REV. J. FRANK NORRIS INDICTED FOR MURDER

DAMAGE FROM TROPICAL STORM IS ESTIMATED AT $15,000,000

JIM FERGUSON GIVES VENT TO HIS FEELINGS

"MA" DECLARES SHE RECEIVED NO PETITIONS

Former Governor Recalls The Butte Campaign In 1924

By United Press.
LATEST FIGURES.
At 12 o'clock today, Moody's majority was 2,816. Total number of votes cast to date have been 802,428. The returns are from 250 counties, with 188 complete.
Don Moody, 402,622; Miriam A. Ferguson, 274,088; Lynch Davidson, 120,677.
In the attorney general's race, Pollard is leading with 134,172, Allred next with 128,131, and Brachfield third with 121,476.
In the court of civil appeals, Eleventh district, place No. 1, Judge Leslie holds the lead over Judge Littler, with 22,928 votes against 17,090.
In place No. 2, George L. Davenport is leading with 17,061 votes; J. E. Hickman second, with 15,118, and T. R. Ridgell third with 7,821.

AUSTIN, July 29.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson declared that no petition had been presented to her requesting her to resign at once and not wait until adjournment of the special session of the legislature.
It was reported that G. B. Rogers, one of the Dan Moody leaders in McLennan county would Thursday present a numerously signed petition to the governor asking her to retire from office immediately, in compliance with the election agreement she made with the attorney general.
Rogers was said to be in the state capitol this morning, but he did not visit the governor's office.
The governor denied to say what would be her attitude in event such a petition was delivered to her.
While "Ma" was silent on the subject, Jim gave vent to his feelings and opinions on the subject of the defeat. In discussing the proposition, he said in part, in defense of the governor not immediately resigning:
"It is amusing, but of course not surprising, to see this crowd demanding that the governor resign at once, before she keeps her promises to give the bond-validating crowd what they were clamoring for and to give the politicians what they were demanding in the way of legislative investigation of departments. If the governor had not done this and had left the mansion without washing the windows and sweeping the floors, the same crowd would have said she had fled because of the consciousness of guilt of some kind."
"The crowd that broke their pledge two years ago and voted for Butte, a republican, after promising to vote for Governor Ferguson, a democrat, are the last people on earth to lecture anybody on keeping promises. And how about Tom Love being permitted to go into the primary, boasting that he would not keep his pledge if Governor Ferguson was nominated?"
"But the main reason I am writing this article is that I want to hasten to thank our 275,000 friends who stood by the governor in a campaign backed by more fanaticism, more money and more selfish interests than ever backed any other candidate for governor in Texas."
"These 275,000 voters were individual and independent voters, who were fearless enough to express their views regardless of consequences, and my good wife and I will always have a heart full of gratitude for their loyalty and devotion. We shall not cry. We shall not whimper. We shall not falter in our determination to stand for those things that are for the interest of the great masses of the people and this seeming defeat may be the means of emphasizing to the people the necessity of being on guard more actively for the protection of their lives and liberty."

2 REESES HELD ON CHARGES OF INTENT TO KILL

Complaints charging assault with intent to murder and unlawfully carrying a pistol were filed last night in Justice Sam J. Day's court at Eastland against S. L. Reese following an affray at Colony schoolhouse in which Reese, his son Leeman, and Albert Hendon are alleged to have been engaged. A charge of unlawfully carrying brass knucks was also filed against Leeman Reese. The elder Reese's bonds were fixed at $750 for the assault charge and $250 on the pistol charge. Young Reese's bond was placed at $250. Both parties were placed in jail pending the making of bonds.

According to Justice of the Peace Sam J. Day, the Reeses and Hendon have been having some trouble and when they met at a singing school at Colony last evening the trouble between Leeman Reese and Hendon was renewed and resulted in the two engaging in a fight. Hendon, it seems, was getting the best of the fight when the elder Reese came up, drew his pistol and took a hand in the fight.
Hendon, seeing S. L. Reese was getting his pistol, caught the gun, pointing the muzzle of it upward as Reese fired three shots, none of which hit Hendon.
Hendon, it is stated, received a knife wound in the jaw, which is alleged to have been inflicted by Leeman Reese. He also has two wounds on the head, said by officers to have been made by brass knucks or a pistol. He is not thought to be seriously wounded.
"Cowboy" Smith, a private citizen, arrested or rather took charge of S. L. and Leeman Reese and brought them to Eastland, where he called Justice Sam Day to his office and the charges were filed.

