Throws His Purse in Weeds, Saves $75 in Holdup

Silas Akin saved himself $75 last night when held up by robbers on Rusk street by throwing the money, which was in a purse, in the weeds nearby. The robbers, however, relieved him of $15 which he had in another purse.

Immediately after the holdup Akin notified the police and they arrested Frank Jones and H. L. Leonard at the Arizona rooms in connection with the robbery and they are now being held for investigation.

According to the statement made this morning by Akin, the two men in jail and two others who have not been arrested were together with him early last evening and later they went together down on Rusk street. One of the number declared that he had to go and see a sick friend. A few minutes later he said he and two of the other men went into the alley and the one who had previously left the party pulled a gun on them. It was at this point, Akin said, he threw his money away. His two companions and the holdup man he declared went away from the place together.

Jones, one of the men arrested, said that he was from Roscoe, Texas, and had only been in Ranger since Monday night, and that he had no connection with the affair of last night. His father, he declared, was a merchant in Roscoe. Jones said he was 19 years old.

Evangeline Booth

(By Dick Donahue)
The statement may not be accurate, but it has been my observation that few women attain that degree of efficiency and capability enjoyed by Evangeline Booth without loss of those graces and attributes which, for the want of a better term, are bulked under the single word "womanliness." Miss Booth is nothing if not womanly.

She is one of the most capable of women. As commander of the forces of the Salvation Army in the United States she has under her supervision thousands of Salvation Army workers, hundreds of buildings and a vast amount of attendant details. She probably labors under more responsibility than any other woman in the United States. Yet she is not the cold, matter-of-fact strictly business woman one would expect her to be.

I met her first at Newark, N. J., where she came to assist in a financial "drive" for that organization and during the time she spent there I had a number of opportunities to talk with her and observe her methods of action.

I called the following expressions:

Miss Booth, to my mind, is one of, if not the most eloquent women in America. Time after time I have seen her address meetings of business men, of laborers and of illiterate rabble. At each of these gatherings she soon discovered and sounded a responsive chord hidden from the casual observer. She is a deep student of human nature, it is evident. She is capable of polished oratory as well as of succinct, straight forward business language. Is a mistress of exposition and auditors never leave her presence without a complete understanding of all that she covers in her talk. She is possessed of a voice of singular clarity and beauty and is able to inflect with such delicacy as to impart to her hearers shades of meaning impossible to the ordinary speaker.

Though her mouth is somewhat stern and her face somewhat too strong featured for feminine beauty, her facial appearance as a whole is attractive. I believe her large, sympathetic eyes are the things that redeem an otherwise over-strong face. Miss Booth always dresses in the simple blue uniform of the Salvation Army and always presents an immaculately neat and trim ensemble.

Unlike a number of women Salvation Army workers subordinate to Miss Booth, the commander is not in the least "school teacherish." In conversation she is just as gay, in a reserved sort of way, as a school girl. She has not forgotten how to laugh either and a mouthful of well formed teeth add to her attractions when she is amused. Though it is apparent after a few moments of association with her that she is deeply religious, her religion never jars on her senses of those with whom she comes in contact. I judge Miss Booth to be in her early forties. Though not of the orthodox "athletic" type she is robust in a wiry, wholesome sort of a way and above all—capable.

The feminist movement lost a rattling good politician and administrator when Evangeline Booth left worldly prizes go by and set out to prove to the world that "A man may be down but he's never out"

TRAVEL FEVER HITS EASTERN EUROPEANS

Women, wives of teachers and professors, of formerly well-to-do farmers, who have been so sorely hit by the war, suffer especially from the lack of cheap holidays they were once accustomed to take in Switzerland, the Italian Riviera, Paris or London, where they saw the old sights anew, the styles in clothes, brushed up their acquaintance with languages and came home content to await next year's trip.

"I really believe many of us shall fall sick if we are not able to satisfy this travel fever," said Mrs. R. Vambery, wife of the Hungarian criminologist, who was a great traveler as was his father before him.

