TWO RUNS, NO FIRES. 6

The fire department responded to two false alarms Saturday. One came along in the morning when someone noticed smoke coming from a mattress thrown from the Cline Wilson rooming house on Hodges street...

The second call came shortly after 12 o'clock last night, when someone phoned in that fire had again broken out in the sheet-iron building on Pecan, near Hunt, which burned earlier in the week.

ST. LOUIS, March 12.—The traveling public has been struck by the wave of economy overshadowing the country, according to ushers at Union station here, whose only wages are "tips" received for carrying baggage.

The daily income of the ushers has been reduced from about $5 to $2 a day as the result of the "carry your own baggage" policy of travelers, it was said.

WEST TEXAS A. & M. BILL REJUVENATED AND PASSED AFTER WILD SCURRY TO ROUND UP ABSENTEE MEMBERS AND MAKE A QUORUM

AUSTIN, March 12.—The last day of the regular session of the Thirty-seventh legislature was featured by reviving an almost dead bill, instilling a little life into it and then passing it finally, to be sent to the governor for final action. The measure that was so expeditiously handled was the West Texas A. & M. bill, which had received a terrible jolt yesterday when the house refused to adopt the free conference report submitted by the committee.

When the free conference report was submitted yesterday it was rejected by a close vote. Shortly before noon today Representative Burns moved that the house reconsider the vote by which the report was rejected. In order that she may attend the Boston High school, a special dispensation has been granted to Princess Mahidol Songkla, wife of Prince Songkla, half brother of the King of Siam.

The motion that the report be adopted was the occasion for the objection that the house was lacking a quorum. The proponents of the bill then busied themselves by rushing pages around the capitol for absent members.

The speaker informed him that the resignation must go to the governor and he was out of order. One member joking suggested that it be accepted. The roundup of absent members continued and finally a quorum was obtained and the report adopted by a vote of 57 to 33, with four paired votes, which show ninety-eight members present.

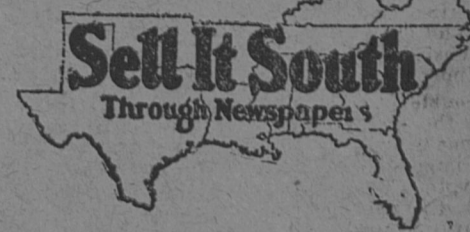

The roundup of absent members continued and finally a quorum was obtained and the report adopted by a vote of 57 to 33, with four paired votes, which show ninety-eight members present. Representative Hendrix of Ellis saved the day for the A. & M. bill. He is a student in the University of Texas, and having a class in the morning rushed down to the house immediately after attending class.

PSYCHOLOGY PLAYS PART IN CHANGING OF PARAMOUNT'S STAIRWAY

The stairway at the Paramount hotel is being changed so that it will be facing the clerk's desk instead of the front door, as is now the case. There is a reason for this, according to the clerk at the hotel. His idea is that no man has the heart to walk out of the place without paying his bill if he comes down face first, but if his back is to the man who takes the cash, he can walk away with a clear conscience, apparently.

The Paramount also expects to install an electric stairway soon. The kind where the customer climbs aboard and it whisks him to the third floor if that is where he wants to go, without further exertion.

GUILLOTINE STILL FLASHES, HEADS STILL FALL IN GERMANY

BERLIN, March 12.—A grim reminder of the fact that the guillotine still is used in Germany for the infliction of the death penalty is given in the sentencing of Engelsbert Mann to die by that instrument for the murder of Edward Goeling, an American soldier. Mann killed the American in order to rob him, and was sentenced to death by the German court.

Execution, once carried out in the market places before the populace, are now attended by the prosecuting attorney, the judges before whom the case has been tried, sometimes the jury, and those invited by the executioner. The executioner is called the Henker and is appointed by the state and paid for each head he cuts off.

DENBY MAKES PLAIN HIS BIG NAVY VIEWS

WASHINGTON, March 12.—"I favor an American navy equal to the greatest in the world, and not only ready but fit to meet any emergency anywhere."

In these words Secretary of the Navy Denby again emphasized the fact that he is for a big and adequate naval establishment. "So far as I am personally concerned," he continued, "the question of an adequate navy for this country is beyond argument. It is axiomatic. The British navy is used as a unit of comparison only because it is so much larger than any other navy."

JONES was very unfortunate in the choice of his topic the night that he talked in his sleep. His wife was wide awake while he raved about "Ida darling," "Louise lovely," "Bessie love," "Blanche sweet" or "Arline pretty."

The only juvenile dereliction, prank, crime, misdemeanor or felony that has not been charged to "the movies" is robbing birds' nests.

any other fleet but must protect the coasts of the nation. "The American people got one lesson in lack of preparedness during the war with Spain. We sent out twenty-four transports loaded with troops and the entire nation was on its knees in prayer that a blow would not fall. We had to get steamers wherever we could. Ships flying neutral flags could not be used. A good wind probably would have sunk half those we finally secured, but Providence was on our side."

At the outbreak of the world war and when the United States entered it we got another lesson in lack of preparedness which the people certainly cannot have forgotten. We must be prepared for any future emergency that may arise.

"Of course we are dependent upon congress, and if it should give us only three screws we would try to make them the best screws in the world."

In reply to questions regarding the suggested amalgamation of the navy and war departments, Secretary Denby said that was a matter for the future and that it was still somewhat vague. He said legislation by congress would be necessary to make so important a change.

The speech made by Mr. Denby at the meeting of the navy league has aroused much interest among all congressmen who favor suspension of constructing capital ships until their future value can be determined by experiment and investigation. No disposition is manifested to discuss the Denby viewpoint until he puts his recommendations into formal shape and presents them to congress.

POLES FEAR TROUBLE WHEN EMIGRANTS VOTE IN SILESIA

Dangers Seen in Plebiscite on March 20 if Carried Out on Allied Plan.

WARSAW, March 12.—The Upper Silesian plebiscite will take place on Sunday, March 20. Emigrants will vote on the same day as the inhabitants. Such is the decision of the supreme council, according to official advice received by the Polish government.

The decision of the supreme council to allow the emigrants (nearly all of whom will come from Germany) to vote on the same day as the inhabitants of Upper Silesia is contrary to the preliminary promises made by the supreme council, and is wholly in conflict with the desires of the Polish population of Upper Silesia.

Poles Fear Trouble. The Poles fear that the influx of great numbers of Germans into Upper Silesia will make impossible the holding of an orderly vote. There is no end of proof that the German plans include a military demonstration during the plebiscite, the arms and munitions having been stored ready for the arrival of the so-called "emigrants."

Commissioner Korfanty, the Polish leader in the plebiscite region, has issued an appeal to the people of Upper Silesia to remain calm on the day of the plebiscite. The report of the commissioner "confirms with regret" that the supreme council, "contrary to promises already given and without reasonable motive, has decided on the simultaneous voting of the inhabitants and the emigrants. Nothing has happened in Upper Silesia to justify a change in the attitude already taken and the annulment of the promises given. On the contrary, the numerous transports of entire carloads of arms and munitions sent by the Germans to Upper Silesia emphasize the justice of the Polish contention that the emigrants should not vote on the same day as the inhabitants."

Workmen Protest Decision. Polish workmen's syndicates, representing 400,000 workers in Upper Silesia, have voted to submit to the inter-allied commission in Opole a protest against the simultaneous voting of emigrants and inhabitants. Leaders of the workmen's organizations point out that they succeeded in dissuading the population from excesses solely by assuring them that the emigrants would vote on a separate day. "The population," says the workmen's report, "is now indignant that we have been deprived of the authority by which we could maintain order. Our population is hurt that the supreme council should treat it like some savage tribe" to which contradictory decisions are continually announced. We cannot close our eyes to the danger of armed emigrants bringing disorder at the moment of the plebiscite and rendering it impossible. We therefore submit a demand for a revision of this latest decision of the supreme council, and the restitution of the state of affairs as created by our delegates, otherwise we must throw all responsibility for disturbances that may arise on those whose policy has created the present situation."

