By United Press.
FORT WORTH, July 9.—Morris S. Strauss, plumbing supply dealer, was flogged for 30 minutes by 12 men and left in the weeds on the Cleburne road, 12 miles south of here, Friday night.

Strauss suffered from cuts caused by knotted ropes, was reported in a serious condition in his home today. According to the plumbing dealer, he was called from his bed about midnight by two men who told him one of his employees had been injured in front of the Strauss home.

Dressed in his pajamas he went with the two men in an auto parked in the street.

Then, Strauss said, the seven men riding in the car threw him in the machine and blindfolded him.

After driving around for 15 minutes they were met by another car and then drove out on the Cleburne road.

The beating lasted 30 minutes, the victim said. Strauss said the floggers ordered him to leave town as he was getting "too much business."

Strauss and his business partner of Dallas came here seven months ago from Kansas City.

They own one store here and one in Dallas.

"Spider" came down despite the threat of breaking his record of "Hold 'Em Joe" Powers, who is atop a flag pole in Chicago, but the urges of his wife who has occupied a tent bungalow on the roof just below Spider's pole and the lure of a proposed fishing trip apparently got the best of him this afternoon. Suddenly without previous announcement "Spider" clambered down. "Lead me to a bath," were "Spider's" first words as he hit the roof, "that's the only reason I came down. I am so dirty I could grow."

REGARDED AS NECESSARY ENGINEER CLAIMS

Highway To Traverse Davis Mountains Is Also Very Probable

By United Press.
AUSTIN, July 9.—Probability of the state constructing a gigantic reservoir in the extreme west part of Texas was outlined Saturday by a state highway engineer, R. A. Thompson, who has just returned from a 2,000 mile tour of the state.

Mr. Thompson stated that he and the highway commissioners were favorably impressed with Senator Tom Love's project of constructing a state highway through the Davis mountains.

A bill of this nature was passed during the recent called session of the legislature but Governor Moody struck out the appropriation item of $10,000 which would be used by the commission in making a survey of the Davis mountains.

"I am sure that the commissioners will construct a highway through the Davis mountains," said Thompson. "After looking over the situation I find it will be necessary to build a reservoir to store away a large quantity of water because of the dry condition of that section of the state."

"She's a peach, though, for a girl," most of them agree.

When she was 4, Carol began assisting her father sell automobile polish. She learned to meet the buying public and a few months later opened a tiny grocery store of her own. It was located on the sidewalk and consisted of a well stocked dry goods box.

She left the grocery business to sell newspapers, which she has found more profitable. She handles her own bank account at a savings bank and plans to spend her savings in learning to be an engineer when she grows older.

Federal Trade Commission Charges Conspiracy To Monopolize Motion Picture Industry

WASHINGTON, July 9.—A sweeping "cease and desist" order against the Famous Players Lasky corporation charging it with conspiracy to monopolize the motion picture industry was issued by the Federal Trade Commission today.

The commission acting in the case, brought on its own motion, six years ago unanimously ordered a halt in alleged practices in the Zukor Lasky corporation, which the commission held are designed to control the moving picture industry of the nation.

Those alleged practices included block booking of pictures and acquisition of theatres "for the purpose of intimidating or coercing an exhibitor or films to book and exhibit films of the Famous Players Lasky corporation."

The corporation owns interest in 368 theatres including 128 in which it owns all the stock, the commission found.

The corporation is given 60 days in which to report the manner in which it has complied with the order. The order is directed to the corporation and against Adolph Zukor and Lasky as individuals.

MAJORITY IS SMALL AND VOTE IS LIGHT

Eastland Runs Up Big Vote In Support Of $300,000 Bond Issue

Indications at a late hour last night were that the $300,000 bond election for a new court house for Eastland county had carried by a very small majority.

Voting over the county was apparently very light, with the exception of the city of Eastland which practically voted its full strength and gave the bond issue an overwhelming majority in that box. Had it not been for the vast majority piled up in the city of Eastland the vote in the county would have been in favor of the opposition.

The vote in Ranger was extremely light, only a bare 200 votes having been cast in the city. The vote in Ranger was 135 for the bond issue and 73 against. The vote in Eastland was 694 for and 73 against.

Cisco voted overwhelmingly against the proposal. The vote there stood 67 for and 284 against. About the same ratio against the bonds prevailed at Gorman where there was a vote of 52 for and 229 against. At Rising Star the vote was 77 for and 110 against.

Early returns indicated that the western and southern portions of the county were opposing the bond issue, whereas the northern and eastern boxes were favoring the issue. Eastland, Ranger, Olden, Desdemona all voted in favor of the new courthouse, while the strongest opposition was at Cisco, Gorman, Rising Star and Plover.

At a late hour, with the returns incomplete the vote stood 1,185 for the bond issue and 1,075 against, a majority of 110 in favor of the proposed bonds. At that time there were eight boxes yet to report, among them being Tudor, Kokomo, Fir, Sabanno, Cook and Dothan. General opinion last night was that the vote from these boxes would materially cut down the small majority that had been mustered in favor of the issue. However, those who were in position to make fairly authoritative predictions were of the opinion that the issue would still carry by a small majority.

PITTSBURGH REFUSES RELINQUISH COMPOSER

By United Press.
PITTSBURGH, July 9.—Pittsburgh will not readily accede to a move now on foot in Kentucky for the removal from here of the remains of Stephen Collins Foster, composer of "My Old Kentucky Home."

Foster was born in Pittsburgh, on July 4, 1826, and is buried here, but he spent much of his young manhood in Kentucky. This city considers him its own, however, and his 100th anniversary was the occasion for a big celebration here.

The move to have Foster's remains transferred to Kentucky is led by C. F. Dunn, manager of the Lexington Bluegrass club, who suggested they be reinterred at the Old Kentucky Home near Beardstown, immortalized by the composer. Dunn points out that some time ago the Kentucky legislature arranged for the removal from Missouri of the remains of Daniel Boone, and suggests that be taken as a precedent.

FROM THE BIBLE.
The Fountain of Praise: O Lord,
open thou my lips; and my mouth shall show forth thy praise. For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it.—Psalm 51:15, 16.
Prayer: O Thou, who hast to the utmost, it is natural to praise Thee
when Thy Spirit fills our hearts.

WHAT THEY SAY.
If there be those who have the slightest doubt that great good will result from the recent trip of the "all Texas special" and its 120 tourists who made the manufacturing and commercial centers of the north and east, they should read what the press of the cities visited by the Texans have to say.

Newspapers have a habit of saying in their editorial columns just what they think—and what they think more often than not represents the majority of opinion in their respective communities.

Practically every important publication in the cities visited has had something to say about the Texans,
and more particularly about the leader of the delegation, Governor Dan Moody.

Here are some of the opinions expressed by leading daily papers:

Meet Dan Moody of Texas.
Yesterday, the head of representative business men of Texas, brilliant young Dan Moody, governor of the Lone Star state, came to town, and New York will do well to take a good look at him. He is not one of the ordinary rubber-sole politicians,
but of the race of bold knights that do their fighting in the open area.
When a great state found itself caught for a second time in the meshes of the Fergusons, young Moody, clever and attractive, became the white hope of the Texans as much as Wade Hampton became that of the Carolinas struggling to free themselves from the carpet-baggers and the 40 thieves. Open and courageous and so able that men who look to him as another Hogg or Culberson to restore the state to the status of other days in the councils of the nation, he is worth watching. A man of convictions of which he is unafraid, clean cut, with a pleasing personality and with a mind strong and comprehensive, he belongs to the future. His democracy is untainted by isms, his intellect unclouded by prejudices of any kind.

New York should take a good look at Dan Moody. He belongs to the future. Incidentally Governor Moody will observe that New Yorkers are very decent sort of people.—New York Sun.

Moody and Smith.

The long-awaited meeting of Gov.
Dan Moody of Texas and Gov. Al
Smith of New York took place on Wednesday at a luncheon given by the New York Cotton exchange. It gave democratic circles an opportunity for renewed speculation on the two state executives, whose names have frequently been linked in connection with the 1928 campaign. But, unfortunately for the political rail-birds, the meeting was not in their realm and they could not judge at first hand how the youthful governor of Texas, who routed the klan and ended the rule of the Fergusons,
would look alongside the veteran governor of New York, if they should be chosen as running mates next year.
Governor Moody, now in Philadelphia with his "good will" delegation of Texas business and professional men, is not discussing politics on this trip. Any views he may have formed regarding Tammany and its favorite son, therefore, will not be released,
if at all, until he returns to Austin.—
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Men From Texas.
The Hon. Dan Moody, young governor of more square miles than any other state of the union contains, and his fellow Texans should find in Philadelphia not only a broader market for the many Texas products that this great city consumes, but a host of commodities that the Lone Star state can get from Pennsylvania to better advantage than from any other source.

Galveston and the Delaware breakwater are only a short voyage apart.
The Texas metropolis with its railroads has no lack of faster communication with the workshop of the world for those freight in which time is an important element. No two states are more nearly complementary in their production than Pennsylvania and Texas.

Vast quantities of oil products,
cotton, vegetables, fruits and packing house products originating in Texas reach refineries, textile mills,
and the tables of Philadelphia.
Philadelphia's famous commodities—
steel, iron, machinery, silks, linens

hosiery, worsteds and other products find a market, in turn, down by the Rio Grande. Governor Moody need only glance at the list of Philadelphia products, and run an appraising eye
this city to realize that the trains and ships which bring Texas products to the Delaware can easily be filled with return cargoes of Philadelphia products useful to Texans.

Cement and steel are among the local products which Texas men economically investigate. Carpets and rugs and clothing for both men and women are staple Philadelphia manufactures. Saw, files, hammers, plumbing and electrical requirements,
paints, soaps, boots and shoes, hats,
rubber and canvas goods, furniture,
linoleum, chemicals and dental supplies are only a few of the thousands of things made in Philadelphia. Pretty nearly everything the people of Texas need to buy outside their own state is to be had right here. The Texas executive is making friends in the east. A careful report on the advantages of Texas buying in Philadelphia will add to his prestige
among the merchants who buy supplies for Texas.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Dalhart Claims To Be Prepared For Big Oil Boom

By United Press.
DOLHART, July 9.—Dalhart claims to be better prepared for an oil boom
than any other Texas city.
Expecting the boom as soon as conditions in the crude oil market become stabilized, Dalhart has carried out an extensive building campaign
in anticipation of the expected oil field development in this territory.

Highways in all directions from the city have been improved. The chamber of commerce provided a fund to supply cattle guards along the three "air line" highways built to the fields where drilling is in progress.
A tract of land along the F. W. & D. C. railroad has been made available for storing oil field equipment.

The city itself has anticipated the boom by making preparations for handling an increased population. A $750,000 power and light plant has been constructed and three new school buildings are being built at a cost of $250,000. New wells have been sunk to increase the city water supply.

The boom is not expected to start before late in the fall or early next spring, according to oil men who have been here.

47 YEARS OLD CAPTAIN QUALIFIES AS PILOT

By United Press.
WASHINGTON.—Aviation is supposed to be a youngster's sport—or business.

