Italian Tells How Mexicans Fled Capitol

MEXICO CITY, June 15.—A diary written by Aldo Baroni, an Italian journalist, gives a vivid picture of the flight of President Carranza and his expedition of 10,000 persons from Mexico City in the vain effort to reach Vera Cruz in safety. It leads up to the moment when the word was passed in the expedition to "save yourselves who can," the trains were abandoned, Carranza bade Señor Baroni goodbye and began the march into the hills which ended in his death.

The diary discloses the fact that Carranza evidently foresaw his end for Señor Baroni quotes him as saying when he left the train to take refuge in the hills: "You saw me start my first journey in 1913 and you will see my last in 1920." Parts of the diary as published by El Universal read: "I followed Don Venustiano when he left Saltillo in 1913 with 300 men in his heroic march against Huerta. Today I am leaving the capital with him to be probably a witness of his end. I am writing, seated on a bag of rice in the presidential supply car. The disorganization which prevails in the station yards is terrible. Nobody has the power to organize anything. The expedition appears like one to Africa (referring to the enormous amount of baggage). I just saw in a cage the lions of Barragan that used to amuse the wonder of the bourgeoisie in the Paseo de la Reforma."

At Anizaco he recorded: "Word has passed that the last three trains have been lost. It appears that good luck is with Don Venustiano. The word 'treason' is on every lip. The citizens are jammed in the cars like sardines. Our march is like that of a herd of savages. The military trains are filled with soldiers, who have brought their children, domestic animals, dogs, chickens and parrots. Their women cause the greatest disorder. In the trains are more than 5,000 women and children who wail, cry, cough, sob and impede progress. In front of the presidential train is a luxurious Pullman buffet car, symbol of disorganization and immorality. A number of girls elegantly dressed and a few of the average youths, comment and grope from the windows. They appear like picknickers."

"We leave San Marcos at night with the lights out for the enemy menaces the rear guard and flanks. The ill-will of the trainees has been noticeable since we left Mexico City. Air raid planes have roared from some of the troops and without orders they threaten to crash into the ones preceding them. Water is becoming scarce. There has been nonilitary discipline since we left the capital. The troops are demoralized. The leaders act independently. (General) Murguia runs everything."

"The first shots break the morning stillness. On horseback, followed by only one aide, Don Venustiano advances at a trot. The first train of the expedition has few medical supplies and the girls of the feminine train offer their petticoats as bandages. Nobody had time to think of medical dressings but the lions of Barragan were not forgotten. He personally led forward the cavalry on the right flank when they began to retire. Murguia has flanked the enemy and defeated him. Under a mesquite bush a deputy is ransacking a trunk of red meat and green sauce. Luis Cabrera is organizing a battalion of civilians. 'All who have no arms step forward!' It resembles a scene from 'The Chocolate Soldier'. A prisoner is questioned. We learn that Vera Cruz is still in the hands of the rebels. Candido Aguilar, almost alone, has fled to Zongolica. 'Murguia arrives, amidst cheers. The victorious troops parade. I see an order of the day captured from the enemy. In it Obregon orders that the train be stopped, but that the president, if he will, be allowed to proceed to Vera Cruz, with full guarantees and an escort."

"The trains proceed slowly. We arrive at Rinconada. Ten kilometers of the train is wrapped in silence. There is no water. A living chain passes it from hand to hand to replenish the supply of a dead locomotive. Don Venustiano watches. Not a note of the train is to be heard. He is gazing in his breast shows on his face. This man is made of rock."

"Carranza has statesmanlike qualities, but a great defect. He does not know Capote, he is surrounded by incapable. Honest, he allows thieves at his side. 'I am aroused by a terrific squealing. Soldiers and civilians have looted the soiled ranch of 348 hogs. Soon the train resembles butcher shops. I am told we are to continue our journey on foot. The water problem continues unsolved. Orders have been given to burn the records of the general staff. 'An airplane is to fly over the enemy lines. It has gasoline for one hour. Santana (the aviator) returns. He tells me we are surrounded. The convoy is lost. Violent firing is resumed. The president's train is surrounded with arms and ammunition. Explains how our artillery should be used. It would be enormously ridiculous if it were not so terribly tragic. The soldiers' women stoically continue cooking."

"Milan (General Augustin Millan governor of the state of Mexico) is brought back, fatally shot through the head. Other wounded arrive. There are no doctors, no medicines. 'The first serious moment has come. The president has ordered the trains abandoned and the march to San Andres begun on foot. I have bid Carranza goodbye. His smile is sad, but his voice is firm as he says: 'You saw me start my first journey in 1913 and you will see my last in 1920.' '1 p. m. Carranza returns from the front at a gallop. The firing is increasing. The first train is burning. The troops are scattering. Now a great silence. '4:22 p. m. A cloud of enemies arrives. I see my old friend, General Jacinto Trevino. He is placing sentinels around the treasure train. At his feet in a cage the lion cubs of Barragan are gnawing a bloody bone."

NEW TEMPLE THEATRE OPENS NEXT SUNDAY WITH FEATURE FILM

The fixtures for the new Temple theatre in the Southland hotel building on Austin street are being installed today. The management plans to open the new showhouse next Sunday.

Four hundred chairs have been received and are being put into place. The seats will occupy both the lower floor and the balcony, with which the house is provided. The new equipment also includes a beaded screen, which is said to be the very best for moving pictures. In addition a Schubert pipe organ is being installed which will be operated by a skilled organist.

The Temple is owned by the Southern Enterprises company, which operates forty moving picture houses over the state. According to its manager, Ollie Brownlee, it will be the coolest show house in town. To this end, two six-foot typhoon exhaust fans have been installed in the rear of the building. The interior of the building is also to be equipped with eight wall fans and three ceiling fans.

It is planned to open the theatre with Cecil De Mille's "Don't Change Your Husband." This picture is a sequel to "Why Change Your Wife?" and will be a first run picture. This is in accordance with the proposed policy of the company to present only new releases.

OPERA HOUSE.

Five Acts of Good Vaudeville.
The audience shows no favoritism in their approval of the five acts of vaudeville now being shown at the Opera house. Each in its turn makes a distinct impression. Rose and Bell open the show. They do a singing and dancing act followed by trick cycling that is a novelty. During its course, the audience is amused by clever talking. Among other things Miss Dell rides a bicycle around the stage several times with the fore wheel in the air and without touching the handle bars.

Miss Mae Marvin appears alone. She sings both character and popular songs that win the audience.

In a clever comedy playlet, a son who is a lawyer has secured a divorce for his mother and father. Getting them back together and re-married creates some real laughs.

The Imperial Four are singers who can sing. Their act opens with a quartette number and closes with a yodel song. In the meantime one of the number does a solo with a steel saw that has a soft, mournful tone that the listeners like.

The vaudeville offering closes with a tumbling act by Gordon and Germaine, that is both novel and entertaining.

Passenger Truck To Carry Patrons To Shamrock Park

Solution of the question of how to reach Ranger's place to cool off—Shamrock park—will be provided soon in the plan of Duff Clancy, manager of the park, to put into operation a bus line service between downtown and the park.

