LIBERTY.

"The Fear Market" Draws Big Crowd

"The Fear Market," which is now being shown at the Liberty, theatre starring Alice Brady in the principal role, is without doubt one of the few photodramas seen on the silver screen which has a strong appeal, full of tense dramatic moments, and so able to hold the audience's attention from start to finish. It is truly a drama of the highest type.

Whether one's taste runs to stories of love and romance or gets most pleasure from photoplays because of the thrills provided by stirring action or would rather cry than smile, or revels in the presentation of problems of the day for these angles of appeal, "The Fear Market," a Realart picture, stands first in film drama.

Miss Brady as Sylvia Stone and her supporting cast of eminent screen artists leave nothing to be asked for in bringing into play human emotions in a manner dramatic and most realistic.

Film fans and lovers of the drama must be sure to see "The Fear Market" at the Liberty theatre and surprise themselves with a real treat.

LAMB.

Goldwyn Star Shines as Equestrienne

Mabel Normand proves to be an equestrienne of no little skill in her new Goldwyn picture, "Pinto," which will be shown at the Lamb theatre, beginning tomorrow. Her long screen career has heretofore been unclouded with proofs of her ability to swim, run, jump, dive, handle fast motor cars, and otherwise perform in the field of sport, but it was not until her manager, Victor Shertzinger, wrote and filmed "Pinto" that she was given a chance to show her prowess in the saddle.

The beautiful spotted horse which Miss Normand rides in this picture was found only after a long and diligent search by Goldwyn's cowboy scout. The Edendale owner at first refused to loan the animal for the picture.

LONE STAR.

Henry Lehrman Revives "Houn" Dog Story

Henry Lehrman, producer of "A Twilight Baby," showing at the Lone Star theatre this week, declares that one of the funniest incidents in his experience happened during the producing of this picture.

The night watchman at the Lehrman studios in Culver City, advertised in all local newspapers to trade his bull pup for any kind of a smaller dog.

"What's the matter with that bull?" asked Lloyd (Ham) Hamilton, who with Virginia Rappe is starred in "A Twilight Baby."

"I'll tell you," said the watchman. "My dog, he fights all the time. Some day he lick Mr. Lehrman's dog and then I get fired."

QUEEN.

Remarkable Success Achieved by "The Old Homestead," Now Picturized.

This famous play has been picturized by Paramount and it will be shown at the Queen theatre tomorrow. It is an admirable photoplay and one that will live long in the memory of all who see it.

"The Old Homestead" is a rich and therefore rare combination of good old-fashioned rural comedy and the deepest pathos. Opening in the peaceful farm country far from the glare and glare of Broadway, the story takes the innocent son from his happy abode and flings him into the madison of New York's life. Here he falls victim to the lure of the new existence and nearly breaks the heart of his grieving family.

But his simple old father, putting all his trust and faith in the power of good over evil, goes to the city in search of his son, confident that he will be guided to him by a Higher Intelligence. The pathos and dramatic force of the scenes which follow are founded upon the most effective of all appeals—heart interest.

OPERA HOUSE.

Entire Circus Engaged for "A Regular Girl."

An entire circus was engaged for the production of several of the important scenes in Elsie Janis' first Selznick picture, "A Regular Girl," which comes to the Opera House today. The circus made its stand on a huge field close to Miss Janis' home in Tarrytown, N. Y., relieving the famous comedienne of the necessity of traveling.

"A Regular Girl" is one of the most spectacular productions that has "reared the screen. In addition to the "rears of the circus, an entire railroad equipment was chartered for the making of a "thrill" scene. The appearance of Elsie Janis in "A Regular Girl" marks her first public appearance in two years.

Comedians Score Hit at Hippodrome

Yesterday started the week's run of one of the most acceptable musical comedy companies that has ever been seen in Ranger. The bill given by the "Alamo Beauties" at the Hippodrome is clean throughout, but full of action to the brim and overflowing with humor. There was not a dull moment. The bill is well balanced with musical numbers.

Red Mack and Morris Harding comedians, were a "knockout." Nothing like them have ever been here since "Oh Baby" played at the Liberty. Their "slap-stick" fun-making situations were enough to make "old man grouch" kick a couple of slats off his coffin and wiggle his left ear. The famous old bull in the china shop becomes as tame as a poodle dog on parade and "Peck's Bad Boy" seems like a curly-haired mother's darling when compared to Red Mack's antics. Here is a pair that will surely give you the hiccoughs with your ha-ha. One laugh walks right onto the heels of another. They are just a havoc of hilarity; that's all.