Diet and Press Disapprove. The news that the supreme council had decided on the joint voting of the emigrants and the inhabitants was received in Warsaw just at the close of a session of the diet at which a resolution had been passed denouncing efforts to bring about the voting of the emigrants on the same day as the inhabitants and caused general consternation among the legislators and in the press.

This concern is enhanced by the recent revelations of Maximilian Herden concerning the German military plans in Upper Silesia and by the daily discoveries of depots and munitions established by the Germans throughout the plebiscite area. The granting of the German request that the emigrants be allowed to vote at the same time as the inhabitants permits the German government to carry out its plans of sending into the disputed region great numbers of armed voters for the purpose of hampering the free expression of the popular will, and consequently the Poles fear there will be serious disturbances which could have been avoided by holding separate voting days.

YEO-HEAVE-HO!
It was a gallant farmer lad
Enlisted in the navy.
"Give me," said he, "the deep blue sea,
The ocean-wide and wavy!"
A sailor's uniform he'd don,
And never would he doff it.
He packed his grip, and soon was on His way to Captain Moffett.
In cap of white and coat of blue,
He labored for the nation,
A member of the salty crew
That worked the Naval Station.
He soon became the best of tars,
A seaman more than able,
By sweeping streets, and driving cars,
And waiting on the table.
He guarded gates, and shoveled snow,
And worked upon the highway.
"All lads," said he, "should plough
The sea,
And would if I had my way."
Week-end he took a trolley car,
And to the city hied him,
Alongside of another tar
Who offered for to guide him.
The train rolled o'er a trestle high,
The river ran below him.
"Well, I'll be blamed!" our tar exclaimed,
And grabbed his pal to show him.
"Yes, dash my weeping eyes!" he cried.
"That's water, even he—
The first blue water I have spied
Since joining of the navy!"
Now, "landsmen all," the moral's plain:
Our navy still is arming,
And if you'd plough the well-known main,
You'd best begin by farming.
If you would head a tossing prow

Among our navigators,
Get up at morn and milk the cow,
And yeo-heave-ho the taters.
Get up your chores, and do 'em brown,
And learn to drive a flivver;
And some day when you go to town,
You'll see the raging river.
POLICE CHIEF NABS BANDIT IN WILD APACHE DANCE
PARIS, March 12.—Armand Levenque, new bad man of Paris and known in apache circles as "Bamboula," has just been arrested through the clever work of Brigadier Pescadere, of the French police.
A few nights ago Pescadere received word that Levenque was in a dance hall with one of his numerous girl admirers. The brigadier changed to civilian attire, entered the hall and swung out with a girl on his arm to the "Java," the wild apache waltz. The crowd was so dense that the "bad man" did not see him. Pescadere danced along behind "Bamboula" and before the latter swung about pinioned him to the floor and handcuffed him.
WILL ELECT MANAGER
STAMFORD, Texas, March 12.—The first meeting of the officers and executive board of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, elected at the Ranger convention will meet in Abilene in the Chamber of Commerce hall, March 14. At this meeting a manager for the year will be elected, and recommendations received as to staff positions.

It is expected that practically a full representation of the board will attend this meeting.

DEFICIT OF 42,000,000,000 CROWNS FACED BY AUSTRIA

VIENNA, March 12.—The financial plight of Austria is indicated in the supplementary budget brought in by the minister of finance, estimating the deficit for the current fiscal year at 42,000,000,000 crowns. This is nearly double the figure given by his predecessor in the autumn, and even now does not take into consideration certain factors such as new demands on the part of the federal civil servants and, that just made by the provinces, that the federal government shall increase their appropriation threefold and bear one-half of the salaries of provincial civil servants, including school teachers.
It is reported that the money presses are now turning out paper crowns at the rate of 3,000,000,000 a month for Austria alone, the government apparently having adopted this as the expedient way of meeting the never-ending demands of its own servants, the workmen and of all classes of people for increased pay to enable them to meet the equally never-ending increase in cost of living.
The Austrian crown no longer has any value outside the country," said a member of the government to the correspondent today, "and soon will have none within." As a matter of fact, money is the cheapest thing in the country. No one attaches any value to it and the result is a general effort to convert the currency into foreign values or something of intrinsic value.
This has created a mad market for dollars, pounds sterling and other stable money, causing fluctuations of as much as 200 crowns to the dollar within a period of one week. The same condition is reflected in the stock market, while precious stones, jewelry, works of art, fine rugs and similar articles find ready sale at fair values. It is said the banks are financing art dealers who are scouring the country for pictures and selling them outside for foreign values, the money being left there in the shape of credits against a collapse here, or brought in for further speculation on the money exchange.

The division centrale, that department of the government officially in control of foreign exchange, is openly charged by critics in the Vienna press with having made enormous profits by manipulating the exchange rate.
A committee of fifteen representative men has been appointed to effect economies in government but public opinion as expressed in the newspapers has little faith in its accomplishing anything of real effect, inasmuch as the chief item of expense, the civil lists of about 14,000,000,000 crowns, seemingly cannot be reduced.
(This item has since been increased, as the Austrian government on Feb. 19 granted bonuses of 4,400 a month to its civil employes in response to their demands.)
All parties admit the size of the government machine is absurd for so small a country, but no one knows how to reduce it. Thousands of civil servants, many aged and all untrained in productive work, cannot be thrown on the country. It is stated that the civil servants and their dependents represent one-fifth of the population.

RIDING ON THE RIM.

A scenic roadway, 101 miles in length, runs westward from Los Angeles along the mountainous northern margin of the Santa Anita valley overlooking Ontario, Etiwanda, San Bernardino and Redlands. It runs up and down and in and out with many interesting glimpses into side canyons, with pictures of Old Baldy and other peaks looming here and there, but mainly the interest turns to the southward views out across the valley with its farms, orange groves and village.

The Camino Real along the California coast is a scenic highway in a somewhat different sense. Without endeavoring to exhibit some stunt of landscape spectacle at every turn of the road there is in fact much pleasing scenery for the traveler's enjoyment. The unique interest here lies in the ancient Spanish missions lying in various stages of picturesque decay along the route. These missions were originally connected by trails or roads and in the day of their Spanish glory the ambitious project for El Camino Real, or the King's Highway to tie them all together was realized in part.

This is in fact the tourist's highway—not the king's—but the tourist likes to fatten his fancy on the poetry and high adventure of the padres and conquistadores who once dreamed of building here a stronghold for the church, an empire for Spain and a Highway for the King.
On El Camino Real one's imagination burns with history, poetry, romance, and these impressions blend and fuse inextricably with the glory of the physical landscape, the inspiring view across the valley; the unbroken look to the mountains, the blue of the sky, an dthe warmth of the afternoon sun.—in MoToR for March.

MEXICO SEEKS TO CONTROL HOLDINGS OF CATHOLICS

MEXICO CITY, March 12.—Representatives of the Mexican government have brought suits in the states of Oaxaca, Michoacan and Jalisco, to bring under federal control church property which is alleged to belong to the Catholic clergy in violation of the Mexican constitution. Under the constitution the Catholic clergy are not allowed to own or administer church property.
It is alleged that the property owned by the Catholic clergy has been placed in the hands of lay societies which, in reality, are acting for the clergy. It is said that numerous other similar actions are contemplated to divert these alleged societies of property, the value of which is estimated in millions of pesos.

The actions just brought are based on the precedent set by the Mexican supreme court in its decision in January last in the case against the Society of Piety whose holdings in the state of Puebla valued at more than 20,000,000 pesos was ordered to be returned to the Mexican government. The supreme court in that case ruled that the Society of Piety was controlled by the Catholic clergy.

It says such a union would end the activities of the group headed by former Premier Maura, many of whose followers would join the Cierva group.

STYLE OF COVERING EARS TRACED BACK TO INCAS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—Ancient Peruvian women, like the women of today, covered their ears and wore pompadours, said Associate Curator Faye, in a lecture on "Skull Fashions of Peru" today at the University of California Museum of Anthropology.
Highly interesting skulls have been found in a collection of south American antiquities, which, through the liberality of the late Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, were added to the museum collection. A number of skulls have the hair and skin adhering to them.

