BULLET FIRED BY WOMAN FINDS VICTIM

FASHION'S NEW STYLES SHOWN ATTRACTIVELY

Second Night's Special Program at Liberty Theatre Is Perfect Delight.

By RENA B. CAMPBELL.
If the merchants who are styling the style show are saving the best for the last, tonight will certainly go down on record as one of the most elaborate style shows ever shown west of "where the west begins." A picture that brought to mind the feuds of the mountaineers of Tennessee and South Carolina, starred in by Conrad Nagle, Pauline Starke and Lucille Laverne, called "Sun Up," was shown as a prelude to the opening number of the style show. Once again the charming garden scene played its part in the beautiful style acts that were staged. Two pages clad in white satin suits, with purple sashes, stood statuesque as marble statues at each side of the stage and took care of the firm announcements. These were Miss Geneva Armer and Miss Nona Mae Jones.

The Globe and S. & H. store were the first to display and this display was very cleverly staged. Mrs. Glenna Arnold Sage, dressed in a jaunty yellow and green sport suit, sauntered across the length of the garden, where shortly she was joined by Irving Dunn, dressed in a grey suit, with overcoat over his arm, Society brand, of course, and leading a perfect 1925 model of German police dog, known in real life as "Jerry," who displayed a wonderful faal coat all his own, with as much aplomb as if he was accustomed to forming part of Society brand style effects daily. It was hard to tell which of the exhibitors was the most warmly received as each model seemed to carry the audience right along with her or him as the case might be. Exhibitors for the evening were: The Globe, S. & H. store and J. M. White & Co.

Models for the Globe were Irving Dunn and C. E. Mason, who wore Society brand clothes with the ease of seasoned modelers. Models for S. & H. store were Mrs. Frank Sage, Miss Helen Brady, Mrs. Atwell of Fort Worth and Mrs. Arthur Feihl.

Models for J. M. White were Miss Christine Carter, Mrs. Joe Pardue, Mrs. A. A. Diehl, Mrs. Ethel Hague, Miss Marie Flahie, and Mr. Dewey Jones.

Hour With Fashions.
The tides of fashion, as shown by the different firms represented, presented a varied picture, showing fitted lines, the trend of coats, the smartest hats, high necklines, pouch bags, dainty kerchiefs, new sleeves—in fact it was an hour's announcement to an eager audience of all colors and styles adjudged important in fashion circles. Coats, the season's new cloth for coats, twillbloom, needlepoint, and velvet were looked upon most favorably. Spaghetti braided velvet broche and Elizabeth crepes, were employed in the dinner dresses shown. Fur trimmings were lavishly shown on many models, Black Prince, or Prince Nor seemed to be the accepted color in stains and woods. It is a kind of deep burgandy red, into which has been poured just the right amount of church purple to make a perfect blend. This shade was treasured in millinery as well as in frocks. From the standpoint of the audience it might be said that three other colors did fair to be close rivals to Black Prince. These are Epinaud green for street wear, golden pheasant for sports and geranium petals for evening. Tailored and street dresses outnumbered formal dresses and evening attire. High collars were stressed, long sleeves invariable and skirts both short and full. The new silhouettes of back fullness and fitted gore treatments had their full share of recognition.

J. M. White & Co. Gowns.
Miss Christine Carter, modeling for J. M. White, wore several very attractive frocks, among them being a black satin with gray squirrel collar, and a band of the same fur on the skirt, with a smart red panel down the front to the end of the long waist, which terminated in a full skirt. A hat of black and gold and a brown fox fur completed this charming costume.

Miss Marie Flahie also modeled a number of exclusive looking models for White's, among them being a smart frock in black satin, directorie style, grey fur bandings, with which was worn a large silver and black hat. She also wore a lovely dinner gown of black and henna broche, showing the full flare skirts, henna marten double neckpiece with a large picture hat of black velvet with gold metallic band.

Mrs. A. A. Diehl, modeling for White's, wore as her first number a "duck" of a black satin frock, natural waistline, with full skirt, high neck, and trimmed with rainbow bands around bottom of skirt and collar. Her rainbow trimmed hat, close-fitting like a crown, was very clever. Another gown displayed by Mrs. Diehl was a black crepe-back satin, very full skirt grey fur-trim.

