SEARCH CONTINUES FOR SLAYERS OF FISHER COUNTY OFFICERS

ABANDON ALL CLEWS AND START OVER

Ranger Police Asked To Identify Women Held at Fort Worth

By United Press.
ROBY, Texas, Sept. 1.—The search for Bill Smith and Lloyd Constanter, wanted for the slaying of Sheriff Robert Smith and Deputy Sheriff Jack Owens, settled into a resolute search today after officers decided that several clues that have been received were "blind."

Unless the slayers have eluded searchers and fled into Oklahoma or New Mexico it is believed they are hiding in this section. The search under the direction of Sheriff Jack Yarbrough of Sweetwater will continue.

Sheriff Yarbrough and a party of deputies rushed to Fort Worth yesterday in an effort to locate a woman companion of Smith. Another clue that the men were believed to be hiding near Gainesville has also been discarded. Also the theory that one or two men killed under a passenger train might be the slayers.

Ranger police department had a call early this morning from the Fort Worth police in connection with the man hunt that has been staged since Sunday by citizens of Fisher county, who are hunting for the slayers of the sheriff of Fisher county and his deputy, who reported that an Oldsmobile bar bearing a Fisher county license was detained in Fort Worth this morning, when two women at 4 o'clock stopped there to have new casings put on two of the wheels.

One of the women, it is said, claimed she was from Ranger. The officers said the women claimed to be en route to Galveston. The department here did not know any one in Ranger by the name given them by the Fort Worth police.

Miss Rider was in the berth with Miss Anderson when the attack occurred.

PRIDE DETROIT HOPES TO REACH BAGDAD TODAY

Delayed in Turkey Because of Flying Regulations, But On Way Soon.

By United Press.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 1.—William S. Brock and Ed F. Schlee of Detroit attempting a flight by airplane around the world had hopes of reaching Aleppo and perhaps even Bagdad today.

Since leaving Croydon England three and one-half days ago, they have covered 1,584 miles and they were anxious to begin gaining a little on their schedule. They hoped that during the morning they could get away from Constantinople where they arrived yesterday.

If that leg of the journey can be completed in time they expect to continue before night and make Bagdad, an additional 485 miles.

Brock and Schlee had neglected to obtain permission to fly over Turkish territory. When they landed at the Turkish city they learned of the Turkish permit law and had to spend the rest of the day trying to straighten out the difficulty.

Through their testimony Anderson expects to establish an alibi.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The state department instructed the American embassy in Paris to begin immediate negotiations with the French government for a Franco-American commercial treaty, the United Press learned today.

A draft treaty giving the United States "most favored nation treatment" has been prepared by this government as a basis for the negotiations.

Under the recent Franco-German trade agreement French tariff will be increased in such a way as to seriously affect American trade unless the United States obtains the desired treaty.

Previous efforts of the United States to negotiate such a treaty have been rejected by France on the ground that she could better discuss the problem with the United States after her German treaty negotiation was completed.

STATE WINS ITS SUIT FOR OIL LAND MONEY

By United Press.
AUSTIN, Sept. 1.—The state of Texas today won practically every point in the Blaffer oil suit. The amount of the suit has not yet been computed.

The finding gives the state oil-producing land that was in controversy. Some land not yet oil-producing was found to belong to oil companies.

State attorneys estimate oil production on the land recovered totaled $10,000,000. From this the cost of production is to be deducted. The amount of the verdict was not stated. Formal verdict will be entered Oct. 24, after reports from accountants.

The state expects to net $8,000,000 from the judgment. The judgment cuts out the Adolph Goldman heirs of Houston from any part in the holdings.

It holds that G. C. Perkins, claimant to some of the land filed properly for a state permit on it but the permit was never issued. This cuts off Perkins from any participation in oil already taken from the land, but he can still push his claim to land covered in the permit.

The amount recovered will go to the state school fund.

The train was enroute from the non-union mining field of West Va., and this led authorities to believe the shooting might have been caused by union and non-union difficulties in the field.

Several shots were fired at the train, according to reports here.

UP IN THE AIR.

The world, more particularly those countries furthest advanced in civilization are literally up in the air in regard to aviation.

There is more flying now than at any time except during the great war and there is far better flying now than the world has ever seen before.

