Oil Field Superintendents Meet To Plan Campaign For All-Weather Road Through Producing Section

Superintendents of oil companies representing major portion of the properties in the Howard-Glasscock field were to meet Friday evening at the Forsan school building to organize their efforts to have the Howard county commissioners' court place gravel, caliche or some other topping on the road leading east and west through the field.

It was indicated, will be that, although their properties create about half the county's tax receipts the oil field itself does not receive near its pro rata share of county road and bridge money. It is pointed out also that the road through the field carried considerably more traffic than other county road that is called for a more durable road and also for material that would allow it to be used in wet weather.

75 Cents New Price Posted By 2 Buyers

Gasoline Market Bolstered Slightly By Further Curtailment

DALLAS (AP)—The Magnolia Petroleum company announced it would meet the oil price increases posted by other companies effective Saturday.

HOUSTON (AP)—The Gulf Production company Friday announced it would meet crude oil price advances posted by other purchasers, effective Saturday.

The Texas company's advance of ten cents per barrel in West Texas was the first posted for this section since a general rise in the mid-continent crude market which followed reduction of Texas allowable production a few days ago in orders issued by the state railroad commission.

West-Texas fields (the Permian basin) late Thursday felt the first real benefit from recent orders of the railroad commission reducing daily allowable production of oil in the state approximately 130,000 barrels. The Texas company posted 75 cents per barrel, effective Saturday, for crude of all grades produced in the Basin. This was a hike of ten cents per barrel.

Immediate effect locally of developments of the past week in the oil industry are:

1. Reduction from 15,000 to 12,500 barrels daily in the allowable production from the Howard-Glasscock county field.
2. Advancement of ten cents per barrel in the price of crude, expected to be made unanimous in the next day or two among purchasers from this field.
3. Improvement of approximately one-fourth cent per gallon in prices at local refineries as receiving for gasoline.

At least temporary prevention of further reduction in amount of products refined in local plants, which are operating at approximately half capacity.

Practically all other areas in the state, as well as in Oklahoma, already had received higher postings as result of further curtailment of production.

Action of the railroad commission in ordering a state-wide further hearing and entering orders further reducing production is recognized in the industry as having changed the outlook from one presenting immediate danger of price reductions into what might be called a "trade" whereby buyers of crude will pay more for oil in return for further curtailment of production.

The purchasers, contending that additional curtailment would stabilize not only the crude market but also the gasoline market, also did not relish the idea of cutting crude prices, and thus facing additionally unfavorable public sentiment.

Effect of the curtailment in Texas, as well as in Oklahoma, already has been felt in the gasoline market, which had sagged to 3-1/2 cents per gallon for gasoline manufactured in Big Spring refineries. The price has risen one-fourth cent per gallon in the past week and local refiners are fairly confident of some further improvement.

Miss Mabel Robinson, secretary to the tax collector, has been called from her duties to attend her sister, who recently underwent an operation.

Give The Child A Fair Chance
THE PREVENTION of child labor in America has been an important issue since the days in which factories were first established. In fact, most everyone has agreed that child labor, especially in its severest forms, should not exist. However, in spite of continuous efforts, America still has children who need protection.

Ordinarily the invention of modern machinery tended to protect the unfortunate child. The manufacturer needed more skillful workers. Today, though, children need to be protected from conditions perhaps less conquerable than the unhealthy factory. A walk down the main street of any large city late at night will reveal any number of small children. Some can be found doing on the unsold newspapers, some are waiting for their unfortunate parents to go home. These undernourished children demand attention. Even though such children do attend the public schools, they are in no condition to reap the greatest advantages from an education. Granting that even the bare necessities are taken care of by charitable societies, the home environment still needs attention.

Obviously child conditions are much worse today on the basis of the present economic conditions. However, such conditions have existed in years of prosperity. Some reform program must be worked out that will relieve the irregular life of the "street child."

Saturday Afternoon Opening Announced By Postmaster Here

Beginning tomorrow and continuing through December the Big Spring postoffice will be kept open Saturday afternoons, H. L. Bohannon, postmaster, announced.

