All Sections But Devastated Regions Contribute to Military Invasion of Germany.

ALLIES WAIT ON U. S.

LONDON, May 3.—The allied supreme council today decided to take no naval action against Germany without consulting the United States.

By WEBB MILLER,
United Press Correspondent.

PARIS, May 3.—French troops swept towards the Rhine today. The fervor of 1914 was reawakened as soldiers gathered everywhere for transportation to the German border under the new mobilization order, ready for a quick dash into the Ruhr valley.

The class of 1919 was called up and 130,000 troops were inducted into the service. The only provinces not contributing were the devastated regions.

Engineers Organized.
A force of mining engineers was formed at Mayence. A division of cavalry under General Simon will meet them at Dusseldorf to escort them into the Ruhr.

The armies of occupation are mobilizing under the command of General DeGautie, commanding the Dusseldorf area.

France is prepared also for naval action. Vice Admiral Sagot du Vurbaux will command the French blockading forces unless the British participate, when one of their officers will be assigned command.

COMPLETING ULTIMATUM.

By Associated Press
LONDON, May 3.—The supreme council went into session at 11:30 a. m. today to complete its ultimatum to the Germans.

Admiral Jassel of the French navy arrived today and began conferences with Earl Beatty and other British naval officers regarding naval plans. Jassel was supposed to have unfolded his plan for sending the Mediterranean fleet to German ports if British sea fighters are not ordered there.

BRIAND PLEASED.

By Associated Press
LONDON, May 3.—Premier Briand heard the text of the note sent by Secretary Hughes to Germany urging that government to make clear, adequate and definite proposals to the allied governments today. He said he is greatly pleased with the note.

NAVAL ERRORS THAT DELAYED ALLIED VICTORY DISCUSSED

The chief allied naval error of the war—On both sides of the Atlantic in some things hindsight proved better than foresight—United States should have concentrated on construction of destroyers in 1915—Is criticism of Jellicoe justified?—Outstanding failure of the war was not to have shut the submarines up in their nests earlier.

After every war one can look back and see that somewhere there was lack of foresight, somewhere there was wanting vision translated into action, somewhere there was failure to grasp a new and daring plan which might have turned defeat into victory or have hastened the day of peace.

When one reflects upon the zeal, courage and success of the British navy in freeing the seven seas from German traffic, one is filled with admiration for its spirit and achievements. But it made mistakes, as we, and all the other navies, did.

Over on this side of the ocean what was our chief naval error?

It was that we lacked the foresight in 1915-16, largely because we did not have the information which was kept from neutrals, to concentrate upon the building of destroyers to the exclusion of larger ships. To be sure, we were enabled before the United States entered the war every available facility for the building of destroyers.

More Destroyers Needed.

HEROINE REWARDED.

Good people everywhere, here you see Mrs. Norma Gurling and Dorothy Grace Gurling, of White Plains, N. Y. If you read newspapers you know Mrs. Gurling. She is the heroic mother who, just a few days before Dorothy Grace was born, climbed twenty feet down a well to rescue her fifteen months old son, Norman Jr., who had accidentally tumbled in. The water in the well was twenty feet deep. Mrs. Gurling had to dig holes in the sides of the well to hold her feet as she descended and ascended. She brought the boy up on her shoulders unharmed. She, too, was uninjured. Because she's such a wonderfully good and brave mother Dame Nature sent the stork around with Dorothy Grace probably as a reward, and you may see for yourselves how happy Mrs. Gurling is now.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 3.—Attorneys for 229 coal mine operators and fourteen officials of the United Mine Workers and a number of coal dealers appeared in federal district court here today and filed a motion to quash the indictments which charge the defendants with violating the Sherman anti-trust law and conspiracy to violate the Sherman act. The motion was filed when the defendants were arraigned before Judge Geiger of Milwaukee, sitting during the illness of Judge A. S. Anderson. Court adjourned until 2 p. m. to give District Attorney Frederick Van Nuys and L. Slack, special assistant attorney general, time to check over the list of defendants and see if all were represented at the arraignment.

EMPLOYERS ARE LOSING 4 TIMES THAT AMOUNT

Sec. Davis Conferring Continuously With Leaders of Three Major Strikes.

(United Press Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, May 3.—Strikes and lockouts now are costing workers $1,000,000 daily in wages lost, it was intimated here today on the basis of reports to the labor department which indicate that at least 100,000 men and women are unwilling to work pending the regular May negotiations with their employers over new wage scales. Employers' losses were placed at approximately four times those of workers.

Secretary of Labor Davis and his twenty mediators on duty in big cities are working day and night in an effort to save industry approximately $5,000,000 a day.

Three Big Strikes.

Confronted by three major strikes simultaneously, Davis is holding conferences with groups of workers and employers almost continuously.

Leaders of the Marine engineers and seamen who quit work Sunday night were to see Davis early today after conferences with him last yesterday afternoon. Later in the day Davis expected to get reports on the strike of printers in fifty cities and on the walkout of paper mill workers. In these last three strikes Davis has not yet been asked to mediate, but he is keeping informed on the situation to be ready if the request for arbitration should come to the department.

JAP STEAMER SINKS, ONE IS DROWNED AND NINE ARE MISSING

SEATTLE, Wash., May 3.—Nine persons were missing and one was dead following the sinking of the Jap steamer, Tokyo Maru, 40 miles off the mouth of the Columbia river. Sixty-five survivors were picked up by the transport Buford. The vessel caught fire and was abandoned by the 70 members of the crew and five passengers before the Buford arrived. The fire started at 4 p. m. Monday and spread rapidly through the cargo of lumber. The decks became so hot that it scorched the feet of those fighting the blaze and several were forced to jump overboard.

MARINE STRIKE

By United Press.
The American seamen's strike went into its third day with the general situation as follows: Representatives of the International Seamen's union met in Washington to confer with Secretary Davis at his request that they discuss mediation.

The American Steamship Owners association in reply to Secretary Hoover's suggestion for a commission of three private citizens intimated it preferred to settle the dispute itself.

Both the owners and the United States shipping board reiterated that acceptance of the 15 per cent wage reduction must precede any negotiations. That is the crux of the strike and the seamen steadfastly refuse to consider it.

Seamen's representatives prepared to meet the towing company workers' officials to urge a sympathetic strike that would tie up all harbor operations after the conference scheduled for last night was postponed.

Owners and seamen continued widely at variance on their estimates of men and ships affected, the former contending that only a few hundred men and a "handful" of ships were involved, while the men maintained that practically the entire 175,000 union membership had responded and that virtually all merchant craft now in port were helpless.

CABINET MUST SPEND ONLY SUM APPROPRIATED

CLEVELAND, May 3.—Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador, today declared in an address to the local chamber of commerce that differences between the United States and Japan, "Call for adjustment but their existence does not justify apprehension or pessimistic forecast." Declaring that the stability of every human institution about the shores of the Pacific ocean depended on the maintenance of harmony and good understanding between Japan and the United States the ambassador said grave responsibility rested upon the two countries.

Harding Tells 'Em After Learning Extra Appropriations Total $216,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—President Harding today notified all members of his cabinet that they must keep their expenditures within the amount appropriated by congress for their department.