America, Great Britain, France, Germany are flying mad just now. But in all probability there will soon be a reaction against the present enthusiasm for flying.

Of course these efforts are only incidental in the progress of aviation, but they are an essential step in the development of flying.

Out of nine persons who entered the Dole air race from San Francisco to Hawaii only four were successful in completing the flight.

Right now there are probably a half dozen planes in the United States, England, France and Germany that are standing all tuned up ready for a flight across the Atlantic as soon as weather conditions appear favorable.

Nothing really important is to be accomplished by any of the flights except as they will advance aviation just a little further and thinking persons are prone to ask if it is all really worth the chances that are being taken.

But now the glory of flying across the Atlantic or the Pacific ocean has just about been used up. Within the past few months at least four planes have crossed the Atlantic and one or two others are out over that vast stretch of water now.

Of course there will for many years be uncharted air routes over which some adventurer will be willing to take his chances, some for mere glory, others for the sake of the advancement of aviation.

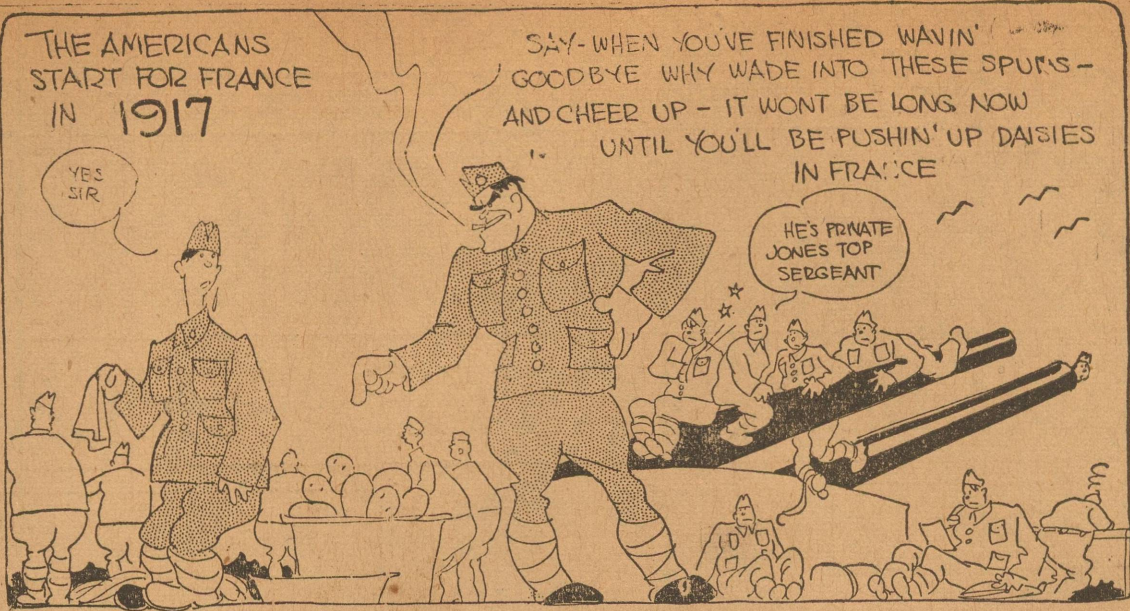

But indications are that there will be less of the reckless daring attempts than has been the case during the past few months. Flyers in all probability from now on will be more careful of weather conditions and above all will probably be surer of the witness of their planes before taking off on adventurous trips.

Many Inquiries Regarding Lease Submerged Lands

AUSTIN, Sept. 1.—Many inquiries have been received by J. T. Robinson, state land commissioner, regarding the submerged oil and gas areas on the Texas coast which are to be leased on bids September 30.

It is the tenth list of submerged areas the state has submitted for lease, but it is much larger than any area offered heretofore.

According to Robinson, there is no limit to the number of acres one person, firm or corporation may acquire. Two or more persons may join in an application for any one or more tracts. The bidder offering to pay the most in addition to the 10 cents an acre minimum will get a 25 year lease.

The land cannot be held undeveloped more than 10 years. After that it will be forfeited back to the state if production has not been secured in commercial quantities. If such production is secured, the lease holder must pay one-eighth royalty on the output. While royalty is being paid the lease payment on the acreage will not run. If royalty payment ceases lease payment must be made.