Catholic Property Bought By City Is Cause Of The Affair

By United Press.
FORT WORTH, July 29.—Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church, was indicted for the murder of D. E. Chipps, wholesale lumberman by the grand jury, in the criminal district court Thursday morning.
Chipps was slain in the study of the First Baptist church, July 17.
Criminal District Judge Hosey said at noon that he will require Norris to make $10,000 bond on recommendation of the district attorney's office. The trial probably will not be set until the September term of court, Judge Hosey said.
Rumors were circulated that J. J. Mickle, public relations director of the First Baptist church and co-worker of Rev. J. Frank Norris informed the city officials that the pastor was behind the suit to prevent the widening of a downtown street.
It was this suit, coupled with one of the pastor's sermons which led to the shooting of D. E. Chipps, lumberman, in the study of the church on July 17.
Dr. Norris was being waged a relentless war against the Catholic church. The city wants the streets opened and must pay to pass through the property owned by St. Patrick's Catholic church congregation. The fiery Baptist pastor was of the opinion that the property involved was not worth the amount to be paid for it by the city.
The result was that several clerks in Meacham's store lost their positions because of being members of Norris' church, and were asked to resign. Following that action on the part of Meacham's manager, the pastor preached a bitter sermon that resulted in the killing.

MELLETT HOME IS GUARDED

CANTON, O., July 29.—The home of Don R. Mellett, murdered Canton publisher, was guarded today by special police, following an attack with gas fumes in which the widow and her sister-in-law and two children were temporarily overcome.
The guard at homes of others who have been threatened was increased.
Don Mellett's cry for decency was stillled by a bullet and now these same lords of the underworld seek to end the lives of these he held most dear.
In speaking of the young editor, who gave his life for his city, his widow, says "Don died as he had lived and fought. He went out with a smile."
The reaction to the dastardly murder of the young editor has aroused the newspaper men of the world, and some are asking for a newspaper convention to form a crime progress. His assassination is a challenge to the press and the courageous newspaper men of the country must meet the challenge of the men who killed him, says the editor of the Brooklyn Eagle.
Mellett was killed as he went to put his car in his garage late one evening. His wife saw him fall and ran to him. He died in her arms without speaking.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

With prospects bright for a bumper cotton and feed crop, a good turkey crop and the petroleum industry in an exceptionally strong position, there is no reason why every line of endeavor should not enjoy the best year in its history in the oil belt.

In discussing the situation, the survey states, "the firmness of commodity prices in the last three months bears witness to the essentially sound conditions in most markets."

So much for the outlook over the nation. Farmers this year made the crop at a less expense than in several years. The seasons have been good, plenty of moisture, and with the exception of trouble from pests that can be conquered by following the directions of the county agents, there has been little to give the farmer any annoyance.

For the first time in the history of Texas for 25 years, the outlook for bumper feed crops was never better. How to utilize the corn and sorghum grains and realize a profit is the paramount issue for the farmers of Texas.

Our advice now is to market the corn and sorghum grain crops on the hoof. Feed them to hogs, cattle, sheep, goats and turn back into the land the fertility these crops have removed. Get some hogs, dairy cattle, beef cattle, lambs and poultry.

By marketing your feed crops on the hoof you are realizing a pound what the finished product brings. There has never been an over-production of spring lambs. A small bunch of ewes will produce spring lambs, and in addition to marketing the grain that is fed them, the farmer also will market his weeds. However, let that be as it may, more hogs are needed. Get more hogs, raise more pigs and feed your corn, maize and kaffir to them and not only make your own meat, but sell the surplus for a profit.

LET'S HAVE PEACE.

Now that the election is over and the candidates named in a majority of the races, let's forget heated words said during the campaign and pull together to build up the county by practicing diversification in our farming operations, and settling down to business.

Get together and work for the up-building of the county, and make the banner county of Texas in every way.

The service will be handled just the same as heretofore, except they will use their own facilities now instead of the Frisco's.

J. R. McGee, formerly agent at Desdemona, is agent at Dublin and will preside over the new station.

Lions Win Fast Game From The Oil Belt Motors

In a game replete with fancy plays and sharp fielding Wednesday afternoon, the Lions defeated the Oil Belt Motor team in the Business Men's League in Nitro Park, score 6 to 2.

The Lions propose to be in the running the last half of the season and plan to make the Salesmen, Legionnaires, Woodmen and others sit up and take notice.

In the meantime, the Oil Belt has begun to strengthen its team and will be in the running from now on. The absence of one or two stars from the line up kept the Oil Belt score down, according to information given out.

It is current rumor that practically every team in the league has opened correspondence with some of the big league managers for material to strengthen up. "Strings" are out for "Babe" Ruth by one of the teams.

Chicago Rodeo Official Visits Hub of Oil Belt

Jack Talbert, one of the officials with Tex Austin in the Chicago rodeo last year, is in Ranger today on business. He stated that arrangements have been made to take a special train from Fort Worth to the rodeo in Chicago this year, and that Amon G. Carter, Hubb Diggs and others would be in charge of the special. This grows out of the fact that more than one-third of the participants in the rodeo are from Texas.

Mr. Talbert feels sure that in view of the big way the rodeo went over last year in Chicago, where, by the way, they pronounce it ro-day-o, it will be much more of an attraction this year.

He did not state what his business was in Ranger.

City Sanitary Officer Walks. "Flivver" Is Gone

Wade Swift, city sanitary commissioner, had to walk home last night. It was not the fault of any vamping female, nor did Wade need a road map to show him the way home—it all came about because some ungrateful scamp, wanted Wade's flivver to go somewhere in, or to strip it, or to get away with it all together, and because he did not realize how far Wade lives from town and that he had a clean up campaign on now against weeds and mosquitoes.

