JOE BAILEY TO ATTEND DANCE IN EASTLAND

Will Address American Legion Before Festivities If Arriving in Time.

Former United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Dallas will be in Eastland tomorrow evening to attend the American Legion dance, to be given at the Legion's Hall at 7:30 o'clock, and, if possible, will arrive in the city in time to deliver an address, according to K. B. Tanner, commander of the Eastland post.

The Ranger Post, Mr. Tanner said, had arranged to have their smoker tonight instead of tomorrow night as they had formerly planned, in order that the members of the Ranger Post might attend the dance at Eastland tomorrow night. A large number of the Eastland post will attend the smoker at Ranger tonight, Mr. Tanner stated.

As announced heretofore the parade which is to be staged by the Eastland Post, will start at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from in front of the American Legion Hall on South Seaman street and pass around the square, thence back to the Hall. The dinner will be served at 12:30, and will be presided over by John Turner of Eastland.

Business houses in Eastland will be closed from 12 o'clock on during the remainder of the day tomorrow. The courthouse offices will virtually all be closed, especially during the afternoon, it was stated this morning.

Beachers Collapse Causing Near Riot During Boxing Bout

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 10.—A 20-foot section of the beachers collapsed during a boxing show at Motor Square garden last night, following which there was a rush of persons to the exits in a frantic effort to get out, while others made their way to more expensive seats. About 20 persons were bruised, some of them severely, but none was seriously hurt. Hundreds of expensive chairs were broken by the people during the short stampede.

Finally it became apparent there was no reason for fright. The band began to play, lights were turned on and the program proceeded.

RANGER HIGH LATIN PUPILS TO FORM CLUB

They Expect It Will Prove Incentive To Aid Them in Their Study.

By LASSIE WATKINS.
The Latin students of Ranger High, under the directions of Mr. Massey, the instructor in Latin, have recently been planning for greater pleasure and success in their study through the organization of a Latin club and the co-operation of parents. The purpose of the organization is to secure the fullest co-operation of the Latin students, in order that they may not only be more interested in this study, and, therefore, attain a better idea of studentship and a higher standard in their work, but also a truer loyalty to the ideals of their course, and to the honor of their school in striving for high standards in scholarship, intellectual culture, and steadfastness of character.

At a meeting of the students, Mr. Massey informed them of the pleasure expected. A thorough Roman atmosphere is desired among the students. To secure this, they are to have their Latin room decorated with pictures and pennants to indicate the Roman styles. Also, further, to stimulate interest in the Roman people, the students are to have the regular "togae" and "pallae" and other features of costume, armor, and decoration to recall the Roman life.

To attain further success, at the request of Mr. Massey, the parents of the pupils assembled recently at the High school and discussed plans for deepening the interest in Latin and promised hearty co-operation.

POINCARÉ YET IS SUSPICIOUS OF GERMANY

Claims Nation Continues To Break Promises and Could Quickly Raise Army.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Raymond Poincaré, former president and premier of France, declared here today on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the armistice that German nationalists still have a spirit of revenge which warrants extraordinary precautions in the interest of universal peace. The man reviled by the German monarch and who sent French troops to occupy the Ruhr, told the United Press in an exclusive interview that Germany still is able to throw an army into the field, but despite this France has manifested her pacific intentions by participating in the security pact conference. Recalling orgies of war times and speaking in high terms of the Americans, Poincaré then launched into a discussion of peace and German politics. He said:

"Germany finally accepted the Doves plan, but this had hardly gone into effect when powerful groups in industry and politics declared its terms too heavy and that it would soon be necessary to suspend its application. Neither in disarmament or in reparation has Germany fulfilled her pledges. Germany could, within six months, put into the field an army of well trained men, well armed and well supplied with ammunition and her means to do this are increasing rapidly."

Physician On Trial For Killing Daughter Likely To Go Free

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 10.—Defense attorneys believe they have proved Dr. Harold Blazer innocent of murdering his imbecile daughter, and that he will be freed by the jury. Dr. Blazer appeared none the worse today after his hard day on the witness stand yesterday.

