

Shivers, Daniel Increase Leads

DALLAS, July 28 (AP)—Returns to the Texas Election Bureau at 12 noon (CST) today from 248 out of 254 counties including 139 complete show the following totals for candidates in Saturday's Democratic primary election: Governor: Shivers 723,922, Traynor 33,385, Yarborough 425,109. Lt. Gov.: Morales 196,645, Ramsey 859,546. Senator: Beckworth 262,800, Daniel 780,398, Napier 78,511. Agr. Comm.: Beard 204,734, McKay 181,531, White 650,184. Land Comm.: Giles 734,258, Patterson 325,654. Criminal Appeals: Owens 405,405, Woodley 512,714. Railroad Comm.: Culbertson 775,290, Laird 295,697. Congressman-at-large: Dickson 78,424, Dies 528,365, Hamburger 91,459, Nimitz 59,975, Peary 82,957, Selman 36,800, Smith 182,104. Attorney General: Shepperd 849,750, Siles 211,197. Supreme Court, Place 1: Bell 323,052, Culver 314,979, Lewis 176,207, Stout 175,348. Supreme Court, Place 2: Keenan 368,375, Smedley 599,545. By CLAYTON HICKERSON DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—More than a million Texas voters turned a political cold shoulder to Washington Saturday as they swept Gov. Allan Shivers back into office and nominated Price Daniel, state attorney general, to succeed Texas' retiring Sen. Tom Connally. Shivers and Daniel are anti-Truman administration Democrats. The voting was in the Democratic primary in which nomination usually means election in heavily-Democratic Texas. The primary results and precinct meetings Saturday left the state Democratic outlook as uncertain as it has been. Another battle between state party factions over the binding of presidential electors to national party nominees seemed a sure thing for the September state convention. Meanwhile, it appeared Martin Dies, original chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, faced a runoff with former Lieut. Gov. John Lee Smith of Lubbock for congressman-at-large. Dies held a majority until early Sunday night then Smith edged into the picture. Shivers led the anti-Truman Texas delegation to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last week. Daniel, a leader in the fight for state ownership of tidelands, called Beckworth a supporter of the Truman administration. Beckworth denied he had been influenced by the administration to take up the fight against Daniel. Dies had a long record of anti-administration activity in Congress before he voluntarily retired in 1945 after the late President Roosevelt led steady New Deal criticism of Dies and his Communist-hunting committee. Also re-nominated for return to Washington were veteran Speaker See LEADS, Pg. 5, Col. 3

FOES DEFEATED

Parr Remains King Of Duval Politics

ALICE, July 28 (AP)—George Parr remained the king of Duval County politics today but for the first time in about a decade, vote totals available to the average citizen showed he had more than token opposition. In a county where usual results show 3,000 votes or so for Parr-supported candidates to a handful of ballots for the opposition, Parr candidates had a lead of only two or three to one. Parr's candidates in Saturday's primary swept the board clean of Freedom Party candidates—a group who had waged a bitter fight to unseat the Parr machine. At the same time, political observers were keeping jaundiced eye on Starr County—in the same judicial district as Duval County—where such results as were available came in very late. As the election ended Saturday, a court order forced Duval County election judges to remove the ballot boxes and ballot stub boxes from Duval County to Alice in nearby Jim Wells County, Texas. Rangers were on hand to enforce the order, but Duval election judges complied with the order by personally bringing the boxes to Alice. Capt. Alfred Allee said today that there was no violence either Saturday or Sunday in connection with the election. Parr won his race for sheriff, 2,145 votes to 752, unofficial returns showed. His Freedom Party opposition was Carlos McDermott. Dist. Judge Sam Reams, the actual moving force behind the Freedom Party and a man who has tangled with Parr in several bitter battles, lost to the Parr candidate, C. Woodrow Laughlin, 9,324 to 8,614, in the four-county 7th Judicial District in Duval County. It was Laughlin, 3,084 to Reams 1,151. Starr County went along with Duval County, while Jim Wells and Brooks gave the nod to Reams. The district attorney's race went the same way. Rayburn Norris of

Radar Picks Up Flying Saucers A Second Time

Jet Attempts To Trail Objects In Sky Are Fruitless

By JERRY T. BAULCH WASHINGTON (AP)—Radar—which normally doesn't show something that isn't there—has picked up "flying saucers" near the nation's capital for the second time within a week. Jet fighter pilots searched the skies without directly contacting anything during the six hours that four to 12 unidentified objects intermittently appeared on radar screens at Washington National Airport and nearby Andrews Air Force Base. One pilot said he saw four lights approximately 10 miles away and slightly above him but they disappeared before he could overtake them. Later, the same pilot said, he saw "a steady white light" five miles away that vanished in about a minute. So far as could be determined, this was the first time jets have been sent on the trail of such sky ghosts. Officials carefully avoided mentioning "flying saucers," just as they did when radar picked up seven or eight unidentified objects near Washington last Monday. But the Air Force was expected to add the report to its long list of saucer sightings, which officials say are coming in faster than at any time since the initial flurry in 1947. Radar normally does not register anything without substance—such as light. But it can pick up such things as a bird in flight or a cloud formation. And one expert said radar is not infallible. The Air Force reported that between four and 12 unidentified objects appeared at 8:08 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday night on the radar screen at the Air Route Traffic Control Center operated by the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Their position was estimated at 10 miles east of Mount Vernon, Va., which is near Washington National Airport. Word went to the Air Force, which sent up two jet fighter intercepter planes from a base at New Castle, Del., some 80 miles from Washington. When the planes appeared on the radar scope at approximately 10:25 p.m. the CAA tried without success to guide the planes into contact with the mystery objects. It was during this search that the pilot made his two sightings of lights. The planes left for their base at 12:40 a.m. and the two other jets took over and stayed in the area until 1:20 a.m. without making contacts. The pilot who spotted the lights said they "were really moving"—faster than 600 miles an hour. But radar operators at Andrews Air Force Base said they moved at "a slow rate of speed"—38 to 90 miles per hour. This could mean the same pattern as last week's sightings—slow moving objects with bursts of speed.

ST. LOUIS, July 28 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, blames Mark Twain "for the confusion that exists on how to pronounce my first name." In a recent letter to Cyril Clemens, head of the International Mark Twain Society, the Illinois governor said: "While my grandfather, Adlai E. Stevenson, was vice president of the United States under Grover Cleveland, Mark Twain was at a luncheon where grandfather was a guest. The newspapers of the time quoted Mark Twain as follows on the pronunciation of my first name: "Philologists sweat and lexicographers bray. "But at longshoremen's picnics, where accents are high, 'Fair Harvard' is not present, so they call him Ad-lee.' "Anyways," Stevenson wrote, "the correct pronunciation is 'Ad-lee,' although to put it mildly, I have been called many things."

Truce Coming, Admiral Says

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP)—Adm. William M. Fechteler said upon his return today from the Far East "I still think we are going to get an armistice in Korea, principally because the Communists want it." The chief of naval operations flew to Washington after a 17-day inspection trip which took him to Formosa, the Philippines, Japan and Korea. Fechteler said he based his forecast of a Korean truce on the fact that "every time the Communists stick their heads up, they get hurt." He was referring to military moves. The admiral praised the training effort by Nationalist Chinese on Formosa. "I feel we have there (in the forces of Chiang Kai-Shek) a great potential," he said. The admiral said he saw training maneuvers by the Chinese land, sea and air forces. He said their amphibious operations looked "excellent," their ground troops appeared to be "very good" and their airmen were "smart, intelligent and well-trained." Fechteler said the Chinese Nationalists are now being coached in amphibious operations by a U. S. Marine officer and more American experts in landing operations would be sent to Formosa soon. Amphibious operations would be the type required if the Chinese Nationalists ever raided or invaded the Communist held China mainland.

Sen. McMahon, Atomic Energy Leader, Dies

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP)—Sen. Brien McMahon, 48, a Connecticut Democrat with a passion for peace and a key role in the nation's atomic energy program, died today of a spinal ailment. Death came at 10:10 a.m. EST., with members of his family at his side in Georgetown Hospital, where the Senator went in June for an operation. Illness prevented his campaigning as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Friends from Connecticut gave him 16 votes anywhere at the Democratic National Convention last week. From his hospital bed, McMahon ordered his name withdrawn. McMahon was a brand new senator in 1945 when the first atomic bomb devastated Hiroshima. Awesomely impressed, he decided this new force must be leashed to save civilization, and dedicated his life to that goal. Despite his relative inexperience, he became chairman of the Senate-Atomic Energy Committee—the voice of Congress on all atomic affairs, the highest lay authority on the subject. He first won fame as chief of the Justice Department's criminal division. In 1933, he personally moved into bloody Harlan County, Ky., during a war between coal mine operators and union labor. More detailed plans will be formulated Tuesday for encouraging Howard Countians to participate in the chest x-ray survey here Aug. 19-26. Oscar Glickman, general chairman, and Jewel Barton, public health nurse for the Big Spring-Howard County Health Unit, have invited some 30 workers from all sections of the county to a planning meeting in the health unit offices, 209 E. 2nd. The session is to start at 3 p.m. Announcement of dates for the annual survey, aimed at discovering any unknown cases of tuberculosis, was made at a preliminary meeting last week. State Health Department x-ray equipment will be set up for a full week in the E&T Jewelry building, 112 E. 3rd. All Howard Countians 15 years of age or older are urged to report for the free x-rays. Health officials emphasize the importance of annual chest examinations as a means of locating tuberculosis infections in the early stages so that early treatment and cure may be facilitated. The x-ray program is a tax-supported service of the State Health Department, and is not to be confused with any charitable operation, officials say. The survey is sponsored here by the Howard County Tuberculosis Association.

X-Ray Plans To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hiring of 23,000 new workers during June—mostly for temporary vacation relief jobs—brought the total of federal civilian employees to 2,603,300 on July 1. The U. S. Civil Service Commission, reporting this today, said it was the biggest jump in the government's roll for any month since June of last year. The five largest departments showed the following totals of civilian workers on July 1: Army 543,900, Postoffice 523,800, Navy 481,300, Air Force 369,700, Veterans Administration 174,600.

