CHAMP CLARK IS DEAD; VICTIM OF PLEURISY

Democratic Leader, 57, March 2.—Champion Clark, 57, died here today of pleurisy, a complication of diseases for more than a week.

In the Democratic national convention at Baltimore in 1912, Champ Clark led on twenty-seven ballots for the nomination as candidate for president and had a clear majority on nine ballots, prior to the final naming of Woodrow Wilson. The two-thirds rule of the convention alone prevented Mr. Clark's nomination. The honor which his party thus paid him was the most notable of his public life. In American political history Martin Van Buren was the only other man who failed of the Democratic nomination for the presidency after having received a majority of the votes in the national convention, but he enjoyed the unique distinction of being elected subsequently.

William J. Bryan's sensational attack on Mr. Clark at Baltimore, charging him with being affiliated with leaders representing "the interests," held the convention in deadlock for more than a week when it ended in the nomination of Wilson. Bryan's speech, declaring that Thomas F. Ryan, August Belmont and Charles F. Murphy were supporting Clark, was a bolt from the blue which made the Clark ranks waver. Clark supporters declared afterward that none of the three leaders mentioned were for Clark as first choice, but that the unit rule carried the New York delegation for the Clark forces.

The breach between Bryan and Clark never healed, although they met at a luncheon arranged by mutual friends a few months later and exchanged perfunctory speeches. Coolness between Clark and Wilson wore off after the president entered the White House and on legislative policies they worked in harmony except in one notable instance, the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption, which Speaker Clark opposed successfully.

The failure of his candidacy at Baltimore never ceased to be the disappointment of Mr. Clark's life. He refused nomination as vice-president and told the house on the eve of his defeat that he preferred to remain a speaker.

His election to the speakership of the house came in the Sixty-second congress prior to the Baltimore convention and it was by a united Democracy in recognition of the contest Mr. Clark had made the rule of Speaker Joseph Cannon. Mr. Clark had served in every congress since and including the Fifty-third in 1883 except the Fifty-fourth when he was beaten.

Although Champ Clark was known as a Missourian he was born in Anderson, Ky., on March 7, 1850. He was christened James Beauchamp Clark, but early in life he reduced this to Champ Clark. His first work was as a farm hand, clerk in a general store, and on a country newspaper.

He was educated at Kentucky university and Bethany college, and the Cincinnati law school. For a short time he was president of Marshall college and, at 22, held the record of being the youngest college president in the United States. In 1875 he moved to Missouri.

ARGUMENT ON WOMAN JURORS TEARS BRITAIN

By Associated Press
LONDON, March 2.—A storm of discussion, both commendation and condemnation, has swept through London newspapers as the result of the innovation of having women serve with men as members of juries in divorce cases.

The first mixed jury to sit in the London divorce court has been unable to arrive at a verdict and has been discharged after hearing the case for four days.

In the comment on the proceedings, newspaper editorials and the contributed communications of readers have discussed principally the propriety of obliging women as members of the jury to examine all the evidence submitted.

In this case counsel for one of the parties to the action announced that he had evidence to submit which he did not consider it proper to place before woman jurors. The judge said he was helpless in the matter but ultimately only the men jurors examined the evidence.

Lawyer Wants No More.
 Sir Edward Marshall-Hall, counsel for one of the parties, said that this was the first case he had ever conducted before a mixed jury and that he hoped he would never have to deal with a case of such a nature again.

"It is undeniable that there are many cases in which the assistance of women will be of the greatest value of the court," said Sir Edward, "but there are other cases in which, from the nature of the evidence much will have to be discussed before them. It is undesirable that they should serve."

Sir Edward's comment evoked a hot retort from George Bernard Shaw, playwright, who writing to the Daily News "as a member of the male sex," took issue with the views of the barrister.

"Sir Edward Marshall-Hall's assumption that my sensibilities in this matter are less delicate than women's is not only unfounded but extremely offensive," wrote Mr. Shaw. "Why in the name of common sense did this blushing barrister exclude six jurymen from the apology which he thought it necessary to make for presenting them (some of the exhibits in the case) to the six jurymen."

What Ho! Janitors Object to Prying Into Tenants' Acts

By Associated Press
VIENNA, March 2.—The concierges, or janitors, of Vienna apartment houses have risen in protest against one of the oldest and most distinctive institutions of Europe and refused longer to act as spies for the police.

The employment of concierges as police spies has been the custom for so long that its origin seems to be lost in history and they have been counted as one of the most valuable aids to the police of most continental capitals.

