Takes Charge

By United Press.
LOS ANGELES, July 23.—Aimee Semple McPherson has resumed active charge of Angelus Temple and her mother will "take a long rest, possibly in Alaska," the evangelist announced today.

The announcement lent credence to the report that Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy have split, although the evangelist denied the breach was of any consequence. "Any differences which have arisen were of minor importance," she said "differences mainly of opinion over details of management."

"There is no war between factions and no split between my mother and myself."

Rumors of trouble between the famous evangelist and her mother based largely on purported financial disagreements have circulated at frequent intervals since the kidnapping in which Mrs. McPherson was the principal.

Ex-Students Of Ranger High To Hold Reunion

Plans for the reunion of the 1926 graduating class of the Ranger high school are well under way and letters and checks for dinner-dance reservations are coming in from different parts of the state. The reunion will be held on Friday evening, July 29. It is thought that at least 45 ex-students of Ranger High will be present.

A committee met in Breckenridge Wednesday evening and made further plans, deciding to admit only those who were graduates of the '26 class, sponsor and faculty members.

The committee will meet Sunday evening to complete plans for the event which will be the first of its kind held in Ranger and be done on a big scale.
 A president and secretary will be elected with a view to holding the affair annually.
 All former classmates not living in Ranger will be entertained in homes of Ranger students.

El Paso Signing Up Mail Poundage For Air Mail Line

EL PASO, July 23.—A campaign to sign up guarantees of mail poundage for the proposed air mail line between El Paso and Denver has been started here by the chamber of commerce.

The city must guarantee to buy $192 worth of air mail stamps daily in order to get the line in addition a landing field must be provided.

It is hoped to persuade the Mexican government or business interests in Mexico to establish a line between here and the Mexican capital. This would give a supply of mail from the southern republic to help fill the El Paso quota. Eight hundred letters came to El Paso from Mexico last month, it was said, for air mail delivery in the United States.

With the inauguration of air mail it would not be long before passenger service could be started, according to plans. The fare for a trip from this city to Denver would be about $35.

I told you so.
I told you that Jack was going to win, didn't I.

That goes to prove that I am a good sport writer and know my stuff. To be honest about it, though, I must confess that I thought the other Jack was going to win.

I notice in the papers where the Dent people are going to build another crop of shows. They threatened to do that in Ranger last winter, but they must have got cold feet or all the free publicity they wanted one.

At that the Lamb got its usual winter overhauling consisting of painting the ladies rest room.

You should ought to watch the "Do You Know?" column in the upper right hand corner of page one, this paper. It said last week something about West Texas having the only rubber plant in the country or something like that. Which reminds me of a story.

One guy said to another, "My girl's feet are sore from walking so much, what shall I get for her?"
Guy Number 2 said, "Rub her feet."
Guy number one said, "Where do you buy them?"

Guy number 2 in a sort of a retaliative spirit, "My wife has just sued me for divorce."
Guy number one said, "Liquor?"
Guy number 2 said, "No, she licked me."

In explanation of why there was no gripes Friday, we offer the excuse that we were too busy. We wouldn't even do that but we have been asked that question several times already.
Many of our readers were looking to us for an explanation of how Dempsey won and if it really was a foul or what. Of course, we couldn't say, but if we was going to fight either of those guys we wouldn't use boxing gloves. We would have the championship duel with axes and stand 60 paces apart as Abie Shaw would say.

We would like to compliment whoever is responsible for keeping the grass watered on the high school lawn. It looks 900 per cent better than we ever thought it would.

Guess you noticed about that petition to move the court house to Caribon. Why not move it back to Meriman where it used to be a long time ago? Anyway, why move it at all? Eastland without a courthouse would be like a shirt without a collar or a ship without a sail.

Rickard Says It Will Be Dempsey And Gene Tunney

By United Press.
NEW YORK, July 23.—Tex Rickard formally designated Jack Dempsey as the next opponent of Gene Tunney, heavy weight champion and incidentally announced that 2,000 applications for tickets already had been received at Madison Square Garden.

The date and place of the title bout will be made before Aug. 5.
It is certain however that the fight will be held in Chicago in September.

CISCO MAN LOSES GRIP ON VISIT TO RANGER

J. G. Werneburg, a native of Germany, but who for the past 50 years has lived in Cisco, called at the Times office, Ranger, Saturday afternoon and said on Friday night he stopped on the streets of Ranger to listen to a Salvation Army service. He left a black grip filled with bottles of medicine and some other things in someone's business house on the left hand side of the street, while he attended the service.

When he returned the door was closed and on Saturday morning he could not locate the place. He wants his grip very much and any one finding it will kindly return it to this office.

FISHERMEN RETURN FROM LAKE KEMP, LUCK POOR

Fishermen four returned to Ranger Saturday from Lake Kemp. They reported they had lots of fishing but few fish and that the fish "passed us up this time." However, they report a pleasant outing. The party was composed of Raymond Teal, W. W. Housewright, Morris Leveille and Ed Maher.

Storage Battery Proves Worth In European Flight

"The recent trans-atlantic flight of Commander Byrd in quest of scientific data regarding weather and flying conditions has again proved," says Mr. J. S. Reynolds, the local Exide dealer, "the superiority of storage batteries for the operation of radio equipment under severe and unusual conditions."

"Further evidence was given as proof of the valuable and important role that radio, with the aid of storage batteries, will play in the development of trans-oceanic flight, when Lts. Maitland and Hagenberger in their Army plane spanned the wide Pacific in their flight to Honolulu."

"As Commander Byrd's flight was purely a search for scientific information he was able to equip the giant Fokker monoplane "America" with complete radio receiving and broadcasting apparatus, including Exide batteries."

"Severe storms were encountered in mid-ocean; throughout practically the entire trip. Byrd was forced to fly his plane through thick fogs—the greatest obstacle to trans-oceanic flight. It was while flying blindly through these fogs that radio proved its greatest value. With it, Byrd was able to keep in almost constant communication with the outside world. By radio messages to ships he was able to hold his course through the fog."

"Incidentally, the S. O. S. radio distress signal which Byrd flashed in his vain attempt to prevent a disastrous landing, was the first message of its kind ever sent from a distressed airplane. The radio and storage batteries stuck to their job until the end of the flight."

SPORTS, ODDS AND ENDS

DUTCH TENNIS TEAM

By United Press.
THE HAGUE—The Dutch Lawn Tennis Union has announced that the Dutch team which took part in the Wimbledon Tournament has accepted the invitation of William T. Tilden to visit the United States and to participate in the forthcoming American National Lawn Tennis Championships. The Union has granted 3,000 guilders to defray the expenses of the trip.

The team representing Holland is composed by Miss Kea Bouman, the Dutch champion and also the hard-court champion of France; Hens Timmer and C. Bryan, Davis Cup players.

In the Wimbledon play the Dutch team was greatly bothered by the grass courts, having been accustomed to the hard-courts of Holland. In the men's doubles, Bryan and Timmer defeated the German players, Otto Froitzheim and Oscar Kreuzer, and reached the last sixteen. But they were then beaten by the English brothers-in-law, H. W. "Bunny" Austin and Randolph Lycett.

Timmer gave a good account of himself in the Wimbledon matches only going down to defeat in the singles before the powerful strokes of the Frenchman, J. Borotra, in a fight for a place in the semi-finals. The score was 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0. Miss Bouman reached the last sixteen in the women's singles being eliminated by Miss Joan Fry. This defeat came as a great surprise as the Dutch star had been expected to win. The score was 2-6, 6-4, 9-7. Miss Fry was in turn eliminated by Miss Helen Wilks by 6-3, 6-1.

