

West Texas: Tonight and Thursday, partly cloudy, warmer in the Panhandle.

The majority of human effort can be traced down to a purely selfish motive?

U.S. EMBASSY IN PARIS UNDER HEAVY GUARD

STATE BRIEFS

AUSTIN, Aug. 24.—The University of Texas stadium is the first landmark of Austin noticed from the air.

The explanation given by aviators is that the capitol building flattens out from the air and its color, a red granite, does not catch the eye like the lighter color of the stadium.

No local landmark is adequate for real aviation conveniences, local fliers said. The proper designation is the name of the town on the ground in white on a dark field.

WACO, Aug. 24.—The suit for $1,000,000 interest in oil and gas output on land adjoining the city of Mexia brought by Annie Lou Fryar against the Atlantic Oil Producing company, probably will come up for trial in federal district court here early in November.

The suit was transferred here from Groesbeck and will be heard by Judge C. A. Boynton.

Mrs. Fryar, whose sister, Mrs. Ruth Dillard, is also a plaintiff, alleges that her father, H. C. Roller, leased to F. L. Thompson 54.6 acres of land one mile west of Mexia.

WACO, Aug. 24.—Governor Dan Moody will officially open the Texas Cotton Palace exposition here Oct. 22. In accepting the invitation, the governor indicated that he would be accompanied by several prominent state officials at the opening.

ALPINE, Aug. 24.—Spelling themselves as "young tourists," Mrs. Nettie G. King, 70, San Benito, Texas, and her cousin, Mrs. Ellen Bell, 64, West Columbia, Texas passed through Alpine on a 1,000-mile automobile tour of West Texas.

Mrs. King was driving the car over the lengthy trip, which included stops at various mountain points in this section. The women were reported to be very nimble mountain climbers.

WEATHERFORD, Aug. 24.—Famous men throughout the United States will be recipients of huge watermelons grown in this territory during the next few days.

Following an annual custom here, 300 of the choicest melons are being mailed to prominent men of the country. The largest of the melons, weighing 92 pounds, was sent to President Coolidge.

BROWNWOOD, Aug. 24.—Four barrels of chewing gum was the harvest reaped here when a local theater overhauled its seats. The amount represented accumulations of gum chewers who have been catching their "wax" under the seats for 10 or 12 years.

"Captain Erwin was reared, in part, at Sabanno, and numerous kinfolks live there now, including two uncles, George and Joe Erwin. Most of us know Captain Erwin personally, and are hoping that he may yet be found alive."

FUNERAL PLANS FOR REDS CAUSE ANOTHER CLASH

Defense Committee Would Hold Funeral Sunday But Statute Requires Interment Within Four Days From Death.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—Though legally closed by death, the Sacco-Vanzetti case clashed again today with the laws of the commonwealth. Funeral plans for the humble shoemaker and the fish peddler, who were electrocuted yesterday were the cause of the post-mortem controversy.

Loyal "friends" of the cause wanted to give the public an opportunity to pay final tribute to the "martyrs," but arrangements for a mammoth funeral procession for Sunday afternoon conflicted with the regulation providing that bodies shall be interred within four days after death.

Thus burial or cremation of the bodies before Friday night is mandatory. Numbers of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee indicated that every effort would be made to avoid cremation prior to Sunday's demonstration.

As a lost resort, however, the bodies would be cremated and the ashes borne through the city's streets at the head of a funeral procession without parallel in Boston, it was said.

Funeral services for Sacco and Vanzetti will be "without benefit of clergy."

Defying police and health officials the defense committee announced this afternoon that the bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti would be borne through the city streets Sunday. This final effort to mark the passing of the dead anarchists will be made "permitted or no permitted" according to the committee. While it was said there would be only 200 "official mourners" it was predicted that hundreds more would join the procession.

Hockley County Lets Contract For Courthouse

LEVELLAND, Aug. 24.—Contract for construction of Hockley county's $128,569 courthouse has been let to a Kansas firm. Separate contract for plumbing and fixtures was awarded to a Lubbock concern. The new building will be of fire-proof construction throughout, and the floors and wainscoting will be of marble. The exterior will be of stone to the windows of the second story and from that point upward will be of brick. Actual construction will begin as soon as materials can be assembled. It is thought that the building can be completed in 175 working days, and will probably be finished by April 1, 1928.

PARIS RIOTS NOT TO HALT LEGION PLAN

Plans for Big Convention in Paris Will Proceed, 20,000 Members of Legion Will Be There Next Month.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 24.—Riots in Paris in protest against execution of Sacco and Vanzetti will not in the least affect plans for the American Legion convention in France next month it was said at Legion headquarters today.

"We feel the French government and the French people are glad to have us and there will be no danger," Dan Sowers, national director of the Americanism commission said. Sowers said there were 5,000 legionnaires in France now and 15,000 more planned to sail soon.

Bobby Jones Is Winner Again In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 24.—After alarming his admirers by trailing his first round opponent, young Morris McCarthy, for most of their match, Bobby Jones of Atlanta came through to victory today.

It was a close match for the former champion who was saved several times by the nervousness of his young opponent who but for a few slips might have produced the greatest upset golf has known in years by eliminating Bobby in first round of amateur championship.

Ducky Cockram, Philadelphia, defeated George V. Rotan, Houston, Tex., one up. Rotan led during the outward journey but the easterer crept up on him and won his match coming home.

DEFENDS HORSEMANSHIP OF FUTURE ENGLISH KING

NEW YORK.—The Prince of Wales, whose every fall from his saddle sends a ripple of chuckles across America, is really a dashing and competent horseman and the victim of international misunderstanding, says an article in the September Review of Reviews.

The point misunderstanding, explains the writer of an American expert in horsemanship, is that Americans do not understand the conditions of the British fox hunt, in which half the riders are likely to clock with a chicken barbecue, will be at Lake Leon, four miles southeast of the city.