The same hypothetical questions admitted by the court yesterday were asked C. L. Pershing, Denver attorney, today. District Attorney Stone again objected to questions which outlined Blazer's life and ended by asking if he could have been insane when he committed murder. The objection of the state that no evidence had been introduced in this case to prove Hazel an imbecile was overruled by the court.

By the testimony of Capt. Robert Oldys, war plan division of the service, Mitchell hopes further to substantiate his claim that the war department has permitted the air force to fall far below its war time strength in equipment and personnel.

Textbook Contract Given American Book Co. Declared Invalid

AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—The $1,000,000 contract let by the state textbook board to the American Book company for furnishing books for use in the public schools of Texas was held inoperative and invalid by the attorney general in an opinion today given to Superintendent of Instruction J. M. Marrs. The company had not filed with its bid an affidavit that it had no connection that would violate the state anti-trust law, and for this reason the contract was nullified, according to the attorney. The American Book company is planning to ask the supreme court for a writ of mandamus compelling acceptance of the contract by the state, and thus take the case into court.

Fish 30 Years Old Said To Be In Thurber Lake

Reliable citizens of Strawn are authority for the statement that the lake at Thurber, in all probability, has fish in it 30 years old, provided fish live as long as that. The lake was made about 1895 or 1896. At that time, there was no legal requirement to provide drainage outlets as well as spillways for bodies of water of that sort, so the dam has remained intact and the growth, both vegetable and animal, has accumulated during all these 30 years. It is this accumulation of vegetable growth under water and other objectionable accumulations which now leads the authorities to demand its drainage and the consequent present to Mings of all that water and all those fish it is said.

LAWYERS AND LAWYERS.

The fact that the American Bar association has prepared a new code of ethics indicates a stirring of the conscience of the profession. New codes may not put an end to the shyster, but if the general opinion of the profession is aroused against unscrupulous practitioners much improvement is likely to result.

Laws will not make a community virtuous, nor will canons of professional ethics make dishonorable men honorable.

There will always be hypocrites among ministers, quacks among doctors, and pettifoggers among lawyers, which is an added reason why the honorable members of these professions should disown and, as far as possible, discourage all dishonorable practices.

There is no question that a lawyer "may undertake with propriety the defense of a person accused of a crime, although he knows or believes him guilty," and for the reason that the public welfare requires that no person should be punished for a crime unless, by due process of law, his guilt has been established.

But to defend a client accused of breaking the law is one matter, to advise a client how he can break the law with impunity is quite another matter.

Lawyers who would not think of counseling a burglar how he could break into a bank and escape with his plunder have not hesitated to counsel their clients how he can violate laws for the regulation of corporations and still be immune.

Lawyers do the larger part of making our laws, and the execution of law is wholly their duty.

The sole business of law is justice, and that ought to be the sole business of lawyers. But the highest salaries are paid men who can circumvent the law and defeat justice.

AVIATORS ASK SEPARATE UNIT.

The testimony of experienced aviators before the president's air board indicates a general opinion in favor of a separate air corps, and general dissatisfaction over the present naval organization. While there seems to be a growing tendency in favor of aviation among high naval officers they are careful to see that it does not overstep its bounds at the expense of other naval units.

Testifying before the president's aircraft investigating committee Col. William Mitchell declared that this country is wholly unprepared to defend itself. He declared the navy is not an adequate means of defense, and that it sticks to worn-out theories and practices. It is an army man speaking but there seems to be something in what he says. He minced no words in his testimony and gave evidence of having fully informed himself on his subject. A great deal of what he says will be endorsed by the public, and ought to carry weight with the president, even after discounting possible prejudices. The colonel cannot be accused of lack of patriotism or courage.

The result of the Canadian elections indicates a decided swing away from the liberals toward the conservatives, but leaves no party with a working majority. The progressive party, holding a score of seats, practically control the balance of power, and a second election is now suggested as the only way out of the muddle occasioned by party rule instead of majority rule.

JUNIOR NEW ERA CLUB MEETS.