Only Two Die In Traffic Mishaps During Week End

At least 10 persons died violently in Texas during the week end, only two of them in traffic accidents. Two Grand Prairie men died Sunday when their light plane crashed and burned on the R. W. Robinson ranch, 12 miles west of Cleburne. They were George Lev Aughenbaugh, 50, and Noble Byron Deederick, 40. The plane crashed shortly after a take off. John L. Rudasell, 28, Houston, was shot and killed Sunday in a gun battle with police at a drive-in cafe in Tyler. City Policeman Clyde Harrison said he and two other officers surprised a man trying to pry open a juke box in the cafe. There was an exchange of bullets and Rudasell fell, wounded three times. Justice of the Peace Martin L. Lilly said Rudasell was shot in self defense. Arthur Oliver Bankston, 31, a State Highway Department draftsman, drowned in Lake Travis near Austin Saturday. Bankston was setting for minnows when the wind blew his boat away. He swam after it but apparently became exhausted. A Fort Worth woman drowned at Eagle Mountain Lake Saturday night. Mrs. Faith Thorman, 23, fell out of an outboard-driven boat when it struck a high wave. Jack Mireles, about 38, Dalhart was working on the motor of his car. The fan blade flew off and severed an artery in his throat. He died shortly afterwards. Mrs. I.ter J. Dean, 53, was killed near her home at Alto Saturday in a traffic accident. A car-truck smashup near Corsicana killed Eldon Ray Water, 27, of Corsicana. Joe Gonzales Schaffer, 22, died Sunday of stab wounds he received in a fight in a Dallas tavern. At San Antonio, David Dugue, 32, died Friday night after a fight. Police held a 27-year-old man for investigation.

Wafdists Are Jubilant Over King's Ouster

By EDWARD POLLAK CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The head of Egypt's powerful Wafd party voiced jubilant support today for the country's new strong man, Bey, and hailed his ouster of King Farouk and his promise of a relentless nation-wide cleanup of "bribery and corruption." The sweeping praise for Naguib came from Mustapha El Nahas Pasha, the party head whom Farouk ousted from the premiership after last January's disastrous fire riots in Cairo and who returned early today from a European holiday. A high Wafdist source said the party, Egypt's largest and the sweeping victor in the last general elections, would support Naguib and his new premier, Aly Maher Pasha. Naguib, himself, was at the airport to embrace Nahas Pasha when he arrived with Wafdist secretary general Fuad Serag El Din Pasha. "I thank God our people now are entrusted to our valiant Army commander," Nahas declared, adding, "I pray to God to grant success to the task undertaken by General Naguib." Later, after a conference with Naguib at Egyptian Army headquarters, Nahas called Naguib the "savior of the country." Nahas Pasha's praise for Naguib and his plans took on particular interest for observers here, since much of the corruption which the new regime has sworn to root out and punish has been charged in the past to members of the earlier Wafdist administration. The violently nationalist Wafdists, too, were chiefly responsible for Egypt's ordering the British out of the Suez Canal zone and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The new cabinet, meanwhile, moved back to Cairo and Naguib sternly warned that he and Maher Pasha would "meet with armed force if necessary any attempt at demonstrations or disorders." He warned, too, that foreign interference would not be tolerated. As the cabinet set a 3rd grad 10:53 As the cabinet quit the summer capital at Alexandria for Cairo, the ousted monarch sailed toward Italy in the royal yacht Mahroussa. With Farouk were his six-month-old son, now Egypt's King Fuad II, Farouk's teen-age second wife Narriman, and his three daughters by a previous marriage. One newspaper said the baby king would be returned to Egypt when he is seven years old, the age at which Moslem mothers traditionally lose control of their sons. The cabinet, meanwhile, temporarily laid the royal powers pending creation of a regency council. The Nile kingdom generally rejoiced at the departure Saturday night of fat, playboy Farouk, whose downfall started when the 51-year-old Gen. Naguib and a cadre of younger officers took over the Army last Wednesday and forced the King to install Maher Pasha and a new anti-corruption government. The cleanup was expected to probe into every section of the government, extending all the way to former cabinet ministers and palace officials. High on the action docket are charges against several high officials, including Farouk's cousin, Prince Abbas Halim, of supplying faulty arms to Egypt's Army during the Palestine war. Reports and rumors long have been widespread that huge bribes were paid government officials for favors in tax collections, government orders and protection from prosecution.

Differences Are Talked

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—United Nations and Communist staff officers today discussed minor wording differences in the Korean armistice document but did nothing to solve the deadlock on prisoner exchange. Prisoner exchange has bogged the plenary sessions, now recessed until Aug. 3. The staff officers were in almost complete agreement on the first 50 paragraphs of the proposed armistice agreement. Paragraph 51 dealing with release and repatriation of prisoners was discussed. Both sides agreed to the wording but each side has a different interpretation of its meaning. The paragraph does not involve the number of POWs to be exchanged. Col. Duncan S. Somerville, U. N. staff officer, said "as far as I'm concerned, on the staff officer level" the Reds have accepted the wording on prisoners. The staff officers will meet again tomorrow at Panmunjon.

Stevenson Prepares For Vigorous Race

CHICAGO (AP)—Governor Adlai E. Stevenson returns today to Springfield and a tumultuous welcome from the Illinois Capital, to prepare himself for the role of Democratic standard bearer in the 1952 presidential campaign. He will pick up, but only temporarily, the reins of the job he had repeatedly said he wanted for four more years—Governor of Illinois. Then he will resign to devote himself to the role "I did not want"—candidate for the President of the United States. The Democratic nominee spent the week end conferring with party leaders on campaign plans. Among them was Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, whom the Democratic National Convention chose as Stevenson's running mate as candidate for vice president. Frank E. McKinney, Democratic national chairman, told reporters the party high command had agreed on a "hard-hitting campaign of no more than 90 days." It will begin on Labor Day. McKinney said the party's big four speaking team will be President Truman, who advised the chairman, "I am at your disposal," Vice-President Alben Barkley, an unsuccessful candidate for top spot on the 1952 ticket, Stevenson and Sparkman. The chairman said the team will carry the campaign into every part of the nation, and President Truman has promised a repetition of his 1948 whistle stop speaking tour that salvaged victory out of generally predicted defeat. Besides Sparkman and McKinney, other Stevenson visitors Sunday included Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts, Averell Harriman, Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, and Mrs. India Edwards, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Dever, his own state's "favorite son" candidate for the presidential nomination, told reporters he believes with Stevenson the Democrats can carry Massachusetts, Rhode Island and "may Connecticut" and other New England states. Harriman and Kerr, defeated candidates for the Democratic nomination, pledged Stevenson their support.

Objects Seen Over Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, July 28 (AP)—Police and military observers and hundreds of civilians reported seeing three "flying saucers" objects over South Central Indiana between midnight and dawn today. State police troopers at Indianapolis, Seymour and Coonersville, Posts, and Army and Air Force observers at Camp Atterbury said they watched the objects for several hours. "The things were so weird I hesitate to even talk about them," one state trooper at Seymour said. Robert Wolfe, Civil Defense Director at Franklin, 25 miles southeast of Indianapolis, said one of the three objects was bluish, another orange, and a third was white. The bluish object sailed in from the south, the orange from the north, and the white from the east. Hundreds of motorists reported seeing the objects. Some said they were not like shooting stars, and they doubted they could be weather balloons or a searchlight beam over low clouds. Wolfe said two of the objects, "the white and yellow ones—were chasing each other under what I'd call the little dipper." He said they traveled at high speed but he could not estimate their size or altitude.

McCarthy Reported To Be Recovering

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) was reported "pretty well past the danger period" today and recovering normally from an operation performed Thursday at the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md. The operations was to correct a rupture of muscles separating the abdominal and chest cavities.

Talks Are Resumed At Houston Plants

HOUSTON, July 28 (AP)—Representatives of the Sheffield Steel Company and the United Steel Workers Union (CIO) resumed their talks today in an effort to settle differences which have held the big Houston plant idle for 57 days, throwing some 1,000 workers out of their jobs. The conferees sat for 10 hours yesterday in a session that ended without agreement on disputed points. Any agreement reached at the meeting will be subject to ratification by vote of the union's full membership. Meanwhile, pickets remained stationed at the plant.

Federal Employees Totals Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hiring of 23,000 new workers during June—mostly for temporary vacation relief jobs—brought the total of federal civilian employees to 2,603,300 on July 1. The U. S. Civil Service Commission, reporting this today, said it was the biggest jump in the government's roll for any month since June of last year. The five largest departments showed the following totals of civilian workers on July 1: Army 543,900, Postoffice 523,800, Navy 481,300, Air Force 369,700, Veterans Administration 174,600.

Israel Setting Up A-Energy Program

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben Gurion has named an atomic energy commission for Israel, appointing to it the country's leading scientists. The prime minister said Israel's soil contains certain radioactive elements and that a study of problems of atomic energy promised practical results.

Stanton Youth Victim Of Polio

STANTON, July 28—Don Ray Winslow, 16, spunky high school sophomore who had sparked school Stanton junior teams to many victories, lost his battle with polio early today. He died at 4:35 a.m. in the Hendricks Memorial Hospital in Abilene, where he had been taken two weeks ago for treatment. Indications were that he suffered three types of polio, including the dread bulbar type. Although paralyzed from his throat down, he fought on gamely only to fall victim to a kidney involvement that ended fatally. Don, who would have been a sophomore in Stanton High School this autumn, was extremely popular and widely known. An honor student, he was active in many affairs. His peppy leadership had made junior high football and softball teams here among the tops in the area. Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Winslow, former Big Spring residents; three brothers, Robert M. Winslow, Ed Winslow, and Yull Winslow, who is home from the Armed Services; and one sister, Mrs. Chelan Atholson, Midland. His paternal grandmother is Mrs. Jim Winslow, Big Spring. Two nieces and one nephew also survive. The remains are being returned to Arrington Funeral Home here and arrangements are incomplete.

Smith Wins Close Battle In Glasscock Judge's Race

GARDEN CITY, July 28—Trailing Saturday night, David L. Smith forged ahead on late returns to win his re-election bid for county judge. He polled 248 on the basis of complete un-official returns. Pressing closely was Ross Hodges, county commissioner, who got 204 votes for the judgeship. Fred Raith apparently won the county commissioner's race in Precinct No. 1 without a run-off. He had 14 votes, whereas Frank Hamel and V. E. McWhirter, his opponents had 13 and one, respectively. There was no candidate on the ballot and voting here was by written. Sam Childress faced a run-off in No. 3. He polled 28 to be second man on the ticket. A. W. White got 42 to lead the race. Bunched closely in third and fourth place were C. J. Baker with 24 and Ben Schaffer with 23. Claude B. Cole had 17. John J. Priddy shook off an early deficit to pull ahead of M. E. Byrley Jr. for commissioner in Precinct No. 4. He had 38, Byrley 23. In Precinct No. 1, which was complete Saturday night, John Bednar got 118 in a close race with Fred Chaney with 109. Henry Russell of Pecos got 218 votes for appeals court judge to 188 for Allan Fraser of Alpine. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo got 433 votes for state senator; Ken Reagan of Midland 433 votes for congressman; J. Gordon Bristow, Big Spring 434, to lead the ticket for state representative. Mike Moore of Big Spring got one write-in. Elton Gilliland, incumbent, had 256 votes for district attorney, Gil Jones 147. For sheriff Sam (Buster) Cox had 248, Cecil C. Bell 147. E. R. Morgan 53. Mrs. Vena Lawson won re-election as district and county clerk handsly, getting 365. Mrs. Paulene Carr had 80. Leonard Hanson was re-elected treasurer with 446; W. C. Underwood got 444 votes for justice, of peace. Mrs. Ronnell McDaniel polled 441 for county Democratic chairman and precinct chairman elected were Chris Schafer, Mrs. Fred Ratliff, Mrs. Bismark Schafer and D. W. White. In state races Glasscock went this way: Governor, Shivers 296. See GLASSCOCK, Pg. 5, Col. 2

DESIGNING WOMAN Good Design Exhibition Shows Furniture Changes

By ELIZABETH HILLERY

How much does home furnishings design change in a year? Does it change at all in six months?

