

MAY SEYMOUR FOOT LOOSE by BEATRICE BURTON

groaned, "he's as drunk as a sailor!" Jack laughed. "Oh, much more drunk," he said airily. "It's a matter of fact, there's very little drinking in the navy! Looky here, see what I brought you!"

With great difficulty he poked a large, silver flask from one pocket of his dinner coat, unscrewed the top and held it to his nostrils. "Thought you and I'd have this all by our lonelies," he explained. "But since you're going to gum up this party with a lot of other people, may's well use it for a whiskey cocktail. Give 'em a li'l thrill, eh?"

"All right, I'll send for some ginger ale," May agreed, moving toward the telephone.

As she stood there giving her order to the kitchen of the hotel, she summed Jack up with troubled eyes.

He represented that new type of young American—the "collegiate" cake-eater type. With his flask pressed tight to his breast, and a cigarette dangling from the lax fingers of one hand, he was a portrait of adolescent vice.

"Listen, sweetie-peaches," he said as May turned away from the telephone. "I'm you and me ditch this party—let's run up to N'York and get married!"

As May said nothing, he went on in a warmer tone: "Come on, let's! I knew the minute you kissed me the other night, you were the only girl in the world for me! Somethin' told me so!"

"Well, wasn't that lovely!" May answered with fine sarcasm. "No, thanks, Jack, not tonight. Tomorrow maybe—"

Her tone was soothing. She knew he was in no mood to be crossed.

"Oh, I hope he won't talk about kissing me, in front of Herbert!" she prayed nervously. "Here, where are you going?"

For Jack had risen and was moving toward the table. From a carafe that the waiter had left there he poured himself a glass of water. Into it he solemnly measured a liberal amount of whisky from his elaborate flask.

"Oh, please don't drink any more!"

THE STORY THUS FAR:

May Seymour, whose husband killed himself because of her love affair with another man, returns home after a year's absence. She disposes of her inherited property, leaves the sale of her house in the capable hands of Ulysses X Forgan, and with $8,000 in her handbag, sets out to find and marry a man with money.

At Atlantic City she meets a divorcee, Carlotta Frelking, and her friends, Herbert Waterbury, and Dan Sprague. Both men pay suit to May, to the great distress of Carlotta, who has been in love with Dan for many years. When he proposes May refuses him, having made up her mind that Waterbury is the millionaire husband she has been looking for.

Carlotta asks May to spend the winter with her in her bungalow in California. May accepts on condition that Carlotta let her pay her share of the household expenses.

As time goes on, May despairs of ever "landing" Waterbury. Then Jack Darnley, a young collegiate appears on the scene, falls in love with May, and rouses the jealousy of Waterbury who immediately proposes. May accepts him, and they plan to be married within a week. She plans to announce their engagement at a dinner in her rooms at the hotel.

Jack Darnley is the first guest to arrive. He is very drunk, and while he is making maudlin love to May, she hears the door behind them slowly open.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: May struggled to free herself from Jack Darnley's locked arms, but they held her fast; and she could feel his hot, alcoholic breath upon her cheek. "Let me go, you fool!" Her whisper sounded like a shriek in her own ears. She felt sure that if Waterbury were listening at the door, he couldn't help but hear it. "Just my rotten luck to have Herbie find me here, with this kid making love to me—" she thought despairingly. And then all thought seemed to stop in her brain.

"May and I are going to be married—a week from today," Herbert Waterbury said.

She turned to Jack when he had gone. "The cigarettes are for you," she said, "and here's a magazine. You're to sit down in that chair and calm yourself before the rest of the people get here. Sabe?"

The boy sank down in the arm-chair she pointed out to him. His habitually pale face was flushed, and his eyes were abnormally brilliant. They followed her as she moved around the room, lighting the cathedral candles on the table, loosening the white roses in their tall vases. Suddenly Jack got up from the deep chair and shakily let himself down upon the davenport, put his hands behind his head and smiled up at May with unshadowed pleasure. "Crazy about you," he muttered thickly. "Come here an' kiss me again."

May rolled her eyes up to the different ceiling. "Help me," she said.

Half the world is half asleep

Can success in life be undermined by constipation? Indeed it can. The poisons of this disease tire you out, wear you down, make you listless and make you lose interest in things in general. Ambition is most often prompted by a thoroughly healthy body. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings permanent relief from constipation.

"Shoulders that droop and feet that drag"

THERE are men and women who seem to be eternally tired. They go about things in a listless sort of way. They try, but they can't seem to make the grade. Perhaps they do not realize that it is constipation which is sapping their energy.

There is a sure relief from this disease. It is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN goes completely through the system without changing its fiber. It sweeps the intestine clean, purifies it, absorbs and carries moisture through it, urges it to act exactly as nature intended. Unlike habit-forming pills and drugs, it is never necessary to increase the amount of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN which you first find effective.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regain your health and keep you feeling fit. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Eat your two-tablespoonfuls with milk or cream, sprinkle it over other cereals, cook it with hot cereals, put it in soups and try it in the recipes given on every package. Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—for only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

The original ALL-BRAN—ready-to-eat

WANTED: A Husband!