If two or more offers the same price on a tract, all will be rejected and the tract re-advertised for future lease. No charge is made for bidding. The payment for a year must be sent in with the bid, but if it is not the highest bid, the payment will be returned.

The tracts are generally large because of the greater expense and hazard of development in water. One tract in Matagorda Bay totals 29,000 acres. The smallest is 150 acres in Nueces Bay. The Nueces county areas are surveyed. In the others the area is computed. The tracts offered are in Chambers, Galveston, Calhoun, Jackson, Matagorda and Nueces counties.

In case you think we were wrong about the weeds on East Main street we would like to call your attention to a few pictures in the show window at The Globe.

You can see for yourself that the weeds are higher than the cow that is eating them, and what the heck is the cow doing wandering around eating weeds off the sidewalk, anyway?

Speaking of weeds, how do you like the crop down here on the vacant lot beside the postoffice? If you have never seen weeds grow up through the sidewalk before, you don't have to risk getting lost on East Main—just go to the postoffice.

A friend of ours asked to express a few pains with reference to a few more street lights. We don't know just what procedure is necessary to get them—we mean the street lights—but we could stand a few more in the residence sections of the city.

When one walks home after dark one has a creepy feeling, and whistling a tune would merely help a yegg to locate you, whereas if you could get under a light once in a while you would have at least some chance of knowing what the guy looked like.

This is in one respect the craziest town we've ever in. That one respect is in regards to people driving automobiles.

The guy that's parked always has the right of way here, and when he gets ready to join the procession, he just puts her in reverse and shoots back and if you are driving on your own side of the street you better be wide awake or it'll be just too bad.

We had a narrow escape last week. One guy backed out that way from in front of Jamesons and another backed out in a big hurry from in front of the Ranger cafe and here was us trying to dodge both of them at the same time. We did by getting on the wrong side of the street.

Then, too, if you happen to approach a cross street, more particularly Commerces at Main you'd better not be snoring, because ice cream trucks and wholesale house trucks have the right of way over everything. We don't know how they get that way, but they are. They are all good drivers, true enough, but some of these days you're going to see someone picked up with a blotter down there.

And watch the grocery hacks. The housewives are always in a big hurry for their groceries and the boys that do the delivering are doing their best to make the schedule and, boy, listen, they never have over two wheels on the ground when they take a corner.

The strange thing is they are always in twice as big a hurry to get back to the store after a delivery as they are getting the stuff delivered—at least that's what we've heard from different sources, meaning ladies who were late in phoning their order in.

Moral: If you can't whip 'em, join 'em, by heck.

Hairdresser At Convention Says Long Hair Gone

By CHARLES E. AHRENS, United Press Staff Correspondent.
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 31.—Milady's coiffure for the coming year will be marked by the utmost simplicity with just a touch of the bizarre in curl effects, if the guess of Miss Betty Butte, one of a committee of three directing the National Hairdressers' association convention here proves correct.

The "collegiate" and other modes of dressing hair, which caused some to think that Rudyard Kipling's line "a rag, a bone, and a hank of hair" was more truth than poetry, will be displaced by more dignified coiffures, the product of the hairdresser artist, according to Miss Butte. Five creations will be decided upon as the basic modes for the coiffures of the coming year on the last day of the national convention Sept. 1. What the new creations will be is a matter of guesswork, the five best styles being chosen from the finished results of hairdressers working on their own models. Judges will pick those that appear the most practical and the most artistic and gradually will weed their selections down to the five winners.

Ohio hairdressers, although unwilling to state specifically what they believe the new modes will be, say hair will be longer next year but that bobs will not suffer through the change. The present tendency, according to prominent hairdressers, is the done up coiffure, which indicates that Milady's hair, when down, will fall just below the back of the neck. "The long hair of the horse and buggy era will never come back," Miss Butte said. "There will be long hair during the coming year but it will be of reasonable length and not so unwieldy that it cannot be combed or done up properly. However, the collegiate bobbed styles of the past year will be displaced by something more dignified and sensible."

