FRENCH SENATE MUST RATIFY U. S. WAR DEBT

By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The $4,025,000,000 settlement of the French war debt to the United States will be considered at the coming short session of congress, opening in December, only after it is ratified by the French senate.

Financial leaders in the upper house of congress adopted this policy before adjournment and have sent back word to the men staying through the summer at the capital that they have seen no reason to change the policy despite the agitation which has been going on in France for modification of terms of the agreement.

If the French senate fails to consider the agreement adopted by the American debt funding commission or if it should reject the settlement, the measure embodying the agreement will be dropped here.

The bill of settlement was passed by the house last session after a strong fight. It was sent to the senate and referred to the finance committee where Chairman Smoot announced it would remain until some action toward ratification of its terms is taken by France.

Senate opposition to the agreement led by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, may attempt to force hearings upon the agreement by the finance committee. Reed has indicated that the measure did not receive full consideration by the house and that there is little evidence in documents submitted by the American debt commission concerning France's ability to pay.

Both have maintained that the settlement amounts virtually to cancellation of the debt.

Best Thinking Done by Man in Cold Weather

By United Press. OXFORD.—Mankind does its best thinking when the weather is a little too cold for comfort, according to Prof. H. J. Fleure, surveying the year's advance in anthropology before the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

"We must not argue too crudely that man's 'ideal climate' is the climate of the region in which modern man originated," he said.

"The most we can say, in that respect, is that as his constitution seems attuned to certain climatic conditions, those conditions are probably not very far from the conditions obtaining in the region in which he evolved, admitting at the same time that quite possibly he migrated into a region colder than the one to which he was accustomed and so gained, perhaps, an access of vigor.

"Certainly man's mental processes are most active at a temperature below that of the greatest comfort physically. Olbricht has gone so far as to venture the suggestion that the great mental advances to the fully human condition of the race probably occurred in a cold, bracing period, perhaps one of the later phases of the 'ice age.'

"The conditions that make us today function most actively are those of a climate with temperatures usually varying between 50 degrees and 20 degrees Fahrenheit, without too long spells at either of these limits, with enough but not too much bright sunshine and with variability and storms as a feature.

"Very great cold appears to have deleterious effects mentally and physically."

Camel—the greatest tobacco word of all time

NEVER in the history of smoking has there been such a cigarette as Camel. No other cigarette was ever made welcome in so many millions of homes, because no other ever brought so much enjoyment to smokers. When Camels came into the world they brought an entirely new sense of smoking satisfaction and contentment. Millions who have tried them all, who could well afford to pay more, will smoke only Camels. Camels on the table mean that this is the home of experienced smokers. Camel is the world's favorite cigarette. Camel is given a greater patronage than any other cigarette ever had. Why? Because Camels contain the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. Because Camels never tire the taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them. Because they never leave a cigarette after-taste. The world's largest tobacco organization puts the utmost quality into this one cigarette. If you want the mellowest mildness that ever came from a cigarette, try Camels. Regardless of what you are willing to pay, you will find in this famous smoke every fine feature you ever looked for in a cigarette. Have a Camel! R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. VANITY CASE

By Carolyn Wells
© 1926 by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEHOLD HERE TODAY

Mrs. Prentiss sees mysterious lights in the Heath household next door one night and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog over the murder of Myra Heath and the disappearance of her husband, Perry.

House guests of the Heaths are Lawrence Inman, heir to Myra's fortune, and Bunny Moore, beautiful, vivacious, to whom suspicion points because of her strange actions.

Myra Heath never used cosmetics, never wore colors, yet when her body was found she was heavily rouged. She was a collector of glass, and it was a rare old bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet; nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath."

The strange thing about Heath's disappearance is that the windows and doors were locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Fingerprints of Bunny and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by Sam Anderson, Heath's rival for the club presidency; Al Cunningham, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Meanwhile, Todhunter Buck, Mrs. Prentiss' nephew, has met Bunny and fallen in love with her.

Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Inman. He phones her again, saying Inman is the murderer. Bunny faints under a grilling by Detective Mott, and Inman confides to Buck that he saw Bunny ascending the stairs after the murder. Mott questions all the servants and tells them to keep quiet.

Anderson invites Cunningham to his house and there, while waiting for his host, Cunningham is suddenly confronted by Perry Heath, who disappears as mysteriously as he had appeared. Shortly afterward, Anderson comes in, and he reproaches Cunningham for letting Heath get away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

"Oh, it's all right, Al," Anderson was already sorry for his harshness to his friend. "And you've done more than anybody on the case in getting word from Heath. I tell you, that will be a point in your favor with the law people. I say, let's reconstruct the case—I believe that's what they term it."