They have been required to note and report the coming and going of their tenants and generally to maintain an espionage over the people whom they serve.

Americans Object.
 The practice has been one of the most objectionable features of foreign life to Americans who have made their homes temporarily or permanently in French and Austrian cities, for Americans are unused to having their daily actions the subject of reports to the police.

The concierges of Vienna have always received most of their income from the tips of tenants. They carry the keys to the building and without their aid tenants could not obtain admission at night. The janitors now refuse to stay up all hours of the night to open doors for late comers and, instead of tips, demand fixed salaries from the landlords. They also ask for clean, dry rooms, sick insurance benefit at the proprietors' expense and other reforms. They insist that every tenant shall be provided with a front door key.

HOUSE MOVES AWAY DURING HIS ABSENCE
CHICAGO, March 2.—"Where's my wandering house tonight?"

So sang J. Van Wiehle when he returned home to find his house gone.

Mr. Van Wiehle was quite peeved. He had brought a purchaser for the dwelling along with him, but the dwelling was gone.

Neighbors told the police the house was last seen disappearing on Wentworth avenue on the wagons of a house moving company. Van Wiehle blames an old feud with a house mover for the disappearance.

FOUR-MILE LEAP FROM SKY IS CALLED THRILL OF THRILLS

LAWTON, Okla., March 2.—"If you would attain the ultimate in thrills and have some conception of what 'taking a chance' means I can recommend a four-mile drop from above the clouds, with the proper working of a bit of mechanism deciding whether your jump is to be into eternity," said Sergeant Ensel Chambers, 135th Aero Squadron. He had been asked what his thoughts were as he slid from an airplane 22,200 feet in the air and took the chance which gave him the world's record for parachute jumping. The record jump was made at Post Field, the aerial station at Fort Sill, and was the spectacular feature of the mammoth aerial circus staged yesterday by army officers.

"The altimeter registered 21,000 feet," said Ensel, "when Lieutenant Wagner, my pilot, looked back and said 'you had better jump, as I can't make it any higher.' I started up out of my seat, only to fall back exhausted. I had great difficulty in breathing on account of the tremendous height, and I could see that the lieutenant was in distress. I was afraid of losing consciousness, and pulling myself together, I stood up.

"Get ready and jump," shouted Wagner. I could just hear him above the hum of the motor. I slid off the side of the seat and as I did so I heard Wagner shout: 'Goodby.' I thought it was goodby, in truth, for I must have dropped fully 2,000 feet before the parachute opened. In reality, it could not have been five seconds, but it seemed to me as many minutes as I worked at the lever which released the parachute.

I thought it was not going to open and was preparing to try to release the auxiliary parachute strapped to my back when I was brought up with a jerk and realized the bag had opened and that I was safe, although still nearly four miles from earth. After that it was clear sailing. I drifted in a southeasterly direction. I was revived by the change in atmosphere, and looking back I could see Wagner just emerging from a cloud. Later he told me as soon as I left the plane I went into a nose dive as he was afraid of losing consciousness.

"I saw I was going to make a fair landing in open country, and I opened the second parachute. The two bags dragged me for half a mile after I 'lit,' but with the exception of a few bumps and scratches I didn't have a bad time. It was all routine with the exception of that one flash of moment that the parachute was not going to open, and believe me, you can't put into words the way you feel under these circumstances you'll always get your thrill in parachute jumping in that moment when you wonder 'will it open?'"

Chambers' record is accepted as official. The registered height by altimeter was 21,000 feet, which, with the height of 1,200 above sea level, makes the official record for the jump 22,200 feet.

ARGENTINA SHIP STRIKE, YEAR OLD, IS TO BE SETTLED

BUENOS AIRES, March 2.—The strike which has paralyzed river and coastal steamship traffic in Argentina for more than a year through a boycott of the Mihanovich Steamship company, tying up more than two hundred vessels, is about to be settled. An agreement has been reached between representatives of the company and the workmen through the mediation of the minister of public works.

BURGLARS ESCAPE WHEN DETECTIVES ARREST EACH OTHER

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 2.—Several men suspected of having been ring-leaders in a burglar organization escaped when the police became confused and started to arrest each other.

Detectives, who were searching a rooming house supposed to have been a hiding place for stolen goods, were mistaken for thieves by members of the vice squad, who held up their brother investigators at the point of guns.

At another place Paul Weisenberg, an officer masquerading as a buyer of stolen goods, summoned help from headquarters, but the police, in the mixup, let the suspects carry Weisenberg away in an automobile.

