

MAN IN PAJAMAS FLITTED FROM BATHROOM TO BUDOIR OF WOMAN IN DIVORCE CASE; MANY LOVERS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—That Mrs. Pearl Hyman Nolker, who is suing Robert E. Nolker, vice president of the Commercial Electrical Supply company, for divorce, frequently entertained men in her apartment in the St. Regis, was testified to by Mrs. W. H. Powell, 1724 Mississippi avenue, in the Clayton circuit court today.

Mrs. Powell said she was formerly employed by Mrs. Nolker as a dressmaker and that on one occasion she saw a strange man in pajamas there.

During one of her visits to the Nolker apartment she also said she heard Mrs. Nolker refer to her husband as "the Dutch book."

She testified that she had known Mrs. Nolker for about 10 years and that she went to her apartment frequently before the latter sailed for Europe in 1913.

Men in Pajamas.

Mrs. Powell testified that one morning she got to the apartment earlier than usual. As she went to the room where she did her sewing, she said, she saw a tall man flit from the bathroom to Mrs. Nolker's bedroom. He wore pajamas, she asserted.

"Do you know a man named Igenfritz?" (McNair Igenfritz) she was asked.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Powell. "Igenfritz is a musician and wears a bracelet."

"What was his conduct toward Mrs. Nolker?" she was asked.

Igenfritz Affectionate.

"He was very affectionate," Mrs. Powell answered.

She then related that she saw Igenfritz in the bedroom with Mrs. Nolker on one occasion.

Mrs. Powell said that Mrs. Nolker was in her nightgown.

She described at length what she saw at the Nolker apartment prior to Mrs. Nolker's sailing for Paris, where she studied music.

"I'm going to Europe where the real people live and to have a good time," she said she heard Mrs. Nolker say. She said she also heard her say something about "getting away from the low-brows of St. Louis."

Mrs. Powell testified her mistress said that "her sister was going with her and if she didn't land a millionaire it wouldn't be her fault."

The sister supposedly referred to is Mrs. Finn, formerly Mrs. Teasdale, who was then unmarried.

Mrs. Powell claims Mrs. Nolker made the remark during this discourse that "she had started out to land a millionaire and that she did."

Edward Bates, 332 Texas avenue, formerly a chauffeur for the McFall Taxi company, testified that he drove C. Vincent Riccardi, formerly an attorney of St. Louis, to Mrs. Nolker's apartment nearly every night for a month. This was in 1915. He said he waited as late as 2 a. m. for Riccardi on some occasions in front of the St. Regis.

"He's a Perfect Lady."

The deposition of Harry Hartwick, formerly chauffeur for the Nolkers, which was read to the court, reviewed a party to which he had driven Mrs. Nolker, Igenfritz and several other men and women at Kirkland. He said he got Mrs. Nolker and Igenfritz at her apartment and that the other women were taken into the car after two more men were picked up at the Jefferson Hotel.

Hartwick's deposition said it appeared that the members of the party had been drinking, and that he heard much noise in the tonneau of the car on the return to the city shortly after midnight. He claims Igenfritz presently asked him to stop, and that he rode in the chauffeur's seat with him.

"While we were going downtown Igenfritz began acting peculiarly, and when I later told Mrs. Nolker about it, she said: 'Oh, don't mind him; he's a perfect lady.'"

Hartwick said he took Igenfritz to Mrs. Nolker's apartment as many as five times a week. Frequently, his deposition says, the curtains were pulled down when he took them on drives.

The deposition of Theodore Haines, formerly an elevator operator at the St. Regis also was read. It related what Haines heard the night of Oct. 15, 1916, when the Nolkers separated. Haines said there was loud talking and that after Mrs. Nolker made some remark about "boob," Nolker came out smiling, went down in the elevator and he never again saw him.

TO FREE MEXICAN PRISONERS HELD ON ISLAND OFF COAST

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 18.—Bearing orders for the liberation of 500 prisoners in the penal colony on the Marias Islands, off the west coast of Mexico, two physicians named by Provisional President Adolfo de la Huerta, shortly will depart for the colony, with orders to establish sanitary conditions on the islands.

In a recent interview, Gilberto Valenzuela, sub-secretary of the interior, declared that these 500 prisoners were sent to the islands to satisfy the personal vengeance of certain individuals influential during the administration of President Carranza.

"Hereafter, persons actually convicted of felony will be sent to the islands, but not those whose cases have not been heard by the courts," Senator Valenzuela said. "Furthermore, more attention will be paid to the prosecution of thieves on a large scale—such as paymasters who have absconded with funds entrusted to their care, and other dishonest public employes."