Hairdressers throughout the nation are attempting to place their occupation on a professional basis and, at present, an attempt is being made to convince the public that a hairdresser is as much of an artist as a highly paid dressmaker. For the accomplished, the business in the hairdressing line is reported as extremely good. For the amateur, it is said to be "terrible." The public should understand, one Cleveland hairdresser asserted recently, "that dressing of hair and choosing of suitable crowns are much on the same plane. The style that is the best for one is not at all suitable for another. It is an artist's work, and worthy of the best prices."

All of the new styles and creations will be selected during the meeting, and new ideas will be brought forward, which later will be "broadcast" from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico, and from New York to San Francisco. The five creations chosen by the judges will be displayed for the first time at the brilliant fashion show, dance and banquet to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler, Thursday, Sept. 1. The coiffures shown will be the work of hairdresser artists and each delegate will keep a mental picture of the five new styles and

TRAVIS' ACCURACY.
By United Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The amazing accuracy of the late Walter J. Travis on the putting greens is explained by Grantland Rice, editor of the American Golfer, in a current biographical tribute to the American pioneer of the game.
"He devised the scheme of smaller holes on the practice course at Garden City, holes only a trifle larger than the ball," says Rice. "He practiced there for hours. And when you can drop them steadily into a two-inch cup, one double the size looks like a keg."

Poor Pitching Is Responsible For Low Rated Clubs

By BILLIE EVANS
Southpaws once more rule supreme as the strikeout kings of the American League. Shad's of Rube Waddell.

Recently when I glanced at the American League averages, "Lefty" Grove and Rube Waddell of the Athletics were running one, two. Grove had 148 strikeouts to his credit, while Waddell had registered 101.

In the National League, the right-handers hold the advantage. Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn ace, leads with 140 strikeouts, while Charley Root, of the Chicago Cubs, leading game winner, is second with 123 as I knock off these lines.

While this quartet of twirlers all boast a great fast ball, it is the deceptive curve of which each is the master, that has accounted for most of the strikeouts.

Curve ball pitching is at present in high favor in the majors, particularly in the National League. The well-controlled curve is a great strikeout medium.

Poor Hurling Elamed
When you start trying to dope why the world champion Cardinals are not out in front by a fair margin and why Cleveland, runnerup in the American League last year, is sixth this season, just glance at the pitching averages.

As you peruse the work of the twirlers in the two major leagues, look carefully for the names of Uhlé of Cleveland and Rhem of St. Louis. The figures back of the names of these two hurlers tell the story in a brief and concise manner.

Last season Uhlé won 27 games and lost only 11 to top the pitching averages of the American League. With only a month to play, Uhlé's name shows only five wins against six defeats. A bad arm has handicapped him all season. Add 20 victories to Cleveland's present average and it would mean a first division berth for the Indians.

That sums up the difference between Uhlé's work of this year and last. Granting Uhlé will win only two more games this year, his mark would be 20 shot of his 1926 showing.

Rhem Shy 1926 Mark
Last season Flint Rhem with 20 victories against seven defeats, ranked second in the National Ray Kremer of Pittsburgh won the same number of games and lost one less, giving him a few points the better of Rhem.

This spring a salary difference caused Rhem to remain away from the training camp. He missed all of his spring work, since the dispute wasn't adjusted until after the season opened. That hurt.

Later in the season, he drew a suspension because of some alleged or real infraction of the club's rules. That didn't help. In addition, he just couldn't get the breaks.

While Rhem has pitched well enough, he hasn't been favored with the same good luck that came his way last year. His record, as I write these lines, is nine wins against 10 defeats. If he wins five more games, he will still be six shy of his 20 victories of 1926: Six additional wins would mean much to the Cardinals right now.

One winning pitcher able to turn in 20 or more victories in a season often means the difference between a pennant winner and just a good ball club.

Scientists Of World Gather For Convention

By HENRY T. RUSSELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LEEDS, Aug. 31.—A conference and an annual controversy will begin at 8 o'clock tonight when that internationally famous body, the British association for the advancement of Science begins its annual sessions.

Scientists from practically every section of the world are here to attend the meetings and advance plans indicate that subjects to be considered will make the 1927 session particularly noteworthy.

Prominent among the subjects for discussion will be Professor Sir Arthur Keith's address on "Darwin's Theory of Man's Descent as it Stands Today." This, the opening address of the general meeting, will be delivered when Sir Arthur assumes the presidency of the association for the coming year, in succession to the Prince of Wales.