But a naval officer 47 years old has just qualified as a flier after a period of training at the Pensacola, Fla., naval air station, and can skim
about the air with the best of the youngsters. This is Captain E. J.
King.

King was the officer in charge of the salvage operations of the ill-fated submarine, S-61, which went down off Block Island, and for his success in raising and docking the vessel was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. As he was awarded the Navy Cross for his world war service, he is the only naval officer who has both decorations.

Other senior officers on the navy list who have been successful in qualifying for aviation are Rear Admiral William A. Moffet, who is designated as a naval aviation observer; Rear Admiral N. E. Irwin, who is a naval aviator; Capt. H. V. Butler, naval aviation observer; Rear Admiral J. J. Raby, naval aviator; Capt.
A. W. Marshall, who is designated as both naval aviator and naval aviation observer, and Capt. G. W. Steele Jr., naval aviator.

SAVAGE TRIBES OF INDIA SURRENDER 100 SKULLS

By United Press.
ALLAHABAD.—An unusual spectacle was witnessed in the Naga Hill district of northeast India recently when the tribal chiefs in the district surrendered 100 human skulls as evidence of good faith in their promise to discontinue human sacrifices.

The surrender was the result of a British friendly expedition into the Naga Hill country aimed at persuading the natives to give up the practice of human sacrifice. At Shinbiyang, at the completion of the tour in April
a picturesque meeting of 500 tribal chiefs and their followers was held,
and many pledges were secured to abandon the practice.

Among the hill tribes the skulls are regarded as extremely important relics, having been preserved for generations and constituting the basis of their religion.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

LONDON.—Shrewd business men are not slow to take advantage of all possible means of increasing their business, and the now famous "Charing Cross trunk murder" case, in which a woman's body was found cut up in a trunk left at Charing Cross railroad station, has provided them with several such opportunities.

The owner of the trunk-store in Brixton, a London suburb, where the trunk was bought, has been much in the public eye through the newspaper
reports of the police activities there.
He has now displayed copies of the newspapers and placards with press
photos of his store in his window.

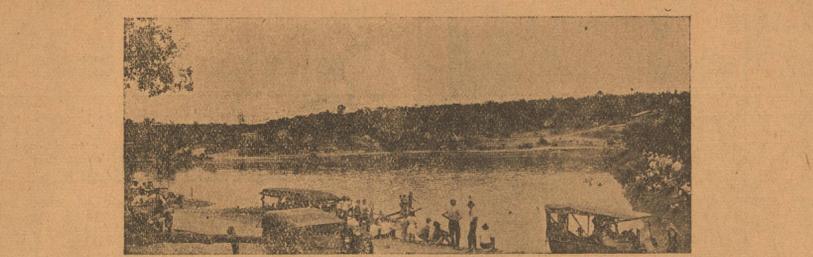

His latest move is to have his store
re-painted with a new sign in huge
white letters reading:
WARD'S TRUNKS
FOR ALL PURPOSES

Working in another direction, hawkers were busy at the funeral of the victim, recently, selling silver and black memorial cards which bore
the words: "In loving memory of Mrs.

im of the trunk crime). Of your charity pray for the repose of her

WOULD TURN GIBRALTAR CURRENTS INTO GREATEST SOURCE OF POWER

By United Press.
MADRID.—The currents passing from the Atlantic Ocean into the Mediterranean Sea, and vice versa, produce an enormous power that could be used and transformed into electricity, according to Don Emilio Zurano Man-z, prominent Spanish economist, who has completed a preliminary study of the question, and submitted it to King Alfonso XIII.
Zurano calculated that one current going through the Strait of Gibraltar, coming from the Atlantic Ocean and carrying a yearly volume of twenty-six thousand cubic kilometers of water, at an average speed of ten kilometers per hour, and the other current crossing underneath from the Mediterranean into the Ocean, with a yearly volume of three thousand cubic kilometers saturated with salt,
can be turned into a formidable continual electric power of over thirty milliards of horse power.

In the document addressed to the King, Zurano said the maximum power lies in the bay west of Algeciras, but that power is also available in other points on both sides of the Strait.
Explaining the course of energy
there, Zurano pointed out that to get an approximate idea of the water flowing every year into the Mediterranean Sea, one must imagine a huge cube of water three times and one-third higher than Mount Everest running at eight hundred thousand cubic meters per second. Adding the sub-current which furnishes ninety-five thousand cubic meters of water per second, the constant electrical power obtainable reaches thirty-six thousand six hundred and ninety-five million horse power.

SETTLEMENT OF LIBEL SUIT NOT QUITE SO EASY

Aaron Sapiro's Tremendous Expense Account in Preparing Suit May Be Stumbling Block.

By United Press.
DETROIT, July 9.—Aaron Sapiro's expense account may prove a stumbling block in the way of his settlement of his million-dollar suit against Henry Ford, it was reported today.
Adjustment of the case has been predicted as a result of Ford's retraction
of the Dearborn Independent charges against Sapiro.

However, Sapiro expended a large sum of money in preparing his case against the billionaire and the settlement may hinge upon Ford's willingness to share this expense which undoubtedly has been exceptionally large. Highly paid attorneys made countless trips into nearly every corner of this country and Canada to take depositions.

Robert Marx and Walter Lynch, associated with Sapiro in his Chicago law office, did the larger part of the deposition work while William H.
Gallagher, who represented Sapiro in court here, prepared the case for trial. William J. Cameron, who wrote the articles about which Sapiro complained, refused today to comment on Ford's repudiation of them. He was in his office at the Ford Dearborn plant but members of the Ford "secret service" kept newspaper men
from interviewing him.

Meantime Edwin Pipp, first editor
of the magazine, stated in an interview that the entire Jewish policy of the publication now repudiated by Ford's statement as laid down by the manufacturer himself.
"I do not understand Mr. Ford's retraction at all," Mr. Pipp said. "Ford has been doing the unexpected for 15 years—ever since I knew him," Pipp said.

That formal statement was just Ford's way of "pulling the desk out from under one of his employes," the former employee said.

ELECTRICITY USED TO AID GROWTH OF TREES

East Texas timber lands, which are diminishing under the onslaught of the never idle saw, may be aided by experiments completed by the Rocky Mountain Forest Experiment Station
in Colorado.

The latest use of electricity is to make trees grow, these experiments indicate. The development and quality of a tree depend on its ability to turn into growth and strength the light which falls on it.

Using this principle as a basis, a series of tests has recently been completed to determine the efficiency of various species of trees. For nine months groups of evergreen seedlings
were grown under the light of tungsten-filament blue-glass electric lamps, the light being applied 10 hours each day.

It was found that some species were five times more efficient than others in turning this light into growth. The experiments, it is said, will make it possible to plant only those trees of known efficiency, and so improve timber growth and the future lumber supply.

THREE GREAT NAVAL POWERS STILL AT OUTS

British Representative at Geneva Conference Still Blocks Every Move Made By Japan or America.

By United Press.
GENEVA, July 9.—Confidence that the three greatest naval powers of the world would not willingly omit their inability to agree on methods of practical naval limitations constituted the chief hope tonight
that President Coolidge's conference in session here would not result in failure.

A brief executive session today at which W. C. Bridgeman, representing Great Britain, Baron Sarto, representing Japan, and Hugh S. Gibson, representing the United States, ended
in failure to find a compromise basis
upon which the three could agree relative to cruiser tonnage.

A Japanese proposal to lump cruisers and destroyers together for the purpose of consideration at the conference, a scheme which the Japanese believed would result in a 30 per cent reduction in the actual tonnage
of each of the nations, found full support among the Americans. The British refused to concede anything.

Gibson made an effort to head the conference away from defeat by announcing that he would not oppose the British desire to discuss capital ships and aircraft carriers, provided agreement first was reached with respect to auxiliary craft, cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

REVIVAL MEETING AT COLONY STARTS TONIGHT

Rev. F. A. Hollis and his singer, will start a revival meeting tonight
at Harmony church in the Pleasant Grove community.
Preaching services will be held each morning at 11 o'clock and each night at 8 and will continue possibly for several weeks.

Friends from Ranger and other near by towns and communities are cordially invited to attend any or all of these services.

The slogan of the Texas state fair
for this year is "Be One in a Million".
It is said that fully that number of persons are expected to see Texas'
greatest show in October.

John McGarvey Former Citizen Of Olden is Dead

Word that John McGarvey, superintendent of pipe lines for the Magnolia, had died at Marlin Saturday morning at 11 o'clock was received with deep regret among his many friends in Ranger, Eastland and Olden.

The body will be brought to Ranger on the Sunshine this afternoon and rest at the Killingsworth-Cox mortuary parlors until funeral arrangements have been completed.

The deceased was in his fifty-seventh year and came to Olden where he and his wife resided, about eight years ago. He formerly lived in Ohio.

During his residence in Olden, he was until the last few months greatly interested in baseball and for several years was manager of the Magnolia team, one of the strongest teams in this part of the state.

For the past three months Mr. and Mrs. McGarvey had been at Marlin on account of his health and their death released him from his sufferings on Saturday morning.
Surviving him are his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Hereafter the dairy products section of the Texas state fair is to have a whole area by itself in the big exhibit hall. A giant refrigerator, with plate glass sides, will contain the exhibits of milk, cheese and butter.

WEST TEXAS CHAMBER COMMERCE ANALYZES FREIGHT DECISION

SAN ANTONIO, July 9.—Traffic experts of the West Texas chamber of commerce have completed an analysis of the recent decision handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission with reference to what is known as the common point freight case, after six weeks of intensive study on the report as received in May.

The common point case, officially designated as the Consolidated Southwestern Cases, was before the commission for more than three years, and formed one of the most important decisions which it has ever undertaken to make. The report of the ruling consists of several hundred pages, and required some time for analysis due to its extent and due to the many angles involved in the case.

In summing up and taking the order as a whole, Traffic Manager U. S. Pawkett of the West Texas chamber of commerce states:

"Apparently the principal result of the order is the disruption of rate relationships that have heretofore existed as between various communities and sections of the state, but it is not apparent that there will be any serious disturbance of trade territory limits. It is estimated that only about forty percent of our total traffic is involved in this case due to the fact that such commodities as grain, grain products, cement, brick, petroleum and its products, live stock, cotton, coal, sand, gravel, crushed stone, and kindred commodities, forest products, cotton seed, cotton seed products, are not involved in the case."

Pawkett further says: "One thing stands out clearly, and that is, the sum-total of our freight charges on traffic to and from the southwest will be very considerably reduced under the new rates, and distribution of the reductions spreads out over practically the entire territory, excepting more or less considerable increases are made to and from points in Arkansas and Louisiana."

One outstanding feature of the order is the sweep reductions prescribed on fruits, melons and vegetables and other produce from Texas to interstate points. This will have the effect of placing that industry in Texas on a more nearly competitive basis with producing points in other states.

In general, the order substitutes for the present blanket or common point adjustment, a new adjustment based on mileage with discretionary provision that the carriers may apply the rates based on mileage as a yardstick to destination groups. The common point boundary line is extended westward so as to include all points on the Panhandle and Santa Fe railway from Higgins through Amarillo, Canyon and Lubbock, to Fullerville where it meets the present boundary line, and Texas is divided into thirteen groups with specific rates provided to each group.

