A Bible Thought For Today—

Those who value material things only and try to pass a heritage on to their children often find they have been laboring and saving not for their children but for profligate associates of these children. "Ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it." — 1 Leviticus 26:16.

Traffic Controls For School Area Well Taken, Should Be Expanded

Action of the city commission in setting up additional traffic controls around the high school and Central Ward schools will be received with a great deal of relief by patrons. This was prompted by a delegation of parents who were aroused to action by the latest episode in which a second grade lad barely escaped serious injury in a mishap opposite Central Ward on Monday. The occurrence incidentally, was the fourth in which children had suffered injury around the school premises. It is small wonder that someone hadn't been hurt fatally. Thus, the word of action to offset the dangers will be well received. It is our hope that this will not be confined to this one area alone. The airport school has a situation, which has been brought to focus by parents patrolling streets for the safety of their children. This is a county problem which probably can be met only by the provision of more funds for more help to supply a traffic officer—something that can be done out of the road and bridge fund.

The city has six school grounds other than the Central Ward and high school campus, and before long three more will be added. Potentially, dangers exist around these. Close study of remedial action around all of these is in order. The best cooperation of the officers, parents and school officials is demanded to provide every reasonable safeguard for these youngsters.

Texas Gets International Lesson In Mounting Demand For More Oil

So we can live alone, shut up in Fortress America, and let the rest of the world go to the devil, can we? Only in the imagination of the isolationists. The worldwide nature of our economy was brought out this week in Beaumont at the annual meeting of the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. First off, Secretary of Interior Oscar Chapman, administrator of PAD (Petroleum Administration for Defense) declared that PAD's three big aims are to increase production and transportation of oil and to expand refinery facilities. Why? To replace production and refining lost to the Western World by the Anglo-Iranian dispute. Before the convention got under way, Bruce K. Brown, deputy PAD chief, called on Texas for a continued record output of crude and refinery products. Reason: Badly needed because of the Arabian shutdown. Olin Culberson and General Ernest Thompson of the Texas Railroad Commission controlling oil production declared the present high production levels are damaging Texas oil wells and reserves. Eastern seaboard authorities fear the shortage of oil and gasoline occasioned by the Iranian shutdown will create shortage of fuel oil for home-heating and industrial purposes this winter, and might lead to gasoline rationing. If Texas has to open its wells full-throttle and pour out crude in unprecedented quantities it will indeed be a serious thing in the long-range view. The pinch of steel for oil field operations and for pipelines is beginning to be felt, threatening to slow down and perhaps eventually halt the enormous wildcatting program now under way. This could bring stagnation, widespread unemployment, a dissipation of existing reserves. The sum of it all is that what happened in Abadan is of direct and vital concern to Texas.

New Atomic Weapons Could Halt Russians From Crossing Rhine

WASHINGTON—Around 1946 as hope for friendly relations with Russia were turning more and more sour, Gen. Omar Bradley, meeting with a small group of congressmen, predicted: "If the Red army chose to invade Europe right now, they could reach the English channel in 12 days. Nothing could stop them." Today, this is not the case. The Red army could be stopped at the Rhine. This change is not because the Red army is any smaller. It still has millions of men, still is completely reckless in its disregard for casualties. Nor is the change adequate. Though Eisenhower has done a good job, his army is still pitifully small compared with the Russian. The change, therefore, is chiefly the result of one thing—new atomic weapons. Hitherto, the atom bomb could be used only against cities where the destruction of civilians was such that public opinion rebelled against it. Now, however, atomic artillery shells and other weapons make it possible to confine the deadly destruction of atomic energy to enemy troops in the field. This means that the civilian death toll can be divorced from the atom bomb, and that atom weapons will be used.

report that Bruno Pontecorvo, the escaped British scientist, taught the Russians how to make a hydrogen bomb. They are almost certain Moscow had not had time to make an H-bomb. The new explosion could have been an improved baby-sized bomb—in which case, the Russians are getting nearer to the type used in artillery shells, etc. Pontecorvo, who eluded the British by going to Italy, then to Finland, then into Russia, will now be given Russian citizenship. He is credited with putting the latest bomb together. RUSSIAN EXPERIMENTS — It's no secret that the United States and other friendly nations have seismographs and Geiger counters stationed around Soviet borders to pick up earth tremors and uranium dust. Airplane patrols also take samples of dust out of the air to analyze them for uranium. From these detection devices it seems clear that the Russians tried to set off an H-bomb several weeks ago which fizzled—perhaps because the trigger mechanism failed. This is the most delicate part of the A-bomb. This failure was why the atomic commission reported to Truman quite recently that no Russian bombs had been set off. The second attempt took place about 10 days ago and produced a low-grade explosion, apparently not nearly as powerful as our weaker A-bombs. SOVIET POTENTIALITIES — Best information on the future of the Russian A-bomb is that they have just as much scientific brains as we, but lag behind in technical know-how and large-scale production. Soviet scientists thoroughly understand the theory of atomic energy but in addition to poor production techniques the Russians are short of uranium and plutonium. This is where the U.S.A. has gained its tremendous atomic superiority. Only sources of Russian uranium are the worn-out mines in East Germany and in the Jachampov region of Czechoslovakia. It was from the latter mines, incidentally, that a group of Czech miners deserted across the border into Germany last week carrying messages from freedom balloons. Russian geologists are frantically scouring the Soviet Union and satellite nations for new deposits, and this picture could change.

INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC CONTROLS — Secretary Acheson is willing to make one more gesture toward world control of atomic energy—as a result of Stalin's recent feeler—though we have our fingers crossed. Acheson will work only through the United Nations. There can be no separate dickering with Russia. Furthermore, Acheson will not budge one inch from the Baruch plan for controlling the bomb and will insist on a foolproof system of international inspection to make sure the Russians keep their word. Meanwhile U.S. Ambassador Alan Kirk has warned from Moscow that Stalin's statement about international control of the atom was merely for the purpose of preventing the use of our new atomic weapons in Korea. Stalin figured that if the U.S.A. were engaged in an international conference on atomic energy, we could not disrupt such a conference by using atomic weapons while we were still talking. Such strategy would permit the Chinese to build up more strength in Korea—while we talked.

Organized on this day in 1840 was the Union Association of Regular Predestinarian Baptists, under the leadership of the colorful Reverend Daniel Parker, who had brought the first organized Protestant church to Texas in 1833. Parker and his congregation believed, in accordance with the "Two-Seeds-in-the-Spirit" doctrine, that it was sinful to take the word of God to those born of the "seed of the serpent." Parker was known as the "arch enemy of missions on the frontier"; he had waged his fight against the cause of missions in Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois before coming to Texas. The "Predestinarian Baptists" had less than 100 members at the time of their formal organization, but doubled this figure within five years. Elder Parker in 1833 very neatly prohibited the establishment of "Protestant churches in Texas. The law said nothing about churches already formed, so the minister returned to Illinois and brought his home congregation, the Pilgrim Church, to the Lone Star domain as colonists.

Forrestal Diaries — Number 14

World Crisis Of 1948 Caught Nation Short Of Troops; Marshall Criticized

14. "Playing With Fire" In January, 1948, Gen. Eisenhower, about to resign his office as Chief of Staff, decided to remove himself from further consideration as a presidential candidate. After the War Council on the 22nd he showed Forrestal the letter. (To Leonard V. Funder, a New Hampshire publisher) which he had prepared to that end.

CONVERSATION — GENERAL EISENHOWER (Eisenhower said) that he had spent a great deal of time in the composition of the letter and that his only misgiving had been that a construction could be put upon it of its constituting a refusal to respond to a duty, around which, he said, his entire life had been built. He remarked that there were many youngsters in the country who, whether with reason or not, had made him more or less a symbol of the duties and obligations, as well as the opportunities, open to American youth, and he was truly worried about the responsibility of, in effect, telling them that there was a limit to any man's conception of his obligation to respond to the call of duty. He said that was why he had put in a paragraph about the danger of letting political considerations influence the conduct and actions of men in the high command in the Armed Forces.

I told him that his letter would put him in a position of tremendous influence, above the battle, and that in this role he could still perform a great service to the country. There is no question in my mind as to his complete sincerity or that his letter reflects the outcome of a genuine moral struggle with himself. He said that he had had the help of nobody in the course of the composition of the letter and had come to me because he didn't know anybody else that he could turn to for advice. I told him that I thought the letter, both in its content and in its style, was splendid, and I would not recommend changing anything in it. (Eisenhower released the letter the following day, and it had the effect that its author had intended. PERILS RISING ON EVERY FRONT (By the latter part of January it was beginning to appear that the nation would be compelled to some reappraisal of its military policies. It was facing perils on every front—in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East — and while the President's $11 billion military budget seemed large by peacetime standards, it was yielding very little actual military strength available for current contingencies. In February Secretary Marshall reviewing the grave issues and renewing his plea for universal military training, remarked "that we are playing with fire while we have nothing with which to put it out.")