"Have pity on we poor travellers. To think that now I can't buy a new dress I who once had the money to roam where I would."

The ministers of foreign affairs in these countries are besieged by applications of their fellow citizens who want to go away as diplomatic representatives or consuls and many near-important men at home are willing to accept positions as clerks abroad, merely for the chance of traveling.

This fever is not limited to the formerly well-to-do. Recently a notice was published in a Budapest paper that any able-bodied man or woman wishing to work in the United States would be furnished with a ticket and $50 expense money by the Americans. That same day the American High Commissioner, U. Grant Smith, had to request the military authorities to keep away the mob from his office in the Andassy St.

The railways in Hungary, in Rumania and in every country, though worn out by the war, are always crowded, with people clinging to the roofs of the coaches, thick as flies, summer and winter. About the stations are big crowds of men, women and children, swarming up and down, waiting whole days and nights for trains. "Where are all these people going to?" the correspondent asked a conductor at Busharest.

BOUNTY ON RATS.

Boy Scouts of Corpus Christi caught some 2,500 rats and mice, and were paid more than $100 for their work, according to a news dispatch in the Times yesterday.

This method of eliminating an evil has its interesting possibilities. It would seem that the boys were paid a bounty of about 5 cents each for each of the nauseous beasts killed and burned.

At least twenty-five hundred rats have escaped poisons and traps put out by Ranger citizens. We can well afford to do without them, and it would seem that to put the Boy Scouts on their trail would be a feasible idea.

Ranger's Boy Scouts would very probably derive pleasure and profit from following the example of the Corpus Christi organization. Why not see if they wouldn't like a try at it.

Prominent Japanese citizens suggest that the Nippon government recall all Japanese in America, in order to settle our Japanese problem. The trouble is, the Japs in America are not of the class that would be denominated "prominent" if they returned home, so it is probable they will prefer to remain.

The action of Houston girls in setting fire to a hospital in which they were confined and then staging a dance to distract attention from the flames throws new light on Nero's conduct. The common idea is that the noble Roman died to show that he should worry, but maybe it may be that he sought to divert the attention of his subjects who had no insurance from the impending calamity.

TRACTORS HELP SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM IN THE MIDDLE WEST

Operating a self-shocking binder with a tractor, and motor cultivator cultivating two rows of corn at a time.

Tractors are playing an important role in solving the farm labor problem in the great middle west this summer. The Illinois farmer who has a motor cultivator has been able to handle fifty acres of corn and take care of his other work unaided. Tractor driven binders, which consume a gallon of kerosene for every two acres of grain cut, are now found on many western farms. The upkeep is less than that of horses.

With the increase in the number of one-man, motor-driven outfits, the farmer is daily becoming more independent, and, following the passing of the horse, may be seen shortly the passing of the farm hand.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

MRS. NIGHT HAWK WAS ASLEEP. As I said yesterday, little Sammy Squirrel was nearly pecked to death before he could tell his message. Of course, that was no nice way to do, but if you knew Mrs. Night Hawk like I do you would understand why she acts so badly. You see, Mrs. Night Hawk has had a hard life in the Forest and she has found that in order to raise her family she would have to be very rough with some of the Forest Dwellers. Well, after she had pecked little Sammy until he could hardly see, she said: "There, now, will you learn to mind your own business and not be putting your head into other folks' houses?" When little Sammy found that she was thru pecking him, he told his message. "I came here to tell you that Major Pole Cat and Jack the Rabbit are down on the ground waiting to see you. It is very important and they want to see you soon." Little Sammy rubbed his eyes. "Well, why didn't you tell me that someone wanted to see me?" "You didn't give me a chance to tell you. You kept pecking me so fast that I couldn't say a word," Sammy Squirrel told the truth, for that is just what Mrs. Night Hawk did, and now she was sorry.

"Tell me, Mr. Pole Cat, what your Question is," said she.