CHICAGO WEST SIDE IS ROCKED BY EXPLOSION

Three Stone Buildings Are Completely Destroyed, Windows are Smashed and Fire Does Damage.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—A terrific explosion in Chicago's west side Italian district early today completely destroyed three stone buildings, smashed windows for blocks around and threw the neighborhood into a panic.

The three buildings were a total loss and subsequent fire which spread to surrounding buildings did considerable damage before the flames could be extinguished.

Police believe the explosion was caused by either dynamite or gas. Although three men were reported asleep in one of the stores, a complete search of the debris by firemen failed to reveal any bodies.

AUSTIN, Aug. 24.—Gov. Moody has been appealed to by State Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman to take a hand in the water rights fight in Texas.

Governor Moody has the appointment of a member of the state water board to make September 1. This board is to pass on Brownwood's water application in September.

of satisfactory action is not had retaining water rights for irrigation and city purposes as against power interests, Senator Woodward is in favor of a special session of the legislature to enact laws conserving water supplies.

TEDDY'S RUNNING MATE LIVES IN SEMI-ISOLATION

NEW YORK.—John M. Parker, Roosevelt's running mate in the 1912 presidential campaign, the stormiest petrel that ever occupied the governor's chair of Louisiana and millionaire by dint of life-time killing of red southern clay has been re-discovered in a $500 farm house in which he has buried himself beyond politics forever and ever.

Searching for the picturesque figure, a representative of Farm and Fireside discovered him in his frame cottage isolated from telephones, radio and telegraph stations, near St. Francisville, La. He was ready with an enthusiastic declaration that "These past four years have been the happiest of my life. I wouldn't go back to late dinners, dress clothes, steam heat, confusion—not for anything on earth."

Parker's isolation provides a refuge for much-sought public pete such as General Pershing who hides out with the ex-governor in the spring and fall to indulge in duck shooting.

Try This On Your Next Tire Thief, It Gets Results

HOUSTON, Aug. 24.—Seeing a negro prowler removing a tire from his automobile while it was parked in front of his home, J. F. Ross fired his pistol at the negro. The negro gave one jump and disappeared down the street. His shoes and hat were picked up from the street where he left them when he jumped and ran.

SEARCHING OF PACIFIC DRAWS TOWARD CLOSE

Little Hope Held Out For Rescue of Any of Flyers as Searching Ships Draw Near in Mid-Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—Vessels from Hawaii and the mainland, searching for Miss Mildred Doran and six missing Dole flight aviators will draw close together today in mid-Pacific.

The vast area of fog-shrouded waters they have put behind them has not revealed even the faintest glew to the whereabouts of the Golden Eagle, Miss Doran or the Dallas Spirit.

Little hope is held out that the unpatrolled area of the Pacific holds the missing flyers.

Should the ships meet with out finding them, the search will be abandoned.

American Royal Plans Enlarged Show This Year

KANSAS CITY.—Cash prizes, trophies and medals, totaling approximately $75,000, are being offered this year by the American Royal live stock and horse show that will be held at the Kansas City stock yards November 12-19. The American royal, for many years a great event here, ranks with the live stock shows of Denver and Chicago as one of the best and most widely known live stock exhibits in the country.

The committee in charge of the show is making preparations for a larger number of exhibits of livestock than in former years, besides many special features, not the least of which will concern 4-H club work and vocational agriculture for high school students.

Prizes offered for the beef cattle department, which includes Herefords, Shorthorns, Angus, Grade Steers and carlot cattle, total more than $25,000. More than $6,000 is offered for dairy cattle. These cattle are milking Shorthorns, Jerseys, Holsteins, Ayrshires, and Guernseys.

PARIS RIOTS GREATEST SINCE 1920

Yelling Mobs Shout 'Down With America' Legion Under Guard

PARIS, Aug. 24.—American legion headquarters and the American embassy were under heavy guard today after the most serious rioting in Paris since 1920. Unparalleled bitterness over the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti continued undiminished.

An army of 5,000 troops, guards and police surrounded the American embassy during demonstrations last night when yelling mobs shouting "down with Americans" tried to reach the building. Three republican guards were stabbed and 20 of the demonstrators arrested.

The movement to boycott the American Legion during its convention here next month spread to the provinces and grew in Paris. In the outskirts last night which became so serious that authorities feared a political revolt had started, 43 policemen were wounded, 12 taken to hospitals, hundreds of civilians were hurt and 250 arrests made.

The newspaper Quotidien, organ of former premier Edouard Herriot said today that the "Franco-American festival arranged for September 19, in connection with the American Legion convention is finished. Such a celebration would be a derision during a period of mourning for Sacco and Vanzetti," the newspaper added.

Big Cattle Deals Reported Made In Cochran County

BLEDISOE, Aug. 24.—Cochran county, during the last three weeks has seen cattle valued almost a quarter of a million dollars. Many tons of stock have been shipped out, and many cattle have changed hands, but will remain on the ranches here until next fall.

Although several small deals have been made, most of the recent cattle sales have been included in four large deals. The X-Ranch recently sold 1,200 head of heifers at $50 per head. Six hundred calves were sold at $35 a round. J. C. Landon, local rancher, disposed of his cattle for a consideration of $37,040. The fourth big deal was made when W. T. Campbell sold a Dalhart rancher 911 head of cattle for $39,000.

Girl's Fears Save Her From Death In Family Well

RAYMONDVILLE, Aug. 24.—Anita, 13 year old daughter of Juan Gonzales, saved her life late Tuesday by refusing to go into a well when told to do so by her father.

Maria Gonzales, Juan's wife had gone into the well to clean it. When she failed to return Gonzales told his daughter to go down to see what was the trouble. The girl became frightened and cried. Gonzales went down himself. Both were overcome by damp and were dead when brought out by neighbors two hours later.