In the mixed-doubles, however, the Dutch players did not fare so well and the combination of Miss Bouman and Timmer was put out of the running by the Frenchman Jacques Brugnon and the English star, Miss E. L. Golyer. The score for this match was 6-2, 4-0, 6-4.

The mettle of Bryan, who enjoys an excellent reputation in Holland, was not really indicated in the Wimbledon tournament as he scratched in the singles.

GREYHOUND RACING

By United Press.
LONDON—Greyhound racing in the evening has captivated the people of London and the new sport threatens to give keen competition to the night-life of the West End. The first race was attended by some 20,000 spectators and the enthusiastic crowds continue to throng the course every evening that the dogs are run. The chief officials appear in evening dress wearing high silk-hats and the spectators for the most part are dressed as when they go to the theatre or to the opera. The London women are as keen as the men over this sport which is new for England.

Plane Factories In U. S. Number 89 All Kept Busy

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, July 23.—Flying, although not generally recognized as a profitable and established industry, has assumed nationwide proportions in the last few years. Eighty-nine airplane factories, located all over the nation, are listed in a report of a commerce department survey just completed.

The survey disclosed a network of aviation schools, taxi services, airplane makers and distributors over the country apparently large enough to cope with the heralded interest and increased participation in commercial aviation resulting from the Lindbergh Chamberlin, Byrd and Maitland-Hogchberger transoceanic flights.

In addition to the civil aviation increases, army and navy flying applications are reported to have increased heavily. The army has just tightened its requirements for aviators in an attempt to obtain the best flyers and make training more efficient, while both services are ordering large quantities of new planes.

Eight universities now are giving aviation courses, specializing in technology and ground training, in addition to some 175 commercial training schools of various sizes and classes.

The eight universities are: New York University (Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, California Institute of Technology, Leland Stanford University of California, Massaachusetts Institute of Technology, the College of Engineering of New York University, the University of Washington, the University of Michigan, Purdue University of Lafayette, Ind.,

and the College of Engineering of the University of Detroit.

Approximately 90 airplane distributors, 12 airplane motor companies, and 100 accessory dealers, also were listed in the civil aviation survey.

Thirty-seven aviation companies engaged in advertising, through stunts and sky-writing, were found.

More than 300 companies engaged in "air service"—consisting of taxi, passenger and express service not on scheduled routes, were listed. This of course, was in addition to the 16 large companies operating airmail routes for the government.

The business of "dusting" cotton from planes, to kill pests which menace the crop, has resulted in establishment of four concerns in Louisiana, Texas and Tennessee.

Twelve insurance companies now handle aviation insurance.

A half-dozen aeronautical publications are in existence including a directory and a yearbook of aviation.

Five lighter-than-air companies are listed, two at Hammondsport, N. Y., and one each at Detroit, Akron and Aurora, Ill.

Three companies make aviation clothing, six make fabric for planes, three specialize in flying goggles, nearly 20 make night-flying lighting equipment, 14 make instruments, and one of Henry Ford's Detroit companies also makes mooring masts.

Eleven companies make propellers, three make parachutes, and three each are devoted to supercharges for engines and wheels. Twelve companies make wind indicators, for airports, to help flyers in landing.

HELPING FOLKS TO OSEE SNAKES IS HIS BUSINESS

By United Press.
BARABOO, Wis., July 23.—Elmer C. Keitel is engaged in one of Wisconsin's most peculiar industries, enabling persons in all parts of the country to see snakes.

His activity, while not enviable, is regarded locally as being honorable and is not to be confused with that of the purveyors of illicit spirits, a much more crowded field of business.

Keitel roams the Baraboo bluffs securing specimens of the many varieties of snakes to be found there. These he supplies to museums, showmen, and biologists. Recently he shipped 53 live snakes of many different kinds ranging from a tiny specimen about the size of an earthworm to a six foot bull snake, the collection going to a public museum. At present he is filling an order calling for six each of six different stages of the embryo or unborn young of the rattlesnake.

Navy Denies Los Angeles Will Fly To Hawaii Soon

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Naval officials denied today that the dirigible Los Angeles would make a flight from its hangar at Lakehurst to the Pacific coast and thence to the Hawaiian islands.

"No such flight is contemplated in the near future," it was said although Secretary Wilber has been considering the plan.

The navy dirigible is now undergoing repairs.

It seems Great Britain and a few of the others are considerably off their naval bases.

WOULD PEDAL HIS WAY ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN

LONDON.—To pedal a 12-foot boat from London to New York in 40 days is the ambition of William Oldham of Warrington, England.

Carrie, as the little boat is christened, was built by Oldham in three years. It was made entirely of steel.

Similar to a submarine in appearance the vessel is propelled by a two bladed screw driven by the feet or hands on the same principal as a pedal cycle. A metal windmill geared by chains works the power shaft.

The craft will carry only two persons, but there will not be space for fulllength sleeping. The boat contains six water tight compartments and four windows with a "conning tower" from which Oldham will navigate his vessel when weather permits.

A Great Companion Invention to the Super-Six Principle -

Turns waste heat to power

This new companion invention to the Super-Six Principle converts heat wasted in all other types, into useful power.

Together they combine the highest efficiency in power generation, and the maximum efficiency in power transmission ever achieved within our knowledge. It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

Steam Engine Smoothness and Power

The new Hudson motor delivers a flood of rugged power from standing start closely resembling the mighty and elastic power of the steam engine. Yet at all speeds this power is buoyant, vivacious and instantly answerable to the lightest touch of the throttle. In it are combined all advantages of speed, snap and performance of the high compression motor, with the smooth flexibility of low compression type.

Spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated. Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels. By Hudson's method of vaporizing raw gasoline that enters the combustion chamber, oil dilution is prevented, and heat formerly wasted through the exhaust becomes useful power.

In all ways today's Hudson is the greatest ever produced. And it is natural that its public reception surpasses anything in Hudson history.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of Elise Marprey, an American girl who owns and lives on property adjoining the queer little jungle-bordered town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of one of her foremen. Her two-year-old nephew is kidnapped and is found again, largely through the efforts of Vilak, who is known in Porto Verde as Attorney Davis. Elise's lawyer, Vilak, has sent for Lincoln Nunnally, elderly American chemist, to help him get at the bottom of the mystery.

They are ignorant of the cause of this hostility toward Elise but suspect that a man named Gaylord Prentiss, a reticent and forbidding character, is somehow involved.

Word is brought to Elise that the manager of her property at Villapa is desperately ill and must see her at once. Vilak suspects a trick and he insists that he and Nunnally accompany her.

On the road to Villapa they are ambushed by a band of ruffians in the uniforms of soldiers. They tell Vilak that he and his companions are wanted for murder. The charge is obviously a fake. Vilak is convinced their captors are in the pay of Elise's enemies and mean to kill them, but he shrewdly contrives a way of escape. At Villapa, Elise's manager says he had not sent for her. Vilak persuades Elise to agree to leave the country. Meanwhile, constant rains threaten Porto Verde with flood.

WBEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI
Vilak rode to the wharf to ascertain if the floods were holding up the boat or whether it would arrive on time. But the drowsy, red-shirted negro clerk in charge could tell him nothing.

Leaving the dock, he visited the slovenly tobacco store, bought some tobacco and matches and meeting D'Albentara, who had come on a similar message, rode with him part of the way along the road.

D'Albentara said regretfully that he had not yet had an opportunity to thank Elise for her courtesy as he had been having considerable trouble with two or three of his men, and this had occupied all his time. He feared, he added, that he might never have the pleasure of a visit, as the rising waters had been playing havoc with the railroad property in other places to a far greater extent than at Porto Verde and he rather thought he might be ordered back in the direction of Avilos that afternoon.

He had received no information about the boat, though he thought very likely he delayed, perhaps even that in view of the conditions it would a day or two. They shook hands at the crossroads and Vilak rode on to the fazenda.