He just took it while it was parked near Hick's Drug Store on South Austin Street and went. When Wade came out of the picture show long about nine o'clock, the space occupied by his Ford roadster, was occupied by another car and his had vanished.

The police were at once notified and they think that the car was taken to Breckenridge and will be found there or near there. In the meantime, his horse back or footback for Wade and the weeds are growing under his feet every day.

Farmers Plan United Fight On Corn Borer

By EDWIN L. HECKLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LANSING, Mich.—A line of battle is being established along a 175-mile front in Michigan and around the northwest corner of Ohio to fight the advance of the European corn borer toward the granary of the Middle West this summer.

Warfare of entomologists against the most destructive agricultural pest of modern times will be carried on with unlimited money and vigor but Michigan state experts who have studied the corn borer moth say the task of stopping its spread appears to be hopeless. Control methods developed are by no means completely satisfactory, it is said, and merely delay spread of the borer. Work is now being done in government laboratories to effect a new method of control.

While it is impossible to predict how long it will take for the borer to work its way into Indiana, Illinois and Iowa where a wide infection might threaten economic stability of the entire west, the moths spread from the east lake shore almost to the center of Michigan in five years and last year the quarantine area in this state was doubled. Similar conditions exist in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Forty government inspectors, assisted by state police, will maintain the quarantine in Michigan this year. The quarantine line runs from the southern point of Saginaw Bay to the Indiana state line. No corn of any sort or corn fodder is permitted to pass from the infected area into the non-quarantined area. In addition, squads of inspectors will maintain watch all summer for appearance of the pest in territory bordering the quarantine line. Heavily infected fields will be burned and farmers instructed regarding methods of larvicing corn to slow the infection spread.

It is impossible to stop additional infection of corn fields, however, because the borer moth will fly several miles from one field to another, ignoring quarantine lines and wishes of agricultural authorities with impunity. It is impossible to control conditions by lessening the corn acreage because experimentation has shown corn borers live in 212 different plants when there is no corn in the vicinity, returning their natural habitat as soon as corn growing is resumed.

It is now virtually impossible to grow corn in Essex and Kent counties in Ontario where the Michigan infection is said to have originated, according to A. C. Carton, head of the state agricultural industry bureau, and a similar condition may develop in any other section where the borer is now controlled.

Congressional appropriations are being used in connection with state funds for the work this year. Plans are now being made for a more extensive campaign next year which will be financed in part by other middle western states. According to Carton, appropriation measures will be introduced in corn belt state legislatures next winter for the purpose, backed by the various state departments of agriculture on the theory it is more economical to fight the borer away from home than await its advance.

Union trainmen all along the route gave Shep a helping hand, and now he's a mascot of the Greenville Typo-Union.

Ford May Buy Part of German Rubber Holdings

By United Press.

BERLIN—Henry Ford is reported to be seeking shares in Germany's most prosperous rubber plantation enterprise in the Cameroon.

But since German interest are also affected by the British domination of the rubber market, steps were recently taken to prevent Ford from buying his way into the Cameroon Rubber Company.

At a meeting of the board of directors of this concern, it was decided to issue 100 new non-transferable shares at 1000 marks each. The owner of the new shares are thus forbidden to sell out to Ford or any other foreign investor.

It was recalled at the directors' meeting that the firm's extensive plantations in Africa, confiscated by the British at the end of the war, were subsequently returned to the German owners. According to the head of the company, the British administration of the plantations was unsuccessful and they were rapidly approaching the status of a jungle when returned to Germany.

The Cameroon Rubber Company began its reconstruction work at once and, with the help of a 1,000,000 mark government loan, swiftly revived production, so that the plantations soon comprised 200,000 rubber trees, 250,000 cocoa trees and 10,000 coconut palms—all fit for immediate exploitations.

At the recent directors' meeting here, fear was expressed that the British might increase taxes, thus rendering the German company's profits doubtful. Under normal circumstances, however, the concern expects to have 50,000 acres of rubber trees and the same expanse of cocoa and palm oil growths under cultivation at the end of 1926.

Giant Kangaroo Fossils Are Found Over Australia

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SYDNEY.—Fossil remains of giant kangaroos, which on being set up are computed to have been twelve feet in height, have been discovered in limestone caves in the southwestern part of Victoria.

A still more interesting discovery in the same caves was of a flint implement shaped rudely by hands that were stilled many thousands of years ago.

The flint has been examined by competent Melbourne archaeologists and other scientists, who believe that it is at least 15,000 years old. They are almost certain that the giant kangaroos and the wielder of the flint implement were contemporary. The flint fits fairly well the description of the Chellean type of instrument, the oldest known implements that are certainly the work of man. It is held not to be the work of even the oldest of Australia's present race of aborigines.

The discovery of the prehistoric skill at Cohuna a few months ago this latest discovery, and other facts gleaned by geologists and philologists, all point, to the minds of scientists, to one general conclusion—that Australia shares in the childhood of man. A wave of enthusiasm is beginning to sweep over students to investigate whether this country, and not Asia, as is generally accepted, is the cradle of man.