Two hundred twenty-five new items just awarded places in the Good Design exhibition in the Merchandise Mart in Chicago show that home furnishings design has changed in the past half year. They join 285 items which were first shown in January. Because the permanent exhibition, jointly sponsored by the Merchandise Mart and New York's Museum of Modern Art, is continually revised by a semi-annual influx of new items—put on the market during the previous six months—to take the place of those a year old, it records the changes of both the past six months and the changes made in a year.

What are the newest changes in Good Design? Two out of five of the new selections, the best available on the American market in the opinion of distinguished expeditors, are in the moderate price bracket, which would indicate more well-designed home furnishings can be had by more people. According to Edgar Kaufman, Jr., Director of Good Design, natural wood finished and natural materials such as cane and hemp are in vogue. Textures, he points out, aren't used as much now as smoother surfaces and there is more color. Patterns in fabrics and floor coverings are smaller and quieter, and this is also true of patterns in lamps, furniture and accessories. There is less linear design—for example,

Women Are Ideally Suited For Careers In Big Business

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

Mrs. Margaret Rudkin, who in 15 years has packaged a loaf of home-baked bread into a nationwide business, says women are ideally suited to careers in big business because—

"Business is just like running your own house. You have to count pennies, clean house, stick to a budget and keep the children happy."

"You can't spend more money than you earn, and you have to pay back what you borrow."

Mrs. Rudkin is the matriarch, red-haired mother of three sons, wife of a Wall Street broker and founder of Pepperidge Farm, Inc., whose hand-rolled old-fashioned bread now is distributed in all 48 states and several foreign countries.

This feminine tycoon got into the bread business by accident. Back in 1937 she decided some homemade, old-fashioned bread she grandmothers used to bake might improve the health of her youngest son, Mark. So she ground some wheat in a coffee grinder, added fresh milk, butter, honey and other natural ingredients, kneaded the loaf by hand and watched as her husband and sons devoured it with satisfaction.

Her friends tasted some of her old-fashioned bread, and begged her to make more. A doctor heard about it, and asked her to make enough to supply several of his patients. Soon Mrs. Rudkin had to hire a neighbor girl to help her keep up with the demand. Then she decided if she was going to be in business she might as well do it right.

Mrs. Rudkin and her helper had been turning out the loaves in the big kitchen of her home, Pepperidge Farm, an estate of 125 acres in Fairfield, Conn. She decided to expand and built a modern factory in Norwalk where the fragrant loaves now emerge from the ovens by the thousands.

The company now has other factories, but all are run on the same

BANANA-NUT BREAD
Ingredients: 2 cups sifted flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1/4 cup (about 2 medium-size) mashed bananas, 2 tablespoons buttermilk, 1/2 cup broken walnut meats.

Method: Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg well. Stir in bananas and buttermilk. Add sifted dry ingredients and walnuts; do not beat. Turn in greased but pan (8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 inches) and bake in moderate (325 F.) oven 1 hour. Trim out on cake rack to cool. Store in tightly covered container overnight before slicing.

Gloria Swanson Has Low Opinion Of U. S. Males

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

America's perennial glamor girl has a low opinion of the U. S. male.

Gloria Swanson, who at 35-plus can still make any stag line at home or abroad, says Mr. America has failed to keep pace with his woman, who are growing younger every day. She adds:

"Our great big American men are going to have to perk up if they want to build the interest of their wives and girl friends. About all most of them can talk about is baseball, automobiles or their golf score."

"The average American businessman doesn't bother to read a book after he gets out of college. He lets himself get fat and bald before his time, goes around in sloppy clothes, thinks all he has to do to charm the girls is simply be a man."

While tossing off these barbed opinions Gloria sat manfully at a prominent table in a night club, while her maid rushed to slip their soup for starting. She was wearing a cool and dainty summer dress of her own design, explaining:

"I have 20 of these in different colors and fabrics."

Gloria's second "comeback" movie, "Three for Bedroom C," is to be seen around the country while she is off for Mexico to make a series of films for television. She'll return in time for her homecoming tour with her fall collection of fashions for the Foxian Dress Company, of which she is vice president and designer.

Three times a year this super-charged star visits stages in 35 cities around the country, putting on fashion shows of the dresses she designs. They sell for $20 or less, she explains, and the company sells 2 1/2 million of them a year.

Traveling around the country, Gloria says she has been amazed at the youthfulness and smartness

Museums Teach Nature To Children In Cities

By DR. MARTHA M. ELIOT
Chief, Children's Bureau, Federal Security Agency

A new way of showing the world to youngsters who live in crowded cities is growing up in America. Like all children they want to know what an elephant looks like, where a squirrel stores his winter food, why snakes shed their skins.

In museums for children, they find the answers to these and many other questions. Such museums give children an opportunity to explore the strange, the faraway and the unknown.

Children's museums have grown up fairly recently in cities all over the country. The first to start was the Brooklyn Children's Museum, in 1899. The second oldest is the Boston Children's Museum.

These museums being especially to children; for example, exhibition cases in many of them are made to their height. They are a center for child and games and many other music, drama, craft and science groups.

The Brooklyn Children's Museum started with one case of birds, and one of minerals and shells. It has

Moore's Feted With Party

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Moore Jr. were honored with a housewarming in their new home, 208 West 10th, Friday evening.

Hostesses were Mrs. Helen Wortham, Mrs. Ina Stewart, Mrs. Jerry Hill, Mrs. Helen Canfield and Mrs. Eva Sue Anderson.

The refreshment table was laid with a hand-crocheted cloth over pink and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers. Green candles in crystal holders finished the scene. Cut flowers were used throughout the house.

Mrs. Wortham, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Hill served.

Mrs. Canfield displayed the gifts and Mrs. Anderson presided at the guest book in which 80 registered.

and a group trained in using them has made public appearances in the Boston area.

Children's museums don't forget children with handicaps. In Indianapolis, many materials can be handled by blind children, with large tags labeled in braille. Colorless children are brought from hospitals to the Boston Museum. Retarded children get special attention in a number of children's museums.

For children living in the fast pace of a society which relies so heavily on machines, museums such as these are a wonderful way of stirring imagination, of relating nature to every day life and of understanding many things about the world both near and far.

The Detroit Museum tries to translate hard-to-define ideas into children's terms. In archeology, for instance, the "digger" is the Sherlock Holmes of history.

In Boston, an art which had almost vanished is being preserved through the children's museum. Several years ago, the museum was given eight old English hand bells, and a member of the staff was trained to play them. Since then the children who come to the museum practice on the hand bells!

This means more money to you!

NOW YOUR U. S. SERIES E BONDS CAN EARN INTEREST 10 EXTRA YEARS

ALL YOU WISE and patriotic people who bought United States Series E Bonds ten years ago and have held them can benefit by this new law! For according to this new law the bonds you expected to mature finally in 1952 can now continue to earn interest every year for ten more years—till 1962—without your even lifting a finger!

To get this extra money, there's absolutely nothing you have to do. Just hold your bonds and let them go on earning!

You may still cash any Series E Bond at any time after you've owned it for sixty days. But you'll be better off to hold your bonds, just as you're better off to hold savings in any form.

Cash in the pocket melts away fast—often with little or nothing to show for it. But cash in bond savings is always there—growing steadily toward the big sum which can buy something really worthwhile... And remember—the interest rate on Series E Bonds has been increased to 3% compounded semiannually, when held to maturity.

So if you have bonds coming due, why not just sit back and let them go on making more money for you? And meanwhile keep adding to your cash savings by buying more bonds regularly—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's the easy, systematic saving plan that's so helpful because it lets you save before you even draw your pay. Thousands say it's the one sure way to move.

3 new money-making opportunities for you!
New Series H, J, and K Defense Bonds pay 2.75% to 3%

If you want to get the interest on your bonds in the form of current income, or if you want to invest more than the annual limit for E Bonds, ask at any Federal Reserve Bank or Branch about these new bonds:

SERIES H. A new current income bond, available in denominations of $100 to $10,000. Sold at par. Matures in 9 years 6 months and pays approximately 3% interest per annum if held to maturity. Interest paid semiannually by Treasury check. Annual limit, $20,000 maturity value. Issued only by Federal Reserve Banks and Branches and at the Treasury.

SERIES J. A new 12-year appreciation bond, available in denominations of $100 to $100,000. Sold at 72% of par value. Pays 2.75% compounded semiannually if held to maturity. Annual limit, $20,000 issue price jointly with Series K Bonds.

SERIES K. A new 12-year current-income bond in denominations of $100 to $100,000. Pays interest semiannually by Treasury check at the rate of 2.75% per annum. Sold at par. Annual limit, $20,000 issue price jointly with Series J Bonds.

Eisenhower Ready To Start Pressing Bid For Presidency

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
DENVER (AP)—Back at his campaign headquarters after a 10-day vacation, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower stowed away his fishing gear and turned his attention today to pressing his bid for the presidency.

The Republican nominee returned here last night from the Rocky Mountain cattle ranch near Fraser, Colo., where he went for a rest a few days after the Republican National Convention.

First on the general's agenda today was a conference with his newly appointed political chief of staff, Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire. Eisenhower plans to spend most of the rest of the week conferring with other party leaders.

Yesterday, the general's final day at Fraser, was devoted only in part to relaxation. A good share was given over to discussion of campaign plans with his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California.

Nixon drove to the ranch from Denver early in the morning and before the serious talking got started—received his first lesson in how to cast for trout. His tutor, the GOP presidential nominee, an expert fisherman.

Before the conference, Eisenhower and Nixon joined in predicting a Republican victory in November over the ticket the Democrats selected in Chicago last week—Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as the presidential candidate and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama for vice president.