In a letter sent to each secretary, Harding deplored the "dangerous tendency" of government departments to exceed the amounts congress has allowed them and then put in requests for more money.

The letter was written by the president, following a letter he had received from Senator Warren of Wyoming, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, calling attention to the fact that requests for extra appropriations now before congress total $216,000,000.

FIFTY MEN WILL COMB RANGER WEDNESDAY FOR NEW MEMBERS OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Wednesday morning the Chamber of Commerce launches its one-day drive for new members among citizens who have moved into Ranger during the last year. Team captains in the one-day membership recruiting are:

J. P. Monday, H. E. Clewell, Gifford Clegg, A. Davenport, W. M. Frost, A. D. Gwynne, J. T. Gullahorn, L. R. Pearson, R. B. Waggoner and O. C. Williams.

President Gullahorn also is chairman of the recruiting, having accepted the position before the results of the recent annual election were known, and before the new board was organized.

Captains Meet.
The captains met yesterday afternoon to select their teams and were busy today, each completing a team organization that he can count on to recruit Ranger's big community organization so as to include every progressive man in the community.

Long and careful preparation has been made by Chairman Gullahorn and a large committee for the recruiting and for other features of the ending-of-the-year stock taking. A fine list of prospective members has been prepared, showing that the influx of new citizens into Ranger has continued steadily since the big drive of last year. Each team member will undertake to see five of these prospects and to extend to him an invitation to lend a hand to Ranger's wheel of progress.

100-BARRELER AT TOP OF LIME NEAR EDHOBBY

Pyramid Test May Open Up Vast Undeveloped Pool South of Ranger.

An oil well making 100 barrels from the top of the lime is reported near Edhobby, seven miles north of the Desdemona field and in undeveloped territory. The well is being sunk by the Pyramid Oil Company, and when the pay was reached it was at a depth of 3100 feet.

At present the worth of the well is not known, but it is expected to be drilled in today. If it proves up to expectations it probably will be the forerunner of other wells that will be sunk in that district and according to oil men will open up much new territory.

JAP ENVOY CAN SEE NO CAUSE FOR RUPTURE

CLEVELAND, May 3.—Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador, today declared in an address to the local chamber of commerce that differences between the United States and Japan, "Call for adjustment but their existence does not justify apprehension or pessimistic forecast." Declaring that the stability of every human institution about the shores of the Pacific ocean depended on the maintenance of harmony and good understanding between Japan and the United States the ambassador said grave responsibility rested upon the two countries.

He asked, "Is there any question between us which cannot be set at rest by the ordinary process of friendly discussion? A sane and honest diplomacy, backed by a sense of reason and charity and mutual concession will alone lead to a lasting settlement of the problems. There is no other course."

He reiterated the declaration of his government "that Japan claimed no right nor has she any intention of sending emigrants to this country. She has held consistently to a policy of placing restrictions on such emigration."

"There is nothing in our law that directs the resignation of a senator to be made to the governor. The law is silent on that. Section 11, Article III, of our state constitution provides when a vacancy occurs that the governor shall call an election to fill such vacancy, and if he fails within twenty-six days, then the returning officer of the district shall be authorized to call such an election. Section 3, Article III of the constitution provides that if a member removes out of his county or district, his office thereby becomes vacant."

BURKETT SAYS RUSSELL HAS NO SENATE JOB

Challenges Neff's Right to "Deny Representation to 28th District."

EASTLAND, May 3.—Representative Joe Burkett is today writing to a Fort Worth paper an answer to a dispatch from Austin stating that Senator John A. Russell is still in office because Governor Neff has never accepted his resignation.

In his answer Burkett challenges the governor's right to withhold Russell's resignation and quoted the law on the subject. His contention is that an official has a right to resign at any time he sees fit and that the resignation should have prompt acceptance.

The action of the governor, he says, denies the Twenty-eighth district the right to representation in the senate during the coming special session.

BURKETT SAID:
"I read with much interest, as well as amusement, the article appearing in this morning's paper with reference to why an election for senator from the Twenty-eighth Senatorial district had not been ordered by the governor. While the article referred to seems to be general in its nature, and appears to be written by a staff correspondent, yet it is undoubtedly authoritative from the governor."

"The second paragraph of the article reads, in part: 'Talk by Representative Joe Burkett of Eastland, to the effect that the returning officer of that senatorial district should call an election is unwarranted because, although Governor Neff has received the resignation of John A. Russell, as senator, he has never accepted it, and there exists no vacancy, etc.' From this it will immediately be seen that the governor has not accepted the resignation. Why? If a man wants to resign, hasn't he the right to do so? Is the governor the one to say that a senator shall not resign? Is the governor the one to say that, although the law does not say to whom a resignation shall be tendered by a senator or a representative, that such a senator shall remain in office against his wishes? I have known for some time that the governor wished the power to remove officers in case he thought they should be removed, but this is the first intimation that he, too, claimed the power to keep them in office against their will."

"There is nothing in our law that directs the resignation of a senator to be made to the governor. The law is silent on that. Section 11, Article III, of our state constitution provides when a vacancy occurs that the governor shall call an election to fill such vacancy, and if he fails within twenty-six days, then the returning officer of the district shall be authorized to call such an election. Section 3, Article III of the constitution provides that if a member removes out of his county or district, his office thereby becomes vacant."

"This brings us to the question whether it is necessary for the governor to accept the resignation of Senator Russell before a vacancy occurs. I think not. Our law is silent on the matter, and a member surely knows when he wants to quit, and has a right to quit without asking the governor, if the law does not require his consent."

I cite the following cases to sustain this contention: Acceptance of resignation is not necessary in offices which take all the time of the incumbent, particularly federal offices.' 29 Cyc. 1403; State vs. Clark, 3 Nev. 568; U. S. vs. Wright, 28 Fed. Cas. No. 16,775; I. McLean, 509. Where the absolute right to resign is recognized, resignation will be deemed complete when the office is relinquished and no formal method of resignation is necessary, in the absence of the statute to the contrary the office may be resigned by parole.' 29 Cyc. 1404 Van Orsdall vs. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 243; Barbour vs. U. S., 17 Ct. Cl. 149; Jennings v. Case, 12 Mod. 402. ABANDONMENT: Office may also be terminated by abandonment, which means failure to perform the duties of the office. 29 Cyc. 1,404; People vs. Hartwell, 6 Pac. 873; People vs. Spencer, 101 Ill. App. 61; Barbour vs. U. S., 17 Ct. Cl. 149; and it need not be judicially determined that the office be deemed to be abandoned.' 29 Cyc. 1405; Osborne vs. State, 27 N. E. 845; Atty. Gen. vs. Maybury, 104 N. W. 324; and one who has abandoned an office is estopped from asserting a claim to such office.' 29 Cyc. 1405; State vs. Moores' 72 N. W. 1056; Colth vs. Beardsley, 38 N. Barb. (N. Y.) 29.