"Looks mighty doubtful about your getting away tonight," he remarked a trifle anxiously as he entered Elise's room and watched her heap piles of baby clothes into a trunk. "Mighty doubtful. And after what happened yesterday, you yourself know how vital it is that you get away. I suppose all we can do is to go down to the wharf at six o'clock when the boat's supposed to come in and wait. Then, if it doesn't come, we'll have to build a raft, or something equally desperate, and ship you down two thousand miles on that."

By noon Elise had finished her packing. She spent a few hours in giving explicit directions to the servants as to what was to be done in her brief absence; then, after a quick tea, gave the child to Hannah, who was waiting in the dogcart beside a gray-haired negro driver. Then she mounted her pie-bald mare and touched it lightly with her whip.

They rode off, Vilak and the old man on horseback on either side of her, the carriage close behind. They reached the wharf and dismounted. Six o'clock arrived without the hoarse, prolonged whistle that usually marked the arrival of the steamer at the bar a mile up the river. Seven o'clock. Still no whistle, no trail of black smoke. Seven-thirty. The equatorial night began its swift descent. Eight o'clock. Total darkness and the boat nowhere in sight.

Elise slushed impatiently through the mud of the tiny dock. "We'll have to camp here all night, I guess," she said. "I don't know whether anybody else is, but I'm getting hungry. Extremely hungry. And irritable."

She peered up the river anxiously, then began pacing the dock again. Suddenly she turned as a confused murmur of excited voices drifted up from the silent, darkened town square a quarter of a mile away. A clatter of hoofs sounded up the road. The noise became louder.

Vilak's eyes narrowed. "Wonder what that is," he murmured. He took a bit of betel. "Think I'll go have a look. Back in a hurry." He spurred into the darkness.

A few moments later he was speeding back. "The dam at Avilos has burst," he said quietly. "A wall of water forty feet high is sweeping down the valley. But it won't reach here for half an hour or more. You and Nanny hurry up to Chacos Hill."

Elise and the old man looked at him incredulously, for his voice was even as though he were relating some placid story in the corner of a dimly lighted room. He had barely finished speaking when a horseman came speeding down the road shouting in frenzied Portuguese that death was upon the inhabitants if they did not flee. He vanished. Windows opened violently, lights appeared, animals grunted, men cursed, bedlam broke out in the street.

A few moments later he was speeding back. "The dam at Avilos has burst," he said quietly.

"You and Nanny go on to Chacos Hill," Vilak repeated. "With Tinky." His words roused Elise from her daze. She caught the bridle of her horse. "What are you going to do?" she asked.

"Go and warn some of the people in the outlying districts here. Don't get excited, Nanny. Keep cool, keep cool," he added, as the old man, trembling with excitement, tried to scramble upon his horse and hopelessly entangled his foot in the stirrup. "A man's like an engine. Much better when he's cool. Half an hour's a long time. Don't be stampeded."

He stooped down and with a quick movement freed the other's foot. The old man clambered onto his mount. Elise, too, leaped into her saddle. "I'm going with you," she said to Vilak. "We can't let these poor people on the outskirts die like beasts. Two of us can cover much more territory. Hannah can take Tinky up to Chacos. She's proved she can take care of him. It's only a few minutes."

"All right. We've no time to argue."

She kissed the baby quickly, then spoke a few words to the driver of the dogcart. The vehicle rattled off. The old man looked confusedly after it an instant, bewilderingly began to follow it, then turned and came awkwardly galloping back to Vilak. The three riders sped toward the murmuring town square. As they reached it, a panic-struck parade began to sweep past them.

Here a donkey struggled heroically to trot through the sloughs with its fat master and screaming mistress clinging hysterically to its back; here three squealing pigs lurched ahead of a grunting negro, driving them on with a club; there an Indian woman with huge ornaments in her lips and ears scurried through the mud shouting at the five naked and shivering children whom she had before her. So absorbed were the terrorized villagers in their headlong flight that they hardly saw the three riders coursing past, and Vilak was constantly bringing his horse to a violent halt in order that he might not run them down.

Elise swept her mount round a bed-topped into a street by some frenzied householder. "Where are you going?" she flashed to Vilak.

"Prentiss' place," he snapped. "He'll get it the worst down there, he's so slow. We've got time. We can get to Itzituba Bill from there just as quickly as to Chacos from here and be just as safe."

He heard her draw a sharp breath. "I realize that you don't like him. I don't, either. But however bad he is, we can't let him drown. No one else in the town will think of warning him, he's so hated. After all, he is a fellow human being. All grudges are done in a case like this. It's the jungle law as well as the human."

She stooped to swoop safely under a low-hanging branch. "You're right. Of course we've got to do it. I was drifting into the family feud 'state of mind, I guess."

They went on, and began to leave the city behind. Here and there Vilak on one side of the road and Elise on the other checked their horses for a moment before a miserable cabin of rushes to shout to the occupants the news of the disaster. But in each case an answering shout, or kinky head bobbing frantically through a door told them they had already been notified.

"Odd," he called to Elise as he bobbed furiously up and down. "No one's been overlooked. They've been quite systematic in carrying the news. Couldn't have done better if one man had taken charge of it. Never knew these lackadaisical natives to have so much method and energy. It's astonishing."

They wheeled past a Porto Verde bouncing along in a clattering ox cart, through a pack of racing, wild-eyed dogs who had been infected with the human panic and were fleeing from them; they knew not what; then over the wooden bridge they had crossed so slowly a few hours before. Vilak looked down at the narrow stream below. "That's odd, too," he murmured. "Water looks lower than it did this morning."

They took the crossroads paralleling the railroad tracks and galloped on. (To be continued)

Prentiss is distrustful of Vilak, but finally decides to admit the party to his house, where a new danger is encountered.

Amazing increase in Pontiac Six value made possible by the economies of the world's newest and finest motor car factory.

The announcement last week of a smarter, more beautiful Pontiac Six at surprising price reductions was an unexpected sensation. High quality and low prices had been winning thousands to the Pontiac Six. But due to increasing production in the mammoth new $12,000,000 Pontiac Six plant, savings were being effected. And these were passed to the public, together with the additional value represented in new Duco colors!

Now the Pontiac Six is the only low-priced six offering Bodies by Fisher—the largest engine used in any six priced up to $1,000—and an oiling system which forces 250 gallons of oil an hour through the engine at 35 m. p. h!

These are only a few of the features which make today's Pontiac Six a triumph of modern design and production! Come in! Learn how much MORE you get in the Pontiac Six at new low prices!

WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS LEPER IS GONE AGAIN

John Early, Is Again Runaway From Leper Colony, Always Comes Back When Money Is Gone

(By NEA Service)
NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—John Early, America's most famous leper, has escaped once more.
Well on the road to a complete cure at state's leprosarium at Carville, La., this Spanish-American War veteran, who contracted the disease while on military service in the Philippine islands, has run away from the federal hospital and vanished into the midst of a nation of more than 100,000,000 people.
They can't tell you up at Carville, just how many escapes this makes for Early—not unless they go over the records back toward 1908 when he was first officially pronounced a leper and placed in confinement.
John is an incurable runaway and has escaped probably 20 times.
Old Leper's Cure Works
Chaulmoogra oil taken by injection into the body, is the treatment that within two years would have set John Early free. Chaulmoogra oil—a treatment for leprosy that is more than one thousand years old—has two weeks, and then, broke and weary gave himself up to the federal health authorities.