The postoffice has been closed Saturday afternoons for some weeks. The action was forced by terms of the economy bill recently passed by congress.

Mr. Bohannon said it would be difficult to keep the office open Saturday afternoons after the end of this year due to terms of the bill but that this would be done through the fall months principally for convenience of farmers who are busy with crop gathering and find it difficult to come to the office except on Saturday.

Truck Recovered, Theft By Baillee Charge Made

AUSTIN—In an effort to present facts concerning motor transportation, the Texas Motor Transportation association, Austin, is planning a series of newspaper advertisements and radio programs to be used by all Texas newspapers and all Texas radio stations, beginning early in October and lasting for some two or three months.

There is an appalling lack of information concerning the true facts in the transportation situation in Texas and in the nation, according to Tom Jones, Dallas, president of the association, and this campaign will be designed to present to the public a few of the facts that heretofore have not been generally known.

Asked whether this campaign represented an attack upon the railroads, Jones stated that it was not in any respect an attack upon other forms of transportation and that in all probability railroads would not even be mentioned in the entire series.

"This is a constructive effort, as all our efforts are intended to be declared, and not an attempt to discredit or injure any other form of transportation."

The general plan of the campaign, according to Jones, will be to present the benefits derived by the public from the use of motor trucks and to show that motor trucks are paying adequate taxes, are not causing undue wear and tear upon the highways, are giving more employment than they are taking away and are improving their safety record with each passing year.

"The motor truck has become a public problem," Jones said. "We think it is a public servant; some think it is a public nuisance. We simply want to present to a fair-minded public the facts with which we are familiar and let them form their own conclusions on the basis of those scientifically and statistically determined facts, instead of on unfounded prejudices and blind guesses."

In all probability, the first advertisement in the series will appear by Oct. 15. Most of the radio programs have already been presented by Station KFDM, Beaumont, and will be made available to other Texas stations during the first week of October.

TODAY and TOMORROW

Mr. Hoover at Des Moines

To a greater degree than in his Acceptance Speech Mr. Hoover managed really to express himself at Des Moines. Listening to him on the radio it seemed to me that almost for the first time the Hoover, who in private is such an engaging talker, came through the veils of diffidence and awkwardness that normally enshroud him when he writes a set speech and delivers it into a microphone. He was more nearly himself than on any other public occasion, more nearly the man who has evoked such passionate loyalty among those who have worked under him in his many great enterprises.

To them and to those who have known him well enough to know his quality, his speech, regardless of its effect upon the voting, will be recognized as a true expression of the best in Herbert Hoover—the orderliness of his mind, his immense imaginative capacity to hold facts and the extreme sensitiveness of his sympathy with human suffering. Even those who feel that they can not go with him, should be glad that he has succeeded by his own efforts in refuting the popular legend that he is a cold and indifferent man.

The tale he had to tell was the familiar story of the successful defense of the gold standard during the period from June, 1931, to July, 1932. Necessarily because of the limitations of time he had to simplify the story and pardonably, since he was making a campaign speech, he simplified it in such a way as to give the impression that his Administration had provided certain remedies without the bag.

However, the historians will not, I think, subscribe to so simple an interpretation of the events. They will recall that the whole defensive battle consisted in the mobilization of public credit to save the private credit structure and in the expansion of credit to counteract the deflation of credit, and they will see, as of course the President himself now sees, that everything depended upon the maintenance of the public credit. The inquiry will then arise as to when the President took a stand in favor of balancing the budget, and how effectively he took it.

The record will show that it was not until the middle of the second year of deficit financing that the Administration took any measures whatever to bring the budget into balance. The record will show further that not at that time and not at any time since has the Administration had a program of retrenchment and taxation which came anywhere near bringing the budget into balance. So seriously wrong have been its estimates that in December the battle to balance the budget will have to be fought all over again. I realize the difficulty of making sound estimates under such abnormal conditions as these, but the fact is that conditions are abnormal elsewhere too, and for some reason, which calls for explanation, the British government really brought its budget into balance when it promised to do so, whereas Mr. Hoover's administration is now in the third year of deficit financing.