Mourning Meeting End Peaceful But Trouble Follows

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Three persons including a woman were in a hospital today as result of a clash between police and Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Two mourning meetings were held in Hyde Park last night which ended peacefully with three cheers for the dead anarchists. After the meeting, however, trouble began.

FIRST WOMAN GOVERNOR SAYS FOR FORCED ON HER

NEW YORK.—America's first woman governor, Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, was literally forced into making her race for office by friends who obtained her nomination against her will and without her knowledge.

Mrs. Ross herself makes this statement in an intimate story of her political career to be published in Good Housekeeping for September.

"It had never entered my mind that I might take up the work laid down by my husband until such a possibility was suggested by the chairman of the state democratic committee," she says, telling of the days immediately following the death of her husband, whom she succeeded.

WATER RIGHTS. The people of West Texas will await with considerable anxiety the outcome of arguments which are to be heard next Monday by the state board of water engineers relative to the application by the city of Brownwood for a permit to impound waters of Jim Ned creek and Pecan bayou, tributaries of the Colorado river.

Now comes the head of the Syndicate Power company of Dallas and contends that the meeting held at Abilene on Aug. 18 was not representative of West Texas. That the meeting was controlled by people from Brownwood and Congressman Tom Blanton and State Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman.

It begins to look as though the Syndicate Power company has the advantage in the fight and this company has indicated that it is going to stand on its rights. Of course the power company's rights are legal rights only as against the justice and inherent rights for which the people of West Texas are fighting.

There certainly can be no justice in giving the Syndicate Power company or any other concern absolute water rights to the waters of the Colorado river. If this company now possesses this absolute right, its rights should either be revoked or modified. But just what can be done remains to be seen.

The main point of contention seems to be the difference between a legal right and an inherent right. West Texas claims a right to the water that falls out here and to water rights along the streams that pass through this section of the state. Where is there any justice in legally depriving them of these rights?

BUSINESS OUTLOOK. Confidence in a normal upturn of business activity during the latter part of the year has become fairly general. Meanwhile, business has been moving along toward the close of the summer season quietly and without notable changes but at a reasonably well-sustained rate.

In the steel industry current operations are on about the level of a month ago, while July steel production again declined slightly. On the other hand, the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation at the end of July registered the first important gain since December of last year. Following the introduction of new models automotive manufacturers have stepped up production, and the tire industry, now at the peak of seasonal demand, is running close to capacity.

Strengthened demand for copper, zinc and lead brought price advances to the nonferrous metal group, which has been suffering from price weakness for some months. Construction contracts awarded in July were under the record June figure but were still above the level of a year ago.

Trade generally is good. In the textile industry, buying resistance developed against the rapid advance of cotton prices, so that forward orders for goods were rather sharply curtailed in July. An unexpectedly low government estimate of this year's crop has further advanced prices, and the goods markets will probably be temporarily unsettled until the outturn of the crop becomes clearer.

In the corn belt, also, trade is hesitant pending the results of the harvest. ELIMINATING DUST STOCKHOLM—By sprinkling automobile roads with sulphite lye, a by product of the Swedish pulp mills, previously gone to waste, a new method has been found to eliminate dust. It also reduces maintenance costs and increases surface durability.

For several years experiments have been carried on, the sulphite lye being mixed with various other elements until now the best composition seems to have been found by Robert Karlberg of Norrkoeping, a Swedish engineer. Thought the sulphite composition invented by him the roadbed keeps its moisture even in warm weather. In the city of Stockholm the street department is using 356 tons of sulphite lye a year.

SOCIETY AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS

TONIGHT. Evening Meeting at 7:45 p. m. THURSDAY. Called Meeting of the 1920 Club at 3 o'clock at the Gholson. "The Willows" opens at 5 p. m. Lions Club luncheon at 12:15 p. m. at the Gholson.

FEDERATION PROGRAM OUTLINED IN BRIEF.

Ranger women are particularly interested in everything that pertains to the State Federation of Women's Club meeting in November on account of one of their own women, Mrs. M. H. Hagaman being a candidate for the presidency of the Federation. A large number of Ranger and Eastland county women are planning on going to El Paso to help put their candidate over.

Outline for the program for the thirtieth annual convention, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held November 7-12, in El Paso, has been completed by Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell, State president, and Mrs. D. L. Stephens of Anson, State program chairman. These club leaders with their husbands and Mrs. C. D. Kelly of Groesbeck, State chairman of American citizenship, spent last week in El Paso. En route there they visited Carlsbad Cavern, near Carlsbad, N. M., and were so impressed with the beauty of the place that they arranged a trip to the cave as an extra entertainment to be connected with the convention.

A trip down the valley has been arranged for the final day of the meeting. Another side trip will be to the Davis Mountains, where the club women will be guests of the Davis Mountain Federation. Several trips will be made into Old Mexico. Business sessions of the meeting will take place in the ballroom of the Orndorff Hotel, headquarters, with night programs at Liberty Hall. The board of directors will meet November 7 at the El Paso Woman's Club, and the first program of the convention will take place that night in the form of a pageant honoring pioneer club leaders.

The convention will formally open Tuesday morning November 8, President's evening will be observed on Wednesday, November 9, at which time Mrs. Fields will deliver an address on "Reverence," this being the theme of the convention. Instead of the usual Southern dinner, a fiesta dinner will be given Thursday night, November 10. Friday, November 11, Armistice Day, the chief attraction will be the citizenship department program and luncheon. Citizens of El Paso and soldiers of Fort Bliss will take part in the program as well as the El Paso federation and the convention. The speaker will be Gifford Gordon of Melbourne, Australia, whose subject will be "America, Hold Fast."

Other prominent speakers will be Cameron Beck, personal director of the New York Stock Exchange, and Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of the McMurray College, Abilene. Distinguished guests will include Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore and Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis, candidates for the presidency of the general Federation, and Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson of Nowata, Oklahoma, candidate for the office of second vice president.