About six months ago he escaped, went to North Carolina, and set up a camp near Burnsville, on a tract of land he claimed he owned. When he got tired of camping out he invited the authorities to come and get him.
Always at the end of his innumerable escapes to freedom, Early comes back or is brought back to Dr. William C. Fowler, at Washington, his oldest friend.
Now it happens that Dr. Fowler has a large staff of clerks and stenographers, girls and men alike. And while Dr. Fowler has a physician's indifference to associating with a leper, his office staff can't get that viewpoint. Two many times John Early has walked into the office, walked down the long aisles, and brushed sleeves with dainty stenographers and well-groomed clerks. They don't like it. So now, when the wires carry the news that John been made much more effective by modern science.

"There is no longer any question in our minds," says Dr. O. E. Denney, of the U. S. Health Service, in charge of the U. S. leprosarium at Carville, "that when we get hold of a case of leprosy early enough, and treat it with chaulmoogra oil, we can remove from that patient any danger of communicating the disease to those with whom the patient comes in contact. We have already discharged fourteen patients from Carville after the treatment and after long periods of observation. We are discharging two more this week. And within two years we would have discharged John Early."
All patients at the leprosarium except Early are protected by anonymity.
Most Famous Leper
But it would have been foolish, the authorities knew, to try to shroud John Early with the protection of anonymity, for he is the most widely known leper in the world. He has nobody but himself to thank for it. Too often John Early has set the whole United States by the ears.
Back in 1898 he enlisted in the army and fought through the Spanish-American War, with service in Cuba and the Philippines. He was honorably discharged after the war ended. He married. Two children were born. Then the symptoms of some strange disease appeared on his skin. Doctors were baffled. At last, as an ex-soldier, Early went to Washington and appealed to the government health authorities.
They placed him in quarantine near Washington. They took an abandoned house, surrounded it with a barbed wire fence, and put an armed guard to patrol outside that fence.
Organized Leper's Club
Then the doctors decided John Early had leprosy, and his whole world came tumbling down about his ears. He fought the decision.
Early was taken in custody to a New York hospital, and later transferred to the U. S. leper colony at Carville. There he has been a colorful figure ever since. He organized a club at Carville, the members all ex-service men who had developed leprosy. They built a club house on the edge of the colony and fitted it up with all conveniences. But John Early had the itching foot.
The government paid him a pension for his army services. He would let the pension checks pile up until they totaled a sizable sum. Then he would vanish from the leper colony, to keep out of sight days and weeks, months even, and bob up again anywhere in the United States.
Always Comes Back
Once he went to Washington, registered at a prominent hotel, enjoyed the sights of the capital for Early is out again, there is always a near-walkout in Dr. Fowler's office until the leper is safely back at Carville.

But that office has developed a system. There is one old employe who knows John Early well by sight. The minute the daily papers carry the news that John Early is out again, that employe goes on sentry duty. And the office works peacefully away knowing that sometime, sooner or later, the door will open and the sentry will call: "Here he comes!"

Report Is Given Child Welfare Club by Nurse

Mrs. Henrietta Ablard, Ranger school health nurse, at a meeting of the Child Welfare Club, Saturday afternoon, following a luncheon, told something of the work she did while on a leave of absence in Red Cross service in Louisiana.
"The reason that I wired you for men's clothes was on account of an old negro man," the nurse related. "He came day after day wanting some clothes, and all the clothes that came in were for women and children so in desperation I wired the club and in the meantime bought him some shoes and overalls."
Mrs. Ablard first went to Alexandria but was stationed for her first work in Washington. Here, she stated they turned out 56 layettes

"Everybody took in some body. On the lawn of the home where I stayed there were forty-two children, and refugees were housed in warehouses."
"I stayed in Washington three weeks and then went to Grant Parish where I inoculated 2,000 during that time."
Mrs. Ablard's report was well received by the club which had granted her a leave of absence.

In addition to this report, the treasurer, Mrs. Barney Carter, showed that during the month of July money to the amount of $176.24 had been paid out for food and a casket, as well as expended on assisting others whose homes had been visited by death.
Mrs. Walter Burden gave an interesting report on the investigation committee's activities which was supplemented by some reports given by Mrs. R. H. Hodges, on cases that came up during a two weeks absence of Mrs. Burden from Ranger.

Those present were, Mrs. Barney Carter, Henrietta Ablard, E. L. McMillen, Walter Burden, R. J. Norman, M. H. Hagaman, R. B. Campbell, T. L. Lauderdale, Misses Benlain Boles, Cordelia Moffett of Union City, Idaho, and little Jane Lauderdale.

Tomorrow In the World of Fashion

By LUCILE BUCHANAN
Fashion Editor of Harper's Bazaar
(Copyright, 1927)
NEW YORK, July 23.—Gray is one of the smartest colors you can now wear. But it is a color that you must be very careful of; it takes a great deal of wearing. When the American woman wears gray, she usually makes the mistake of wearing gray accessories, including shoes and stockings.

Sometimes her frock and accessories are all gray, but her shoes and stockings are beige. I saw Mary McKinnon the artist, lunching at the Ritz Ritz in Paris recently, wearing a gray and beige costume that was perfect in every detail. Mary McKinnon has silver blue-gray hair so she wore a silver shade of gray, not too old, but not at all a beige-gray. The frock designed by Yvonne Davidson, was two-piece, worn with a narrow silver metal belt, and a gray cloche with a silver buckle as trimming.

Other accessories were an enormous star-sapphire ring, a heavy silver or twisted "snake" chain around the neck and a gray Hermes bag with a "zipper" top and a silver fox fur. The gloves and stockings worn with this costume were a decided beige, and the shoes were gray beige lizard and kid.

Gray for daytime wear must be, however, confined to town costumes. It is an interesting fact that gray looks singularly out-of-place in the country, or by the sea. Several gray costumes I saw at Deauville simply didn't register at all. Nor do all white costumes look well in the country this year.

Beige, either neutral or quite warm seems to look smartest as the basic color for a country costume this season. Of course other colors are worn with it, as I described in a recent article.

For evening gray is having a decided success. As a night color almost anybody who knows the first principles of make-up can wear it. It makes blondes look more fragile and ethereal and makes black-haired and red-headed women exotic creatures that they otherwise might not be.

Gray chiffon is an extraordinary effective foil for diamonds and emeralds. A red-headed woman whose short hair looked poured over her head like some remarkable lacquer appeared dining in the Bois recently in a gray chiffon gown that was one of those cleverly draped lineless arrangements that kept you wondering how it was made. The whole effect was one of long gray streamlines, with a thread of drapery here and there to make it accept a point. With this gown the lady wore an enormous square emerald held close to her throat by a platinum chain. Another emerald, exactly matching the one at her throat was worn as a ring. Those were the only jewels the lady wore, and they were the only jewels in the room. The wonderful mat gray of chiffon was exactly the right complement for red hair and green jewels.

For the gray-haired or white-haired woman an evening gown of gray chiffon or fringe, worn with a huge smoky-mauve flower and limitless pearls is extremely lovely.

ADMINISTRATION HAS PLANS TO REORGANIZE INSULAR AFFAIRS

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 23.—America's far-flung insular possessions will be the subject of extensive political discussion here in the seventeenth congress, as the result of indications, that President Coolidge favors concentration of insular jurisdiction into a single bureau, preferably under the department of interior.

Congressional committees have talked intermitently for two days already concerning the best organization of insular administration at Washington, but there has been little actual change from the bureau plan developed soon after the Spanish-American war.

At the present time, the bureau of insular affairs of the department of war attends to affairs of the Philippines, Porto Rico, and the customs receipt of the Dominican republic, it has been under the direction of Major General Frank McIntyre since 1912. The navy department is responsible for Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands.

Hawaii and Alaska being organized territories of the United States, come under jurisdiction of the department of interior.