We weathered the crisis of last spring not because the government really put its house in order but because the whole world believed that the government and public opinion had their right intentions, and that with the greatness of our resources, would finally succeed. The world is right. We shall succeed. But we shall grieve and delude ourselves if we allow ourselves to believe that the task has been accomplished. This winter we face the necessity of retrenchments and of new taxes that far exceed anything Mr. Hoover has yet discussed.

Yet it is true, as Mr. Hoover declared his listeners to believe, that the Administration has fought a gigantic battle to preserve the credit and monetary structure of the country. It would not have had to fight so desperately if it had started to fight sooner and had fought with a clearer conception of the central importance of balancing the budget. But at the end, it fought bravely and well enough, so that with the help of the Federal Reserve policy and the liquidation of the foreign balances the financial victory was won.

But what is missing from the President's story, and from all the partisan speeches on his side, is any plausible explanation as to why so desperate a battle had to be fought. Mr. Hoover did devote one sentence to the speculative boom which "had weakened our own economic structure," but he proceeded at once to add that "the critical dangers and assaults swept upon us from foreign countries." Referring to these foreign countries he spoke of "the last twelve years of frantic political and financial policies of foreign nations." This is the accepted Republican campaign argument: foreign nations pursued "frantic policies"; we suffered the consequences, though they were aggravated by our own speculation. Mr. Hoover is not prepared to admit, in short, that the past twelve years of Republican policies had anything to do with the worldwide disaster.

Is this a credible theory? Is it possible that a nation which is the most prolific of all producers, the most active of all lenders, the possessor of half the monetary gold of the world, and a great power in both hemispheres is the mere innocent victim of the "frantic policies" of other nations? Is this a campaign device and not a very witty device at that.

Yet the Republican party is compelled to resort to it in order to avoid considering the cardinal policies it has pursued in the past 12 years. It must blame the foreigner or face the question how its policies of speculative boom and bust, with huge foreign lending, forced exports and prohibitive tariffs can be overlooked as principal causes of the catastrophe.

Stock Transaction Basis Of Charges On Men Held In El Paso

EL PASO, (UP)—Police today were searching for two men who are believed to have been associates of R. M. Palmer and Frank J. Ryan, San Antonio brokers, who were jailed here for Alamogordo, N. M., authorities.

Attorney G. A. Shipley of Alamogordo told detective Captain W. C. Woolverton in a telephone conversation that Palmer and Ryan are charged there with "fraudulently obtaining stocks valued at about $8000 from Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Walker of High Rolls, N. M., by false and fraudulent representations."

Ryan told Captain Woolverton he is president of the San Antonio stock exchange. Shipley said that Walker made a deal with Ryan and Palmer Oct. 8 in which Walker was to receive 320 shares of stock in a Georgia concern in exchange for stock in El Paso building and loan associations.

Gay Hallowe'en Celebrations

Black cats, witches, ghosts, bolls—these spell Hallowe'en, from the time, centuries ago, when the celebration of "All Hallow's Even" marked the end of the harvest season, and fires were kept burning through the night to welcome the coming of winter, this festival has had an air of mystery and eeriness. Hallowe'en parties are to many the most delightful of the year. To children it is a joyous celebration and grownups, as well, enjoy frolicsome Hallowe'en parties. Hallowe'en decorations are easily planned, costumes may be varied and the food should be appropriate but simple. The menu should include nuts, apples, cider and all the spiky good things associated with this harvest time celebration. For children's parties these foods may be served in unusual ways. The following menus are delightful for Hallowe'en parties.

- Pineapple & Peach Hallowe'en Salad
Jack O'Lantern Sandwiches*
Pumpkin Face Frosted Cakes*
Nut Taffy
Cider

Molded Orange and Cheese salad
Hallowe'en Sandwiches
Apple Butter Custard Tarts Topped with Whipped Cream
Cider Hallowe'en Candles

Pineapple or Peach Hallowe'en Salad: Sprinkle 2 cups diced apple with juice of 1/2 lemon and 1 cup diced celery; 1/2 cup walnut meats, 1 teaspoon sugar and Mayonnaise Salad Dressing to moisten. Chill and arrange in deep cups of lettuce. On each place a peach half, decorated with cloves for eyes and nose, and a strip of cherry for mouth, or a pineapple ring spread with Peanut Butter (fill center also). Decorate with raisins for eyes and nose and strip of cherry for mouth.