MAJESTIC—Sunday, Monday and Tuesday—Five acts of Loew's vaudeville and picture, "The Chosen Path," featuring Margaret Leslie and Donald Hall.

TEMPLE

The George M. Cohan comedy-drama with musical trimmings, "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," which brings Charles Ray before his screen admirers as the producer of his own photographs, under the management of Arthur S. Kane, will be the feature picture at the Temple theatre today, Monday and Tuesday. It permits the impersonator of a long line of rustic heroes to show what he can do with a wise guy from lower Manhattan, a quick-action, gib-tongued prize fighter whose natural instinct for keeping on the level makes him firm friends in the story and wins him the hearty approval of the audience.

In the original play, Kid Burns, the role played by Charles Ray, had to divide popularity with several of the other characters, and a set of catny musical numbers provided by the talented Mr. Cohan. In the screen version, Charles has things pretty much to himself and very few of his admirers will find any cause for a quarrel on this score. The part might have been written for him, so completely does he make it his own, and Kid is among his best impersonations.

The plot of "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway" is not startlingly original or overburdened with incidents, but it is clean, easy of comprehension and its humor is superior to its dramatic moments. The love interest is fragrant and unbacked and is delightfully played by the star and his leading support, Dorothy Devore, late of the Christie comedies.

Briefly the story tells the experiences of a prize fighter, Kid Burns, when he is called to New York as a sort of companion for a friend of his who has suddenly fallen heir to a large fortune. He is at first mistaken as the heir himself and joyously received. That is no sooner straightened out until he falls in love with his friend's housekeeper and together they have some rather interesting experiences.

MAJESTIC

Those prolific young producers, Cantor and Yates, are again responsible for one of the new acts of vaudeville, and the headliner at the Majestic the first half of the coming week, and for one reason as well as another, for it is not by another name would be just as sweet, they called it "Cantor's Minstrels." Their offering is a modernized minstrel first part, with just the men in cork. Dressed in shiny satins, against the same sort of backgrounds with pretty dainty, jazzy maidens, the pick of Broadway the act is one of the recent acquisitions to the Loew circuit. Carl Nixon, formerly with musical comedy productions, is the ringleader of the funmakers.

Anna Marston and Monocle Manley, in a satirical skit called "Do You Follow Me?" by Charles H. Smith, will be an added feature of the bill. Manley is the eccentric Englishman of the funny school whose clever witticisms and twisted idioms are always a cue for a good laugh.

McKee and Day, two rays of sunshine, in a kaleidoscopic revue of styles, clothes and popular songs, the Braminos, pantomimists and musical clowns, and Horri and Nagami, two sons from the land of sun and rice, in novelty juggling and balancing feats will complete the bill.

NURSES FIND SERVICES ARE WIDELY NEEDED

Special to the Times.

AUSTIN, March 12.—In an outline of what the nursing profession means and offers, the Nurses Training school of the medical department of the University of Texas, says that the political situation throughout the world is creating new demands in that field and is bringing, with the widening of the duties of nurses, an increased recognition of the profession. The Nurses' Training school is attached to the John Sealy hospital at Galveston. It is said to be splendidly equipped for the training of young women in that profession.

Continuing the statement which the school has just issued, says: "There is a constant demand for nurses for our public schools; the Red Cross in its many and extensive forms of activity constantly needs new recruits; the army and navy offers a direct form of patriotic service; the United States public health service calls for nurses; great industries ask for trained women for their first aid and welfare departments. The demand for women to occupy positions as training school superintendents and instructors is greatly on the increase. The foreign field is calling—Russia, Serbia, China, as well as France and India."

The many advantages of the nursing profession are pointed out. It is stated that salaries may range from $1,200 to $5,000 a year with maintenance.

CONGRESSMAN LANHAM NOW RESIDENT OF "TEXAS ROW"

Special to the Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Congressman Fritz G. Lanham of Fort Worth, has moved to "Texas Row," the south corridor of the third floor of the house office building. He formerly had offices on the first floor. Other Texas congressmen on "Texas Row" are Congressman John N. Garner of Uvalde, Tom Connally of Marlin, and J. P. Buchanan of Brenham. James Young, who has just retired, also had offices on the "row."

BUFFALO GAP, OPULENT IN BEAUTIES OF NATURE, PLANS CREATION OF HEALTH RESORT

BY W. HAMILTON WRIGHT, Times Staff Correspondent.
ABILENE, March 12.—A mass meeting of the citizens of Buffalo Gap will be addressed Tuesday night by Mayor Dallas Scarborough of Abilene and B. F. Bennett, district manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, on the creation of a health and pleasure resort in the mountain town and efforts will be made to start a publicity campaign in furtherance of the plan.

Buffalo Gap, one of the oldest towns west of Fort Worth, is probably the most beautiful spot in all the West. Situated between two picturesque mountain ranges near the 15,000,000-gallon lake that Abilene is finishing for its water supply, Buffalo Gap is ideally located for fishing, boating and "picture making." The little valley is thickly set with immense liveoaks and pretty little residences. It is the nearest railroad point to the great lake.

The town has been selected a number of times by motion picture operators as the ideal place for the location of a large studio. The "color" obtainable here is said to out rival anything found in the studio settings in California. There are not only sand for desert "scenes," but the great lake for "ocean scenes," the mountains for "wild west" stunts, the Santa Fe railroad crawling through the high hills and densely wooded cedarlands admirable for "holdup" scenes. Already, it is said, efforts toward the establishment of a studio have been made.

In the early days of the West, Buffalo Gap boasted probably the largest Presbyterian college in the state. It also had many saloons and gambling houses and was the relay station for many cowboys. It was through the gap where this place is situated that thousands of buffalo years ago passed through the tall Texas mountains. Now, it is the purpose of Abilene and Buffalo Gap people to build a health and pleasure resort here, stimulating the building of pretty summer homes among its giant liveoaks. It offers a rare place for fishing and boating. The Santa Fe railroad runs through the town.

ROOSEVELT PICTURES BEING DISTRIBUTED BY DEFENSE SOCIETY

NEW YORK, March 12.—Theodore Roosevelt's portrait, bearing his last message to the American people, is being widely distributed throughout the United States by the American Defense Society. An announcement is made today by the society that upwards of fifty thousand pictures have been already distributed to the public and high schools of the country, and that orders are now on hand for approximately 30,000 more.

The portrait is life-size and handsomely engraved. The only condition which the society makes in giving the pictures to the schools is that it be framed by general contribution of the pupils, and hung with appropriate ceremonies. A special program for the hanging of the picture is sent to each school, and the principals in hundreds of cases have reported to the society that the pupils have been greatly benefited by the work incident to the ceremony, the writing of essays, and the recitation of the sterling qualities of our "greatest American."

ABILENE'S BIG LAKE IS SLOWLY FILLING

Special to the Times.
ABILENE, March 12.—The valve at the 15,000,000-gallon lake of the municipality in the Buffalo Gap mountains has been closed and the mammoth lake is slowly filling from the spring water at the source of Elm Fork of the Brazos. The city has accepted the completed part of the dam up to the twenty-seven foot normal, the pipeline connecting city and lake, a distance of approximately nineteen miles has not yet been laid, but in case the present source of supply should be consumed the valve to the new million dollar lake can be opened.

HARD-BOILED RELATIVES.

To the People of Neola and Surrounding Community: We wish to state that the pleasant surprise that appeared in these columns last week of the marriage of our daughter, was a heart-breaking surprise to us. It was one of the most sneaking, dirty, undermining, well-planned tricks that a smooth-tongued, hard-hearted bunch of relations could plan and carry out. They all knew that we had forbidden, on account of bulldozing and unmanly ways, the permission of the company of our daughter; also the right of trespassing on our premises, this scrupulous young man. They planned this trick, called, asked our consent for her to go to Omaha to eat New Year's dinner with the family of the above clique. While we were waiting the return of our daughter the tongues and telephone wire were spreading the event of their great joy (as they called it).

Able-bodied man of strong will power wanted to take care of large, savage lion; must be fond of animals and a good runner. Apply T. R. Dann, Critterian theatre—Washington Star.