Luther Thompson was the only suspect whom the police were able to bag during the muddle.

ARTIST TELLS OF HIS STRUGGLE FOR HEALTH

Nashville Man says Both Himself and Wife Put Tanlac to the Test and Both Were Restored.

"Both my wife and myself have put Tanlac to the test and we call it the greatest medicine in the world," said J. T. Montamat, 1123 Third ave., North Nashville, Tenn., artistic stenographer for the Cusack company. Mr. Montamat has lived in Nashville for nearly thirty years and is highly respected by all who know him.

"Before my wife took Tanlac she suffered so badly from gas on her stomach and heartburn that she often said she felt like she was smothering to death. She actually had to sit up in bed to get her breath.

"Well, in a short time after she began taking Tanlac her trouble disappeared and she was like a different person. Seeing the good results in her case, I began taking the medicine myself and it soon had me feeling like a brand new man.

"Up to that time I had been troubled with indigestion. I had no appetite and the little I did eat seemed to do me about as much harm as good. I felt so tired and languid I hated to move around, and was getting in such a run-down condition that it worried me.

"Tanlac acted with me just like it did with my wife, and although that was three years ago, we have enjoyed the best of health all along. However, I keep a bottle of Tanlac in the house all the time, and when I feel myself getting run down, the medicine soon has me feeling all right again. I am convinced that Tanlac is without an equal. Our friends all know how it helped us and I don't hesitate to tell anyone about it."

Tanlac is sold in Ranger by Phillips Pros., and in Eastland by Butler Drug Co.—Adv.

STORE CLOTHES COWBOY PROVED HE COULD RIDE

International News Service. FORT COLLINS, Col., March 2.—George Vermilya, "tenderfoot from the East," is the hero of Fort Collins and the surrounding "cow country" today, and the "real western cowpunchers" from the richly irrigated ranch land of Larimer county are "thumbs down" on unidentified strangers, after a faux pas that cost the home boys a neat sum of the coin of the realm.

Vermilya, who is known as "Mustang Jack" in Montana, where he has been foreman of cattle rustlers for some years, is of French descent, with the quiet, refined manners of a true Corsican.

"Mustang Jack" breezed into Fort Collins several weeks ago togged out in cowboy raiment—of a dazzling fashion—a candy-stripe silk shirt, dazzling trousers, shiny leather boots and spurs. A pale silk handkerchief draped around his shapely neck completed the "Bill Hart" attire. In addition, Vermilya boasts a feathery mustache and a "Buffalo Bill" goatee.

With all this gay scenery and Vermilya's past history unknown, the cowpunchers who float into Fort Collins on week-ends saw him and laughed. A "four-flusher" they agreed among themselves.

As Vermilya persisted in appearing on the streets in this "movie" attire they swore and vowed to "show him up." They persuaded Bill Putney of Log Cabin to bring his "wild horse" down from the ranch. Putney declares that this animal had never been ridden, and the broncho's reputation, gained by his actions, had made all the local talent "cowpunchers" backward about attempting to ride him. It was decided that the "four-flusher's" bluff would be called through the agency of Putney's "wild horse."

The "tenderfoot from the East," however, was not easily bluffed. He offered to cover any amount of money that could be raised.

Arrayed in a brighter shirt than ever before, and with his goatee slicked down more than usual, Vermilya, surrounded by scores of "real cowpunchers" went out to Prospect park to have his bluff called.

It took just six of the "real cowpunchers" to hold the broncho's head while he was being blindfolded, according to impartial eyewitnesses.

After the "wild horse" had been blindfolded, "Mustang Jack" mounted. It is alleged that the stirrups had been tampered with to make things more difficult, but if that is true it was done in vain. Scratching the neck and shoulder of the unruly steed with one spur and the flank with the other, the "tenderfoot" showed the "real cowpunchers" a few things about riding bad horses.

Twice around the track he went, never "pulling leather" or even indicating that he wanted to do so. He had complete control of the "wild horse" at all times, and when the demonstration had ended the stakeholder paid over the wages.

"Mustang Jack" is still in Fort Collins wearing his "loud scenery," and saying little, as usual. It is said the aggregate loss of the "real cowpunchers" to Vermilya ran into four figures.

National Parks Run for Private Profit, Is Charge

DALLAS, March 2.—Exclusive transportation privileges in the national parks of the United States were attacked and re-establishment of competitive service urged in a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the Texas Chamber of Commerce forwarded with a personal letter to each of the Texas congressmen and senators.