Man Who Pitched Longest Big League Game Now A 'Grad'

PALO ALTO, Cal. (UP)—Perseverance has its rewards. Take the case of Joe Aeschger. In 1920 Aeschger pitched the longest baseball game in major league history. On the mound for the Boston Braves, Aeschger and Leon Chidore of the Philadelphia Phillies staged a 26-inning mound duel. Darkness ended the game at one o'clock.
Retiring from baseball, Aeschger turned his thoughts toward education. In 1930, he became director of physical education at a San Francisco Junior high school. Yesterday he won another "long game" when Stanford University conferred upon him an A. B. degree, entitling him to be called "professor."

END OF THE TRAIL FOR LEONARD

A groggy figure, the shadow of one of the greatest lightweights of all time, sagged helplessly into the arms of the referee and Benny Leonard was at the end of the comeback trail—victim of the youthful punching of Jimmy McLarnin. Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight in the sixth round of their New York engagement and awarded the verdict to McLarnin on a technical knockout. (Associated Press Photo.)

Coolidge Asks Party Support

Roosevelt's Bonus Threat To Recovery He Declares

NEW YORK (UP)—Calvin Coolidge urges that Herbert Hoover be kept in the White House because "things would have been worse" but for his "vision, courage and leadership," and because Franklin Roosevelt's silence on the bonus menaced economic recovery.

The former president appealed for the re-election of his own successor in an address to a cheering throng at Madison Square Garden and a vast unseen audience.

"I am convinced," he concluded, "that the public welfare requires that I be re-elected."

Coolidge, in his own calm, cool manner, attacked democratic policies, and Democratic leadership; he accused Franklin Roosevelt, without naming him, of prolonging the depression by failing to speak against the bonus.

The former president roused his listeners to laughter by his terse quotations from Grover Cleveland against reciprocal tariffs; he referred to the "forgotten man" of the Roosevelt speeches as the "ordinary man of people," he injected by reference a criticism of Roosevelt for his inheritance of wealth and his costly education. He said President Hoover "never was carried into political office by the way of family influence."

Coolidge, in a little time, delivered himself of a series of epigrammatic statements that brought cheers of laughter from his hearers.

"Before we decide that we want to have a change we ought to determine what the chances are of securing any improvement," was the first.

"No government has yet been devised that could make the people prosperous all the time."

"We are told we ought to have a competitive tariff. Our producers are not suffering from any lack of competition. Is it proposed to put our wage earners in competition with those of India, China and Japan?"

"But we are told again, that by reducing our tariff we can increase our foreign commerce. Every foreign nation wants our tariff reduced. No foreign nation wants to increase our commerce."

"An independent nation ought to keep within its own control the authority to determine its own revenues and regulate its own commerce."

"In my opinion," he said in attacking Democratic policies, "the financial integrity of our government appeared to be permanently established. Congress finally adjourned and our gold began to come back. The decline in trade ceased, and confidence began to return until now the country knows its worst troubles are probably past and economic recovery is beginning."

Police Connect Man In San Antonio Case With Austin Killing

CHICAGO (UP)—Political implications of the prosecution of Samuel Insull on charges resulting from the billion-dollar failure of his utility realm were given emphasis by statements attributed to the aged financier in his Grecian retreat.

The stand reportedly taken by Insull that he was quite willing to return to Chicago to face larceny and embezzlement charges after the November election drew a quick answer from State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

Swanson who faces a hard fight for re-election, linked Insull's statement with disclosures of members of syndicates allowed to purchase Insull securities at prices below those at which they were offered to the public.

"Mr. Insull's reported willingness to return after election," said Swanson, "may be explained, perhaps, in his hope that there may be new state's attorney at that time."