LAREDO FINDS MEXICANS LIKE LIFE IN THE U.S.

LAREDO, March 12.—Despite the reports of deplorable conditions among the Mexican laborers returning from the north to other border points, those reaching Laredo, with the exception of not more than one in a thousand, are prosperous, well clothed and well fed, and all unite in declaring that after a visit to their homes they are coming back to this country in the spring.

Thousands of Mexicans have passed through Laredo en route to their homes in the past few months. Just before Christmas the rush was the greatest, more than 500 a day passing through for more than two weeks, and one day the passports issued and used here were in excess of 800.

These people were of all classes of laborers. Some had forked Texas and other southern farms, earning large wages as cotton pickers; others had worked on the railroads of the East from Pennsylvania as far south as Georgia; some had worked in sawmills and a few came from Marysville, Tenn., where they were employed by a large aluminum factory.

All had money in their pockets, more than enough to pay their fares home; all were comfortably dressed, some wearing their overalls while bearing shiny new suitcases filled with their "Sunday best." Their women and children accompanied them, although in some cases the men were apparently young bachelors. They were sleek and fat, with a full-fed look, and while here they ate at the Mexican restaurants, frankly glad to get where their own sort of food was served, while the children were supplied with fruit or candy, and all were contented.

The only poorly dressed, plainly indigent persons who have passed through this port come from Mexico, where they were without employment and penniless. Despite the reports industriously circulated to the effect that there was no work in the United States they came over, some of them evading the guards by wading the river, and applied to the Mexican consulate for aid in getting work.

Most of this class have been returned to their own country, although a few found temporary employment and took the keen edge off their hunger. The Associated Charities here has rarely had to aid a Mexican coming from the interior of the United States, but the appeals for help from those who have just come from Mexico are daily occurrences.

The spring work will soon begin in Texas and a few weeks later in other parts of the South. Already a few laborers who have worked here are coming back, having enjoyed a trip home, spent most of their money and had a good vacation.

Those who pass through here declare that they found plenty of work, were well paid and well treated, and that they intend to go back and work as soon as the work is ready.

They were not misled by stories of work and high wages in the great industrial centers. The average Mexican laborer would be out of place in such cities as Detroit or Chicago. They want outdoor work, with a chance to locate in a little "shack," which they can feel is their own as long as they occupy it; too cook their food in their own way and to seek their own amusement when the day's work is ended.

Whatever the experiences of the Mexicans passing through other ports, it is evident that those who pass through this "Gateway to Mexico" are not asking government aid, but are well able to pay their own way home and then back to work again.

BREVITY.

(DeLeon Free Press.)
The instructor in story writing, drilling his class in selecting and compression of details, illustrated his lecture with this story:
Two Maine farmers, who were noted for their brevity of speech, met one morning on the village road. They both drew the rein.
"Mornin', Zeb."
"Mornin', Hank."
"What did you give your horse when he was sick?"
"Tup'ntine."
"Tup'ntine?"
"Yep."
"Get-ap."
"That was all."
Next morning they met again.
"Mornin', Zeb."
"Mornin', Hank."
"What did you say you gave yer horse when he was sick?"
"Tup'ntine."
"Tup'ntine?"
"Yep."
"Killed mine."
"Get-ap."
"Get-ap."

'KING'S PARTY' MOVE IN LAND ONCE RULED BY KAISER GETS SCANT SUPPORT FROM PEOPLE

BERLIN, March 12.—The King's party in Germany, which is seeking the restoration of the monarchy, has failed to arouse any enthusiasm either for the proposal to put a Hohenzollern again in power or for the enthronement of a Bavarian or Wuerttemberg prince.

Opinion seems to prevail that the revolution against the old regime brought on by the debacle of war cannot be wiped out in less than several generations. Even the men who stood close to royalty before and during the war, with the exception of certain militarists whose prestige and influence mostly has vanished, are only lukewarm toward the monarchist movement or flatly oppose it.

There is, however, no apparent inclination to blame the former emperor or crown prince for the damages Germany has endured, except among the extreme radicals and some of the socialists, and these generally lay the fault to the old form of government more than to the emperor personally, or to his associates.

Everywhere in the provinces, throughout Bavaria, Baden, Wuerttemberg, East Prussia, Upper Silesia, among business men and peasants alike, the opinion is firmly held that Germany was forced into the war by England and France, and this has tended to keep alive the Hohenzollern popularity.

A prominent Bavarian manufacturer told the correspondent the "Bavarians will always believe the war was forced on Germany." Business men in Baden, property owners of Upper Silesia, officials and farmers of East Prussia with whom the correspondent spoke, corroborated the prevalence of this feeling that Germany was not responsible for the war.

"Regardless of this belief, however, the Germans are not ready to restore a monarchy," said a man who was closely associated with the emperor during the war. "Perhaps in forty or fifty years—yes, then it will almost certainly be re-established. You say you have heard the opinion that Germany will have a monarchy within 19 years, but I believe that is not possible. Not before at least two generations have passed will the people be ready for a king again, and then never for a monarch with great power. It will be a limited monarchy, and very limited. Agitation now is untimely, and useless."

Those who favor the restoration of the monarchy, and those who believe it will be restored but do not favor it, say the present government "is too weak and there is no responsible head who can unify Germany as it was before the war." The people, who were long accustomed to royalty, "need a directing social head if not a powerful monarch," it is argued, and such a ruling house would not destroy the principle of democracy which has been grounded since the war.

Rivalry and jealousy, which have always existed between the states and particularly between Bavaria and Prussia, will not prevent the restoration of the monarchy after a number of years, said a prominent Bavarian, although in his opinion the former emperor or crown prince "is out of the question."

"We cannot have a government torn forever by political dissensions and misappreciation," he continued. "We do not like Prussia and Prussia is not over one of us, and East Prussia generally is understood to just tolerate Berlin, but we all realize the necessity of standing together. We have the factories here, the agriculture in East Prussia, and Prussia has the railroads. Our interests are so closely allied there can never be any successful separation. In my opinion a monarchy is the logical solution of our political situation, but not a monarchy established at the behest of Prussia."

He added that the next monarch must be from the Bavarian or Wuerttemberg royalty, which always had been popular with the mass of the German people.

NEW SUIT FOR INDIAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 12.—Fig Tree John, an aged Indian hunter who guided Fremont and his men through the labyrinth of western mountains on his expedition to the Pacific coast, is receiving a new suit from the government as a reward for his services.

The histories say of Fremont that in 1844 he forced a passage in the winter through the snow covered mountains of California, reaching Sacramento in March, 1845, with his men reduced to skeletons.

It was through these snow covered mountains that Fig Tree John guided the daring explorer.

The Indian guide was asked what reward he would have for his services and admiring the blue suits with brass buttons worn by the Americans, he said he would like to have a blue suit.

Granting his wish a suit was given him while arrangements were made that every five years as long as Fig Tree John should live, he would be given a new suit with brass buttons, just like the suits worn by Fremont and his men.

Fig Tree John is now an old, old Indian. His eyes have grown dim, and his face is wrinkled deeply, yet he walks with majestic bearing. The days of his hunting are over, yet he goes down the trail confidently, wearing the insignia of his service, a blue army uniform with brass buttons.

And this month again Fig Tree John's uniform is bright and new.

KANSAS TESTS COURT'S POWER AS TO STRIKES

TOPEKA, Kan., March 12.—Constitutionality of the law creating the Kansas court of industrial relations involving the vital question of whether the tribunal has power to punish strikers is now before the Kansas Supreme court for decision. Hearing is set for the May term.

The case is an appeal by the state from the ruling of Judge William H. McCamish of the Wyandotte county district court in freeing Jerry Scott, a Rock Island railroad switch man, on the charge of conspiring to induce other employees to strike in violation of the industrial court act. Several other similar cases, arising from the switchman's strike in April, 1920, have been appealed to the state supreme court, but the Scott case is the first to be reviewed.

Judge McCamish held that section seventeen of the industrial court act violates the state constitution in that it is not clearly expressed in the title of the act. This section of the law makes it felony to quit work in specified industries invested with a public interest, for the purpose of hindering production or transportation. Judge McCamish's decision should be upheld, the penalty clause of the act, which has received much criticism from organized labor, would be invalid.