Prefers Jail Term To Paying Dime Street Car Fare

By United Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 29.—S. P. Lemly said he had rather go to jail than pay 10c carfare—so they put him in jail.

The trouble arose when a local suburban car line with a six cent fare was discontinued and a bus line substituted charging 10c.

Lemly got on to ride and refused to pay the added fare. He was charged with disturbing the peace.

Noted Movie Star Carlyle Blackwell Will Wed Wealth

By United Press.

LONDON.—Carlyle Blackwell, one of America's handsomest film stars and Mrs. Leah Barnato, one of England's wealthiest women, were married here today at a West End Register office.

The couple had known each other for more than 10 years. They do not expect to take a honeymoon until later as Blackwell is starting work on another picture here within a few days. William Gardner, formerly British consul in New York, was best man.

Mrs. Barnato was formerly the wife of Alfred Haxton, but the marriage was dissolved. She has always used her maiden name since that time but has maintained the Mrs. as well.

More romance is attached to the Barnato fortune than practically any other in the British Empire. Her father, was Barney Barnato, who together with his brother Harry, migrated to South Africa more than 50 years ago.

Both arrived in the strange, and then almost uncivilized country, with scarcely sufficient funds to buy food. They secured positions with a small travelling circus and saved their money until they had collected about $10,000, when they entered the trading business.

After many hardships and reverses, the two brothers purchased four shares in the Kimberly mines. The mine prospered and Barney Barnato became known as the "Diamond King of South Africa."

In 1897, however, he became depressed with the lonely surroundings of the country and decided to return to England for a rest. While on the way to England he threw himself overboard and was lost.

Two nephews of the brothers, whose names were closely linked with the making of the Barnato fortune met their fate at the hands of a Dutchman named Von Veltheim, who a year later entered the offices of the company and shot them.

Harry Barnato died in 1908, leaving an estate of more than $25,000,000. Barney Barnato's fortune has since become the favorite field for litigation between members of the entire family. Only last year Mrs. Barnato's only surviving brother became involved in litigation here over his share of his uncle's and father's estates. The case was against two cousins and a settlement estimated at $5,000,000 was arranged.

WANTY CASE

By Carolyn Wells

© 1926 by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

That the time the story opens the Heaths were entertaining as house guests:

Lawrence Inman, a distant relative of Myra's and, aside from Perry, the only heir to her considerable fortune, and

Myra Heath was a peculiar woman. She was cold, sarcastic. She did not love her husband, but seemed enamored of Inman. She never used cosmetics and her hatred of colors amounted almost to a passion. She collected rare old bottles and her latest was a whisky bottle which aroused her artistic husband to scorn.

Myra becomes provoked at the growing intimacy between Bunny and Perry and declares that she has made her will in favor of Inman, cutting her husband off.

That night Perry Heath, stealing downstairs, discovers his wife in Inman's arms and orders the latter out of the house by morning.

The next day the body of Myra Heath is found in the studio by a servant. A candle is burning at her head and feet, there is a big cut in her head and, strangely of all, her face is made up with cosmetics and she is dressed in outlandish colors.

Herrick, the butler, after calling the doctor, steals some money from a drawer near the body and then discovers, at Myra's feet, a card marked, "The Work of Harry Heath."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

To Herrick this carried no sinister suggestion, he merely thought the card had been dropped there, and was about to pick it up, when there seeped through his bewildered brain a vague memory that one should not touch things on the scene of a mysterious death.

So he restrained his impulse to blow out the last feeble flickerings of the two candles, and, instead, raised the shades of the back windows to let in the daylight.

Then, patting his pocket with a soft sigh of satisfaction, he went out of the room, and sought the other servants.

He found them in the pantry, agog with excitement at the tales of Katie and Mrs. Pierce, but not daring to report for duty until summoned.

Herrick was unstrung himself, but kept his head, and assumed an extra dignity as he issued orders.

"No gossiping, now," he said. "Mrs. Pierce, you go on with getting the breakfast ready. We've no call to neglect our work. Carter, you go up to Miss Moore's room, and—well, you do the best you can. Tell the young lady that Mrs. Heath has—has—say, she's had an accident—yes, that will do, an accident. And get Miss Moore to dress at once, for the doctor is coming and after that goodness knows what goes on there will have to be."

"Oh—I can't tell Miss Bunny!" Carter burst into sobs. "Poor Mrs. Heath—are you sure, Herrick, she's—dead? Let me see her."

"No, nobody must go into that room till the doctor comes—or Mr. Heath."

"Where is Mr. Heath?" exclaimed Carter.

"I don't know," Herrick said, slowly. "There's a lot to be learned yet. You go along, Carter, get Miss Bunny dressed and take up her breakfast. I'm at my wit's end! Nobody to boss—or, anything! Mr. Inman, he's all flabbergasted like—I wish Mr. Heath would come back—wherever he's gone."

Carter obeyed the orders of her superior, and taking a tray with coffee and rolls, started for Bunny's room. But even as she tapped at the door, she heard the sound of wild sobbing within.

No summons bade her enter, and after another knock, Carter opened the door and went in.