(The acutely felt war was for currently useful ground forces. At a White House meeting on February 18, Maj. Gen. A. M. Gruenther, the director of the Joint Chiefs' own Joint Staff, gave the President a summary presentation. Total strength of all services was only 1,374,000 against Congressional authorized strength of 1,715,000. The Army had only 140,000 men in the Far East against a "requirement" of 180,000; of these, there were only 20,000 in Korea, where 40,000 were required. They were short in Europe. Of organized Army units in the United States there were but two and one-third strength divisions, less than 47,000 men in all and soon to be reduced to 40,000. Beyond a few Marine battalion landing teams there were no other immediately available ground forces. "Gen. Gruenther touched on the possible explosive points in the world, identifying them as Greece, Italy, Korea and Palestine, stating that if a commitment were made in any one of these areas it would probably reduce our reserve to the dangerous degree. . . . He emphasized that the employment of anything more than a division in any area would make partial mobilization a necessity.")

HICKENLOOPER ON LILIENTHAL (Doubts were being expressed at the same time on other aspects of the defense situation. FEBRUARY 1948 LUNCH & ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION MATTERS Conversation with Sen. Hickenlooper. The Senator said he had come over to give expression to certain rather vague misgivings which he was experiencing in connection with the Atomic Energy Commission and its activities. He could put his finger on no one action or policy, but said that the character and number of the speeches which Lilienthal was making, the emphasis upon the future possibilities of atomic power as a source of energy for industrial and general purposes, and his constant reference to control of atomic energy by "the people," all made a pattern with ultimate indicated objectives as follows: (1) The indisposition and therefore the perpetuation of Mr. Lilienthal in power; (2) the general underlying idea of disarmament. He said that outside of Lewis Strauss there was no one on the commission of any great practical ability, although undoubtedly Bacher (Robert F. Bacher, AEC member) was a good scientist. He was disturbed by the fact that there had been practically no advances made in the art since the dissolution of the Manhattan District and he was further concerned that the one man who had brought the Manhattan District to successful completion was no longer in this field of work, namely Gen. Groves. . . . WEDEMEYER VIEWS ON CHINA (On the day of this conversation a violent Communist coup d'etat had suddenly seized power in Czechoslovakia. This was the first subversion of a strongly based government by the Soviet empire, and it came as a startling and unsettling shock throughout the West. Forrestal's diary notes make little mention of it, but his appointment calendars throughout the following days are unusually full of engagements, with high military and diplomatic officers. He did enter a sobering report on the Chinese dilemma. 1 March 1948

GENERAL WEDEMEYER Meeting this morning with Gen. Wedemeyer (who had returned from the Far East to become Director of Plans and Operations, Army General Staff). I asked him his views about China and our present policy. It is obvious that he feels it is unrealistic and that Marshall is not facing up to the problem because he has a feeling of frustration and failure. Wedemeyer said that when he first met Gen. Marshall after the latter's appointment as ambassador he, that is Marshall, had shown him the directive written for him by the State Department (John Carter Vincent and Company), the objective of which was a government based upon a coalition of the Kuomintang Party and the Communists. Wedemeyer said he had informed Marshall immediately that such an objective was impossible of attainment because of the completely differing nature of the two organizations and the fundamental fallacy of assuming that there could be political association with any Communist group without ultimate absorption by it. (Tension was rising. The Czechoslovakian coup had spread a sense of nervousness and excitement through the free world. And then on March 5 there arrived from Gen. Clay in Berlin a secret telegram of the most alarming kind. For many months, Clay said, he had held that a war was unlikely, but "within the last few weeks I have felt a subtle change in Soviet attitude which I cannot define but which now gives me a feeling it may come with dramatic suddenness." Without supporting data, the general added, he could submit no official report to this effect, "but my feeling is real.")

(The diary includes the text without comment. But that the telegram caused intense alarm among those in Washington who were aware of it is now well known. When the intelligence agencies were asked for their evaluation, the best they dared predict was that war was not probable for another sixty days. The Clay telegram, coming against the ominous backgrounds of the previous weeks, was to prove the starting point for the first serious American effort to rebuild our dismantled military power.)

Soviet Can Enjoy Better Life, But Uncle Joe Has Gotta Go

Did you ever wonder how much of this and that America possesses? I never did. At least until I got wind of a new pamphlet issued by the National Research Bureau. It's called "Facts About America." Herewith are some of the facts offered by the booklet and enough comments, I hope, to make this column long enough.

have they? I doubt it, at least for civilian consumption. Therefore, when demand exceeds supply, prices go up until supply equals demand. A Russian carpenter has to work 340 hours in order to earn an overcoat, whereas an American has to labor only 15 hours to feel nice and warm when the cold days come.

Forty-two per cent of all radios are in America. . . . Could be this is the reason why we are also best informed, although I suspect we had better say that radio assists the newspaper in offering information to a news-hungry populace.

Sixty per cent of all telephones are in this country. That fact should be obvious, I daresay, considering how fast some people manage to learn the "inside facts" about one's neighbor. Another thing that makes this obvious is the fact that when you sometimes seek to make a series of phone calls, so many lines are busy.

Americans own some 6 million farms, while in Russia they are state property. . . . So that's the reason why Congress is so harried; that many farms would make a pretty good sized pressure group.

Fifty million bank accounts are had by Americans. . . . Lotta money, you say? Then why do we have inflation when "experts" say inflation is caused by too much money being in circulation. That's a lot of bank accounts and must contain quite a bit of cash. And, they say, we have inflation. Could be that things are costly on the theory that more production makes for more earnings and that when so much money is earned, goods have to go up in production similarly. But

I suppose there are a good many other comparisons between America and Russia, not to mention U.S. leadership in varied fields.

Economists can reach many more conclusions than could I over these facts. But, surely, these economists, though they may differ in odd ways, will agree with me that an American is far better off today than his forebears. Too, the modern-day American is more comfortable than his democratic allies of other lands.

And, of course, there is no comparison between an American's economic well-being and that of a Russian.

All of which is, I believe, ample evidence for Europeans to stick mighty close to America, try to adopt more of our ideals and standards if they want to attain a higher standard of living.

Russians are welcome to join with America and other lands in mutual exchange of ideas, commerce, industry in the hope of gaining that better life. However, Joe's gotta go and the Soviet people must adopt a more democratic system. We have proven, I think, what American ingenuity can do. Our friends see it and have asked our help.

How about you, Russia? —FRED GREENE.

Struggle Is Now Going On For Vital Chairmanship Of FPC

WASHINGTON. — An embroiled struggle is now going on in the White House for the chairmanship of the Federal Power Commission, just vacated by the President's poker cron, former Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington. Wallgren, who turned the power commission over to the industries it is supposed to regulate, wants his tradition carried on by Irvin Hoff, a member of his own West Coast crowd now serving in the office of the Washington Senator, Warren Magnuson.

The man who captured the power commission for the natural gas producers, Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, and the brains of the Kerr faction on the commission, Nelson Lee Smith, are backing William Tarver. Tarver is an official of the Defense Petroleum Administration who is both reliably sympathetic to the oil and natural gas people, and so discreetly obscure that his nomination will pass unnoticed.

Meanwhile the few people in the government who still believe the President meant what he said about the Fair Deal are struggling to persuade Truman to select what might be called an anti-Wallgren, anti-Kerr nominee. They are being obstructed, of course, by the usual inhabitants of the White House woodwork. But the President, also as usual whenever the issues are made clear to him, is said to be leaning the right way.

The immensity of the stakes in this contest for a Federal job few Americans have ever heard of, can best be gauged by the stakes that have changed hands already. As soon as Wallgren was named chairman of the Federal Power Commission, he enacted by simple administrative ruling Sen. Kerr's bill to free natural gas producers from commission regulation, which the President had just vetoed. This was in the case of the giant Phillips Petroleum Company, with its total gas reserves of 14 trillion cubic feet, and its contracts with five major pipeline companies distributing gas fuel to homes and industries all across the nation.

The effect of the Wallgren ruling, of course, was to permit the increased gas prices being demanded by Phillips. In his minority opinion, Power Commissioner Thomas Buchanan estimated that these gas price increases would cost the customer of just one pipeline company, the Michigan-Wisconsin, a total of $5,000,000 annually, or $125,000,000 for the life of the contract. For the people of Detroit alone, the bill was put at $1,770,000 a year. Former Power Commission Chairman Leland Olds has also estimated that the price increases raised the value of the natural gas reserves of the Phillips Company alone by no less than $700,000,000. And of course the power commission ruling in the Phillips case means similar golden results for all other gas-producing companies like Phillips.

Under the circumstances, it is hardly surprising that Phillips should have shown friendship to Sen. Kerr, proponent of the Kerr bill, worker for the Wallgren appointment, and large owner of gas and oil properties in his own right. And in fact, at the time when the Kerr bill was expected to become law, Phillips transferred 100 sections of proven gas acreage to the Tascosa Corporation, a specially organized subsidiary of Sen. Kerr's company, Kerr-McGee. Phillips also entered into a most unusual contract with Tascosa for exploitation of this acreage.