"Come down here," said he, "this is a very important question."

"All right," said Major, "You come with me to the King at once. You were asleep on the job when you should have been watching. Now there is a stranger come into our midst and no one knows who he is. They started for the King's palace."

A prince of stately pedigree, whose medals were a sight to see, observed with weariness and pain how at his house the world's disdain was leveled and he cried: "Shoo! wait! My noble name I'll vindicate! I'll show men that the Kaiser's sons are not all worthless sons of guns. I've had in mind, for quite a while some action splendid and sublime, our reputation to retrieve, and knocking enemies to peevy. Now, watch my curves! Observe my foam! Good night, punk world I'm going home!" And then he took his trusty gat and shot himself below the hat. And when I heard the gasty news I had a season

UNIONISM'S NEW WEAPON.

In calling an industrial plant or other establishment a "union" institution, the use of the adjective means merely an institution under union labor's regulations and having union labor's approval.

But the adjective may mean something different and more important in the future. It may mean an institution in whose ownership labor participates to such an extent as to give it control. A very interesting phase of this new movement in unionism is dealt with in a Post-Dispatch article from Washington, headquarters of the Machinists' union, the third largest body in the American Federation of Labor.

Through a special contribution of $1 a month from its 350,000 members, easily spared with the existing scale of wages, this body has been buying the securities of ironworking plants which offer resistance to union demands or which may be suspected of being about to offer resistance. The fund for this purpose now amounts to more than $9,000,000. The plan has not only resulted in the abandonment of nonunion policies by individual plants, but it is believed to have headed off a concerted movement by employers to reduce wages and other concessions won in the past. In order that it might command banking facilities and the services of experienced financiers in carrying forward the idea, the union has acquired large holdings of the stock of the Commercial National bank, second largest bank in the District of Columbia, and of the Mount Vernon Savings bank of the same place.

The real test of the idea will come when values decline, employment becomes scarce and returns on securities lessen. It is essentially a form of profit-sharing fostered by the employer rather than by employees. But if profit-sharing under employers' plans promises mutual advantages of importance, why does not profit-sharing under employees' plans also promise mutual advantages?

At any rate it seems a much better weapon than the strike, with its disorders and its losses to the public and a much more productive use of union funds than the payment of strike benefits.

Recipes for Pickles and Preserves Preserved Mulberries.—Put 2 quarts of mulberries into a preserving kettle and allow them to melt down until the juice is well drawn. Strain and measure the juice, and to every pint of this add 2 pounds of fresh berries and 2 pounds of sugar.

Preserved Vegetable Marrow.—Remove pulp and seeds from 4 large vegetable marrows, weigh them, cut them in strips and to each pound of marrow allow 1 pound of sugar. Lay the marrow and the sugar in a pan together over night, adding 2 ounces of green ginger cut in small pieces, and add the juice and peel (finely cut) of 3 lemons also to the pan. In the morning put this mixture into the preserving kettle and boil it very gently for 4 hours. Put in a stone crock. When cool it is ready for use.

Plum Conserve No. 1.—Pit the plums and put them into the preserving kettle with a very little water for every pound of pitted plums. Cook until thick (merely simmering for about 20 minutes) then add 1-2 pound of chopped English walnuts for each pound of plums that were put into the kettle at the beginning, boil for 5 minutes more, stirring constantly, and seal in sterilized jars.

Plum Conserve No. 2.—Take 3 pounds of blue or red plums and an equal weight of sugar. Cut the plums in pieces, add a little water, the sugar, 1-5 pound of raisins, and the pulp of 2 oranges. Simmer slowly for 1 hour. Seal in sterilized jars.

Grape Catsup.—Wash and steam 5 pounds ripe grapes. Put into a kettle with 1 pint of water and let them melt down, then simmer until they are cooked. Strain through a piece of sieve and add 1 pint of vinegar, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, and pepper. Boil until slightly thickened, then bottle, cork and seal.