GUESTS AT COVINGTON HOME LEAVE FOR EL PASO. Lt. and Mrs. Harold Clarke of Dayton, Ohio and Mrs. Webster Fay of Fort Worth, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Shannon Covington at Lone Star Plant No. 1 left yesterday for El Paso and New Mexico. In El Paso they will be guests of Mrs. N. B. Lash. Lt. Clarke and his wife were formerly stationed in Honolulu and stopped in Ranger several months ago en route to Dayton. Mrs. Clarke is a sister of Mr. Covington.

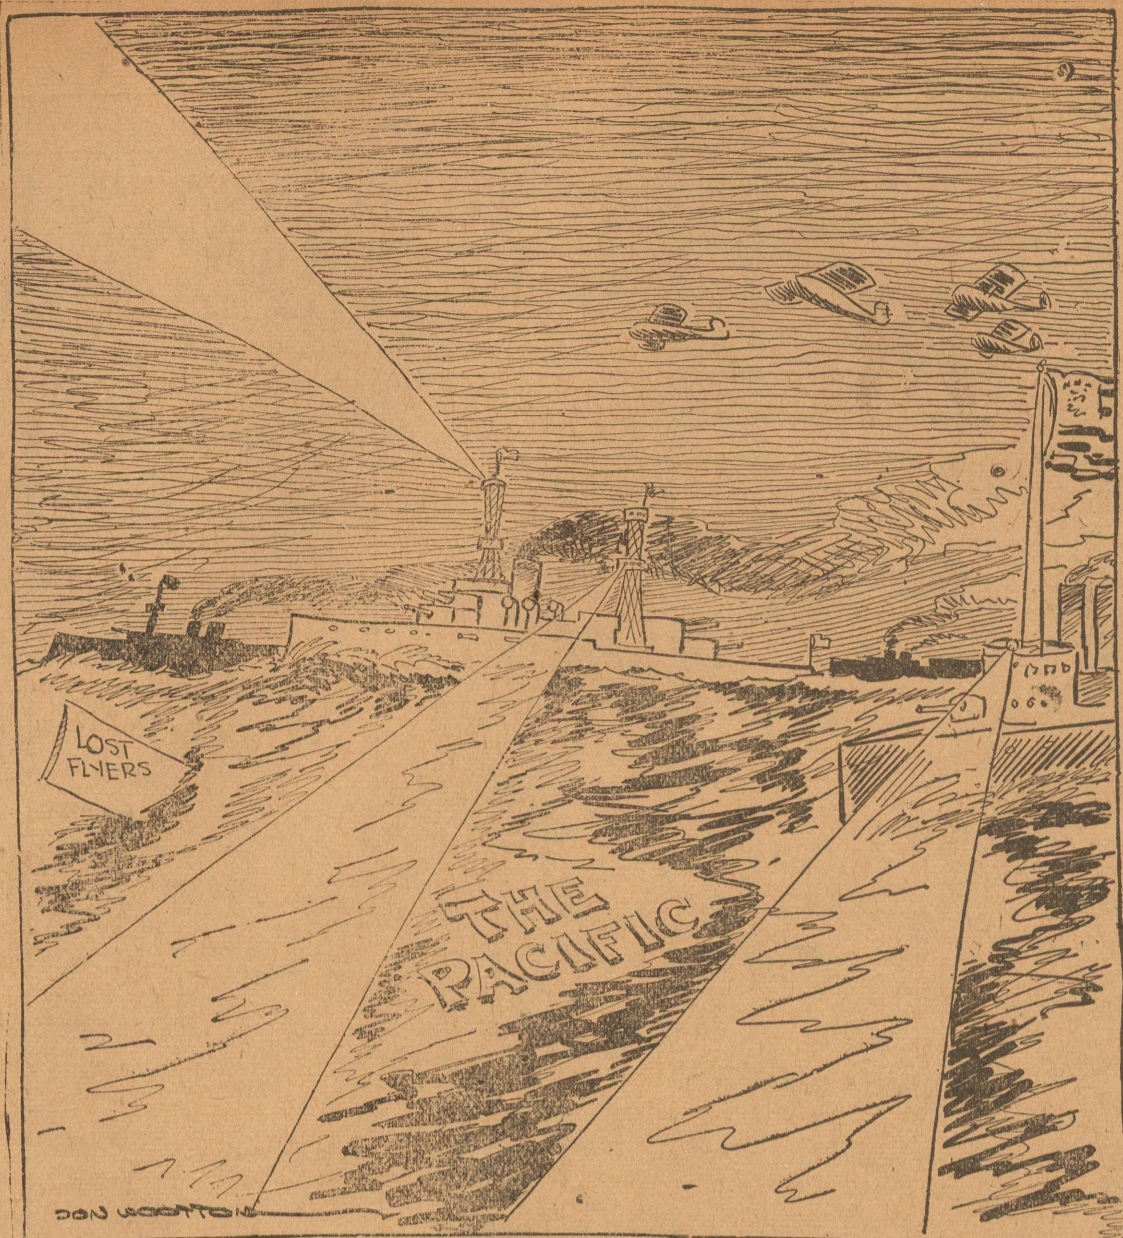

ADOLPHIAN CLASS PLANS SATURDAY BAKE SALE. The Adolphian class of the First Christian church had a splendid meeting Monday afternoon and got right down to business when they decided to have a bake sale on Saturday at Phillips Drug store. There were fifteen present at the meeting and everyone was enthused over the prospects of the fall work outlined by the class.

DOG DAY DANCE TO BE FRIDAY EVENING OFFERING. We've had hot dogs, doggy dogs and dead dogs and have lived through a number of dog days, but we've never attended a Dog Day dance—but everything comes to those who wait and on Friday night at the Ranger country club every dog is going to have his day at a Dog Day dance. The clever invitations, the result of somebody's doggy brainstorm, read something like this: "You remember the Full Moon Dance a couple of weeks ago—well this will be another good one with the original Rainbow Serenaders playing. Astronomers tell us that these are dog days. Bring your dogs out and shuffle them over the floor to this delightful music. "It's always cool out there and you won't want to miss this dance, too."