Owing to the prince's present trip to Canada and the United States, he was prevented from personally turning over his office to his successor, much to the disappointment of the association.

Besides Sir Arthur Keith's address, others to be delivered include the discussion of chemical, zoological, geographic, botanical, economical and agricultural subjects and an address on engineering, by Professor Sir J. B. Henderson.

Some idea of the variety attained at this year's meeting can be obtained from the following list of titles chosen for addresses, to be followed by discussion:

The Ancient History of Sponges and Animals, by Dr. G. P. Bidder.
The Problem of Polar Geography, by Dr. R. V. Ramose Brown.
Some Aspects of the present-day investigation of Protophyta by Professor F. E. Fritsch.
Rationalization of Industry, by Prof. D. H. Macgregor.
Agriculture and National Education, by C. G. T. Morrison.
The Outstanding Problems of Relativity, by Professor E. T. Whittaker.
The Englishman of the Future by Professor F. G. Parsons.
Cosmic Rays by Professor R. A. Millikan.
The Structure and Formation of Colloidal Particles; Climates of the Past; Innate Characteristics and Social Differences; Lubrication; The Control of Plant Diseases; Coal; The Psychology of Special Scholastic Disabilities.

Between Uhlé's work of this year and last. Granting Uhlé will win only two more games this year, his mark would be 20 shot of his 1926 showing.

Rhem Shy 1926 Mark

Opening Dance At Cisco Pavilion Saturday Night

Special Correspondence.
CISCO, Sept. 1.—The first of a series of fall dances to be given at the Lake Cisco pavilion is scheduled for Saturday night, and since it will signalize the opening of the fall season, Manager F. G. Berry of the Lake Cisco Amusement company, is making elaborate preparations for the event. He is sparing neither effort nor expense to make this, the first dance sponsored by the amusement company itself, the most successful held in this part of Texas in a long, long time.

As the first feature, he has engaged the Wisconsin collegians orchestra, one of the highest paid dance orchestras in the country, to furnish music for the event. The eight members of the orchestra are all college boys who are playing their way through the University of Wisconsin. As a novel stunt, the eight boys will play 16 different instruments, furnishing a most interesting feature for the evening.

Mr. Berry has also engaged Kenneth and Elizabeth Harlan, billed as the world's fastest dancers, to give a special performance on the dance floor. This young couple, brother and sister, have appeared on the professional stage where they made a decided hit, and were engaged for the Cisco dance on the eve of their departure for the east to fill a vaudeville engagement.

The beautiful, spacious dance pavilion on the shores of the Lake Cisco bathing beach is being made even more attractive with decorations in gay colors brought back by Mr. Berry after a special trip to Dallas to get something novel and attractive. The 100 windows in the pavilion will assure plenty of cool breezes for the dancers, it is said.

Fort Davis may soon have its first modern electric light and power plant. A 50-year franchise to supply the town with light and power has been granted to the Central Power & Light company of San Antonio.

Announcement!

The general public knows some sixty days past the bankrupt stock of J. M. White & Co. was sold by the referee in bankruptcy to Mr. John Gholson. It was stated at that time by the court, he would give to the purchaser sixty days in which to vacate.

A few days later a trade was effected by Hassen Co. and associates to buy the J. M. White & Co.'s stock from Mr. Gholson. It being understood the building must be vacated within sixty days as other parties had leased the property after that time.

We started our sale July 21st and advertised the facts that existed. It now develops the party who secured the lease has turned it back to the owner, who has leased us the building until Jan. 1st with an option that we may have the building longer if wanted.

The sale has been a wonderful success. We feel that you have profited by the low price we were able to give.

There still remains thousands of dollars in seasonable merchandise from this stock which must go.

We are adding new things to every department and will continue to offer quality merchandise at prices you cannot equal.

The style of our firm hereafter will be known as

Formal Opening Of "The Willows" Held Tonight

A shell, built especially for the opening of "The Willows," Ranger's new park and swimming pool by J. A. Boze, of Ranger, will be set up in the air shortly after dark this evening, being as it were the opening gun in the great opening event.

The shell, according to Mr. Boze, was made by him for this occasion and is very unusual. It is a fascinating one and will go up into the air some 1500 feet, and then send back toward the earth some fifty different lightning effects, accompanied by intonations like thunder.