Nixon said he was confident "we are going to have the victory for Gen. Eisenhower that the country needs."

Seated on a bench alongside the California senator, Eisenhower interrupted and told his 39-year-old running mate:

"You mean victory for the party and not just for me, my boy—and, more important, victory for the country."

After the conference in Eisenhower's rustic cabin, Nixon issued this statement:

"The general and I discussed campaign organization and strategy, as well as strategy and tactics and several of the major issues."

"The general and I agreed that this shall be an intensive campaign as we can make it. We expect to conduct a fighting campaign on the issues and the facts, and to bring our case to the people."

"When the campaign gets underway, we shall visit as many of the states as possible, including states in the South."

Hence the nomination of Alabama's Sen. Sparkman to run with Stevenson on the Democratic ticket apparently had no effect on plans of the Republican candidates to invade the South—traditionally solid for the Democrats.

Thousands In Argentina Grieve Eva Peron's Death

By STANFORD BRADSHAW
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Argentina's humble thousands paid grieving homage today to Eva Peron. They waited four abreast in mile-long queues for a 20-second walk past the bier of their President's wife and political partner, who died Saturday night after a long illness.

Mrs. Peron's death in her early 30's was generally attributed to cancer although there had been no official announcement of the nature of her illness.

The blonde wife of President Juan D. Peron lay in state in the hall of the Labor Ministry, in a glass-topped casket of mahogany draped in white orchids, awaiting a full military funeral tomorrow afternoon. Tons of lilies, roses and carnations packed the hall and overflowed into the streets outside.

Crowds of somberly dressed, sober-faced mourners were first admitted to the improvised chapel Sunday afternoon and continued in an endless procession throughout the night and morning.

Peron spent much of Sunday beside the casket and personally arranged the placement of the bier. After a private funeral Mass, attended only by government ministers and intimate friends, he ordered the restless crowds admitted. They had shouted to see the body, and once broke a police cordon to get closer to the entrance.

The mournful viewing of the body was accompanied by an unexpected tragedy. Gen. Juan Esteban Vacca, director of the Army's Superior School, suffered a heart attack while visiting the bier last night. He died shortly after.

Peron's decision still was awaited on his wife's permanent burial place. Two suggestions of the multi-million dollar social foundation which she headed, or in a great national monument built for her.

Temporary interment, at her own request, will be in the hall of the 6,000,000-member General Labor Confederation (CGT). She was the unofficial head of the CGT, and her following among its members made her the nation's most potent political force after Peron himself.

The slim beauty was regarded as the most powerful woman in politics in the world.

Young Mother Dies As Chute Fails To Open

BUDD LAKE, N. J., July 26 (AP)—A pretty mother, her parachute failing to open, plunged 2,500 feet to her death yesterday in an initiation for a parachuting club formed by her husband.

It was a scene of confusion and near-hysteria as 26-year-old Mrs. Dorothy Berard of Harrison tumbled desperately at the parachute and finally fell in a cabbage patch.

"I killed her, I killed her," sobbed her grief-stricken husband, Joseph, who organized the Sky Divers Club, a parachuting-for-fun group. He collapsed when she fell.

About 700 spectators at the initiation exercises at Budd Lake airport shrieked and shouted for the woman to pull the ripcord as she hurtled to the ground. Many women fainted.

Just before Mrs. Berard, mother of a four-month-old daughter, went up, her husband considered refusing to let her make the jump because of a series of minor mishaps earlier.

But she reassured him by saying, "Don't worry, honey, I'll be all right."

Berard, an ex-paratrooper with 74 jumps to his credit, was forcibly restrained from going to the spot where his wife fell.

He made the first jump of the day and suffered bruises about the head. A few minutes later, a small plane used by other club members crashed, but no one was hurt. Then Mrs. Sarah Hazlet of Union jumped and was knocked unconscious

Amendment Sought, But Method Unused

By RUSSELL BRINES
WASHINGTON (AP)—Seventeen states have asked that a national convention be called to amend the Constitution—but no one knows how to go about it.

Legal experts for the House Judiciary Committee reported today, after intensive research, that no body knows how to put on a constitutional convention, and urged Congress to consider legislation clearing up the question.

All 21 amendments have been adopted under one constitutional procedure: They were proposed by Congress and ratified by three-fourths of the states.

The Constitution also provides that Congress must call an amending convention upon petition of two-thirds of the state legislatures—32 at present.

This method has never been used. But now several states have proposed it in petitioning for an amendment that would restrict Congress' taxing authority to 25 per cent of incomes, except during a national emergency.

Records show that Congress has received 32 petitions from 27 states on the tax problem. In addition, Texas and Louisiana have passed resolutions but have not forwarded them to Congress.

Six states later cancelled their petitions by other resolutions—Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. The experts said the law is silent but they thought states should be allowed to change their minds.

Maryland's petition was approved only by the House of Delegates. The experts expressed belief both houses should agree on a petition before this constitutes action by a legislature within the meaning of the Constitution.

The governors of Montana and Pennsylvania vetoed tax petitions passed by their legislatures. The Constitution was no help, so the experts suggested that the petitions should be considered valid anyway, on the basis of available precedent.

Consequently, they reported that 20 states appeared to have valid petitions on file. These are Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan,

Six Killed When Truck Smashes Car

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 26 (AP)—Roaring out of control, a heavily loaded truck smashed head-on into an auto laden with picnickers and killed six persons yesterday at nearby Hopwood.

The crash occurred at the foot of the four-mile long Mt. Summit. Victims included five passengers of the car and the truck driver.

Dead are Charles Burns, 59, his wife, Eliza, 57, their daughter, Mrs. Bertha Albertini, 30, her husband, Arthur, 33, all of Midway, Pa., and Estella Donovan, 76, Ziegler, Ill.

The truck driver was tentatively identified as Clyde Willis of Baltimore, Md.

Deputy Coroner Stephen Haky said the truck apparently broke loose near the top of the hill. The truck smashed into the car and slammed it against a stone wall.

A Bible Thought For Today—

But when several sincerely join in a prayer the power is multiplied. We used to have weekly prayer meetings at churches. Not many remain, because members mostly just talked and philosophized and prayer meetings just became a third weekly sermon. "The prayer of a righteous man availeth much." — James 5:16.

Conventions Not Without Parallels And It Looks Like Spirited Fight

The choice of Adlai Stevenson as the Democratic party nominee for President sets the stage for a spirited national battle. In the governor of Illinois, the Democrats probably have the strongest candidate they have at their disposal and one capable of mixing it with Dwight Eisenhower, the new hope of the Republicans.

It is interesting to note that the two conventions produced some parallels. Although Gen. Eisenhower won his nomination on the first ballot, he came to the convention as the No. 2 man on the totem pole. It was only after his forces had won some bitter preliminary skirmishes that the pattern began to clear.

Stevenson, presenting the odd spectacle of a man who stoutly maintained he did not want to seek the presidency, entered the convention as a favorite only as a probable ultimate choice. After two ballots, he crashed through to victory, which, considering the large field of avowed candidates and favorite sons, and his own position, was no less remarkable than Eisenhower's victory.

Thus, two men with great popularity within their own party ranks will face each other in the showdown.

The Republicans had a great division that cut deeply and left scars in the battle with the Old Guard. The Democrats had their own deep cleavage in the North-South schism, or perhaps more nearly its conservative-liberal division. In seeking to patch up this difference, the question arises whether as many votes in the North and East may have been lost as were gained in the South. The Republicans, of course, have a similar puzzle in the Taft demise.

There Are Signs That Young People May Lead In Spiritual Awakening

Military attendance at religious services now is greater than at any time in the peacetime history of the United States, Army Secretary Frank Pace told the 21st annual convention of the Military Chaplains Association in New Rochelle, N. Y., Friday.

"I have the honest feeling that the young men and women who are in the Army today recognize the importance of the spiritual in their operations," Secretary Pace declared.

It is probable that if the opportunities for attending religious services were as frequent in Korea as in more peaceable surroundings, the attendance record there would be the highest of all. It is natural for man to turn to his Maker in times of great stress and confusion, whether in civilian or military life.

One of the most encouraging signs of our times is the seriousness with which our young and middle-aged people take things in general, and the spiritual life in particular. This is particularly true of those who are in the military service, or who expect soon to be there.

We have seen little or no levity or horseplay among the groups of young men we see on our streets going to or coming from the induction center. We do not know what is on their minds, but it probably isn't partisan politics or the throbbing pulse of economics. Beside the sacrifices they are making, or stand ready to make, in their personal lives the gripes and complaints of the average civilian over high taxes and high prices seem without dignity or purpose.

The people in our military services for the most part take their sacrifice of individual and family freedoms with a fortitude and stoicism that should stand as an example to all of us who are inconvinced not at all by the drive to national security.

Could it be that our young people will not only save our country from aggression but lead the nation into that reawakening of the spiritual sense which this nation and the world so sorely need? There are signs that they will.

Gallup Poll

Demo Leaders Recognized New Status And Acted Accordingly

Before the evening session of Wednesday the critical question in the convention had been resolved. The question was whether the preponderant majority would prevail or whether it would be split and the party control captured by a faction. The will of the preponderant majority has been plain from the outset. It has been for Stevenson and for party unity and a probable victory on the basis of moderate policies.

There were two things which had to be worked out before the road was cleared for this majority. First, there was a factional movement which in theory would have revolutionized the party. It would have ruptured the historic and heterogeneous coalition in order to experiment with the notion—entirely alien to American politics—of a party with an authoritative program that can be enforced upon its adherents by the central direction and management of the party.

Had this maneuver not been so obviously half-baked, it might have been necessary to take it very seriously. But no one can judge how half-baked it was by the spectacle of politicians, proclaiming themselves the champions of minorities, crying out that there must be no limitation on what they declared, quite thoughtlessly and falsely, to be the great American principle that no kind of rule—including majority rule—shall be unlimited.

Few if any of the leaders of the maneuver intended, I am sure, to be taken that seriously. They were playing politics and they were not thinking much about the principles they happened to adopt for the occasion. The occasion was an attempt to stampede the convention in the interests of the active elements in the Harriman and Kefauver camps. The maneuver they adopted was a rather feeble imitation of the device which had worked so well for Eisenhower.

The reason the device did not work out the second time is that in the Democratic convention, as distinguished from the Republican, there was from the beginning a preponderant majority which knew that it did not want any of the active candidates. In the Democratic convention there was a preponderant majority that wanted Stevenson and party unity, not Harriman and a factional showdown.

A less obvious, but in many ways more serious, problem was the delicate business of how the party leadership was to be transferred. The party had to offer the country a new administration, not a continuation under a replacement of the present administration. The break had to be a real one. Yet it had to be made with the blessing and good will of Mr. Truman.