The West Texas traffic bureau cannot proceed to work out and ascertain the full effect of the order until carriers have determined their line of policy in the matter. The bureau has been advised that they are devoting practically all their time to consideration of the ruling and it is thought that the work can be completed within the next several weeks. Until that time, a number of different cities and towns have been furnished with comparisons of the present rates with the rates which the new order provides, under reasonable interpretation. These comparisons were formulated by the West Texas chamber of commerce traffic manager.

The new order of the interstate commerce commission is scheduled to take effect December 5 next, and it is apparent that the commission will insist upon the new rates being published effective that date.

Man Convicted On Forgery Charge, Given Two Years

C. B. Howes, arrested in Ranger on a charge of forgery, was found guilty of the charges against him by a jury in the 91st district court Friday and his punishment assessed at two years confinement in the state penitentiary.

Howes, who appears to be about 50 years of age, was arrested after he had made representations to bankers at Ranger that he had an account in a Kansas City bank which he wished to transfer to the Ranger bank. He used the name of James B. Wilson.

In a confession made to Assistant District Attorney Holloway, Howes said to have stated that he had not been in Kansas City for some years and that he did not have an account in the bank there. Howes secured nothing from the Ranger bank.

Two Found Guilty In Liquor Cases, Suspend Sentences

Gaines Redding and Clarence Mitchell were found guilty of violations of the liquor law by a jury in the 91st district court Friday and their punishment assessed at two years in the penitentiary with suspension of sentences.

Brook Owen, who recently pleaded guilty to a number of charges, pleaded guilty Friday to four additional charges, three for theft of cars and one for theft of a cow.

With the cases tried Friday the total number of convictions secured by the district attorney's department during the week reached 17. There was one acquittal.

HOBOS DESERT HOME WHEN BATHS INSTALLED

LONDON.—British hoboes dislike the modern comfort provided for them in the workhouse.

The board of guardians in the Welsh city of Abergavenny recently decided to try the experiment of fitting their workhouse out with slippers and shower baths, separate cubicles with electric push-bells to call attendants in case of illness, an apparatus for fumigating clothes, and facilities for washing socks and handkerchiefs.

In a recent meeting of the committee to discuss the results of the experiment, figures showed a decrease of more than two-thirds in the number of hoboes admitted to the workhouse.

The principal objections of the hoboes, according to the committee was violent dislike of hot baths and a rooted objection to a day's task in return for free accommodation for two nights. Hoboes considered the whole system too militaristic.

Ice Cream is Now Regarded as Very Important Food

Did you ever stop to think how many delicious things you can have in a serving of ice cream?

Consider how dairy and orchard, tropic grove and garden all yield of their best to give variety to this healthful dish.

The nourishment of cream and chocolate, the appetizing appeal of wholesome fruits from the world's finest orchards and gardens, how delightfully these are combined to make ice cream not only a simple dessert and a unique aid to entertainment, but a direct contribution to health.

World-wide nutrition authorities say of ice cream:

It is a valuable food, containing vitamins essential to health and growth.

Mineral matter necessary for building bones and teeth.

Butter fat and sugar for energy and bodily heat.

Since it contains all the food elements of milk, ice cream can be classed as a protective food. It should be used throughout the year because of its food value.

Ice cream is not only a food for all seasons but for all ages. Invalids, too, are often given this easily assimilated food when nothing else tempts. Frozen dishes constitute an acceptable way of serving nourishment in an attractive and easily digested form.

For children, ice cream is a nutritious, digestible and palatable food. It is rich in bone building material, supplying energy and food element that protect against disease. Ice cream should be considered as another way of getting children to eat the milk and butter fat they need.

Mothers can answer their children's desire for ice cream with confidence, knowing that it has an important place in the balanced diet on which largely depends a strong body and an alert mind—the birthright of every child.

100,000 DOGS KILLED FOR AMERICAN FURS

By United Press.
HARBIN, Manchuria.—Dogs of all sizes and colors to the number of 100,000 have given up their lives and yielded their hides in order that American women may sport "tree otter," "Siberian wombat" and such other rare and costly furs. Dog skins are now forming one of the major exports in the American trade.
One good result of the American demand for Mongolian ferret and such furs is that there are few stray dogs left in this section, so few, in fact, that the Chinese dog hunters have commenced to make inroads in the local supply of pet barkers, especially amongst the larger, hunting dogs. A favorite plan is to toss poisoned meat over fences, wherein dogs are confined, and then, after allowing the poison time to work, to ring the doorbell and offer to buy the dead pets.

Seven Murders Charged to Him

This picture of Matthew Kimes (left), most notorious of Oklahoma bandits, was taken in front of the jail in Flagstaff, Ariz., following Kimes' capture in the Grand Canyon. With the bandit are shown a couple who gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Kady, in whose car Kimes was riding. They explained they had no knowledge that Kimes was being sought. Seven murders and a dozen bank robberies in Oklahoma are charged to Kimes, whose brother, George, is serving a life term in the Oklahoma penitentiary.

IMPROVED CIERVA HELICOPTER SUCCESSFUL IN RECENT TESTS

By United Press.
MADRID, Spain.—The Spanish government has ordered three Cierva autogiros since the one already constructed completed its successful trial. The second will be still larger, to develop greater speed; and the third will serve for experimental purposes.
This was the statement of Juan La Cierva in an interview to the United Press a few minutes after witnessing the trial of the first official autogiro built for Spain.
Compared with the original helicopter built with pieces of old airplanes, this autogiro shows new characteristics. With a powerful Hispano Suiza motor, its landing equipment and wings were specially designed to serve the autogiro purpose, ascending and landing nearly vertically. Though shaped like a windmill, its wings have been modified, introducing important mechanical changes as a result of persistent experiments of Cierva during the past two years. While in England where the air ministry ordered three autogiros, Cierva completed his invention.
"This apparatus appears to be simple enough," said La Cierva, "but you would need a lot of paper to explain theoretically my modifications."
"The wings form and their working have been altered so that the plane is now safer. Of course, I thought of these modifications before, but the experiments of the past winter induced me to put them into execution. With these improved wings, it would be impossible for one of them to break as in London during one of Captain Courtney's experiments. True, this accident proved an imperfection, but it only served to show the safety of my plane. The accident while flying at 150 feet high would have been a disaster with an ordinary plane. But my autogiro hardly suffered and Captain Courtney came out with only a few scratches. The plane came down on its three wings nearly as well as on four."

This new autogiro with two seats has a greater carrying capacity. Its ascending speed, for the first six hundred feet, has exceeded Cierva's expectations, and in horizontal flight it reaches easily 112 miles an hour.
Cierva was congratulated during the trial by the Italian ambassador. The Italian air attaché, who had been laughing at the "quizzical" wings of the autogiro, said after his flight, "Very interesting, Magnifico. Magnifico."
The presence of the Italian ambassador was not a mere coincidence. Italy is interested in the autogiro. The French government is planning to acquire several autogiros of different types.
One of those built for Great Britain is a waterplane, with a 500 H. P. motor.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO LAW TO BE DRAFTED AT WASHINGTON

By HARRY W. FRANTZ (United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, July.—The international radiotelegraphic conference to be held here in October, 1927, if entirely successful will mark the accomplishment in twenty-five years for the ether what has not been accomplished in as many centuries for the sea.

The conference is expected to adopt a modern radio agreement satisfactory to the entire world and minimizing the likelihood of serious international conflicts over radio rights. The world has not yet reached such an agreement concerning all features of maritime law. The radio discussions will be primarily technical, but indirectly of great political significance.

The extraordinary development of radio communications in recent years has not been more rapid than the national and international efforts to keep the pace with it. The United States in the last congress adopted its first comprehensive law for the regulation of radio communications, applicable to the United States and territories except the Philippines.

Now this government is to host at a world conference which will go far toward establishing the principles in the future to govern international communications.

The progress of international efforts to regulate radio communications is described in one chapter of "The Law of Radio Communication" written by Judge Stephen B. Davis, ex-solicitor of the department of commerce, radio adviser to Secretary Hoover and one of the foremost authorities on radio communications in the United States.

"Apart from a few special agreements, treaties or conventions, there is no specific international law governing radio communication, except as its general principles may be applicable," he writes.

The first international attention given to radio was the attempt in the Hague conventions (1899 to 1907) to define the status of radio stations and the rights and duties of persons operating them in time of war.

The land war neutrality convention prohibits the erection of radio stations by belligerents on neutral territory and also the use by belligerents of any radio station established on such territory before the war for purely military purposes and not previously opened for the service of public messages.

The convention concerning neutral rights and duties in maritime warfare forbade belligerents to erect radio stations in neutral ports.

The Washington Armament limitation conference in 1922 also discussed the status of radio stations in time of war, and recommendations were subsequently formulated at the Hague, but have not yet been made effective.

After an abortive conference at Berlin in 1903, the first international wireless telegraph convention was signed at the Berlin conference of 1906. It was ratified by the United States senate in April 1912, when arrangements were being made for a further radio conference in London.

The United States was represented at the London conference, which drafted a new convention and regulations, signed in July, 1912, and later ratified by the United States senate.
The Berlin convention of 1906 remains in force only with respect to questions arising between the countries which ratified it but did not adhere to the London convention of 1912.

The general purpose of the London convention, as described in a previous article, was to regulate radio communication between vessels and the shore and between vessels on the high seas. Fifty separate regulations accompanied the convention.

The international convention on safety of life at sea, signed at London in 1924, contains provisions relative to radio equipment on vessels; the United States was a signatory, but final ratification has never been completed.

Radio communication between China and the rest of the world was the subject of a resolution approved at the Washington limitations of armament conference in 1922. Its chief provision was that all radio stations in China should be operated strictly in accordance with the terms of treaties or concessions, and also provided that if foreign stations were operating without authorization in China they should be transferred to the Chinese government upon fair compensation.

Judge Davis points out that the right of a state to forbid the passage over its territory of waves emanating from a foreign radio station has been asserted by some writers on international law, but the right is of questionable value, "there being no known method by which the complaining state can prevent signals entering and crossing it, although it might destroy their communication value, and it being equally beyond the power of the transmitting station to restrain them from traveling beyond national boundaries and in all directions, though the development of beam or directional transmission may change the situation in the latter respect."

Since the London convention of 1912, call letters for use in the adhering countries have been assigned by the Berne bureau, the United States receiving all communications beginning with N and W and those with K from KDA to KZZ.

Judge Davis discusses the practicability of international allocation of wave-lengths as follows:

"So far as concerns the efficiency of stations operating of the non-marine services, the only problem which may merit international attention is that of interference resulting from the fact that the number of available channels is limited. In the past this has caused little difficulty. There have been wavelengths sufficient to meet all demands. Each station operating point to point international service has been able to find unused wavelengths and has proceeded to prompt them. Newcomers have respected the possession of their predecessors. Whether this peaceful condition will continue or whether there will be ultimate conflict and confusion depends upon many factors still unknown, including the growth in the number of such stations, the rendering useful of the high frequencies and the development of beam or directional transmission.

