Poultry Producers of 2 Counties Meet Here

Definite Action May Be Deferred Until Plan of Procedure Is Understood.

It appeared unlikely early this afternoon that the poultry growers of Eastland and Stephens counties as-sembled in Ranger to discuss the organization of a poultry exchange, would take definite action on the or-ganization agreement of the farm bureau poultry producers association.

Before adjourning at 12:20 p. m.
to lunch at the McCleskey hotel as the guests of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, several brief talks were made by men who counselled against hasty action on the contract, which would bind the units of a poultry association to numerous rules of the Texas association. Commercial Club Is Making Plans to Advance City's Business Interests.

W. R. Bell, president of the Texas
Farm Bureau Poultry Producers exchange, and also president of the Sweetwater association, was the first speaker and he explained the working plan of the association. He answered many questions from the floor about his personal experience as a member of the Sweewater organization.

The comittee, appointed to study the contract at an association meeting last week, reported that the members didn't have sufficient informatics.

The Commercial club, organized last week, is the latest civic organization in Ranger and its activities promise to make it among the business interests of the city. Its membership at this time includes merchants handling clothing, dry goods, ready-to-wear goods and groceries, but it is said that any merchant wishing to cooperate with in the purpose of the club will be welcomed as a member.