According to an official memorandum from the Phillips Company files, this transfer and contract will result in a long-run profit to Tascosa, also chiefly owned by Sen. Kerr, of at least $1,257,000 and more probably upwards of $2,000,000. The author of the Phillips memorandum remarked that "if the 100 wells (on the Tascosa acreage) were drilled in the normal manner," these handsome profits would be "kept within the Phillips Petroleum Company." This seemed to puzzle the poor man.

Meanwhile the Phillips case also has still larger meanings for the future. The "integrated" pipeline companies, including Panhandle Eastern, employing as counsel John Scott, an ex-law office associate of Democratic National Chairman William Boyle, have now come before the Federal Power Commission. These companies own their own gas wells as well as pipelines. They say, "if Phillips can charge whatever the traffic will bear for gas at the wellhead, why can't we?"

The question seems logical. But if it is answered in the affirmative, the chances are that this will be the entering wedge for a return to the Harding era standard of "fair value" for natural gas rate-making.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Brain Power Of Rhesus Monkey

The best work of scientists may never prove the exact degree of brain power among animals, as compared one to another. Some very smart animals (For example, the volverine) have been missed in most of the tests performed so far. Trappers who know the volverine, and its cleverness in getting food from traps without being caught, believe that it should rank among the "top ten."

However that may be, all scientists seem to agree on one point—that certain apes belong at the top of the list. The gorilla usually is ranked third, and the rhesus (pronounced REE-sus) monkey sometimes is placed fourth. Above them are the chimpanzee and the orangutan. Rhesus monkeys really are smart fellows. Some of them, in captivity, have become expert in using hammers and nails. One was given a saw with which to cut some sticks in two. Clipping one end of the saw with his teeth and the other end with his feet, he used his hands to hold the sticks. Then he rubbed the sticks over the teeth of the saw, and they were cut in two.

Perhaps you have heard of baby apes which were placed side-by-side with human babies, and which have made more progress than their human companions. That story is true only for a short period. During some months of its infancy, an infant ape may learn to hold objects better, and to perform more "tricks," than a human baby, but there comes a time when the ape slows down. Within two or three years, it is far behind.

Baby gorillas have been studied with care, and sometimes prove amusing. One of them, in the Washington Zoo, used to spend hours playing with toy balloons, dumbbells and pieces of rope.

Adult gorillas are known for their strength. They seem to be good fathers, and will take risks to guard their families. For SCIENCE section of your scrapbook.

City General Fund Is On Rise Again

After dwindling to less than $3,000 during the summer months, the city's general fund started growing again during September. The fund's balance increased from $2,855 to $5,591 during the month. C. R. McCleeny, city secretary, showed in his report to commissioners this week. September receipts totaled $64,418, including $54,000 transferred from other funds, while expenditures amounted to $61,681. Other

Couples Back From WHR Hereford Sale

Returning this week from Cheyenne, Wyo., where they attended the WHR Hereford sale were Mr. and Mrs. Leland Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Coates. The party saw considerable fresh snow and ice on the trip. Wallace reported. Bulls in the sale, one of the biggest in the nation, averaged around $7,000.

Casualties Told

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Defense Department today identified 183 more battle casualties in Korea. A new list (No. 416) reported 91 killed, 89 wounded and three injured in combat operation accidents.

Rainfall In The Past 12 Months Half Of Normal

Rainfall for the past 12 months period is half of normal, the U.S. weather bureau reports.

In its summary of September weather for the Big Spring station at the airport, the bureau reported .79 inch precipitation. This brought the total for 1951 to an even nine inches.

The last quarter of 1950 contributed only .19 of an inch, and that in tiny sprinkles in October. The total for the 12 months ending Sept. 30 is 9.19, or 9.02 below normal.

Further aggravating conditions, only twice this year has as much rain as one inch in a 24-hour period fallen. June 2 brought 1.66 inches and July 2 1.21. Only two other showers approached an inch—one for .84 and another for .92. These than transfers, principal receipts were fines and court costs, $2,515; gas franchise, $1,722; delinquent tax receipts, $1,492; and water deposits, $1,505.

Water metered, in September amounted to 96,399,000 gallons, a decrease of 7,164,100 gallons under August, and an increase of 3,539,500 gallons over September 1950.

Water and sewer charges billed to customers amounted to $42,558, a decrease of $2,116 from August and an increase of $13,823 over September 1950. Water and sewer system revenue fund receipts totaled $48,462. Balance in that fund decreased from $85,679 to $74,526.

The airport fund showed an increase — from $5,415 to $7,345. Balance in the cemetery fund also grew, mounting from $1,120 to $1,727. The swimming pool and park system fund rose from $5,962 to $6,647.

Balances in the parking meter and interest and sinking funds decreased slightly, the parking meter balance dropping from $12,094 to $11,816 and the interest and sinking balance from $19,094 to $18,716. Bonds retired during the month totaled $13,000, while the city paid interest amounting to $660 and a commission of $10.

Interest and sinking fund receipts amounted to $13,291. The city's indebtedness now stands at $916,000 tax bonds and $600,000 revenue bonds.

Traffic Control Kept Policemen Busy Last Month

Traffic control occupied city police a good part of the time during September. Judging from the number of tickets issued and fines assessed.

Patrolmen gave out a total of 468 tickets for such offenses as overtime parking, speeding, reckless driving, and no operator's license, etc.

Traffic fines assessed, not including the $1 penalties charged for overtime parking, amounted to $1,389. There were 108 of these fines assessed.

In other activity, officers made a total of 146 arrests during the month, the majority being on intoxication charges. A total of 314 drunks were fined $1,778 in September. Disturbance was the second most common violation with four persons being fined a total of $112 on the charge.

Two persons charged with driving while intoxicated were transferred to county authorities.

Three patrol cars were driven a total of 14,928 miles during the month. Approximately 1,800 calls to and from police radio station KKD496 were logged.

ONLY ARMY, AEC KNOW OF BLASTS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. Oct. 11.—Only the Army and the Atomic Energy Commission know when the next series of blasts will be touched off at Frenchman's Flat proving grounds northeast of here, and they aren't saying.

But there's no law against guessing, and a lot of people in this gambling resort are indulging in the privilege.

Some signs point to a starting date early next week. Bookmakers are betting that way. Carroll L. Tyler, AEC test manager, isn't scheduled to arrive until later this week.

A musical psalm was given by Peggy Toops and Jeanne Stratton after which Mrs. J. A. Coffee brought the highlight address. Other installing officers were Jackie Marchant, retiring worthy advisor; Peggy King, installing musician; Peggy Toops, recorder and Joy Williams, installing chaplain. Refreshments were served to the officers and guests at the program's close in the banquet hall. Mrs. J. H. Magee and Mrs. Beulah James were the hostesses. ### Flat, Bright Sofa Pillows Make Delightful Lounging

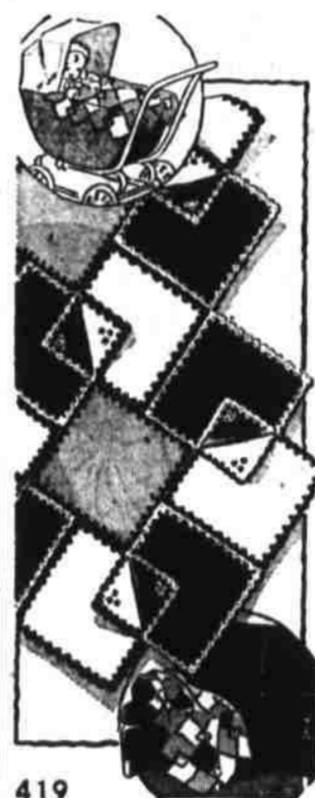

By ELIZABETH HILLYER. Lead a softer life with new pillows for sofas, studio couches, beds and chairs. They're extra comfort and make a room look more comfortable, and designed like these they're very much in style. Favorites are simple and untrimmed, somewhat flat rather than plump and soft rather than firm. Use them to tuck up under elbows on armless or wood arm sofas, studio couches and chairs, to shorten the widths of seats that are too deep or just to lounge back on because the lounging's more comfortable that way. Cover fabrics for the pillows needn't match upholstery covers. They usually do not — the fabrics need be no more than equally formal or informal. The pillows should be colorful — use them to repeat room scheme colors or to splash bright new color in the room. Toss three or more pillows in three colors together and they do wonders to wake up the color scheme. You'll find many new pillows in the stores now in a variety of shapes and sizes, or you can make your own. Ticks first filled with feathers or kapok-before the covers. Learn how to reclaim and restyle old furniture with beautiful finishes — and what to do about furniture finish repair. BAYLOR HAS EDGE

Texas Is Favored, SMU Underdog This Weekend

By The Associated Press Texas is a 6-4-point favorite to beat Oklahoma but SMU is a 13-point underdog to Notre Dame in Saturday's big interconference games for Southwest Conference teams.

Rice is rated even against Navy. Baylor plays Arkansas at Waco, TCU engages Texas Tech at Lubbock and Texas A&M meets Trinity at San Antonio.