Quotes Statute.
"Section 8 of Art. III, of our constitution provides that each house shall be the judge of the qualifications and election of its own members, but our constitution or laws nowhere provide that a senator must tender his resignation to the senate, neither is it anywhere provided that the senate may keep a senator from resigning. In the case of Senator Russell, the governor sent his resignation to the senate, or a copy of same, and the senate, according to my information, simply dropped Senator Russell's name from the senate roster, and accepted his resignation. And afterward, some of the members thinking that possibly the senate had exceeded its authority, simply re-instated Senator Russell's name on the senate roster, and some of the members taking notice that it was not the"

senate, but of the governor to accept or reject the resignation.

Governor's Right.
"But aside from all this argument, if the governor has the right to accept or reject the resignation of a senator, why does he not take some action? Why does he not reject the resignation or accept it? No one knows better than the governor that the resignation has been tendered and that Senator Russell has been asked for a large amount of money, and that he has not been seen or heard of for more than two months, and the governor could find it out by a mere effort of inquiry, as to what action has been taken with reference to the alleged shortage of funds to which reference is made in the article which defends the governor's action."

"If the burden of accepting or rejecting the resignation is on the governor, why does he not accept the burden and responsibility, and not attempt to pass it on to the senate, as the article indicates that he has done? The Twenty-eighth senatorial district wants a senator in the special session, and if the governor, by a mere stroke of the pen in accepting a resignation that was tendered nearly three months ago, and by ordering an election to fill the vacancy, can make it possible, then in all fairness to this district and this section of the state it seems to me he should do so."

"It is unfortunate for the district and for Senator Russell and his friends that things have turned out as they have, and no person regrets it more than I, but I cannot for my life see any justification for the governor not calling an election to give us a senator. The vacancy exists and should be filled. If the governor refuses to call the election, the county judge of Eastland county, who happens to be the returning officer of the Twenty-eighth district, should call the election, as he is empowered to do under the constitution, in order that more than 300,000 people in said district might have a man in the senate to care for their interests as well as the interests of the state in their behalf.

"And, too, the governor has recently, within the past ten days or two weeks, accepted the resignation of Senator Harp of Mexia, and the newspaper reports show that he has ordered an election for that district? Why the discrimination between the two districts? It's peculiar, but it seems to be true?"

REV. JONES RESIGNS.
EASTLAND, May 3.—Rev. Arthur W. Jones, pastor of the First Christian church here, has tendered his resignation to accept a call to the Austin Street Christian church, El Paso. Rev. HOT BATH IS BECOMING UNKNOWN IN GERMANY

BERLIN, May 3.—The hot bath has become such a luxury in Germany owing to the shortage of coal and the manner in which the government regulates the distribution of fuel that many persons have ceased bathing. Public baths, where once a plunge or a tub was available for a few pennings, have been forced to close or raise prices beyond the reach of workmen and salaried workers. In photographing stars through the telescope, exposures of four or five hours are common, while in photographing a nebula the exposure sometimes extends to ten hours or more.

Three hundred dollars in prizes have been posted for the trimmest and neatest hosiery paraded in the reviewing stand.

"KING'S EXCUSE"

When individuals or corporations sidestep responsibility or maneuver in such a manner that "George" not only "does it," but assumes the heavy end of whatever penalty attaches to error or misdirected effort it calls forth little comment.

But when the great government of the United States, through its legal department, hands down an opinion acquitting it in advance of all culpability for errors which might be construed as criminal libel, the average reader would doubtless detect in such a course an astounding situation.

In a solemn pronouncement Attorney General Daugherty sets forth that "neither the government nor any individual officer could be held liable for the erroneous inclusion of names in the slacker draft lists prepared by the war department for publication," and adds:

"THE OPINION DOES NOT PASS ON THE LIABILITY OF NEWSPAPERS FOR PUBLISHING SUCH NAMES, BUT I DO NOT BELIEVE THEY COULD BE HELD LIABLE, AS THE LISTS WOULD BE OFFICIAL AS PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED BY THE GOVERNMENT."

Now that opinion will certainly not encourage newspapers to give publicity to the government's list of "slackers."

The American Legion is clamoring for it. They demand that the names of the nearly 200,000 men sifted out after "careful checking" as those who were derelict in their patriotic obligations be given to the reading public.

If John Jones' name appears in the list and John Jones was NOT a slacker, John Jones is going to be sore.

He has a right to be, and no one knows this better than the newspapers.

And no one should know it better than the government.

But the government gracefully sidesteps any possible consequences of such error.

Fine! For the government.

It's like the Dutch comedians of forgotten days who were about to fight a duel.

The slim one, mindful of his advantage in the smaller target he presented, drew a chalk line down either side of his fat opponent's person and said, consolingly, "Now if a bullet hits on the outside of this mark it don't count."

The Legion seems disposed to brand as "slacker sympathizers" newspapers which do not for any reason seem anxious to publish the lists.

The government would make a rather bulky mark of the newspapers and then says, "Our legal department has drawn these chalk marks. You can see 'em plainly. We're going to shoot, but if we should hit out of bounds we've got our fingers crossed. It don't count."

But where do the newspapers get off?

Other members of the late administration are busy with their memoirs, but if Mr. Bryan is making any contribution to history he is doing it on the sly.—Kansas City Star.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

"Yes, I am a bit done up," admitted the Aunt Dell's suburban friend, from the depths of the couch cushions.

"You see Aunt Dell's been here."

"Is she still trying to solve the problem of perpetuating motion?" the woman inquired sympathetically.

"Well, I leave you to judge," began her friend. "She came intending to stay in the city with a couple of the 'girls' from the home town here for a brief respite from Main street."

"But I persuaded her to come to me. The first day Aunt Dell insisted on the Art Museum in the morning, I assure you Aunt Dell is thorough when it comes to sightseeing. Luncheon and a matinee followed. It seemed too bad, she remarked, when we were already in town not to make the most of the afternoon. We finished the day at bridge arranged by our next door neighbors."

"The next morning, at breakfast Aunt Dell murmured rather plaintively that she had never visited the Hall of Fame. That the Beardsey had offered her opera tickets for the evening made no difference.

"The Hall of Fame won't take very long," said Aunt Dell. "Then we can run into a few shops and get home early."

"I gasped, but long experience has taught me better than to interfere with Aunt Dell as a program maker, and I refrained from saying 'I told you so' when we reached home just in time for a hasty bite before changing our clothes and catching the theatre train."

"Next day's schedule was varied by a morning concert at the Vanderbilt, followed by luncheon at the Cosmopolitan club, a smattering of shopping and an evening theatre party. Four days more of this and Aunt Dell took her departure. Her farewell to me was, 'I've had such a nice time with you, Mary, so much quieter than if I'd stayed in the city with the 'girls.'"

Beginning Well.

It isn't often these days that one finds such verdant innocence. He was plainly on his guard, and did not intend to be taken for a "greenhorn."

Moreover, he was visibly proud of his promotion for the moment from general glass mopper to soda jerker, as the clerk-in-chief had been temporarily called away.

Young America, aged 11, came in and ordered a "chawclut soder!" With all the dignity in the world, the boy behind the counter concocted this delectable drink. "Now gimme a straw!" demanded the youngster.