Philippines.
Preliminary discussion of concentration of insular authority occurred in the sixty-ninth congress following the report of Colonel Camm A. Thompson to President Coolidge, in which he urged a purely civil administration for the islands and commented:

"In the past there has been no co-ordination between the government of the Philippines and that of our other overseas possessions. The transfer of the administration of all of these overseas possessions to a special insular bureau in one of our civil departments or to an independent establishment reporting directly to the president would unquestionably produce increased efficiency in their management and would tend toward a reduction of friction in the Philippine Islands."

Subsequently a bill was introduced by Senator Frank Willis, republican, Ohio, chief of the senate insular and territories committee, providing for the establishment of an office of insular affairs, under control of a director to be appointed by the president, to which would be transferred all insular functions of the present bureau of insular affairs of the war department and of the navy department. This proposal, which will be revived in the next congress, made no reference to Alaska or Hawaii.

Delicate Problem.
Any reorganization or concentration of insular functions here will present some rather delicate political problems, as both war department and navy department officials would be quick to resent any allegation that any change was necessary because of present inefficiency.

These officials point out that the present distribution of insular functions is the result of a natural political evolution, which has been satisfactorily tested by experience and that the departments which now have jurisdiction are better able to serve the islands than others would be, both because of trained personnel and possession of special facilities, advantageous to the islands.

War department officials have frequently said that the existence of the bureau of insular affairs in that bureau was not an indication of "military rule" as numerous bureaus within that department are of a civil character, as for example the inland waterways corporation and the Panama canal office.

Navy officials point out that the presence of naval stations at Virgin Islands, Guam and American Samoa, makes it logical that naval officers should either administer local affairs or assist civil officers in their administration. The navy is in a position to furnish transportation, radio facilities and medical and sanitary officers to these islands.

Will Promote Efficiency.
Proponents of a single bureau contend that concentration of jurisdiction will promote efficiency, eliminate the present maze of military and naval control and thus allay local political agitation; and also establish insular affairs on a permanent political basis so far as Washington is concerned.

Spokesmen here for the various outlying possessions have as yet manifested only moderate interest in the proposed reorganization. The Filipinos will oppose the measure if it appears intended to establish a "colonial policy" with definite postponement of further consideration of independence or autonomy aspirations. Otherwise, they regard it as an internal matter chiefly of American concern.

The Porto Ricans are understood to be well satisfied with the jurisdiction of their affairs by the present bureau of insular affairs.

Hawaii is said to be very well pleased with her present relations with the department of the interior, recent legislation for Alaska, permitting local departmental officials greater executive discretion and eliminating any long delays during correspondence with Washington, probably will satisfy that territory with administrative arrangements for a time.

A plan to transfer jurisdiction of the Virgin Islands from the navy department to the insular bureau of the war department went without action in the last congress. The islanders, who number only 25,000 have agitated for years for revision of their present organic act. They received advantageous economic legislation from the last congress.

Political news from Guam rarely reaches Washington, but recent dispatches reported the satisfaction of the little island with present arrangements. The governor there administers the island by virtue of a commission from the president of the United States.

The official title of the government is "naval government of Guam" and the title of the chief executive is "governor." The governor is also commandant of the naval station. The island is only 30 miles in length and four to eight and one-half in width, and has a population of about 10,000.

Many Take Look At New Models Of Buick Car

In the beautifully decorated showroom of Sivalis Motor Company, Ranger, the 1928 Model Buicks made their bow last night. Five models were on the floor, each vying with the other in beauty of line, workmanship and style.

The four models displayed were a 50-7 passenger Sedan, a 28-S Sport Model Coupe, a 28 Standard Coupe, a 54-C Master Coupe, and a 20 two-door Standard Sedan.

It was stated that there was no change in the motor, but slight changes in the body lines, upholstery, fenders and headlights.

Music furnished by a radio from Durham and Pettits and an Orthophonic entertained the callers during the evening and souvenirs of red devil balloons were given away.

A big bowl of punch in a setting of greenery found many devotees.

A good number called and inspected the new models last night and all seemed well pleased with Buick's 1928 offerings.

AN APPRECIATION

We wish our friends to know of the appreciation and gratitude we have for all of you who so faithfully and unselfishly aided and comforted us in the most trying hours of our lives, during the illness and death of our dear husband and father. You were so good to us and to him. Without God and without you we could see nothing left for us to live for; but with the knowledge of God's love and the love and sympathy of the sweetest and truest friends on earth, we purpose to meet life's problems unafraid, as our dear loved one would want us to if he were here. Always, we will remember you in our prayers.

Respectfully,

Brooklyn Has Murder Mystery

Ludwig Halverson Lee (right) caretaker of the Brooklyn rooming house kept by Mrs. Sarah Brownell, is shown as he was arrested for the brutal murder of Mrs. Brownell and a neighbor, Mrs. Alfred Bennett. The bodies of the two women were chopped up and portions were found in different parts of the city.

PRINCE OF WALES AND PREMIER BALDWIN SET SAIL FOR CANADA

By ROBERT C. DOWSON (United Press Staff Correspondent) LONDON—The Prince of Wales, Prince George, Premier Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin left London today on a vacation tour of Canada.

This is probably the first time a Prince of Wales and a Prime Minister of Britain have toured the Dominion together and thousands of people, including many Canadian and American tourists, blocked the entrances of Waterloo Station to get a glimpse of the popular young Prince and their pipe-loving companion.

Loud cheers rent the air as the train steamed out of the station bearing the distinguished tourists to Southampton, where, after receiving an enthusiastic ovation from the townsfolk, they embarked aboard the Canadian Pacific luxurious liner Empress of Australia.

The United Press representative was one of the few privileged newspapermen allowed to travel on the train with the Prince of Wales who is anxious to avoid all fuss and ceremony and to enjoy his vacation as an ordinary human being.

The reception ceremonies over, Wales lost no time in seeking the privacy of his suite on the starboard side of B deck which has been luxuriously furnished and fitted out. The sitting room furniture is of satinwood upholstered in red and gold while the walls are colored in cream. Adjoining this room and separated by a glass screen is an exceedingly comfortable conservatory fitted with large square windows giving a direct view of the sea on the starboard side. Filled with various colored flowering plants, this is the brightest room in the suite.

Cream panels decorate the walls of the Prince's bedroom. Furnished in mahogany and with the large square windows, this room is very light and gives one the impression of being in a luxurious room in a seaside hotel. The color scheme is in purple, red and gold.

The action of opening the Prince's wardrobe door automatically switches on a light inside the wardrobe, so Wales will have little trouble sorting out the right suit for the right occasion.

Luxury again predominates in the bathroom with its silver fittings and white tiles.

The suite reserved for Premier and Mrs. Baldwin on the port side of the ship is similar to that of the Prince except that the color scheme of the conservatory is of gold and green while the bedroom is in blue.

The party is due to arrive in Quebec on July 29, whence they will tour Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Banff. Here the Prince and Premier part company, the former going on to his ranch at High River to enjoy a well-earned rest and Baldwin returning to Quebec, whence he will return to England.

Dr. Mary Pierson Eddy, a noted missionary to Syria, was the first woman granted permission to practice medicine in the Turkish Empire.

Delegates From Eastland County Go to A. & M.

Representatives of Eastland county boys and girls clubs and others composing the delegation for this county to go to the Agricultural short course at College Station, will leave Eastland at 2:43 this afternoon on a special Pullman for College Station. The train will arrive at its destination at 4:30 a. m. Monday where the Pullman will be parked for use of the passengers until such time as they desire to leave it. Returning to Eastland the train will arrive at 1:30 p. m. on August 20th.

County Agent J. C. Patterson and County Home Demonstration Agent Miss Ruth Ramey are very proud of the showing being made by Eastland county through the long list of representative boys and girls who will attend the College Station meeting this summer. It is considered a better showing than was made by the county last year when an Eastland club boy won the trip offered as a prize by the M. K. T. railroad company.