Sweet Tomato Pickle.—Let stand overnight 6 large onions pared and cut into small pieces, 1 peck of green tomatoes sliced, and a sprinkling of salt. In the morning drain and add 2 quarts of water and 1 quart of vinegar; boil for 15 minutes, drain (throw away this vinegar and water), and add to the pickles 2 pounds granulated sugar, 2 quarts fresh vinegar, and 1 tablespoon of mixed whole spices (these come together in a package and can be had from most grocers). Boil this mixture for 15 minutes more, and put either into a stone jar or seal in quart-size preserving jars.

AT MINSK.

While the Russian armies were thundering on toward Warsaw the Russian peace emissaries were strangely delayed in getting off to Minsk. Comrade This-covitch, just as the special train was about to start, had to go back for a pair of socks he had left on the piano. When he was finally got aboard and the train was barely thirty versts out of the suburb, Comrade Thatkoff, who presided at the throttle, discovered that Comrade S-and-soff, the fireman, had inadvertently thrown the fourth volume of his copy of "Das Kapital" into the firebox, so the special had to go back to Moscow for a fresh copy. Thus one thing and another, unfortunate accidents, postponed the beginning of negotiations while Comrade Kerensky's men were going so nicely on the way to Warsaw.

But now it is the Polish emissaries who are developing an impediment of speech, while the Red comrades are all getting down to business.

We noticed the same phenomenon during the war with Germany. There seems to be a definite law of progression in such matters: the speed of diplomats seems to be in inverse ratio to that of their army's advance, or, we might put it, in direct ratio to its retreat. German and ally, Russian and Pole, Red or White, it seems to work the same way with them all.

So we observe Minsk with some interest. The Russian terms, founded on a Russian offensive under the walls of the Polish capital, were going to be made rather stiff. Disarmament of Poland was one of its terms. Now the Russian army has had a great fall and the military situation is reversed, we may hope for terms which the Poles can accept without national suicide or revolution.

But if the Russians offer reasonable terms, are the Poles now reasonable enough to accept them?

Perhaps that depends upon how free the government and its plenipotentiaries are to act and do act solely for the good of their own country. In any case, if the Minsk conference brings any kind of durable peace, Europe will have taken a long step toward stabilization.—Chicago Tribune.

Here is the Rev. Dr. Watkins, the Prohibition party's nominee for president, showing that he isn't afraid of water at his home at Germantown, Ohio, where he is professor of literature at a military college. As professors' salaries are notoriously low these days, Dr. Watkins often aids with the family washing, and is equally handy at other jobs around the house.

Hunting Bargains in Ranger

Bargains discovered in trips through Ranger shops and department stores are here presented briefly, for the benefit of Times readers. If any of the articles described meets your needs, you may learn the shop where it may be purchased by calling the Times, telephone 224, and giving the paragraph which tells of your shopping editor the number of the paragraph which tells of your particular bargain.

I. It is early for a reduction on fall hats, but there is one. Those pretty little feather hats that are so stylish and becoming in dark blue, ebonhagen, green, mahogany, tan, cerise and lots of combinations are selling for $10, and the original prices were $15 and $20. This shop will also retrim, remake or make-to-order any hat for you. Sometimes there are possibilities in your old last season's hat that you never dreamed of and a good milliner can turn it up on this side and down on that one, or twist it around in a new fashion so it wouldn't be recognized by your oldest friends.

II. There is no excuse for our feet looking anything but the neatest and trimmest so long as we can buy pretty pumps for $3.35. White, black and tan kid pumps or ties; also some white oxfords and black and tan high shoes. Tomorrow only.

III. We are judged by our grooming quite as much as by our clothes. You cannot afford to neglect your complexion, hair or nails if you expect to continue looking your best. A beauty parlor, under new management, is doing things up to the minute. If your complexion disappoints you, have it looked over and see what is wrong.