Arrangements have been made with F. K. Radley, contractor who handled the team and grading work for the new park, for a large truck equipped with seats for twenty-five passengers. Those who wish to take advantage of the inviting beach at Shamrock plunge, or the picnic sites, or the dancing at Shamrock pavilion, may make the trip at a reasonable cost.

The truck also will be operated to carry Nitro fans to Municipal park when the Ranger club is playing at home, it is expected. It may be operated on an all-day basis, providing service between the residence additions and the business section.

MODERN DANCE LACKS SCOPE; "MONOTONOUS!" SAYS PAVLOVA

LONDON.—Mme. Pavlova, the great Russian dancer, does not see anything interesting in the modern dances such as the tango, tinkletoe, jazz and others.

In an interview recently printed here, she says of modern dancing that it is mere movement for personal pleasure, but lacks the grace of the real dance.

"When I was in America they asked me what I thought of the tango, the jazz and the other—what they call—dances. How could I say?" said Pavlova. "To me they are movements—personal, amusement—but not what to us is the dance. To me it is not graceful, not beautiful. It is, for women, too familiar.

"There is no space. On the stage, danced by artists—as a tour, as an exposition framed, too, in space, it is quite another thing. But what suits the stage does not suit the ballroom; all is a ferment—the whole atmosphere.

"Such dances, in a crowded room, no air, often unbecomingly—all intent on personal sensation—oh! Then, too, with us the dance is an ideal; it is not for personal pleasure; an artist rarely can satisfy her own standard. Women, too, on the stage are—they must be—elusive. Her partner touches her with respect, as precious—yes, even in the passion dance one must respect—be respectful—in a sense, for all deep emotion is grave, sincere.

"Now, you see how impossible it is for me, as a lover and a serious student of a great and beautiful art, an art that demands dignity, romance and restraint, to consider what you call 'tango,' 'hug' and 'trot de fox,' and what such funny names—as dance!"

She rippled into a light peal of laughter, which lit up her wonderful eyes until they gleamed like two stars. Such eyes, which had mirrored so many emotions as she spoke; indignation, bewilderment, protest, searching so honestly through her mind for the best word in which to express her meaning in a foreign tongue.

Would you say that these dances might be conducive to—er—slacked the moral sense?"

"What is that?"

"When it had been paraphrased:

"Oh, what a question you ask me! If a person is—how you say?—sensitive (susceptible) it is possible that the embrace, the music, the—her brows crinkled thoughtfully—"the atmosphere" and sense of person make them more sensitive. That is a question that do not affect an artist of the dance. To us it is impersonal.

"I am not Pavlova on the stage to me. I am a swan or a princess, or someone else, and my partner is who he dreams he is. The curtain down, I come awake again, forget the prince and go home to supper! And the next evening again there is the change of illusion.

"I cannot imagine this ballroom dancing—always the same; no scope, no space! What monotony—oppressive, what boring!"

"But," she added with a kindly seriousness, "there are many people that our kind of dance also bore. There are so different tastes! All the same, I think that because things are now so extreme there will soon come a 'swingback.' Let us hope not also too extreme."

"Madame! Madame!" and much knocking.

Alas! she was called back to work. She glided swiftly through the shadows and seemed to alight like a butterfly in the midst of the stage, posed on one tip-toe, white arms uplifted above her smooth dark head, her eyes a-smoulder with dreams.

WELLESLEY, June 15.—Charles Evans Hughes, in an address at Wellesley college commencement today, contrasted the unselfish efforts of war times with the absence of compelling motives and rush of competing interests that have followed. He said "unless we have in peace time that dominant sentiment which prompts continuance and self-sacrificing devotion to public ends and sacrifice of patriotism the war will have been in vain."

MON DIEU, HERE'S WHERE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE FELL FROM TRAIN IN PAJAMAS

The coach window from which he fell and the spot in country where he landed.

Speaking of historic pictures, how about this one? When President Paul Deschanel of France fell out of a window of his private coach while his train was en route to Monterison, France, he certainly set a precedent for presidents. Deschanel was attired in his pajamas when he rolled out. No one on board the train knew of the accident for some time. Deschanel was forced to borrow clothes from workers along the track and walk to the next town.

XLIX. DREAMS OF MERMAIDS AND STRANGE CREATURES.

Now and then come strange visions into your sleep, visions of mermaids who bind their hair With seaweed set with pearls . . .

and of other unearthly creatures, and we are puzzled and perplexed; for they remind us of nothing that may in any way be connected with our everyday lives. Such dreams can mean only one thing: Unexpected events are certain to happen. So manifold are these shapes that it is impossible for us to tell you of

All the forms that stare and glare, Some so fierce and some so fair, Some with snakes where men have hair, Some in the water, some in the air.

Women who dream of such, will find their deepest emotions suddenly aroused their old habits changed, their former ties broken and their hearts set adrift in a sea of wild doubts and desires. If they are with a man while the dream adventure occurs, with a man will occur the adventure in their lives. To married women, such visions spell greater danger than to maids, and to widows they signify another marriage and usually one which is not likely to turn out happily. By observing the hour at which your dream occurs—whether it seemed day, or night, early morn or eve, you can easily determine when the great event will enter your life. For instance: if everything seems dark as the strange shape appears to you, you will know that during the night hours of some day not far distant, you will begin the new and startling period in your existence. If the strange visitor seems to pursue you and you appear to flee from him, you will soon regret ever having engaged in the adventure, but if you seem indifferent to its presence, merely amazed or interested, then the ending of it all will be happy. If the creature touches you, the event will occur within the month and the less distinctly you see it, the further off is the time of the happening. If you see water while the dream progresses, a trip will inevitably be connected with the development.

Men who have such dreams will sustain foolish losses—through gambling, through a silly love affair, through a lawsuit brought about by recklessness or carelessness on their part.

It is written that dreams of this sort mean great happiness in only one instance; if they come to women who are about to become mothers, or to young brides. Very old people who perceive strange creatures in their dreams, especially mermaids or other unhuman water-dwellers, will be forced to assume burdens of which they thought their selves free for the rest of their lives.

The Woman Who Saw

Cured.

The very modern girl was lonely and tired. Days of cold rain had dampened her spirits and when she let herself in what she always thought was her cozy home she was in a fair way to being sorry for herself. She hit all the lights, careless of economy, in her quest for cheer, but the brightness only disclosed the fact that tomorrow was clearing May. She turned to the clock, a range of kitchen, a table and chairs, a lamp, but she turned her chop and in her finger on the great knife!

Very near the point of tears, she scolded herself for being foolish. "Why hadn't he said," she said, "I would have let some one make a home for her fight her battles and share her evenings? Few of the married people she saw ever went into domesticity over another, but they joggled along quite comfortably, and at least they had something else besides themselves to think of. Yes, she must give up reaching for a moon of her own making and look at the practical side of life.

Her cousin had told her, time and time again, that it was a mistake for her to live alone. Well, she was ready to believe it, and just to convince herself that Mary was right she would let the cleaning go and run out to Englewood for the week-end, steep herself in domesticity, play with the babies and, yes, Mary had a good cook, the Sunday's roast itself was well worth the trip.