Among the judging teams from Eastland county, which will enter the state contest at College Station, are the following: Livestock, B. R. Lannance, Geo. Stuard and Verdon Donaway; Poultry, Lura Glenn Spurlin and Gertrude Dunaway; Grain, Welden Ramsey and Lloyd Wood; Terracing, Alton Grisham and Smith Johnson. Club leaders are J. C. Patterson and F. M. Spurlin.

Here's Fine Baby Boy for Some Childless Home

A fine baby boy just a few weeks old wants a home like other little boys have—he wants a "muddie" to rock him to sleep, because the one that gave him life, also gave hers—and a daddy to toss him in the air, to play with his toes, to provide the necessities of life—because his daddy has others to provide for and can't give him the things he really needs.

He is a fine sturdy little man and can be seen by those who are really interested in adopting a baby. His hair is brown and his eyes are dark, and he is in every way a fine normal child—just hungry and thirsty for the things other normal children have.

July would be a good month to adopt a baby. He would be quite well started by winter—and what a happy way to spend one's time, mothering and fathering a little motherless child.

The baby is in charge of the Child Welfare club.

TALK OF MOVING COURT HOUSE PUTS OLD TIMERS TO TALKING

With the announcement in Friday's Ranger Times and Eastland Telegram that Carbon has aspirations to be the county seat, came quite a bit of argument in regard to the bond election, the site of the courthouse and incidentally some very interesting history regarding Eastland county's court house.

The first court house in Eastland county, according to old timers, was located at Merriman. It was moved to Eastland in 1877 when bonds were voted to move the courthouse there.

According to W. T. Pitcock, one of Ranger's pioneer settlers, there was no Cisco or Ranger either when the court house was moved to Eastland. There was a Ranger camp near the present site of Ranger but no town. Most of the settlers who afterwards came to Ranger, settled first at Merriman, and many remained there and kept their farms and homes. Merriman was a settled community, before Ranger and the little one-room rock courthouse still stands in a dilapidated condition, it is true, on the banks of the Leon. The dignity of justice has long since departed from it, as it has been used for a crib or storage for grains for years, but last year when the ex-Texas Rangers were in Ranger they went out to Eastland county's first court of justice and had some movie pictures made.

One of the old timers tells a tale about a man being convicted in the justice court at Merriman and being sentenced to the penitentiary. He was to be taken there and was on the way when it was found out that a justice court was not empowered to sentence any one to the penitentiary. So he was turned loose.

The same old timer, W. H. Blankenship, said that many years ago an election was held to move the courthouse to Cisco, but it was defeated.

The Texas and Pacific railroad came to Eastland county in 1880 and the moving of the court house to Eastland was probably due to the coming of the road or to the fact that it was a more central point. "Didn't any Ranger folks want to go up to Cisco to court. It was too far away to ride by horseback or in buggies during those days," Mr. Blankenship said and he intimated that he didn't think there would be any election called to move it from Eastland.

The court house was first located in Eastland upstairs in what is now the Corner Drug Store and it was also used for a Masonic hall. A flour and grist mill was on the lower floor. It was next moved to an old frame building on the site where it is now and later a rock building was erected there, which burned and the present court house was built on the foundation of that building.

Women's hairdressing is so great an industry that there are now more than 1,000 hairdressing establishments compared with fewer than 200 before the war.

Family Traits are Inevitable, Crop Out in Best Regulated Families

Family Traits Date Back to Monkey Age and are Many

By RENA B. CAMPBELL
Family traits are obvious in the best families. Environment tends to mitigate the condition to some extent but little idiosyncrasies crop out in persons that date back to the time when their ancestors swung from a coconut limb. For instance when one dreams of falling, it's just a hang over in the vertebrae that has been there since some ancestor sleeping in a tree, slipped in his sleep and caught a limb before he hit the ground.

Some family traits are fine and some are obnoxious. Industry, thrift, courage, intelligence and all the components that go to make a worth while man or woman are great traits to show up in a child or an adult but people that have these traits often have some other very objectionable ones. Most mothers blame the bad traits in their children on the father's side of the house, just as they take the credit for their side of the house for the good looks and good traits of their children. To hear some women talk about their husband's family one just wonders why they ever stepped down from their perch and made such a lowly choice. One often hears a woman say "John is as stingy as a dog, but all his folks were. His mother would skin a flea for its hide," while maybe her own mother had been guilty of catching rats to sell to a Chinaman.

A trait that predominates in many families is fault finding—the analyzing of every motive of another member of the family and yet the same one that does it would cheerfully go to the block if necessary to save the life of the one they criticized.

None of us here are perfect. Some one has said in this connection: "There is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, that it ill behooves the best of us to talk about the bad in the rest of us."

SILVER ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY COUPLE.
Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Green, on Thursday evening celebrated their silver wedding anniversary by entertaining a large number of their friends with a chicken dinner offset by ice cream and watermelon. Twenty five years ago in Canton, Ohio, on July 21, they were united in marriage and on Thursday evening the wedding ceremony by many years ago was commemorated by many lovely gifts in silver from their friends.

Those present were Rev. Geo. Shearer and Messrs. Mmes. B. E. Rigby, Felix McCurdy, R. H. West, W. R. McCullough, J. T. Harrell, R. C. Stidham, Jack Urban, W. C. Heathington, Paul Matthews, T. L. Lauderdale, E. A. Kliever, Messrs. J. L. Thompson, Billie Craig, Joe Carroll; Misses Theda Harrell, Theo Stidham, Agnes Lauderdale, Gladys Downing, Jane Reuser; Mrs. Perry Fox; Edward and Donald Kliever, Phillip Stidham.

SISTER OF MRS. J. N. McFATTER MARRIES IN HICO.
The following account has been received of the marriage of Miss Etta Alford, sister of Mrs. J. N. McFatter at the home of her parents in Hico. Judge and Mrs. McFatter attended the wedding.

Mr. A. H. Nance of Dallas and Miss Etta Alford were quietly married at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Alford, Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. W. T. Boulware officiating. Mr. Nance is with the H. C. Miller Wholesale Hardware company of Dallas.

Miss Alford was reared here but has taught the past ten years in the Dallas public schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Nance left on the noon train for Dallas where they will reside.

Columbia University Students Produce a Motion Picture

WILLIAM TWIDDY, EDMUND GOULDING and "BILL" EASTON

The motion picture classes of Columbia University were given practical lessons in film production when Edmund Goulding, author and director of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, came east by invitation to show them how it should be done. The story was written by a student of the scenario writing class and played by masculine members of the school of acting. In this scene Director Goulding is putting William Twiddy through the paces of proposing to "Bill" Easton on the stage of the college's Brinkerhoff Theatre. The completed film now is used as an object lesson.

Vast Difference Between Child And Adult Person

By SAMUEL W. KEI 7, M. D.
Member Gorgas Memorial Inst.
The child is not merely a "little man" or a little woman; it is a child. And that is something different from the adult in its anatomy, its physiology and its disease conditions.

The child, whether well or ill, should be studied in his proper class and judged by standards suited to his age and stage of development.

I will make just a few comparisons as examples. In the symmetrical adult the total height is eight times the length of the head and the midway point falls upon the front bone of the pelvis.

Compare this with the new-born babe, whose whole figure is only four heads tall; that is, one quarter of his entire height is head. That is normal for him. But imagine an adult with a head forming one quarter of his height!

A child two years old is about five heads tall. At four or five his head is one sixth of his height. After the age of six growth from the waist down goes on more slowly, and at fourteen the height is about seven heads. This is but one instance among hundreds of the constant changes in the growing child.