"In a draft for an international convention made in 1920 at what is known as the Washington conference on electrical communications an attempt was made at a general allocation dividing wavelengths among the countries of the world. It has never become effective. The consensus of present informed sentiment seems to be that the time has not yet come when such a division is required."

AWAKENED SLEEPER BUTTS LOCOMOTIVE

By United Press.
HARBIN.—A track surveyor on his daily round felt the need for a nap and selected the track as the most convenient resting place, trusting to the humming of the rails to awaken him in case of an approaching train.
The driver of an incoming freight train noticed the man and brought the engine to a standstill a few yards away from the sleeper. An especially shrill blast of the engine whistle brought the man to his feet, and so dazed was he that he rushed headmost into the engine. He sustained heavy injuries to the head and was picked up unconscious.

Why are there so many charming women today?

NEVER before have there been so many charming women. Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink and white complexion, luxurious well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women today.

WHY?
At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the great users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.
Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk—how to entertain.
One reason why so many are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why so many women are so charming—Read advertising regularly.

Pittsburg and New York May Fight Out World Series

YANKS TREAT 'EM ROUGH SAYS EVANS

By BILLIE EVANS
Treat 'em rough when they get fresh! That seems to be the slogan of the New York Yankees.

Any time an American League rival threatens the lead of the Yankees, the crew of Miller Huggins administrators a severe spanking.

On Decoration Day of this year, the Philadelphia Athletics were within hailing distance of the Yanks, only a couple of games away. In the so-called first crucial series, New York proceeded to win four out of five. The men of Mack have been more or less silent ever since.

Late in June, the Chicago White Sox went into New York for a four-game series, with just a single game separating them from the champions. Ruth and Co. proceeded to trim the Sox three out of four and started them on the toboggan.

On July Fourth, Washington, after

Here's Leo P. Flynn, who is the big boss of Jack Dempsey in the latter's comeback role. Flynn, a veteran handler of fighters, believes the ex-champion will come back and regain the world's heavyweight title from Gene Tunney.

winning 10 straight and jumping into second place, invaded Gotham, confident of cutting down the Yankee's lead.

New York won both holiday games by the lopsided scores of 12-1 and 21-1. Two such overwhelming defeats won't help the Washington morale any.

There is no getting away from the fact that the Yankees believe in treating all rivals rough and usually do that very thing.

Some Unusual Duos.

The fourth of July games in the major leagues, by the way, produced several rather extraordinary situations.

It is unusual when a team wins both games of a double-header; they almost invariably split them. Yet all four holiday bills in the National League went that way.

Pittsburgh increased its lead by winning two from the world champions, St. Louis, while Chicago tightened its hold on second place by twice defeating the Reds. New York continued in the first division by a double victory over Brooklyn and Boston twice won from Philadelphia.

In the American League, Cleveland, playing its best of the year, scored twice over Chicago, while New York annihilated the Washington club in both games, making 33 runs to two for the Senators. Incidentally, two losing streaks and one winning rampage were brought to a close.

The Athletics trimmed Boston after losing seven in a row. Then Boston reversed conditions and beat Philadelphia to break a protracted losing streak of 15 games. Washington was beaten in a double-header after capturing 10 straight.

All of which proves it is best to take nothing for granted in baseball, since the athletes just naturally refuse to run true to form.

Yanks and Pirates.

It is more or less an accepted truth in baseball, that the team out in front on July Fourth has the best chance to win the pennant. Statistics strongly bear out such a belief.

That would make it Pittsburg in the National and New York in the American. Both ruled favorites at the start of the season.

The Yankees, with a lead of practically a dozen games, look to be in. Yet you never can tell. Last season the yanks flattered away about as commanding a lead in the last half of the season and were hard pressed to win.

The Yankees have made the most of their home stay this year by winning 29 out of 38 games. They have profited immensely in their games against the tail-end Red Sox, and in the pinch they have knocked off the opposition.

It takes a good ball club—even a great ball club—to do the things New York has done this year. That is why the Yanks are away out in front in the American League race.

Gripings by Gus

The American Legion team and the Chestnut-Smith team and any other team that may happen to read this are invited to express their desires as to whether they would like to play a game with the Dallas team of the Texas league after the regular season closes.

Josh Billings writes that he will be glad to entertain offers to play on a percentage or guarantee.

Full particulars may be obtained from your club.

The M. W. A. team will play Comyn at Lillard field this afternoon. The Comyn team is said to be a strong aggregation having lost only four games out of thirteen this year. Not knowing who they won from, your guess is as good as mine.

One of the chiefest among indoor sports of this time seems to be comparisons. Comparing this with that and this person with that person, and this group with that group, and then the comparisons switch off into comparing the human race both male and female with the various families of dumb animals and plant life.

Rena Bonner Campbell has compared men with everything and has yet to find an animal of low enough order of life to classify as poor overworked and underfed husbands in such a manner that we will stay classified.

But, speaking of comparisons, did it ever dawn upon you that there is a great similarity between women and fish?

All women want to be "in the swim" and when they get caught out of their natural elements they flop around like a fish out of water.

Some women will go after any kind of bait and some don't seem to fall for any kind of bait you try to feed them.

Some live and thrive on the destruction of other women, even as a bass considers it a choice morsel if he can swoop down on a shiner minnow. It's too bad that we don't have any talking fish.

Then there's the sword-fish woman that's always got her nose into other people's business, and the shark that will follow a ship a week waiting for a man to fall overboard.

Compare the whale-woman who has enough flesh on one arm to feed an average family a week and the sardine woman who doesn't have enough meat on her bones to stuff a hot tamale.

Now the cat-fish woman has a mouth like the Mammoth Cave and is unapproachable because of her finger's having an affinity for going through one's pockets.

The sucker always gets the bait but never takes the hook, while the female of eel is the only one that ever gets hooked.

Then the flying-fish that darts around from place to place, part bird and part fish, and blind fish that do not even have a place for eyes.

Then there is the lowly craw-fish—who is always trying to back-out.

The above does not apply to any woman I know now or have ever known, or who know me, but only to women I have read about or seen in picture shows.

But merely written to keep pace with the trend of times in comparing one thing with another.

Tourists Bring Prosperity To Great Britain

By United Press.
LONDON.—Britain is feeling the benefit of the invasion of America's tourist army members of which are spending large amounts of money on expensive sports of fishing and shooting.

Real estate agents in all parts of the country are receiving high rents for partridge shootings. Scotland is having the most brilliant season for many years and agents find the shooting moors and Salmon rivers in great demand by the American visitors.

"Nearly all the fishing and shooting preserves were rented before Easter and this year was a record in the history of the firm," stated a member of a prominent sporting agency.

Sports outfitters are experiencing a steady rush for equipment. A Bond street firm of gunmakers say that they had not sold as many guns and fishing tackle in any season since the war.

This new prosperity is greatly welcomed by tradesmen, who have been experiencing a serious depression since Britain's general strike.

Ralph Ince's Close Call

Investigation was conducted by California authorities into a mysterious attempt to murder Ralph Ince, the movie director, at Fullerton. The hotel bed in which he slept was sprayed with fluorine which had nearly snuffed out his life when friends discovered and resuscitated him. Below is a picture of Ince's wife, the former Lucile Mendez, once Broadway's favorite chorus girl.

SPORT ODDS AND ENDS

MOTOR BOAT RACING
NEW YORK.—Entries and program of activities scheduled for the many major national speed boat races this season are rapidly rounding into shape according to word received from the American Power Boat association.

Tomorrow will take place the 18th Annual Power Boat race to Block Island for the Championship of Long Island Sound. This race will also be held for the Victory Trophy with the boats competing under the best performance handicap rules recently promulgated by the A. P. B. A. The Block Island race is open to cruisers and fast cruisers of not more than 65 and not less than 30 feet waterline length.

The approximate distance of the race will be 100 nautical miles. Time allowance will be figured in accordance with the 1927 A. P. B. A. rules. There will be a first prize, and also a second prize will be given if five boats start. A third prize will be given if seven boats start and a time prize will also be presented to the boat making the best actual time.

At Cleveland, Ohio, July 22-24, under the auspices of the city itself and the Cleveland Metropolitan Yachting Association, there will be held the Cleveland regatta, which promises to be one of the most extensive and varied ever planned for the Great Lakes region.

Headline the trophy list at this regatta will be the Governor's Cup, presented by Governor Vic Donahey. In addition there will be the Commodore's Cup, the Councilman's Cup and several other trophies as well as several cash prizes to be competed for by the various classes.

In preparation for this regatta, the city is completing a new breakwater at Edgewater Park, inside of which will be the new protected race course. There will be power boat races for every class, a complete sail race card and an elaborately worked out inshore program of entertainment. It is expected also to have an entry class for the 151 speedsters. On the opening day, celebrating the 131st Anniversary of the founding of the City of Cleveland, there will be a special program consisting of water pageants, power boat races for city officials and special music by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra. Another of the unusual features will be a long distance championship swim comparable to the English Channel and Catalina events. Swimmers of international fame who participated in these swims will be among the Cleveland entries.

Entries announced to date for the International Regatta at Detroit September 3-6, include the following: Harry B. Greening of Hamilton, Ont., driving Rainbow VI, Dr. Etchehour of Paris with his Sord III, and two fast United States boats competing for the Carl G. Fisher International Trophy for the 12 litre class; Otto Kreuger of Berlin with his two speedsters, the Sigrid IV and the Sigrid V, and Miss Betty Carstairs of England driving her famous boat, the Newg, in the 1 1/2 litre class against which three American speed craft will compete, one to be driven by Gus Wood, another owned by James H. Rand Jr. of Buffalo, while the third will probably be Little Shadow, formerly owned by and raced in England last year

The manufacturers are giving prizes for the first four men and special intermediate prizes will be presented to the leaders at 3, 9, 12, 15, 18 and 21 hours. The pace-makers of the first three will receive rewards to the value of $225 between them and each competitor completing the 24 hours will be given a souvenir of the event.

Eleven different clubs will be represented by the fifteen riders who will be chosen from the following: H. Grant, W. S. Almond, E. C. Pilcher, W. W. Perkins, H. H. G. Page, W. G. Stewart, H. P. P. G. S. Sibthorpe, A. A. Turner, J. E. Holdsworth, D. Marsh, E. J. Winn, V. S. Bowmar, J. P. Lee, H. Oxley, W. G. Hazel, A. G. Keen, E. G. Bowtle.

Among these Grant, Pilcher, Holdsworth and Marsh are the favorites. Grant is quite at home on the Herne Hill track, but has not previously ridden in a 24-hour contest. On the other hand, Pilcher, Holdsworth and Marsh are road racers and all three are noted long distance performers.

By way of variety during the duller stages of the race and in the hopes of attracting a larger gate, the Polytechnic Club are arranging a series of boxing bouts, running races at various distances including two championships, and a walking handicap to take place during Saturday afternoon. These will be staged on the turf inside the cycling track.

Tickets have sold well, even those for the overnight session being in great demand and the event promises to be a very profitable venture for the club if not for some of the riders.

24-HOUR BICYCLE RACE
LONDON.—Fifteen of Britain's premier amateur cyclists will start at seven o'clock tonight (Monday) on what is believed to be the most gruelling race in the world.