The girl smiled at her own materialism and took herself to bed. Next morning she took her bag to the office and made the 1:30 train. It was still raining, but she refused to be resentful of the wet crowd of commuters, or the stuffy damp coach. She was off on a spree.

Mary herself assured the girl's ring there was no doubt of her welcome. "Oh, my dear, my dear! Of all the people in the world, the good Lord must have sent you! I never was so glad to see anybody, or so desperately in need of you."

Highly pleased, the girl hastily removed her wet things and Mary, a tear beginning to trickle, continued: "We're in such a mess! The week left last week—just the day that John had to give in to one of those stubborn colds of his. The very next day the waitress left too. I had a woman in by the day, until yesterday, when the twins broke with measles, but she has children of her own and of course stayed home today. Now the nurse is just nearly dead and has to be relieved. There isn't a servant in the house, and—well, the fact is, at last—John has taken himself and his cold to the club, where he says he's going to stay till he can get some attention in this house! As if—as if I could help it!"

The girl rolled up her sleeves. "Early Monday morning she had a smiling Cousin Mary farewell. "Good-bye," said Mary, "and thank you for all you've done. You are such a tower of strength! I am so glad you came!" "I am, too," smiled back the girl. "You've done a lot for me, too. Some people don't know what they're worth, she finished to herself as she hastened to her train.

Not So Funny, Somehow.

Nowhere do people differ more than in their sense of humor—what may be one man's jest is another man's tragedy. The woman has her own pleasant little sense, to which she is much attached for it has been a great help and comfort to her in many a situation which had no other mitigating trait. But that it varies from the humor of many another was brought home to her last week when she nearly went over a tale considered uproariously funny by its teller.

In a far heat after that elusive com molality, sugar, she entered a strange grocery store, in the rear of which a curly man was talking with great wealth of gesture for the benefit of the proprietor and his enthralled assistant.

"Some little sunshup, believe me," he was saying to the woman, "come with my car range, and he sure was considerable cramped up. So they lugged him off to the hospital, and that night the poor guy passed out. And in the morning, when his wife phoned to ask how was he, the nurse told her he was 'resting quietly.' Can yer beat it—and he dead!" and the raconteur snote his thigh with beefy hand and howled with glee. "Well, I guess he was resting quietly all right, if he ever did in his life." In the chorus of mirth over this choice witticism the woman made a noiseless escape, no longer desirous of purchasing even the coveted sugar in such an atmosphere, and yet glad in her inmost soul that the kind hearted nurse would never know that her gentle ebullience to spare a sudden shock would be treated as an execrably amusing jest.

I'll Say So!

The business girl's ire was aroused the other day by an incident in the subway. Every seat was taken in the car when a stalwart young man entered at Fourteenth street. To all appearances he seemed perfectly sound—that would be termed a good insurance risk. Glancing about him he spied a colored lad about twelve years of age, and walking over to him calmly assumed the boy's seat. The astonished youngster stood up, his eyes as big as saucers. Immediately there was a buzz of indignant protest. The young man endeavored to carry it off with a nonchalant air, but the eyes of the other passengers riveted on him were a bit disconcerting, and he took refuge behind his cap. At the next express station he made a hurried exit, and the business girl heartily echoed the boy's inelegant comment as he slid into the vacant seat: "Gee, that guy has a gall!"

A Friend Indeed.

Old black Nancy had just finished a long day of washing and ironing and the woman's husband went into the kitchen to pay her. The door into the kitchen tool open and it was easy for the woman to hear their colloquy.

"Well, Nancy, I suppose you're tired?" said the lady. "There was a big wash today. You'll be glad to get home."

"Ah, ain't you home, right now, ma'am."

"Not goin' home? Where are you goin'?"

"Ain't goin' to the hospital, ma'am, o see a fren'. It's fifteen blocks, an' it's a'right, Lord knows, but she'll 'preciate it. She jus' brightens up like when she sees me. "You're the best old soul I ever knew, Nancy. Here, take this glass of jelly to your friend, though I don't suppose you could be more welcome because of it."

The latest returned to the tea table and looked at the woman out of moist eyes. "Thank it," she said. "After a day's washing! We've two friends in the hospital now and we haven't been here then. I put off going for the slightest little reason. I shall go tomorrow."

ANSWERED LETTERS ON COLD PACK CANNING.

Beginner.—How does one test jars and rubbers for canning? Does one boil these glass jars before putting the fruit into them for the cold pack method? And please tell me how long to blanch pineapple and how long to boil the glass jars when I have packed the fruit into them. I am going to practice canning pineapple before trying to put up my garden products. I am going to use my wash boiler as a canner.

Answer.—To test jars, partly fill them with water; adjust rubbers and covers; turn upside down and watch for leakage. To test rubbers, stretch them as far as possible. Good rubbers will stand hard pulling. Also fold the rubbers and if no cracks show along the folds they are all right.

Yes, the jars should be boiled before being filled with fruit or vegetables. Here is the method of procedure: Before starting to prepare the fruit or vegetable, fill your wash boiler with cold water; fill the jars three-fourths full of cold water and cover; place jars on the rack in the wash boiler (which should have sufficient water in it to cover the jars); now bring the water to a boil and continue boiling, taking out the jars as they are needed (they must be in boiling water 15 minutes) to be filled with the blanched and cold-dipped fruit or vegetable and placing jar and rubber before using. For this test, see my answer to "Beginner," given above.

Mary H.—"In counting the minutes of processing, must the water be boiling again, after putting in the filled jar, before one begins to count?"

Answer.—Yes.

HINT SENSATION IN THE NATIONAL AIRPLANE FUND

NEW YORK.—Assistant District Attorney Kibroe announced that "there will be a full, complete, and exhaustive examination of the national airplane fund of the Aero Club of America," concerning which there have been reports of discreditors.

Mr. Kibroe recently asked several members of the club to appear before him with books and papers pertaining to the fund, collected for the purpose of training aviators, providing an aviation corps for each state and putting machines in use for carrying the mails. This fund is reported to have totaled $378,381.

Bernard H. Sandler, of the club's law committee, said he probably would advise certain members to ignore requests and intimated that the proposed investigation might take a sensational turn, involving the government's wartime aviation expenditures. He declared that if those "really behind the investigation would come out in the open" it would be found they were "millionaire grafters."

AMERICAN ACTRESS / A HIT IN LONDON

According to a recent dispatch, Peggy O'Neill, the American actress, is one of the hits of the season on the London stage. From the start she is receiving praise the like of which has not been bestowed on any American actress since the days of Edna May. She is starring in "The Next Best Thing" at the Savoy.

PERHAPS YOU ARE, TOO

—A friend of mine was worn out by running around trying to buy a particular something-or-other.

—Hours had been spent, also, strength and temper, and the desired article had not been found.

—He came to me with his story of grief and said, "You're a newspaper man and always running around—tell me—where."

—I asked him if a try had been made at such-and-such a place

—the reply was, "No, of course not; they don't carry such things."

—I disagreed. We went together and found what was wanted.

—My friend said, "If I chased around as much as you do I'd know where to get real bargains."

—Reading advertisements in more than a time saver; it's a good, safe investment in information covering the best things the market offers you.

—"Not so," I replied, "With all the trotting around I do you would not be able to discover every bargain in town each day."