The "greenhorn" drew himself up to his full five feet seven and answered with a sly twinkle that suggested the peat bogs of the Emerald Isle left behind him but recently, "We haven't thrashed yet!"

"Aw quit yer kiddin' and gimme a straw!" insisted the boy.

The woman, sipping hot chocolate now, nodded toward the receptacle which contained the straws on a shelf behind the puzzled clerk.

"Oh, them!" he said wonderingly, as he heaped the youngster. "Who'd think them paper things were straw!"

He smiled gratefully at the woman and frankly grinned at the joke on himself. "Sure, I thought he was tryin' to kid me," he confessed.

The woman nodded sympathetically. He will make cheerful citizen; he knows when the laugh is on him.

Out of a Job.

He came into Wellesley headquarters the other morning, dressed in rusty brown, his eyes pathetically begging for sympathy. Not that he really needed sympathy. For although he had lost his job he had fallen into a soft snafu, a home of comfort, where his hardest work would be to gaze at his mistress with adoring eyes and lift a languid paw to shake hands with callers.

As the aforesaid mistress sat in consultation with the publicity chairman of the Wellesley campaign, discussing ways and means of rousing the public to an interest in keeping education safe for democracy, the little chap in rusty brown entertained the woman. "Where had she seen him before?" There was something vaguely familiar in that shaggy coat and those pathetic eyes.

Then suddenly the answer came. Surely she had seen the little fellow on the stage at "Deburau." "You're right," said his mistress. "Lost his job at the theatre because he would bark at the footlights. So he's mine now. Fallen into a soft snafu, I fear. So on the whole I fancy he's not sorry he was fired."

TINKER BOB STORIES

By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

THERE IS A C ALL FOR JACK

Now Tinker Bob was so pleased with the actions of Jenny Wren in the matter of giving Mr. Sparrow her home where he had lived all winter, that he had Jerry the Jay tell it everywhere. The King thought it might encourage others to be kind and do likewise. "Come here, Jenny," said he, "and tell me all about your plans for the summer."

Jenny was such a fussy little creature that it was difficult for her to hold still very long at one time. "Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut," said she, lighting in the King's hand, "I must look for Mr. Wren. I don't know where he's gone to, but I suppose he has found a place where we can build a house. That would be just like him. I know he told me about a fine place in the Hunter's orchard, but we didn't stop to look about any more for we wanted to get here as soon as possible."

"If you're the same little chatterbox as ever, and I don't know what the creatures of the forest would do without you either."

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut, there is Mr. Wren now with a mouth full of twigs, and such twigs. O dear, I do wish he would learn to gather twigs that I could use. Now drop those big sticks, Mr. Wren, you know I can't build a house with such large things, why they look like logs. Then we must look for a place to build anyway. There is no use gathering twigs when you don't have a place to build a house."

Mr. Wren dropped the twigs long enough to say a word, although it was hard to get a word in when Jenny was about. "But you didn't know that I found a place that is much better than this old house, and while I was wandering about I found these sticks that will do to make a frame."

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut, what an old dear you are, Wren. You see, O King, he is always doing just such things as that, and I can't help liking him, and then I get sorry for scolding him so much. But then he doesn't care. He just goes right along gathering sticks and singing. O King, have you seen Jack the Rabbit since you came back? Of all the dwellers in the Forest I like Jack the best. Of course he can't sing but O, how he can run and then he always likes to hear Mr. Wren sing. I tell you, O King, there is no better singer in the forest than Mr. Wren, if he is my husband and I do have to say it myself."

I can't build a house with such large things, why they look like logs.

"Well, you shall see Jack, the Rabbit," said Tinker Bob and he tapped the Stone of Knowledge and suddenly Jack, the Rabbit, came out of the briar patch. "Come over here Jack, Mrs. Wren wants to talk to you."

"O King, you are the most wonderful fellow in the world, and I don't know what the forest folks would do without you."

Josephus Daniels Tells Story of American Navy's Exploits in World War

"When it came to building additional destroyers, especially those of the large program, it was found that the ship building facilities of the country were fully absorbed with the vessels then under construction, and it would be necessary to create new facilities. The plans adopted required more than doubling the capacity available last summer for building destroyers, and that capacity was materially greater than before the war. In spite of speed in construction, these vessels are not being slighted in workmanship of appliances."

Experts Didn't See It.
Looking back, I wished every day during the war that when we began the big naval expansion, in 1915, we had asked congress for the money to build 300 destroyers at that time. By concentration in 1915-16 we would have had most of them ready in the first months of the war. It is a fact however, that no naval experts and nobody in congress suggested building the capital ships and building the big destroyer program we began in the stress of war.

Some of the ablest writers declare that it was the tactics of Admiral Jellicoe at the battle of Jutland.

The admiral had written a most interesting book undertaking to show that his method of fighting the battle was right when all the conditions are considered.

The admiral is a brave and learned officer, and a gentleman of charm and real stuff, but he made the mistake of his life when he wrote his story of the grand fleet.

"Confession and Avoidance."
I read it on my way to Europe in March, 1919, and began it with a feeling that Admiral Jellicoe had been harshly and unjustly treated by the critics. But, when I read the last chapter my feeling was the same as that of a distinguished Britisher whom I met a few weeks later and who said to me:

"For his own reputation Jellicoe ought not to have written that book. At the best it is a plea of confession and avoidance."

The basis for this opinion lies in the fact that the admiral charges his failure to win a decisive victory to the superiority of the Germans in certain material (and the low visibility that prevailed); whereas the admiralty had told the world that in this very material Great Britain excelled all other nations—and Jellicoe had directed its material division.

Commander Bellairs, M. P., may be too severe in his criticism of Admiral Jellicoe, but all who are interested in the naval history of the war should read both Jellicoe and Bellairs—and I hope we will be able to read some day Jellicoe in reply to Bellairs.

Point of Controversy.
The crux of the battle is: Should Jellicoe have turned the whole fleet away at 7:10 because a flotilla of enemy destroyers supported by a cruiser was observed on a bearing S. 50 degrees W. from Iron Duke? Bellairs says: "It was to avoid this attack of eleven destroyers that 27 battleships turned away." "It is impossible," Bellairs continues, "to imagine a more definite break from the whole spirit of naval tradition or its practice, united to modern inventions of the golden rule that once an enemy is sighted he must be cut off, closely engaged and annihilated. Out cruisers and destroyers who could have pressed home their own attacks on the enemy's line, were by this time in the van." Finally, after an elaborate discussion, Bellairs says: "It suffices here to remark that no turn ought to have presented itself to a British admiral but the turn toward the enemy."

Admiral Jellicoe went in command of the British grand fleet after long and honorable service in the admiralty. Is that the reason why he placed prudence above daring? The doctrine of "fast in being" had long ago been upheld by the admiralty. Admiral Jellicoe felt that the safety of the world depended upon the ability of the British navy to prevent the escape of the German fleet to the high seas. If he failed in dashing after the enemy fleet under conditions he deemed adverse, was it not due to his long shore experience and his intense conviction that he must, at all hazards, preserve British superiority in ships on the sea.