Tourney Threat Benny Edwards warms up for the first annual Big Spring Country Club Junior golf tournament as other entries look on.

Longhorn Trainer Frank Medina said Fullback Byron Townsend had flu. Ed Price was well satisfied with the way Richard Ochoa, Townsend's replacement, has been running.

SMU looked alert against Notre Dame passing and ground plays in their long afternoon drill. Jess Neely send his Rice Owl charges through a rough head-knocking scrimmage.

TCU was wondering if Guard Herbert Zimmerman and Defense-End Charles Rogers would be able to play against Texas Tech Saturday night in Lubbock.

Otis Douglas said he believed Charles Hallum, speedy Arkansas sophomore, probably will start at Arkansas' injury-riddled fullback position against Baylor Saturday.

Big Spring's up-and-coming B team is in San Angelo today, where at 4 p.m. it was to take the field against that school's reserves.

When in high school, Ellison used to play against Frnk's teams. Bob Smith, the Texas Aggie terror, who was supposed to run wild this fall, ranks only seventh among individual ball carriers of the Southwest Conference this week, having gained 166 yards in 38 carries for a four yard average.

The Shortorns dropped their first game of the season last week when Sweetwater nipped them, 13-6. It was an honorable loss, though, and a break or two could have swung the issue their way.

George must know what he's doing, though. The Aggies are still unbeaten. J. C. ARMISTEAD STILL LEADING BALL CARRIER Sophomore J. C. Armistead remains the Big Spring Steers' leading ball carrier after last week's game with a net pickup of 218 yards in 32 carries.

Earlier, the Shortorns had beaten Stanton, Lamesa and Snyder in that order. In all, the Big Springers have scored 44 points this season, compared to 32 for the foe.

The aforementioned Mr. Smith and Kentucky's Babe Parilli may be left out in the cold when it comes time for the grid analysts to select All-America teams this year. Smith isn't getting in the headlines enough to offset the publicity barrages fired by the tub-beaters for California's Johnny Olezewski.

Florida still has tough games with Auburn, Vanderbilt, Kentucky, Georgia, Miami and Alabama remaining on its schedule. In three years' time, Dean Franks won 60 mound decisions for the Roswell Longhorn baseball club.

Florida could wind up in Orange Bowl. Florida university is a good bet to wind up in the Orange Bowl next Jan. 1, despite the Gators loss to Georgia Tech recently. Miami ended up there last season, although it didn't have too spectacular a record. Local and area teams, of course, always have the inside track there.

Florida is as most everyone knows, are coached by Bob Woodruff, the former Baylor mentor. Since observers have stated flatly that this is the best Florida team since 1928, when Charles Bachman was the coach.

There will be 25 or more contests in the top-up category. Those so-called "little" teams take their football as seriously as the big fellows. And what a colorful lot of names. How could you rate them all without a system? A honey on Sunday will be St. Thomas to shave St. Ambrose.

Close to a gnat's eyebrow. That saying fits perfectly many football games this week-end. Respective opponents in many games this week either have identical Williamson ratings or ones differing only in the decimal figure.

Take one of the biggest games on Saturday, Texas versus Oklahoma at Dallas. Two giants of even calibre, each rated the same—92.2. On the theory that Dallas is in Texas, select the Longhorns of Texas by a hair.

The game of the week will be Notre Dame over S.M.U. at South Bend, Ind. This should show just how good this 1951 edition of the Irish really is.

Another crucial game Saturday will be Ohio State to stop Wisconsin. This may be tough. On Friday a honey will be Miami U. of Florida to upset Purdue again, like they did last year. Mighty close.

In major ranks the following games all should be nip and tuck. Army over Dartmouth, Florida over Auburn, Camp Lejeune over Boston U., Wyoming over Colorado A&M (tough), Georgia Tech over LSU (tough), Michigan over Idaho, Idaho over Montana.

Other close "majors" include Princeton over Penn, Oregon State over Southern California, Stanford over UCLA, Holy Cross over Tulane, Houston over Tulsa.

The game of the week in the middle brackets will be Bucknell to put the brakes on roaring Kent State. In lesser brackets over the week-End there will be 25 or more contests in the top-up category. Those so-called "little" teams take their football as seriously as the big fellows. And what a colorful lot of names. How could you rate them all without a system? A honey on Sunday will be St. Thomas to shave St. Ambrose.

Aggies, Purple And Bears Due To Win Starts

By HAROLD CLAASSEN NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (UP)—Picking football winners:

Texas over Oklahoma: Oklahoma made only four first downs against Texas A&M last Saturday and the Longhorn line can't be rated as exactly puny.

Notre Dame over SMU: The Methodist will rate a contest in the rugged Southwest Conference nothing more than a signal drill after this encounter with the Irish.

Baylor over Arkansas: Texas A&M over Trinity, TCU over Texas Tech, Hardin-Simmons over Temple State.

Ohio State over Wisconsin: The loser in this one can give up all hope of making the Rose Bowl trip.

Georgia Tech over LSU: Tech reportedly had the best freshman football team in the country last year.

California over Washington State: What team in the country has a better one-two punch than California?

Princeton over Penn: This one could go the other way. Tennessee over Chattanooga: Why don't you pick on somebody your size?

Kentucky over Mississippi State: how can a team like Kentucky lose four straight games?

Army over Dartmouth: An 18-year-old freshman, Pete Van takes over the Cadet quarterbacking job.

Lumping the others: FRIDAY Alabama over Villanova, Fordham over Boston College, Purdue over Miami.

SATURDAY East: Cornell over Harvard, Illinois over Syracuse, Yale over Columbia.

Midwest: Colorado over Missouri, Iowa State over Kansas State, Iowa over Pittsburgh, Kansas over Utah, Michigan State over Marquette, Michigan over Indiana, Northwestern over Minnesota, Nebraska over Penn State, Oklahoma A&M over Wichita.

South: Duke over North Carolina State, Florida over Auburn, Holy Cross over Tulane, Maryland over Georgia, Mississippi over Vanderbilt, North Carolina over South Carolina, Virginia over Wake Forest over William & Mary.

Far West: Arizona over Texas Western, College of Pacific over Clemson, Denver over New Mexico, Montana over Idaho, Southern California over Oregon State, Stanford over UCLA, Washington over Oregon, Wyoming over Colorado.

Brooks Still Leads Scorers Though his team suffered its first defeat last weeked, Ralph Brooks of Midland remained the leading scorer in District I-AAA. Brooks has now counted 48 points, six more than Ray Taylor, Lamesa's end, who has become Jerry Millsaps' star receiver.

Two other players, James Butler of Sweetwater and Jimmy Rubin of Lamesa, have each scored 30 points.

LITTLE SPORT

One-Man Gang

A one-man wave of destruction in Big Spring Yearling games this season has been Buddy Cosby (above), a back. Cosby has been terrific on offense and even better as a line backer. He'll see action when the Junior high club hosts Thomas A. Edison of San Angelo Saturday night.

Unless poor health dampens the fire of this old warhorse, he'll be back as long as they want him. Right now, that's probably forever.

Sure Leq Durocher's "miracle men" Giants gave the Yanks a good wrestle before succumbing, 4-3, in Wednesday's sixth game at chilly Yankee Stadium. But they couldn't against another miracle.

Coaches Roy Baird and Earl Crawford are planning to use a lot of players who have not seen action previously this season.

The Coahoma team probably will be made up of 8th, 7th and 8th grade boys and will probably compare favorably with the Yearlings in weight.

Maybe they were lucky to close it out in six. The Giants ought them yesterday, 11-7, and staged a rousing finish that all but saved the day.

Still Hank Bauer's 400-foot triple, unloaded the bases with the winning runs in the sixth. That was the ball game, plain and simple.

Having the National Amateur team in his J. Maxwell will play in the Hard Scrabble Tournament at Fort Smith, Ark., next week, then will go to Mexico City, Oct. 23, for the National Mexican Amateur.

Joe Conrad, defending champion at Mexico City, and Maxwell have benefit exhibitions in Texas for the Gonzales Crippled Children's Fund after that.

Bronx Bombers Came Through Like The Champs They Are

although it took a bit of doing to keep it under control. Bauer, more or less of a flop in this series, emerged a double hero. His hit over Monte Irvin's head won the game from Dave Koso.

All the credit in the world belongs to the gallant Giants who clawed from last to first in the most exciting playoff series in all baseball history. They never quit when the Dodgers had them 4-1 week that they must be given a chance for the title. As a matter of fact, the Sweetwater bunch looked much more effective against the Bobcats than did the Midland club earlier in the season.

Vernon wasn't too impressive in its assignment last week, just managing to get by Quahak, 6-0. Midland dropped its first game of the year, a 13-13 verdict to high-flying Brownwood.

Big Spring is the only team in the conference which hasn't been able to register a win. The Steers will be idle this week, preparing for their Oct. 19 assignment with Haakell.