It at first appeared that the cases would be argued on the mere technicality of the alleged defect in the title of the act. Attorneys for the defendants, in filing their motion in the lower court to quash the information, however, attacked the constitutionality of the industrial court law in several respects. Although Judge McCamish based his opinion on only one of these reasons, the defense will argue the merits of the case on all of the constitutional grounds advanced, contending that if the higher court should overrule Judge McCamish in the one particular, the motion to quash should be sustained for the other reasons.

The defense in the Scott case maintains that any employee has the fundamental right to strike which can not be abridged by statute.

The essence of the state's reply to his argument is that there is the common law right to strike which has been modified by court decisions in the United States to apply only to cases where the strike is for a legitimate purpose, such as to obtain a just wage or reasonable working conditions. This right, however, is not a constitutional right and can be changed by statute, under the police powers of the state to care for the public welfare, the state argues.

BABY REQUIRES ABOUT SAME HEALTH RULES AS DO AUTOMOBILES

AUSTIN, March 12.—Dr. Manton M. Carriek, state health officer, in a recent interview, contended that the care of a baby and the care of an automobile were similar. In a substantiating his views, Dr. Carriek put forth the following argument:

"Many a mother can get pointers in the care of her baby by observing the way owners take care of their automobiles. Babies and automobiles have several things in common. The careful owner understands the mechanism and the inner workings of his car. How many mothers are familiar with the anatomy of their babies and how many study a booklet on the baby care? The automobilist knows how to feed his car and that it will not run well if the mixture is too rich or too lean or if there is not the correct amount of air. The amateur mother makes many mistakes in feeding her baby and she generally gives too much food and too rich a mixture or too little food and too lean a mixture and at irregular intervals.

"Automobiles are water-cooled. They must have plenty of water especially on hot days. If the radiator is covered up there is no chance for the air to circulate and the engine gets overheated. Babies require similar care and mothers should see that they receive plenty of cool boiled water in summer and that they are not overdressed. Automobiles, to run smoothly, must have clean cylinders. Their insides must be kept clean and free from carbon and should have plenty of oil. The baby's cylinder or intestines must never get clogged up and oil assists in the cleansing process.

"The owner of the automobile takes pride in the appearance, sees that it receives a daily bath and is well polished and brushed. The fond mother should take even greater pride in the cleanliness and appearance of her child. If the owner can not care for or drive his car himself, he employs a trained and experienced chauffeur and would not think of entrusting the car to an inexperienced person. Alas, and not infrequently to the permanent injury of their children, many mothers entrust the care of their babies to ignorant, inexperienced and careless or diseased nurse girls.

"The mechanism of the body is far more delicate than that of any automobile. Progressive and successful automobile owners have careful inspection of their cars made every month. It is more expensive to wait until something goes wrong. Repairs are avoided if the machine is regularly inspected. Why not follow this example with your baby? Take him regularly to an experienced physician. A timely word of advice or caution will often prevent trouble which would be discovered later by said experience. The Texas state board of health wants to give you advice and help and a request will bring a booklet entitled, 'The Care of the Babies.'

PHILANTHROPIST DOESN'T GIVE, BUT TAKES

NORTH BALTIMORE, O., March 12.—Folks, meet a new kind of philanthropist. He is Henry Archer, janitor at the South school building here.

—Down in the basement of the schoolhouse, the janitor's "home," stands an old barber chair. Quite a few poor children attend school, and some are unable to give the forty cents asked for a haircut.

Archer used to ply the barber trade himself and he cuts the children's hair when he isn't shoveling coal into the big furnaces that heat the class rooms. He doesn't charge them a cent for his work.

FOUR ROUTES OFFERED.

DEL RIO, March 12.—Reports received by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce indicate that four routes have been offered to the Frisco railway for an extension from Menard to the border; one via Ft. McKavitt to Sonora and over the Orient dump to Del Rio, one to Junction, Camp Wood, Uvalde and Crystal City into Eagle Pass. This last route would mean the purchase of forty miles of new road of the Uvalde and Northern and forty-two miles of the "Sausage."

Anyone of these routes would open up a country that would permit rapid development and the towns are awake to the possibilities.

MANY NEW USES ARE FOUND FOR GRAPEFRUIT

As the people of the United States become better acquainted with the Sealdsweet grapefruit supplied to them by the groves of sunny Florida, a multitude of uses for them are being discovered.

Scientific investigations have disclosed the fact that the vitamins now known to be such an essential element of food are furnished in maximum quantities by the citrus fruits and especially by grapefruit.

Housekeepers who have tried the use of grapefruit juice as a substitute for milk in making biscuits report very satisfactory results. The same quantity of the juice as of milk and the same amount of soda as if milk were used are prescribed by the recipe.

A Florida journal quotes a successful physician as stating that after five years of study and experiment he has satisfied himself that grapefruit juice properly used will retard the hardening of the arteries that makes men and women old before their time. This doctor is reported as engaged in the preparation of an article reciting his findings, for publication in an ethical medical magazine.

Three things of outstanding significance appear to be settled facts in regard to grapefruit; first, that the food and health values are contained in the juice; second, that the relative quantity of juice is indicated by weight—the heavier the fruit, the more juicy; third, that the bigger grapefruit marketed in the spring are the better ones, because they are juicier, sweeter and fully ripened.

Many persons have found that a glass of grapefruit juice immediately after a meal relieves the uncomfortable feeling which so often comes to those who dine too well. One woman became so enthusiastic over the satisfaction afforded by grapefruit juice as a remedy for the efforts of overeating that she passed the word along to her friends in rhyme after this fashion:

"When your eyes have proved lots bigger than your tummy,
And you've dined a bit unwisely and too well—
When your throat begins to burn and your head begins to turn
And you wish all cafes and buffets were in h—hades—
Take a glass of grapefruit juice all clear and sparkling,

Quaff it off, and presto! you will find
That your heavy heart grows light
And your dimming eyes grow bright
And you're nothing but your hat up on your mind."

"MIKE DE PIKE" AND FIVE OTHERS FOUND GUILTY

CHICAGO, March 12.—"Mike de Pike" Heller and five others were found guilty by a jury in federal court here today of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in a $200,000 whisky deal. Six defendants were freed.

The jury was out twenty-four hours. Originally thirty-two were indicted in connection with the conspiracy but all except six were cleared of the charges. The trial was regarded by prohibition enforcement agents as the most important under the Volstead act.

Practically the entire jury was made up of farmers. Government attorneys interpreted their verdict as indicative of strong farmer support of strict enforcement of the prohibition laws.

DIE IN HUNGARY MUTINY; 31 SOLDIERS EXECUTED

VIENNA, March 12.—Mutiny among members of the Hungarian garrison at Rash, resulting in the killing of two officers and the execution of thirty-one mutineers, is reported.

The trouble is said to have started when flogging of several soldiers was ordered by Baron Rivas and Count Vay. Other soldiers protested against the flogging and shot two officers who had drawn their revolvers.

SAYS PRICES OF DIAMONDS WILL NEVER BE CHEAPER

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—Diamonds, according to the statement of Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, representing diamond syndicates in Africa, will never be cheaper. Sir Ernest Oppenheimer is now touring the country, and stopped here for a few days.

The diamond mines of Africa furnish over 70 per cent of the diamonds bought in the United States, and because of the high cost of labor and the poorness of the mines the price of diamonds will stay at its present level.

He claims that some dealers are selling diamonds cheaper because they are overstocked, but when they will have to replenish their stock they will pay a much higher price.

FIRST REGIMENT TEXAS INFANTRY HISTORIC OUTFIT, IS 137 YEARS OLD

By Associated Press
SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—Organized soon after the American revolution, the First Regiment of Infantry, now stationed at Camp Travis as part of the Second Division, is planning to celebrate its 137th anniversary. It was organized on June 3, 1784. The regiment fought in the first battle of the war of 1812 and of the Spanish-American war. While its coat of arms shows service in the war of 1812, Mexican war, Civil war, Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection and in the Miami, Black Hawk and Florida Indian wars as well as many other minor Indian troubles.