The resolution asked "that Congress take appropriate steps to require the secretary of the interior to revoke all contracts giving exclusive privileges and permit competitive service to be re-established in our national parks." It further requested that "legislation be enacted that in the future will prohibit the granting of exclusive privileges and provide that all rules and regulations promulgated by the department of the interior or park officials be subject to review by the courts."

Monopolies of transportation and hotels have been established "greatly to the detriment of the traveling public," according to the resolution. Such monopolies, it said, have been created and continue to exist through failure to provide means for fixing responsibility to Congress or the public. Because of this, congressional action was proposed.

Charge Tolls Also. "It was clearly the intention of Congress to prevent monopolization of the parks," the resolution reads. "We are advised that under government regulations in the Rocky Mountain park, public roads have been seized in violation of the law and in Yellowstone park a toll of $7.50 per car is being collected by park officials without legal authority under the statute creating the parks."

EARLY SEASON FOR CATCHING SALMON

PORTLAND, Me., March 2.—The first salmon of the season, a six pounder, has been caught at Sebago lake by Carleton D. Martin of East Sebago, through the ice, breaking records for early fishing. The melt run along the west shore is unprecedented.

At Bath fishermen report lobsters are plentiful and a harbinger of early spring. Large catches have been made. In eastern Maine grass fires are numerous in sections where a foot of snow covered the ground at this time last year.

LAMB. Just how far modern police methods have eclipsed the efforts of the detective of fiction will be shown on the screen, for the first time in "Someone in the House," the Metro special all-star production which comes to the Lamb theatre, commencing today.

John Ince, directing the production has used all of the methods of crook trailing advocated by police officials in the unravelling of the crime mystery picture in this production.

In the telling of the story every phase of New York life—from the mysterious haunts of the underworld to a luxurious summer home on Long Island—is faithfully reproduced. To accomplish this it was necessary to bring shrubbery, flowers and even trees to the Metro studio grounds at Hollywood, Cal., from the east, in order to provide the necessary background of New York and Long Island verdure.

The great studio lots at Hollywood were converted into a country place with a spacious home that might have been lifted from its resting place on the shores of Long Island. From the automobile approaches in the front to the walled-in formal garden in the rear, not a detail has been overlooked.

It is in this setting that a nimble-fingered member of the semi-underworld—a character such as only New York could produce—suddenly appears to ply his profession. "The Dancer" as he is known because of his preference for social affairs, immediately fits himself into the social gathering, proves that he has wits and nerve and becomes a favorite—almost. The "almost" is the exception that provokes numerous complications, thrills and surprises.

Down on the lower end of New York's Bowery is an old half-basement pawn shop kept by a typical East Side "uncle," which is reproduced in detail.

From this Bowery shop the onlooker is carried on a swiftly moving journey past the Tombs, to police headquarters into the mysteries of the city's police machinery and then out on Long Island.

"The Dancer" has been visualized in the person of Edmund Lowe; while Volva Vale, Howard Crampton, Edward Jobson, William J. Irving, Cara Lee, Lawrence Grant, Tom McGuire, Jack Levering, Edward Connelly, and Henry Miller, Jr., are included in the all-star cast. The play was scenarized by Lois Zellner and Marc Robbins, George K. Hollister was cameraman.

MAJESTIC. "A Butterfly on the Wheel" is a film adaptation of the drama of similar title which had a successful run in this country. The photoplay version sets forth the story in vivid detail and affords pretty Vivian Martin, as the heroine, Peggy, many opportunities of displaying her powers of fascination. Holbrook Blinn, as Peggy's husband, Admaston, is provided with one of those heavy emotional roles in which he is always at his best, and in the present instant his forceful acting carries the piece on without a halting moment from the beginning to the final scene. Playing at the Majestic.

TEMPLE. "Marry for whim and leave the rest to Fate and the divorce court," was the New York idea of marriage and the story of a group of people who believed that and carelessly put it into practice, is told in the latest Reart vehicle for Alice Brady, "The New York Idea," which will be the attraction at the Temple today only.

Miss Brady has the role of Cynthia, a young matron who, suffering from ennui of her married life, was ready to pick a quarrel with her husband when he showed a little attention to a recreant and notorious divorcee. She remained in that state of piquancy until she was finally able to obtain a divorce. The judge who granted her the divorce was the ex-husband of the woman sought by her husband and the judge, admiring the beauty of his client, thought she would make a splendid second wife. Accordingly he proposed and the girl, still in a fit of pique, accepted him.