—"Well, then," asked my friend, "How do you find out these things?"

—"That's easy," I laughed, "They are advertised. This article, for instance, was advertised in last night's paper."

—"Without seeing the joke he said, "I never have time to read advertising. I am too busy."

—"Perhaps you are, too. Many people are too busy to take time to save time, trouble and money. They buy by chance—and hard work."

—"Today we find many who pass up Mr. B. Thrifty. But should they take his advice, they could save time, worry, trouble and money."

WHAT IS RANGER DOING?

There are more than 10,000 deaths from tuberculosis every year in Texas, says a report from the State Tuberculosis sanitarium. There are 90,000 active cases, that is, known cases, in which the sufferer is liable not to live, in fact has less than an even chance to pull through.

The league fighting the great white plague has launched a drive to prevent sixty-five per cent of deaths in the state and to restore 60,000 of the active cases to health. To effect this, anti-tuberculosis organizations, health crusades and the like, will be the agents. The committee declares that it is powerless unless state-wide co-operation is given.

What is Ranger's part? First to recognize that the menace is actual, that there are cases developing each day, and each individual must face the issue. He must first look to his own health to be assured he is not endangering the well being of others, then to take reasonable precautions against infection. Good food and plenty of light and air discourage the disease.

But the most careful individual is seriously menaced in Ranger, where sanitary conditions are woefully neglected. Therefore he must urge upon the city the wisdom of adopting ordinances compelling those who are careless about their own environment, that under the modern social system the individual is responsible not for himself alone, but that he must show a decent respect for other members of society, who in turn stand ready to aid him.

Every man and woman in Ranger who notes remedial nuisances should report it to the health officer and talk about it widely. If action is not obtained by an appeal to the proper authority and no reason is given for failure on the part of the official who has been notified to remedy the condition to which his attention has been called, remonstrance from a body of citizenry will have the desired effect.

Tuberculosis is the White Plague of the modern day. Typhoid fever runs in epidemics as do other communicable diseases, but the great White Plague is upon the nation every day in the year, laying its fingers on new victims each day, taking away youth, blighting the lives of children, and chiefly because someone else is careless. Here there is no congestion of population fostering the disease. There is no reason why it should be prevalent except that sanitary conditions are weak. That there is not sufficient extent of sewer is lamentable, but unavoidable. That there are dirty streets, sink holes and refuse heaps all about—is disgraceful.

When the streets are clean there will be less spitting on the sidewalks. There should be no spitting except in proper receptacles, but one class of the citizenry will never be educated to recognize the evil. It is therefore the duty of the enlightened half to exercise a personal influence. Let Ranger grow and as it grows let it be a clean, sanitary community of healthily, industrious folk.

NEW SEA PORT FOR BULGARIA BEING SOUGHT

By Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 15.—Bulgaria must have a territorial outlet on the Aegean sea, Ivan G. Gueshoff, one of Bulgaria's most brilliant statesmen, and formerly prime minister, now a deputy of parliament, has told the Associated Press correspondent.

"A mere economic outlet will be of no use to her and she has categorically refused and will refuse to accept it," he went on. "A change in the map of the Balkan peninsula will prove that a port on the Aegean is a matter of far more vital importance to Bulgaria than Finno is to Jugoslavia."

"We know," continued M. Gueshoff, "that on the question of ethnic and territorial claims of Bulgaria, the United States was over-ruled at the peace conference. We are nevertheless genuinely grateful to all those Americans who, in the commissions appointed to study the question of Thrace and the northern and western frontiers of Bulgaria, gave conclusions in our favor. We now implore highly generous help of the great American people in the solution of a question fraught with momentous consequences to Bulgaria and to the peace of the Balkan peninsula."

Bulgaria ceded western Thrace under the peace treaty and the peace conference awarded it to Greece. This cut Bulgaria off from its former port of Delegation on the Aegean sea; but the allies promised her the League of Nations would give her an outlet on the Aegean.

The former prime minister, who was educated in England and who is leader of the strong Nationalist party, then discussed what he termed "the allies' flagrant betrayal of the principle of nationality." "We are stunned," said M. Gueshoff, "when he heard that Bulgaria was condemned to lose districts the Bulgarian character of which was never contested and that while for certain disputed German regions the plebiscite was permitted, the principle of self-determination was refused the Bulgarian population which were awarded to Serbia and Greece."

"In order to explain this flagrant betrayal of the principle of nationality," M. Gueshoff continued, "it was alleged that the Bulgarians deserved to be punished, first, because they had fought against the Entente and then because they had committed atrocities. The Bulgarian people were against the war. A faithless king had betrayed them into it."

"Had the entente landed troops at Saloniki before the Bulgarian mobilization of 1915, as I then insisted, had Bulgaria the geographical situation of Greece, the Bulgarians would have done what the Greeks did in 1917 and Bulgaria would never have gone with the central powers."

M. Gueshoff concluded the interview with a reference to the alleged Bulgarian atrocities. "As president of the Bulgarian Red Cross," he said in January, 1919, "I proposed that an international commission should inquire into these so-called atrocities and those committed by other Balkan states. But the conference of Paris had decided to threaten Bulgaria without giving her the opportunity of defending herself."

Among the hundreds of suggestions as to the most advantageous manner in which to raise the $2,000,000,000 required for the payment of bonus for world war veterans, Mark Harris of Buffalo, N. Y., offered the most novel. "A national lottery," he says, "would be the logical way to raise a billion or two and as such a scheme would not raise taxes or increase the high cost of living, there is much to commend it."

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlisle H. Holcomb

THE KING IS SURPRISED.

Major Pole Cat took Red Fox to the King's palace as Tinker Bob had directed. Of course, Red Fox was much larger than the Major and much stronger, but he did not dare disobey Bob because he was afraid of the poison that the Major carried with him.

Tinker Bob brought Mr. and Mrs. Woodchuck to the four little chucks that had been waiting so long for their parents, and there was great rejoicing. All of this time Bob White was puzzled about the kind of food that these little Chucks would eat, but when he saw the bundle of rods that Mr. Woodchuck was carrying, he soon realized that it was not bugs and nuts they wanted.

The King took all of them to his home in the midst of the Forest and told them they could all live there till they could build a house near by large enough for all. Bob White was given a place also near the King's palace where he could live.

"Look," said the King when they went to the other side of the palace. "There is the stalk of corn that grew out of the hole, and it already has an ear on it." The corn stalk was as high as the palace roof, and it looked more like a tree than a stalk of corn.

The King Climbed to the Cornstalk

Tinker Bob stood under the leaves that grew out of the corn stalk and looked up. He tried to shake the stalk a little to see if it was strong. And when he did this there dropped from a leaf far up on the stalk a creature, the King had not seen for a long time—and this fellow landed exactly on the King's nose.

Tinker Bob was startled at first till he knew who it was. It was Red Ant.

EXISTENCE OF BOLL WORM IS HELD IN DOUBT

AUSTIN, Texas, June 15.—Farmers of southeast Texas are still unconvinced that there is such a thing as a "pink boll worm menace," according to a statement they issued which placed their interpretation upon the testimony given by experts in the recent legislative hearings upon the subject.