"All right," Cunningham spoke eagerly. "Say, Heath told the truth, then how did it all come about?"

"Oh, I suppose it was just the old story of two men and one woman. I don't think the baby girl was on the scene at all. I believe if she was seen coming or going on the stairs, it was after the whole show was over. I believe that Heath and his wife and Inman quarrelled. Then nobody can say just how that thing happened. It might well have been accidental. Perhaps one man attacked the other and Mrs. Heath threw herself between them in an effort to help one or the other, and received herself the blow meant for one of the men."

"I never should have thought of that! But it's darned plausible! I believe that's just what did happen; for that, supposing Inman held the bottle, would make Heath loath to appear against him. If Heath knew that Inman killed Mrs. Heath, but did it by accident, by her intercepting the blow meant for Heath, then I can see Perry doing just as he did do. Go away, rather than testify to the truth. But when the girl, Bunny, is implicated, then Heath had to come back and do what he could to save her. Oh, by Jove I see! Heath is sure this story will get to the ears of Inman, and then Inman will know that Heath is on his track, and if he doesn't confess, or at least if Bunny isn't set free of all suspicion, Heath will turn up again, and give Larry what for!"

"Yes, that's logically thought out. Then, in that case, the sooner we make public Heath's story, the better. All right, old man, as you say, it'll keep till morning, and then we'll go to see friend Mott. You must go with me, of course, and we must put it to him straight."

"Shall you go to tell Inman, too?"

"No, I think we'd better let Mott do that. Indeed, I don't see that we need figure the matter at all except to give the dope to Mott. It's his business after that, and if he doesn't make Larry Inman stand up and take his medicine, then I think Perry Heath will materialize again. And I hope I'll get a peek at him next time. If he comes to you, tell him I'm crazy to meet him."

It was a sort of insight or second sight, that told him at once of a speaker's insincerity.

This trait, of itself, was a strong asset in the matter of detective work, and the only trouble was, it was working against Today's own desires and intentions.

He wanted to clear Bunny from the faintest breath of suspicion, but every effort he made seemed to result in further evidence of her implication in the tragedy.

He sat on his aunt's porch in the increasing darkness of the evening, just at the same time that Cunningham sat on the porch of San Anderson, across the Gaybrook bridge.

His thoughts dwelt on the thing Inman had told him, and he tried his best to twist it around to seem a point in Bunny's favor. This, he was totally unable to do, and so he let his mind drift back to the girl herself and her exquisite beauty.

More than mere beauty of feature, he told himself, it was beauty of soul. Why, that angel could no more harbor a guilty thought than a seraph could!

From which cogitation it is plain to be seen that Todhunter Buck was very much in love.

Indeed, he went even so far as to let his fancy play in numbers, even in rhyme. To himself he murmured:

"Your eyes—of a tender wind-flower blue,
With innocence back of them, looking through—"

It wasn't really inspired verse, but it pleased his aesthetic sense, and carried a little balm to his torn heart.

Then he came back to earth, and tried to decide what he must do. He had elected himself Bunny's knight errant, he meant to fight for her a la mort and a la mode and any other dramatic way he could find. Moreover, he meant to be practical and if being practical meant smuggling the girl out of Harbor Gardens, then, out she must go.

For Toddy Buck was of quick decision and rapid action. He fully believed that Inman had seen Bunny, just as he had described. Buck didn't want to believe this—far from it—but Larry had sounded truthful and Tod believed him.

This didn't necessarily argue Bunny guilty in any direct way, but it did seem to prove that she knew of Myra's death at that time, and that fact would explain why Carter found her sobbing so bitterly when she went to her room to tell her the news next morning.

Toddy tried to reconstruct the scene that Bunny left when she went upstairs but she was unable to do. He thought, it must be that she saw Myra dead, but whether she had seen her killed or not, he had no idea. If she had, why didn't she raise an alarm? Unless—no, he would never believe that Bunny had herself applied the colors of her vanity case to Myra's face.

Well, he thought, with his usual rapid conclusion, he must ask her about it. It might be hard to do that, but not so hard as to wait in suspense, and perhaps have evidence piling up against the girl he loved.

Sights of Some Insects Perfect; Says Scientist

LONDON.—How well do insects see? The question was answered before the British Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. H. Eltringham at a recent meeting in Oxford.

Glow worms, he found, have perfect vision. Dragonflies can also see as clearly as men, and butterflies are able to see and recognize each other at a distance of three and a half feet. Insects have eyes which enable them to see the ultraviolet rays which are invisible to the human eyes.