Results last week: Ylets 48 Big Spring 5, Brownwood 13 San Angelo 6, Sweetwater 13 San Angelo 6, Pampa 12 Plainview 5, Arlington 16 Lamesa 12, District 14-1 Standings (All Non-Conference)

TEXAS BRANDS

By JOHN M. HENDRIX
 The Bar X was the brand of a Texas capitalist who at one time owned the principal interest in the Crazy Hotel at Mineral Wells, Texas, an oil mill in Fort Worth, and was interested in a number of West Texas banks. In 1905 there were some 15,000 cattle wearing the Bar X brand of the owner, Sidney Webb, who died in Mineral Wells several years ago.
 Webb's principal ranching interests during the time of his activity were in Montague and Clay Counties.

US May Curtail Auto Production By 13 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—The government is reported to have decided to curtail automobile production by about 13 per cent under present output and allow 950,000 cars to be produced in the first three months of 1952.

Informed officials said Wednesday that decision has been made by the Defense Production Administration (DPA). An announcement is due Friday. Earlier plans had been to cut production of passenger cars to about 800,000 in the first quarter.

Auto industry sources had said they expected stocks of alloy steel to be larger than officials had anticipated.

Auto production in this quarter is limited to about 1.1 million through curtailments in the supply of steel, copper and aluminum.

At the same time, officials of the steel industry urged Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson to support their pleas for higher steel prices. That was their principal reply to Wilson's demand that they submit to him suggestions for boosting steel output. The industry leaders contended a price hike is needed to compensate for higher production costs.

HOW TO TALK BACK TO JUDGE

Yank Soldier Top Paid GI In NATO

By ED CREAUGH
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—"Seventy-five lousy dollars a month!"

Well, if it's any consolation, the $75-a-month U. S. recruit is a rich man compared with the draftee in any other country of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

His British comrad, in arms starts soldiering at $16.80 a month. The Greek conscript does next best — $10.08.

And so it goes on down the line to the Turkish draftee, who's mustered in at — honest, this is not a typographical error — 11 cents a month.

These figures, supplied by U. S. military authorities, were made public by a House Appropriations Subcommittee in connection with the $7,482,527,790 (B) foreign aid bill which goes before the House today.

The spread between the pay of the American fighting man and his overseas counterpart will be even greater if Congress approves the ten per cent across-the-board increase which the Defense Department has asked.

The figures for the overseas NATO countries show that France pays its draftees $1.28 a month, Iran sheels out 31 cents a month and Portugal bestows 51 cents a month.

It won't surprise enlisted men of any army to learn that the pay goes up fast as a man rises through the officer ranks.

France, for instance, pays a major $203 a month, compared with the $384.75 that an American major gets. Belgium, which has 36-month draftees, pays its majors up to $279.20.

And Turkey, with its 11 cent conscripts, pays majors up to $197 a month.

In other words, while an American major is paid about five times as much as a draftee, a French major gets 36 times as much as a French draftee and a Turkish major 1,790 times as much as a Turkish draftee.

There's one thing for sure about the Turkish system: it gives a man plenty of incentive to buck for officer training.

High heeled shoes and "wedgies" were worn in Europe in the eighteenth century.

Fire Control

Equipment from the VA hospital's fire fighting department makes up this display in the hospital lobby this week. Pointing out the different types of extinguishers, hose nozzles, etc., is Fire Marshal John Shepherd, while Jenny Miller, stenographer, gets a lesson in fire fighting. Shepherd set up the display as part of the hospital's Fire Prevention Week observance.

Elimination Of Fire Hazards Is 99 Percent Of Prevention

"A clean house never burns," says Fire Marshal John Shepherd of the Big Spring VA hospital, and he thinks the elimination of fire hazards is about 99 per cent of a good fire prevention program.

Do away with accumulations of rubbish, watch where you store clothing, linens, volatile liquids and other inflammables, and you have taken a big step toward the prevention of fire, according to the veteran fire fighter. He pursues such a program at the VA hospital here, and as a result the

HCJC Officials To Talk Disposition Of AFB Properties

Howard County Junior College board members and officials will confer with U.S. Corps of Engineers next Wednesday on disposition of the HCJC properties on the Air Base.

Time for the conference is 9 a.m. at the HCJC administrative offices. The Air Force and Engineers are in the process of seeking to conclude terms of a lease with the City of Big Spring for airport property as well as settling for buildings on the base. The junior college had secured the hospital area buildings from the old bombardier school here from the War Assets Administration. Now the buildings are to be used again for base hospital purposes. The city's conference has been set for next Thursday.

institution has one of the better records among the 72 VA hospitals-in this country.

To illustrate the importance of caution in the handling and storage of volatiles, Shepherd points out that one gallon of gasoline, given the proper amount of air, is equal to 100 pounds of TNT in destructive power.

Shepherd has organized a force

Ag Mobilization Group Sets Meet

The Howard county agricultural mobilization committee will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday at 2 p.m. in the Production and Marketing Administration office.

Among the important items to come on for consideration are the possibility of a county-wide scrap drive and that of declaring this as a drought disaster area.

Everywhere efforts are being made to bring the heavy scrap to dealers so that the metal may be channeled quickly to mills. The nation's steel output is dependent in a large measure upon the ability to obtain adequate scrap to go with virgin ores.

Effects of the drought will be reviewed, and information of requirements and procedures for securing designation as a drought disaster area will be presented by the Farm Home Administration. John G. (Gabe) Hammack, Jr., administrative officer for the PMA in Howard county, will preside.

of volunteer fire fighters at the hospital to combat any blaze that might break out there. Principally members of the engineering department, the volunteers receive instruction regularly in the use of the hospital's fire equipment.

In addition, all members of the staff benefit from motion pictures stressing the importance of fire prevention. Their biggest worry, according to the fire marshal, is that fires will start in the hospital wards or rooms.

To put down any fire threat, the hospital has 3,375 feet of line hose ready for use in all sections of the building. Fifty-four fire extinguishers are stationed at strategic positions, and the hospital is equipped with 31 manual fire alarm boxes.

The hospital has its own water system, complete with a 250,000-gallon storage tank, assuring adequate water for practically any fire. Though the institution is fire resistant, there is no such thing as a "fireproof" building, Shepherd believes.

The fire fighter has been associated with various government agencies in that capacity since 1942. Prior to starting work with the civil service he was member of the fire department at Texico, N.M.

In observance of national Fire Prevention Week, he has set up a display of fire fighting equipment in the lobby of the hospital here. Several types of extinguishers, various water nozzles, and other units from the hospital supply of equipment are shown.

ARABS DO IT

Benefit Bazaar On Exotic Side

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Imaginative ladies of the Arab diplomatic corps, seeking to aid orphaned refugee children in their lands, will introduce something exotic in the way of benefits here this month.

For weeks there have been few idle hands as wives and daughters of ministers of the Arab nations and their American friends have applied their talents in preparing for an Arabian Nights Bazaar.

Mme. Fais El-Khourt, wife of the minister from Syria and chairman of the bazaar, says the funds will be used to help educate the homeless and helpless children who make up a large number of the million refugees who flocked to their countries from Palestine.

"These children are in the streets in our cities and they are desperate," she told me. "We have the will, and we will find the way to help them."

Fabulous brocades, embroideries, brass work, silver work, jewelry, mosaics and other art objects, Turkish coffee, pistachio, sweets and even spinach pies, a Syrian delicacy, will be among the items offered for sale. Articles made or donated in this country will be augmented by wares from each of the seven Arab countries.

Financial and other contributions have been made by all the sponsors, the wives of the diplomats of the Arab countries here, and by the Asiatic countries of Pakistan, Iran, Indonesia, Ceylon, Afghanistan and Thailand. Ethiopia is contributing too.

Many beautiful things have been made by the women themselves.

Charming Sadika Raza, wife of Brigadier N.A.K. Raza, Pakistan military and air attache, is making purses and bags from lavish brocades. Mme. El-Khourt's daughter, Faiza, 19, a junior at Trinity College here, is painting Christmas cards. Another daughter, Hinda, 18, also a Trinity College student, is covering small match boxes with brocades from Damascus. Mme. Abdullah Ibrahim Bakr, wife of the charge d'affaires of Iraq, and her daughter, Huda, have been indefatigable workers. One afternoon they turned over the embassy of Iraq as a workshop for bazaar planners.

Sixteen-year-old Huda, a senior in public high school here, told me she is making flowers from wood fiber, a western world accomplishment she learned in a local hobby shop.

Harvesting Of Texas Crops Moves Fast

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—Harvesting of Texas crops progressed rapidly last week under fair skies over most of the state, the United States Department of Agriculture reported today.

Along the upper coast, however, showers and heavy dew also rice combining and harvesting of cotton.

East Texas farmers planted winter cover crops as well as clovers and small grains for pastures. There was good moisture for germination and early growth.

Winds and high temperatures displaced limited moisture in Central and North Texas, USDA said. Soils in those areas were again getting dry.