The statement pointed out that the pink boll worm may live on okra and several wild plants, and that if deprived of its favorite food—cotton—it would probably continue to exist upon wild plant food.

The statement also advanced that if there is such danger from the spread of the moths of the worm, as alleged by expert testimony, in the five years since it has been alleged to have been introduced in southeast Texas, it would have had time to spread all over the state.

"Agricultural department experts testified," said the statement, "that the pink bollworm had not damaged more than ten pounds of cotton in Texas, although it has been here since 1915."

HIDDEN TREASURE! KEG OF WHISKEY IS BURIED IN OREGON

By Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—Some-where near Bonneville, Ore., in the vicinity of the state fish hatchery, there is said to have been hidden a ten-gallon cask of whiskey.

According to Indians, the liquor has been buried since the late '30's when Captain Bonneville was exploring the Oregon country. The Indian stories, said to be truths and not legends, state that Captain Bonneville had more liquor in his caravan than could be easily carried, so he is said to have buried a ten-gallon cask near the present site of Bonneville. The Indians have handed the story down for many years, and explain that none of the tribesmen have found the cask.

HAPPENINGS IN THE BRECKENRIDGE FIELD

Sinclair's N. M. Davenport No. 1, a half mile south of Breckenridge, struck the top of the black line at 3,033 and soon afterward dropped the six and seven-eighths-inch casing. As soon as the fishing job is completed the well will be drilled into pay. It is a region of good production.

T. J. Earnest No. 4, of the Sinclair company, is making 120 barrels at a depth of 1,875. The top of the sand was encountered at 1,800 and the well was drilled to 1,850 and plugged back to 1,875.

Earnest No. 5, on the same tract, touched the shallow sand yesterday. It will probably be completed this week.

In the Strawn shallow field the T. P. Coal and Oil company's Steward No. 108 struck the sand at 1,855 and was drilled to a total depth of 1,893. It is making 150 barrels after a shot. This field is now regarded as extremely promising from a standpoint of shallow production.

THE PECOS FIELD

Special to The Times.

PECOS, June 14.—Plans are being made in Pecos to push down the Bell-Reaves beyond the 1,000-foot mark if necessary to get oil due to the favorable showings of the past few days, when a strong odor of gas has been apparent. The money for this would come from a community fund, pledges for which are now being taken by the oil men.

The Bell-Reaves has exhausted its funds from its capitalization of $35,000, and will be unable to continue unless given outside aid. The hole is now down 985 feet under a contract to go 1,000. The funds contemplated would carry the hole down to 1,500 feet.

This is the second deepest hole yet drilled in the Pecos field. The Laura is down 1,440 feet, having made over 200 feet in the past month. There are twenty-four other wells now drilling in the Pecos.

These are in addition to the forty-odd wells in the Toxah field, and several practically ready to spud in. A drilling report of the field follows:

Four Lake No. 1, Dominion Oil Co., standard rig, section 34, Ward county, drilling at 310 feet.

Zone Oil Co., standard rig, section 22, block 4, H. & G. N. Ry. survey, Reeves county, drilling at 408 feet in Permian formation.

Victory, standard rig, section 126, block 34, Ward county, drilling at 450 feet.

Bell No. 2, standard rig, section 20,

NIGHT BLAZE DOES DAMAGE PUT AT $2,500

The Millsap apartments at the corner of Hodges and Main streets were badly damaged by fire at 1 o'clock last night. Five rooms of the building were gutted and their furnishings destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. Millsap places his loss on building and contents at $2,500. The building was valued at $2,700, with $2,000 insurance. The value of the furnishings was placed at $2,100, protected by $1,500 insurance.

The building contains sixteen rooms, all of which were occupied by guests at the time of the fire. Several of them suffered property loss which has not been checked.

The building is of frame construction and when the fire department arrived the flames were under considerable headway in the rear of the hotel and were spreading rapidly. With three lines of hose the firemen kept the flames in the rear of the building.

LONE TRIO, LAST OF TRIBE, HUNT SNAKES FOR FUN

International News Service. NEW YORK, June 15.—Three Indians on a 1,000-acre reservation, and one of them a civil war veteran living alone in a mountain shanty, amusing himself with hunting rattlesnakes and attending Memorial day exercises, and all within a few hours' ride of New York city, is the story that comes from Seaticook Mountain reservation, near Kent, Conn.

Seaticook, spelled a dozen or so ways, including Schaghticoke, the United States geological survey's choice, and pronounced Indian fashion 'P' s'ka' tikuk, is interpreted to mean "At the River Fork." The name arises from the fact that the settlement and reservation lies at the joining of the Ten Mile and Housatonic rivers. Here in 1730, or a few years later, a Pequot Indian named Gideon Mauwehee, or Mahwee, established himself and invited the broken Pausgus, Uncowa and Potatuc tribes further down the river to join his colony, which they did.

Calamity has followed the settlement throughout most of its existence. In 1743 the Moravians established a mission among its people, and later induced many of them to migrate to Pennsylvania. There they sickened and died in numbers, the remnant straggling back to the Seaticook home, where they lived, on neglected and poor.

They were too weak to take any part in the French and Indian war, and by 1752 had dwindled to eighty. In 1743 the Moravians established a mission among its people, and later induced many of them to migrate to Pennsylvania. There they sickened and died in numbers, the remnant straggling back to the Seaticook home, where they lived, on neglected and poor.

TOILED YEARS TO BUY RANCH—DIES SHORTLY AFTER. BAKER, Ore., June 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Lee toiled for twenty years with one ambition—to buy a four or five acre ranch with their savings and to settle down in comfort to spend their declining years. Last year they attained their goal. They loaded their household goods into a wagon at Huntington, where they had lived for the past fifteen years and started for their new homestead. Shortly after their arrival Mrs. Lee died from a complication of illnesses and old Jonathan Lee must share their ambitions alone.

Mrs. Laura A. Hoyt, principal of the Green River school at Greenview, Miss., who is retiring at the age of seventy under the teachers' pension law, has taught for forty-seven years in the same school room, not missing a single day.

Nitros Split Bill With Eagles, Both Are Pretty Games

FINAL WITH EAGLES TODAY.

The Nitros go against the Eagles today in the final of the series, there are on the road for three games, at Mineral Wells. Red Hill will work against the league leaders today and probably will be opposed by Monk Harrell, the youngster for whom Bugs says he wouldn't take less than $1,000.

Tommy Lovelace right fielding for our boys, lost one ball game yesterday and won another. In the first of the double bill with Abilene he dropped a fly in the tenth inning that cost Smoke Boyer a game he deserved to win from Joe Gaines.

Boyer pitched another beautiful game against Gaines. Although the hit column shows that the Eagles cranked up seven to the Nitros' three, Smoke outduelled Joe and should have had a shut-out, 1 to 0. The one tally the Nitros got was earned. None of the Eagles' runs were scored. Clapp walked and Allison scored. Rabbit Flaskamer started the trouble by musing up Allison's grounder in the first. White sacrificed Allison to second. Milam hit to the box and Boyer played it to third, but too late. Segrist rolled to Tate, who threw wild and Allison scored. Kizzar whiffed and Boggs singled to center, but Mooney's paw caught Milam coming home.