CHILD STUDY CLUB HAS FINE STUDY HOUR. The Child Study club which met with Mrs. G. B. McClelland, at her home at 323 Commerce street, Tuesday afternoon enjoyed a most pleasant and profitable study hour. A round table discussion was participated in by all present and was one of the interesting events of the afternoon. At the end of the study hour, Mrs. McClelland served frozen salad and cake to the some fifteen women who were present.

PERSONALS. Ivo Novakovich son of Mrs. N. J. Novakovich of Ranger, has returned to his business at Amarillo. Before his departure, his mother entertained for him with a swimming party, which was a most enjoyable affair. Mrs. Jack Speegle and Mrs. W. M. Speegle have returned from an automobile trip to Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. F. Carroll, of Panhandle, father and mother of Mrs. S. P. Boon, have returned home

In a New Role

Representative West Texas Will Meet Lindbergh

When Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrives in Abilene on Monday, Sept. 26, for his visit to West Texas, he will be officially greeted by a group truly representative of West Texas and of the forces impelling the development of this section of the southwest. Ranger will have a part in the ceremony. Honorable John Thurman, mayor, and Walter Murray, editor of the Times, have been given an invitation to serve on the reception committee for this affair. Mr. Murray has already notified the Abilene committee in charge of arrangements for the occasion that he will be there. In addition, each West Texas town are to have a feminine representative on the receiving committee. Miss Mabel Knight, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Knight, has been selected as the "Spirit of Ranger" and together with sponsors from other West Texas towns, will, in addition to taking part in the official welcome to be given the distinguished flier, be guests of honor at a number of elaborate social functions which will be arranged for them by Abilene people. Miss Emily Frances Key of Lampasas, who was crowned "Queen of West Texas" at the Wichita Falls convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will attend the affair and represent "The Spirit of West Texas." Miss Mary Alice Parramore, daughter of a pioneer West Texas family, is to be "The Spirit of Abilene" and as such will be the official hostess for the visiting "spirits." Lindbergh's stop in Abilene will be the only one for West Texas and the people of that city, through their Chamber of Commerce, are asking the assistance of all West Texas in making this affair a memorable one.

Pioneer Cemetery Association Will Be Organized Soon

A Pioneer cemetery association will probably be organized in Ranger at an early date, for the purpose of taking care of Pioneer cemetery, Ranger's before-the-boom-day cemetery. This cemetery dates back to the time when Ranger was known as Ranger's Camp Valley and the pioneers rest in the little cemetery that lies off Tiffin road, quite near the city. Mrs. H. B. Rawls of Fort Worth, a daughter-in-law of Mrs. Martha Rawls, has been in the city for the past few days and is quite interested in seeing the association organized and is willing to give a great part of her time toward its organization. A check-up of families whose dead are buried in the Pioneer cemetery reveals the fact that a great number live in Fort Worth and in Weatherford. Heretofore individual families have been keeping their graves in order but the necessity of a caretaker for the cemetery is a real one and this will be one of the aims of the association. The annual value of the commercial well waters of Texas is estimated at $20,000,000, which puts the "mined" waters of the state among its leading minerals.

SIXTH ANNUAL INTER-TRIBAL FETE AT GALLUP

Dressed in Aboriginal Costume Red Men Gather on Open Plain Near Foothills of Famous Zuni Mountains

GALLUP, New Mexico.—With the thin desert air laden with the fragrance of burning juniper and pinon wood from the camp fires of the "vanishing Americans" scattered over the mesas, the sixth annual inter-tribal Indian ceremonial opened here today.

of several hundred Indians dressed in aboriginal costume, thousands of white sand redmen will gather on the vast open plain which stretches to the distant pinon-covered, moonlit foothills of the Zuni mountains tonight.

Inside the array of covered wagons drawn around the grandstand and stockade, monster blazing log fires will serve as illumination for the opening of the three-day festivity of primitive Indian sports, games and sacred ceremonies, including the famous Indian Chicken Pull, in which 28 different tribes will participate.

In the flickering lights and shadows of the camp fire hundreds of painted redskins dressed in century-old ceremonial costume, will open the festival. All dances and chants of the thirteen southwestern tribes will be given excepting the Shalako Dance of the Zuni; the Snake dance of the Hopi and the Mountain Chant of the Navajos. Indians at the inter-tribal meet have thus far never consented to put on these three sacred ceremonies and chants.

In attendance this year are many people of prominence from all parts of the United States and Europe, as well as many noted scientists, educators, painters, sculptors, and writers; with a sprinkling of movie folks busy with cameras.

The five mile marathon for old men will occur Friday. All entrants under 74 are barred. The oldest competitor entered is 90.

An official marathon will be staged by the amateur athletic union of America. The Hopi chief, Quanaah, winner of the national championship race at Long Island, May 15 is an entrant in the races as well as Melika, the 58-year old Zuni Indian who ran a close third in the 480 mile San Francisco to Grants, Ore., race.

A unique exhibition of Indian handwork craftsmanship, relics and ancient Indian weapons of different periods of Indian history are on display as well as farm products grown by Indian farmers.

Hand-pounded, hand-carved, silver jewelry set with turquoise, beadwork and fiber plaques are arranged to be dazzle the eye of the white tourist.

Many old Navajo and Apache government Indian scouts, some of them far over the century mark mingle with the crowds, who have come to have a "look see," at the white man's Indian ceremonial.

The annual inter-tribal Indian ceremonial, given each year at Gallup, was originally formed in 1922, by a few Indian traders who desired to give their Indian customers a treat. It rapidly developed until now in its sixth year it is internationally known, and has become a cooperative institution that endeavors to serve as an incentive to the Indians of the southwestern tribes to keep alive and intact, as nearly as possible their ancient, sacred ceremonial rites.