Following the organization in 1784, the regiment pushed westward. Following the Ohio river, the regiment's first command called for the suppression of an uprising of the Miami Indians. At this juncture General "Mad Anthony" Wayne took command of the American army and started a campaign against the defeated tribes and, with the First Infantry taking an important part, subdued the Indians and peace reigned for seventeen years.

From this point the regiment came to Fort Dearborn, where Chicago now stands. At this station and at Detroit the organization stayed until the war of 1812. Two captains in the regiment, Meriwether Lewis and Clark, started in 1804 on their celebrated exploration of the Missouri river. The first Infantry before coming to Camp Travis was stationed at Camp Lewis, Wash., on the site that that party of former First Infantrymen selected after their long journey across the western part of the continent.

While the men with Lewis and Clark were away Lieutenant Pike of the regiment started with a party to explore certain parts of the Rocky Mountains and among the discoveries was the peak which bears his name. In 1811 Tecumseh started an uprising. The First Infantry under the command of William Henry Harrison, met the famous chief at Tippecanoe and ended the trouble.

In the war of 1812 the First Infantry met a British force near Detroit and defeated it in what is known as the first engagement of that war. Following the war, the regiment took part in several minor Indian wars and in 1832 entered the Black Hawk war under the command of Col. Zachary Taylor. Between 1837 and 1839 it campaigned against the Seminoles in Florida. After that it went to Jefferson Barracks, remaining there until the outbreak of the Mexican war. The first infantry took an important part in the capture of Monterrey and the siege of Vera Cruz. It was the last regiment to leave Mexico. At the outbreak of the Civil war the regiment was reorganized and took part in the second battle of Bull Run, Shepherdstown, Fredericksburg, Liberty, Springfield, Mo., Wilson's Creek, siege of New Madrid, Harrisburg, Corinth and Vicksburg. After the war the regiment was stationed at Jackson Barracks, near New Orleans.

In 1820 the regiment returned to the southwest and was distributed along the Rio Grande. Two years later it went to Arizona and four years later to California. Two companies of the First Regiment went on a transport to Cuba in May, 1898, and, landing near Point Arhollas, had a short encounter with Spanish Cavalry. Later the regiment took part in the Battle of San Juan Hill and El Caney.

In 1900 the regiment was ordered to the Philippines and in 1903 it came back to the United States, but three years later went back to the Philippines. The regiment was in Hawaii in 1912, staying there until after this country entered the world war. However, the armistice was signed before the regiment could leave its camp at Camp Lewis, Wash. From Camp Lewis it was ordered to Camp Travis to become a part of the Second Division when the latter was reorganized last fall.

At this juncture General "Mad Anthony" Wayne took command of the American army and started a campaign against the defeated tribes and, with the First Infantry taking an important part, subdued the Indians and peace reigned for seventeen years. From this point the regiment came to Fort Dearborn, where Chicago now stands. At this station and at Detroit the organization stayed until the war of 1812. HOW WILL U. S. KEEP OUT OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS, IS BIG PROBLEM FOR NEW REGIME

Germany's Action Makes Separate Peace Resolution of Knox Impracticable.
By BASCOM N. TIMMONS, Washington Correspondent of the Times.
WASHINGTON, March 12.—How the United States going to keep out of the League of Nations? That is the question confronting the Harding administration at the end of its first week of its existence. The program to pass the Knox separate peace resolution has been sidetracked. When the surliness of the Germans Tuesday forced the allied armies to march across the Rhine to Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrport the Knox resolution became impracticable, even from the Republican standpoint.

Many persons here say that Secretary of State Hughes has always been opposed to the Knox resolutions. He was an avowed leaguer when former President Wilson first brought the treaty back from Versailles, although he later became a bitter critic of article ten of the league covenant. But there is reason to believe that Secretary Hughes still thinks that a concert of all the nations can be built upon the league structure and the sovereignty of America adequately guaranteed. Obviously the administration soon must make a definite move to overcome the embarrassing position it is now in with reference to Germany. When the Harding administration came into power it was on the cards that adoption of the Knox resolution would be the first act of the extraordinary session of Congress.

The point is made against immediate passage of the separate peace resolution that it would be ill-advised in the United States to make a separate peace with Germany in the midst of the military efforts by the Allies to prevent Germany from practically winning the war through escaping paying indemnity. Moreover, it is urged, it would be the part of wisdom to withhold finality of action until it is seen precisely how affairs shape up between Germany and the Allies in the agreement which will eventually have to be made and accepted. The United States, notwithstanding it is taking no part in the advance, has a reflected interest in the ultimate settlement of negotiation details, in so far as they affect Germany's material conditions and her ability to carry on trade relations with the world, in which the United States may hope to participate. POLAND SURRENDERS HONOR IN NAMING FAMOUS RADIUM

Madame Curie, Discoverer, Changed Plans When Its Nature Became Known.

Special to the Times. NEW YORK, March 12.—"Polonium" instead of "radium" is the name by which the world would know that most valuable of mineral extractions had Madame Curie, discoverer of the precious element, realized that she had not yet reached the end of her experiments when the substance which she christened polonium was discovered.

It had been Madame Curie's intention to name the new element after her native land, Poland, but the many-fold greater value of radium so lessened the importance of the preliminary discovery that the word polonium has become little known outside of strictly scientific circles.

According to reports from Paris, Madame Curie is now making preparations for her trip to the United States in May. Upon her arrival here she will be presented by the women of America with a gramme of radium—valued at $100,000—for the discoverer of this valuable element.

Dr. Robert Abbe, noted New York surgeon, in a book entitled "Madame Curie" has written interestingly of the discovery of radium. "No other woman, by sheer force of energy and brain power," he states, "has pursued a trail into an unknown jungle and brought to light such an unsuspected new factor in the world's make up, which has had such revolutionary influence in science."

Cloudy Days Led to Discovery. After studying chemistry and Physics in the University of Warsaw, Madame Curie, then Mlle. Marie Sklodowska, continued her researches at the University of Paris under Professors Becquerel and Curie.

One day, explains Dr. Abbe, "an experiment was prepared with a photographic plate enclosed in a black envelope on which a piece of uranium was laid. While waiting for a sunny day this plate was laid in a dark drawer. A fortnight of dull Paris days passed. It was thought wise to test the freshness of the plate by developing it. To the surprise of all a dark spot appeared on its beneath where the mineral had rested."

"In a word, some unsuspected rays had gone through the black paper. This was the startling beginning of the discovery. Becquerel rays became the new wonder. By delicate tests they were proved to be electrical. All joined in Pursuit. All joined in it. Every form of uranium in laboratories was tested.

"Mme. Curie took the next great step—the deciding step. She went to the mines near Carlsbad, where the mineral pitchblende had been mined for a century for the extraction of uranium for making Bohemian glass and beautiful dyes. She examined the refuse, of which fifty tons had accumulated in years past.

"Pitchblende had always been known in laboratories of Europe as a composite ore containing a mixture of a dozen different metals beside the uranium for which it seemed alone worth mining, such as lead, silver, tin, bismuth, etc.

Unknown Force Discovered. "To her surprise, Mme. Curie found the refuse was four times as strong in Becquerel rays as the uranium which had been extracted. This startling fact then stared her in the face that something unknown existed in the refuse.

"By chemical processes she proceeded to dissolve out first the lead, then the tin, then silver, and so on until as the residual mass became purer it became stronger and stronger, sixty times stronger than uranium (polonium)."

"This small remnant glowed in the dark. All but two metals had been eliminated. These were known not to have the slightest radioactivity. Therefore there could be but one conclusion—she was facing a mysterious new force. The excitement ran high as the months went by.

"Finally, after two years, she was able by ultra-chemical resources, with the help of her teachers and Professor Curie (who, meanwhile, had proposed and been accepted in marriage), to announce to the world (1898) the discovery of a new element—radium."