The Nitros tied it up in the same frame. Clapp walked and Allison scored at second by Tate. White's throw, in an attempt at a double play, went to the automobiles, and Tate took second. Manager Jim doubled to center and Jody scored. This run would have won the game had the Nitros got into their gait earlier.

As it was the game rocked along with no further scoring until the tenth.

The Nitros missed good chances in the second, fourth, seventh and eighth. In the second Henke got on Allison's error, taking second when the Eagle short threw it away, and third on a wild pitch, but Boyer fanned. Again in the fourth Duke doubled after one was out, but Lovelace and Shaffer went out, Segrist to Boggs.

In the seventh, with the little end up, Mooney got a life when Boggs failed to keep his foot on first, giving a grounder to White. Lovelace sacrificed him ahead, Shaffer cracked a sharp one to short, which Allison played with. Henke walked, filling the bases. Boyer hit to White, who caught Mooney at the plate, easily, and Flaskamer rolled out to first. In the eighth, White's error gave Clapp a start and Tate bunted him ahead. Galloway was walked, intentionally, Mooney drove out to left and Lovelace forced Galloway at second.

The Nitros did not get a man on after that. Boyer never was in serious danger until the tenth, although the Eagles started the third with a single and sacrifice, but Galloway and Tate pulled him out, Jody handling a sizzling grounder that would have scored Allison from second. In the fourth Kizzar dropped a single over short and stole, but Goggs and Thornton rolled out and Pemberton whiffed, as he frequently did, in the first game. He contributed three of Smoke Boyer's eleven strike-outs.

In the sixth, Kizzar doubled with two down, but Boggs poled out to Lovelace.

Thornton who was one of the trio, with Pemberton and Gaines, who gave Boyer three straight strike-outs in two innings, started trouble in the tenth by honing one at short that bounced at Rabbit's face and went for a hit. Pemberton tried to bunt and popped to Boyer. Gaines whiffed for the fourth time, and Allison lofted to right, which should have ended it. Even Thornton, running from second, which he had swiped, was not in earnest Tommy got under the ball—too far, however it—and let it get through his hands above his head. Allison scored.

That left Boyer unnerved, and he ised his first walk to White. Milam singled and Allison scored, Boyer rolled out, ending it. Flaskamer, Clapp and Tate would not start anything in the tenth and the heart-breaking pastime was over.

Second Game. Joe Gaines tried to go out in the second game and pitch as good a battle as his first, but the strain told on him, and the Nitros got to him freely in two innings. Frank Hudspeth flung for our boys and though wild, was effective. Not until two men were down in the last frame did the Eagles get anything that looked like a hit. Crosson, pinch hitting for Pemberton, cracked a single out then. But the pinch batsman who followed him, Monk Harrell, rainbowed to Jim Galloway and ended it. Joe pitched a hitless inning to start it, then Galloway opened the second with a single. Mooney watched the third strike over and Lovelace rolled to White. Shaffer smacked a single to center and Thornton's throw caught Jim at the plate.

In the fourth, after one was down, Tate cracked a one-base blow to right. He took second when Pemberton let one get by. Galloway walked. Mooney drove to right, but Kizzar was under it.

Then Tommy Lovelace made the fans forgive his blunder of the first session by lacing to right center Tate and Galloway rode home and Tommy pulled up at third. Shaffer could not score him. But the count was 2-1 for our boys.

Tate started another scoring bee in the sixth, with a single to center. Jim whatever trouble Hudspeth was pushing them both ahead a notch, with a bunk. The play was a squeeze, but Tommy's bunt was handled by Gaines and caught Jody in a chase, between third and home. This was heavy work on Joe's part, giving him a chance to get to third and no pistol to start him to second. Joe was run down, Gaines to Pemberton to Segrist to Pemberton and then the sticky Eagle catcher made a play at Lovey, who was nearly to start him to the plate. The return throw from second was so far behind Jim's baseball playing that he came in standing up.

Lovey went to the third on Pemberton's second passed ball, and Henke hit him on the head with a line drive. Jim helped make himself. His wildness put men on in the first and third. In the first, a smart double play stopped it. Henke yanked down a drive off Allison, and Galloway batted Allison at second.

There is no one who is willing to dispute Meyer's choice. Johnston is one of the best men U. S. tennis has produced and has shown in contests with foreign stars that he is really a king. The Pacific coast flash first started the net followers lack in 1915 when he won the national championship. He was only twenty then. Last year—the first since he started that most of the tennis stars were able to enter the lists—Johnston won the clay courts title by defeating William Tilden I. He won the Louisiana Bowl series by defeating R. Norris.

William Johnston, ranked for some time as one of the greatest tennis stars, has had a new honor thrust upon him by an English golf critic. A Wallie Meyer, the aforementioned critic, has compiled a ranking list of the star nations of the world and the San Francisco man ranks first. It is the first world list compiled by an authority since the world war.

Ranger has the best team in the league, next to mine," admitted Bugs Young before the umpire in a burst of confidence. "I dunno but what they're better than mine."

Bugs says his club is in bad shape and a ripe for the plucking, if they ever were. He himself has an infected finger on his right hand and was out of the game for the first time yesterday. Segrist has a bump thumb on his throwing hand. Milam has a bad hand and Boggs, who is do-or-dieing in Bug's place, has a bad ankle.

There were no earned runs against the Ranger fingers, if they ever were. He had no cause to feel bad in the fourth, though there was a boot behind him. He did suffer from wildness in this frame, especially, but went on and finished a good game. He was better at the close than at the start.

It was the first victory for the Tarleton college boy, though he has pitched consistently good ball. The fans were glad to see him take one.

Boyer had the Eagles looking foolish. He struck out eleven, three of them being Pemberton and four Joe Gaines. In the second and seventh he sent Thornton, Pemberton and Gaines back to the water keg one, two, three. His curve never looked better and was under fine control. He was in the hole to the batter only three times in facing thirty-eight men.

Pemberton, who kidded and was kidded considerably, is wearing a target, painted in black and white, on his wind cap. It makes a good mark, on a little man, for the pitcher to shoot at. The Nitros have a full-sized catcher for a target.

Both games had their fielding features. Jody Tate got his love lines on Segrist's smoky one in the third of the first game and played it. It was big stuff and cut down a score. In the ninth he pulled down Boggs' drive and had plenty of time to double Kizzar, who had singled, but overhrew. Kizzar didn't have time to get back to first and then beat it to second. So Joe was saved an error. Kizzar died a victim of Shotgun Shaffer's arm, anyway. In the eighth Jim Galloway made a beauty stop on Allison.

Henke showed true baseball form when he pulled down Milam's drive with one hand in the first inning of the second game and made the play at second, to get Allison for the third out. Dutch has baseball possibilities.

Both games were run off in good time; the first in 1:38, fine for ten innings, and the second in 1:15. Empire Dale ran good games also. There was little basis for a protest.

Stolen bases, Kizzar, Thornton; two-base hits, Galloway, Mooney, Kizzar, wild pitch, Gaines; sacrifice hits, White 2, Lovelace, Tate; struck out, by Gaines 3, Boyer 1. Time of game 1:38. Umpire Dale.