Bunny was huddled in a forlorn heap in the middle of her bed, and was crying bitterly.

"There now, there now, Miss Bunny," Carter said, moved to pity at the sight of the girl's intense grief, "take a cup of coffee, do—"

With an air of bewilderment, Bunny looked up in the maid's face, and docilely took the cup she proffered.

As she swallowed, she looked over the rim of the cup at Carter.

"What is it?" she whispered.

"What's all the excitement about?"

"Well—Miss—you see, Mrs. Heath, she—she isn't so well."

"Not well! Myra! What do you mean?"

"She's—she's had an accident, ma'am."

"Accident! What sort of accident?"

"She—" but Carter's powers of vague prevarication were limited, and she blurted out, "why, she's dead, ma'am!"

"Dead!" said Bunny, not hysterically, but with an awed, dazed air, her intent gaze fixed on Carter's face.

"Yes, ma'am," the maid returned, ready, the Rubicon crossed, to dilate on the subject.

"Dress me," Bunny said, almost sharply. "Never mind the bath, give me my clothes."

A plainly tailored white voile gown was forthcoming and Bunny put it on, adding a necklace and small jet beads.

"Do you know where Mr. Heath is, ma'am?" said Carter, timidly, but determined to raise the question.

"No, how should I? Isn't he about?"

"No, ma'am, Herrick can't find him anywhere."

"Oh, he's around somewhere, of course. No, I don't want any more coffee. Where is—Mrs. Heath?"

Kid Mayor Shows Old Timers How To Run Affairs

Water Barrow Men Of Peking Are On Strike, More Pay

By United Press.

WASHBURN, Wis.—Paul Ungrodt, "Kid Mayor" of this little city of 3,700, having completed his first term has been returned to office by an almost unanimous vote of confidence.

Ungrodt, who was only 23 when first elected mayor in the spring of 1924 by a two to one vote over a man thrice his age, has so conducted municipal affairs that his administration will go into local history as the most remarkable the city has ever experienced.

Graduating from Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., in 1923, he returned to Washburn and went into his father's hardware store as joint manager. Ten months later he was swept into office on an overwhelming tide of public approval. The city's troubles were mostly of a financial nature and he went after them with youthful enthusiasm.

He and his councilmen served without salary and all expenses were cut to an absolute minimum. To raise necessary funds he boosted the tax rate to 7.15 per cent, the highest rate in the state. Tax collections were increased $12,000 and the city began to find its feet. The second year the rate was dropped to 5.75 per cent but it was still the highest in the state. By the use of unique advertising methods the Boy Mayor decreased delinquency 10 per cent and exceeded the most optimistic estimate of tax collections by $5,000. Through such stringent measures the city's total debt of almost $100,000 was reduced about $25,000 in two years. The city is now on a firm financial footing for the first time since pre-war days.

In addition to his success as mayor, Ungrodt has been singularly successful in operating his father's hardware store. By progressive advertising and aggressive salesmanship he has brought about a great increase in sales volume. In 1922, when hardware merchants throughout the Northwest were suffering an average decrease in sales volume of 5 per cent, the Ungrodt store experienced a 25 per cent increase as well as showing the first net profit since the boom days of the war.

The Boy Mayor's remarkable success has gained such wide attention that he has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress from his district but his next step will probably be into the state assembly.

Ungrodt believes implicitly in the introduction of business methods into the affairs of government. He says: "The voters control the situation. They can elect men of business ability with an unselfish interest in the cities connected with the officers of government. Given the right personnel, any governmental body can adopt itself to business methods."

Democrats Now Talk of Selecting Convention City

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Democrats here are talking considerably about the selection of a city in which to hold the 1928 national convention. They discovered in New York in 1924 the location of the convention means more than the mere selection of a hall or the amount of money to be received from the city.

There are some who still maintain that William G. McAdoo would have been nominated for the presidency in any other city except New York. The influence of the hometown Al Smith voters went far toward bringing the convention to an impasse.

The policy then adopted by the national committee in selecting New York was to sell the convention to the highest bidder, but the result brought about by that policy have wrought the impression among Democrats here that the next selection must be more careful.

There are few who can be found who would let the convention go back to New York, outside of the Smith backers. The Smith people likewise are opposed to letting it go to San Francisco again, because they think it might have a favorable effect upon a renewal of the McAdoo candidacy.

There is a big hall in Cleveland, where the Republicans and Independents held their convention of 1924. Selection of that city would bring Gov. Vic Donahey of Ohio more to the foreground and if Arvo Pomeroy is successful in his senatorial race there this fall Cleveland might add the talk of his candidacy.

In St. Louis or Kansas City, the Democrats would run into the growing influence of Senator Jim Reed, Democrat, Missouri, who has opposed all the party's international and some of its major domestic policies.

Because of the seriousness of the situation it is unlikely that any decision will be reached prematurely.

Women Here Are Depending on G. F. P. To Restore Vitality

Success of St. Joseph's G. F. P. Here Shows Women Are Quick to Take Advantage of Promised Relief From Distressing Ailments so Common Among Them Nowadays.