On Shore Too Long.
I remember some years ago that a certain naval officer, who stood high in the service, went in command of a battleship after three years of shore duty.
"How is Capt. Y—getting on?" I asked Admiral Fletcher, then commander-in-chief of the fleet.
"He has been on the shore too long," replied Admiral Fletcher. "There is but one way to be a successful, ready and quick captain of a ship, and that is to practice all the duties afloat."

Afterward that officer, highly esteemed, was snucked.
When the time came for the United States navy to enter active war service, even before the declaration of war, I gave the positions of greatest importance afloat to men of the longest and latest experience at sea—Mayo in command of all our forces at home and abroad; Rodman in command of our dreadnaughts in the North sea; Wilson first in charge of the patrol squadron and later in command off the French coast, protecting our transports; Gleaves in command of the cruiser and transport force, safeguarding and carrying our soldiers overseas; Rogers in command of dreadnaughts watching for German raiders off the British and French coasts, and others of long seagoing experience.

Greatest Error of Allies.
What was the biggest naval error of the war committed by the allies?

I think the answer is plain and easily understood, now by both expert and layman: It was the failure to erect, at the beginning of submarine warfare, back in 1914-15, effectual barrages across the North sea and the English channel, in the Mediterranean and at the entrance to the Adriatic sea. If efforts had been directed to this end sinkings by submarines would have been greatly lessened and ended long before the combined naval forces were equal to the big job of making U-boat warfare unsafe.

The deeds of the destroyers and other naval craft glorify the world war. But if the day war was declared, as the first naval offensive in that area, the French and British had made the channel from Dover to Calais impossible of passage by an enemy submarine that would have been supreme and effective strategy.

If barrages, such as we afterward laid across the North sea, had been erected there and across the straits of Otranto, the U-boats would have been so hemmed in that Germany would have realized early in the struggle that she could not hope to win the war by their use. Millions of tons of shipping would have been saved, and it would have changed the whole trend of the war at sea.

Errors in Planity.
There were plenty of errors—naval and army—on both sides of the Atlantic—errors made by able and patriotic men, as there always are.

Some will ask, Why should errors be discussed now that the war is over, and all the allied and associated powers did so well? Admiral Beatty furnishes the answer in these words:

"We make many mistakes, and it is our business today to see that the lessons have been taken to heart, and that we shall not again be found in such a state that we have to face the greatest crisis in history with improvised methods, working from hand to mouth. It may be said that the result was good enough with such methods; but was it? We have surely no right to continue to rely on improvisations. We in the navy know well our defects and it is our business to face them, to leave no stone unturned to avoid a repetition of the mistakes from which we have suffered in the past."

(Another article by former Secretary Daniels will be printed tomorrow.)

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS

Sid Hocks got off a good joke the best time he was at Tickleville. He wanted his shoes fixed, and the shoe shop is in one corner of the meat market, and he went in and told them he wanted a round-steak half sole.

In the fourth reel of the western movie at the Tickleville opera house Saturday night a hard rain storm came up and swept across the desert plains, and several in the audience got up and hurried out to cover up the hoods on their cars.

RANGER TODAY

By WILLIAM A. HART

ARTICLE 3.
HOW DO WE GET THAT WAY?

When I stepped off the Wichita, Ranger and Fort Worth train last night, on my return from a visit to Breckenridge, I felt as if I did when I hit New York after a month in the "brush."

Ranger is a city, with the looks of a city, and the atmosphere of a city. The miracle of Oklahoma City which drove the pessimists and knockers into their holes is going to be surpassed by Ranger. I feel sure of that.

But the comparison between Breckenridge and Ranger is something more than a surface contrast. It makes a man think.

In the phrase of the day, "How did Ranger get that way?"

Two years ago, they tell us, Ranger was like Breckenridge—only more so. What was it that made Ranger a city? How comes it that at Breckenridge you feel as if you were at a circus and in Ranger as if you were in a community?

There are thousands of "old inhabitants" who could give the answer. It was a matter of co-operation.

The crowd that used to step off of the special trains that ran up Ranger in the early days and throng up Main street like an armistice parade had just one motto: "Every man for himself."

If that motto had been carried out to the limit Ranger today would consist of one man who had devoured the person and the property of every other man who came here, because he was the strongest.

And when he had devoured it, it wouldn't be worth the swallowing. Because there wouldn't be anybody but him to trade in the stores, nobody else to eat in the restaurants; nor any stores nor any restaurants.

So much for pure theory.

What did happen was that the men of Ranger got together. They got together for water supply. They got together for law and order. They got together for banking facilities. They got together for a fire department. They got together for a railroad.

They began this from the day Ranger, Field was discovered, just as Breckenridge is doing, and the more they got together, the better things grew. And the better they grew the more they got together.

Out of systematic getting together grew organization. Companies, city departments, clubs and the Chamber of Commerce.

The purely selfish men couldn't organize because the selfish man plays a lone hand. Therefore it followed that it was the best who organized.

It is still the best who organizes. In organizations will always be found the best. And the man who doesn't join with his fellowmen for progress thereby characterizes himself beyond all argument as not belonging to the best.

Out of organization grew a program. Part of this program was thought out ahead, and dried. Part of it was a matter of principle.

"This organization," said the Chamber of Commerce, for instance, "will do what its hand finds to do for the community."

And when a big modern city grew up out of the midst of Ranger camp, like the rose a magician creates with his wand out of ground, it was the spirit of organization that did it.

It is all very well to wag a head and wave an expressive hand, and I have been doing since I came to Ranger and explain over the miracle of what I see. It shows how I feel. And I shall go away from Ranger with more admiration bottled up in me than I can possibly get out of me here. "You ought to see Ranger," is a song I am going to sing for a long time.

But, good friends of Ranger, excited admiration isn't going to do you any good, although it pleases your very good pride.

The thing you want to know is the principle of growth that has brought Ranger so far, so that that principle can be captured as other germs are captured and propagated.

It's a family secret, which you know it. Like the law of gravity or of tree-grafting.

Ranger has become a city by organization, co-operation and a program.

The Chamber of Commerce is this week asking everybody to make suggestions for Ranger's program for coming year. Questionnaires are being sent out to the membership mailing list. Everybody is welcome to participate.

Answer these questions. Tell the Chamber of Commerce what Ranger needs this year. Ranger has got to go on. Ranger is going to go on. Ranger will go where its citizens want it to go, if they want hard enough and "want together."

How did Ranger get that way? By a program of progress. It has taken her quite a distance, I'll tell the world.

Band yourself together and let your actions be the result of your thinking, your loyalty and your righteousness.

TOO MUCH SUN MAY CAUSE DISEASE, ASSERTS DOCTOR

LONDON, May 3.—"Temperance in sun, as in all things," is the rule laid down by Dr. Crawshaw Holt, medical officer of Glasgow, who has caused a sensation by declaring that sunlight is a prolific cause of disease. "It is necessary to remove from people's minds the impression that unlimited exposure to the sun must be beneficial." The chemical action of the sun produces certain alterations in the cells of the body which make them suitable food for disease germs.