If any one doubt that the Junior New Era club is a live club, he has but to watch them as they come down the stairs from the mezzanine floor of the Chelson, where they meet every other week, for their faces are radiant with the memory of the good times they have enjoyed at the meeting. And it has a flock of members also. Last night there were eight new members initiated, and while this was a secret ceremony, still from the echoes that floated down once in a while, one judged that it was not a very solemn one. A feature of the programs is an original newspaper, edited by Mrs. Lena Hight, in which she gives high lights on very personal affairs, just little intimate things that no one is supposed to know except one's own self. In fact, Mrs. Hight's psychic powers are almost uncanny and it's with fear and trembling that some members attend the meeting, for one can never know just what she is going to spring. The evening was not all frivolity, for a great portion of the time was devoted to the very serious subject of "New England Theologians and Poets," and some very good papers were presented on the subject, among them being papers by Mrs. Hight and Miss Fletcher.

A FAMILY REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pool have just returned from Lorenzo, Texas, where they enjoyed a family reunion on Nov. 5, at the home of A. H. Pool, given in honor of the eighty-seventh birthday of the aged mother of Mr. Pool, Mrs. M. Pool, who makes her home with her son, A. H. Pool. Grandma Pool, as she is lovingly known was quite surprised on her birthday when great crowds of children, grand children and other relatives from far and near began to flock in and extend birthday greetings. There were some sixty-seven present, representing about one-fourth of her descendants. Mrs.

She came to Texas in December of 1885 and has lived for many years in and around Gordon, Mingus and De Leon, and has friends galore in this part of the state. There were eighty-seven candles. One was baked by Mrs. A. H. Pool, another by Mrs. Ollie English of Albany and one came from a son and his wife, who live in far away Washington. Several of the children presented the honor guest with an easy rocking chair and many other lovely and useful gifts gladdened the heart of Grandma Pool on this eventful day. At noon a sumptuous dinner, with turkey as the piece de resistance and all the other good things that go with it, was served. The following children were present: Jim Pool, Cahrendon; R. B. Pool and family, Moran; S. A. Pool and family, Beeton; W. B. Pool and family, Ranger; A. H. Pool and family, Lorenzo; Bob Pool, Compton, Cal.; Mrs. R. GYSUM RESOURCES OF TEXAS ARE VERY LARGE

Special Correspondence.
AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—Gypsum resources of Texas are practically unlimited, according to Dr. E. H. Selards, geologist of the University of Texas. At the present time five plants in Texas, located in Hardeman, Fisher, Jones and Nolan counties, are engaged in the manufacture of gypsum products. Not only is there an abundant supply of raw material for the operation of these plants but throughout the entire belt of the country in which these plants are located, extending from Hardeman County on Red River to Ocke County on Colorado River, outcroppings of gypsum deposits are numerous and the supply abundant. Dr. Selards stated. Large gypsum deposits are also found in Culberson County.

The market for the gypsum products is not confined to Texas, but includes adjacent states extending east to the Atlantic Coast. The five plants now in operation afford employment for 800 or 1,000 men. Output of these plants reaches value in excess of $2,000,000 per annum, according to Dr. Selards.

Cisco Has Hopes of Defeating Ranger in Gridiron Contest

Special correspondence from Cisco indicates that Cisco is not going into that Armistice day game tomorrow with untarnished optimism. That Cisco hopes to win, is indicated and quite naturally so. But that she is expecting a walk-over is stoutly denied.

It now develops that Brownwood would also be a nominal contender for district champion should Ranger defeat Cisco tomorrow. That would make it a four-cornered race between Cisco, Eastland, Abilene and Brownwood. Red and white signs bedecking Ranger cars, announcing that the Bulldogs may win, indicate somewhat the revived hope of reclaiming lost prey by the Ranger players in that line.

Whatever the outcome of that game tomorrow, anyone suspects Ranger has laid down or lost interest, he has another thought coming. A pep squad rally the Ranger High school asser this morning was evidence that is not the case. Another bigger rally out in the open air, id for 7:30 tonight downtown, misses to wake the old time echo.