It is quite easy for the producers of a medicine to show instances of the remarkable performances of their product—remarkable results accomplished in a few isolated cases. There is nothing particularly wonderful about that. The real test of a medicine lies in its average day-in-and-day-out reliability to bring about real, lasting results.

The fame of G. F. P. is being spread principally by word of mouth from woman to woman. As women learn how quickly and easily it relieves them of headaches, backaches, nervousness, pains in the sides, nausea, cramps and that awful feeling of depression and weariness, it is natural for them to become so enthusiastic that nothing can keep them from telling every woman they know about the extraordinary merits of St. Joseph's G. F. P.

There is something romantic about the thought that real worth always gets its deserved approval. A few weeks ago G. F. P. was practically unknown, now it is on the lips and in the hearts of thousands of grateful women, and to them all it means the same thing: that they at last have something they can depend on and which really does get rid of their "female troubles," such as irregularity, which is brought on by the vicious attacks of catarrh of generative organs.

Women Now Depend on St. Joseph's G. F. P. To Restore Their Vitality

NEW YORK—The word "register," which used to echo from the studio rafters not so long ago, has passed out of the vocabulary of moving picture-making.

It remained for Shirley Mason, who is now playing in "Upstream," the Fox version of the Clifford Bax novel, to call attention to the fact.

It used to be "register this" or "register that," she said. "The word was a bad one. It has been my experience. It made one think extra effort was required to get over the emotion in a scene.

"There was something at once funny and disturbing about the word. When a director would shout 'register,' it made one think he or she had to do something especially strong. Just like a person having a picture taken, and the photographer being steady."

"It made one too conscious of what they were supposed to do. It stilled natural acting, and made for exaggerated pantomime."

Water Barrow Men Of Peking Are On Strike, More Pay

By RANDALL GOULD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PEKING.—For centuries past the narrow hutings of Peking have rung to the grinding screech of the ungreased barrow which, for a sum equivalent to an American cent and a half per three buckets, brought cool well water to the Chinese household.

But today the lanes are silent, and thirsty would-be customers stand in their scarlet doorways and jingle coppers in their palms without result.

The waterbarrow men are on strike.

For months there has been a half-concealed warfare between the barrow men and the layers of water-pipe through Peking streets. It has found expression in occasional quarrels and fights, but there has been no concerted action. Now, following a definite attempt by the Water Carriers Guild to prevent a merchant from laying the hated water-pipes to his shop, open combat has resulted; three water carriers are in jail, several waterworks employes are in hospital; and the strike is on.

Simultaneous with declaration of the general water-carriers' strike, the guild laid a series of complaints before the police and the municipal council. It was declared that the company should be disenfranchised and all water should be taken from wells and brought by barrow. Company water was not good water, it was argued. Also, it was pointed out the company may some day stop supplying water due to the coal shortage caused by civil war around Peking.

All indications point to failure for the barrow-men. The authorities have ordered a medical examination of the company's water, but they have likewise voiced high indignation at the presumptuous barrow-men's action in daring to strike, and police have been ordered to compel the water barrows to squeak their rounds as of yore to serve such old-fashioned folk as prefer not to patronize the company's new pipelines.

Don't Experiment With "Pimple Cures"

Do you think so little of your delicate skin and face as to allow yourself to become the subject for experiments. By all means use only the thing which has stood to get rid of your pimples, blotches, bumps, "breaking out," eczema, etc. Black and White Ointment, and Skin Soap, have not only stood this test, but you are sure of it—when you know that they are selling at the tremendous rate of more than two million packages a year.

The way they are economically priced, in liberal packages, has helped to make them so popular along with their dependability. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both Black and White Ointment, and Black and White Skin Soap, as they are called.

English Critics Praise "Bobby" Jones, American

By HENRY L. FERRELL (United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—Bobby Jones, with his phenomenal golf in the British open championship and the recent national open at Columbus, has been declared the greatest golfer in the world.

English critics, who saw him massacre Bob Harris, the defending champion in the British amateur championship, who saw his astounding 134 in the qualifying rounds for the open and his magnificent victory at St. Annes, went even farther and called him the greatest player of all time.

Jones, it is true, failed to win the British amateur championship but if he successfully defends his title in the American amateur he will have made a record that no other golfer may ever equal.

Bobby didn't win the British amateur but he had the satisfaction of hearing himself declared by veteran Scottish and English players and critics as the best player in the tournament.

No Prize "What is the amateur championship?" the English commented. "It is not a prize. The only tests of golf are the British and American open championships."

It was his temperament and not his golf that caused Bobby to miss the British amateur championship. He keyed himself up to the peak of his game to win his match from Harris and he suffered a let-down, not through vanity but through overconfidence that was justified by the rating of the opponents that remained to dispute him right to the championship.

British pros were doubtful that Bobby would be able to win the American open championship, which came so soon after his severe, nerve-wrecking campaign in Scotland and England.

"Too Bad" "It is too bad the lad will not have time to rest a little," old Jim Braid said after Bobby had sailed. "He is still an impetuous boy and he has been under a severe strain. If he wins in the United States he certainly will be the super-golfer that we think he is and I don't know of any other golfer capable of such a feat."