We will gripe every day from now henceforth until we get fired or pensioned.

If it was not for the fact that all the labor organizations were about to strike in sympathetics with us we would probably not have started back to gripping but we didn't want to be the cause of the town being thrown into turmoil and consternation so we have decided to continue our crusade of upholding the weak against the strong, getting Eastland hill road fixed and boosting for the permanence yet more often recurrence of that great weekly occasion called pay day.

Now we'll let you all in on the secret of why we went on a strike ourselves. You see we were not in sympathy with Sacco and Vanzetti, but was confident they wouldn't be electrified and in case we spoke our piece they might come down and make an horrible example of us, and we are almost that already.

But now that justice has been meted out to them and there is no danger of their escape we might tell you some more of our opinions but we are still a little scared their local representative might get on us in a rough sort of way. The absence of a certain local figure who looks like he might be a Trotsky probably had nothing whatever to do with the efforts made to obtain executive clemency.

Somewhere we saw an article that said the Pleasant Grove road was such and such and so and so and so and a lot of flowers for various officials and then in about ten minutes

City Commission Will Meet Again This Afternoon

The city commission of Ranger met last night and stayed in session until after midnight literally burning midnight oil, and not getting the session completed, adjourned to meet again this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Four engineers, all seeking to be consulting engineers for the paving program mapped out for Ranger, were present and set fourth their claims.

Claude O'Neal, F. J. Von Zuben and Peabody of Dallas and Wright of Eastland were the four who presented their qualifications for handling the job.

They were heard at length but so far no one has been appointed to fill that position.

J. W. Hoops, prominent banker of Dallas and vice president of the Merchants National bank was a visitor at the meeting.

President Devereaux was in entire accord with the assertion of the bookmakers, saying that expenses for the season amounted to almost $75,000 and that the receipts were so low that the stockholders would suffer a heavy loss. Devereaux, who besides holding down the presidency of the Grand Circuit is chairman of the North Randall board of stockholders is of the opinion that circuit racing as far as Cleveland is concerned is about at the "sine die" stage, if the betting ban is continued.

Since North Randall was opened to the racing public in 1909, we have lost money steadily even with the betting machines," he said recently. "With the no betting edict in effect we are even more in the hole, and it seems improbable that racing can be continued here under such circumstances."

Transferring their betting to downtown hotels and "gambling resorts,"

As a result the stockholders are out some $25,000 or more. The "bookies" however, have their pockets well lined with "Cleveland gold," the result of moving their operations from the track to downtown hotels, frequented by race followers and "horse men."

Bookmakers declared after the meet that the only effect of Hanratty's order was "to deprive the public of betting at the speculation not only frustrated the efforts of Hanratty to stop betting, but it also netted the bookmakers a neat profit. More than $100,000 was estimated to have been up in bets during one day of the meet, and it was said no day went past but what there was at least $25,000 entered on the books.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Cleveland's first Grand Circuit races without betting have proved a "gigantic flop" as far as gate receipts and profits are concerned.

The "bookies" on the other hand, had the last and best laugh. Betting at the track was abolished by an order of Sheriff Edward J. Hanratty, in accordance with Ohio no betting law. H. K. Devereaux, president of the Grand Circuit announced he would comply with the order, adding however that it would mean a heavy loss to the North Randall track stockholders and a possible discontinuance of circuit racing in Cleveland.

Not a thin dime was allowed to be placed on the "ponnies" during the meet at North Randall, and all pari-mutuel machines and similar speculation devices were barred from the track.

As a result the stockholders are out some $25,000 or more. The "bookies" however, have their pockets well lined with "Cleveland gold," the result of moving their operations from the track to downtown hotels, frequented by race followers and "horse men."

The PENNY PRINCESS by Anne Austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY Vera Cameron assistant to Jerry Macklyn, advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., falls suddenly in love with a man whom she hears called Schuyler. She overhears him say he will be at Lake Minnetonka in June. Jerry Macklyn has just previously proposed to Vera that he transform her from the old-maidish type which she is, into a beauty, with the aid of Peach Bloom cosmetics, and that he be allowed to photograph her in every stage of the change.

"I haven't any sex appeal," Vera acknowledged bitterly. Vera, or Vee-Vee as she calls her, all she knows about charm and appeal. When Vera asks Jerry one evening to teach her how to be "fatal to men," he demurs with a significant flush. Finally, however, he agrees to "teach" her for three weeks prior to her trip to Minnetonka, and to teach her all he knows. When he suggests that they make it a foursome, including Flora and Peter Darrow Flora is delighted for she thinks this will throw her in contact with Jerry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