GERMAN MONEY MUDDLE IS HOPELESS, DECLARES BANKER

By Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—All the currency theorists in the world would be unable to give a definite, positive, answer to the question when an improvement might be expected in Germany's huge paper circulation, Director Von Glasenapp of the Reichsbank has told the Associated Press correspondent. The bank statement showed that the paper in circulation July 15 totalled 53,847,000,000 marks. This was a decline of 198,000,000 marks as compared with the previous week.

"We shall certainly do all in our power to prevent further undue inflation of currency," he said. "As for Germany, there are only two ways and none other will avail. They are expressible in two words—work and thrift. Increased production will benefit both exchange and exportation. From that and a nationwide return to frugal habits alone is an improvement in the paper money situation expectable."

MODEL VOTER.

HARD TIMES IN TURKEY OBLIGE MANY NABOBS TO TURN SURPLUS WIVES ADrift; MANY EMPLOYED

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 20.—Nowhere has the high cost of living been felt more keenly than in Turkish harems. Men who were formerly able to maintain many wives and concubines find their incomes insufficient to keep up large establishments and are forced to turn some of the women adrift.

American women relief workers who have been investigating social and economic conditions say the tragedies Turkish women have undergone as a result of the war are even worse than in other European countries because of the utter helplessness of women and their lack of training which might make them self-supporting.

The sufferings of Moslem women are worse in cities than in the country, for the country women frequently trained to do farmwork and are an asset to their husbands rather than a liability. Furthermore the economic conditions have not been disturbed so seriously in rural districts. Farming goes on much as usual. Women can find employment in olive groves, at silk culture, in fruit orchards and even in grain fields.

Since the war has robbed so many women of the husbands, fathers or other male relatives upon whom they were dependent, many city women have forced themselves into employment which was never before regarded as proper for Moslem women. Turkish women with their veils thrown back from their faces may now be seen as saleswomen in scores of Constantinople shops. They are even employed as street sweepers.

There has been a great outcry against Moslem women accepting employment which forces them into association with men, especially Christian men, but the economic pressure has been so strong that religious prejudices had to make way. The need for nurses with the army gave Moslem women their first opportunity to get hospital training and become nurses. That was the entering wedge which has opened the way into other employments monopolized by Greek and Armenian women. Turkish women may now be found in telephone exchanges. They are acting as cashiers, janitors and even street car conductors.

Stern necessity has won for Turkish women an independence which was undreamed of six years ago, and the wall of the untrained women forced to earn their livelihood has aroused Turkish leaders to a realization of the necessity for better and more practical education for women

CHILD WORKERS ARE INCREASING, REPORT PROVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Four thousand more children are working in Chicago today than a year ago, according to Clyde A. Brown, acting director of the City of Chicago's Bureau of Child Labor. The increase in child labor is said to be general in the Middle West but exceptions are noted in Missouri, Kansas and North Dakota.

Necessity of the child helping the family meet the high cost of living, the pulling power of higher wages and scarcity of adult labor, together with the discovery by employers that women and children often could take the place of men were cited by Mr. Brown among reasons for a similar increase in child labor in other parts of the United States.

Minnesota officials report that child labor is nearly doubled in that state. The greatest increase, they say, is among children of the "white collar" class whose parents have been forced by rising prices to permit their children to work. About 3,000 under 16 years of age are now at work in Minnesota.

Wisconsin statistics of child labor for the year are not yet tabulated but officials say enough returns are in to indicate a considerable increase over previous years. Some boys under 16 years have been reported receiving $100 a month.

T. C. Jennings, Texas state labor commissioner, reports an increase of about 10 per cent in Texas child labor over last year. Postponement of compulsory school attendance, he says, has been a factor.

State Labor Commissioner Claude E. Connally of Oklahoma says more violations of child labor laws have been brought to the attention of his office this year than previously, from which he deduces an increase in juvenile workers. Connally said the increase in violations was probably due to the fact that there was 30 per cent more jobs in the state than workers.

A. L. Urlick, Iowa state labor commissioner, recently reported that approximately 1,000 more permits had been issued in the past year to children between the ages of 14 and 16 than in the year previous.

Kansas and North Dakota report child labor in those states as almost negligible. St. Louis reports a decrease. Child labor now employed in that city are stated to number 5,900, which is 750 less than were at work there a year ago. The state factory inspector's office says the decrease is general all over the state. The federal tax on child labor is given as the cause of the decrease.