The meeting the High school was addressed Judge Flewellen and representatives from the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary clubs, Chief M. V. Representing the Lions, C. E. V. the Rotarians and C. C. Patm, the Chamber of Commerce. Superintendent Holloway and Principal Forrest also addressed the student body, team and pep squad. The old fighting spirit was amply in evidence. It was announced that the band, led by Leo Underwood, will head the pep squad in the parade in Cisco tomorrow as has been arranged by the Cisco Chamber of Commerce.

The High school glee club appeared for the first time at the High school meeting this morning. It was brought out at the meeting that Cisco is not going into the game cocksure by any means, nor Ranger down-hearted. News writers and dopsters from Cisco were quoted to the effect that all dope is always cast aside when it comes to the annual armistice game between Ranger and Cisco and the margin of defeat any year at that game has never exceeded a single touchdown. Furthermore, these writers are pointing out, both teams are in good fighting trim for tomorrow's game—not a single cripple or a single alibi.

Arrangements have been to have cars assemble at the Ranger Chamber of Commerce rooms at 12:30 tomorrow to take all pep squad members not otherwise provided for, to the game.

FAMOUS PLAYERS LASKY CORPORATION ON TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Final hearing in the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission against the Famous Players Lasky Corporation, charged with building a monopoly in the motion picture industry by control of production and distribution of films, was scheduled to take place here today.

Argument will be presented by counsel for the commission tending to show that through the activities of Adolph Zukor, president of Famous Players Lasky Corporation and his associated enterprises, the development of the motion picture as an art and an educational medium for the public good, has been retarded.

It is charged in the brief for the commission that the "Zukor Company" was guided in its efforts to control the industry by the sole desire to produce dividends.

The charges were expected to be flatly denied by counsel for the Lasky Corporation today. No effort has been made up to this time to refute the testimony of witnesses who recounted the financial transactions whereby Zukor acquired control of the various distributing agencies of the country.

WAYNE (BIG) MUNN TO MEET "STRANGLER" LEWIS IN RING

By United Press.

HOUSTON, Nov. 10.—Wayne (Big) Munn will get another chance at Ed (Strangler) Lewis' heavyweight championship here next Monday night, when they meet in a finish match. Lewis' diamond-studded belt, which he failed to deliver to Munn when the latter threw him in Kansas City, is to be the stake. A referee of national reputation is to be the third man in the ring.

WOMEN HERE ARE DEPENDING ON G. F. P. TO RESTORE VITALITY

Success of St. Joseph's G. F. P. Here Shows Women Are Quick to Take Advantage of Promised Relief From Distressing Ailments so Common Among Them Nowadays.

It is quite easy for the producers of a medicine to show instances of the remarkable performances of their product—remarkable results accomplished in a few isolated cases. There is nothing particularly wonderful about that. The real test of a medicine lies in its average day-in-and-day-out reliability to bring about real, lasting results.

The fame of G. F. P. is being spread principally by word of mouth from woman to woman. As women learn how quickly and easily it relieves them of headaches, backaches, nervousness, pains in the sides, nausea, cramps and that awful feeling of depression and weariness, it is natural for them to become so enthusiastic that nothing can keep them from telling every woman they know about the extraordinary merits of St. Joseph's G. F. P.

There is something romantic about the thought that real worth always gets its deserved approval. A few weeks ago G. F. P. was practically unknown, now it is on the lips and in the hearts of thousands of grateful women and to them all it means the same thing: that they at last have something they can depend on, and which really does get rid of their "female troubles," such as irregularity, which is brought on by the vicious attacks of catarrh of generative organs.

Women Now Depend on St. Joseph's G. F. P. To Restore Their Vitality

Make your Face as Lovely as You Are

All most people see in anyone is what is on the outside. Naturally, those who are handicapped by pimples, blotches, "breaking out," eczema, etc., on their skin are not going to get any attention.

You can "make the frame as lovely as the picture really is" by simply getting rid of those skin disfigurements, if you will just use Black and White Ointment, and Soap. Then your good nature and sweet ways will stand out without any drawback, and folks will want to be around you. They are economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and Soap.