MANY MEN OF MANY MINDS, IN PERSONNEL OF TEXAS LEGISLATURE

AUSTIN, March 12.—The diversity of views and the wide range of opinions regarding legislation and other matters as shown and expressed in the house of representatives of the thirty-seventh legislature is accounted for by the complex composition of the personnel of the house as the data compiled for the legislative manual shows. There are 25 different vocations represented among the 141 members. One seat is vacant, a member having been unseated.

Lawyers are in the majority there being 54, with farmers running second with 29 representatives. The merchants combined their two divisions—wholesale and retail—to take third place, with nine law makers, and the stockmen and ranchmen came fourth with seven of their clan. Then came the newspaper men and publishers, including among their lot reporters, editors, and proprietors, making a total of 6. Real estate dealers were next with 5, bankers 4, retired 3, students 3, physicians 2, insurance agents 2, druggists 2, cotton giners 2, teacher 1, collector 1, humane officer 1, unclassified 10.

As shown by the legislative manual, lawyers compose more than one-third of the personnel of the lower house. Included in the unclassified column there is one each of the following: Humane officer, land surveyor, railroad conductor, mechanic, abstractor, automobile dealer, single-tax expert, commercial secretary and one plain "business man."

The manual shows the youngest legislator in the house is Homer Hendricks of Waxahachie, who is 21 years old. The claim to be the oldest member is between W. A. Morris of Montague and W. D. Swann, both of whom gave their age as 76 years. John Davis of Dallas, Newt Williams of McClellan and Sam Johnson of Gillespie divided honors for the longest tenure of office. Williams and Davis have both served continuously since the thirty-second general assembly. Representative Johnson has served since the twenty-eighth legislature except for three terms.

The political complexion of the house is as follows: Democrats 137, American party 3, Republican 1. The American party members are W. J. Keaton of Seale, Otto F. Menking of Fayetteville and John H. Wessels of La Grange. The lone Republican is Edgar Schweppe of Seguin.

WORDS WE HAVE JUMBLED. Time has done some queer things with various words—words whose original meaning was far from that given them today. For instance, whalebone is not bone, but a horny substance; camel's hair brushes are not made from camel's hair, but from Russian squirrels; catgut is not made from the intestines of a cat, but from those of a sheep; the foxglove was not intended to represent a glove for foxes, but for "folks," meaning little folks, or fairies; sealing which has no wax in it, but is made of shellac; rice paper is not paper, but a thin slice of pith of a Chinese plant; wormwood has nothing to do with either worms or wood, it being a corruption of the meaning of foolish or silly—De- troit News.

'BACK TO FARM' MOVEMENT NOW IS UNDER WAY

More residents of cities than of rural districts now are acquiring agricultural lands, according to figures compiled by a farm agency. The assertion is based upon actual reports of sales from 500 offices in various parts of the country, these showing that during February the movement has exceeded by more than 80 per cent that of the same period a year ago.

Of the 4,272 improved farms, valued at more than $20,000,000, reported sold by this agency during the last 12 months, approximately two-thirds were bought and occupied by farmers, while one-third went to residents of the cities. During recent months, however, beginning with the tightening up in industrial conditions and the consequent laying off of many factory workers, the percentage of sales to farmers and city residents respectively began to change. At the present time the figures are just about reversed as compared with times regarded as normal, two-thirds of the sales now being made to men from the cities and one-third to farmers.

The marked tendency of men who have been living in the cities to get out onto the farms is attributed to the greater certainty of income and the security of a home and food for their families on the farm than in the city when conditions are not at their best. While the greatest increase is noted in the New England states, where the industries predominate, with three times as many farm buyers this year as a year ago, the condition also is largely true through the Central West, where sales in February, 1921, ran 100 per cent ahead of February of last year.

Farmers were brought into Michigan during the last 12 months from 24 states to purchase 493 farms sold there, while residents of Michigan settled in 14 other states. The largest number of farmers came to Michigan from Illinois, which sent 88, followed by Ohio with 48, Minnesota 36, Wisconsin 22, Indiana 21, Iowa 18, Oklahoma and Canada 7 each, Nebraska 3, Kansas, Missouri and Pennsylvania 2, Montana and North Dakota 2, and one each from Arkansas, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Maine, Texas and West Virginia.

Twenty-two states sent buyers into Ohio, including 35 from Pennsylvania, 17 from West Virginia, 10 from Illinois, 6 from Michigan, 5 each from Indiana and Kentucky, 4 each from Iowa and North Carolina, 3 each from Kansas and Wisconsin, 2 each from Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, South Dakota and Tennessee, and one each from Alabama, Massachusetts, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Canada. Fifty-two residents of Ohio went to New York, 48 to Michigan, 36 to Pennsylvania, 13 to Florida, 8 to Maryland, 4 to Maine and Virginia, respectively, 3 each to New Hampshire and Delaware, 2 to Massachusetts, and one each to Vermont, Connecticut, Arkansas and California.

Farmers who bought in Wisconsin came from seven different states including Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wisconsin itself. In the same period, residents of Wisconsin settled on farms in 18 states outside of Wisconsin, including Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Florida and Indiana.

'WOMAN, HANG YOUR HEAD IN SHAME FOR SINS OF OLD MOTHER EVE'

In the olden days such utterances were often heard even from the pulpit, and listened to with approval by the men who were masters of the household instead of just merely being one of the family as they are today.

All these many centuries women have patiently waited to come into their rightful place, and today even the men must admit that you have it on them, and who knows but that the next generation will see the men staying at home caring for the children, mending wife's hose, sewing her buttons, preparing her meals while dear wife goes down to the office, shop or store to work. Just imagine it!

Suppose she has a business engagement which keeps her until the wee hours and dear hubby walks the floor with the baby and wonders if she was telling him the truth.

It's coming just as sure as Chef makes hot biscuit.

We want to say this to the women of Ranger. "Don't let the cobwebs grow under your feet, but get what you are entitled to—a day's rest every Sunday. HOBBY CHEERED WHEN HE ADDRESSES LEGISLATURE

AUSTIN, March 12.—Ex-Governor W. P. Hobby, who addressed the legislature while in Austin to appear before the joint parliamentary investigating committee, was cheered by resolutions to address both the senate and house and was accorded an ovation when he was escorted to the speaker's stand.

In the house the applause was the loudest and it continued several minutes after he had reached the stand. The former governor headed the house for inviting him to address the members. In his remarks he referred to his administration and said that "the promissory note I gave the people of Texas on entering office was paid in full on the day I left it and this full payment was only made possible by the co-operation of the thirty-sixth legislature."

Ex-Governor Hobby made his address just after President Harding took office and the Republican control replaced the Democratic.

"I want to say," said the former governor "that I am just as proud today of the Democratic party when it is out of power as I was when it was in power."

MANY DECLARED GUILTY.

AUSTIN, March 12.—Every bootlegger and moonshiner—and each patron of such—was an accessory to the killing of Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Ernest Walker, who was shot to death at El Paso last week in a battle with "rum runners," according to Clifford O. Beckham, federal prohibition director, in a statement here today.

"Walker was the victim of a dastardly crime," declared Beckham, "to which was an accessory each and every bootlegger and moonshiner and each and every patron of such—and each and every state and federal officer, whether on the bench, prosecuting attorney or enforcement officer who has not to the best of his ability endeavored to enforce the prohibition laws; each juror who has violated his oath in liquor cases, each man or woman who has by written, printed or spoken word encouraged the violation of these laws."

We simply cannot understand why Dorothy Pound, pianist, and Isabelle Bellows, singer, of the conservatory do not hitch up for a concert tour.

SENATOR SMOOT IS IN FAVOR OF REPEALING TAX PLACED ON SPORTS

By PETER P. CARNEY.

There are a great many men in the present congress who favor the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on sporting equipment, judging from letters which have come to my notice. David Levinson, of Chicago, who has been one of the most prominent of those interested in asking for the repeal of the tax has received letters from many senators and congressmen who inform Levinson that they are just as much sold on repealing the law as he is, and furthermore they will work for its repeal.

Senator Smoot of Utah, says: "The law should be repealed. The taxes are of a nagging nature and the revenue received from that section does not justify the burdens placed upon business. I hope to see a better measure enacted in the near future."