The event is the twenty-four-hour tandem paced race, being revived, after a lapse of seventeen years, by the Polytechnic Cycling Club, cycling section of one of Britain's foremost athletic organizations.

The open-air cement track at Herne Hill, in South East London, has been specially prepared and fitted with arc lights for the occasion. Tents, cooking stoves and first-aid stations have been rigged up on the lawn inside the track.

Each competitor is allowed twenty tandems with twenty different crews for pace-making throughout the twice round the clock test. The number of laps each competitor will pace their man will be decided by his trainer.

In addition to the competitors over volunteer their services as pace-makers, checkers, masseurs and attendants. There will be 600 pace-makers, 300 officials, 90 laps scorers, 60 trainers, attendants and masseurs in addition to a number of ambulance men.

Competitors and races have, for some time past, been practicing the art of changing over from one tandem to another at speed and experts believe that the present record, made by J. H. Bishop in 1909, of 513 miles, 1430 yards will be soundly beaten.

Soviet In Fear Of Economic War By Great Britain

By United Press.
By VICTOR W. KNAUTH, United Press Staff Correspondent.
MOSCOW.—The "united front against Russia" is taken very seriously in all walks of Moscow life. England is considered definitely bent on bringing about such an anti-soviet alignment and the visit of President Doumergue of France with the French foreign secretary, Aristide Briand, to London is looked on with mixed emotions.

"It would be a great mistake to consider their visit to England as nothing more than a neighborly call," warned the newspaper Pravda in an editorial. The article then plunged into an intricate description of interlocking suppositions, based on the premise that England is organizing a "united front" against the soviet union.

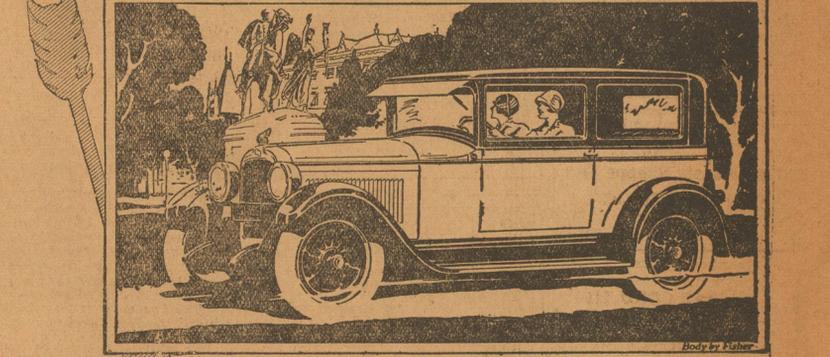

By this hypothesis, England is supporting fascist Italy in order to put pressure on France, prepared in time to abandon Italy and take up France for special friendship. The first victim of an Anglo-French rapprochement would be Germany, the editorial declared, supporting its prevision by observing that England is cold toward Germany's efforts to bring about an early Rhineland evacuation.

The prospect is engrossing the attention of all ranks in Russia and the newspapers are stimulating a general public interest in England's supposed diplomatic maneuvers. If England succeeds, it is widely felt that an economic blockade of the soviet union would be the first result, followed in time by some sort of hostile military action, with some nation other than England as the spear-head.

Soviet statesmen and editors have been visioning such an eventuality for months and the Russian people are thoroughly warned of the possibility of having to face an economic blockade or perhaps even another military intervention.

Experts say the human family has been in existence 500,000 years. So that's how old that joke is!

AMERICA HAD HER TEAPOT DOME GREAT BRITAIN HAS HER PEERS

By C. P. WILLIAMSON,
United Press Staff Correspondent.
LONDON.—Britain has no Teapot Dome scandal to bother politicians, but it has one little ripple on the otherwise smooth surface of peacetime grants, which some labor circles class as being far worse than an oil scandal.

The first intimation of the brewing storm of trouble over the matter of empire honors came recently when Lord Byng, formerly governor-general of Canada, declined to remit to the treasury the fees involved in his elevation from baron to viscount.

The promotion was conferred upon Lord Byng last October upon his retirement from the governor-generalship, which he held from 1921 to 1926. Lord Byng was granted his first title in 1919 in recognition of his war services. In addition he received the thanks of parliament and was granted 30,000 pounds. Although Lord Byng did not refuse the additional rank in the peerage, it is understood that he takes the view that many other distinguished men have taken before him—that titular rewards for services to the state should not be conditional on the payment of a substantial sum in fees for the peerage patents.

Following Lord Byng's refusal to pay for his letters of patent to the new title one half of England shuddered while the other half enjoyed reading the expose of the long list of persons—some of whom, it is alleged, received their titles for political reasons more than for services to the state—who had their titular fees paid by the British treasury.

An imposing list of personages whose fees were paid by the government gradually crept into public view during the discussions and counter-discussions over the right or wrong of such a policy. Some of Britain's most prominent politicians, diplomats and naval and military men are mentioned in the list.

It includes the following with the fees which were remitted:

In the above list it is noted that both Lords Oxford and Balfour were formerly prime ministers, Lords Arnold, Thomson and Oliver were three labor peers, Lord Bryce was British ambassador to Washington, Lord Chelmsford was a former viceroy of India and a member of the cabinet, Lord Lowther was formerly a speaker of the house of commons, Lord Birkenhead is a politician—the others receive military or naval classifications.

There have been instances during past reigns when the recipient of a title has refused to pay the fees connected with it and the sovereign has ordered the treasury to remit all fees. This occurred several times during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Technical questions connected with a refusal by a newly created peer to pay for the patents have so far been shunned by constitutional lawyers here. The question, which was immediately raised, whether Lord Byng could assume his title while refusing to pay the fees, has been particularly carefully avoided. Although many experts are severely bothered with the question of "what can be done about it," no one seems to actually know, or if knowing, refuse to express an opinion.

Another bit of soiled linen which came to view for another public washing during the discussion of patent fees, was that of "the Lloyd George honors scandal," as it is described by the conservative press. The matter was first raised by Lord Rosebery in a letter to the London Times in which he raised the question of whether Lloyd George's so-called political fund, of approximately 2,000,000 pounds, was derived in whole or in part from the sale of "honors."

Lloyd George merely replied, "If Lord Rosebery will recall how he financed his own general election in 1895 (when Rosebery was prime minister) he will find a complete answer to his question."

It was later stated by Lloyd George's office that "the fund controlled by Mr. Lloyd George was raised in a way which does not differ from that followed by the conservative party or the liberal party in the days before the coalition and all along it has been devoted to legitimate party purposes."

Some labor members of parliament are now demanding a complete investigation of the whole subject of title grants.

Arousing His Curiosity

Great Britain Will Broadcast In Kilocycles

By KEITH JONES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London.—An announcement of interest to technically-minded American radio fans has been made by officials of the British Broadcasting company, who declare that they propose forthwith to adopt the principle of stating their "wave lengths" in kilocycle figures instead of wavelength figures in connection with all the company's stations.

It is thought here that this practice may shortly be taken up in the United States as by the use of kilocycle figures, frequently necessary in the statement of wavelengths, is avoided. Under the new plan the measurements used by the British broadcasting stations will be stated in terms of frequency, of which the unit is cycles per second, the kilocycle being equivalent to 1,000 cycles.

Support for this step, according to British radio experts, is furnished by the fact that the union Internationale de Radiophonie, Geneva, has throughout based its system of measurement on frequencies and not on wavelengths. The spacing between the exclusive wave, that is, one which is the property of a single station, and the common wave, that is, one which is used by several stations, should be uniformly maintained, under the Geneva scheme, at a frequency of ten kilocycles. If this separation is kept constant, it is claimed that interference between stations will be avoided.

Three factors, these experts point out, describe the nature of an electro-magnetic wave, namely, the speed at which it travels, the frequency with which the wave is generated and the length of the wave. The third factor is dependent upon the first and second since the length of the wave must be determined by the velocity divided by the frequency. Thus, since the speed of travel is accepted as constant, the only equality which is essential is the frequency with which the waves are generated. The use of the term "wavelength," according to experts is therefore redundant.

"The question of interference is bound up with the beats between the two frequencies," says a report sent out by the British broadcasting company. "The frequency of the two stations working on what have always been regarded as measurements of, say, 300 metres and 302 metres, is in the former case one million vibrations a second in the other, and in the latter case 995,000 vibrations a second. The two stations thus beat together and produce a frequency equal to their difference, i. e., 5,000 cycles. Because the human ear can detect easily up to 5,000 vibrations a second, a heterodyne note will be heard, denoting that the two stations are beating together. If, however, a separation of 10,000 vibrations a second or ten kilocycles, is maintained, the beating of the two frequencies will hardly be audible; hence the ten kilocycle spacing is regarded as the practicable separation in order that interference may be avoided."

It is also claimed in favor of the proposed change that the use of kilocycle figures instead of wavelengths will prove less of a tax on the listener's memory as no decimals are involved, all kilocycle measurements being in round figures.

The following list indicates how the kilocycles figures will simplify "station finding":

Daventry, present wave length, 1,604.3 proposed kilocycle 187; Bournemouth, 491.8, kilocycle 610; Glasgow 405.4, kilocycle 740; Plymouth, 400, kilocycle 750; Bradford 252.1, kilocycle 1,190.

CORRESPONDENT SUGGESTS WE NICKNAME PUBLIC OFFICIALS

NEA Service Writer.
WASHINGTON.—The servants of the people, functioning in Washington and elsewhere as parts of the federal government, assume far more dignity than the ordinary servant, and it is very hard to find any humility among them.

Their success in persuading the multitude to take them seriously, as no doubt they should be taken, is probably responsible for the failure of the ordinary citizen to attach to them the sort of nicknames with which he tags others prominent in the public eye.

Certainly the hard-working officials down here are entitled to at least as much affection as the lady murderesses of Chicago, among whom there has been a long procession of "wolf women," "tiger women," "hyena women" and so on. New York has never been slow to nickname its Rhinelanders and its Brownings and the spirit of the entire country was demonstrated when it made Lindbergh its own "Lindy." Washington alone has lagged behind in this great popular sport.

As a matter of fact, the great men of the land as found in high office are not such awesome creatures as to be robbed of this mark of popular esteem. Probably every one of them realizes the vote-getting value of a good nickname, but how is he to nickname himself?

To fill this demand, your correspondent presents a few suggestions as follows:

Chief Justice William Howard Taft.
Senator Earl B. "Pineapple" Mayfield.
Senator William E. "Lone Wolf" Borah.
Senator David A. "Fido" Reed.
Secretary Andrew W. "Moneybags" Mellon.
Speaker Nicholas "Baldy" Longworth.
Senator Edward I. "Red-head" Edwards.
Secretary Curtis D. "Holy Willie" Wilbur.

WHAT IS HAPPENING AT HANKOW

By RANDALL GOULD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
HANKOW.—One sight of silver makes Hankow hens begin to lay.

But since the silver embargo was laid down here by the Nationalist government on April 18, neither hens nor tradespeople have had many glimpses of this inspiring metal.

Through the placing of this embargo, described by a leading foreign banker as "the greatest single mistake of the Nationalist government in Hankow" and by a government official as "an unfortunate but wholly necessary emergency measure," Hankow has been taking a practical course in money and banking of such intensive nature that all concerned are frankly anxious to graduate.