The company's famous trio, Jack Lewis, Harding and Mills, sang several numbers including "Tell Me," "Jelly Roll" and "Bubbles," which took with the audience like flies to fly-paper. Marie Mack, prima donna, sang "Honey Kiss Your Papa," "The Song of Love" by Madge O'Dowd soubrette; "China Blues" by Red Mack, co. La, La, Wee Wee" by Jack Lewis.

After the musical comedy number, Christen Christensen, the world famous athlete, challenged any man in the audience to compete with him in a 3-4-mile running event on the tread mills of his own invention (the only ones of its kind in the country). Tonight he offers another athletic stunt which promises to be very interesting.

The musical comedy production for today's program is "A Date at the Seashore," pronounced by the stars as one of the best bills the company has in its repertoire.

Conscious of Error.

A little girl was asked, upon her return home, how she liked the singing of the congregation in the church.

"I liked it very much indeed," she said. "Although all the people said it was bad."

"All the people said it was bad! What do you mean, my dear?"

"Oh, it was so bad that I heard the people praying, 'Lord, have mercy upon our miserable singers.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Staging the Pieces.

A leading theatrical manager tells the following story:

"There was one chap," he said, "couldn't get rid of. He was persistent. I refused his play seven times, and he still kept turning up with it, rewritten here and there. The eighth time he came I told him firmly it was no use."

"But, sir," he said, "is there no chance in the world you could put my farce on the stage?"

"Well," said I, "there's one way, but I don't know if you'd submit it to anything," he cried. "I'd submit to anything."

"Then," said I, "we'll give it up and send it as a snow-storm."—London Tit-Bits.

COPPER MASH CLUB PREMIERS MEETING, PARIS

International News Service. PARIS, March 15.—The "Society of the Men with the Copper Masks" has just held its first annual convention at the Val de Grace Military hospital, Paris. The society consists of French soldiers, suffering from facial wounds who have been provided with a set of new features through modern surgery.

The convention took place in the very laboratory where the wounded men had undergone their transformation. Rows of plaster casts, telling the story of the "before" and "after" of each delegate, were shown in the convention hall. After the convention the delegates attended their first annual dinner, which was combined with a distribution of presents from America.

The most successful address of the convention was made by a ladies' hairdresser who lost his nose through a shell explosion. As he told his comrades in a humorous speech:

"Without my nose my job was gone, for how could a noseless coiffeur hope to please lady customers? Already melancholy had marked me for my own, when the mask expert took my case in hand, and so successfully, that I am now doing a rushing business in my old trade." In conclusion he asked his comrades to accept each a ruler of sun and a bottle of scent, which he said he had "personally tested."

These American-made "Portrait Masks" which are the only ones in France, are made of light weight copper plate, enameled in flesh tints. Besides concealing facial scars, they serve as a most successful camouflage for missing features. They are an adaptation of the mask invented by Capt. Derwent Wood of the British army. The work owes its origin to Mrs. Maynard Ladd of Boston, who devised the American mask, and to Miss Marie Louise Brent of Columbus, Ohio, who took charge of the "Portrait Mask Studio." Miss Brent recently married Monsieur Desnoy, director of one of the most important laboratories in Paris.

MUSIC MAKES FOR IMPROVED AMERICANISM

International News Service. NEW YORK, March 2.—"Make America a singing nation." Behind this slogan a campaign, launched by the War Camp Community Service, is under way in the United States, and its promoters assert its object is already approaching realization. The movement is being carried on in the form of community singing, which is being made a part, wherever possible, of every community gathering.

European nations marveled when American soldiers in France during the world war went into battle singing. The "singing soldiers" of Uncle Sam became famous throughout all the allied armies and feared by the armies of the enemy.

Enhancement of the spirit that produced the "singing soldiers" will, it is believed, develop in the United States a higher type of patriotism. Aside from the purely musical purposes of the movement, Americanization thru music is a prime object of the singing campaign.

Because of this purpose the campaign is being waged actively in districts where there is a large percentage of foreign born population. Music is being made one of the chief factors in the functioning of the "melting pot." Tongues that know the strange, sad harmonies of Russian, the songs of Italy and the folk songs of the Scandinavian countries and the melodies of gay France or Spain are being taught to blend with them the songs that teach patriotism and an understanding of American ideals.