NINTH INNING BLOW UP GIVES T. & P VICTORY

In the ninth inning Sunday afternoon at Thurbur the T. P. Oil company's base ball team broke a one-one tie, bringing in four runs when the T. P. Mine and Mercantile company's pitcher went up in the air. It was all done by Bond, who slammed one for three stops, riding every one else in the team in a merry chase around the infield.

It was a fast air-tight game from the word go with the nominal men of both factions holding strong positions more firmly maintained by excellent support from both fields. The fans were in a state of nervous collapse when Merrit lost control and the game. Morgan, of the locals, honed in as the player of the day. He worked from third all around the field and back again, getting everything in sight.

TO FIGHT MOVE THAT STOPS ALL ROAD CONTRACTS

AUSTIN, June 15.—The Texas state highway commission is preparing to make a fight upon the proposed embargo on road materials considered by the interstate commerce commission in its efforts to relieve the car shortage, according to a statement made public by the highway body, as follows:

"Among the first measures proposed for relieving the car shortage and releasing train crews for other service was the placing of an embargo on the use of all cars and equipment in the transportation of road materials. The state highway department, co-operating with highway departments of other states, immediately entered a protest against the issuance of so drastic an order.

"We have a large amount of data at hand to show that to put such an order into effect would bring road construction to a standstill, tying up millions of dollars in unfinished contracts with the losses of counties. It is not desired by this large sum of money to the state and department that road material be given preference, but to put a stop to such shipments would mean a great loss."

WICHITA FALLS NOW BECOMES A CITY

WICHITA FALLS, June 15.—With the removal of tent hotels and other temporary structures outside the fire limit, under an ordinance passed by the city council, Wichita Falls is losing one of its chief remaining evidences of the big oil boom which drew all manners of people from all parts of the nation.

During the months that have elapsed since the first "black gold" splashed upon the grass of what was then a West Texas cattle range, thousands of persons have been housed in the tent hotels of Wichita Falls.

WICHITA FALLS, June 15.—"Put something in or take something out. Suit yourself" was the announcement from the pulpit of a local church to members of the congregation as the collection plate started around. The preacher, who had recently raised $65,000 to build a new church at Cameron, explained to his audience that he was not "kidding," but meant what he said.

ISSUES CHALLENGE TO CHAMP SWIMMER

Lee Jarvis, a star swimmer and member of the Cascade Aquatic club of Dallas, Texas, has issued a challenge to Robert Fournaker, who claims to be world's champion in the 100-yard race. Jarvis asserts that he is the real champion, having recently clipped a second off Fournaker's record.

WIDER SCOPE PLANNED FOR CHILDREN'S WORK

AUSTIN, June 15.—That the child hygiene bureau of the Texas state health department has laid a sure foundation for a large piece of work in Texas was the statement of Miss Sally Lucan Jean of New York, director of the Child Health Organization of America, who visited the department of health during her stop in Austin to take part in the program of home economics week at the University of Texas.

PUT IN OR TAKE OUT, SAYS PASTOR

WICHITA FALLS, June 15.—"Put something in or take something out. Suit yourself" was the announcement from the pulpit of a local church to members of the congregation as the collection plate started around. The preacher, who had recently raised $65,000 to build a new church at Cameron, explained to his audience that he was not "kidding," but meant what he said.

DESPITE WARS TURKISH CITY IS UNCHANGED

By Associated Press
ADRIANOPLE, Thrace, June 15.—The decadence of the two centuries, present political and economic disintegration, wars without end, and uncertain future, have been unable to destroy the ineffable charm the Turks originally gave to this city of eight-hundred thousand. Adrianople is still a holy city in faith and in appearance. Romance still abides here.

"The Orient is the only place left to Europe where cities seen at close range are beautiful," remarked Jules Sebestien, a French aviator, while visiting the most beautiful of all mosques, Sinan's masterpiece here, the mosque of a thousand windows but one, erected at the order of Sultan Selim II, in the sixteenth century.

The first impression of the city had been one of infinite beauty. Arriving from the lofty Balkans in an airplane, the city had been seen with a sudden place of spires, and slate domes and red roofs, planted at the intersection of three rivers. It has been a welcomed sight. It had come at the end of a four-hour ride and it was journey's end to a tired aviator.

Seen from aloft, the city, surrounded by poplars at its outer rim, its house gardens within, the city showing green vines and flowers, its outlining fields bare, aroused memories of Marlin on the mountains, Diarbek, whether visited by sunshine or moonlight.

The longer the stay in Adrianople, the more the charm of this beauty grows, a charm that is as great as that of aloft.

Like Southern City.
Adrianople is a city that has the tone of country friendship about it, not unlike a county seat of the South. The center of the agricultural exchange business of eastern and western Thrace, it is frequented by peasants and traders of Turkish, Greek, Bulgarian, Jewish, and Armenian nationalities. There is record of but one American ever having done business in the city, and he came there from Paris and bought up all the brooms.

While no day knows what the next may bring forth in the way of political strife and crime, today the city preserves this tone of friendship and order. Strangers as they go along the streets, or visit the shops, are treated with kindly concern. The Turkish officers salute courteously and there is no glint of hostility in the eyes of the Turkish soldiers carrying their new rifles, recently distributed to them by Colonel Deflor Tatar Bey. His martial law is administered with gentleness, though there is no doubt that the silken glove hides the mailed fist.

The decadence of Adrianople goes at a digified pace. There is little or none of the seething squalor and dirt and noise and poverty of Constantinople. There is none of the clamor of Constantinople's street cars and automobiles. There are a few ragged beggar children who besiege the stranger but for the most part Adrianople endures its shabby gentility with pride and calm. Here there are none of the fallen houses and dusty streets which characterize the majority of the cities of Asia Minor.

Any day the city may surprise the world by tremendous massacre, but meanwhile its life goes on as smoothly as the flow of the rivers.

Life of Mystery.
Undoubtedly the life of Adrianople is fraught with that deep mystery which seems to cling inevitably to the sinful, idle, sleepy Orient but of this mystery the stranger sees only the charact.

Prayers are called from the minarets, as of old, also the old and new bazaars do a slender business in selling American and European calicoes and home-spun cloths and Turkish-mounted pipes and cigarette holders, rugs, junk, to passing peasant customers; or else, when these are lacking they swap with each other, after the happy manner of all the Orient.

Decadence seems to have heightened to the beauty of the majestic old mosque of Sultan Bayezid. The windows are broken in, the locks are rusted in the locks, the grass is growing up between the flagstones, the fountain in the court no longer splashes its waters in the sunshine and the interior of the mosque itself is slowly deteriorating. Few worshippers come here but on the drowsy Friday afternoons, the Mussulman's day of worship, come a devoted band of musicians and singers. The aviator and the Associated Press correspondent stumbled upon this group as they turned to go away, one of the red fezzed band came and saluted with the lovable simplicity of the Turk and said "Allah esmarladik." "May God abide with you."

NIPIGON'S BIG FISH THAT DIDN'T GET AWAY

NIPIGON PIKE,

FISHERMEN'S
CAMP

CATCH OF GIANT TROUT

How would you like to hook, play and finally land a great northern pike, four feet long and weighing twenty-one pounds? Every fisherman knows that the one that gets away is usually of this size, but H. P. Sweetser, of New York, not only hooked the big fellow he is holding in the picture, but took him captive in Lake Nipigon after a thrilling battle lasting forty-five minutes.