At birth the head is larger than the chest which contains the lungs and heart and part of the greatest blood vessels, and also the thymus gland which later, instead of growing, diminishes.

Picture an adult with the head larger than the chest!

The muscles of the child are comparatively small, weak, and soft. His bones contain only one third part of the lime salts which give firmness and two thirds of animal matter which is pliable. In the adult the proportions are exactly reversed. In the young, the periosteum, that strong membrane lying next to bone is thicker and is richer in blood supply, and peels easily from the bone. Can you not see that different effects will be produced by violent injury under these different conditions?

The child has all his fat just under his skin and none packed around his internal organs, as in the adult.

In the adult the blood gives 8 percent of the entire weight. In the infant the blood is only 5 percent of the body weight. Do you think that the infant can endure hemorrhage as well as the adult?

One could list hundreds of equally striking differences not only in the anatomy but in the functioning of the body and in its behavior under disease or injury.

So many are the peculiarities of children as compared with adults, that there has necessarily arisen a great special department in medicine, studied and practiced by physicians devoting their best talents to the children. But as yet the public hardly appreciates the fact that surgical conditions in children have as many peculiarities as medical diseases, and that there are surgeons especially experienced and skillful in treating them.

BUS HAS DINING SERVICE
By United Press.
LONDON.—A motorbus in which full-course dinners are cooked and served is the latest innovation in English motordom.

The huge automobile, which is designed for service between London and Folkestone, can accommodate 30 passengers. Its kitchen is large enough to meet any culinary demand from a steak or mutton chop with vegetables to ham and eggs. Under the car is a large tank to carry forty gallons of water for cooking purposes.

The bus is very steady and there is no danger of persons spilling soup either on the table-cloth or themselves while dining in this restaurant motor car.

SAYS HIGH PRICED CORN HELPS FEEDING METHODS
By United Press.
CHICAGO, July 23.—The high price of corn, which threatens to go higher, is leading to better and more profitable feeding methods on thousands of farms, according to Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"When corn was cheap and plentiful it was fed generally, regardless of the fact that it did not furnish the balanced ration that is known to be better for feeding purposes," said Thompson. "As corn prices have gone higher, however, it is timely to note the importance of supplementing corn with other feeds, especially protein-rich feeds, for bigger returns at lower cost. Thus farmers use a ration that is a great deal better balanced than if they continue to use corn."

Results are shown in all kinds of feeding.

Aw! Yes, Monocles, Tell 'Em Apart

Beth and Betty Dodge of Los Angeles have found a new study—monocles. The Los Angeles twins, who recently returned from England with a fine collection of the eye-pieces, insist that the wearing of the semi-windshields is more than a hobby, it's a science. The twins are identified by the monocles. Beth wears hers only in the left eye, while Betty concentrates on her right.

Expert Declares Dieting Injury To Human Race

By HEDDA HOYT
(Nited Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK—For some time it has been the tendency among women to try to look as straight as a string bean on a stretcher. To attain straight lines, dieting, rolling, exercising and all sorts of reducing methods have been attempted, many times without avail.

Young girls as well as their mothers have gone on a reducing rampage. In a girl's school just outside of New York City, over half of the students who range between 16 and 18 years of age dieting, to attain straight lines, dieting, rolling, exercising and all sorts of reducing methods have been attempted, many times without avail.

As far as looks are concerned, both the elder woman and the young woman look more attractive when the bones of the body are covered by a softening layer of flesh. Feminine frocks are more attractive than severe lines. When a woman reaches the 'fat and forty' age she should know that sagging chins and hollow complexion demand the softness of feminine frills. The strictly tailored 'clothesrack' has few admirers among the male sex although her sisters may get a kick out of her beam lines.

because they exercise more and because they no longer wear body-binding corsets which interfere with the internal organs. Physicians are constantly advising women to put on a little more weight.

Election May Be Called To Vote On Stock Law

Voters of Eastland county will be given an opportunity to vote on the question of whether or not the county will have a stock law, according to Assistant County Attorney Sterling Holloway. It was thought at first that an election for this purpose would be called in time for the voters to place their stamp of approval or disapproval upon it at the coming election on the amendments to the State Constitution on Aug. 1, but the required number of signatures to the petitions were not obtained in time for this.

According to Mr. Holloway there will be two propositions voted upon if the election is called. One is for a general stock law, which includes horses, cattle, mules, jacks and jennets, and the other is what is known as the hog law and includes hogs, sheep and goats. The terms of these laws prohibit the running at large of any of these animals and provides penalties to be assessed against their owners in case it is proven that they are permitted to run at large in counties or districts where such laws are in force.

Elections of this kind may be ordered by the County commissioners' court upon the presentation of petitions bearing 100 signatures for the general law and 50 signatures for the hog law. Only freeholders are permitted to vote and therefore only these may sign the petition asking for the election.

There are certain districts in Eastland county, according to Mr. Holloway, where valid stock law elections have been held, but it is now desired that the entire county be included.

It is stated that the people of the county generally are in favor of voting a stock law that will prohibit large of any kind from running at large.

Man Finds Has Fortune Left By Unknown Kin

By United Press.
SYDNEY.-David White, middle-aged Sydney businessman, awoke one morning to find himself heir to over $1,250,000 in cash and $10,000,000 worth of real estate, a fortune amassed by his uncle in diamond dealing in South Africa.

Behind the inheritance is a story revealing the bleak depth of human bitterness and suffering. It goes back to the middle of the last century when Solomon Wehinsky was a fur dealer at Nishni-Novgorod, in Russia. Solomon revolted against the exorbitant demands of the Tsarist tax-gatherer. His brother a partner in the business, disappeared mysteriously into the mines of Siberia. Solomon Wehinsky and two sisters fled. They suffered bitterly from cold and hunger before they reach Riga, where they got aboard a smuggler's schooner and were taken to Amsterdam, whence Solomon went to London and his two sisters to the United States.

Solomon Wehinsky settled in White chapel in 1852 and became a "kosh-er" butcher. He married a Russian girl and changed his name to White. He had two sons, Abel and Aaron. Abel married outside his faith, and so bitter were the London Jews at this unforgivable crime and so long was the continuance of the bitterness that Abel's son, David decided to start life afresh in Australia.

Meantime, Aaron White had gone to South Africa, where he joined the group of men about Cecil Rhodes, the uncrowned king of South Africa for the last fifteen years of the last century. It was there that the fortune which had fallen to David White was amassed. Aaron White traded in diamonds and he emerged from the welter of those frightful days a wealthy man. He employed his money in speculation and grew richer. He left his wealth, with the exception of

Don't Believe All You Hear About Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—When you read that "Washington is all agog" or that "Washington believes that—" don't you believe it.

Such assertions of massed community thought are erroneous. They may apply to the minority of politicians, lobbyists and correspondents here, but not to the 95 percent of ordinary Washingtonians. The average Washingtonian is a government clerk.

The point is that Washington itself doesn't take any marked interest in politics, large national issues, or the sectional troubles of the rest of the country. The main concerns of the government workers are to do their jobs satisfactorily, to have as good a time as possible and to bear up under the heat. They don't even pay much attention to congress which, for all its importance, is one of the best shows on earth.

The Washingtonian opinion is divided to whether a majority or minority show an unfortunate attitude toward the Volstead act, but here, as elsewhere, there are wets and dries among the citizenry and there are so many churches that the dries put up a formidable front.

This city, like any other, is primarily interested in its local affairs. The fact that it is less interested in politics may be partially explained by the fact that its people have no vote and that it is governed by Congress and a board of commissioners appointed by the president.

The people of the city do seem to have a more affectionate regard for President Coolidge than many of the higher officials and politicians.