NEW FASCIST MOVEMENT TO ORGANIZE IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Nov. 10. — The Fascist movement has spread to Japan, according to the vernacular press, and organization of a party along the lines of Benito Mussolini's "Black Shirts" will be started soon.

General Yamashita, former minister of war; Count Owki, former minister of justice; and Dr. Susuki, another extremist, are reported back of the movement and encouraging the active organizers.

Some of the newspapers suspect the organization designed to embarrass the cabinet of Premier Kato and call attention to the fact that the three ex-ministers supporting it all are members of the Seiyuhon party — the government's opposition.

Victim of Amnesia Thinks Name O'Neil; Brother In Ranger

Special Correspondence.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 10.—Whether the memory he is trying to recall and which comes to him in fragments refers to himself or to some other person he once knew is the problem of a victim of amnesia, hurt last June in a motorcycle accident, and those who art trying to help him establish his identity.

The victim thinks his name is James O'Neil and that his friends call him "Spike" as a nickname. He believes he has a brother named Harold whose nickname is "Hall," who is or was an oil well developer in Ranger, Texas.

The young man appears to be between 18 and 20 years of age, is five feet, seven inches tall, has grey eyes, black hair and weighs about 135 pounds. He thinks he attended Princeton University and that he once lived in Enid, Okla. He says he was hurt in a motorcycle accident at New Orleans. He says he has a brother who is an aviator overseas, a member of the Thirteenth Attack Squadron, he thinks.

The city editor of the Omaha World-Herald is trying to establish the identity of the young man and wishes to hear from any who may know him.

MAY SEYMOUR FOOT LOOSE

by BEATRICE BURTON ©NEA

May Seymour, whose husband killed himself because of her love affair with another man, returns to her home town after a year's absence. She sells her property, and with her tiny fortune in cash, sets out to find and marry a man with money.

At Atlantic City she meets Herbert Waterbury and Dan Sprague through a divorcee, Mrs. Carlotta Frolking. Both men pay suit to May, much to the distress of Carlotta, who has long been in love with Dan. She and May become great friends, however, and Carlotta asks May to winter with her in her California bungalow.

May sets her cap for Waterbury, whom she believes to be rich. He finally proposes, and May accepts him. Later she turns all her money over to him to invest for her, and he disappears with it!

Penniless, May sells her furs and diamonds to buy a ticket to Los Altos, Calif., where Carlotta has her home. On the way there she stops off to see her friends, the Dick Gregorys, and meets a wealthy widower, Ulysses X. Forgan. He falls in love with her at first sight, and asks her to marry him. But she refuses him, telling him that she likes him too well to marry him without love.

In California she tries to "break into" the movies and fails. Then, through Dan Sprague, she gets a job in the real estate office of Harker and Harker. One day the older Harker locks May into the office and tries to make love to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: With fascinated eyes she watched Mr. Harker come slowly toward her across the tiny office. As he came May backed away from him, step by step, knowing all the while that she should not back away.

What she ought to do, she told herself, was to stand her ground firmly.

But what she was afraid of was that if she did firmly stand her ground, Mr. Harker would seize her and kiss her. Kiss her with those horrible, wet lips of his that were stretched above his yellow teeth! Mr. Harker chewed tobacco.

At last May felt her shoulder-blades touch the wall. She realized that she had backed away from Mr. Harker just as far as she could. And still he kept on coming.

"Don't you dare come a step nearer to me!" she panted. "Don't you dare! If you do, I'll scream so the whole town can hear me!" Her voice was faint and flat.

Mr. Harker smiled. "Oh, no, you won't!" he said comfortably. "You want this just as much as I do. Your eyes have been asking me to kiss you for a week! And what's a little kiss between friends, anyway? 'Just a little love, a little kiss, eh?'"

Before May could say another word in protest he took her firmly in his arms, and bent his head down so close to hers that she could feel his tobacco-laden breath on her cheek.

Then suddenly he let her go. "What was that?" he hissed. "S-sh!" He laid one of his dirty fingers on May's mouth.