The love tangle grew more complicated as the four continued to meet in public, which they necessarily did unless they gave up all social life. After all sorts of distressing affairs, Cynthia and her first husband come to the conclusion that they still love each other and the resolve to be married all over again, and this time with the good old fashioned idea.

Miss Brady is a pleasing figure throughout the picture and in the supporting cast are a galaxy of good players, including Lowell Sherman, Hedda Hopper, George Howell, Marie Burke and others.

LOOKING UP.

Bill the barber says that business is looking up a little bit. And Bill is really in a position to know. The state of business, foolish as it may sound, is indicated about as much by the number of men who suddenly begin dropping in for a shave, and those adding a shampoo to the haircut, as by anything else.

The opening of the Gholson hotel, despite its being delayed by the bank closing, is another sign that finance has faith in Ranger. The fact that the three state banks show increases over last reports is not to be greeted except with optimism.

With the spring will come a resumption of oil activities and perhaps higher prices, according to men who have spent long years in the game. They say that the two months after the holidays are always the duller in the business; that there is hardly a year that workmen are not laid off at this time. There will be greater activity here, and with greater activity there will be more prosperity, even with oil at its present level.

Circumstances combine to delay the building of the Texas & Pacific station. The latest job is finding that the state laws will require fifty days to give legal notice of the election instead of thirty. Under the circumstances, that appears unavoidable. But the railway company says it is anxious to begin building as soon as title difficulties are removed, and perhaps that is so. Construction of this station should begin by May 15. That will be more work and more prosperity.

Ranger's million-dollar building program for 1921 is still on tap. Not one item of it has been abandoned. With the approach to normal activity looming in the offing, Ranger will once more pick up step and forge farther to the front.

A DISAPPOINTING CABINET.

Mr. Harding's Cabinet is the saddest thing he has done yet. He has selected it, one can plainly see, with everything in mind except the primarily important job of carrying on efficiently and disinterestedly the public business. These influences behind the several nominations are as yet hidden, but few of them can have been both good and wise. The only two conspicuously pleasing to liberal-minded Americans are Mr. Hughes and Mr. Hoover. Mr. Hughes can be trusted to administer the state department, if Mr. Penrose will let him, with dignity and some foresight. He is in favor of a League of Nations, although he has shown distressing weakness in supporting it during the period when support was most needed. But will Mr. Penrose let Mr. Hughes be a good secretary of state? In one of those moments of candor which win him the reluctant admiration of many who generally wish him at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, Mr. Penrose recently remarked:

"I do not think it matters much who is secretary of state. Congress—especially the Senate—will blaze the way in connection with our foreign policies. I do not think we will be satisfied to sit back and take the programme of any secretary of state."

If Mr. Hughes sticks to his guns there will be a fight, for which Mr. Harding must be thanked, but there is no assurance of an issue of which any American can be proud. As for Mr. Hoover, he has been offered an obscure and hitherto unimportant post, which at this writing it is not certain he will accept. If he is to be of great service in it he must enormously extend its responsibilities. This he may be able to do, but no thanks will be owing to Mr. Harding.

Of the remaining candidacies those of Senator Weeks, Harry Daugherty, Will Hays and Senator Fall are political in the least worthy sense. None of these men is a progressive and Weeks and Fall are notorious reactionaries. The delegation of the powers of the department of the interior to Fall is a major calamity for the conservation movement; it will probably carry us back to the worst of the pre-Rooseveltian days; the water-power pirates are already getting ready for action and the looters of forests have their axes sharpened. Mr. Mellon has been somewhat over-exposed by the Morning World, but his interests are such that he can hardly be a judicial master of the treasury.

Mr. Denby has an excellent war record, but otherwise he is a blank page. James J. Davis, the proposed secretary of labor, is described as a "labor leader," but he is really a business man out of touch with the active labor movement. Henry Wallace is an editor of farm publications and a man of some experience in investigating and handling agricultural problems. He may do very well in the agricultural department.

The Cabinet is as mediocre and as hidebound as Mr. Harding himself. It can neither evolve nor execute any liberal or inspiring policies. It is dead on its feet. Mr. Harding might have made his administration effective by surrounding himself with men of ability, reputation and liberality. He has deliberately thrown away the opportunity.—New York Globe.

And as soon as she got around the corner I quick got up and wawked after her like a persin catching up to her by assident, saying, O Helle Mary, wats you doing, taking a wawk?