They laughed their heads off at their movie theatres when the news reels showed Mr. Coolidge in his new Cowboy outfit. The president, it was at once obvious, had shown all the makings of a game sport when he put on those pants, for he was obviously not designed for such habiliments. The spectacle of the president descending the steps after changing his clothes, of his experiences with the horse which he did not ride, and his other poses gave ample cause for merriment, although there was every reason to believe that Mr. Coolidge fully appreciated the humor of the occasion.

Other topics of current interest here are the likelihood of an air mail stop at the capital, alleged inefficiency of the police force—and the now-withdrawn libel suit against the presidential pastor, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce—never forgetting of course, the intermittent scorching weather.

Rough House Rosie At Lamb Theatre For Two Nights
"Rough House Rosie" comes to the Lamb theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. Rosie is portrayed by the most vivid personality of the screen, Clara Bow. Clara really doesn't portray "Rosie," she is Rosie. Rosie handles the male sex the way a juggler handles Indian clubs. Well, there is a reason for it. She was born on Tenth avenue, New York. She did a pugilistic dance in a night club and fell in love with the world's middleweight champion! If that isn't rough then what is? Rosie was invited to attend a very "Ritz" party on Park avenue. She attended and a few nurses attended to some of the men who tried to get "fresh" with her. Besides Clara Bow, the cast includes Reed Howes, Douglas Gilmore, Arthur Housman and Doris Hill.

HAWAIIAN STATEHOOD BID HAS SYMPATHY IN CAPITAL

No Promises Are Made But Congress Apparently Is Awaiting Move From Hawaii.

By HARRY FRANTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, July 23.—Statehood for Hawaii?

Well, it seems to be Hawaii's move! Of course congress isn't rushing out with any statehood promises and such Hawaiian discussion as has filtered through to the Capitol has been of somewhat attenuated character.

Nevertheless, there are a lot of politicians here who will lend a sympathetic ear to any appeal from Hawaii, and many of the Territory's friends would like to see Statehood made an issue, if not for the present at least as a long-range goal for Hawaiian aspirations. They are wondering what Hawaii's new delegate, Victor Houn-ton, will have to say on the subject.

The correspondent has frequently discussed the practicability of statehood for Hawaii with congressmen and politicians here. The first reaction invariably is the more or less frank statement that racial questions would present an insuperable barrier. But on second thought it seems to occur to everyone that Hawaii has practically all of the attributes which have won statehood for other territories. She has population, wealth, a tradition of political allegiance and loyalty to the United States, pays more taxes to the Federal Treasury than many present States, and as a State would lend powerful support in American military and naval defense and to the creation of an appropriate

American merchant marine. A Hawaiian drive for statehood, which could easily be initiated by the introduction of a resolution in Congress and a request for public hearings, would probably not convert Congress to the statehood idea at once, but might prove an effective step to direct the attention of Washington and the nation at large to the wonderful progress being made in the territory.

Three political proposals now boiling in the political kettle may direct Congressional attention to the status of Hawaii and its aspirations for the future.

First the long-continued agitation concerning the political relations of the Philippines, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and to some extent Alaska, with the mainland have inspired some congressmen to a belief that the ultimate solution of problems of outlying territories would best be solved by a constitutional amendment which would provide for some sort of "limited" or "associated" statehood. Proponents of this idea contend that when the Union was established there was no thought that some day the American flag would fly over distant regions with economic and political problems different from those prevailing on the continent.

Soundings concerning the political expediency of such a solution will undoubtedly include the new Hawaiian delegate, as well as the delegates and commissioners of Alaska, Porto Rico, and the Philippines.

A second matter which may affect Hawaii's future will be the discussion of various proposals regarding reorganization of insular affairs. Senator Willis is expected to introduce his bill, suggested by Colonel Cami Thompson, for concentration of affairs of Philippines, Porto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam and Samoa in a single civilian bureau reporting directly to the president. This bill does not mention Hawaii and Alaska, but the discussion engendered by the proposed measure led to incidental comment concerning the practicability of their inclusion.

Senator Hiram Bingham, well-acquainted with Hawaiian affairs, is also expected to have some insular reorganization and his views as to whether this should in some manner include Hawaii will attract much interest.

Third, there is an undertone of opinion in well-informed quarters here that a statehood drive from Hawaii would cause a healthy reaction on the politics of other outlying territories and possessions with continental United States. If the drive made progress it probably would lead to Porto Rican agitation along similar lines, and perhaps would modify Philippine's policy to some extent.

In any case, it would give Hawaii some of the popular attention that now is directed to the Philippines and Porto Rico because of their political agitation. Every congress of the United States now witnesses the introduction of from fifteen to thirty resolutions intended in one way or another to "solve" the Philippines question, as well as various proposals for Porto Rico such as the plan for local election of governor.

The history of the relations between continental United States and the Territory of Hawaii is regarded by friends of Hawaii as all in favor of ultimate statehood.

As far back as June 11, 1864, President Lincoln told Elisha Allen, envoy extraordinary from Hawaii to the United States, "Its (Hawaii's) people are free and its laws, language and religion are largely the fruit of our own teaching and example."

The treaty by which Hawaii became a part of the United States, negotiated in 1897 under President McKinley, provided "that those islands should be incorporated into the United States as an integral part thereof and under its sovereignty."

Hawaii carries all the financial responsibilities and burdens of a state, so far as the Federal Government is concerned. Section 2 of the Organic Act created Hawaii as a territory and section 5 provided that the constitution and laws of the United States, so far as not locally inapplicable, should have the same force and effect there as elsewhere in the United States.

The supreme court of Hawaii in the case of Coffield versus Territory, said, "The government of those islands—is that of an organized Territory and is even more like that of a state than is the case with other organized Territories."

A pamphlet presented to Congressmen a few years ago in support of Hawaii's campaign for participation in the benefits of the federal highway act, maternity hospital, vocational training other federal measures, said:

"The reason why Hawaii was thus completely incorporated as an integral part of the United States is because Hawaii came in voluntarily by treaty and not as a result of conquest, because that was the understanding upon which she came in, and because the United States was willing to accept her on this understanding in view of her military and commercial importance, in view of her long history as an independent sovereignty with a high standard of constitution government, and in view of the fact that she was already American in spirit and ideals."

Governors Will Meet Monday At Mackinack Island

By United Press.
MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—Plans were virtually completed tonight for arrival here Monday of governors from many states in the Union who will meet here for their annual conference.

Central location of the meeting point and the opportune time chosen for the conference is expected to result in a larger attendance of state executives than usual, according to word received from Governor Fred W. Green of Michigan who will be official host.

Flood control will probably be the most important topic of discussion before the conference and executives of almost all of the flood district states are expected. Action taken by the governors in this regard is expected to supplement work of other conferences in informing federal authorities of advisable steps toward ending devastating floods.

Coordination of state efforts in enforcing certain police measures and standardization of laws will undoubtedly draw attention of the conference. Differences in statutes of various states have been found confusing in enforcement of game laws and automobile traffic laws particularly. Conservationists in this vicinity are particularly interested in establishment of uniform open seasons for fish and game in states similarly situated, the contention being that migratory hunters and fishermen "follow the open seasons," causing undue depletion of wild life.

Some progress has been reported toward uniform state motor laws and the matter has been discussed at governors' conferences before. It is possible, however, that definite steps will be taken in this direction at this year's meeting, however.

Grand Jury Will Be Reconvened On Monday Morning

The 91st district court grand jury which recessed some days ago after having returned a number of bills of indictment and having given a report on the condition of the Eastland courthouse, will reconvene Monday for the final winding up of such business as may be pending or which may be brought before them.

Col. R. Q. Lee and B. S. Huey, members, who were unable to attend but a few of the sessions of the grand jury during the earlier part of the term because of having been injured in a car accident, will be present when the body reconvenes Monday.