If he is good looking and doesn't know it, I will be pleased.

If he is wealthy, I will be pleased, but I know that only two out of every hundred men are wealthy at the age of 60, so I presume that only one young man out of ten thousand is wealthy, which leaves the chance of my marrying a wealthy man very remote. The best I hope to get is one who appears to have the seed of success in him.

I do not expect to earn any money, but will promise to use judgment in spending the family income. I won't waste valuable time watching for BARGAINS as BAIT and then make up the LOSS on the OTHER THINGS THEY SELL.

When I find a store like ECHOLS SELF SERVICE GROCERY and MARKET, selling everything on a small profit, and where I can truly SAVE MANY DOLLARS EACH MONTH, that is where I am going to trade, thus aiding my husband to become ONE of the two out of a hundred WEALTHY (when old) men.

Mixed Bathing to Encourage Marriages Urged By Paris Municipal Councilman

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PARIS, Oct. 21.—Mixed bathing to encourage marriages and increase the birth rate, is advocated for "poor, old-fashioned prudish Paris," by M. Rene Friquet, a member of the municipal council.

Prudish is not the word generally used to describe the "Gay City," but the fact remains that, in quiet walks of life outside the Montmartre and Montparnasse, there is quite a different Paris than that lighter side known to tourists. The city regulations do not allow mixed bathing in the municipal swimming baths, and M. Friquet is causing a mild sensation among his puritanical colleagues by demanding that regulations should forthwith be made to bring Paris up to date in this respect.

M. Friquet envisages all sorts of blessings from permission for the strong and the fair to mingle at least one day a week in the municipal baths. He points out that this should be a natural sequel to the recent creation of a marriage club where young men and women are brought together at dances and social functions for the express purpose of getting acquainted with serious matrimonial intentions.

SUGGESTIONS RELATING TO FEEDING CHILDREN

NEW YORK.—Many adults dislike certain foods because they were forced to eat them when small children. Intelligent encouragement and parental example are far wiser methods than arbitrary insistence in child feeding. Children should be happy when eating. If irritated, food does them little good and they sometimes form a permanent dislike for it. The dinner table should never be a place for scolding. Teach each child to come to the table with clean hands and face, so the child's meal will not begin wrong by sending him away from the table to clean up.

These are some of the special points of the new pamphlet, "Feeding Your Baby," just issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for distribution. The diet of young children is a controlling factor in intestinal diseases such as diarrhea and enteritis, medical authorities point out. These diseases in 1924 took a death toll of 4,230 babies under two years of age among the company's policyholders.

Full instructions as to feeding babies, including schedules for different ages, are included in the pamphlet, with the recommendation that the instructions be followed under the supervision of the family physician.

A. & M. COLLEGE HAS FARM ELECTRIC WORK

The use of electric power on Texas farms is to be studied by a committee of which D. Schoates, head of the department of agricultural engineering at the Agricultural & Mechanical College of Texas, is chairman. Plans for the work of the committee were made at a recent meeting in Dallas attended by Electrical men and others from several sections of Texas according to the Texas Public Service Information Bureau.

The state committee will have general supervision of the program of investigation but the actual work will be under direction of A. & M. College.

Making electric power available on the farm is a prominent problem for agricultural and electrical engineers and many investigations are under way to assist in its solution. The formation of a division of the Society of Agricultural Engineers to study electric applications for the farm is likely to result from the interest that is being taken in bringing the benefits of electric service to the farms.

NEW PRODUCING WELL IN POOL NEAR ELIASVILLE

Special Correspondence.
ELIASVILLE, Oct. 22.—An estimated production of 250 barrels per day when drilled five feet into the sand, was recorded in the William Collins et al. well on the Cunningham lease near Eliasville, which was drilled in Tuesday, at a depth of 1,000 feet. The well will be drilled deeper, it is stated.

An anti-vice squad from Pioneer were in Eastland yesterday conferring with Eastland county officers in regard to conditions in their community. It could not be learned just what complaints the committee lodged with the officers nor what action they wanted taken.

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water,—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please,—no danger.

Get a family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents. At any drug store. (adv)

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT newspapers are in the public service and are always fearlessly protecting the interests of their home city.

THAT in so doing, they often raise the ire of some narrow minded individuals who can't see any good in anything.

THAT some of these one-track minds try to not only dictate the policy of the editorial columns, but also try to tell the business end what they should charge for advertising.

THAT the newspaper business is a business that must be run on a business basis just the same as any other business.

THAT they have something to sell and must sell it at a rate large enough to meet expenses or quit doing business.

THAT they can no more afford to sell their space at a loss than a merchant can afford to sell his goods at a loss.

THAT newspapers are entitled to a legitimate profit the same as any other business.

THAT any business that cuts prices below cost is just cutting its own throat.