Yes, sed Mary Watkins. Wich she keep on doing, and I started to wawk alongside of her and tried to think of something elts to say without being able to think of anything except the same thing, wich I sed it, saying Taking a wawk?

Yes, sed Mary Watkins. And we Kepp on wawking alongside of each other with neither of us saying anything, wich I tried to think of something elts and couldnt, thinking, G, she's acting dum today.

And we wawked about 3 more blocks without any conversation happening, me thinking, Heck, this is 2 more blocks without any happening, and I sed, O I jest remember something, excuse me. And I quick turned around and started to wawk back quick like somebody remembering something, feeling beter than wen I was wawking with her on account of not having to think of anything to say.

And I went back and sat on our front steps again and kepp on waiting for something to happen.

Can You Imagine Any of Us Getting Away With This?

THE SHORT CUT TO THE SPRING.

Tinker Bob had heard a great deal about Monkeys, but never had he seen one till now, when he and Lady Duck were on their way to the wonderful Spring of Healing. He was so happy about it that he went up to the little fellow and put his arms about his neck and hugged him tight.

Mrs. Red Robin was fearful of the King's action, for her the Monkey was a very dangerous creature. A fellow who would steal eggs and chase birds off their nests was to be feared. If he couldn't get them to leave their nests by chattering and shaking the limbs he would throw stones and sticks or anything else he could lay his hands on.

"You're just the fellow I want to see," said Tinker Bob. "Your name shall be 'Silky' and you shall go with us all the way to the spring."

Lady Duck thought the King had gone crazy when he spoke after this manner to such a thief as this fellow was. Not only that, Lady Duck was about as much afraid of him as she was the Great Wolf of the Forest. Any creature so bold as to walk right up and put his arm about the neck of a stranger was no creature to Lady Duck's liking.

When Silky heard these words from the King he danced and chattered for joy. "To the wonderful Spring of Healing, is that where you go today?" he asked as he continued to dance about the King. "If that is the place you want to find I will show you a short way to go."

"That is where we are going," said the King, "show us the short cut and we will continue on our way."

Mrs. Red Robin was very sure that Silky, the Monkey, would lead them into the thickest forest and there lose them and leave them to die; or he would take them into the hands of his friends who would destroy them. She chirped and chirped and chirped, but the King went in the new direction with Silky, and Lady Duck followed close behind.

There really was a new route to the spring, but Red Robin knew nothing about it.

"This is a better path than the one we were following," said Tinker, as he quickened his step. Silky was leading the way, and from time to time he would climb to the top of the trees that stood by the path. "What do you go up there for?" asked the King, as he watched the Monkey climb from limb to limb. "That is hard work, and this journey is long. If you go with us you will be tired out before you get half way there."

Silky was leading the way.

Silky the Monkey paid little attention to the words of the King, but went on doing the same thing over and over. Then suddenly from the top of a tree he began to chatter loudly, "The spring, the spring."

Then Tinker Bob knew they must be nearing the wonderful place.

BRITISH LABOR DENOUNCES SMALL JOBLESS INSURANCE

LONDON, March 2.—The Labor party and the Trades Union National congress, at a conference today on the question of unemployment, passed a resolution declaring the government's policy of extending the unemployment insurance act was "lamentable and inadequate to meet the present situation."

It urged that every effort be made in the by-elections to defeat coalition candidates.

MAN IN THE MOON A TARGET

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 2.—The "Man in the Moon" is beaming down on Mother Earth with the same complacent smile, but nevertheless, he's beginning to worry. Serene in his place in the Heavens he has looked down on warring nations hurling tons of high explosives at each other with no thought that any shell fired on the earth would ever reach him.

Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark university, however, has announced that he will take a pot shot at the Man in the Moon this summer. He has perfected his plans for a rocket which will be propelled from the earth by a succession of smokeless powder explosions. It will be aimed at the moon and will make a flash when it strikes large enough to be visible through telescopes. The rocket will carry an initial mass charge of 6,420 pounds and will travel 6,000 or 7,000 feet a second. Professor Goddard is hopeful of scoring a hit with his rocket. If he does, will an inter-world war between the earth and Mars be one of the super conflicts of future generations?

PUBLIC FORUM

CAPTAIN BLACKWELL DEFENDS RECORD HERE.

Ranger, Texas, March 1.

To the Ranger Daily Times:—Prompted by due deference and regard for the many friends and acquaintances I have made in Ranger during the months that it has been my pleasure to reside in this city, I feel that it is incumbent upon me to address to you the following letter.