In addition to the pyrothnic display the Ranger high school band will play and the management of the new play ground, which is being visited by hundreds daily, will put on several novel and interesting features.

"The Willows" was informally opened last week and since that time has been well patronized. Society folks are visiting it in the early morning and breakfasts following a dip are quite popular. Some of the kiddies visit it at any hour during the day and at night those who do not have the opportunity of taking an early morning swim, meet those who do, and swim until late in the evening.

A record breaking crowd is expected to attend the formal opening tonight and preparations have been made for the entertainment.

The PENNY PRINCESS

COPYRIGHT 1927 by NEA Service by anne austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Jerry Macklyn, advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., transforms his secretary, Vera Cameron, a plain girl, into an astonishing beauty with the aid of the company cosmetics. Vera submits only because she wants to attract a man whom she saw but once but with whom she falls hopelessly in love. She hears him called Schuyler and that he is to be at Lake Minnetonka in late June. She resolves to spend her vacation at this fashionable resort and to see him again.

Vera's green eyes remind Jerry of an uncaptioned picture he has in his desk—a clipping of a beautiful woman who also has green eyes and he asks the beauty specialist to refashion Vera, using this picture as a model. He supposes the woman in the picture to be an actress.

Just before she is to leave, Jerry confesses his love to Vera. He tells her he will spare her the humiliation of using her pictures in the advertising if she will give up the trip. She refuses, and Jerry gives her an envelope which she is to open only in case of a "jam." At the hotel Vee-Vee is much embarrassed to find herself mistaken for someone else. She is treated deferentially and the management goes out of its way to be attentive.

She meets Schuyler Smythe soon after her arrival. She learns from a Mrs. Bannister that Schuyler and Nan Fosdick a big, athletic-looking girl are probably engaged. Schuyler insists that he met Vera five years before in Palm Beach. Schuyler is ardently attentive, much to the jealousy of Nan Fosdick. When Vera and Schuyler leave for the swimming pool ahead of the others, they are surprised by Nan Fosdick, who has angrily followed them.

"You are the most beautiful thing I ever looked at," he added in a voice too low for the others to hear.

"Mr. Bannister and I have our cars outside," Schuyler told her, his eyes alight with admiration. "Unfortunately mine is a roadster, or I could take the whole party. You are the most beautiful thing I ever looked at," he added in a voice too low for the others to hear, as he took her arm to guide her out of the lounge and down the half flight of steps to the main lobby.

"Sunday is a terrible day here," Mrs. Bannister began eagerly, as she seized her husband's arm and came trotting after Vee-Vee and Schuyler. "The week-enders do nothing but play golf, and they won't let us dance on Sunday night, so there is really nothing to do but to drive or go to Snyder's for tea. Where's Miss Fosdick? Hurry, dear!" she called to the girl who had lagged behind.

"I—I'm coming!" Nan Fosdick stopped on the stairs and called out in a low, furious voice. She tore off her unbecoming white felt hat, twisted it between her hands.

Schuyler Smythe's hand closed tightly over Vee-Vee's arm before he turned to face the girl on the stairs.

"Not coming, Nan?" his voice was politely surprised and regretful. "Why?"

"Mother—wants me to play cribbage with her," Nan Fosdick answered desperately, raising her hand to hide the trembling of her chin.

Vee-Vee knew how she felt, knew that she wanted Schuyler Smythe to come bounding eagerly up those stairs to whisper an ardent plea in her ear. He really ought to—but Vee-Vee hoped fiercely that he wouldn't. If Nan Fosdick stayed at the hotel in a temper, she—Vee-Vee—could sit beside Schuyler, uncrowded by the big girl's bulk, could have his undivided attention on the long drive to Snyder's roadhouse.

"Awfully sorry, Nan. You ought to discipline your mother better than that, or teach her to play solitaire," Schuyler said, with casual sympathy.

The Bannisters drove away first in their coupe, Mrs. Bannister leaning out of a lowered window to wave a gay farewell.

"We'll look for you when we see you coming!" Vee-Vee felt herself blushing, began to make a hasty comment on the roadster which Schuyler was helping her into, his fingers pressing thrillingly upon her elbow.