Dallas Couple Duplicate Act Of Lady Godiva

DALLAS, Aug. 31.—Lady Godiva never in her wildest dreams attempted to reach the heights attained by a man and woman who rode about the city early one morning here.

Motorcycle policemen riding their beat in the "we small hours" saw the pair as they meandered down the road in an automobile. The cops gasped as it then started in pursuit, hardly daring to believe their eyes. When they overtook the machine with its nocturnal occupants they discovered a man dressed in only a signet ring and a girl dressed in only a bracelet and hairpin. The couple explained that they were carrying out a bet made earlier in the evening at a party.

Police Judge Graves in corporation court reprimanded the couple, when they appeared before him in borrowed attire and assessed a fine.

If things never turned our wrong you never would change your ways and things would turn out worse.

Brightlights Is Not Road To The Footlights

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—When the Chicago Civic Opera company opens the winter season here in November, there will be one member of the company to realize a life-long ambition and the rewards of years of determined study and work.

She is Miss Lorna Doone Jackson, the company's latest "find," a Chicago contralto, who, by perseverance has trod the path of toil to make a dream come true. Since she was 15 years old, Miss Jackson has been working to fit herself for her chosen profession and this year she is to make her debut in metropolitan opera.

Despite years of hard work and study, Miss Jackson has lost none of her girlish charm and enthusiasm. At the same time she realizes the seriousness of the step she is about to take and although the time for her debut is rapidly approaching, she continues to work as hard as ever.

"Playing in the bright lights will never land you behind the footlights," is her philosophy. "I go to bed late, get up late, but I never dissipate. Just work, nothing else occupies my time. I don't even have time to eat."

Some Questions and Answers about United States Water-Cured Tubes

Question—What is the Water-Cure Process?
Answer—The Water-Cure Process is a new method of curing or vulcanizing automobile tubes now in use in the United States Rubber Company tube factories.

Question—How does it differ from the old process?
Answer—During vulcanization heat and pressure must be applied to the tube. The old method used steam to supply this pressure and heat. The new method uses water under high pressure and at steam temperature.

Question—Why does this make a better tube?
Answer—In the old steam method the pressure could not be applied evenly. Small air bubbles were formed in the tube, each of which became a source of weakness.

The new Water-Cure Process eliminates the possibility of such bubbles by its heavy, even pressure. It also insures better union between the tube and the valve-base, and at the same time gives the rubber itself a finer, longer-wearing, more age-resisting texture.

Question—Can water-curing alone make a good tube?
Answer—No. A good tube demands good rubber, proper construction and proper splicing as well.

Question—How are these provided in United States Tubes?
Answer—The rubber used is Sprayed Rubber, the purest and most uniform rubber known. It is made from rubber latex from the United States Rubber Company's own plantations, by a process developed and patented by the Company.

United States Tubes are constructed of four plies of rubber. Most other tubes are made of one or at most two. Splicing is done by a specially developed method, which not only assures uniformly strong splices but also limits the pressure and heat to the splice itself and does not tend to weaken the rest of the tube.

Press Delegates Are Welcomed By Old New York

By United Press.
 NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—North American delegates to the Press Congress of the World were welcomed by New York today as they gathered here preparatory to selling for Europe Saturday.
 A three-day program of sight-seeing, luncheons, dinners, theatre parties and after-theatre suppers has been arranged by the reception committee of New York newspapermen to entertain the delegates during their stay in the city.
 Tomorrow the delegates will be officially welcomed by Mayor Walker at the City Hall at the conclusion of a sight-seeing motor tour throughout downtown New York. Tomorrow night they will be guests of Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Association, at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.
 Theatre parties Wednesday and Thursday nights, after-theatre suppers given by the managements of the New York Herald-Tribune and the New York Times, a dinner given by the New York World, and personally conducted inspections of the offices and plants of these newspapers, are among other events on the program of entertainment.
 The American delegates will sail on the Carmania early Saturday to attend the Press Congress at Geneva Sept. 14, which is expected to be the most noteworthy gathering of the leading representatives of the press of the world ever held.