As a means of realizing this purpose, the community singing movement has reached forth into factories and commercial enterprises where large numbers of people, American born and foreign born, are employed. Employers are aiding in the movement, and "necroday songs" are becoming common among the employees of many large business and industrial institutions.

Promoters of the campaign believe that community "sings" are an effective and lasting factor in combating everything that is un-American.

National anthems and patriotic songs are, of course, the principal part of the community singing program. Folk songs peculiar to the American people, however, are sung with frequency and enough of the "jazz or ragtime" music is injected to enliven but not disrupt the movement. Leaders of the movement regard it as a vital factor in promoting neighborliness and good feeling among those who participate.

The work is being carried on through song leaders in all parts of the United States. Many of these are active workers in the War Camp Community service, while others are volunteers who have become interested and have taken up the work at the request of business men or leaders in the local communities.

Primarily, the movement originated during the war, but it is being extended to the after-war period on a scale even greater than before. It is predicted that before long the democratization of songs will be complete and America will become in reality a "singing nation."

SOLDIER BONUSES.

The Chicago Tribune takes a courageous and what it realizes will be a decidedly unpopular stand as between soldier bonuses and universal military training. Both are movements that have the endorsement of the American Legion. The Tribune says that it is one or the other.

To The American Legion.

The Tribune knows that this will be an unpopular editorial. There is no pleasure in taking the position it requires, but the considerations involved need the attention of the American Legion and they ought to be set forth whether they are popular or not.

If the Legion demands a bonus from congress, we think it will be given. There are probably more than 3,500,000 service men in the country and they are finding organization with common purposes for which they will act in common. When they do so they will have great political influence and congress will be impressed by it.

If they press congress for a bonus for each month of service for each service man, we think they will get it. In November, 1918, the United States had 3,665,000 men in service. The total term of service has been about sixteen months and the average might be taken at ten or twelve months. For a rough estimate, we may take ten months, which, at $50 a month, would mean an average payment of $500 a man, $1,832,500,000. If the average be taken at twelve months' service, the total will be $2,199,000,000. For purposes of estimate, the sum can be placed at $2,000,000,000.

This would require a bond issue, a bonus bond issue. If it were a 4 per cent. issue, the annual interest would be $80,000,000, and the sinking fund requirements for twenty-year bonds would be $100,000,000 annually—a new national obligation of $180,000,000 annually.

We presume that if the bonus is a service bonus and not an invalidity pension, it would include the men who did not get to France, as well as the men who did. Their service was different from the A. E. F. service and not as dangerous, but it was service. They would insist in being included. We must reckon on the total number of men in service and have done so.

We believe that wherever there is a service man whose ability to provide for his living and for a family was impaired by the war, the nation is under obligation to recompense him, to do what it can to make up for him what he cannot do for himself. The remedy for the necessary inequities of war ought to be found in the equities of the nation. These men form a special group.

Most of the veterans are uninjured. They have lost time and they may have lost civil opportunities of advancement, of making money. This is admitted. The nation cannot wholly recompense for such disadvantages. It was the nation's mission to get into war, and when a nation is at war its young men must fight.

The country is full of opportunities for young men and we know that now the service men would rather be in their own shoes than in the shoes of the able bodied young men who could have come and did not and escaped the draft. That is their recompense and they themselves know best how valuable it is.

Wise Americans are trying to have universal training adopted as a military policy. Congress is timid. Advocates of the policy are told that it is too expensive and that it is not needed because just now the country has several million trained men who could be reassembled in emergency. Congress looks to the 1918 army to do it again, if it has to be done again.

The Tribune does not. The Tribune wants the obligation placed where it belongs, upon the younger men. If they are trained it will rest lightly on them, because there will be no danger. We might be unjust and foolish enough to rely on the demobilized and dispersed army of 1918, but no sensible enemy would fear it and any sensible enemy would have respect for a nation that was training its young men each year.

The cost of training is estimated at $131,000,000 a year. Congress says that is too much money. The bonus will cost $180,000,000 a year. Congress, if pressed hard, will give that. But when it gives it will put universal training aside forever. We shall not be allowed protection against other wars because the expense of the German war was too great. The cost of one war was so great that we must risk another.

These considerations will not be taken in good part by many service men, but it is apparent where the good of the nation lies. The good which would be done each individual who served would be comparatively small at the best. Assume that it is equitable, is it expedient? Is it good for the nation? What was the service for? For the good of the nation. That good is a continuing demand upon all citizens.