"Oh, it must look rather commonplace to you, after the foreign cars you've driven," he answered, and regret stirred faintly under her joy, that he should belittle anything of his to her. It wasn't very good taste—but she pushed the traitor thought back, smiled at him, a cool flicker of light in her clear green eyes. But—what did he mean by referring to foreign cars that she had driven? The person that she was intentionally impersonating must have great wealth, have lived abroad

For the first few minutes of the drive to which she had looked forward with so much eagerness Vee-Vee could not give herself over to pure enjoyment. Questions tormented her, and she could not get Nan Fosdick's angry, sullen face, with its bitterly twisted mouth, out of her mind.

"I know what you're thinking," Schuyler surprised her by cutting in on her miserable thoughts. "That impossible little Mrs. Bannister has been gossiping, I see. What did she tell you?"

"Hundreds of things," Vee-Vee laughed, but her voice was strained.

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S. For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs—then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

The PENNY PRINCESS

Copyright 1927 by NEA Service by Anne Austin
"The lake drive is lovely, isn't it?" she added.
The dark green roadster was gliding swiftly along a narrow road that now hugged the lake front. The fresh, sweet odor of growing things made her nostrils quiver with delight. A squirrel flashed across their path.

"If she told you that I am engaged to be married to Nan Fosdick, she lied," Schuyler Smythe said. "I've been nice to the child, because she seemed to be having such a beastly unpleasant time of it with that old warhorse of a mother."

"She's in love with you!" Vee-Vee cried impulsively, then could have bitten her tongue.

"I'm sorry," Schuyler said grimly. "That is, I'm sorry if it is true. I hope it isn't. But, oh, Vee-Vee, we mustn't spoil this first precious hour alone together by talking of Nan Fosdick, or anyone else." He swerved the car suddenly into a road that was scarcely more than a path. A quick twist of his fingers upon the ignition key shut off the engine. His dark eyes turned upon her, a little fearful of his daring, but glowing with a fire that kindled her own blood.

"Aren't you—presuming—rather a great deal?" Vee-Vee asked jerkily, a strange fear of having this thing hurried too fast clutching at her heart. Men flirted with girls whom they considered "easy." Maybe she had let him see too much—Aunt Flora had said—But she could not remember what her aunt had said—she could not remember anything with his face close to hers, his eyes on fire like that.

"Presuming? My God!" Schuyler groaned, his hands clenching and unclenching on the steering wheel. "But of course you can't know—all these years—five years—"

"What do you mean?" Vee-Vee gasped. "I don't understand!"
"Of course you wouldn't. It did not mean everything to you—but it meant everything to me. Why, Vee-Vee, you danced with me! I held you in my arms, could have touched your glorious hair. It was longer then, a mop of copper-red curls that lay like autumn leaves against your adorable forehead. Don't you remember? I told you then that I would never forget, and you laughed at me, went on to your next partner. But—I haven't forgotten—all these years. See! I've carried your picture. It was just a snapshot that they printed in the papers. It was just that there were so many who wanted you—rich, a beauty—" He was fumbling in his breast pocket, drew out a flat hand-tooled brown leather pocketbook. "See? I clipped it from the Sunday paper, have carried it ever since."

Vee-Vee took the limp clipping, her eyes searching first for a bit of type which would give her a clue to the girl's identity. But there was no caption to the picture; Schuyler Smythe had not needed to be reminded of who she was. It was a picture of a laughing girl, with wind-tossed short curls, a tennis racket in her hand, a skirt that looked funny now because it was so long, whipping about her beautifully shaped ankles. The girl in the picture undoubtedly resembled Vee-Vee, might have been Vee-Vee of five years before, if that Vee-Vee had had a long curly bob and had not worn disfiguring glasses.

Schuyler Smythe took the picture from her lax hands and pressed it against his lips. A sharp stab of jealousy shot through her heart. He loved that mysterious other girl whom he had met five years ago. It was not Vee-Vee Cameron at all that he loved. She was an imposter, an unwilling imposter, warming her hands at a fire that had been lighted five years before and tended by a romantic idealist.

As Schuyler Smythe was fumbling with his pocketbook to restore the snapshot to its proper place a letter dropped out, fell to the floor of the car. Vee-Vee's eyes, following its course mechanically, widened with bewildered surprise as they took in the address.