There was a faint tapping on the outer side of the door—one loud tap followed by three other short ones. It sounded again.

"That's Pauline—she always raps that way!" Mr. Harker whispered in May's ear. "Don't make a sound, darling!"

"Pauline" was Mr. Harker's wife, a short, fat woman with light hair and eyelashes; a masculine and strong-minded woman, of whom it was said Mr. Harker was mortally afraid.

May was sure she could feel his knees shaking now. His voice shook when he spoke.

"Don't move or make a sound, darling!" he said again in her ear. "She'll be gone in a minute."

May ground her teeth. It was bad enough to be caught this way even if she had loved Mr. Harker, but hating him the way she hated him! "For two pins I'd go right out and tell her what you were doing," she hissed.

Again the tapping sounded upon the door. This time it was more violent. Could it be that "Pauline" could hear the whispers within?

"What would you tell her I was doing?" asked Mr. Harker, under cover of the tapping.

"Making love to me against my will, you beast you!" May whispered furiously. "You know what you were doing, without my telling you!"

Mr. Harker laughed silently. There came a sound of retreating footsteps on the sidewalk outside the office, and in a minute or two Mr. Harker unlocked the door and threw it open.

May sank down at her desk and hid her face in her folded arms. She was shaking from head to foot.

Suddenly she heard a voice directly behind her—a woman's voice.

"Now, Henry Harker, what were you and that girl doing in here, locked up alone?" it asked.

There was only a groan from Harker.

May swung around in her chair. Not two feet from her stood Mrs.

Harker, arms akimbo, eyes fixed on May like twin points of steel.

Even through her terror, May couldn't help thinking how much better Mrs. Harker would look if she'd darken those white eyelashes of hers, and rub a powder puff across her red nose.

"You hussy!" Mrs. Harker addressed her in a voice that rumbled like distant thunder. "You hussy, you!"

May was too startled to speak. She inwardly cursed Mr. Harker's stupidity in unlocking the door the minute he thought his wife was out of the way.

"Trying to take my husband away from me!" gasped Mrs. Harker, slapping May's desk with the flat of her hand by way of emphasis.

May tried to answer her—tried to tell her that Mr. Harker had tried to kiss her by force—but she couldn't frame the words. All she could think of was a sentence in Ulysses Forgan's letter: "This world is no fit place for a beautiful woman to trot around in, alone." How true that was!

May felt terribly alone at this moment. There was no one to stand up for her, to take her part. And she was blameless, too!

She turned to Harker who was leaning weakly against the door jamb.

"Tell her," she pleaded, "that it wasn't my fault. You know it wasn't!"

At that Mrs. Harker wheeled and faced her husband. She shook her fist at him.

"Just you dare to defend her!" she cried. "Just you dare open your mouth to me about that—that woman, Henry Harker!"

The man trembled visibly through all his great bulk. He looked wildly about him, then suddenly stooped to pick up his hat from the floor where it had fallen. He put it on.

"I'm not going to defend myself, Pauline," he said to his wife. "But remember what Adam said in the Garden of Eden—'The woman tempted me and I did eat!'"

And with that he was gone, the screen door slamming behind him. His words seemed to hang in the air between the two women who faced each other without a sound, for a long moment. "The woman tempted me and I did eat!"

Then May found her voice. It cut the stillness like the hiss of a knife hurled through the room.

"Your husband lies when he says that!" she said. "He locked me in here and tried to make love to me—to kiss me! If he'd touched me I think I should have died. I loathe your husband!"

She shuddered, and waited for Mrs. Harker to speak. But the square woman with her white lashes and colorless lips evidently had nothing more to say. She stood staring at May for what seemed an eternity, and then collapsed heavily on a chair beside the door.

"He's been doing this for 30 years!" May finally heard her mutter to herself in a thoughtful, dull tone. "For 30 years."

"Doing what?" May asked. Mrs. Harker shrugged her massive shoulders. "Carrying on with other women—and then telling me it wasn't his fault," she explained thickly. "I used to wonder what there was about him that attracted women. He said he couldn't turn around without having some woman after him. But I see, now—it's he that's been doing all the chasing!"