IV. A dress that certainly has all the good looks and style possible combined in it is of navy blue tricotine gorgeously beaded in bugle beads. The narrow vest and top of the wide girdle are of mandarin duvety combined with dark blue, which makes a wonderful color combination. Someone asked me recently why I did not give the prices on some of these things. Really, I haven't the heart, and you should see them, anyway, to appreciate their value to you.

FALSE BOTTOM IN SUGAR SPOON CURE FOR GREEDY DINERS

Something new in sugar conservation methods had been put in use by a local restaurant owner of an inventive turn of mind.

Working on the theory that what pleases the eye pleases the man, he has put a layer of solder in the bottom of spoons left in sugar bowls. The result is that three dips into the sugar bowls nets about one ordinary spoonful of the sweet stuff. Though originally adopted to avoid bankruptcy from insects made on the sugar supply by diners who habitually dip their spoons in the bowl three or four times, it has resulted in a considerable saving of sugar generally.

WHAT HO! STAND TO! REVERBERATIONS REVERBERATE IN NIGHT

No, Villa did not attack Ranger last night. Nor was there a free-for-all gun fight on Main street.

That evening the sound that sounded like Custer's last stand and the fall of Warsaw combined was merely back-fire of engines at the electrical power plant.

The reverberations of the explosions caused considerable interest and even anxiety late last night. They continued at intervals for some time and a number of Ranger folks even left their homes to come down town to learn the nature of the disturbance.

HUMBLE NEWS

Lieut. R. V. Ricketts, who has been visiting his brother, Guy Ricketts, for the past few days, left this afternoon for his home at Clarksville.

There has been a rumor during the past week of organizing a foot-ball team for the coming season, and there is some good material among the boys in Ranger camp.

TRAFFIC VIOLATOR IS FINED WHEN HE USES CLOSED STREET

Snuder Atwell was fined $15.70 this morning in police court by Judge L. H. Flewelen on a charge of violating the traffic ordinance.

D. N. Tilliston appeared for the defendant and after an agreement with the judge that the case should be decided on its merits took the floor and without much law on his side made a fluent speech on behalf of his client.

The fact in the case set forth that Mr. Atwell needed two cases of merchandise from the store of Russell & company on Elm street. This street, however, was barricaded by the paving company but showed according to the attorney tracks where it had been used. Mr. Atwell drove in and was arrested.

The judge held that this was plainly a violation of the law and entered the fine.

SERENADE OF GAY GRANDEE ENDS WITH FIRST GUITAR THROB

Don Jesus Patrio de la Buenaventura—or something like that—hidalgo and tobasco grande, went courting last night. He unlimbered his guitar and wended his way to a point of vantage beneath the window of the shanty-car on the Texas & Pacific tracks where lived the plump and pleasing Loranthina, the pride of his heart and the lustre of his life.

Don Jesus seated himself on an empty lard canister and gently tickled the abdominal regions of the instrument with his fingers.

That was 11:19 p. m.

Just two minutes later the nocturnal troubadour was doing a marathon down the cindered track toward the open country with a choice variety of chili con carne, totifilla dough and scrapings from the supper dishes, plastering his countenance.

"She husband was home," was his laconic reply to queries of his associates this morning.

THE women should certainly be thankful for the automobile. It has given them a chance to see a lot more of their husbands.

II

But it has done a great deal more than that.

It has brought people closer together, given them new interests, swept away old prejudices.

III

What affects one man now generally affects a good many of his neighbors in the same way. And they have a better chance to get together and talk things over.

IV

We want our customers to know what they are getting.

That's why we represent U. S. Tires—so there will be no doubt about it.

Whatever the size of your car, you know that the U. S. Tire you put on it is the best kind of tire its makers know how to make.

U. S. Tires are guaranteed for life, without any limitation of mileage.

That ought to mean something to the man who has thought about tires.

It's had its effect on the tire business.

When automobiles were new people were willing to buy any kind of a tire. Now they're beginning to insist on knowing what they are getting.

And the more they insist, the better it will be for us.