The reaction of the Hankow hen to this situation was described to the United Press by a foreigner who operates a wholesale supply business which is ordinarily flourishing but now decidedly in the doldrums. Said he:

"An experience of mine this morning gives the whole situation in an nutshell, so to speak. I went around to a Chinese poultry merchant to lay in some household supplies. Pulling out one of the local 'legal tender' banknotes, I asked for eggs.

"Now, you must understand that the Chinese merchants are forbidden by government mandate to refuse these notes, or to discount them. So the Chinese merchant very politely informed me that he was very sorry but his hens were not laying and he had no eggs on hand. Then I rang a silver dollar down on the counter. The hens must have heard or seen that dollar, for eggs were forthcoming a moment later."

Business is bad in Hankow today under the Nationalist regime. Everybody admits it, including the Nationalists. Differences of opinion crop up at once, of course, when the detailed discussion starts. Hankow notes of the three "legal tender" banks, notably the Bank of China and Central Bank, are in circulation among the Chinese, but foreign banks and business houses refuse them and demand either foreign bank notes or silver. Opinions differ as to whether circulation of such notes among the Chinese is due primarily to compulsion or to a measure of confidence in the stability of the Nationalist government, and foreign merchants cite such episodes as the incident of the eggs in proof of their contention that fear of decapitation is the only thing which keeps the Chinese using such money at all.

The cause of the embargo lies in difficulties of the government, primarily of the defection of General Chiang Kai-shek and his establishment of the Nanking government, which caused lack of confidence and threatened an exodus of all free silver from Hankow. Everyone seems to agree that there was such a danger, and that once an embargo has been laid down, the raising of it is a real problem.

Foreigners insist that the embargo is stifling trade and that free circulation of silver once more is the only thing which can restore trade. Eugene Chen, foreign minister, told the United Press that "silver is only a token and we must win a success in our military operations which will reopen lines of trade communication up the Yangtze and into Honan province so that goods can move in once more."

And, with the situation as it is at present, this seems to sum up the matter. Everyone is now muddling along as best he can and waiting to see how the government's several military campaigns come out. Foreign traders are bitter and depressed, Chinese merchants silent and conservative, the government at least outwardly full of hope for an early restoration of trade channels.

Several measures of relief have been tried. The most apparently constructive was the proposal of a clearing house between Hankow and Shanghai with the government willing to absorb the adverse trade balance; bankers did not support the plan, which they considered impractical,

MRS. MEDILL McCORMICK MAY RUN FOR GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
(Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)
WASHINGTON, July 9.—The daughter of the most skillful political manipulator this country ever saw—Mark Hanna—will probably be a candidate for governor of the state of Illinois at the next republican primary.

This woman is Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of the former senator from Illinois and known to republican party leaders as the best woman politician in the nation. Seated on the veranda of her home in Georgetown, Mrs. McCormick told me of her plans regarding Illinois' next gubernatorial campaign. While she has not definitely promised to run, she made it plain that if she does all other candidates had best prepare for the scrap of their lives. "It is far too early to prophesy," she said. "Great pressure is being brought on me to run. I'm not prepared to say that I will.

"But I can conceive of an emergency in which I would." And then Mrs. McCormick disclosed that if she does run it will not be primarily to get the office for herself, but rather to take it away from that talented vote-getter, Governor Len Small. The daughter of Mark Hanna, the president-maker, is determined that Small will never win another term in the governor's mansion at Springfield.

Her Conditions.

"Suppose Small is a candidate to succeed himself, as we assume," she went on. "Suppose Attorney General Carlstrom, who ran for attorney general as Saml's fairhaired boy four years ago with a campaign promise to cancel the suits against Small, but who now claims to be anti-Saml, should be offered as the anti-Saml candidate.

"I doubt whether Carlstrom's candidacy would entirely satisfy the anti-Saml people.

"Whatever might be said of my candidacy, it could not be said that I am not 100 per cent anti-Saml.

"Small will have his organization behind him, Carlstrom may get an organization in Cook county—but I may get a majority of the votes."

In making this tentative prediction

Next "Lady Governor"?

Mrs. Medill McCormick

Mrs. McCormick is speaking from the viewpoint of the experienced, practical politician. She knows that very strange things do happen in Illinois politics.

Should Get Many Votes.

To begin with, she has a brilliant record of her own and is widely known. The mantle of her father and her late husband would fall on her shoulders. Many democratic women probably would vote for her in the republican primary. Labor should be sympathetic, for Mark Hanna was friendly to labor and Mrs. McCormick as an active member of the Women's Trade Union league, has vigorously supported child labor and other labor legislation.

The farmers might help, too; for not even Lowden is more of a dirt farmer than Mrs. McCormick, who runs her own 2000-acre farm, sells hogs and steers, markets 1400 quarts of milk daily and is an active director of the Holstein-Friesian association.

In addition to these elements,

there is a large floating anti-Saml vote that probably would go her way. On top of this, Mrs. McCormick would get strong newspaper support.

"If I do run I'll have the shortest platform on record," she added. She refused, however, to say just what it would be.

Mrs. McCormick's political career began before woman suffrage became a fact. When the suffrage amendment went into effect she became chairman of the republican women's executive committee, working with the republican national committee and organizing women voters through out the country.

"Women will increase in public office very slowly," she says. "They are not generally interested in educating themselves politically."

Woman President? No.

Mrs. McCormick laughs at the suggestion of certain advanced feminists that either she or Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth might be a presidential candidate next year.

"I don't expect to live to see the time when a woman can be a candidate for the presidency," she says. "Women have a long way to go in politics. It is one of the most difficult and intricate occupations.

"No, I'll not tell you what I'd do if I were president, because I'm not going to be president."

"Let's be serious!"

Non-Communist In High Post Of War Department

MOSCOW.—Sergei Kamenev, who is not a communist, has been appointed second assistant war commissar, one of the highest official positions attained by a non-member of the communist party and in a department peculiarly responsible and powerful under the existing international conditions.

Kamenev served as an officer of high rank in the Tzarist armies and now has obtained an equally exalted place in the Red army. He is not related to Leo Kamenev, partner of Leon Trotsky in opposition within the communist party of which he has long been a member. The new assistant war commissar was a liberal under the Tzars but never was included among the "reds."

When the red army was organized by Trotsky immediately after the Russian revolution, many "white" officers assisted him, moved by their loyalty as Russians to Russia rather than their harmony with the newly-established communist government. Since then, however, the red army has trained and graduated enough military experts to fill the higher commands with men inclined to favor the communist party. While Trotsky frequently compared it humorously to the raddish, red outside and white at the heart, on account of the many "white" military authorities who assisted in its formation.

The loyalty of Russians to Russia as their native land, regardless of their feelings toward the communist government of Russia, which was evident in the first days of foreign intervention in Russia and during the war against Poland, is obvious now again wherever the possibility of a foreign aggression against the Soviet Union is discussed—which is to say, practically in every corner of Russia.

Texas has one of the greatest canyons in the United States. It is the Saint Helena Canyon, also called the Grand Canyon of the Rio Grande, located near the southern tip of the Big Ben in Brewster county. If the Rio Grande cuts through the mountains forming a gorge 1000 feet deep. Its walls are almost vertical and it is very narrow. The exit of the river from the cleft in the face of the steep mountain side is one of the most marvelous sights in the natural scenery of the United States.

2,000 TOURING MOVIES SENT OUT BY SOVIET

By United Press.
MOSCOW.—Two thousand portable moving picture exhibitions are "on the road" in the soviet Union this spring to introduce the movies to every village and hamlet, however remote it may be. Additional projector companies are being organized by the commissariat of education and will soon be sent out. Development of motion pictures and their popularization among the people are directly supported by special state subsidies. The profits of the traveling shows are by law invested in the towns and villages which contributed them, for construction of large halls for permanent use as moving picture theatres.

Looking Into Future Of Aviation In U. S.

Navy Regards Aviation as an Important and Indispensable Part of the Naval Establishment and New Building Many Ships

Editor's Note: This is the third and last of the aviation series—United Press.

By HARRY W. FRANTZ, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, July 9.—The United States navy regards aviation as an important and indispensable part of the naval establishment, and has made aircraft an integral part of the fleet, according to a declaration of Secretary of Navy Curtis Wilbur.

same law also defined the status of the operating personnel. The bill provided for two rigid airships of approximately 6,000,000 cubic foot volume each at total cost for both ships not exceeding $8,000,000.

The law of 1926 also established the post of assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, of which Edward P. Warner is the first occupant. He has been identified with aviation development since 1916. He is regarded as one of the leading aerodynamic experts of the country and when appointed was professor of aeronautical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In a report concerning naval air policy, Secretary Wilbur said: "Since the end of the world war the principal effort of the navy department has been directed toward the application of aircraft to fleet operation and the development of suitable aircraft for that use. It was largely pioneering work, as the experience with aviation during the war, concentrated on anti-submarine activities, had not indicated clearly the role which aircraft might fill in fleet operation, nor was there any material experience in foreign countries which could serve as a guide."

"Progress in the art of aviation continues, and the importance of the work of aviation with the fleet increases correspondingly, but sufficient experience has now been had so that the present scope of aviation with the fleet is growing to be well understood, and the navy now has reached the position of being able to lay down definite requirements for the small number of classes of aircraft to carry out the several strategic and tactical functions of naval aviation. Steady progress has been made in developing designs of aircraft to meet the special demands of each class, and research and development are being carried on with the prospect of definitely continuing this progress."

Perhaps the greatest contribution made by the navy to aeronautical development has been in the sphere of experimental and research work. Some of the navy accomplishments reported officially are:

1. Built the first wind tunnel in the United States.
2. In the construction of the Shenandoah a new and important metal was given to the trade of this country—duralumin.
3. All postwar engines, both air cooled and water cooled, have been developed principally by the navy in conjunction with the trade.
4. Reduced to five and to a great degree standardized the types of aircraft used by the navy.
5. Designed the first large rigid airship ever built in this country—the Shenandoah.
6. Designed and installed catapults on United States vessels far in advance of any other country.
7. Developed the use of the Langley arresting gear, believed to be the best in existence.
8. Developed two planes of the patrol type, one of which (the Pn type) holds the world's record for endurance of seaplanes. The other made the longest flight over water ever accomplished.
9. Established an aeronautical engine laboratory, said to be the equal of any in existence.
10. Made important contributions to radio communication and navigation.

Limitations on aircraft carriers was agreed at the Washington conference for the limitation of naval armament. The tonnage limitation for a single carrier was fixed at 27,000 tons. Total tonnage was limited as follows: Great Britain, 135,000; United States, 135,000; Japan, 81,000; France, 60,000; Italy, 60,000.

It was agreed that each of the powers might build two aircraft carriers from ships already building and designated to be scrapped. Under this treaty provision the United States built the Lexington and the Saratoga, largest ships of their class in the world.

Naval aviation won laurels also in the Hawaiian flight of Commander John Rodgers. The first flight to the north pole, although not a naval undertaking, was accomplished by Lieutenant-Commander Richard E. Byrd, a retired officer of the navy. His companion, Floyd Bennett, was an aviation chief machinist mate in the navy.