It was Saturday, June 18, and half past twelve o'clock. Vera Cameron was regarding with humorous dismay the array of packages which almost covered the flat top of her desk when Rosemary Fitch entered, carrying a large parcel. "Hello, Vee-Vee! It won't be long now! Aren't you thrilled to tears at the thought of being away from work until after the Fourth? Here's a vacation gift from Mr. Canfield, and my dear, it's the first time, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, that Stephen M. Canfield ever gave a girl a box of candy on her departure for a vacation. Five pounds! I'm staggering under the load!" Vee-Vee laughed. "Isn't he a dear?" Vee-Vee laugh-edged, her mouth tightening. "It was—very funny. Will you thank Mr. Canfield for me, Rosemary? I'm afraid I won't have time to write him a note. I've got a thousand things to do before my train leaves tonight," she hinted, praying that jealous little Rosemary would leave. "Is Jerry—Mr. Macklyn—in?" Rosemary dropped her voice to a whisper as she glanced toward the closed door of Jerry's private office. "No, he's at the printer's. But I'm expecting him back by one o'clock. He wanted to see me before I left." Vee-Vee answered, busying herself at her desk. "Where are you going on your vacation, Vee-Vee?" Rosemary asked. "That's a secret," Vee-Vee smiled. "I'm not telling anyone." "The girls say you've been spending all your noon hours shopping, and that Jerry has given you three half days off, in addition to Saturday afternoons," Rosemary persisted. "You must be going to Newport or to Hollywood to get into the movies. I wouldn't blame you a bit. You're the most stunning thing I ever saw, with that gorgeous copper-colored hair and those green eyes. Listen, Vee-Vee, will you tell me one thing? Are you engaged to Jerry Macklyn? All of us know he's wild about you and that he's been rushing you like mad. I saw you at Smallwood's and at the Manhasset Yacht club with him." "I'm not engaged to Mr. Macklyn, Rosemary," Vee-Vee interrupted her rather sharply. "I have no strings on him at all. You can spend the expecting every letter to be written before his secretary leaves. I'm just warning you," she added casually, turning back to her desk so that Rosemary should not have a chance to fathom the expression in her green eyes. "You can't scare me off," Rosemary laughed. "Goodby, Vee-Vee, dear. Have a good time—but don't hurry back." When Rosemary had gone Vera Cameron began to open and close the drawers of her desk, her mind a chaos of emotions. An hour ago she had been so happy in the realization that the 18th of June had finally arrived. The goal for which she had striven for six mad, miracle-working weeks was just ahead. Her reservation had been made for a room and bath at the expensive, exclusive Minnetonka hotel. Her railroad and car man tickets were snugly secure in a new lizard skin handbag. Two wardrobe trunks were already packed and checked through to Lake Minnetonka. She whispered the name—"Schuyler!" But for once it failed to evoke his image. She sat, cold with fright, at the enormity of the thing she had done. Intoxicated with her new beauty—beauty made possible by Jerry Macklyn—she had recklessly, magnificently, "shot her bank roll" to dress that beauty as it deserved. Well—she drew a deep, quivering breath that betrayed her panic—it was done, now, for better or worse. She had just enough money left to pay for two weeks in the Minnetonka Hotel. She had been so frantically busy getting ready for her sortie into the world of idleness and fashion in search of the man she had fallen in love with, that she had not had time to be frightened before. Now that she was ready to go a black swarm of fears swooped down upon her, squeezing at her heart, sending prickles of goose-flesh all over her body. What if "Schuyler" had changed his mind, was not at the Minnetonka after all? What a fool she would have made of herself! How Jerry Macklyn would laugh at her if she came back, penniless and defeated! And even if "Schuyler" was at Minnetonka, what right did she have to suppose, for one insane moment, that she could make him desire her above all other women—women of his own set, women of wealth, fashion and charm? And weren't the chances pretty strong in favor of his already being married? He must be at least thirty, and most eligible men are not allowed to reach thirty without being trapped into marriage. "What a fool, what a fool she was! She beat her clenched hands against her desk. "Hello, there! All set to go?" Vee-Vee looked up, startled, into Jerry Macklyn's broadly smiling, ruddy face. "Nearly ready," she replied, rising. "I'm glad you got back before I left. Rosemary Fitch was in—she brought me a five-pound box of candy from Mr. Canfield." "Got the old man going too?" Jerry chuckled. "This vamping of yours is assuming the proportions of a scandal. I've been to the printer's—got proofs on those ads and the booklets. It looks great—better even than I'd hoped. You photograph like a million dollars. Believe me, young woman you're going to be famous from Portland to Portland when these ads of 'The Peach Bloom Girl' come out. Ziegfeld and the movie producers will be wiring us for your name and to offer you staggering contracts—here, look!" Jerry spread a series of printer's proofs across the top of her desk. Two photographs stared up at her from each of the pages—a picture of a plain, dowdy, freckled girl, her eyes concealed by horn-rimmed spectacles and, in amazing contrast, a picture of Vera Cameron after the miracle had been wrought—a breathtakingly beautiful girl. Jerry's cheerful voice boomed on, ignoring her dismayed silence: "And here are proofs on the booklet that will be mailed to every woman in the social register, from New York to San Francisco, and distributed free by every retailer of Peach Bloom cos-

Please, Jerry, I couldn't bear it to have my picture broadcast—for people to laugh at and joke about—oh, can't you see how it would humiliate me? I'd rather die, Jerry—" Jerry Macklyn reached for her hands, held them in a grip that hurt her, but his face was grim and his

AVIATION PIONEERS SUFFER TRAGEDIES HISTORY SHOWS

Many Went to Their Graves Disappointed Because Doubting World Withheld the Little Faith that Was Necessary for Success

By THOMAS L. STOKES, United Press Staff Correspondent. AVIATION SERIES No. 9 WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The young aviator today who glides easily from the ground into the airy grace of the bird is heir to centuries of research and investigation by many men who gave their best years to a dream that they never saw realized. It is well for the young man to know something of the history of aviation, and the men who advanced it, not only because of the debt he owes them, but because it is necessary for the full development of the new science, which is still in its infancy despite the apparently advanced stage that has been reached. There is a touch of tragedy in the careers of some of these aviation pioneers, even as long as 75 and 80 years ago, came to practical realization of their dreams of flying, only to have the world fail in faith and withdraw or withhold that little bit of support that is necessary. They went to their graves disappointed. Significantly, one of these men, an Englishman, who came very near to success, passed his last disappointing days in the United States, in Texas. He did not succeed in making a practical machine, but he left many ideas that have been adopted in the modern airplane.