You hear a great many golf players say "Bobby can't miss in the amateur. This is his year." And it truly seems to be his year. To the perfection of his style and the form of his game he has added what he calls a "strong finish," and when he can come through against the pros on the last eighteen as he did at St. Annes and Columbus, there are no amateurs who have a right to bother him.

Jess Sweetser Jess Sweetser, who broke down during the British amateur championship and won only by the greatest demonstration of a fighting heart that ever has been seen on any field of action, will not be able to play in the American amateur championship. And even if he were in condition to play, good golfer though he is, Bobby would be a hot to beat him.

George Von Elm, among the younger golfers, ought to be one of the most serious contenders among the American rivals of the champion and as far as is known there will be no prominent British entries.

Von Elm played splendidly in the British open, living up to the early predictions from California that he was going to be worth watching this season. He is a very serious-minded youngster and on his early season form he is a contender.

On Waivers

Last fall Eddie Moore was one of the stars of the world series between Pittsburgh and Washington. Eddie won the sixth game for the Pirates by slanting out a home run, putting the McKeechic focus on even terms with the Nats. Now—only a few months later, Moore goes to the Boston Braves via the waiver route. Fame seems to be a fickle sort of person.

Greatest Daily In Japan Urges Birth Control

By United Press.

TOKYO.—Birth control for Japan, without calling it such, has now a powerful advocate in the Osaka Mainichi, the most widely circulated daily in the Empire.

The Mainichi is a very recent convert, as a short time ago it was among the many papers denouncing Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the American birth control apostle, for coming to Japan to preach her gospel.

The result of the recent census, showing that the population had increased during the last five years by an average of 700,000 a year, despite a great earthquake death list, stirred the Mainichi its new stand.

New York Is Not American City Says Clergyman

LONDON.—New York is not a typical American city, Rev. John McNeil, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia declared on his arrival here.

"Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago are truly American cities, while New York is a conglomeration of Old Europe and the colored races," he said, New York is the hardest city in the world for an old-fashioned evangelical minister.

Texas Ex-Rangers Entertainment Will Be Lavish

That the Texas Ex-Rangers association is to be entertained with a great deal of care and pleasure when they meet here in August, was indicated at a meeting of the convention and entertainment committee of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce. The association will be entertained in the American Legion Hall and the Lions and Rotary Clubs will each entertain the mat one noon luncheon each while the Chamber of Commerce will honor them with a barbecue.

At the meeting were W. C. Hickey, general chairman of this committee, George Murphy, who will look after the cats, B. A. Tunnell, in charge of transportation, Raymond Teal, program chairman, and although Dr. H. A. Logsdon was absent, he fills a very important role as chairman of the accommodations committee. It won't be at all amiss at phone him now as to how many of the Ex-Rangers you can give lodging to while they are guests within our gates. It is hoped that enough private homes will be offered, for their use, so that it will not be necessary for them to have any lodging bills while here. Last time here they were well satisfied with their homes.

A definite program was outlined and will be sent to each member of the association.

A number of out of town speakers will be here and other things are planned for the entertainment of these men who were so instrumental in the shaping up of West Texas.

EMINENT PLAYERS IN "MISS NOBODY"

An eminent cast was gathered by First National in support of Ann Q. Nilsson, who has the featured feminine lead in "Miss Nobody," today only at the Lamb Theatre.

The featured supporting cast comprises Louise Fazenda, Walter Pidgeon, Mitchell Lewis, Clyde Cook and Arthur Stone. Lambert Hillyer directed "Miss Nobody." Wid Gunning, noted screen critic, exercised editorial guidance.

"Miss Nobody" is an adaptation of Tiffany Wells' novel "Shebo," which gained enormous popularity in book and serial form. It is a story of hobo life, with Miss Nobody, or Shebo, as queen of the tramps.

Miss Nilsson's role in "Miss Nobody" is reminiscent of her immensely successful role in "Ponjola," when she wore male attire. In "Miss Nobody" it is the attire of a tramp.

The story of "Miss Nobody" details the adventures of a society girl who seeks the solace of vagabondage rather than suffer the indignity of dependence upon friends when her father's fortune goes by the board.

In the actual filming of "Miss Nobody," Miss Nilsson exhibited rare daring in "riding the rods," walking along careening freight trains and rolling down embankments. Once she had a narrow escape when a rattlesnake nearly bit her. The snake was killed and its skin made into shoes for the beautiful star.

CHINA WILL DEMAND EQUAL RIGHTS FROM ALL POWERS IN MAKING NEW TREATIES

By HENRY WOOD (United Press Correspondent)

GENEVA.—China will never renounce any of the unequal treaties that have made her virtually a slave to the other powers.

As fast as these treaties expire, the power concerned will be asked to renew them on a basis of equality and reciprocity.

If the other signatory refuses to revise them, then they will simply be renewed and will be allowed to elapse.

In pursuance of this policy, China has already notified the Belgian government of the expiration of the existing treaty that was entered into by both countries in the old days.