The list of individuals who have been designated as the Insull insiders may explain why Mr. Insull desires to face a prosecutor who would be subject to orders from boss.

The latest lists revealed showed Mayor Anton J. Cermak down for a $100,000 stock subscription; Cermak beside the democratic organization by which Thomas J. Courney, Swanson's opponent, is supported.

Swanson had charged previously his political opponents were hindering his investigation of the Insull collapse.

CALL of the WEST

CHAPTER XXI

Dona rode down the Blind River trail at a brisk trot. She had just detested a mad adventure and was enjoying it knowing that soon enough she would have to return to her time humoring the whims of Dudley Winters and she must not let that happen. She had met him in the city.

"The bride rides alone into Paradise Valley. There was a hint of banter in his eyes.

Dona flushed then smiled. "You know about the trouble over at Three Rivers?"

Stanley nodded.

"We just have to get rid of that man, Hall. The man is hunting him but they never can get him cornered. Do you know him?"

Dona watched Stanley's face.

"Not a line had changed except the corners of his mouth. His eyes looked into hers for a full second. "I know him well," he said simply.

"He must be a hardheaded killer," Dona went on. Her cheeks were coming back to her and she did not notice the man's eyes cloud and his lips tighten.

"He is a pretty tough hombre. He'll always be an outlaw I guess," Stanley tossed the wisp of grass and blew it in the air.

"Do you know him well enough to get him to leave Folly Mountain?" Dona put the question eagerly. Something in Stanley Black's manner made her sure he could do just that.

He looked at her for a full second, then raised his eyes. He knew that he was going to do what she asked though in leaving the mountain he would be deserting a cause that was almost won and he would likely be taken or shot down as soon as he left the fastness of the high country. Swain in his pocket held in all the surging indignation and it was a maddened man with a pistol in his hand.

"Yes, I can do that," he said up and down.

"How do you mean to do it?" Dona asked. "I'll get him to leave Folly Mountain," she said. "I'll get him to leave Folly Mountain," she said.

"I'll get him to leave Folly Mountain," she said. "I'll get him to leave Folly Mountain," she said.

like from a cursory examination of the border, convention officials have arranged for a tour to Monterey and San Luis, picturesque mountain cities of the states of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila.

The trip may be made in cars belonging to those who enroll in the party but transportation will be provided for those wishing to go at about $7.00 a passenger.

Due to the favorable rate of exchange, American money goes a long way in Mexico and the trip may be made at a minimum of expense. One American dollar may be exchanged for three or more Mexican pesos. Price in Mexico in this country are lower than in many years so that this is an opportunity to visit that country that should not be overlooked.

The party will leave Harlingen Oct. 26, rain or shine, and return Oct. 30, offering almost four full days amid the exotic splendor of a strange country.

Kiwans desiring to make the trip into Old Mexico should enroll immediately with the convention executive committee headed by H. J. Goetzke of Harlingen.

Clarke Slaps Sailor Cold

Best Bout Of Season Given Fans At Casino Program

Bobby Clarke, Sweetwater's two-fisted middleweight contender, dropped Sailor Owens, San Diego, California, for a forty minute count in the third round Thursday evening to win his third straight victory in a local ring. No protest was registered from any Owens was saved from a long count as the bell rang in the second round just when a right hook had sent him through the ropes and out of the ring. He came back in the third and immediately became the target for an avalanche of punches. The Sailor tried to stop up, but a one-two combination dropped him heavily to the canvas. It was thirty-eight minutes before he recovered consciousness.

In the semi-finals young Alabama Cagun put up the prettiest fight of his career to punch his way to a clear decision over Ben Inman, Sweetwater, 125 pound local champion there. Alabama took five of the six rounds, with all three judges and The Herald score-board coinciding, and only one out of the quartet gave Inman the benefit of the doubt in the second. Cagun's best blow was a left jab that had Inman wobbling at the finish.