SENATE RAIL INQUIRY SET FOR MAY 10 BY CUMMINS

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Chairman Cummins of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission announced that the general inquiry into railroad conditions would begin May 10. Railway executives will be the first witnesses.

HOW BLUE LAWS WOULD REDUCE U. S. REVENUES

By RALPH FORD COUCH
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Sunday closing of movies, soda fountains, tobacco stores and the like, as urged by blue law enthusiasts, would cost the federal government nearly $1,000,000 a Sunday in reduced taxes, it was estimated here today on the basis of returns of the Internal Revenue bureau.

The loss of $2,000,000 a year is a mere drop in the bucket to the government, which last year collected nearly $5,500,000,000 in taxes, according to blue law proponents. This shortage could easily be made up through taxes from other sources, it is urged.

A federal anti-cigarette law, proposed by those behind the legal purification movement, would cost the government approximately $150,000,000 a year. That was the amount collected last year on cigarettes. A law forbidding the sale of tobacco in all forms would mean a loss of nearly $200,000,000 a year. In this connection it is disclosed that snuff, so much affected by our grandfathers, has not yet completely gone out of fashion. Snuff taxes last year netted the government nearly $7,000,000, or nearly $2,000,000 more than the year before.

Taxes totaling about $663,000 are collected directly by the government on cigarettes, soft drink beverages, movie admissions and tobacco for each Sunday of the year. This was estimated on the basis of one-seventh of the total tax collections from these sources, with the exception of tobacco. From this source only one-twentieth or 5 per cent was subtracted, since it is assumed that Sunday closing of tobacco shops would not reduce sales in direct proportion to the period when purchases could not be made. Addicts of the weed, it is assumed, would stock up on Saturday.

EIGHT JAPS DROWN!

By Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Eight members of the crew of the Japanese steamer Tokuyo Maru died after they were taken aboard the United States army transport Buford, according to a wireless received today from Captain Suzuki of the Tokuyo by Toyo Kisen Kaisha, owners of the burned vessel.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE TO THE LEGION HOTEL

Improvements which promise to add much to its appearance and to the comfort of guests are being made by J. B. Ames to the Legion hotel. The street entrance is being boarded up and a spacious lobby is being arranged on the ground floor to the left. The lobby entrance will be immediately on the street and a broad stairway will lead directly from the lobby to the upper floors instead of from the street to the second floor lobby as formerly. A profusion of plants and flowers in rustic flower boxes will lend color and restfulness to the new arrangement.

NEWSPAPER MAN FINED $1 FOR LIBEL ON COURT

CHICAGO, May 3.—Leonard G. Edwardson, Chicago correspondent for a New York paper, today was fined $1 and costs by Judge Taylor. He was charged with criminal libel against Judge McDonald, chief justice of the superior court.

The case resulted from articles written by Edwardson alleged to have misquoted Judge McDonald and others concerning the 1919 world series scandal. Edwardson publicly apologized.

Unnecessary.

"I haven't any sympathy for the man who beats his wife," said a passenger in the smoker of the 5:15.

"Well," said another, a timid under-sized fellow. "A man who can beat his wife doesn't need any sympathy."

CHARGES OF FORGERY INVOLVE TWO MEN

Charges of forgery have been filed against J. Turner and W. H. Sanders in the court of Justice of the Peace Roger Fenlaw in connection with two checks with the signature of M. Claverie appended to them. Claverie, who denies the signatures, signed the complaint.

One check for $81.35 was payable to J. Turner and was cashed by R. L. Faircloth. The other for $48.00 was payable to Sanders and went through the bank upon which it was drawn. The checks were given on February 2, and the alleged forgery only discovered Monday when Claverie asked the bank for his statement.

The men had not been arrested Tuesday morning.

CATTLE RAISERS PROTEST TO I. C. C. ON FREIGHT RAISE

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Farmers, livestock producers and shippers have filed complaints with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

They charged railroads had increased the fixed charges for handling live stock in Chicago to a greater percentage than authorized by the commission last August increasing all rates.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE TROOPERS CALLED 'COSSACKS'

BOSTON, May 3.—Charles J. Hodson, legislative agent for the American Federation of Labor, in opposing a bill for the creation of state constabulary today, referred to the Pennsylvania mounted force as "a body of Cossacks who ride down men, women and children."

He asserted that the real purpose of the force "is the use of its members as strike-breakers."

FOUR-YEAR-OLD MAKES OCEAN TRIP ALONE

Smiling coyly and waving a cheery good-bye to her dad on the pier, Miss Phyllis Toeque, four years old, of Louisville, Ky., recently sailed from New York for England to visit her grandparents. Phyllis' mother died last year, and her father could not leave his business to accompany her. However, he saw her put safely aboard the steamer. It was an old story to the little traveler from Louisville, however, for this is her third trip across.

MAY INHERIT FORTUNE FROM MILLIONAIRE HERMT.

One of the most amazing stories brought to light in New York has been revealed in the death of Calvin Amory Stevens. Stevens a millionaire lived as a recluse in the heart of New York's financial district, while his wife and daughter lived in a beautiful mansion in Brooklyn. Complications have now resulted over the will, which is missing. It is estimated he left a $15,000,000 estate. A few days before his death his daughter, Katherine, eloped with Richard Fagan, a twenty-year-old Dartmouth University student. Mrs. Fagan is eighteen years old. The illustration shows Mrs. Jessie I. Stevens, his widow, his daughter, Katherine, and Calvin Stevens, de Sousa, his five-year-old grandson, who are expected to share in the fortune left by the eccentric millionaire.

WELFARE NURSE FOR COUNTY EXAMINING SCHOOL CHILDREN

The county welfare nurse who has been assigned to Eastland county by the county chapter of the Red Cross is at present engaged in examining the school children of the county. The nurse, Miss Jean Meyers, is from Temple and comes highly recommended. She has finished examining the children of the Eastland schools and this week is at Carbon. Later she expects to come to Ranger. Her headquarters are in Eastland.

Her services have been tendered the local health physician whenever needed.

Miss Meyers' greatest work will be to guard the school children from contagious diseases and to this end she will watch over them carefully for the first cropping of an ailment of any nature. It is said that by this care quite often Red Cross nurses save schools from an epidemic.

WOMAN DENOUNCES DIVORCE LAWS WHICH HARM CHILDREN.

CHICAGO, May 3.—An anonymous letter denouncing the divorce laws of Illinois, written evidently by a woman whose marriage was recently annulled, was received by Judge Lewis, who is hearing divorce cases in the Superior Court.

The author denounces the laws which make her children, by the marriage which has been declared void, illegitimate.

'CUPID'S PARK' TO BE BUILT FOR KANSAS CITY SPOONERS

KANSAS CITY, Kan., May 3.—Water Commissioner Chapman has officially decreed that Kansas City shall have a "Cupid's Park." Because spooning is condemned in other city parks, his department will set aside eleven acres of land to be converted into a park.

In Chapman's park there will be "nooks," benches and swings "just comfortable for two."

MIDDLETON, N. Y., May 3.—In a will just admitted to probate at Goshen, William B. Limberger bequeathed $1 to his wife, Kathryn H. Limberger, who resides somewhere in Cattaraugus County.