Texas State Fair Expects Support Of County Exhibits

DALLAS, Aug. 31.—State Fair officials are looking to unprecedented support to the State Fair of Texas, Oct. 9 to 24, from county, district and community fairs to be held in various sections of Texas during September.
 The exhibits gathered together by the various smaller fairs can be moved with little difficulty or extra labor to the state fair where they will be viewed by thousands from adjoining states and from Texas, in the opinion of Secretary W. H. Stratton of the State Fair Association.
 The State Fair also offers opportunities of the several sections of Texas to show their accomplishments, Stratton said.
 Provisions have been made for at least 75 county exhibits at the state exposition. A big majority of these counties will be in competition for the $10,000 cumulative prizes offered by the state fair.
 The prize awards will be determined by scores made by the entrant counties during the five year period beginning with the 1925 fair and ending in 1930.
 Those in charge of the livestock exhibits are promising a display of Texas bred and Texas raised beef cattle that will out-class anything ever before attempted in Texas. Dr. A. E. Flowers, well known Texas breeder, is general superintendent of the State Fair livestock department.

 The visitors are being rushed through a two-day entertainment program ending with a banquet tonight when more than 3,000 members of the profession will discuss their problems.
 A formal reception was held this morning following their arrival and interpreters, provided by the Chicago Dental society, accompanied the foreign guests at all times during their visit.

New Calculations Disprove Newton's Law, Claimed

By United Press.
 SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Astronomical revelations disclosing what is claimed to be a new law of nature finding Newton's equilibrium theory in error, have been made by Capt. T. J. J. See, government astronomer at Mare Island.
 Captain See's calculations, which have definitely been accepted by leading scientists, prove that tides originating in the Pacific ocean cause the globe to wobble on its axis and his theory fixes the rigidity of the earth as three times that of standard steel.
 The discoveries followed a series of minute and highly exact calculations of tidal heights and were a consequence of the efforts of Captain See to determine the cause of a variation of the earth's latitude, caused by the rotation of the north and south poles once every 14 months about the true axis or mean position.
 The government astronomer not only succeeded in proving that this variation, a puzzle to scientists since its discovery, is caused by tides originating in the Pacific ocean and traveling westward, through the Indian and Atlantic oceans to the shores of France, but he found that Newton's theory by which the average height of tides is calculated, is in error and that under a heretofore unknown law of nature, the average height is twice that calculated by the discoverer of the law of gravitation.
 Captain See's findings settle definitely two points upon which scientists have speculated for more than 100 years, it is claimed. They establish that no large bodies of land exist between Alaska and the North Pole, and they prove that the center of the earth is not liquid.

Kansas Town Hires Oklahoma Indian Manage The Ants

By U. Press.
 PRATT, Kan., Aug. 31.—Regarding numerous ant hills in Pratt as a menace to grass and other vegetation, the municipal commissioners recently hired R. E. Salver, an Oklahoma Indian, to apply his "magic chemical" in the extermination of the pests.
 The city officials reported the Indian's method as successful on more than 500 colonies of the insects at his quotation of 25 cents a hill.

Efficiency is ruining the world. You can't get a straw out of a vacuum cleaner to unstop your pipe.

Outlook Is Dark For Iowa in Big Ten Conference

By IRWIN L. FERRITE (United Press Staff Correspondent) IOWA CITY, Ia., Aug. 31.—Shattered by the loss of the backfield quartet of Don Graham, Wesley Fry, Schirmer and Dauber, and the line giants—Krauski, tackle and Griffin, and with star Dick Romney now on the list of Alumni, Iowa's football team, under the directing eye of Coach Burt Ingwerson, faces a stiff program of reconstruction.

Rival Managers Of Ball Teams In Heated Debate

With the Labor day baseball game less than a week off, the prospects are that the two managers will not be speaking terms by that date. Raymond Teal, manager of the Northside and E. H. Chaplin, manager of the Southside, were seen in a heated argument yesterday on the streets, relative to the merits of their two teams. That they did not come to blows was only prevented by the interference of some mutual friends, who told them both that they had all-star teams, and thus pacified them.

John has been in the employ of the Gulf practically since his discharge from the army at the end of the World War. During the war he was a member of the Thirty-Sixth Division, which he joined after completing the course at the first officers' training camp at Leon Springs, Texas. He is a native of Eagle Lake, Texas, and a graduate of Texas A. and M. College.

Nathan Saper has been with the Gulf for a number of years and was stationed at Breckenridge before coming to Eastland. He is post commander of the Eastland American Legion Post.

Auto Accident Victims Known To Ranger Folks

One son was killed and three other children of J. P. Booles, an oil operator of Weatherford, who spent a great deal of time in Ranger during the boom days, were injured Monday afternoon when their heavy automobile skidded from the road and turned over in trying to avoid a collision with another car, eight miles west of Fort Worth.

The dead boy, Joseph Booles, 8, was the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Booles, his sister, Bonnie Belle Booles, 13, was injured seriously, another sister, formerly Miss Ruby Booles, but now Mrs. David Cunningham of Palo Pinto, who was driving the car, was thrown from the car and injured internally, and the oldest sister, Mrs. Walter Powell of Weatherford, was hurt by flying glass, and otherwise injured.