Many Near Success. This was Samuel Henson, who in 1840 patented a huge aircraft, called "Henson's aerial steam carriage," which was to be 150 feet in spread and to be driven by a 20-horsepower steam engine. It was to carry two 20-foot, six-bladed propellers. There is a small model of the machine in the Smithsonian institute here, and it looks very much like the modern airplane. Henson made models of his device, with the aid of John Stringfellow, but poor success and lack of general interest disheartened him and he left England for Texas. Stringfellow went ahead with his experiments after Henson went to America, and was particularly efficient in the construction of small steam engines, and one of these he placed in a small aircraft similar to those which Henson had built. Paul E. Garber, of the Smithsonian institute, described Stringfellow's success in a history of aviation he has just completed. "About 10 years after Henson's attempt," he says, "Stringfellow succeeded in getting a model to show a lift when propelled by its own engine down a length of wire. It is reported that the plane actually flew a short distance after raising itself from the wire. If so this is the first record of dynamic flight."

First Machine. The first "flying machine" of which there is any record in history was the imitation bird constructed by Archytas of Tarentum, 400 years before Christ. It was about the size of a pigeon, and was reported to have flown some 50 feet by the use of "atherial air," which may have meant compressed air. Leonardo Da Vinci, known to the world best as a painter of the Italian Renaissance, but also a statesman, engineer and philosopher of distinction, is given credit for the first design embodying sound principles. It was a wing-flapping machine. It was never built. Of this machine, Garber says: "The operator was supposed to lie on the central beam with his body through a ring and project his head through the yoke, thrusting his arms through rings and grasping handles attached to the wings. His feet were to be placed in stirrups on the ropes. By frog-like actions, he was to flap the wings and thus fly. This feat would be impossible." Following Henson and Stringfellow, the story comes down to modern times for its next significant chapters, to Lilienthal in Germany, Langley and the Wright brothers in the United States. Lilienthal achieved considerable success with gliders. Garber thus describes his work: "Using bat-shape wings with various balancing surfaces, he made more than a thousand glides from natural hills and artificially constructed eminences. At first he steered and balanced these gliders by movements of his body; later he devised a system of levers and flaps to control the machines and finally installed a small engine in a biplane glider." The Smithsonian institution has one of Lilienthal's gliders which he used in 1895-96.

Wright Brothers. The story comes finally, for its climax in success, to America, to Wilbur and Orville Wright and Samuel Pierpont Langley, the latter for many years secretary of the Smithsonian institution. Langley came into the public eye before the Wrights, with the plane which now hangs from the ceiling of the institution here which he served so long. Langley began a series of tests in 1887 with what he called an "aerodrome," which evolved finally into the fifth machine, which now hangs in the institution. This machine flew under its own power over the Potomac for three-fourths of a mile on May 6, 1896, but did not carry a man. When the war with Spain broke out in 1898, the war department allotted Langley $50,000 to build a man-carrying plane. Due to delays in developing the proper type of light high-powered gasoline motor, the machine was not completed until 1902. Two attempts were made in that year to fly the plane, but they failed, the failure being laid to the catapulting mechanism by which an attempt to launch the plane was made from a house-boat along the Potomac. The public became skeptical, Langley's plane became known as "Langley's Folly," and further funds were refused. A few years later, Langley died, a broken man.

Dream Realized. He did not live to see Glenn H. Curtiss fly his machine at Hammond-sport, N. Y., in 1914. Champions of the Wright brothers have maintained that certain changes were responsible for the plane's success, contending that it never would have flown as originally constructed, that it was faulty in principle. The controversy perhaps will run on until the end of time. Only nine days after Langley's second failure, the public that had scoffed at man's attempts to fly by referring sarcastically to his plane as "Langley's Folly," learned from their newspapers that the Wright brothers had flown their twin-propellered plane successfully at Kitty Hawk, N. C. That flight lasted but a minute, but it meant the realization of a dream. The advance since that time has been rapid. The Wrights had so far perfected their plane by 1908 that it flew for over an hour at Fort Myer, Pa., carried a passenger, and made round-trip journeys from city to city. The army purchased the plane, thus becoming the first government to own and operate an airplane. It now hangs in the Smithsonian institution. Wilbur Wright died in 1912. Orville lives to see the airplane a part of man's every-day life. Man has aspired to fly almost since he could walk. It has taken these centuries to bring the reality. The study, research and toil of many men for hundreds of years is represented in that plane that flies over the house at night, purring contentedly as it places the miles behind it, slipping steadily through the air on its regular route with passengers and the articles of commerce and trade which one part of the country buys from another. Those here mentioned are only a few who have contributed to its advance.

Walker-Smith Will Build New Home in Ranger

Work of razing the old Walker-Smith frame wholesale grocery house on the corner of East Main and Railroad avenue, Ranger, will start on Sept. 1 and as soon as the site is cleared, construction of a new fire-proof modern wholesale grocery house and cold storage plant will start.

Walker-Smith company will be located temporarily across the Texas & Pacific railroad tracks from the American Express company in the Ranger Storage building and work of vacating the old building and moving the stock into its temporary quarters will start in ample time for the wrecking of the former building to begin on Sept. 1. The new building, which will be built by Mr. Bratton, a Brownwood contractor, will be a one-story fire-proof brick, 80 by 100 feet. The office will front on East Main street and the loading will be done from the Railroad avenue side of the building. It will be modern in every respect and include cold storage facilities. J. C. Harwell is local manager of Walker-Smith, and has recently bought a home here. Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Jones, recently of Brownwood, are also connected with the Ranger house and have taken apartments at the Marston.

Tobacco Grown On Farm Near Ranger Put on Display

W. C. Hickey, secretary of the Ranger chamber of commerce is preparing to "roll his own" as he has a stalk of tobacco on display at Swaney's Drug store, the leaves of which are so large that they would make the mouth of any devotee to nicotine water with anticipation.

The darg green stalk is topped with a pretty pink blossom and is about two and one-half feet tall. Mr. Hickey is experimenting with tobacco on his farm on the Spring road, about a mile and a half east of Ranger.

BROWNSVILLE—Cameron county plans a concrete highway from Barreda to Point Isabel to cost about $700,000.