Cotton harvest in the Low Rolling Plains and Southern High Plains counties was rolling as rapidly as possible with a short supply of pickers and pickers. Harvest was at about the half way mark in the Northern Blacklands counties. Boll worm activity was cutting prospects for a top crop in northern and northeastern areas.

Wheat seeding made slow progress in the Northwest as dry weather continued.

Land was being prepared for planting in most fall and winter vegetable areas.

Range and pasture feed continued to improve in East Texas, along the coast and in southern counties. Rain was still urgently needed in western and northwestern counties.

Southern Railroads Get A Fare Hike

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the Southern railroads a 10 per cent increase in passenger fares.

At the same time, these lines were authorized to hike their minimum one-way ticket from 15 cents to 25 cents.

Someone's Foolin' With Apple Pies

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Whoa there, Brother. Somebody's tinkering with apple pies and we may have to do something about this.

Not only apple, but blueberry too. And cherry and peach.

The Department of Agriculture has developed a new method for preserving fruit. It wants to help the fruit growers, so more fruit can be used and at better prices for the growers.

The problem is to improve preserving methods so a product resembling the kind that comes tree-ripened and fresh off the tree will be available the year 'round.

But when you start tinkering with apple or blueberry pie you better know what you're about. The government experts realized you just can't fool all of the apple pie fans - or any other pie fans - of this nation. There are just too many of them, and their tasters are too keen.

When one big firm switched recently from fresh to frozen apples its pie sales dropped like a ton of lead.

"I'm not kidding, we changed back fast," an executive of this firm said. "Our business dropped more than one-third in a week."

The boss of another big pie firm said he also had tried to switch on his customers but that they caught it immediately, too. Business was clipped in two within a week.

That doesn't mean frozen apples are inferior to fresh ones. It's something about the taste. Pie eaters just don't go for them. On the other hand, they like frozen blueberries or cherries.

With all this in mind, the government decided to sample some opinions on pie. The big pie makers of Chicago were quizzed. The survey brought up some interesting facts about American pie-eating habits.

Everybody probably knows that juicy, tasty, tart apple pie leads in popularity. But what's in second and third place?

On the basis of the Chicago quiz, cherry pie held undisputed hold on second place. Blueberry and peach were about neck and neck in third. (On a national basis the pie industry used an estimated 115,000 tons of apples, 17,100 tons of cherries, 8,000 tons of peaches and 7,500 tons of blueberries in 1949.)

Who is the commercial pie baker's most serious competitor? Well, sir, it's dear old Mother.

"We compete with her," one of the Chicago bakers told the government quizzers. "She goes to the store and buys fresh fruit. So we have to use fresh fruit as much as possible to make as good a pie and make her want to buy it from us."

Pie makers have split characters. Broadly speaking, they tend to be artists, with a pride in their work. By necessity they also are businessmen, with an eye on the profit.

The people who did the Chicago quizzing concluded a typical baker has set up an ideal for himself and won't bake a pie that falls too short of it. Apparently he would rather go out of business.

"And what is the baker's ideal?"

LIKE SHOOTING OF McKINLEY

This Man's Specialty Is To Take A Rumor And Scotch It

By HELEN KOSSLOW
BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 11. (AP)—Myths about the assassination of President McKinley are Louis Babcock's specialty. He likes to scotch them.

The 83-year-old attorney was an eyewitness when 28-year-old Leon Czolgosz fired two shots at the President during a public reception at the Pan American Exposition here Sept. 6, 1901. McKinley died Sept. 14.

Even now, half a century after the tragedy, Babcock is asked to disprove myths about the assassination.

Most of the time he can reply on his own keen memory. But should that fail him, which is rare, he can refer to the most complete private collection of documentary detail on the assassination.

Babcock's 100-year-old home - only a block from the Wilcox House where Theodore Roosevelt was sworn in as President the day after McKinley's death - is crammed with newspapers, pictures and minutes of the assassin's trial.

Babcock, who still practices law, has made a hobby of running down the "vapors," as he calls them, that still turn up on the assassination.

Only recently a local restaurant owner who was a waiter at a luncheon for McKinley the day before he was shot claimed that if the President had allowed him to open a door to let in fresh air they would have found the killer lurking in the corridor.

"Not so," says Babcock. "After hearing the President speak that day, Czolgosz returned to his room and spent the rest of the day practicing holding the gun concealed in his handkerchief."

During the excitement after the shooting, a man named Jackson gained notoriety by claiming he had prevented the firing of a third shot.

"Not so," says Babcock. "The Secret Service men had Czolgosz on the floor instantly after the second shot was fired."

Babcock has a large collection of newspaper stories about McKinley's death and his "last words."

"He had no last words," Babcock says. "I visited him every day and he was behaving like any cultured, intelligent invalid when he suddenly had a relapse, passed into a coma and died."

"He could not have uttered the words, 'Father, thy will, not mine, be done,' because he was in a coma."

As a general of the New York State National Guard and marshal of the exposition Babcock was responsible, with others, for the President's safety.

Here's his story of the assassination, as he told it in testimony at Czolgosz' trial:

"I had taken three or four steps when I heard the muffled sound of two pistol shots very close together. (Babcock was only a few feet from the President). Wheeling around, I saw the President, deathly pale but standing unsupported. A thin veil of gas from the revolver was fading away in the foreground was a struggling mass, forcing to the floor a young man who apparently was offering no resistance. The President was helped to a seat and an ambulance called. The President said, 'x x x be careful about my wife. Do not tell her' and 'let no one hurt him' (The assassin)."

Czolgosz had passed 14 guards, three Buffalo detectives, 11 artillerymen and several trained Presidential guards without attracting attention.

Babcock points out that Czolgosz had an innocent appearance and was neatly dressed. Because of the humid weather, almost everyone in the line had a handkerchief out wiping his face and drying his hands before shaking hands with the President.

When Czolgosz stood before McKinley, he extended his left hand to the President and passed the right, (holding the gun draped in a cheap cotton handkerchief) over the brow. He then quickly whipped the handkerchief to one side, lowered the gun and fired twice.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—An information searching machine to answer questions by scanning 1,000 records per minute has been developed by the International Business Machine Corp.

This super-gadget combines the electronic principles of the "mechanical brain" business machine with a new mechanical "language" of 72 characters. Photo-electric eyes read scientific information from punched cards.

Information contained in books and technical literature is condensed in machine language on cards. When a question card is placed in the machine, the answer or index to where the answer can be found automatically given.

Presidential Bust Moved

Off to a safer place goes this often besmirched bronze bust of President Truman. Tied securely by the neck the 400-pound statue is steadied by H. E. Jones, a groundskeeper at the University of Kansas City, Kan., for its trip to a courtroom of the school's law building. At its former location on the campus, where it had stood since its presentation in 1947 by President Miguel Aleman of Mexico, the bust had been a perennial target of vandals celebrating elections, Halloween, Hooey eve and other occasions. Paint and whitewash were smeared on it several times. (AP Wire-photo).

Average Restaurant Cup Of Tea Is A High Crime

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, Oct. 11. — If the great American tragedy today is the average cup of restaurant coffee, pray tell what is the average cup of restaurant tea?

This query came from a lady fond of the brew that cheers but not inebriates — which, by the way, is tea. And I feel I can give an authoritative answer. The average cup of restaurant tea isn't tea at all. It is a felony perforce, a high crime against two of the noblest beverages of history — honest water, honest tea.

It is a far worse thing to serve a bad cup of tea than it is a bad cup of coffee, because it wounds the recipient more grievously.

Coffee drinkers are hearty, durable, down-to-earth people able to stand the shocks and disappointments of life. But your true tea lover is a finer, more sensitive soul, easily depressed by harsh realities.

"Thank God for tea!" cried Sydney Smith. "What would the world do without tea? I am glad I was not born before tea."

Emerson observed "there is a great deal of poetry and fine sentiment in a sheet of tea."

Edmund Waller spoke of tea as "The Muse's Friend." And Thomas de Quincey wrote:

"Tea, though ridiculed by those who are naturally coarse in their nervous sensibilities... will always be the favorite beverage of the intellectual."

Editor's Note: Is that the same guy who wrote "Confessions of an English Opium-Eater?"

(Boyle's Note: Yes, he went on to opium from restaurant tea.)

The trouble with restaurant tea boiled down to this: The average restaurant simply seems unable to boil water.

The waitress drops a cheesecloth sack containing five assorted tea leaves into a small piece of covered crockery supposedly containing boiling water. Anxiously you wait a moment, sorrowfully you pour despairingly you taste. It is tepid as a Victorian love scene, as fit-vorless as melted snow. You couldn't even put peppermint in it and palm it off as a gargle.

I have seen grown-up tea drinkers put their faces down on their arms and cry when dished up this insult to their favorite beverage.

SOCIAL MOVEMENT GROUP

Italian Party Renounces Nothing Of Good Done During Fascist Years

By FRANK BRUTTO
ROME, Oct. 11. — The Italian Social Movement Party (MSI), which scored sharp gains in Italian elections this year, frankly says it does not shun association with Fascism.