All the rest of the estate, of whatever nature, was bequeathed to his half-sister, Josephine Limberger, of Binghamton. In the will he explained that his wife had left him.

COLLECTIVE MARKETING BILL REPORTED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The House Judiciary committee ordered today a favorable report on the Volstead bill permitting organization by farmers, ranchmen, dairymen and fruit growers for purposes of collective marketing.

The Secretary of Agriculture would have supervisory powers, enabling him to prevent efforts in restraint of trade to unduly advance the prices of products handled by the associations.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

Mr. Sly got red in the face when Mary Jane spoke to him

Mary Jane and the Little Red Fox

ONE day Mary Jane was going to school, and she met Mr. Sly, the red fox.

Mary Jane said, "Good morning. You ought to be ashamed of yourself for stealing old Mrs. Gamp's chicken last night. Don't you know she was saving that chicken for when the minister was coming?"

Mr. Sly got red in the face. And then he said he was going along peaceably, minding his own business, and then her old hen ran right out and bit him. So what could he do? He had to protect himself, didn't he?

When Mary Jane heard this, of course, she was very sorry she had blamed Mr. Sly. Mary Jane did not know he was not telling the truth. And so she sat down on a big log by the side of the road and opened up her lunch basket, and she and the little red fox had a party.

But the best of all were the two big slices of bread spread with Mary Jane Syrup and put together. Mary Jane ate one and Mr. Sly ate the other. And Mr. Sly said that nothing was so good as Mary Jane Syrup. And never again would he eat chicken. And he didn't.

WEST TEXAS CHAMBER TO DISCUSS IMPORTS OF MEXICAN FUEL OIL

STAMFORD, Texas, May 3.—A meeting of the oil and gas committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been called for Wednesday, May 11, at Wichita Falls, to consider the oil situation in West Texas and especially to consider the matter of a duty on Mexican petroleum shipped to this country. The importation of Mexican oil has been a serious handicap to domestic producers and refiners, according to prominent oil men, and the matter of urging a duty on this is being considered by American producers.

The meeting was suggested by many of the Texas operators with the belief that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce could find some remedy for existing conditions in the oil fields of Texas. The meeting will be held promptly at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. The oil and gas committee of the organization is composed of W. B. Sutton of Eastland, chairman; W. D. Cline of Wichita Falls, Temple Peters of Ranger, C. M. Caldwell of Breckenridge, Eugene Shannon of Fort Worth and M. J. Gilmartin of Eliasville. Representatives from the various oil fields of Texas and refiners will be present to discuss the situation and offer suggestions for handling the matter.

JOHN D. GHOLSON MARRIED IN OKLAHOMA; BREAKS NEWS MONDAY

John D. Gholson, son of Mayor John M. Gholson, is a benedict. He has enjoyed that delectable title for some weeks, but Monday was the first inkling of the change in his status that he had conveyed to his parents. However, when his bride arrived from a visit to her parents in Joplin, Mo., something had to be done, so he up and told them.

The bride was formerly Miss Irene Smith, who met young Gholson while a nurse in the Ranger General hospital. But the wedding didn't take place in Ranger. Neither of the pair has yet obtained voting age, and John didn't know whether he would be spanked or not. So the affair rested until about a month ago he went to Oklahoma to see after some of the Gholson interests there. And there the wedding took place. After the honeymoon, the bride spent a week with her parents, and young Gholson returned home, saying nothing. But brides can't stay away indefinitely, and so it was up to John. He confessed.

And that was all there was to it.

Certain entomologists have become so familiar with the different sounds made by insects that they have discovered new species of crickets by their chirping alone.

President Harding Reviews Great Atlantic Fleet

Eleven battleships and forty destroyers, submarines and auxiliaries passed the Presidential yacht Mayflower in Hampton Roads, President Harding reviewing the great fleet. As the warships passed the reviewing yacht the men swarmed the rails, the 1,400 on the flagship Pennsylvania and the eight on the submarine E-8 making the same effort to please the commander-in-chief. More than a thousand craft of all descriptions were ranged about the parade ground. One of the most impressive sights was the aircraft circling about the Mayflower. The photograph shows President and Mrs. Harding aboard the Pennsylvania. From left to right—Secretary of the Navy Denby, President Harding, Mrs. Harding, Assistant secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, and Admiral Wilson, commander of the Atlantic fleet.

Ranger Barber Hopes to Accumulate "Boo-Koo Jack" With Patented Devices

Roller bearings for hair clippers with mechanism about as intricate as a safety razor blade is the device with which Vincent Nicosia of the Southland barber shop intends to accumulate considerable "jack," by aiding even if not entirely revolutionizing the tonsorial industry. It's the simple device that no one else ever thought of that leave the biggest impression on industry.

The article, a clip with two small rollers on its bearing surface, is designed to fit over the clippers to make their up and down sliding smoother for the operator and more pleasant for the artist's victim.

Ranger will be sales headquarters for the entire United States, according to Nicosia's plans, and an active selling campaign started Tuesday when he placed an agent on the road, to cover the entire Southwest and on up into Illinois, appointing sub-agents as he goes. That is but a starter. Good results in this territory will mean expansion until the eyes of the barber world are turned on Ranger as the home of ultra-efficiency in barberdom.

As for returns, they are mathematical; having seen it once, no tonsorial artist can be without one. There are about eighty barbers in Ranger. Say there are a few too set in their ways to try it. That leaves seventy customers. Seventy customers, seventy dollars. Now if there are seventy barbers in Ranger who want one and the ratio holds good, there are, er, ah, er hum, let me see, barbers in Texas alone, and in the whole United States there are, er, ah, uh hum more. Anyway, it figures up that there are several hundred thousand sales in prospect for the device.

Nicosia received the patent for his

350 MEXICANS SHIPPED FROM FORT WORTH

FORT WORTH, May 3.—After being fed by Fort Worth, 350 destitute Mexicans were this morning placed on a special train and started for their homes in Mexico. They will disembark at Laredo to enter their native country. Transportation was provided by the Mexican government.

During the past several months the number of idle Mexicans has been increasing in Fort Worth and the city and welfare associations have been doing all they could to relieve their distress. A Mexican bread line has been a common sight. With this number removed it is thought that the situation will be much improved.

SEEK ARCHITECT TO DRAW PLANS FOR LEGION HOSPITAL

AUSTIN, May 3.—Selection of an architect to draw plans for the American Legion Memorial hospital, erection and equipment of which is to cost the state $1,500,000, was the purpose of the building committee of the legion meeting here today.

Commenting on demand by the legion executive committee that construction begin immediately, Chairman F. B. Cowell of the state board of control said today that preparatory work is being carried on as rapidly as possible.

"We are guided in this work by the law and it will be our policy to follow the law no matter what criticism might be made," Cowell said.

'BOND INTOXICATION' IS A NEW KIND OF JAG

CHICAGO, May 3.—Acquittal of Willie Dalton, 17-year-old boy who walked away from the Northern Trust company with $772,000 worth of Liberty bonds was asked today on the grounds of "bond intoxication."

