Says County Loses $150.000 Road Fund

The allotment of $150,000 made to Eastland county by the state highway commission for sur-facing roads, is to be withdrawn because the commissioners' court declined to provide the balance necessary to complete the project, as was provided for in making the allotment, according to former Senator Joe Burkett of Eastland, now a member of the highway commission. The order designa-ting the Rising Star to Carbon and Eastland to Stephenville roads as state highways may also be celled Senator Burkett said. Should this be done the cost of maintaining these roads will again fall

The allotment to Eastland coun-ty was originally for $120,000, but Senator Burkett was instructed by the commission to raise the amount to $150,000. The allot-ment was made with the provision, as stated above, that the county commissioners' court would appropriate a sufficient amount to com-

ASHINGTON-As a bit of. national <sup>6</sup> advertising, the Coolidge inaugural excelled all previous presidential pageants. This partly because of, partly in spite of, President Coolidge.

From an administration stand-point, the inauguration was shaped further to advertise "Coo-lidge economy" to the country. It was designed as a selling demonstration for horse sense and reduced expenditures. The little two-by-four reviewing stand built in front of the White House, elimination of an elaborate "court of honor," curtailing of the parade itself and lack of lavish and expensive decorations all united to give force and effect to the idea of economy

All this advertising of the ad-ministration's viewpoint and purpose was with the full aid and approval of the president.

THE advertising that was achieved in spite of the president, however, was accom-plished by the great new May-flower Hotel, which is making its bid for the patronage of states-men and dignitaries, and which was hurried to completion in time to cash in on the publicity opportunity presented by an inaugura-

For while an "official" inaugural ball-which would have been held in some commodious public build-ing-was banned by the president, an Cunofficial" charity ball was ar ranged for the main ball room of the Mayflower Hotel.

As a result of which, news stories and special articles, like this, have done more to Fix the Mayflower in the public mind, as a modern up to date Washington ho-tel instead of an antiquated sailing vessel, than could have been ac-complished in a year by a costly campaign of paid advertising.

of the Mayform of the Mayflower with an inaugural ball, even though was unofficial, may be more important than It seems on the surface. It may mark the beginning of a decline in social circles of the prestige assumed by those who never forget to let the world know that their ancestors "came over on the Mayflower."

To the dowager who hereafter announces her Mayflower descent, the frivolous flapper of today may make the fitting retort that she herself danced in the Mayflower when Cal took the oath.

In another way, too, the Mayflower marks a step ahead in the capital's evolution. It gives to downtown Washington a hostelry that is essentially metropolitan in its ensure its aspect

The building is an enormous pile, occupying almost an entire city block.

It offers not only all the "conveniences" but all the frills, in-cluding even the wife of a former Russian czarist official as "hostess," to give an atmosphere of dis-tinction and class to its tea room.

WHILE on the subject of ho-tels, it might be said that Washington is suffering from an epidemic of hotelitis. In the past six years the hotel capacity of the capital has more than doubled. During the war period, when a room and bath in Washington brought any price the management had the nerve to ask, the hotels then here made enormous profits.

And of course there is always the parade of politicians and the men with axes to grind and money to spend for the grinding. These are the folks who keep the botole bet hotels hot.

Visitors who sought shelter for one or two nights during the inauguration, however, were uni-formly informed that in order to get quarters for one night they would have to pay for four. No reservations for less than four nights would be booked. Too much advertising!