She nodded slowly as if her head carried a great weight. "Yep, he's been fooling me for 30 years!" she repeated, and got heavily to her feet. "And I've watched him like a hawk, too!"

"Well, I guess there's nothing I can do about it," she went on, smoothing down her wide unfashionable skirts, and straightening her hat.

At the door she turned again, and faced May with suspicion clearly written in her pale eyes.

"You're sure you're telling me the truth? You're sure you didn't lead him on?" she asked sharply.

May's smile pitied her. "Listen to me a minute, Mrs. Harker," she said. "You're like all the rest of the married women. You think that just because a girl works in an office with your husband she must be in love with him! But it's not so. Nine times out of 10 a business woman is no more than to be let alone by her boss and all the rest of the men who work with her. She usually has a beau of her own."

"Stuff and nonsense!" Mrs. Harker interrupted her rudely. "You can't tell me anything about stenographers. They're crazy about men—most of 'em—or they wouldn't hunt jobs in offices full of men! They'd be dressmakers, or teachers, or—missionaries!"

And with a mad gesture of her flapping hand she opened the screen door and waddled away down the sunny street.

May laughed helplessly. "What a woman!" she thought.

"She's just made up her mind that I'm to make love to me, after all!" every woman who earns her own living is a vamp, and nothing's going her desk and took out her handbag, to change her. I'll bet that right some clean handkerchiefs, and a few new she, thinks that I invited Her— (Continued on page six.)

(Continued from page five.) lead pencils. She couldn't ever dark on the doors of Harker's office again. That was certain. Where would she go, now? What would she do? She asked herself these questions walking wearily along toward the shady street toward Carlotta's bungalow. At last she made up her mind not to try to find work for a few weeks. She was tired, and it would be lovely to do nothing—just to "loaf around" in Carlotta's comfortable little bungalow. Carlotta wouldn't mind—she'd probably love to have her around, to help out with the housework a little.

A delicious odor greeted her nostrils when she opened the front door of the bungalow a minute later. She sniffed appreciatively. "Roast duck and apple fritters," Carlotta greeted her, poking her head around the corner of the door that led from the kitchen. "We're having a regular dinner party to-night, with sheik's 'n' everything!" "Sheik's?" May asked, puzzled. "Nothing else but," answered Carlotta, coming into the hall. May saw that she was dressed in her best embroidered crepe and had her thin, light hair newly marceled. "Dan's coming, and he's bringing Gabriel Guglielmo with him!"

May gasped. Gabriel Guglielmo was probably the handsomest man in the world—certainly the handsomest one on the screen. "How in the world does Dan happen to know him?" she asked. Carlotta shrugged. "How does Dan know anybody?" she asked. "He just picks people up. Everybody likes him. Now, look here, May, you leave this Guglielmo man alone! You can flirt all you want to with Dan, but lay off the Dago. I want to vamp him, and make Dan jealous. See?"

May opened her eyes wide. "Well, I like that!" she cried. "Trying to tell me what men to talk to—or what men not talk to! You certainly

There was insolence in her very walk as she swung into her own bedroom and closed the door. (To be continued.)

Fashion's Winter Whims

by Peggy Paige

FASHION is just about letting her whims run away with her this season. She's suddenly become backward. Streamers, jabots, ties, flying panels, and flares are now fluttering down her back! Her attention—along with that of every one else this year—has been drawn to the Church. She's developed a whim for the wide, flowing sleeve of the bishop's robe, and the loose, pontifical sleeve with its tight cuff. She's wandered through the Carnavalet Museum and become filled with the romance of the period of Louis XVth and Marie Antoinette. From their befrilled and beffuffed costumes, she's developed a sentimental fondness for back drapes and bustle effects, and soft touches of lace. She's delved down into old costume trunks and come up with boleros, cotons, and basques which she is now reviving. She's looked longingly manward and stolen his collar and tie ideas for her more tailored frocks. Indeed, she's a much changed lady!