The question is wholly for the veterans themselves to consider and decide.

LIBRARIES FOR WORKERS PROPOSED TO ALLAY UNREST

NEW YORK, March 1.—Extension of library service broadly among industrial workers and manufacturing plants of all sorts as a contributory factor in allaying social and industrial unrest throughout the United States will be encouraged by the American Library association, it was announced today.

Introduction of books dealing with social and industrial problems among workers is expected to broaden the outlook in the industrial world and have large bearing on the attitude of labor toward existing conditions.

The organization also proposes establishment of services in rural communities, on board ships, in light-houses, coast-guard stations and for soldiers, sailors and marines. Another plan is to introduce standard tone in the Braille system for the blind.

"SHIMMY" STAGED IN COURT AS EVIDENCE IN FIGHT

International News Service. DALTON, Ga.—Recorder Tarver Friday granted some belles and beaux of Darktown the privileges of the courtroom for dancing purposes, and, with the court attendants and spectators was given a sight of the colored method of "shimmying." The dance was an unqualified success, after which small fines were levied against the dancers.

The dance interrupted the monotony of the recorder's court. The negroes engaged in it wanted the court to know just how the trouble started which wound up in a free-for-all fight. Starting at the beginning, the defendants enacted the causes leading up to the fight, and they entered so heartily into it that the police finally had to pull them apart to keep them from carrying out the actual battle.

SOUND-PROOF ROOM ASKED FOR BEDFORD HYSTERICS

International News Service. BEDFORD, N. Y.—The annual report of the state reformatory for women has been forwarded to the legislature by the board of managers, of which William G. Barrett is president. It was drawn up previous to the recent investigation of charges of cruelty in the institution. It is recommended that a sound-proof room be provided in the hospital building so that hysterical inmates may be locked in where they can make all the noise they please without disturbing the orderly women.

Both the board of managers and Miss Helen Cobb, superintendent, suggest in the report that the state employ a psychiatrist and a psychologist to examine the mentality of the women when committed and separate from the simply unruly those of abnormal character for special treatment in the hospital.

EXTRA TRAIN ASKED ON SANTA FE LINE

SAN SABA, Feb. 28.—In an effort to get the Santa Fe railway to install a "bob-tail" passenger train to serve the passenger needs of the Lometa and Eden branch, instead of the mixed train, always late and inconvenient, the towns of Richland Spring, Brady, Whiteland, Melvin and Eden have tabulated ticket sales for the months of November, December and January to show that the new train is justified by the business tendered. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is now trying to secure the additional train.

Richland Springs sold 600 tickets in November, 715 in December and 644 in January. Brady sold 2023 in November, 2664 in December and 1878 in January. Whiteland sold 467 in November, 445 in December and 662 in January. Eden sold 1154 in November, 1527 in December and 1571 in January.

TIMES WANT ADS FIX THAT WANT

DEVICE FIRES NAVAL RIFLES MILES DISTANT

International News Service.
LONDON—Dramatic possibilities of the use of wireless telegraphy in the operations of the battlefield as well as for the protection of ships at sea were demonstrated at recent experiments at Chelmsford. The experiments are described in the London Daily News. Although the experiments in question were designed to demonstrate the use of a new device for ships in distress at sea, the possibilities of the use of wireless in future warfare was pointed out.

A member of the Marconi company showed that there would be a difficulty in firing a gun from a spot 300 miles away. All the big guns used in the Paschendaele offensive could have been fired as easily from London as from Ypres. Paris could cause an explosion in Berlin by merely pressing a key. An aeroplane could wait until advancing enemy troops had reached a certain spot and then explode mines which would annihilate them.

When the range of the instrument has been increased it would be a comparatively simple matter for a man sitting in an easy chair in Bomain to cause an explosion in New York. All that would be necessary would be to leave in New York a receiver suitably hidden and connected with a mine.

The instrument was actually used in an experimental form during the war to fire a gun some fifteen miles off the English coast. Instead of sending a party out to the gun during the fog it was fired by wireless from the shore.

The invention is now being developed mainly from the shipping point of view. It will release ships from the necessity of carrying three wireless operators to relieve each other at "listening in," and will need no more attention than an ordinary telephone.

When a ship is in distress the operator will merely press the automatic transmitting key, and on all other vessels within wireless range—varying from 300 to 1,200 miles, according to the atmospheric conditions—alarm bells will be set ringing.