Augusto de Marsanich, gentlemanly, white-haired national secretary of the party, said in an interview: "We renounce nothing of good and lasting that was done during the 20 years of Fascism."

"Many of the institutions then created with the help of cultural and scientific elements drawn from our tradition have had to be — or should be — renewed. Even if their present names differ from what they were, substantially nothing has been changed."

As it was for Fascism in the days of Benito Mussolini, De Marsanich said, the ideology of the MSI today "is based above all on the corporative principle." This, he said, "involves a profound reform in the social order on political and economic lines."

De Marsanich, in response to a series of questions, gave an ABC of the young party that has gathered within its ranks both old adherents of Fascism and Italian youths who have not found answers to their political or economic questions either in Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats or Moscow-trained Palmiro Togliatti's Communists. Those are the number one and two political forces in Italy.

The MSI national secretary declared that the party vote in this year's regional and communal elections, (it won 500,000 votes in the 1948 national election) was "due to many causes."

"First of all," he said, "it was due to the mistaken policy of De Gasperi's government in all sectors of domestic and foreign affairs."

De Marsanich spoke harshly of the government's attitude towards the MSI. Earlier this year Interior Minister Mario Scelba refused the party permission to hold a national congress.

"Certainly," said De Marsanich, "it is an error to scorn and vex a political movement that basically is more nationalistic than any other in Italy."

"The numerical increase registered in the recent elections will certainly be intensified in the coming autumn elections because the MSI represents the will of Italy surging forward."

Italy's youth especially is drawn towards the party the MSI leader said, because "it possesses a patriotic cement such as has no other party."

By 1953 the party will "reveal itself to a decisive and determining factor in Italian politics," De Marsanich predicted. In that year the law that forbids members of the former Fascist Party to run for office will lapse.

The party's attitude towards the United States and Russia, said De Marsanich, "is very clear." It wants:

(1) Peace with all — in the East and in the West.

(2) To arm Italy against any threat of invasion, whether Bolshevik or from another direction.

(3) However useful, treaties must be signed upon conditions of equality and not under pressure or dictation. De Marsanich claims the Atlantic Pact was not negotiated.

(4) Relations of Italy with the Atlantic Pact depend above all upon decisions for the urgent and complete application of the tripartite declaration of March 20, 1948. "The Western Allies then said they favored the return of Trieste to Italy."

"The free territory of Trieste," De Marsanich concluded, "is Italian and must be restored to Italy."

Marine Recruiter To End Present Stand Here Friday

T-Sgt. Wesley Ward, in charge of the U.S. Marine Corps recruiting district of San Angelo, concludes his current stand here Friday evening.

Sgt. Ward set up a booth on Main near the Third street intersection as a contact point for men interested in enlistment. Examinations and interviews were to be given in the postoffice building.

The sergeant said a special invitation was issued to men who have received pre-induction physicals through the Selective Service, and to married men who may face the draft under new regulations. Men with dependents may be enlisted for the indefinite period—two years of active duty with the Marines—under present regulations.

College men with degrees may be able to qualify as second lieutenants, said Ward.

Men from 17 to 28 are eligible for three or four year or indefinite period of enlistment. Marine veterans may enlist in their old rank of sergeant and below. The 17-year olds cannot be sent overseas or to a combat area until they have reached their 18th birthday.

Those who failed to contact the sergeant on his visit here may reach him in care of the recruiting office in San Angelo.

Roasting Meat Leaves
When roasting meat leaves, the same as meat cuts, use a low temperature for finest results. A 300 degree F. temperature is recommended for beef, veal, lamb or ham leaves. Pork leaves or those mixtures containing ground pork should be roasted at a 350 degree F. temperature.

MRS. J. B. LONG
... tamale casserole ready to serve

Busy Housewife Likes One Dish Casserole

During her spare time between caring for two small children, knitting, sewing and attending church classes, Mrs. J. B. Long tries out new recipes. Though she says that her husband sometimes complains when they are not too good, the 'discoveries' make it worth her while. One of these taken from a leading magazine is now the family favorite. It is a one dish meal called Tamale Casserole for which Mrs. Long offers her recipe. Former Ft. Worth residents, the Longs were married in 1946 when

Liver Sausages Add Hearty Dish Flavor

Prepare a quick, hot dish with ready-to-serve liver sausage or Braunschweiger. Simply bake it! These handy sausages also are equally as outstanding in many more hearty fall day dishes.

For baking, purchase a piece of liver sausage in amount sufficient for serving the family. However, do not have the roll cut into serving slices. Leave it in one piece and completely remove the casing. According to Reba Staggs, home economist, the next step is to top the roll with bacon strips and bake on a rack in an open roasting pan at 300 degrees F. for 30 minutes, or until heated through and the bacon cooked. This hot "cold cut" may then be sliced and served as any roast with a garnish of fruits or vegetables.

Liver sausage cut into 1/4-inch slices may be broiled or panbroiled for other hot servings. Be sure to cook it slowly for best results. This ready-to-serve meat is perfect for lunch time or snack time sandwiches, too. Combine it with chopped celery, chopped sweet pickle and mayonnaise or with grated raw carrot and mayonnaise for nutrition and tasty sandwich fillings.

she was employed by Consolidated Co. They moved to Big Spring two years later. She is the former Jessybell Sims.

The children are Lonie Joe, age 3 and Jimmy who is 1 year old.

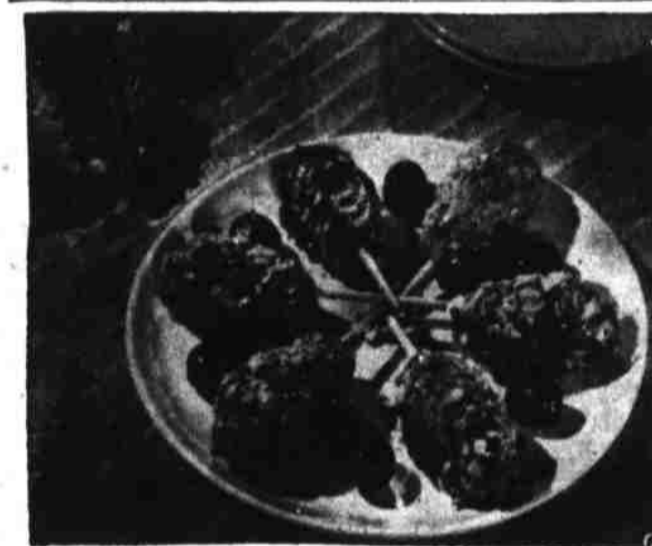

At first Mrs. Long confessed that she was so homesick for her friends that she wanted to go back to Ft. Worth. But now, in spite of sand and heat, she is firmly indoctrinated with West Texas.

Her dish, Tamale Casserole, is good when served with a green salad and dessert. It needs no other accompaniment.

Tamale Casserole

Ingredients:
1 lb. ground lean beef
1 clove garlic or 1 tsp. garlic salt
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced celery
1 No. 2 1/2 can tomatoes
1 1/2 cups whole kernel corn
1 Tbsp. salt
2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 cup corn meal
1 cup grated cheese
2 Tbsp. cooking oil or shortening

Method:
Cook and stir beef in cooking oil until brown. Stir in minced garlic, onion and celery and cook until onion is transparent. Add tomatoes, corn, salt and chili powder; boil slowly about 15 min. Slowly stir in corn meal and cook until thickened. Turn into greased 2-qt. casserole and top with cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 min. Makes 6 large servings.

EYE APPEALING MOCK CHICKEN LEGS
... made with economy ground meat

Mock Chicken Legs Are New Meat Ideas

Meat is particularly important in our daily diets because it is rich in protein and contains valuable vitamins and minerals, but if your budget dictates hamburger instead of steak, don't worry... good ground beef is just as nutritious as fine sirloin. Hamburger can be about as tasty and appetizing, too, if we take the trouble to fancy it up a bit. As a suggestion, next time you buy ground beef or ground veal, ask your butcher for several wooden skewers, and use them to make mock chicken legs. Here's a treat your whole family will enjoy... juicy, tender meat in a crisp, crunchy coating of golden brown corn chips... and served on a stick like an ice cream bar!

Corn Chip Mock Chicken Legs
Serves 6
1/2 lb. beef (ground)
1/2 lb. veal (ground)
2 tbsp. chopped onion
1/4 tsp. sage
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. black pepper
1/2 cup finely crushed corn chips (measured after crushing)
4 tbsp. fat or oil
6 wood skewers

Directions:
Mix beef and veal with onion, sage, salt and pepper. Mold into drumstick shapes around the skewers. Roll in corn chip crumbs and fry in melted fat until done.

Corn Chip Tuna Sandwich Spread
Tuna Sandwich Spread
1 can (7 oz.) tuna
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons dill pickle (finely chopped)
1/4 cup cucumbers (finely chopped)
1/4 cup finely crushed corn chips (measured after crushing)

Directions:
Flake tuna, add lemon juice, mayonnaise, pickles, cucumbers and crushed corn chips. Use as a sandwich spread.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD WITH CHICKEN, VEAL, SHRIMP OR CRABMEAT ... ingredients heaped into tomatoes and served on salad greens.