Representative Freeman of Connecticut writes: "I am in favor of the removal of the tax off athletic goods and expect to urge that in the committee at every opportunity. The government ought to be willing to relieve the sporting goods manufacturers of this tax."

These are only a sample of more than 100 letters that Mr. Levinson has. If one man can interest so many members of congress there is no telling just how many representatives and senators are going to remain interested when the boys and girls and the men and women back home continue to remind them that the failure to repeal the 10 per cent war tax on sporting equipment will put a serious damper on sporting activity in 1921. Canada realized this and took the tax from sporting goods just as soon as possible after the war. Why sports equipment has been taxed twice as much as jewelry is something none of us has ever been able to understand.

During the war there never was a clamor for the sending of diamond pendants, or strings of pearls to the training camps—what was wanted was sporting equipment, so that the soldiers could get out and exercise. No one thought sports equipment was a luxury then. No one thought a man should be taxed for trying to become healthful. That is what is being done today. Walter Camp took a class of cabinet officers and others in the government service and showed them through gentle physical exercise outdoors how they could do the work of the day a great deal better. If exercise was good in war times it is good today.

Therefore, the way should be paved so that everyone can enjoy sports. The man who is wealthy will continue to enjoy the sports he likes most—but the tax has put most sporting equipment out of the reach of the average person interested in healthful physical exercise. A repeal of the law will put all equipment back to pre-war prices and then even though there is depression in the business world the people can continue healthy through light exercise and be ready for the fight that is to come.

KING GEORGE'S CLOCKS ARE 30 MINUTES FAST

By Associated Press
SANDR NGHAM, England, March 12.—All the clocks at this country home of King George are kept thirty minutes fast. The reason for this is unknown. It is surmised that it had something to do with the daylight saving when King Edward was alive.

U. OF T. LABORATORY HAS SMALL QUANTITY OF RADIO-ACTIVE SALTS

AUSTIN, March 12.—About $3,000 is spent each school year for chemicals used in the chemistry department of the University of Texas, according to W. B. Duncan, secretary of the chemical laboratories. The expense of the entire chemistry department, including the equipment for performing experiments, amounts to $25,000 or $30,000 a year.

Mr. Duncan stated that only a very small proportion of the chemicals purchased were of high value or very rare. The radio activity salts are perhaps the most rare of the chemicals used. There are in all between one and two grams of these extremely scarce salts in the laboratories, Mr. Duncan said. Germany supplied the greater part of the chemicals prior to the beginning of the war. Since that time the United States has gradually usurped her position. At present, according to Mr. Duncan, only some $1,500 worth of materials are obtained from Germany each year, the remainder being bought in the United States. These home-produced chemicals are, however, said to be much higher than those formerly obtained from the European centers.

In the chemistry department this year there are 1,270 students taking full courses. Of that number 800 are freshmen. The majority of the teachers here are composed of graduates and advanced students working toward degrees.

PRICES NAMED FOR FALL BY AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY IS SURPRISE

NEW YORK, March 12.—The medium and finer number of staple worsted suitings, as priced by the American Woolen company for next fall, show an advance to a slightly higher basis than the figures in final reduction on the spring season named in January. It was stated in the trade that some of the new prices were as much as 15 cents a yard above the last-named figure. On the other hand, some lower grade numbers, particularly those made from quarter-blood wools, are reported to have been reduced from the last basis, in some cases as much as 15 cents.

The fall opening of serges, chevrons, clays, finished worsteds, etc., appeared to competing manufacturers to have set a really low level of values. According to the attitude of some mill agents, they may not even try to meet the precise figures of the big company. Other prominent makers of serges and other worsted lines probably would hold off their fall openings until next week, in order to give the trade a chance to size up the situation.

A leading worsted manufacturer said: "The American's new prices must be figured close to cost. I do not expect to see any lower basis than this through the season, and it may be as low as goods will go for several seasons. It is reasonable to believe that a tariff will bring us higher prices. Clothiers seem ready to place a fair quantity of business."

Guesses Prove too Slow.

Among the buyers there had been the expectation that the American company would not depart far from the prices named in January, and many of them had been hoping for slight reductions here and there. Many of the guesses expressed on the market with considerable confidence earlier in the week as to the new prices on leading numbers proved 10 to 20c below the figures actually named.

The prices made by the big company on staples are subject to a similar price guarantee to that granted at the opening of overcoatings last week. The prices are guaranteed through the fall season, or up to the opening of the spring 1922 season, where repeat numbers are concerned. The trade is much pleased with the guarantee principle, and a large part of the willingness of the trade to operate on a fairly generous scale may be traced to the fact that they are protected in the matter of price.

It was reported in the trade that all lines in department 4 of the American company had been withdrawn from sale because sold up. This is the finishing and dress goods department of the big company. It made its closing for the fall 1921 season on Tuesday, Feb. 21.

Although the company was offering its fabrics for women's wear for only a four-month period, it was stated in the trade today that the lines had been sold up until Sept. 1. Prices as made at the beginning of last week were considered attractive by buyers, and was held to be remarkably low by competitors of the big company.

Orders Subject to Allotment.

It was common knowledge that many orders had been received, and it was anticipated by buyers after the first few days following the opening that demand was going to be in excess of the company's ability to deliver. The orders were all taken subject to allotment and also with a guarantee of price to Sept. 1.

During the last few days buyers have been receiving notices of the revision of their orders and with some of them cutting down amounted to 50 per cent. For example, one operator who placed an order for 250 pieces has been informed that he will receive about 125.

The report that the lines in department 4 were withdrawn from sale could not be confirmed definitely at the offices of the company. It was said, however, that buyers had been given a chance to place their orders, and that revisions were being made on the basis of the orders which had been received.

The hosiery market still showed fretfulness because of the announcement of an auction to come next week. From a statement made during the day it will be seen that the other large producer of staple goods will not hold an auction. It is needless to say that its prices will be made in accordance with whatever develops to make a firm market price whether by auction or other means. The auction should give less cause for nervousness than some agents express, and it will be surprising if it does not eventually give cause for good orders to those mills that are equipped to meet the market prices buyers will fix at the auction.

PAYS OLD POKER DEBT.

CHICAGO, March 12.—An old gentleman leaning heavily on a cane paused in his leisurely progress toward the hotel desk to regard another elderly gentleman enjoying the comfort of a soft lobby divanport.

He gave the reclining elder a long, searching appraisal, and then walked over and tapped him on the shoulder.

"Major Johnny, I don't like to hurry you, but have you got a hundred?" he asked.

"Johnny" sat up, gave his questioner one look and climbed to his feet. "I certainly have, Private Arnold," he said. "I am sorry to have kept you waiting so long, sir, but I haven't been able to make connections with you for the last fifty-six years."

He took five twenties from his wallet and handed them over to the first elderly gentleman, who counted them gravely and put them in his pocket.

Then both broke into shrill cackles, as men are liable to when they are very old and think something is very funny. They slapped each other on the back and rocked in an embrace that didn't break for some minutes. Tears ran down their cheeks as they continued to chuckle and to pat each other with trembling hands.

It seemed that "Major Johnny" is Major John A. Bering, once of the Eighteenth Ohio Volunteers, and that "Private Arnold" is known in Joliet, Ill., as John W. Arnold.

Further, the old men explained in an excited babble of extreme age, fifty-six years ago Private Arnold had won all the available cash in the Confederate prison camp at Camp Ford, Texas, being an expert judge of a poker hand, and that he had lent $100 to Major Bering, also a prisoner of war.

Owing to the escape of Private Arnold, his capture and incarceration in another prison camp, and the fact that they never met again, the debt was never repaid until this day of our Lord, as both related in much detail and with many chuckles, and happy tears that insisted on running from old eyes.

They went to Major Bering's room to talk it over again.

Very shortly a bellboy reported that he had been ordered to bring the Major cards and chips.

"They are going to play stud," he said. "The Major says he is going to win his money back because he has a hunch his luck has changed since the Civil War. The other old fellow says he can't beat him playing stud poker if he lives to be 150 years old. Funny old ducks, eh?"

Shortly after the accident Mathew Valerius, wealthy farmer and father of one victim, offered $10,000 to any one who would rescue his son alive.