During Wednesday it was known that Mr. Truman had accepted Stevenson as the choice of the preponderant majority, and that he was recognizing the reality of the change of leadership which this must bring with it.

On Wednesday evening, therefore, the party managers had solved their main problems. So they turned the convention into a gigantic campaign meeting for the benefit of the television and radio audience. The occasion was the tribute of affection, which is immense everywhere, for the vice president. But with him as the central figure, and with Rayburn, who is also greatly liked, as the master of ceremonies, the old hands of the party, old masters in the art of political warfare, organized a political spectacle. They used it to put on full display their conception of the coming campaign and where lies the strength of the Democratic party.

It lies, they were saying, in the fact that after 20 years of reform there is now a big popular majority with vested interests to defend.

This is an unusual position for a party which has drawn its main strength from the wage-earners in the cities and from the debtor regions outside the big commercial and financial centers. Gen. Eisenhower and his advisors should take careful note of what has happened and not allow themselves to be misled by the stereotyped idea that because the New Deal was originally a radical movement of the have-nots, the Democratic party today must still be such a movement.

Twenty years of the New Deal, of war booms and of full employment, have wrought a profound change in the social structure of the nation and the Democratic party. The majority, which the Democrats are now trying to hold together, is not composed of bankrupts and proletarians. It is in the main a new middle class with the state of mind that the possession of property and of social position usually brings with it. In addition this new middle class is acutely conscious of how inseparable are its property and its interests from the actions of the government.

That is what the Democratic party managers were working with Wednesday evening, and they knew it.

Wagon Travel Tough

CENTRALIA, Ill. (U)—It took a Mattoon, Ill. couple back to pioneers days to travel 100 miles in a covered wagon. It also took them four days.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Reed had a hunch it would be tough. They hired a truck to take their home furnishings ahead to their new Mt. Carmel, Ill. home. They took the "hard way" because it seemed a good way to take their covered wagon and horse with them.

Selection Of Reluctant Candidates Extraordinary In Political History

WASHINGTON (U)—The selection of Gen. Eisenhower and Gov. Stevenson as presidential candidates will go down as one of the most extraordinary events in American political history for more reasons than one.

Both were reluctant candidates. Great support had been built up for both before either man actually said he would accept nomination.

Eisenhower didn't say so until last January although the campaign among his supporters to get him nominated had begun long before that.

Stevenson never publicly said he would accept until Friday before the third and final balloting began.

Stevenson never said one word in behalf of himself through all the months when Sen. Kefauver, Sen. Kerr, Sen. Russell and Averell Harriman were making speeches and looking for votes.

Eisenhower did not campaign at all until the last month before the Republican convention although his chief rival, Sen. Taft, traveled through at least 25 states and probably set an American record for pre-convention speeches and interviews.

Both men are newcomers to politics. Eisenhower even more than Stevenson. The general had never been in politics before.

Stevenson had taken no part in politics until 1947 when he agreed, after weeks of hesitation and soul-searching, to be a Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois.

But perhaps more extraordinary than all this is the fact that the country as a whole knew practically nothing at all about the thinking of either man on domestic af-airs until shortly before the conventions.

Everyone knew Eisenhower's views on international life. He was a firm supporter of the Truman administration's policy of standing united with Europe and helping rearm it.

But, except for some scattered statements he made while he was president of Columbia University—statements which revealed very little of his knowledge of domestic affairs—the general public knew almost nothing of Eisenhower's thinking on affairs at home.

This didn't seem to bother the people who voted in the state primaries where they picked him, as in New Hampshire, over Sen. Taft who had spent years making his views known.

It wasn't until he came back to this country last June that Eisenhower began to express opinions on domestic problems.

Except for some vague knowledge about Stevenson—that he had been a good governor in Illinois and had some experience in the foreign field while working for the State Department—the general public didn't know much about him.

This was the year the conventions turned their backs on the professional politicians to pick newcomers more on faith than knowledge.

WASHINGTON (U)—Most dramatic of the many post-midnight huddles during the rough-tough, late Democratic convention took place between 4 a.m. and 6 a.m. at the Congress Hotel Friday in protest against the so-called alliance between the big city bosses and the Dixiecrats.

Held just seven hours before the presidential balloting was to begin, the huddle also was aimed at stopping Adlai Stevenson.

Neither Senator Kefauver nor Averell Harriman was present but most of their followers were, including Gael Sullivan, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Congressman Chet Holifield of California, Paul Fitzpatrick, Democratic chairman of New York, Rep. Franklin Roosevelt Jr., Gov. "Soapy" Williams of Michigan, Sen. Blair Moody of Michigan, Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers, and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois.

As the meeting opened, Reuther growled at Senator Douglas for claiming there was an alliance between Governor Stevenson and the big city bosses.

"You've got yourself in an untenable position," snapped Reuther. "You started out with control of the convention but finally lost it," he added, referring to the fact that Douglas's candidate, Kefauver, had the largest number of convention votes.

Senator Douglas said nothing. He let Reuther talk.

"I'm not going to let anybody put a Dixiecrat label on a candidate that Labor supports," Reuther snapped.

Finally, Senator Douglas very softly replied: "Do you mean to say it was not a big city boss-Dixiecrat alliance that seated Virginia?" he asked. "Do you think we did wrong in trying to keep Virginia from being seated?"

"It isn't a question of right or wrong," said Reuther.

"I thought that I was doing a constructive job of breaking up an alliance of Dixiecrats and big city bosses," Douglas replied. "But if there is no agreement on that, then there is no use of my staying in this meeting," he left.

Young Congressman Roosevelt, however did not share Reuther's view. When someone in the pre-dawn huddle suggested that they go to Governor Stevenson and ask him whether he approved the alliance between the Dixiecrats and the big city bosses formed to obtain his nomination, FDR Jr. shot back:

"To hell with that! There is no use contacting people about their views. Let their actions speak for themselves. Adlai Stevenson has to live with himself. If his conscience can stomach this unholy alliance of Jake Arvey and Senator Byrd, then it's well we know it now. Who was it," young Roosevelt continued, "who put Averell Harriman in this race but Adlai Stevenson?" — referring to Stevenson's

This Day In Texas

By CURTIS BISHOP

The Houston "Morning Star" on this day in 1849 reported the big celebration held three days previously to honor the beginning of railroad construction in Texas.

The ceremony launched work on the Houston and Brazos Railroad, chartered in January, 1839. In a giant parade, members of the Odd Fellows, Masons, the Millam Guards, city and county officials and other dignitaries marched to the spot selected as a terminus and watched a neat slab with a fitting inscription put into place. A military company fired a salute; then all hands repaired to Henri Corri's theatre where James Reilly, Sam Houston and the president of the company delivered speeches. The new venture was called by the speakers "the first movement in a new channel of a system which will soon change the face of the country."

The ceremony turned out to be about the biggest thing about the railroad company. Although construction of two sections of the line was contracted, there is no record of any actual grading. The inscription on the slab, which the "Morning Star" neglected to quote, has long since been forgotten; in fact the slab itself has disappeared. The "face of the country" remained unchanged by the Houston and Brazos Railroad.

Of some interest is the fact that a meeting of the stockholders of the company held in December, 1839 was the first of its kind to be announced through a newspaper in Texas and probably in the United States. The "Morning Star" carried an advance story about it.

Wilbur Peeble Becomes A Victim Of Malnutrition

HOMETOWN, U.S.A., July 25 (U)—When Trellis Mae Peeble, America's average housewife, returned home from the National Democratic Convention, she found her husband drinking a bottle of milk of magnesia.

"There's nothing else left in the house to eat," explained Wilbur. "The sardines gave out Wednesday—and it was the last of the canned chili yesterday."

"Oh poor dear—you begin to fall apart every time I go away," said Trellis Mae, who took her husband's malnutrition as a personal tribute.

She phoned for some groceries, cooked him a square meal, then said:

"Well, I suppose you want to hear more about my trip? There is certainly nothing more fun than a political convention. Parties every night. And so cheap, too! I think every housewife in America ought to attend a national political convention."

"Cheap?" exploded Wilbur. "It cost me $425 to go to the Republican convention, and I'm afraid to ask what you must have spent at that national donkey serenade in Chicago. You wrote for money every day."

"Oh, I just did that so you wouldn't spend the money yourself," said Trellis Mae. "Here it is all back." And she opened her purse and handed Wilbur a big roll of bills.

"Let me see how much it really did cost me," she said. "There was $41.50 for the plane ticket to Chicago, $1.25 to the hotel, and fifty cents for the bellhop. That makes $43.25 all told."

"What do you mean—$43.25 all told?" said Wilbur. "Didn't you eat all week? How about your hotel bill, that new dress you bought to go to Perle Mesta's party, and your plane fare home? Don't tell me the Democratic National Committee paid for all that!"

Trellis Mae looked a little vague.

"Oh, no, that was Mr. Petrol, the Texas oilman's delegate I met, she said. "He insisted on taking care of all my incidental expenses."

"Now, Trellis Mae, you know

Tito Willing To Discuss Trieste

GLINA, Yugoslavia, July 25 (U)—Premier Marshal Tito says Yugoslavia is willing to discuss with Italy the touchy Trieste question but that Italy's professed willingness to join in such talks is "pure propaganda."

He said in a speech here yesterday the first move toward reaching a settlement over the disputed Adriatic seaport must be made by Italy.

Tito told a crowd of more than 150,000. "The Italian Premier (Aldo Moro) gave an interview to an English newspaper in which he generously offered to negotiate with Yugoslavia. That is pure propaganda. We made several proposals, none of which were ever answered by them. They are against Yugoslavia and want not only Trieste but other things, too."

He added that Yugoslavia was ready to talk with Italy "on the basis of our proposals or on the basis of proposals that they make."

Tobacco Purchases Are Cut By British

LONDON (U)—Britain will cut drastically its tobacco purchases from the United States and Canada this year to less than half the normal import, tobacco sources said today.

Most Women Not Interested In Seeking Political Posts

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald—Editor's Note.

A woman of national promise and with more than a little political acumen came out recently advocating that the dolls were going to have to take a more active interest in politics.

Another female is offering a rebuttal to that argument, however.

She allows as how they rarely toss their pretty hats into the ring because—well, they hardly ever think of it.

"Women are just plain not interested in politics. They're not used to it. And they're too busy with other things."

Politics get into one's blood, like baseball or short story writing and the girls who do take it up usually find it interesting not only because it gives a chance to talk while campaigning but because it affords them a chance to do good for people at-large, if elected.

As for mud-slinging in a campaign, there seems to be little of it where women are concerned. Perhaps the men would find themselves over-matched if they resorted to throwing verbal barbs with the ladies. At any rate, a clean campaign ordinarily results in situations where both men and women have their names on the ballot.