MOUNT OLYMPUS WILL BE MADE INTO GAMING RESORT

International News Service.
PARIS, Aug. 20.—Mount Olympus, home of the Pagan Gods, is going to be turned into a modern pleasure resort, according to word just received from Athens. A company organized by foreign capital has been accorded the concession in spite of the protests of savants and archaeologists, who declared that the project is sacrilegious and predicted that Jupiter and the other gods would wreak a terrible vengeance on the defilers of their sanctuary, the Greek government accepted the plan.

A funicular railway will take visitors to the summit of the mount and there they will find sumptuous hotels, a casino where they can play roulette and other games of chance, clubs, skating rinks, dance halls and private residences.

BATH SEEMS LOST ART IN SERBIAN CIRCLES, NO TUBS

International News Service.
VRAJNE, Serbia, Aug. 20.—There was a time in Vrajne when the people included whatever the Serbian word for bath may be in their everyday vocabularies and not infrequently suited the action to the word, but that was hundreds of years ago. Today it is with difficulty that the enjoyers of the American Red Cross at Vrajne are teaching the people the practical meaning of the word.

And yet, of all the towns in Serbia, Vrajne is the one which should be most familiar with baths and bathing, for it is the home of the biggest and oldest Turkish bath establishment in the country. The ancient baths were built in the sixteenth century by the Turks themselves, who then ruled the country. They are housed in an ancient stone structure with a red tile roof.

The water, in the days when the baths were operating, flowed into huge vats above primitive underground furnaces from a spring whose crystal stream, now released, still bubbles through the vaulted cellars of the ancient establishment. The steam from the vats was led to the hot rooms above through channels cut in the solid rock walls of the building, for in the days when the Vrajne baths were constructed there was no such thing as an iron or lead pipe in all of Serbia.

Vrajne may crumble into ruins ere the subterranean steam vats boil and bubble again.

population has known nothing for generations. The youth of the town are learning the art from Red Cross workers feeding and caring for the children of the poor, but the elders still look on the regular abatement of the body as a troublesome superfluity, and the ancient baths of Vrajne may crumble into ruins ere the subterranean steam vats boil and bubble again.

NOTE—This is the eleventh of a series of articles calculated to give more or less intimate side lights on the personalities of the great and near-great. Each article presents the impressions and observations of a newspaper reporter in the presence of the boot, spurred and belted—likewise the hooted, slurred and peeted.—Editor.

Champ Clark.

(Tomorrow: "Pussyfoot" Johnson)

By LARRY SMITS

Champ Clark was one of the foremost figures in democracy, the interest compelling leader of the House, in the days when the Bourbons were first returning to power. He was one of my first big "uh" assignments and I thrilled, perhaps.

Any uneasiness I may have felt was mitigated by his "Come right up, son," over the telephone and cherry "Walk in," in answer to my knock at his hotel door, and dispelled when his friendly nod made me one with the conference he was holding with lesser democrats than himself, in an informal way, warmed by such hospitality as hotels could supply in 1914.

With my hardly knowing it, I found myself absorbing a story that told much of his trip, a swing around the South, and little of what I sought to learn, the national political situation as he saw it.

"Mr. Clark," I suggested, when the easy trend of the conversation gave me a chance to go after the information I wanted, "I'd like to know whom you consider the most likely candidate of the party for the next nomination." It was then more than a year away, but was being talked.

"I can tell you, son," he replied, "but in confidence."

I hesitated, for information given in confidence to a newspaper reporter is as useless to him as skid chains would be to an airplane. They mean nothing to the story in hand, and the pledge that he gives in accepting such information some times may fetter him should he secure the same knowledge through another channel, and not in confidence.

This seemed an exception to the rule, however. If Champ Clark did not tell me who was Champ Clark's selection for the presidential nomination, then who would? It would at least be interesting for my own information. I nodded assent.

"I am the logical candidate for the next democratic nomination," he assured me, seriously, though there might have been the suggestion of a tinker in his eye.

"Thank you, Mr. Clark," I returned, also unsmiling. Not from this, or any other phase of the interview could the impression be gained that the big man of the House was devoid of a sense of humor, or possessed of an abnormal bump of conceit. It indicated, rather, as I milled it over, that he rated himself at a high value, as do all men of accomplishment, who preserve their reputations for modesty by the expression, or repression, of their self-valuation. In a burst of confidence, he had let me "in" on it.

Others there were who agreed with Champ Clark, but not in sufficient numbers, at either the national convention to follow, or the one in June, 1920, to make his ambition a reality.