UNIVERSITY BOYS HIKING FROM NEW YORK TO MEXICO AND BACK

Jiggs Finke and Harold Salhonick, Gamma Eta Sigma fraternity boys, making a wager trip from New York to the Mexican border, were in Ranger Saturday morning, the guests of F. O. Dean, who met them as they went through here last month. They had a $1.00 bill when they blew in and left Ranger with the same one-dollar bill plus a buffalo nickel which they picked up on the streets of Ranger.

In their fraternity house about two months ago, Salhonick, who is a freshman, said that he would make a hike through the United States to the Mexican border and back to New York on a one dollar bill and return to New York without ever breaking the bill. Finke, who is a senior of the bill, Finke, a senior of the University joined Salhonick, and with their $1.00, No. B-4951037 D, they set out from New York on June 5.

On June 24 they passed through Ranger and at Sierra Blanca, they were driven by a Ranger woman, whom they took through the missions of Juarez, to El Paso.

Not being satisfied with reaching the border, they were going on down into Mexico but were turned back by Mexican authorities at Chihuahua, on account of being American citizens and the Mexican government not caring to assume responsibility for them.

The boys do not ask for money nor have they spent any. On reaching a town or city they make the acquaintance of the mayor, fire chief, or some fraternity brother, show their unspent one-dollar bill and are fed. They have walked very little as people have been most generous in picking them up and giving them a lift in their cars.

The public road system of Texas is about 180,000 miles long and would reach around the earth more than seven times. The total mileage of improved highways is about 29,000.

ELECTRIC HATCHERY FOR USEFUL BUGS

The electric incubator was invented to hatch eggs, presumably chicken eggs, but it is now being used to hatch lady-bugs, according to a report from a western state insectary.

The mealy-bug is a serious menace to western vineyards, and it has been discovered that lady-bugs devour mealy-bugs with relish but do not eat grape leaves.

To provide a supply of lady-bugs, there must first be mealy-bugs, and these are now being developed in potatoes kept in a dark room heated by electricity to 80 degrees F. Electric heat is used because it can be automatically maintained at any desired temperature.

When the mealy-bugs have reached the proper stage, a few lady-bugs are introduced. These feast on the mealy-bugs and lay large numbers of eggs, which hatch in the warm dark. After a time light is admitted and the little lady-bugs develop wings. As soon as they can fly they seek the light and gather upon the windows. From the windows they are transferred to small boxes and distributed among the infested grapevines, where they continue to eat the destructive mealy-bugs until the latter are all gone.

Watch Out for Unfavorable Doggy Traits in Selecting a Mate---One Might Get Bit

Wives May Be Catty But Husbands Are Often Quite Doggy

By RENA E. CAMPBELL
Women may be catty but all men are "doggy" in some way. You have only to visit a dog kennel to see the resemblance between dogs and men. Men growl at their wives, like bulldogs, or they play up to her, like a fyce standing on its hind legs, or they ferret out her innermost thoughts like a rat terrier on a scent, or they protect her like a collie, or put on "dog" in some way.

Dog kennels are interesting. There's the fussy little fyce who thinks he is just as important as the Great Dane that could pick him up and shake him like a rat, but ignores him because of his insignificance.

Some men remind one of fyce, always yapping around and trying to elicit attention from the higher ups and laying stress on the mighty ego. They are usually the type of men that marry a woman a foot taller than themselves, call her mamma and stand in awe of her extra inches.

The noble Dane, patient, kind and tolerant, reminds one of a man who is big in stature, and in mind, who is tolerant of other people's faults and shortcomings and who can always be depended on in a crisis. He is the big man of a community, the loving and adored head of his family and calls his mate "wife."

The rat terrier is a useful dog where he can function as nature intended him to but the rat terrier type of man with ferret-like eyes usually belongs to the criminal class, and calls his wife "the old girl."

The bulldog is good for a watch dog and husbands who have bulldog features and natures, lead a wife a dog's life. If they get an idea in their heads, they hold on, bulldog-like until everybody else gives up—they are apt to tear and lacerate the feelings of their women-kind and call their wives "you" generally with a growl.

The wolf hound reminds one of men who have the look of wolves in their eyes, and seek for their prey among young girls. As a rule they do not marry—they follow the pack of other men of the same type and are a menace rather than an asset to a community.

There is the good collie, tender eyed, ready to die if necessary for those he loves, and it's the good collie type men that make the best husbands. They are loyal, unselfish, kind and self-sacrificing—putting others first always, living and dying for humanity's sake, this type of man calls his wife "dear" or "mother."

The dog types of men are many. In some respects the dogs can give them tips on manners and excel them in attributes. Men growl most at their wives, and seldom at one another, while dogs growl at one another. Dogs are a man's best friend and a woman's also if she will study dogs before selecting a mate, and steer clear of the man with unfavorable "doggy" traits.

Protection Of Country's Bird Life Is Urged

By United Press.
WASHINGTON—Protect birds for without them the country would be overrun with insect pests, the agriculture department advises both rural and city dwellers.

"Birds may be looked upon as an ever present force that automatically tends to check outbreaks of insect pests, a force that should be kept at a maximum efficiency by protective measures so that their services may be utilized whenever possible," the department said.

Sparrows are noted for feeding on ants, cabbage bugs, army worms, cicadas, green bugs, alfalfa weevils and caterpillars while Meadow larks eat grasshoppers and crickets.

White breasted nuthatches reduce greatly the number of pear psylla and the codling moth. Goldfinches like plant lice and woodpeckers are among the most effective enemies of bark beetles, wood-borer, leopard and codling moths and many other woodland pests.

Crows, blackbirds and grackles are fond of white grubs and will follow a plow to get them in the spring.

Forty-five species of birds have been found to feed extensively on the alfalfa weevil while 66 attack the cotton boll weevil.

Mallard ducks have been effectively used in ponds for mosquito control while blackbirds help keep down boll worms and other pests.

Say Flappers, Does This Mean Goodbye to Bob?

In view of the fact that Canton, China doubled its shipments of human hair to the United States in April, with exports amounting to $9,438 pounds valued at $20,110 as compared with 27,995 pounds valued at $10,357 in March, one may ask are the American flappers using it to hurriedly take the place of their bobs, advice comes from Vice Consul Fredrick W. Hinke, Canton.

Human hair exports to the United States have risen steadily since the first of the year. In January 21,334 pounds were exported, in March 27,995, and in April 39,438. No shipments were recorded in February.

NEW HOSPITAL BUILDING IN RANGER STARTS AT ONCE

Lauderdale-Barnett Project to Cost $50,000 at Main and Marston. Over $100,000 In Building Under Way Now.

With the announcement that Drs. Lauderdale and Barnett will begin work this week on a $50,000 fire-proof brick office building and hospital, at the corner of Main and North Marston streets, Ranger, building now underway and to start at once in Ranger went beyond the one hundred thousand dollar mark.

Adding the approximate cost of the Lauderdale-Barnett building to that of the W. D. Conway home, the R. S. Balch home, the Mrs. Chester A. Jones brick garage and storage building, repairs on the J. C. Penny and the Boston Store, as well as on the Bohning building, which are all major projects and not including the number of private homes that are being improved, it swelled the cost of building in actual progress to well over that high mark.

Rumors of the Lauderdale-Barnett clinic building have been rife for some time, but only Friday were confirmed by Dr. T. L. Lauderdale who stated that the contract would probably be given the early part of the week to a local contracting firm and that work would begin at once.

The building will be occupied by the Lauderdale and Barnett clinic consisting of Drs. Lauderdale, Barnett and Miller, a dentist, who will be named later and an interne. It will face on Main street and extend one hundred feet back on North Marston street. A reception room 27x33 will form

FRIGIDAIRE was given its name to distinguish it from all other makes of electric refrigerators.

Back of that name are the engineering resources of General Motors, and the guarantee of the world's largest builder of electric refrigerators.

Under the name Frigidaire more than two hundred thousand electric refrigerators have been sold to home owners and industrial users.

The nameplate is placed on every Frigidaire mechanism and every cabinet to identify that product—and all the inventive genius, the precise mechanical construction, the features that are exclusive to Frigidaire are represented by that one word—a trade-marked name that cannot be used on any other electric refrigerator.

When you consider an electric refrigerator and want those qualities that have won leadership and reputation for Frigidaire—be sure you get a Frigidaire.

In the Spotlight of highest public favor more than ever Riding is like flying

New advantages never associated with this price-field, single out the Greater Essex Super-Six with spotlight brilliancy, marking it farther than ever above all comparison.

And public acceptance, intensified by knowledge that the most popular Essex of history was withdrawn to make way for it, has swept the country in a nation-wide buying fervor that quickly outran the greatest of all Essex production schedules.

All that the previous Essex stood for—speed, reliability and a riding ease that was like flying—is here in greater and more enjoyable degree. There is greater power, pick-up and performance. There is greater luxury and comfort in these longer, roomier, more beautifully finished bodies. But no words can adequately describe the totally different thrill of this new transportation. No price comparison can give any expectation of the quality, value and zestful performance exclusive to this car.

Even though production is greatest in Essex history, demand is so large that we must handle all deliveries on the basis of priority of orders.

Jungle Breach

© 1927 by NEA Service
by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Lincoln Nunnally, elderly American chemist, mysteriously summoned to the queer little jungle-bordered town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil, encounters an old friend, Vilak, who tells him it was he who had sent for him.

Vilak's cousin, Elise Marberry, an American girl, owns a coffee plantation and other land near Porto Verde and has received mysterious warnings to get out of the country. Vilak is alarmed, because several deaths already have occurred and the superstitious natives think some supernatural force is at work.

The day Nunnally arrives another man is killed, Tony Barbetta, one of Elise Marberry's foremen. He had been hit with a club in the hands of Limey Potts, another foreman. Before he died a strange paralysis took hold of him, and Vilak confides to Nunnally that he is certain Limey Potts, though he may have struck the victim, was not the murderer.

That evening Vilak induces Nunnally to come with him on a visit to the house of Caylord Prentiss, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise.

Before going to Prentiss' place, Vilak and Nunnally call on Elise Marberry. Vilak refuses to let her go with them, and she and Nunnally continue. At Prentiss' gate, which is fortified with barbed wire, they hear a rustling in the bushes nearby.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER X
The old man paled. Vilak put a finger warningly to his lips. His hand on his pistol, he stepped noiselessly into the shadow of some bushes. The crackling became louder; something was coming down the path they had just descended. A moment later a shadowy figure appeared on the opposite bank of the creek. Nunnally, unused to firearms, nervously fingered the trigger of his weapon. Vilak restrained him silently. The figure drew nearer. Cautiously it began to step over the slippery creek stones.

Suddenly Vilak thrust the old man's pistol into his holster. "It's Elise," he said. He bounded from his hiding place. Elise recoiled. His arms shot out and seized her. "By Jove!" flashed with bitter intensity. "I could really be pardoned for doing something desperate to you for this."

She tried to draw away. "Let go my hand. Your nails are digging into it fearfully. You're hurting me. Really. Badly."

"Why did you come? Why? Why?" "I told you I was coming—Please let go my hand."