Male politicians are more apt to resent opposition than the fairer sex, it has been said. The females are less apt to get their feelings hurt and, if it comes, are likely to accept defeat more graciously.

Women who do not run for office can still express themselves in politics, a champion of their cause points out.

They can, she says:

1. Vote.
2. Keep up with legislation and write or talk to their elected parties concerning issues.
3. Influence public opinion and attitudes by expressing viewpoints or conveying information whenever the opportunity arises. It can be done, even in social conversation.
4. Watch the records of public officials and commend them when they do something good.
5. Keep up with the political situation, local, county and state. It helps to know your way around—no matter what you're after, a street light or a public school.

Dramatic Last-Minute Huddle Tried To Head Off Stevenson

WASHINGTON (U)—Most dramatic of the many post-midnight huddles during the rough-tough, late Democratic convention took place between 4 a.m. and 6 a.m. at the Congress Hotel Friday in protest against the so-called alliance between the big city bosses and the Dixiecrats.

Held just seven hours before the presidential balloting was to begin, the huddle also was aimed at stopping Adlai Stevenson.

Neither Senator Kefauver nor Averell Harriman was present but most of their followers were, including Gael Sullivan, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Congressman Chet Holifield of California, Paul Fitzpatrick, Democratic chairman of New York, Rep. Franklin Roosevelt Jr., Gov. "Soapy" Williams of Michigan, Sen. Blair Moody of Michigan, Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers, and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois.

As the meeting opened, Reuther growled at Senator Douglas for claiming there was an alliance between Governor Stevenson and the big city bosses.

"You've got yourself in an untenable position," snapped Reuther. "You started out with control of the convention but finally lost it," he added, referring to the fact that Douglas's candidate, Kefauver, had the largest number of convention votes.

Senator Douglas said nothing. He let Reuther talk.

"I'm not going to let anybody put a Dixiecrat label on a candidate that Labor supports," Reuther snapped.

Finally, Senator Douglas very softly replied: "Do you mean to say it was not a big city boss-Dixiecrat alliance that seated Virginia?" he asked. "Do you think we did wrong in trying to keep Virginia from being seated?"

"It isn't a question of right or wrong," said Reuther.

"I thought that I was doing a constructive job of breaking up an alliance of Dixiecrats and big city bosses," Douglas replied. "But if there is no agreement on that, then there is no use of my staying in this meeting," he left.

Young Congressman Roosevelt, however did not share Reuther's view. When someone in the pre-dawn huddle suggested that they go to Governor Stevenson and ask him whether he approved the alliance between the Dixiecrats and the big city bosses formed to obtain his nomination, FDR Jr. shot back:

"To hell with that! There is no use contacting people about their views. Let their actions speak for themselves. Adlai Stevenson has to live with himself. If his conscience can stomach this unholy alliance of Jake Arvey and Senator Byrd, then it's well we know it now. Who was it," young Roosevelt continued, "who put Averell Harriman in this race but Adlai Stevenson?" — referring to Stevenson's speech at Roosevelt College last spring urging Harriman to run for President.

"And who was it who kept Harriman in the race right up until the last minute? If Adlai wants to make his position clear," concluded Roosevelt, "then all he has to do is step outside to the newsmen who are waiting outside his house."

At one point, however, Senator Humphrey got off this whimsical comment about the big city bosses: "Nobody loves the bosses more than we do," he said, "except when they disagree with us."

One of Averell Harriman's key campaign managers at Chicago was Jim Rowe, former assistant to Attorney General Biddle.

Earlier in the campaign Rowe decided to stay out of politics, possibly lured a bit toward Kefauver. But his wife became a precinct worker for Averell Harriman, worked night and day to carry the District of Columbia primaries for Harriman, and finally, to keep peace in the family, Rowe threw in his lot with his wife and hopped on the Harriman bandwagon.

Being an able organizer, he was gradually taken in to the top of the Harriman entourage.

While at Chicago, losing sleep, getting no meals, and spending his money to put Harriman across, Rowe called up his wife in Washington to see how she thought their candidate was doing.

"Oh," replied Mrs. Rowe, "I forgot to tell you that ever since I heard Governor Stevenson make that wonderful speech I've been for him."

After Gov. Paul Dever of Massachusetts had one of his conferences with President Truman last spring to arrange plans for the Chicago convention, Dever was asked whether Truman would run the convention.

"Nobody will ever see his hand," the governor replied.

That statement was prophetic.

In room 1108 of the Blackstone Hotel a private phone connected the White House with the suite of Bill Boyle, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Mr. Truman's close friend.

On the second floor of the convention hall, furthermore, was a small office with another private phone connecting to the White House. There, Presidential Secretary Clayton Fritchey, ex-Attorney General Howard McGrath, Chairman McKinney, White House Secretary Donald Dawson and Scott Lucas, the ex-senator from Illinois who claims that Kefauver's crime probe defeated him for re-election, conferred.

It was this group, on instructions from the White House, which wanted to ram the Thursday-night session through until dawn if necessary, and it was only the fact that the fire marshal came up to this room to warn that there might be danger of a major fire that finally broke up the session.

Earthworms Grow New Heads

If a gardener cuts an earthworm (or angletworm) into two parts with his spade, will the parts grow into two earthworms? The answer is that this will happen in many cases. There are more than 800 kinds of earthworms in various parts of the earth. North America has about 100 kinds.

Tests have proved that different kinds of earthworms have different powers of "regeneration." Some are more gifted than others in keeping life after being cut apart.

Earthworms in general have from 100 to 200 segments in their bodies. At the front of the long body is a mouth, and above that is a small group of nerve cells known as the brain.

Nerve cells stretch clear to the tail, and tiny tubes carry blood through the body. Food is obtained from the soil, and bits of soil pass through the long tube which serves as an intestine.

We might suppose that if only the head part were likely to live if either part lived after a cut. The fact is that the tail part can grow a new brain!

After an accident, the nerve cells in the tail part of the body set to work to produce another brain. This may take two or three months. Scar tissue forms over the wound, and a new mouth is formed. Then the tail part goes on with its life as a new worm.

The head part of a divided earthworm also gets along in many cases. Fifteen segments or more may grow out to form a new tail.

Please bear in mind that some earthworms have little power, if any, of making new segments when they are cut apart. Even an entire worm will die when kept too long away from its natural home which is under the ground, unless right conditions are provided for it. If sunshine heats a small can of angletworms very long, you may expect dead worms even though you have soil inside the can.

One kind of earthworm is known by scientists as "lumbricus variegatus." It has amazing powers of providing new parts when cut up. If such a worm is cut into small parts, six or seven new worms may come from the single worm!

Nip Swimmers Lead Assault On Marks

Yankee Women Win One Medal

HELSINKI (U) — Japan's swimmers, who performed so sensationally in the 1936 Olympic games, resumed their place in the Olympic spotlight today, taking over the record-breaking roles that American track and field stars relinquished.

The Japanese 800-meter free-style team smashed the third Olympic swimming record in three days of competition in the Olympic pool by winning its qualifying heat in eight minutes, 42.1 seconds. This broke the mark of 8:46 established by the United States team in 1948 and carried out the pattern of record-wrecking that has marked every day of the 1952 Olympic games.

The youthful Japanese team was composed of Yoshihiro Hamaguchi, Hiroshi Suzuki, Toru Goto and Teigiro Tanikawa.

The United States team also qualified comfortably for tomorrow's final along with Sweden, Hungary, South Africa, Argentina, France and Great Britain.

Other Olympic swimming records broken so far are the men's 100 meters free style, in which Clark Scholes of Highland Park, Mich., was timed in 57.1 seconds in a heat en route in winning the first tank championship for America, and the women's 200 meters breast stroke.

Two Hungarian women, Eva Szekely and Eva Novak, have turned in Olympic record times of 2:34 in trials. The final is scheduled to tomorrow.

Otherwise it was a quiet morning on the Olympic front. Brazil's basketball team trounced Chile in the first game of the semi-final round-robin competition.

American fencer Edward Vebell of New York was eliminated in the semi-final round of men's individual free competition.

In canoeing, Michael Budrock of New York and John Elsemann of Silver Springs, Md., both failed to qualify in the preliminary heats of the 1,000 meters kayak race.

Track and field competition — always the showpiece of the Olympic games — ended a record-breaking run yesterday. Twenty-seven new Olympic marks were stamped into the record books. Nine world records were beaten.

America's track and field forces won 14 gold medals in the men's division — the most since the present program was established — and one in the women's section.

The women's gold medal was a complete surprise. It was earned yesterday by four feet-footed girls — Mae Fagg, Barbara Jones, Janet Morreau and Catherine Hardy. They ran the 400 meter relay as if the Frankenstein monster was chasing them. They set an Olympic record and bettered the world record in the process.

The big show yesterday, however, was the marathon. This tortuous race of more than 26 miles usually has its own clique of fans and attracts only passing interest from the masses. But this time it was different. The man who made it so was Emil Zatopek who runs as no man ever has.

On the first day of the track and field competition he set an Olympic record for the 10,000-meter run, his favorite distance. He came back four days later to win the 5,000 meters in record time, although he claims the three-mile race is too short to please him. Yesterday he had his first try at the marathon — a triple or other Olympic runner ever attempted.

Zatopek dodged Jim Peters of England for the first 20 kilometers, asking him in English whether he was running the right pace for the marathon distance.

At 20 kilometers, apparently satisfied that he was, the Czech took the lead. He kept it all the way home to set still another Olympic record of two hours, 23 minutes 3.2 seconds. This cut more than six minutes off the old mark.

STORY OF TWO LEFTIES

Shantz Wins One, Roe Is Shelled

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer.

This is a tale of two southpaws. One leads the National League pitchers. The other leads the American League pitchers.

One is tall, lanky and clever. He is Preacher Roe. The other is short, slight and also very clever. He is Bob Shantz.

Roe has not won a single game all year. As a matter of fact, Roe has not dropped a decision since Sept. 27, 1951. On the other hand, Shantz has lost three games. His most recent defeat was on July 6. Roe has won seven straight, Shantz only four.

Offhand, one would opt that both Roe and Shantz are quite the goods out there on the mound. But this Preacher — he must be something special. Now read on.

Roe pitches for the Brooklyn Dodgers. His record with the first place club is 7-0. He has made 17 starts and finished only six. Three times he's failed to last the first inning. Twice he got only one man out. Eleven times he was either kayoed or yanked for a pinch hitter, but always he was saved from defeat by a Dodger rally. His last victory was June 24. Since then, he has started five times but was not concerned with the decision.