His attorney, Thomas Nash, in making the closing argument for the defense, said:

"This boy should go free. He suffered from bond intoxication. He only made $2 a day and handled millions of dollars in bonds. The bonds made his head spin and then he was not responsible."

The store was entered through the rear and merchandise of the most expensive grade to the estimated amount of $8,000 was stolen.

EVANGELIST SAYS CHRISTIAN GAIN IS MORE THAN LOSSES

"I challenge you to show me one thing that a Christian loses but what is really best for him when he accepts Christ. Everything he gives up is something that has been hurting him. You give up nothing to what you will get from God. It is easy to give up sin when you can get gold in its place and it is a lot easier to give up sin for God. There are some of you that are not Christians because of something in your life you cannot or will not give up—it is sin and sin is keeping thousands from being a Christian."

So declared Evangelist Bassett at the first Baptist church last night to another large audience. Continuing his subject on "Excuses," Mr. Bassett said: "Some one says 'I am waiting till I understand the Bible and Christianity,' my friend you might have the biggest brain in the universe but you would never understand God. Do you know all about a fly's foot with its two thousand hairs that enables it to walk upside down on a ceiling? Also about its eight thousand eyes? Then don't fuss about the Bible. No one understands about how that meal you eat tonight enters your body and is assimilated into muscle, bone, flesh and hair, and finger nails, do you?"

There is one way for you to get out of your skepticism and that is to wait till God floods your soul with His light and for you to start out from this room with the determination to obey His will as He will reveal it to you."

EASTLAND IS BUSY WITH OIL ACTIVITIES

New Rig Up Chastain's Lease And Groce Bros. Will Spud in Soon.

Special to the Times.

EASTLAND, May 2.—A new rig has been erected on the Chastain lease, just south of town, and the Groce Bros., who have the contract, will spud in shortly. Lobaugh et al. are down 2650 feet on the Davenport lease and are casing off water, while the Donley Drilling company, drilling the Mart Hill No. 2 in the same vicinity, is down to 1650 feet. Both these operations are almost within the city limits of Eastland on the south. Just west of these operations the Banner Oil syndicate, on the Stubfield tract, is drilling, just south of the shallow Rust field, making rapid progress, and should be in the vicinity of the shallow sand shortly. This well is being drilled by Masch brothers, contractors. Massie and others adjoining are drilling ahead on another well, in the same vicinity and on the same tract. The Star State Oil Co. is drilling just north of them and across the Cisco road with a Star rig on the Batten lease, within 600 feet of the Rust No. 1.

The States Oil corporation, one of the earliest independent concerns operating in this field, has ten new locations and two rigs northeast of Eastland, on the Dooley, Holleman, Hise, Loper, Nix, Barrack, Earnest, Barber and Bartlett tracts, as well as several wells drilling.

Officials of the Okeh-Ranger Oil Co., which has recently drilled a dry hole on the Williamson tract, have announced they will drill two additional wells, one on the Owens, offsetting the well of the Eldorado Oil and Gas Co. on the Bobo tract, and another on the Matthews tract, in the same vicinity of which P. S. Wolfe and associates are drilling, and on the same tract in which John Ringling or the Cardinal Oil Co. recently brought in a thousand barrel well.

Gabler & Brannon on the Brown tract, northeast of the city about three and one-half miles, are down about 3550 feet, and expect to drill in within the next few days. Amick and associates on the Owens are also nearing the pay sand, and expect to drill in within a short time. Both of these wells are being closely watched, have excellent indications and it is thought and hoped will make good wells. Particular interest is being taken in the Amick well due to the fact it is a little farther north than the other wells on the ridge that runs through the Bobo, Williamson, Brown, Owens, and Hawk tracts, and oil men are anxious to know if this pool continues to the north of the ridge.

Root, Hupp & Duff on the Bollinger lease, south of town and in purely wild cat territory are still fishing for casing, and it is planned to give it a heavy shot in the Caddo lime as soon as the casing is recovered.

In the Hilborn vicinity in the southeast part of the county, the Pensland Oil company has recently brought in a well on the G. W. Young farm, which is said to be good for 600 barrels. This well is about three-quarters of a mile east of the well of Madden & Madden on the Day tract and only a short distance east of their Smoot well.

The Simmes company has drilled

GATES ORDERED FOR EVERGREEN CEMETERY

One single and two double gates have been ordered by the cemetery association for the Evergreen cemetery for its three entrances. The remainder of the land is fenced with wire but later the association hopes to have it all surrounded by fencing of a grade fitting to the place. This, however, must be postponed until such a time as more funds are available.

The association is also planning to shortly provide some means of watering the cemetery in order that the work of beautifying it may go forward. It is thought that a well will be drilled and a windmill provided. This is believed to be the most feasible plan since its cost will not be heavy and its upkeep practically nothing.

With water provided it is hoped to go forward with the work of making the cemetery one of the most beautiful in the state. Blue prints made by its former owner, A. B. Poe, will probably be followed.

Mr. Poe sold the land and its improvements to the city and its management has been placed in the hands of an association.

OIL FIELD TEAMING SHOWING ACTIVITY

Ten teams passed down Main street this morning in the course of thirty minutes, headed for the oil fields. A bystander remarked that it was beginning to look like old times.

Eight of the teams were going for a load and the other two were loaded with new lumber probably for a new rig. Six of the teams were four-ups.

This demonstration may be seen daily if the onlooker cares to pay it any attention. To those interested it means that things are again showing some life in the fields adjacent to Ranger.

MOTHER AND KIDDIES QUIT 800-MILE HIKE

Mrs. Mary Allen's plan to walk 800 miles from New York to Wash., Ind., wheeling her two children in a baby carriage, terminated in Elizabeth, N. J., when the town officially purchased transportation for the trio and sent them on their way by train. Mrs. Allen, her daughter Lillian, 10, and Robert, 3, set out to walk from New York to Indiana because she was unable to raise funds for the railroad fare and would not accept charity. An accident to the carriage in Elizabeth figured materially in Mrs. Allen's decision to abandon her foot trip and accept the offer of the Elizabeth officials to pay her railroad fare. Some FACTS About Here are authentic figures from the Ford factory at Detroit. They show you just how many Ford cars and trucks have been built each month since January 1, 1921, and how many have been sold to retail customers, in the United States.

	Produced	Delivered to Retail Customers
JANUARY	29,883	57,208
FEBRUARY	35,305	63,603
MARCH	61,886	87,221
Total Production	127,074	Total Retail Sales 208,032

showing that actual sales for the first three months of 1921 exceeded production by 80,958 Ford cars and trucks!

April requisitions already specify 107,719 additional cars and trucks and the estimated April output of the factory and assembly plants combined calls for only 90,000!

These facts clearly show that the demand for Ford products is growing much faster than manufacturing facilities to produce and were it not for the dealers' limited stocks, which are now being rapidly depleted, many more customers would have been compelled to wait for their cars. It will be only a matter of weeks, therefore, until a big surplus of orders will prevent anything like prompt deliveries.

If you would be sure of having your Ford car or truck when you want it, you should place your order now. Don't delay. Phone us or drop us a card.