He released her; his voice regained its customary placidity. "You might have been killed. You don't know how close you were to being killed."

She touched his hand with her smooth fingers. "I'm sorry if I upset you. You know that. I see now that it was foolish and reckless. But what I said at the house was true and I wasn't joking. I'm not a child. And I'm not going to permit you to risk your life for me with all these sinister things hanging over us while I do nothing."

His eyes turned from her face to her dress, the same gown of yellow silk she had worn at her home. Now the edges were torn and muddied. "You came all the way in that flimsy thing?"

She nodded. "If I had taken time to change I couldn't have followed you."

"My beautiful but foolish cousin, you may congratulate yourself that the stars are obviously in your favor."

He took off boots, gloves, raincoat and gave them to her. "Put these on. What I'll do with you now that you are here, Lord only knows. I'd send you back at once only that it would probably be as dangerous for you to go back alone as to come along with me. You'll probably be safer where I can keep my hand on you. If you know how nearly you came to being shot by Nanny you'd now be trembling a little instead of trying by your most winning smile to cajole me into forgiveness. Nanny almost took his first lesson in marksmanship with you as the target and first lessons are generally fatal."

His bushy eyebrows contracted sternly. "Frankly, I don't forgive you. You've put me in a very bad situation. In the future, if you choose to disobey me in the slightest particular, fond as I am of you, I'll have to leave. I say that not because of sex prejudice, egotism or anything else. It's merely that your life and perhaps the lives of others are involved and I can't have everything imperiled by an injudicious act like this. I'm speaking to you very pleasantly. But you know that my pleasantest words have occasionally steel linings. Do you agree to do as I say?"

She nodded. "I agree. But with the reservation that I'm to be treated as an individual and not as a decoration. Is that also part of the bargain?"

"Agreed." Vilak retraced his steps to the gate and again began picking the lock. Soon it clicked open. He raised the great steel bars inside, then searched a moment in his pockets. His eyes caught the silver chain about Elise's neck. "Since you're here, I might as well make you useful. Let me have that chain you're wearing. Good of you not to have beads or something of that sort that would not conduct electricity. Otherwise I would have to go to the trouble of searching about for a piece of wire. I want to make a connection between these two copper terminals, so that when we open the gate the current won't be broken and the alarm set off."

When she had taken the chain from her neck he fastened one end to the gate knob and the other to the iron post supporting it, then swung open the gate until the chain was taut. "All right. You can both crawl through now. Careful. Lucky none of us are fat. Let me know in a second if either of you hear or see the dog."

When all three had entered, Vilak closed the gate once more and carefully locked it. Then leading the way a short distance toward the house, he halted again in a clump of low trees. "We'll wait here," he whispered.

Suddenly there arose from the bowels of the house a prolonged wail, sinister, uncanny.

For ten minutes they stood motionless. Vilak silently chewing betel nut, the old man and the girl fascinated, watching a murrumma, the Brazilian black snake, rising in the jungle grass as it killed and began to devour what in the moonlight appeared to be a paracaca, deadliest of Brazilian vipers.

Suddenly there arose from the bowels of the house a prolonged wail, sinister, uncanny, which to the old man sounded as though it might have sprung from the throat of some unfortunate tortured on the medieval rack. Elise repressed an exclamation. The old man nervously removed his glove and put it on again. Vilak went on quietly chewing betel.

Then the wavering light of a candle appeared in one of the windows, the front door of the house opened, and Prentiss, clad in his grimy linens, appeared in the aperture. Stalking through the doorway, he hurried down a short path which led to a low water tower some feet behind the house and disappeared through the small door which led into it.

Vilak signaled the others to wait, then crept silently toward the tower. He listened intently to the archologist moving within, then took a position in the tangled underbrush along the path the other must use to return to the house.

Shortly after, Prentiss reappeared in the doorway. In his hand he was carrying a bright glistening object, apparently some sort of glass container. Deftly Vilak tossed a loose vine across the path. Prentiss came striding down. Either the darkness or his haste would have sufficed to prevent his seeing the vine snare. His foot caught in the twisted fiber; his body jerked violently; the glass object he was carrying shot from his hand and shattered upon the ground.

Muttering a curse, Prentiss disentangled his foot, looked at the broken glass, glanced about furtively, then returned to the tower. In a moment he came out once more, carrying another similar glass container and made his way into the house.

Vilak hurried to the scene of the other's misadventure. The liquid which had been in the container, a thick, whitish fluid, was rapidly sinking into the ground. He picked up a fragment of the glass and brought it to his nostrils. "Hum," he muttered, then focusing his attention on the house saw a candle move past four windows. An instant after a prolonged, uncanny wail again echoed into the night. A choking, gurgling sound followed. Then silence.

For a few moments Vilak stood immobile, abstracted, only his hollow jaws moving as he chewed the gummy betel. The Oriental cast of his face became more marked; his bushy eyebrows appeared those of a Tartar; a thin film like the inner eyelid possessed by birds seemed to half shroud the pupils of the brilliant eyes beneath. Then he strode to the house and knocked upon the door. The sound echoed hollowly through the interior, the candle burning before one of the windows was swiftly snuffed out.

A dog began to bay fiercely. The baying became a fury. Vilak waited, then knocked a second time. Shuffling footsteps sounded on the floor inside. The footsteps came nearer, halted.

"Who's there?" The voice was that of Prentiss, the snarling, cracked echo of a voice that once must have been deep and powerful.

"Mr. Davis, Miss Marberry's attorney. I want to talk to you."

Vilak heard the other cuss. "I don't want a thing to do with her, you hear? Or anybody that has anything to do with her. If she comes around here again, I'll—I'll fix her for good."

Vilak's face hardened. "Will you be so good as to open that door and talk to me sensibly?" he snapped.

There was a brief silence while the man inside seemed to hesitate. Then a bolt was shot, a lock grated, the door was flung open. Prentiss stood in the aperture. He was still wearing round his neck the uncomfortable high collar the chemist had noticed in the afternoon. In his trembling withered hand he was clutching a pistol. "I'll open the door all right. I'll open it," he muttered. "So you're Miss Marberry's attorney, eh? Come to try to drive me off my place, maybe? Well, try it. Try it." His eyes glittered cruelly. "How the devil did you get in here without ringing my bell?"

"When you talk to me civilly I might answer you." Vilak's eyes were darting past him to the dimly lit interior.

"Then you'll wait forever, you hear me?" His voice began to rise shrilly. "This is my property. It doesn't belong to anyone but me. You can tell Miss Marberry that, if she ever comes around here again I'll make her sorry she was born."

His body was trembling with passion. "Get out now! Get out! Get out!"

In the next chapter Vilak rescues his companions from Prentiss' wrath.

"Rookies" Brings New Comedy Team To Lamb Theatre

Sam Wood is a director and Byron Morgan is an author. This combination is well established, for they are responsible for the many automobile successes of Wally Reid and also for Red Grange's screen debut in "One Minute to Play." This same combination has written and directed a new photoplay called "Rookies" which comes to the Lamb theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. However, while the stars of this production are individually very well known, they form in this feature a new comedy combination. They are Karl Dane and George K. Arthur. Both have appeared in many productions, too numerous to mention.

GEORGE K. ARTHUR and MARCELINE DAY in "ROOKIES"

Dane as a hard boiled sergeant and Arthur as an esthetic dancer are so vastly different, that even their appearances will evoke laughter from the most cynical. Besides Dane and Arthur, the feminine lead is portrayed by a very charming little miss who is one of the bright lights of the younger set. Her name is Marceline Day, and while you are not busy laughing at Dane and Arthur, you will find yourself occupied sighing over Marceline.

Farmer Demands Spooners Move On, Then Shoots

DALLAS, July 9.—Two charges of assault to murder were filed here today against L. F. Houck, farmer near here, in connection with the shooting last night of Miss Georgia Galvan, 18, and her escort, Robert Baltazar, 22.

Miss Galvan was peppered about the face and eyes with shot. Physicians say she may lose one eye. Baltazar received shot wounds in the chest.

Police said Houck made a signed statement after the shooting in which he alleged he shot after the couple refused his demand "that they drive on and quit spooning in front of my home."

Ranger Methodist Church Has Good Half Year Record

The affairs of the Methodist church of Ranger are in good order, as will be shown at the quarterly conference this week. The half year statement in the conference year has just been passed and every department of the church has shown an increase in interest.

The Missionary society, has met all its obligations both to the local congregation and the church at large; the Sunday school has been built up and shows a marked increase; and no department of the church shows a greater increase or more interest than the Epworth leagues.

The church membership shows a substantial increase, attendance is good and the church shows prosperity in every department.

Urges Observance Of State Highway Headlight Laws

A campaign for making night driving safe in Texas is being waged by the Automobile Headlight Division of the state highway department. In a circular letter sent out to the various chambers of commerce in the state, the Texas automobile headlight law is set forth very distinctly.

The law requires that motor vehicles traveling on the highway at night comply with the following rules:

1. Two headlamps must be burning.
2. The headlamps must be properly adjusted.
3. The tail light, either red or yellow, must be burning.

The circular further states "see that your car is equipped accordingly so you will not be stopped on the highways at night for not complying with the law."

A car should never be driven during hours requiring artificial illumination with only one headlamp burning or tail light out. These are most dangerous practices and direct violations of the law, the circular states.

DANCE HALL AT SHAMROCK PARK TAKEN BY FIRE

Located on Mirror Lake It Was One of Ranger's Boom Day Famous Pleasure Resorts

Shamrock park dance hall, one of the last dance halls of Ranger's boom days, located at the upper end of West Main street at Mirror Lake, is no more. It burned just after midnight Friday night. The cause of the fire is not known.

With the passing of this famous dance hall another chapter in the annals of the days when dance halls, roadhouses and cabarets were as common in Ranger as they are uncommon now was closed.

Shamrock Park was a vision of Ranger men of those days who realized the necessity for a close in bathing beach, park and dance hall. A stock company was formed and as a result of stock sold, the large dance hall and pavilion that burned early Saturday morning, a bath house and other buildings and runways were constructed. The lake was cleaned out and made fit for bathing purposes, the natural beauty of the park was added to by walks and Mirror Lake through 1920 and 1921 was a popular resort.

The Black Brothers now of California were among those who helped put over the project, which would have been a playground for thousands had not the boom bubble burst.

In 1921 Jack Jarvis ran the park and that summer practically all of the dances were given there and were well patronized by the best circles. The Fourth of July celebration was held there that year and was attended by hundreds.

After 1921 the popularity of Sham-

Oil Well Supply Company Man Is Painfully Hurt

I. A. McCaslin of the Oil Well Supply company, Ranger, was painfully hurt late Friday afternoon, when his hand went through a windshield of his car, as he was repairing it, at his home just off the Strawn road. Three arteries in his wrist were cut and all the leaders in his five fingers.

Mrs. McCaslin was away from home and the injured man ran across to the home of Dr. Logsdon for aid. While Dr. Logsdon was not at home, Mrs. Logsdon applied first aid, applying a tourniquet and stopped the bleeding until further medical aid arrived. It seems that Mr. McCaslin had taken the back windshield out of his car and was putting it back when he hit it with his hand and caused the accident that will confine him to the hospital for several days.