Shantz pitches for the Philadelphia Athletics. His record for the sixth place club is 19-3. He has made 21 starts and finished 19 of them. Once he lasted five innings and once he lasted four. He lost both decisions — to the world champion New York Yankees. His other defeat was a 2-1 setback by the second place Cleveland Indians.

Roe and Shantz pitched yesterday. The 34-year-old Preacher took an early shower in the sixth inning with Brooklyn trailing the St. Lou Cardinals, 3-2. The Dodgers tied the score at 3-3 but the Cards tied in the ninth to win their third straight from the Brooks, 4-3. Johnny Rutherford was tagged with the defeat.

Shantz, the 25-year-oldster from Pottstown, Pa., turned in a five-hitter, going all the way to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 3-1 in the first game of a doubleheader. The Athletics also won the second, 6-3. Shantz singled in one of Philadelphia's runs. It was his 13th hit of the season and his ninth run batted in. Roe has but three hits and two RBIs.

Yesterday was quite a day for southpaws. Harry (The Cat) Brecheen was awarded the victory over Brooklyn, his first over the Dodgers since July 29, 1948.

Harry Perkowski snapped New York's five game winning streak, pitching the Cincinnati Reds to an 11-4 triumph over the Giants. The second game was postponed by rain leaving the Giants still four and a half games behind the Dodgers.

PREACHER ROE ... Woes Many

Billy Hoelt, 20-year-old Detroit lefthander, handed the Yankees their fifth straight loss, pitching the Tigers to an 8-3 triumph. The Yankees snapped their losing string, longest under Manager Casey Stengel, when rookie southpaw Bill Miller shut out the Tigers, 6-0, in the second game.

Other lefthanders to shine were Alex Kellner, who hurled the Athletics' second game win over the White Sox and Gene Bearden who pitched the St. Louis Browns to their third straight win over the Boston Red Sox, 8-1. The Red Sox, with Manager Lou Boudreau appearing in the lineup for the first time this year, took the second game of the twin bill, 9-3.

Cleveland used righthanders exclusively to sweep a pair from Washington, 3-1 and 3-2 and climb into second place in the American League, three and a half games behind the Yankees. Boston dropped to third and Washington fourth. Luke Easter's three-run homer in the eighth off Walter Masterson overcame a 2-0 deficit in the nightcap. Larry Doby slammed his 20th homer in the first game. Bob Lemon and Steve Gromek were the winners.

Philadelphia's Phillies swept a twin bill from Chicago, 13-8 and 3-0 to wrest fourth place from the Cubs. Grammy Hamner's three-run homer in the sixth was all Karl Drews needed as he hurled his fourth shutout.

Vern Bickford won his fifth straight as the Boston Braves defeated Pittsburgh, 5-2. In the first game of a doubleheader, Jake Daniels hit a two-run homer for the Braves and Ralph Kiner slammed his 20th for the Pirates. The second game was called after 11 innings because of darkness.

Johnny Dawson Wins Crown In Broadmoor Tournament

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 28 (U) — Johnny Dawson, a veteran golfer from Palm Springs, Calif., is the Broadmoor Invitational tournament champion, but he had to win his title the hard way.

He was forced to go 40 holes — four beyond the regulation distance — yesterday to defeat youthful Buster Reed, North Texas State collegian, 1 up. It was the longest title encounter in the 32-year history of the tournament and was witnessed by about 2,000 spectators.

The victory brought Dawson his first Broadmoor title. He has not played the course for six years until he came here for the tourney. Dawson had to come from behind to win the match. With only four holes to play in the regulation 36-hole match, he was three down. But he fired two birdies and a par to win the thirty-second, thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth holes. Both linksmen parred the final hole.

Reed, a member of the National championship golf team, made good recoveries to prolong the deadlock on the thirty-seventh. Then, on the thirty-eighth Dawson topped his drive but made a good recovery to match Reed's birdie 4. On the next hole Dawson missed a curling 19-inch putt which could have ended the match.

Reed's drive on the 40th hole landed in a hollow about 150 yards off the green and he topped two approach shots.

Dawson was down the middle with his drive, got on the green with his second shot and closed out the battle by sinking his second putt.

Ray Moore Champ
BEAUMONT, July 28 (U) — Ray Moore took the Texas State Public Links championship from Dick Gerlich 1 up in 36 holes here yesterday. Both golfers are from Beaumont.

C. C. Clark, San Antonio, won the first flight.

Guerra Records 16th Victory Behind Steeds

Like an experienced seaman, Gil Guerra rode out one storm after another to notch his 16th win of the season as Big Spring defeated Roswell, 6-3, here Sunday afternoon.

Guerra, a surprise nominee for pitching duties, gave up seven hits and struck out eight but ran into one crisis after another after the first inning.

The Steeds never trailed in the ball game, however. They counted twice in the second on a two-out single through the box by Buddy Grimes and then crowded four tallies across the dish in Round Three as result of two walks pooled off by Gary Young, hits by Pat Stacey, Juan Visteur, Al Valdes and Grimes, sandwiched around a walk-off drive by Frank Calo.

Visteur drove in two of the runs with a double into right center field. Stacey and Valdes accounted for the other RBIs.

Roswell put two runners on in the second, one in the third and two in the fourth but not until the fifth did they break the scoring ice.

In that round, Young led off with a double and scored on Stubby Greer's single after Bob West walked. West later tallied on a bobbly by Oreste Alvarez around second.

The Rockets added their other run in the sixth when Calo, after getting free transportation, eventually came across on a long fly to center by Bobby Lemmel.

Guerra survived his greatest test in the fifth when, with runners at first and second, he struck out dangerous Al Monchak.

RAMBLINGS — Of the eight hits the Steeds got off Gary Young, a left-handed hurler, five were off the bats of southpaw hitters. Roswell left 11 runners stranded, which was a tribute to Guerra's clutch pitching. The crowd was very scant, due, no doubt, to the steaming weather. Wayne Crawford, Roswell right fielder, fell flat on his face going after a fly ball in the fourth but remained in the game. Stubby Greer sent Grimes back to the wall on a long drive in the first. Roswell, the league's leading team in double plays, had to wait until the seventh inning of the series' second game to get a twin killing but then ripped off two before the contest ended. The win was the first for Big Spring over the rejuvenated Roswell outfit in four games.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Reading Colleague Frankie Reynolds' recent article on Nigger Charley, a colorful local character of another generation, set George White to reminiscing.

White recalled how Nigger Charley loved baseball and was putting on quite a show himself on the sidelines during a spirited contest being played on a local diamond.

He happened to get in the way of a foul ball, however, while cavorting near the battle pits and the pellet knocked the hat off his head.

Slightly non-plussed but not at a loss for words, Charley bent down, picked up his sky-piece, jammed it down on his head, and yelled: "Who ever did that is a liar!"

J. D. Partridge, who used to play a lot of football at Odessa High School, has a job as a junior high school coach at Victoria.

Partridge played college ball at Texas Western in El Paso.

They say Howard Green, the Big State League pitcher, may lead a drive to add San Angelo and Abilene to his wheel.

Longhorn and WT-NM directors probably would back any such move, however.

MIDLAND TO BE BETTER
Tugboat Jones, Midland High School's football mentor, says he'll have a better ball club than he had in 1951 but that Lubbock will carry the big stick again in District 1-AAAA.

Jones expressed the belief that Odessa and Amarillo would give the Westerners the most competition.

Jones knew his chances to field a winner are far better this year than they would be in 1953, which is the reason he led a campaign to get Midland admitted to the circuit a year early.

A baseball fan asks what's to prevent a player from backing up a catcher when an intentional pass is being given to an opposing batter.

There's nothing in the rule book which says it can't be done but no club, as far as I know, has used such a shift. The player, of course, would be there to stop any wild pitch the pitcher might commit.

About the closest thing to that kind of deployment is the one used by Al Monchak, the Roswell skipper, who himself advances to a point within ten feet of home plate, in the pitcher's box — first base-home run triangle.

Monchak stations himself there in case the batter should lean across the dish and try to bunt the ball.

SHOT AT TITLE IN OFFING

Marciano, Matthews Meet In Yanks' Park Tonight

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (U) — Slugger Rocky Marciano and Boxer Harry Matthews risk their careers in one daring gamble tonight for a September shot at the world's heavyweight title. Marciano is a 2 to 1 favorite.

Scouting from a ringside pew at Yankee Stadium will be Jersey Joe Walcott, the 38-year-old champ, who has agreed to meet the winner in the fall.

Forecasts of fair, warm weather were counted on to bring a last minute surge to the box office. The International Boxing Club expects to draw over 25,000 fans and $250,000 for the show.

There will be no radio, television or theater television of this 10-round elimination bout, scheduled for 9:00 p.m. (EST). In the event of rain, it will be pushed back to Tuesday night as a conflict with a baseball game has been cleared up by a mutual agreement.

For Marciano, unbeaten in 41 pro fights, and Matthews, who hasn't lost in 70 starts since 1943, this will be the real crossroads. After tonight, it's on toward the title or back to the clubs in Providence or Omaha.

Marciano, a swarthy 27-year-old from the shootout of Brockton, Mass., is a crumpling puncher who fights out of a crouch. A left hook to the body and a long overhand right to the head are his best weapons. Rough and hard to handle, he is built like a wrestler with strong, solid legs and short brawny arms.

Matthews, 29, is a classic stylist with 105 pro fights. A fine boxer with long arms and quick hands, he is a fine counter puncher specializing in short sharp jolts to the body. The pride of the Great Northwest and his home town of Seattle, Matthews soared toward the top under the guidance of Manager Jack Hurley. In one New York appearance against Irish Bob Murphy, Matthews made a lasting impression.

The price fluctuated a bit from $10 to $15.

Greatest Olympic Show Saw Records Broken 152 Times

By WILL GRIMSLEY
HELSINKI (U) — Everything from the invigorating Finnish air to the appearance of the Russians for the dizzy, eight-day assault on Olympic track and field records.

During the mad, almost unbelievable week, 27 Olympic records were broken a total of 152 times.

Everybody is asking: Why? "I have only one word for it," said Brutus Hamilton, slow-talking head coach of the U. S. track and field forces who dominated the meet. "That word is 'athletes.'"

"I think our team is the greatest Olympic team ever assembled. Other countries came in with finely-tuned and excellent competitors. Competition was stiff, conditions were favorable and records had to result."

Dan Ferris, guiding father of the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union, had another explanation. "I think it's this climate here," he said. "There's something about the air here that will make a man do better than he's ever done before. It's invigorating."

Mal Whitfield, the Air Force flier who tied his own Olympic record of 1:40.2 in winning the 800 meters, said he figured the record-smashing spurge was due to higher world standards generally.