Events become more complicated than ever. How long before Vee-Vee will realize she is playing a dangerous game?

Soviet Justice

Hard on the heels of the Sacco-Vanzetti case comes an example of soviet justice. Mma. Kolepikoff, wife of a Russian naval officer shot on suspicion of espionage, has been sentenced to death by the soviets because she refused to give the whereabouts of her husband while he was being hunted by them.

W. L. Mills, who lives six or eight miles north of Ranger, raised the cotton.

Women Promise Trouble for Air Passenger Lines

By RICHARD C. WILSON (United Press Staff Correspondent)
DALLAS, Aug. 31.—Unless the well known feminine "better half" relents in her attitude, the air passenger business is threatened with considerable interference, according to Charles B. Braun, division traffic manager of the National Air Transport company.

The company is inaugurating air passenger service between Dallas and Chicago tomorrow.
"The enthusiasm of many a prospective passenger-husband has been dampened by his wife," Braun, who is booking passengers for the new air line, said here today.

Many of the wives absolutely refuse to permit their husbands to leave the terra firma.

Prospects for the air passenger service are encouraging, the traffic manager said. Several persons have booked passage to Chicago for the Dempsey-Tunney championship fight. Several business men plan to make business trips to Chicago during the fall. The fare is 10 cents a mile or $99 from Dallas to Chicago.

The new Travel-Air planes of three passenger capacity will be used in the service. The passenger cabins are enclosed much the same as the passenger's compartment in a taxicab. The seats in the planes are made of wicker and slant at a comfortable angle so the passenger may view the scenery from a window at his elbow.

A United Press correspondent who rode one of the planes from Dallas to Kansas City and return recently reported his trip as one of the most pleasant ever experienced.

"When I stepped out of the plane at Kansas City," he said, "I felt as fresh as when I started. It was a cleaner trip than by train and only required five and a half hours."

"The plane skimmed along so smoothly that, although it was my first air ride, I became groggy and slept through part of the journey."

Adult Health Examinations Are Needed

By GUY KIEFER, M. D. (Commissioner of Health, State of Michigan. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

(Written for United Press)
Do we stop too soon in our health supervision of the individual?

Judging from the most accurate testimony, our death records, we do. More babies are being saved than ever before. More children are being protected from the hazards of communicable diseases. More physical handicaps are being corrected, giving a better chance for happiness.

But apparently we are saving young lives only to have them sacrificed later. As death rates among children have been reduced, those among adults have risen. Various forms of heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage and apoplexy, diseases of later life that could often be postponed if not actually prevented, are taking an increasing percentage of lives.

Clearly, something is wrong with our system!

Health supervision has broadened a good deal within the last 25 years. We are no longer content with offering protection to the baby after he is born; we safeguard his prenatal existence as well. Foundations are what county, and these are laid long before a child is born. Good medical care for the prospective mother, the right foods, proper exercise, and adequate rest are the basic factors.

As soon as a baby is born he has at his command the entire health machinery of the community. Specialists are trained for his benefit, and they are ready to advise on every step of his physical and mental progress. Public health nurses carry into his home the latest information on feeding and care. If he is sick he is promptly taken care of, with no dangerous delay.

When he graduates from the infant stage to the pre-school period he finds himself equally surrounded with precautions. At this age physical defects get the best start, and lifelong habits, both mental and physical, are formed. His parents are advised by competent medical authority how to safeguard this stage of his existence.

School days have long been recognized as the golden opportunity for health measures. For the first time the children are in an easily access-sible group, not scattered throughout all the homes in the city. They can be examined and their physical status determined without waiting for a possibly indifferent parent to bring them to a physician. To be sure, the important question of correction of defects rests with the parents and the family physician, but at least the start is made.

And then, with graduation from school, supervision ceases. If the boy or the girl goes into a well organized industry he may still have the advantage of regular medical advice, but if he does not he obtains no assistance at all. Vital statistics show the results of such lack of supervision.

What is the answer? Periodic health examinations for all adults! The same program of regular inspection that now safeguards infancy, childhood and youth must be extended through later life, and by the individual himself. The right start is given him; upon his own intelligence, interest, and initiative depends whether he will cut short his life.