For the past seven or eight years it has been my pleasure to have been connected with the state ranger forces in various capacities, and during this time I served for eighteen months as sergeant in headquarters company at Austin, Texas, and upon my leaving this post, I was elevated to the captaincy of the Emergency company last October, and was placed in charge of the situation there growing out of the strike at that time. On the first of December, 1920, my company and I were sent to Ranger, where we have been stationed up to the time of my resignation from the state ranger service some few days ago, and in this connection, I desire to say that on our arrival in this city we found many complicated and vexing and difficult propositions existing, and we had to handle those problems with diplomacy and tact, that our services here might be the most effective in bringing about the desired results.

Immediately prior to our coming to Ranger, there had been and still existed a great degree of antagonism to some of the rangers of the company that immediately preceded our coming, and the local officers and citizens, and before I could be placed in a position to obtain the best results toward a more effective clean-up of the city and vicinity it was necessary to bring into harmonious and concerted working the local officers of this county and vicinity. This was done, and by working in harmonious relations with all the peace officers of the state, county, city and precinct, some very desirable results towards the betterment of the conditions in and around Ranger have been brought about. And it is with due credit to all of the peace officers of the county, city and precinct that we have been as successful as we have in enforcing the laws of the state. My company and I have made many arrests of violators of the law, and many boot-leggers, white-slavers, crooks and thugs, and law-breakers in general have been run down and apprehended and brought to justice during the few months that it has been my pleasure to stay in this wonderful city, and in this connection, I desire to emphasize that on the night of the last raid by the state ranger force, brought here from Galveston, upon the Commercial hotel, that I and my men were on this self-same night engaged in the actual capture of an automobile thief, with several cases of whiskey and rum, and were engaged with other matters pertaining to my official duties at this time. This same house had been at least three or four times prior to this date raided by my men and a number of arrests made, and many fines paid for this character of violation of the law, and on one occasion, immediately before this last-mentioned raid, about sixty-five men had been arrested in this hotel and charged with gambling, and several were paid. I have been criticized because more of the men were not required to pay fines, and in reply to this, I would say that when the men were arrested and turned over to the courts my duties ended.

I would have it further understood, that speaking for my men and myself, that it was absolutely unnecessary for the county attorney to import rangers from Austin or from any other place to have effected the arrest of the alleged gamblers in the last raid on the Commercial hotel, for both my men and myself would have been but too glad to have raided the hotel, and have served the county's attorney in any manner possible, and this unwarranted thrust at me and my men, and at other peace officers of this county, city and precinct was and is an unjustified insult that is unpardonable. I have been associated with the local officers here in making many arrests, and I have ever found them to be heartily in favor of enforcing the law, and we have worked in complete harmony and unity of purpose in our endeavors to make Ranger a better place to live in, and I want it understood that any insinuations or innuendoes or intimations that the peace officers of this county, from the sheriff and his men, and the City of Ranger and its men and the precinct officers, are delinquent or inefficient or unfaithful in the discharge of their official duties is absolutely untrue and wholly without any foundation whatsoever.

In conclusion, may I say that it is my sincere hope that all the officers of the law of this state and city may from henceforth work in harmony and full accord, and may all conflict and antagonism be buried, and that all the forces of organized society unite upon one purpose and that the political, social, industrial, commercial and moral betterment and advancement of our county, city, state and nation.

Very respectfully,
CAPT. C. J. BLACKWELL,
Emergency Co., No. 1.

RESTRICTIONS ON KAISER'S LIBERTY TO BE ENFORCED

THE HAGUE, March 2.—J. B. Kan secretary-general of Dutch governmental affairs, has been instructed to carry out the regulations now in force, or any which might be taken, to restrict the liberties of the Hohenzollerns.

Both the former kaiser and his son are considered as foreigners who, because of the positions they held, must content themselves with restricted liberty.

SOVIET SEEKS LOST LANDS.

COPENHAGEN, March 2.—Mscow dispatches quote reports that Soviet Russia is working to create a federation of all the states which formed part of the old Russian empire and since have become detached from it. The object stated is to prevent "the growing Entente influence."

Why It Pays to Ask For Advertised Goods:

Modern Method Merchants Favor Advertised Articles

They know that advertising multiplies sales and reduces cost production—that advertised goods mean more money's worth for their customers and more money for them.

In nearly every section of the United States there are legitimate concerns manufacturing food products, and they advertise them extensively.

Their object in advertising is to create a wide demand so that they can afford to provide the very best at the lowest possible price.