Exactly how this will work was shown. For the purpose of the demonstration the "ship in distress" was the Marconi station near Cambridge, thirty miles away. A special signal, consisting of a series of Morse dots on a 600-metre wave, released at a rate of 180 dots per minute, was sent out from there by means of the new automatic transmitter. A few seconds later a bell rang loudly at Chelmsford and continued ringing till it was switched off.

An even more convincing demonstration of the uncanny power of wireless was given when a small mine of gunpowder was exploded by the same means. At a given signal Cambridge actuated the automatic transmitter, and almost immediately afterwards the charge was fired at Chelmsford. It seemed incredible that the explosion was due merely to imperceptible "impulses" rushing through the air from an insignificant-looking little instrument thirty miles away.

The automatic transmitter consists of an oscillating system comprising a small fly-wheel which is controlled by a spiral and adjusted to swing at the desired rate. Attached to and oscillating with the moving system is an arm carrying an electric contact while at each oscillation touches a fixed contact and closes an electric circuit through the operating magnets of the relay signalling key and through a pair of fixed electro-magnets in the transmitter.

A current then flows through the relay key magnets, operates the key, and causes a Morse dot to be sent out by wireless. The action is started by means of a small auxiliary key which temporarily energizes these magnets.

There were times during the demonstration when other powerful wireless stations were jamming the special "impulses," and so preventing them from ringing the bell. It was pointed out that there would be little likelihood of this happening at sea and that, in any case, the operator responsible for the jamming would recognize that a ship was sending out the special signal and at once cease transmitting himself. Bells on other vessels within range would then at once give the alarm.

It would be a simple matter to arrange for the current not only to ring a bell but also to light up a red lamp on the captain's bridge.

Major McCallum of the Marconi company, who conducted the demonstration, said the device was foreshadowed by signor Marconi at the inquiry into the loss of the Titanic. It was actually brought out before the war and was used during the war. The company, however, devoted all its energies to war work until after the armistice, and it was not until the apparatus was perfected.

ENGLAND MAY PLACE IMPORT
TAX ON COTTON

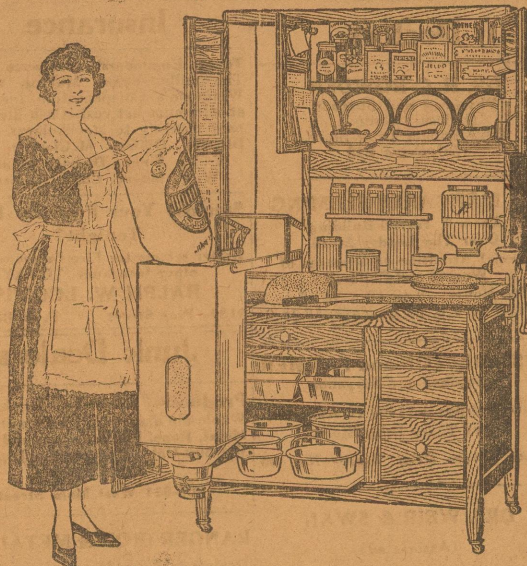

By FLOYD MACGRIFF,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
LONDON, March 2.—England is alarmed at the cotton supply outlook. She fears it will be increasingly difficult for her to satisfy all her needs for raw cotton from the United States, from which she now gets 85 per cent of her supply. Therefore, the Lancashire mill owners argue, England must develop her own cotton resources in Egypt, India and Central Africa. One person in eight in England is dependent in some manner upon the cotton spinning industry. Continued high prices in America are regarded as certain, owing to the insistent world demand for cotton goods which under no circumstances can be filled for several years. Major Nall, M. P., has warned Lancashire not to depend on America or Brazil for cotton because "one is not sure of the labor situation there," and he points to the cheap labor, correct climate and soil available in undeveloped portions of the empire—Africa and India—for maintaining low-priced cotton. The Empire Cotton Growing committee has recommended a tax of sixpence per bale on imported cotton, to realize a 100,000 pound fund to develop imperial cotton resources. But many times that sum is required, it is pointed out, owing to lack of roads, railways, ports, draining and irrigation schemes necessary to developing imperial cotton lands "where labor is cheap."

Professor John A. Todd of Manchester university, says that nothing but continued high prices will assure an adequate supply of cotton from America.

He says lack of sufficient cotton-spinning mills, longer hours of work and exchange rates are partially responsible for the scarcity and high prices of cotton goods, but these secondary influences will disappear, he says, long before the production, shortage of raw cotton is remedied.