The three injured sisters were taken to a Weatherford hospital and the dead boy to Robertson and Mueller's mortuary in Fort Worth, awaiting word from the father, who is in the Albany oil fields.

Mr. Booles made his headquarters at the McCleskey Hotel when he used to operate in Ranger and has many friends here in the oil fraternity.

Children Write Poem on Death Of Little Junior

Junior Courtney, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Courtney, passed away early Monday evening, at the family home on North Austin street, Ranger, after a brief illness. All that is mortal of little Junior will be laid away in a Cisco cemetery this afternoon, the funeral cortege left Ranger at 2 o'clock, but the memory of this sweet child life will live green in the hearts of his family, and friends, especially those little playmates, who bowed with sorrow over the death of their playmate, poured out their grief in the little poem, "Death Calls."

When Junior Courtney was laid to rest, in the place of Cisco, he was clothed in his best.

Loved and grieved by many friends, people who were friends until the end.

That were by his side always, and that loved him until he passed away. There is a place in the home of J. F. Courtney, that can never be filled, it is the voice of Junior's stillied.

Some day across the river, he'll beckon them to cross, the second time that Jesus appears after the time he died on the cross.

Little Junior died on the thirteenth day of August, 1926; was laid to rest on August 31, 1926.

HIS PLAYMATES.

Junior Courtney is survived by his father and mother, two brothers and one sister.

HOXIE MAKES FAMOUS SCOUT LIVE IN "LAST FRONTIER"

"Buffalo Bill," famous in fiction, lives again in the person of Jack Hoxie, who impersonates the celebrated scout in "The Last Frontier," a Metropolitan picture which will be shown at the Lamb theatre today only.

Hoxie impersonates the great frontiersman during the period of his greatest achievement when he had established the remarkable record of killing 68 buffaloes in one hour's time.

"The Last Frontier" is a story of early days in Kansas and the struggles of the builders of the Missouri Pacific railway to construct their line despite the warring Sioux Indians.

Jack Hoxie comes to "The Last Frontier" well prepared for the great role he is to assume. The production was filmed on the Indian reservation on the great American desert where a replica of the old trading post of Salina was constructed. The leading roles are portrayed by William Boyd, Marguerite De La Motte, J. Farrell Macdonald and Jack Hoxie.

ADAM AND EVE HAVE TWIN BEDS IN "FIG LEAVES"

Did Adam and Eve have twin beds, and was there a cat in their household?

Yes, in both cases, according to Howard Hawks, author and director of "Fig Leaves," a colorful romance of today with Garden of Eden sequences interwoven. Olive Borden and George O'Brien play leading romantic roles in this photodrama now at the Lamb theatre today only.

"They had to have twin beds, so they could quarrel at long range," says Mr. Hawks, "and I think the serpent must have been picking on the cat, or there would have been no fur flying in the garden. In spite of domestic rows, however, I am inclined to think Adam and Eve had a pretty fair time. In any event, Adam didn't have to wear a stiff collar."

The cast supporting O'Brien and Miss Borden in "Fig Leaves" includes Phyllis Haver, Dorothy Dunbar, Charles Conklin, William Austin, Euladie Jensen and 75 of the most beautiful models ever assembled for a motion picture production.

Oak Grove News

OAK GROVE, Aug. 31.—The boll weevil is doing an immense lot of damage to cotton in this locality some men say their cotton will not be worth while to pick, unless there is some let-up of the pests and give cotton a chance.

Well, if we don't make any cotton we farmers will have to fall back on "The Old Reliable Texas Life Preservers," better known as black-eyed peas, which are growing abundantly in this section.

Allan Morris, a farmer living five miles west of Rising Star, brought his family and spent Sunday with this "quill pusher," and tells us that cotton in his community is suffering badly on account of weevil and other pests.

While "Ye Scribe" was in Hodwell Grove community a few days ago we examined a few cotton fields and in one we found three different kinds of destructive pests, namely the boll weevil, the boll worm and the leaf worm.

Seburn Reed is very sick at the home of his son, W. Y. Reed, in this community.

In the United States alone there are more than 10,000 Associations similar to the Ranger Building and Loan Association, the assets of which are in excess of $4,000,000,000 and with a combined membership of more than 7,200,000 men, women and children, all developing a spirit of thrift and industry, and encouraging a love for home and home ownership in the citizens of the communities in which they operate. Let us tell you more about the plan.