Manufacturers of this class have adopted a standard of quality which they maintain, and the purchaser is always protected—may be sure at all times of the utmost in nutrition value as well as full money's worth.

That is not to say that the manufacturer or merchant who has still to enter the field of advertising does not sell goods of high merit.

It is in fact a testimonial to enterprise that some goods are being successfully sold in a limited market in the fact of advertising competition, and without the merchandising and cost advantage which advertising so ably affords.

Their present success, however, is small in comparison to that which awaits the time when they work in harmony WITH this mighty modern-day force.

The advertising manufacturer puts his name behind his product and his guarantee accompanies each sale. He is always ready to stand back of it, and he keeps faith with trade and consumer alike.

So it is with the retailer selling advertised products. His name is a guarantee affording the same assurance as to quality and value as the manufacturer's. His responsibility is equally great. In this way it happens that an advertised article is often thus doubly guaranteed to the purchaser.

Advertising is a pledge to the public, a pledge of worthiness of product and of fair price. It pays, therefore, to ask for advertised goods—and to insist upon getting them.

NEW SUPER-BERRY IS ORIGINATED AT A. & M.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., March 2.—A new berry, "the A. & M.," has been originated by Prof. H. Ness, chief of the division of horticulture, agricultural experiment station, Texas A. & M. college. The new berry has been obtained by crossing the brilliant red raspberry, with a species of wild dewberry (rubus rubescens). From a large number of plants of the third generation of the original cross, eight different descendants were selected in 1919 because of superior qualities. These have this year, after two seasons of fruiting, been propagated from the tips for distribution among the public.

FOUR-BITS NOW LEGAL RATE FOR TAXI SERVICE

In future it will be illegal for any service car driver to charge more than 50 cents for each person carried for any distance not to exceed one-half mile. This action was decided upon yesterday afternoon by the city commission, when it decided to amend its ordinance that allows service car drivers to collect $1 for each person for the first mile of a haul.

Under the new ruling the law will read: Fifty cents for the first half-mile, $1 for the first mile, and 50 cents for the next mile on the fraction thereof. The police department will be instructed to see that this law is enforced. The amendment was made after it was stated in the commission meeting that service car drivers were in the habit of charging fares of $2 between the two passenger stations, and other such unreasonable charges.

The law provides for a minimum fine of $5 and court costs for violation of this law, which would run the total to $15.70.

The question of fixing a price for transferring baggage was also discussed, but it was decided to hold this over until a future meeting, until it has been learned what other cities have done on this matter. The city secretary was instructed to write to both Fort Worth and Dallas and find out what laws those cities had passed on the question.

BUSINESS WOMEN ELECT PERMANENT OFFICERS

Officers to serve the Business Women's club for the next year were elected last night at a meeting held in the basement of the Methodist church. At this meeting five new members also were taken into the organization.

The officers elected were: Mrs. Roger Fenlaw, President; Miss Selma Goode, first vice president; Dr. Stephens, second vice president; Miss Line, treasurer; Miss Sullivan, secretary; Mrs. Crawford, employment officer.

After business of the meeting was transacted, the club had its regular class in athletics.

WILSON AWAITS PERMIT TO MOVE PRIVATE STOCK

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The last of the heavy household furniture owned by President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was moved from the white house to S street today. The President's private stock of liquors, held chiefly for medicinal purposes, it is explained, is all that remains to go.

Careless movers were about to place several innocent-looking boxes aboard a van today when it was recalled that a legal permit to move liquor had not been obtained.

"The shipment probably would never have been questioned, but it will be delayed until the permit is issued," it was stated at the White House.

While riding this afternoon President Wilson did not stop at his new home, although he passed by, so that his daughter, Miss Margaret, who accompanied him, could see it.

TWO LIQUOR-LADEN TRUNKS CAUGHT HERE

Two trunks containing eighteen quarts of Canadian Club whisky and two one-gallon cans of alcohol, were captured yesterday by the police department after arrival in the city by express. No arrests were made. One of the trunks was packed with lint cotton around the whisky. The other was stuffed with cotton pillows. Patrolman Jim Hunt made the capture.

The wet goods were turned over to the sheriff's department and a receipt taken for their delivery, according to a statement made by Chief of Police Reynolds.

TOURISTS "CUT" LONDON.

LONDON, March 2.—It is said that one of the reasons for the "slump" in London hotels is that American visitors to London last year were complaining much about overcharging, and this season are cutting London out of their European tour.