American Killed In Fall From One Of Great Pyramids

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Eldridge Rand Herron, of New York, famous American mountain climber, was killed Thursday by a fall from one of the great pyramids at Gizeh. Herron has climbed the Alps, the Dolomites, the Himalayas, Atlas, Caucasus and other difficult mountains. Although the ascent of the pyramids is considered comparatively easy, especially for an experienced climber, he stumbled on his way down and fell several hundred feet, fracturing his skull. Herron was returning to the United States with members of the German-American expedition that attempted to climb Mount Nanga Parbat in the Himalayas. They arrived at Suez last night. Herron climbed the first pyramid, that of Khufu, which is the tallest. Then, while the others took a camel trip, he tried to climb the second pyramid, Khafra, which is about 450 feet high, slightly less tall.

YALE HAS PLENTY OF POWER IN BACKFIELD

If Yale can fill the holes in the line revealed in their opening engagement a big year is in prospect for the Blue grid entry. Most of Yale's tried men are backfield stars. Lassiter, rangy junior, promises to fill Able Booth's shoes to capacity. The starting backfield in the big games will probably be the above quartet with Parker at quarterback, Lassiter and Crowley at halfbacks and Levering at fullback. (Associated Press Photo)

the lines—and thus was able to pay more attention really to portraying the characterizations. Ability of Miss Rush as director was unmistakably reflected in the manner in which the play went off. Miss Zelma Chadd, as Barbara Brown, beautiful heroine in the story of "Ghost House," earned applause of an attentive audience with her graceful portrayal of the role. She was gloriously gowned. Miss Dorothy Jordan, as Miss Bates, a domineering wife, brought into the play her strong natural ability and training and Ralph Houston, as her hen-pecked husband, succeeded particularly in keeping entirely "in character." The Bates family made a strong impression on the crowd.

Police Connect Man Held In San Antonio With Austin Slaying

SAN ANTONIO, (UP)—Austin officers connected John M. Pickett, arrested following the shooting of Mrs. Hazel Dillehay in her home here Wednesday with the fatal shooting of Edgar C. Arledge, University of Texas student, slain at Austin recently. Pickett, 29, is known to Dallas police, having been arrested several times for investigation of burglary and theft cases. He was convicted of burglary in Crosby county in 1927 and sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary, in 1928. He was sentenced to four years for a Wise county burglary. Connection between the two shootings, by which officers hope they may be able to prove a definite link, hinged on a pocketbook found near the scene of the Austin slaying, and an identification by a San Antonio woman. The woman here has identified Pickett as being the man who criminally assaulted her in Austin recently. The pocketbook officers learned, is one which was taken from the husband of the assaulted woman at the time of the assault.

GIVE YOUR SCISSORS THIS DAILY EXERCISE! Madam! Do you know that it's clever to be a clipper? Here's a habit you can readily cultivate, and you'll find many of your best friends following it. To become a clipper at one clip, so to speak, just see that the shears are handy when you sit down to read your newspaper. As you spot an advertisement of something that interests you... especially some time that you want to examine when you're shopping next time... clip out the notice and take it with you. The merchants who advertise with us are glad to have you ask for specific merchandise. And sometimes it's helpful to refer to the advertisement when you're right in the store. At all events, a clipping pinned to your shopping list helps you to remember this particular errand. It simplifies and shortens a shopping-trip so much to know what you want and where to get it!

SPORTS ON PARADE by CURTIS BISHOP. These is a present a big argument underway. Charles Green of the Sweetwater Reporter insists that the Mustangs should rank as nothing better than co-favorites in District 3 and that the San Angelo Bohemians be given every bit as much attention as championship dopings. Blonds Cross, who naturally would be different, comes back with the explanation that the "Kittens" are a wacky club, and are very much the underdog in District 3. Since Big Spring is in no way mentioned in their argument we will not intervene except to promise either of the "big dogs" that are four other schools: District 3 who would like nothing better than to win over the two "favorites" and there is one team, we might add mysteriously, that is very liable to beat either.

that Bobby Campbell said the other day that "Big Spring, as usual has a printer's ink eleven and will not be in the running. In a matter of fact it is doubtful if the Big Spring team will even be in the walking." With head bowed in shame we pay tribute to Campbell's wisdom. It was not an idle sentence. Boddy wrote, he knew. With the exception of 1931, and then it was so to a large extent, Big Spring has indeed possessed "printer's ink eleven." By that Campbell meant teams that had the ability, the weight experience, training—everything, but just couldn't win. Coach after coach has tried to remedy the evil, but none have succeeded. It was not their fault, for some of them were capable, in fact all of them were. The fault lies in the citizenship and the schoolbody itself. The cure must come from the same source.