Chao-Hsin-Chu These are statements in reply to questions raised in an exclusive interview given the United Press by Dr. Chao-Hsin-Chu, Chinese minister in Rome and Chief Chinese delegate to the League of Nations.

It was Chao-Hsin-Chu, who, in response to an attack by the British delegate at the public meetings of the League's Opium Commission last June, said that China no longer would tolerate foreign interference and that eventually she may be compelled to tear up the unequal treaties.

"It is worth recalling," said Dr. Chu, "that Dr. Alfred Sze, former Chinese minister at Washington, and who has since been appointed minister of foreign affairs at Peking, declared recently in a remarkable speech at Brooklyn, N. Y., that China has the perfect right under international law to denounce all of the unequal treaties."

Opium Question "As regards the opium question, we are now working in conformity with the 1912 Hague convention and we refuse absolutely to permit any further foreign interference in our internal affairs. Foreign interference has been responsible for the bitter anti-foreign feeling that is growing up throughout China. The only remedy for this is either to have the existing treaties revised or to make entirely new treaties on the basis of equality and reciprocity.

"In the meantime we have already signed with Germany, Austria and Russia treaties on a basis of absolute equality in the place of those that existed before the war."

See Way Clear "We hope that the other powers which were China's allies in the world

Famous Authors' Books Are Made Into Photoplays

More and more it is being realized by those who make motion pictures that "the story's the thing." Great as a star may be—lavish as the settings and costumes may be—no photoplay can be much of a success unless it is built around an engrossing story.

And right now all the producers are scouring the fields of literature and the drama for the most entertaining stories they can find, for they have promised that they will offer the public the very finest movies for Greater Movie Season, which begins in August, and they realize that they will have to continue the supply of high-class pictures from then on. Having treated the theatre-goers to the best during Greater Movie Season, they will not dare to allow their product to deteriorate subsequently.

Many of the most famous works of distinguished authors, living and dead, have already been put upon the screen. Their names provide an absolute confutation to those critics (although there are few of them left nowadays) who may offer the high-brow contention: "The movies are made from trivial yarns."

A number of Dickens' stories have been filmed, several of Sir Walter Scott's and some of Thackeray's. Among the present day Britons whose works have been made into photoplays are: Sir James Barrie, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir Hall Cain, Rudyard Kipling, Arnold Bennett, John Galsworthy, William J. Locke, Basil King, Thomas Burke, Anthony Hope, Jeffrey Farnol, Michael Arlen, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Louis Joseph Vance, Cynthia Stockley, I. A. R. Wylie, Robert W. Service, and W. B. Maxwell.

There have been pictures from the works of the French authors, Hugo, Balzac, Sardou, DuMaurier and Guirry; from the Austrian, Sudermann, from the Spaniard, Ibanez.

Photoplays have been constructed from the stories of those American masters, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Robert Louis Stevenson, Bret Harte and Mark Twain, while a great number of the modern American writers have been represented on the screen, for example: Booth Tarkington, George Ade, Joseph Hergesheimer, Rex Beach, Gouverneur Morris, Edna Ferber, Fannie Hurst, Gertrude Atherton, Alice Duer Miller, Rita Weiman, Laurence Stallings, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Harold Bell Wright, Zane Grey, Arthur Stringer, Robert W. Chambers, Rupert Hughes, Elmer Davis, Frederick Arnold Kummer, Peter B. Kyne, Ben Ames Williams, Arthur Train, George Barr McCutcheon, Meredith Nicholson, Ring Lardner, and others.

In the early days of the movies their makers didn't think the quality of the stories mattered much. Often a picture was started without any definite story, the director and players making it up as they went along. Then stories were purchased, for small sums, from hack writers or from cub reporters who dashed them off in their leisure hours on the late watch. Some of the stories of even such a master as O. Henry, a little later in the screen's progress, were bought for as little as $100.

The difference between those days and these is shown by the fact that Theodore Dreiser recently was paid $95,000 for the picture rights of his latest novel, "An American Tragedy."

There is another and more important difference, too. Just as stage actors, in the early days looked down on the movies and refused to act in them unless they were hard up—and then used fictitious names—authors, too, scorned this new medium of expression. But now the most prominent writers not only are glad to see their stories in movie form because of the financial rewards, but they realize the vastly wider audience they thus obtain for their messages.

Greater Movie Season officially begins here Aug. 1. Don't forget—let's go!

GREATER MOVIE SEASON

The whole family's going!

NOT so long ago folks never even bothered to say, "Where will we go tonight?" There wasn't any place to go, so they just stayed home.

Today it's different. Everyone says, "Let's go to the Movies." That is, NEARLY everyone.

Do YOU belong to that small minority? Perhaps you haven't seen any of the recently released productions. If so, you cannot realize to what artistic heights the motion picture has ascended.

Just the day before yesterday, a store show; yesterday, an excellent form of amusement, but still young and feeling its way; today, the principal, and oftentimes the only, entertainment for countless millions.

During August the entire nation will celebrate the thirtieth birthday of the motion picture. August is Greater Movie Season.

Take this opportunity to convince yourself that, in every way, they are bigger and better than ever.

Greater Movie Season