"The London games came right after the war. Nobody had a chance to get ready," he said. "This time most countries have been priming their athletes for four years just for these Olympics."

Young Bob Mathias, a repeater in the decathlon in world record figures, agreed with Whitfield that the Americans seemed to have more spirit and drive than the 1948 team at London.

Harrison Dillard of Cleveland, an Olympic record-setter in the 110 meter hurdles, thinks the remarkable performances stemmed from the keen American-Russian rivalry.

"This thing was sort of built up weeks and months in advance," Dillard said. "All the boys, I believe, felt that they couldn't afford to be beaten. So they went out and put a little something extra into it."

Don Peoples went the distance for the winners and Lefty Shelton pitched into the tenth before being relieved by Winnie Cunningham. Cunningham was charged with the loss.

Shelton proved the top hitter for Forsan with two hits in five trips. In another extra-inning league game, Sonora edged Miles 4-3 in 10 games. And in the third league game, Ballinger nudged Bob Lee 6-5.

Forsan Beaten In 14th, 6-4

The league-leading Bryan Electric of Veribest had to go 14 innings to down the Forsan nine in a Concho Basin League contest 6-4.

Don Peoples went the distance for the winners and Lefty Shelton pitched into the tenth before being relieved by Winnie Cunningham. Cunningham was charged with the loss.

Shelton proved the top hitter for Forsan with two hits in five trips. In another extra-inning league game, Sonora edged Miles 4-3 in 10 games. And in the third league game, Ballinger nudged Bob Lee 6-5.

Local Speedsters Win Sunday Races

COLORADO CITY — Charles Coffee won two races and Clyde Majors one in the weekly hot rod races here Sunday. Both are from Big Spring.

Coffee's two wins came in a 15-lap semi-final race and in the 25-lap feature race.

Majors was first in the third race of the day, a 10-lap race. Tommy Ratliff of Colorado City was the top winner of the day, winning three races.

SHIVERS NON-COMMITTAL

State 'Regulars' Confused On What To Do About Stevenson

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN, July 28 (AP)—Some Texas "Regular" Democrats seem confused at this point on how far they should go—in boosting the national party's ticket of Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman. This uncertainty was evident in reports received from precinct conventions over the state Saturday.

It ought to be cleared up considerably before next Saturday, when the county conventions will be held. By that time, Gov. Shivers no doubt will have passed the word along on what he wants done.

A coolness approaching the cold shoulder toward the national ticket was expressed by many members of the Shivers delegation returning from Chicago. Final selection of Stevenson and Sparkman came so late in the week that many local Shivers' leaders either hadn't figured out or been tipped off on what to do.

Shivers himself was non-committal. He said he thought the Illinois governor would make a strong candidate. Shivers also said he would abide by his promise to see to it the Stevenson-Sparkman combination would get on the ticket in November. That was all.

All along the Texas governor has said he would come back from Chicago and report to the homefolks. That report is expected about mid-week. It should clarify things considerably before the county conventions.

The anti-Shivers "Loyalist" organization was already at work beating the drums for Stevenson and Sparkman. Maury Maverick started the ball rolling with the first Stevenson-for-President Clubs at San Antonio. Plans were to extend this all over the state.

Some Shivers precinct conventions adopted resolutions praising the national party's ticket, others laid such resolutions on the table. Precincts controlled by Loyalists approved pro-Stevenson statements.

Shivers headquarters here was sure of one thing: The governor controlled in the majority of precincts Saturday and will have majorities in most county conventions. That should give the regulars a firm hand on the wheel at the state convention in September.

The ultra-conservative wing of the Shivers organization and of the delegation at Chicago was most unhappy over Stevenson's nomination. They look on him as just another new dealer.

The delegation itself stuck with Richard Russell on all three ballots, also indicating outright displeasure with Stevenson.

Shivers stopped here briefly Saturday without saying anything to clarify his view of Stevenson. He said he would be back in his office about mid-week, and it was expected a statement would be forthcoming.

One other thing was sure: Shivers and his people felt they stood on firmer ground than ever in view of his clear-cut victory in the governor's race over Ralph Yarborough. The Loyalist element had gone all-out in support of Yarborough.

Yarborough, in conceding Shivers' victory, issued a statement saying he belonged to no faction or clique of Texas Democrats. He said his goal was to unite all factions, and that he hoped to see the day when all factionalism would be laid aside.

Shivers had called Yarborough the candidate of his Loyalist opponents. While Shivers received a decisive majority in defeating Yarborough, the strong party-line Democrats who are fighting him haven't given up. The outlook continues to be for more Democratic turbulence in Texas.

Monsanto Gets Tax Write-Off

DALLAS, July 28 (AP)—The National Production Authority office here has announced the granting of a tax write-off for an expansion project of the Monsanto Chemical Company, Texas City.

The firm will be allowed to write off 45 per cent of the proposed $3,681,250 investment to construct more vinyl resin production facilities within five years.

Eleven other Texas firms were granted certificates of necessity by NPA to boost the Texas total to $6,513,340.

They included: Shamrock Oil & Gas Company for water transportation of petroleum in Moore County; Muleshoe Grain Storage, Inc., for a grain storage elevator at Muleshoe; J. M. Huber Corporation for gasoline facilities in Hutchinson County.

Former Head Of GOP Committee Is Dead

DEL RIO, July 28 (AP)—Carwell K. McDowell, 81, retired Del Rio lawyer and former chairman of the state Republican committee, died here yesterday.

He was a Republican candidate for governor in 1942, for state attorney general in 1926 and for chief justice of the state Supreme Court in 1930. He was chairman of the state GOP committee during the administration of William Howard Taft.

McDowell also was a former Val Verde county attorney and county judge.

Violent Storm Smashes Port; Four Are Killed

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—A brief, violent storm with hurricane gusts up to 85 miles an hour smashed through this famed old seaport yesterday leaving four known dead and at least three missing. The victims were in small craft capsized in the harbor.

The squall, accompanied by a driving rain, lightning and hail, struck a dozen Essex County communities, capsizing small craft, knocking out power and communication lines and uprooting trees and felling telephone and power poles.

One of the missing was reported seen going under water and failing to resurface. The others were not accounted for last night when the Coast Guard halted its searching operations until this morning.

Some 200 craft capsized in Salem Harbor which bore the brunt of the 20-minute storm. The Coast Guard and private motor launches rescued about 100 persons in small boats.

More than 30 persons were listed as missing at one time but they were tracked down during the day at their homes in scattered sections of Massachusetts or in refuge on the numerous islands in the harbor.

The Coast Guard pointed out last night it is possible that the present missing list of three could increase since boat owners, when renting out a boat, only take the name and address of the person doing the renting and not of the rest of the persons accompanying him.

Police identified the dead as John Bolivert, 68, and Isidore Leboeuf, 37, both of Lowell; Kenneth Drew, 60, of Lynn, and Samuel Wetner, 56, of Malden.

Missing were Edwin Nowak of Danvers, presumed dead; Robert Savageau and Harrison Cole, both of Beverly.

Twelve airplanes at Mountain Field Municipal Airport in Beverly were demolished.

The word asbestos is from a Greek word meaning inextinguishable.

Two Youths Hold 16 Persons Imprisoned

HOLYOKE, Colo. (AP)—Sixteen persons, seven of them children, were imprisoned for hours in a farmhouse on the Eastern Colorado sandhills by two gun-brandishing youths during a short-lived Sunday flight from jail.

The pair, identified by State Highway Patrolman Harold Hartsook as Glenn Maynard, 19, of Amherst, Colo., and Ronald Davey, 17, of Indianapolis, apparently believed they had killed Sheriff Harry Clements when they broke jail yesterday.

One of their hostages said they talked of the "killing" and warned that there was certain to be a gun battle at the farmhouse.

Actually, Clements suffered only cuts and abrasions from a beating and was resting at his home in "good" condition when the youths were captured about dusk at a highway barricade.

They surrendered meekly—without going for their weapons—to Sgt. F. N. Christiansen of the Colorado Highway Patrol and Willard Bollen, Holyoke police chief, only a few miles from the Colorado-Nebraska border, near Laird, Colo.

After the sheriff was beaten yesterday morning, the two manacled him to a third prisoner in the jail and fled in the sheriff's radio-equipped car. They seized weapons as they left.

About 9 a.m., Farmer Frank Myers told Sterling Advoca. is his farmhouse three miles from Wray, Colo., waving their weapons.

They threatened Myers, 58, his wife Ella, their son Mynard and their daughters, Mrs. Harry Strauch of Denver and her two children.

Myers told Sterling Advocate reporter Ed Olson, that the Myers family had planned a reunion at the farmhouse. He said that all persons who arrived were admitted while the intruders stood by with drawn weapons.

The men, he said, were tied to chairs, but the women were allowed to move around and even were directed to prepare lunch. The children were confined to the house but were not bothered, he related, and the two escapees even played with them at times.

Once, he told Olson, a gun discharged and the bullet grazed the leg of his daughter, Mrs. Willard Walz, but he expressed belief "it was an accident."

Myers said, the pair became nervous about the number of persons being held and feared someone would start a search so they fled in Walz's car.

Police nabbed them at a road-block.

Both were being held on robbery and auto theft charges when they made their break.

Summerfield Says Demos Can't Win

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican National Chairman, Arthur E. Summerfield, says the Democratic national ticket was "hand-picked" by President Truman and it can't win in November.

"The people . . . have had enough," Summerfield said yesterday. "They can see through the false faces that the political bosses of the opposition party have donned in the hopes of carrying on their nefarious business-as-usual for another four years."

In his first comment on the Democrats' selection of their candidates, Summerfield did not mention by name Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the presidential nominee, or Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the vice-presidential choice.

Gen. Grow's Trial Will Begin Today

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)—Seven major generals will sit in court martial today to hear charges that a man of their own rank, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, was careless with secret military information.

The charges against the former military attaché to Moscow are that he made personal notes on subjects of a classified nature, then was careless enough to let the Russians steal them.

The Soviets had a propaganda field day with what they said were excerpts from Grow's diary.

The material attributed to Grow indicated its author urged immediate all-out war against Russia. Conviction carries a possible five years' confinement, forfeiture of pay and dismissal from the service.

MY SINCEREST THANKS TO ALL OF YOU

The wonderful vote you gave me in Saturday's primary is gratifying beyond words. To every person who marked my name, or said a good word for me, I say thanks, from the bottom of my heart.

This support encourages me to intensify my bid for the County Judge's office in the August run-off. I sincerely solicit the continued support of those who helped me Saturday, and the support of all other voters.

As a young attorney who has the welfare of Howard County at heart, I conscientiously think I can make you a Judge of whom you can be proud.