Merchants have no more reason to dictate price for advertising space in a newspaper than a customer has to dictate the price of goods a merchant has to sell.

TRESPASSING CONSTABLES ARRESTED IN SAN ANTONIO

By United Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 21.—One constable and two deputies from precincts outside the city are under arrest here charged with carrying pistols. This action is the result of Police Commissioner Wright's orders that all precinct officers making arrests within the city shall be arrested. It is claimed they have been invading the city and arresting motorists on speeding charges and filing the cases in their own precincts.

DENTON, Oct. 23.—"If your job is not an honor to you, be an honor to your job!"

Upon that maxim, imparted to her by a faculty member three years ago as she began the business of earning a college education with her two little hands, Francis Plados of Necona is building toward her degree at the College of Industrial Arts.

During her freshman year Miss Plados performed odd jobs—cut hair, worked in the college print shop, and shouldered a broom and mop much of the time. In those pausing, perspiring hours she visualized less arduous but yet remunerative work wherewith she might finance the business of learning to be an expert physical culturist.

During her sophomore year she waited tables. But the trays were too heavy for rather frail muscles and besides, upper classmen are not permitted this form of work.

So, with the fall term at C. I. A. fast approaching, Miss Plados decided to capitalize upon the affinity of her sister students for goobers and soft drinks. She was determined at last to be her own boss.

the space for locating the stand. A discarded popping and roasting machine was resurrected in a neighborhood shed and pressed into service.

Two girlish hands rejuvenated the weather beaten stand into a presentable appearance through liberal applications of paint and shellac, and those same hands bravely dug a ten-foot ditch in order that gas connections might be made.

Mr. Plados lost heavily several years ago in a Nocona bank failure. There are many mouths to feed in the family, but the Nordic thrift of the father and mother managed to eke out enough of a surplus to send the girl Francis to school.

They didn't spend the surplus—at least, not on Francis. She informed them gently but firmly that she was old enough to earn her own money.

"I could borrow the money for my education," is the way Francis put it.

"but, then—I'd have to pay that back. I'd rather earn it as I go along. If my stand doesn't support me I'll find something else. But say," and here she leaned forward confidentially, "I want to tell you something. Business is simply great."

"FLYING BICYCLE" IS INVENTED BY GERMAN
By United Press.

BERLIN.—A new departure of aviation—the flying bicycle—has entered in connection with gliding contests on the mountain Wasserkuppe in the Rhoen highlands.

The experiment was conducted by the Berlin physician and specialist in physical training, Dr. Brustmann, who used a flying device of his own construction, equipped with movable wings attached to a strong bicycle.

The inventor succeeded in flying over a distance of 60 feet, using only his muscular strength and eliminating anything in the nature of gliding.

The spread across the wings of the flying machine amounts to 20 feet and its entire surface comprises only 16 square feet. Its wings are shaped like those of a flying fox.

Dr. Brustmann is confident that his invention will make the air subservient to sport and physical culture and add the air to land and water as a sphere for exercise.

It is reported that an American capitalist is interested in Dr. Brustmann's invention.

HALLOWEEN IS ONLY A LITTLE PERIOD AHEAD

Calumet Home Pleasures Expert Tells Some Interesting Suits for Occasion.

Marion Jane Parker, of the home economics department of the Calumet Baking Powder company, tells of a few Halloween stunts that are worth trying. They are certain to afford lots of fun. Here are two of them:

The Witch's Cauldron.
Over a make-believe fire in a secluded corner of the room suspend a large iron kettle. At some time during the evening an old witch rushes into the room. The lights have been turned very low to make it more witchy. In a covered basket the witch has a number of ingredients which she will need for charms. She gives the basket to the hostess and then retires, muttering to her witch kettle. The hostess explains that the objects must be passed through every band till they reach the witch, and forms the company into a line. Then she bandages everyone's eyes and passes first a hot baked potato. This is passed very quickly to the next, and all along the line little screams follow. Next comes a chestnut burr, then a piece of ice, an old glove filled with mush, a large soup bone, a large grape without the skin, and an oyster. The horrid feel of these various things will keep the company squealing and when the last has been dropped into the witch's kettle the bandages are removed and they may all look in. The old witch then stirs and stirs and later in the evening takes from the kettle written fortunes for each guest.

Invisible Surprises.
Give each one an orange envelope which must not be opened until quite late. The paper inside seems blank but when held over a candle, the surprises, which are written in lemon juice, become readable. Something like the following will be found lots of fun—written with lemon juice instead of ink:
"In the front room two steps to the right
Your lover awaits for you tonight."
(The lover is a man cut from a fashion advertisement.)

And so on. You can think of ever so many funny things to say—some that will "suit" for each of your guests.

These games, with dancing, will fill up the evening nicely. The table for Halloween should be as spooky as possible. A huge lighted pumpkin for centerpiece grins amiably upon the company. Little black cats at each place and smaller lanterns, paper witches riding on the tumblers, and funny little goblins will add interest to the table.

KEMP.—Plans under way for installing water and sewer systems in this place.