His limit on the pledge of confidence as he told me, expired with the 1916 convention.

June 10, the date on which the trunk was shipped to New York.

Case Is Tangled.

The publicity given these two names, Leroy and Tatum, brought forward Andrew J. Branig, a New York expressman, who said he knew Leroy under the name of Fernandez. He told the police he had handled a trunk for Fernandez or Leroy, who, he said, also used the name of O. J. Woods. He produced a letter from Leroy, enclosing a check for the trunk in which the body was later found, asking that it be removed from the express warehouse and stored until Leroy should call for it.

A Detroit policeman, Leo Trumbull, then came to the front, declaring that he and his wife, knew the young woman who lived with Leroy as his wife at the Harper avenue address. When the body of the murdered woman arrived in Detroit, Trumbull and his wife identified it as "Mrs. Leroy."

Then from the south came positive word that "Mrs. Leroy" was really Mrs. Jackson, wife of Kid McCoy Jackson of Sturgis, Miss.

Town too Small for Her.

"The town was too small for Kitty Lou and she went away," Jackson said, when asked to tell what he knew of his wife's wanderings.

Next Tatum, the man whose name appeared on the mysterious trunk, walked into police headquarters at Birmingham, Ala., and explained his connection with the case.

He told the authorities that he had known Mrs. Jackson in Birmingham, where he works as a linotype operator. At her invitation, he said, he visited her in Detroit, where she told him she had married Leroy and that he was "terribly jealous." Shortly afterward, Tatum said, he returned to Birmingham. He declared that the next he heard of the woman was when he read of the discovery of her body.

$5,000 Reward.

Reports have poured in from every quarter of the continent indicating that Leroy had been seen in this or that place. A $5,000 reward offered by the police of Detroit stimulated the search and he was reported variously as escaping to Canada, hiding in Mexico, sailing for Brazil and the Bahamas and under arrest in Chicago.

General Clean-up Gains First Block in Anti-Mud Push

Austin street from Walnut to Main has been cleared of mud through the efforts of citizens. Businesses on that street paid for the work. The street and sidewalk committee of Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon to form plans to have the entire paved district cleaned in the same manner.

It is thought that by asking adjacent property owners to donate the mud all may be removed from the downtown districts.

On Austin street the city grader is being used to scrape the mud into piles and it is then carted off by wagons. The expense per block by this method will not be heavy.

The cost of the Austin street work was underwritten by Dr. W. C. Palmer, Judge L. H. Flewellen and J. T. Harness of the Texas Drug company.

The Chamber of Commerce sidewalk committee is composed of Robert Moore, chairman, T. E. Henshaw, A. Davis, W. E. Grubbs and T. E. Skinner.

HIGH SOPRANO PIC SINGS; TRAFFIC IN CITY GOES AWRY

International News Service. CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—This is the story of Oswald, a red porker, a pig with a soprano voice and a retreous nose. Oswald was recently in transit across Chicago in a crate on an express train when fate obligingly lifted a slat or two and gave him his opportunity for freedom.

Equalling chronologically, Oswald quickly found himself in the center of Chicago's traffic and thereupon discovered that he was the fugitive in a pursuit joined in by boys, chauffeurs, policemen and folks too numerous to mention. In direct violation of traffic ordinances, Oswald darted across street intersections, upsetting all those who came in his path. A courageous Chicago cop finally captured the porker by means of a flying tackle to the ears.

Robs Calomel of Nausea and Danger

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. New Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern pharmacy is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy but its use was so often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One tablet on the tongue at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs. Adv

MESHES OF TRUNK MURDER REACH MANY PEOPLE IN DIFFERENT TOWNS THROUGHOUT NATION; BIG REWARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The "trunk murder" mystery in connection with which Eugene Leroy is being sought by detectives all over the country and in Canada and Mexico, has ramifications which extend from New York to Michigan, Mississippi and Alabama.

A few minutes after an employe of the American Railway Express company here had discovered the nude and mutilated body of a young woman in a trunk stored in the unclaimed baggage warehouse, police of New York and Detroit began following the train of evidence which led to the victim's identification as Mrs. Katharine Lou Jackson of Sturgis, Miss., and the location of A. A. Tatum, whose name and a Detroit street address were found marked on the trunk which concealed the crime for more than a month.

At 105 Harper street, Detroit, Tatum was unknown but someone there told detectives that a young couple known as Mr. and Mrs. E. Leroy had disappeared from that address about