Main Dish Salads Are Colorful Taste Treat

It may be sweet potato and sparrows time up North, but South Texas appetites, wilted by long summers and sultry autumns, won't be alighting the hearty main dish salad for some time to come.

There was a time when a man would have been insulted at the offer of salad as a main dish. But today the word covers such a multitude of dishes, from a light tossed salad to meat, cheese and vegetable salads as heavy as pot roast that, properly spiced and seasoned, a salad can serve any need and any taste.

And it's just as well, for the combinations are unlimited. For instance, any type of meat may be the ingredient—cooked beef, veal, pork, ham, lamb, ready-to-serve and many of the canned meats.

One good way to use leftovers, for example, is to cut these meats into cubes, or into long, thin strips. They may be tossed with the salad and the meat lightly piled over the top of the servings.

Meat salads are practically a meal in themselves. An addition might be corn on the cob and hot rolls. Fresh or frozen fruit sandwiches present a cooling dessert.

Here is a recipe for an outstanding meat salad the homemaker will want to serve soon.

Italian Meat Salad
2 cups cooked meat, cut in 1/4 inch pieces
1 small onion, finely chopped
2-3 cup sliced celery
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
2 cups grated carrot
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon salad or olive oil
Lettuce leaves

Sweetbread Salad is one of those delicacies often reserved exclusively for the afternoon bridge club. The homemaker can do an about-face on this score and offer some to the family, too. They will be just as appreciative of her effort, and deserve the same variety in their daily menus.

Sweetbread Salad Supreme
1/2 pound sweetbreads
1 cup diced ham
1 1/2 cups diced celery
1/2 cup cooked or canned peas
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper
Lettuce or endive

Wash sweetbreads. Simmer 20 minutes in water to which 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vinegar have been added for each quart. Cool. Remove any membrane. Break into small pieces. Add ham, celery, peas, lemon juice and seasonings. Moisten with mayonnaise. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups or on a bed of endive. The yield is 6 to 8 servings.

If this salad is to be for a family meal, hearty accompaniments are in order. Spicy deviled eggs, chunky quarters of meaty red tomatoes, and rye bread are suggestions. For dessert, the family may luxuriate in fresh apple pie with a wedge of creamy golden cheese.

South American macaroni salad is the perfect accompaniment for a menu which features cold cuts, grilled frankfurters or broiled steaks.

The salad is made crisp with celery and green pepper, given color with tomatoes and seasoned with chives and a tangy dressing.

Macaroni Salad
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces elbow macaroni
4 hard-cooked eggs
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 small tomatoes, diced
2 tablespoons chopped chives or scallions
1/4 cup French dressing
Salt

Freshly ground pepper
2 avocados
Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add elbow macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water, drain again.

Cut shelled hard-cooked eggs in halves and remove yolks. Chop egg whites; press egg yolks through a sieve. In a large bowl, combine cooked macaroni, egg whites, celery, green pepper, tomatoes, chives and French dressing. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and chill several hours for flavors to blend. Pour macaroni mixture into a large salad bowl. Cut avocados into sickle-shaped slices and arrange on salad around edge of bowl. Sprinkle sliced egg yolks on center of salad.

Luncheon Salad
A three-tiered salad topped with canned peas and molded in clear consommé is the answer to any party luncheon. Next to the English peas comes a layer of rich cheese, and the base is a tangy tomato aspic. Served on salad greens with finger sandwiches, the salad makes a colorful and delicious main course.

Crisp Fritters Are Always Good
Crisp fritters may be a great aid to menus. First of all, there are the tasty meat types hearty enough for a lunch or dinner main course. Second, there are vegetable fritters designed to accompany the meat course. Third, there are fruit fritters that are ideal for desserts.

In preparing meat fritters, sliced, ground or cubed meat may be added to the fritter batter, according to Reba Stagg, home economist. The batter is dropped in deep fat (380 degrees F. to 375 degrees F.) and cooked until a delicate brown, then drained on absorbent paper. Ham and corn fritters are one example. In this case, ground cooked ham is combined with whole kernel corn, seasoned with minced onion and mixed with the batter.

In addition to corn fritters, vegetable fritters for accompanying the main course include sweet potatoes, carrot and turnips. A fruit version, banana fritters, are another meat platters.

Others in the fruit fritter list to serve as dessert include peach, apple, pineapple or apricot. Frequently when served as dessert, they are sprinkled with confectioners' sugar and accompanied by a fruit sauce.

Barbecue Balls
Your favorite barbecue sauce joins with miniature meat balls for an easy serving. Form ground beef, seasoned with onion, into small balls, then brown thoroughly. To the frying-pan add barbecue sauce, cover and cook for 45 minutes.

Deep Fryer Quickie
Wrap a prepared biscuit mix around little cocktail frankfurters. Put them in a deep fryer, heating shortening to 350 degrees. Fry four to five minutes, and then drain on absorbent paper. These are delicious party snacks.

COP HAS THE PROPER KNACK OF PREVENTING YOUTH'S SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP) — "You might fall if you stand on that ledge," Patrolman Theodore Marchlevski warned. "I know," the youth replied. "I'm going to jump." "All I want is your name and the address of your family; so we'll know where to send the body," said the officer as he moved out on a Manhattan Hotel roof ledge with the youth. The gloomy lad said he was Robert Fallhauer, 19, of St. Louis. "Okay," said Marchlevski.

"Now tell me why you're going to jump." Fallhauer explained that he had lost his job. "Heck, I can straighten that out for you," said the policeman as he pulled out a pack of cigarettes. "Give me a light and I'll tell you what I can do." The youth let the policeman come closer for the light. Suddenly Marchlevski grabbed him. And Tuesday's drama atop the Fulton Hotel was ended.

Newsman Has Her Own Way Of Gettin' A Story

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—An intrepid Washington newswoman, May Craig, has her own way of getting a story on American battlefronts. In World War II, and more recently in Korea, she talked to the GI's first.

"Then I knew what to ask the generals," she told sister members of the Women's National Press Club upon her return from almost four months in Korea, where she covered the front in a jeep and got sleeping space in a general's van (but no sheets).

Correspondent of the Portland (Me.) Press-Herald, Mrs. Craig said the feeling among GI's was, "We don't want this to happen at home." Which is one of the "best arguments" against war, she said.

"The Americans are not the least backward—they're the best fighting men in the world," she said, but as far as she is concerned "every mountain in Korea is heart-break ridge."

One night Mrs. Craig changed from the navy blue palm beach slacks she was wearing to a dress and one of the perky flowered hats for which she is famed in Capital press circles. "The boys cheered, they were so glad to see a female in skirts," she said.

Before returning to Washington, Mrs. Craig visited Japan and had tea with the Ching Kai-sheks in Formosa.

Columnist Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer, back from a visit behind the Iron Curtain in the Balkans, and Esther Van Waggoner Tufty of the Tufty News Bureau, who visited Germany this summer, also reported to club members. Mrs. Thayer, once expelled from Yugoslavia by Tito because of an anti-Russian story, was permitted by the dictator to return this year for a CARE tour.

"The Yugoslavs seem crazy about Americans again, and Tito, that is a pushover for American publicity," she said, but added the old friends whom she cautiously contacted were wary just the same. They took her into the back room, pulled the blinds and begged her not to call again.

Guitar-Playing Vet Entertains At Lions Lunch

Ruclano C. Reyes, Jr., El Paso veteran, brought down the house with his guitar wizardry before the Lions club Wednesday.

Reyes, in the Veterans Administration hospital here for treatment, favored with three selections, playing the last, "Dark Eyes," with the guitar behind his back.

Then he turned out several request numbers, polishing off the repertoire with a waltz movement in which produced the effect of a string ensemble.

The El Paso veteran, who was introduced by Carlton Carr, is a first place winner of the Horace Heidt youth opportunity shows. The first number he played was his own composition and the piece with which he won the Heidt contest. Instrument for the occasion, an electric guitar, was furnished by Anderson Music. Reyes had entertained the VA patients the evening before.

Housewife Employment Is Problem Of Rearmament

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—her job after the war. So now 37 Housewives, more than any other group in the nation, will have to get out and man the machines if the nation runs too short of labor in the next two years of the rearmament program.

The U. S. Women's Bureau reports that as of July nearly 38 million women 14 and over did not hold jobs. Of those, close to 33 million were keeping house.

Apparently it would not be so difficult to lure the housewives into jobs as it once was. The Bureau combed the 1950 census figures to find that the numbers of married and single women who work have been completely reversed the past 10 years. It used to be that the majority of working women were single. Now nearly half are married and only a third single. The rest are widowed, divorced or separated.

Moreover a fourth of the working women—almost 19 million held jobs in July—have children under 18. A fourth of those have children still too young to go to school.

Perhaps most surprising, the average woman is older today than ever before. The older women took jobs during World War II along with women of all ages. But unlike the younger women, the bureau reports, the older women hung onto