George Brown is expected to assume charge of the Bovine line and is now Monday afternoon and there looms up hard, long work for any and all linemen who have forgotten the rigid discipline and training of 1931. Brown's return will strengthen the locals considerably for fundamental football is just the thing the Steers lack most at present. A paragraph from Jinx Tucker's column that may be interesting: "Abbie Booth, little Boy Blue of Yale's grid entries of the last few years, was due to make a speech in behalf of Herbert Hoover's candidacy last night. Said Abbie: 'I am volunteering my services to play for the greatest quarterback in the country ever had. So that is Abbie's idea of good generalship. It is now beginning to dawn on us why Georgia defeated Old Eli three years in a row and why Yale can't defeat anybody of importance any more.'"

A prediction or so for this week's play. Sweetwater 20, Midland 0. San Angelo 25, Winte 0. Big Spring 31, Stanton 0. Colorado 25, Rescoe 0. Clyde Pratt, coach of the Winters Blizzards, comes forward with another crack concerning his team. Pratt declares that both of his squads should be all-state this year, they not only stop the opposing team's offensive drives but his own as well.

Department Store Blaze Is Finale Of Fire Chiefs' Meet. HOUSTON, (UP)—A department store blaze early Thursday furnished an appropriate finale for the Southwestern Association of Fire Chiefs annual convention and the visiting firemen were allowed to join in the work of extinguishing it. The fire was discovered just as the annual firemen's ball was breaking up. Delegates—wearing convention badges—took hold of the hoses with a will and scurried busily up and down ladders. Other visiting chiefs hopped out of their hotel beds, jumped into their clothes and hurried to the scene. The occasion probably marked as new high for attendance of chiefs upon a single fire, according to Chief S. Ferguson, Fort Worth, newly elected president of the chiefs' organization. Damage to the department store was slight.

Oklahoma U Alumni Sue For Grid Man. Refusal To Enroll Former Of S. U. Star Brings Court Action. OKLAHOMA CITY, OK. (UP)—Aroused alumni of the University of Oklahoma took their fight to get star football players for their alma mater to the state supreme court. The attorneys all Oklahoma university graduates, asked the supreme court for a writ of mandamus ordering the board of regents, President W. B. Bizzell and Registrar George Wadaseck to enroll W. E. Yarbrough, who played with the Oklahoma City university team last year. A hearing was to be asked for Friday. The action today marked the climax of bitter controversy for several months among various schools for football stars. The attorneys said they were employed by a large group of alumni leaders. The supreme court petition charged Yarbrough was denied the right to enroll at Oklahoma university this fall as result of a letter sent to university authorities by Oklahoma city university of

The letter said Yarbrough would not be given his credential and an honorable dismissal from Oklahoma City university because the city university held a $30 note which Yarbrough and V. Green, athletic director, made last year so the football player could pay his enrollment fees here. University officials advised Yarbrough until this note was cleared they would not permit him to enroll, the suit charged.

William Allen White Calls Alumni Morons And Football Bum Gante. EMPORIA, Kan. (UP)—Football is a "gladitorial game" in which victory is the one requirement believes William Allen White, famous Emporia Gazette editor. In an editorial commenting upon the relieving of Bill Hargis as university of Kansas football coach a day following the defeat of Kansas by Oklahoma he described university athletes as "beset, untrained, half-brained, human monkeys."

White said the "Moron alumni" contribute nothing to the endowment fund of any university and are a curse. The editor predicted that some day the university presidents' union will take a big drink of gin and act its nerve up, whereupon it will turn its back squarely on all alumni associations and run the colleges in the interest of education, then the presidents will let football go straight to hell from whence it came.