Nipigon, which is in Canada on the north shore of Lake Superior, has long been a magic name for fishermen, some of whom travel thousands of miles in quest of its giant trout, pike and other fish. At Nipigon there are outfitters and guides, and Nipigon River, Lake Nipigon and streams flowing into them are full of splendid fighting fish.

W. H. Peck, a New York banker, who accompanied Sweetser, got nine brook trout in one evening, the largest of which weighed four and a half pounds. Other fishermen were even more fortunate, landing speckled beauties that weighed between five and six pounds.

Most of the guides are Ojibway, Indians who know every foot of the wilderness and all the places where the giant trout hide. The River Nipigon, draining the lake of the same name, is a boisterous and beautiful stream well fitted to be the home of the big brook trout. Fishermen use flies and also the cockroach which is found under rocks in shallow places.

When the Prince of Wales wanted to go fishing he chose the Nipigon region, and the town itself is the scene of one of Ralph Connor's novels.

NEW YORKERS URGE BUYING AS SOLUTION

NEW YORK, June 15.—An "own your own apartment" movement is in full swing here. Two late evidences of its growing strength are the purchase by the tenants for $2,500,000 of an apartment house on Fifth avenue and the starting of construction on a co-operative apartment on Park avenue, which is to cost $4,000,000.

Just the other day it was announced that Woodrow Court, an apartment occupying the entire block front on upper Broadway, between 169th and 170th streets, had been sold for $33,333 to the fifty-three families residing in the structure. This is said to be the first deal of such magnitude to be 100 percent co-operative in which tenants of moderate means have participated. In this deal each tenant only put up a few thousand dollars in cash. In the Fifth avenue transaction each tenant was called upon for $150,000 in cash.

Starting about eight months ago the transactions in co-operative buying of apartments have mounted in volume until they are presently a fixture of realty dealings and all the larger real estate agents maintain special departments in which the employes do nothing but handle the sales of apartment houses to tenants. This is generally a profitable transaction for the owners, for the tenants are willing to pay more to retain their homes than speculators or investors would pay, and it is said to be profitable for the tenants in that they assure themselves of a home at a cost of only about seven years average rentals.

Tenants are approached both individually and through mass meetings when agents have apartment houses to offer. The tenants are given a certain length of time to decide and if they wish to take the property the agents form a company to own the building to which only tenants may subscribe the stock. The purchaser of the stock gets a 29-year lease.

The shortage of office and commercial space has been only second to that for housing purposes in New York and co-operative purchasing of office and loft buildings by tenants has begun although it has not yet reached the proportions of apartment purchasing by tenants. Transactions in business buildings differ from apartment sales in that while co-operative buying is done it is seldom 100 percent so. The usual deal involves the purchase by a club of a half dozen or so business tenants, who apportion the space among themselves and then lease the remainder. The management in both cases is generally vested in some well known agent under the direction of the tenant owners.

CATHERINE DE MEDICI ... Catherine de Medici Waited Until Some-one Wanted to Find Out Who Was Boss of France and Then—

Stories of poisoning, of drowning, and of all sorts of terrible things are associated with the name of Catherine de Medici, queen of France. Violence and intrigue seem to be eternally associated with her name. I have not found a historian who sensed the fact that the governing passion of her life was Mother-Love, the instinct of protecting her children.

She lived a quiet life as the wife of Henry II and her career did not begin to make its influence felt in the history of France until her son, Francis II, ascended the throne. The Guises and the Ultra-Catholics were contending with the Protestants under Henry of Navarre for power, and they had little regard for the throne.

Catherine de Medici played these elements against each other, all of the time strengthening the throne and weakening its potential enemies. She first allied with the Protestants and when the party became too strong and endeavored to make itself stronger than the throne of her sons, de Medici swerved to the Catholics and the massacre of St. Bartholomew followed.

SPANISH GIRL GIVEN BEAUTY VOTE OF WORLD

NEW YORK, June 15.—Girls, girls, did you know that you have been shoved into second place in the world beauty and charm contest? Did you know that the Spanish senorita, with her dark eyes, skin and lanky black costumes is the first ranking beauty of today?

Well, an English newspaper man, who has just returned from a tour through Spain, thinks that way. List ye to his prattle and who knows, perhaps you may get a few pointers.

"The Spanish girl—
"In the whole world of femininity there is nothing like her. She is a wonder; she is a dream; she is like nothing else you have ever seen or thought of. She has acquired a new beauty, new accomplishments, new dignity. Her manner and her charm are perfect.

She has nuzzled me and I have studied her, for she is so different from the others. This woman is a new disturber of the peace of the world. When the time comes she will make rings round all the others.

"There have been days when watching some of the daintiest things tripping along the avenues in America in the sunshine, seeing how with a marvellous American acuteness they had attached a fineness of France to their Anglo-Saxon quality, I have thought that the young American girl was to be the joy and the torture of the world. I leave out of these considerations the English girl for obvious reasons. Now, I am sure that the Spanish senorita has the measure of the rest.

"Never have I seen women more charmingly, bewitchingly attired and yet it is most exceptional for any of them, morning, noon or night, to be dressed in anything but black. They know what heights they can achieve with their traditional Spanish black. And it is not without reason that one of the foremost Parisian modistes had recently built a veritable palace, one of the grandest of the new commercial houses, in the Carre-ra de San Jeronimo.

"Dignity, restraint, taste, manners, femininity—here we have emphasized them enough and rightly. But think not, Europeans and Americans, that the old Spanish feminine soul no longer burns. Look upon these rare complexions, transparent ivory with olive showing through—and most rarely do you see a touch of powder on them—the perfectly modeled features, the coal-black hair and eyes—most piercing eyes.

"Here are fire and flame! Here is the

She guided her son, Charles, in his reign and lived to see her third son, Henry III, mount the throne. Not one of these monarchs would have survived and held the reins of government but for the dominance of their mother and her confusing and scattering of the contending parties in France. Since this woman was so quiet and unobtrusive until her sons were on the imperiled throne of France, may not we assume that here we have another instance of The Woman Aroused?

DIDN'T KNOW IT, BUT ANYWAY, THEY JUMPED

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 15.—"Under the soft beams of a full moon, at the edge of a high precipice, with the glimmering Moreau river several hundred feet beneath them—ay, how romantic—Miss Ruth Maus of this city, was married to Robert L. Hallett of Columbia.

The bride had a romantic nature and the setting was by her special request.

SOME LINGUIST.
SAN REMO, June 15.—San Remo possesses a railway porter whose linguistic powers have amazed the prime minister of the entente. Mr. Lloyd George was filled with surprise and enthusiasm at being addressed in Welsh, while M. Millerand was stupefied to hear that if he wished to communicate with Trotsky a letter in Russian would be dispatched at once.

WEARY WILLIE'S DUNGEON.
GENEVA, June 15.—The German crown prince, writing to a former staff officer at Davao, who contracted consumption during the war, says that he is sick of his Dutch dungeon, and hopes later to settle in free Switzerland.