AIRPLANE RACE ATTENDED BY TRAGIC FALL

One Man Killed, Another Badly Hurt in First of Air Events.

MITCHELL FIELD, NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Pilot Clarence B. Chamberlain was seriously injured, and Lawrence Buranelli, a passenger, was killed today in the first event of the international air races being held here. Chamberlain was brought to the post hospital and immediately placed on the operating table. His right leg was fractured, his scalp lacerated and he had sustained concussion of the brain. The surgeon said he probably would recover. The machine crashed so far from the field that the accident was not seen by the spectators. Buranelli was the inspector of airplanes. Chamberlain is the owner of an air service. They took off with five other machines and were to fly 20 laps around the 20-mile course, marked by three designated points.

Mathewson's battle against the tubercular malady has held public sympathy since it was brought on while serving in the world war. When Mathewson left the Giants he entered the army soon after the United States entered the war and was made a captain in the gas service.

Mitchell Continues To Keep In the Limelight In Air Service Controversy

Naval Shenandoah Board Is Defied By Colonel Mitchell

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Col. William Mitchell defied the naval board of inquiry investigating the Shenandoah disaster when called before it today to testify concerning his statement that the wreck of the Shenandoah could have been averted. The committee called upon the judge advocate of the army to advise it as to procedure to be taken. Mitchell, on advice of his counsel, Representative Frank Reid, of Chicago, republican, flatly refused to answer questions put by the board and it went immediately into executive session.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Colonel William Mitchell walked out on the naval board investigating the Shenandoah disaster when he refused to testify today. Mitchell, on advice of his counsel, Representative Frank Reid, republican, of Illinois, openly defied the committee, refused to recognize the subpoena and left the building.

Mitchell, who was called because of his statement that collapse of the Shenandoah could have been averted, took the position the naval board had no right to examine him while a court martial against him was pending in the war department. When Mitchell was called this morning, Reid interposed and curtly told the court Mitchell would not testify. He claimed that Mitchell had not been legally subpoenaed, and, after an argument with Admiral Hillyard Jones, chairman of the committee, Mitchell and his counsel withdrew. The chairman called the board to order and soon thereafter a subpoena was served on Mitchell, who had retired with his counsel to an adjoining room. The judge advocate of the court was told by Reid: "You can give the court the compliments of my client and myself and say we refuse to recognize the subpoena." Mitchell and Reid then left the building.

RANGER ROTARY CLUB PUTS ON FINE PROGRAM

Has Musical Evening to Entertain District Governor Walter Cline of Wichita Falls.

Rotary is a great cementing factor binding people together from different cities and localities and creating a world brotherhood, according to District Governor Walter Cline of Wichita Falls, who was given a rousing reception by the Ranger Rotary club at Gholson hotel last night and who reported he found Ranger Rotarians 100 per cent strong in the matter of membership in the local Chamber of Commerce and found their civic work in sponsoring the Boy Scout movement very highly commendatory. Ranger Rotarians are said to have turned out practically 100 per cent strong to participate in the reception and listen to the address and the fine musical program the entertainment committee provided for the occasion. This program consisted of a vocal solo by Mrs. Ray Newnam, accompanied by Mmes. Arthur Clifton, Hall Walker and Walter Murray on piano, violin and mandolin; an instrumental rendition of Schubert's "Serenade," by Mmes. Walker, Murray, Clifton and Housewright and Mr. Leo Underwood, and a chorus by Mrs. Newnam, Mrs. J. M. White, Mrs. G. C. Barkley, Mrs. Marion Peters, Mrs. Arthur Jury and Mrs. C. C. Patterson.

Senator Brelsford, Judge McCullough and Luther Egan were visitors from Eastland. Billy Terrell and Polk Robison were representatives of the Boy Scouts for the occasion. Governor Cline's address was frequently interrupted by applause, particularly when he stressed the civic importance of Rotary work, but advised the club to stay out of semi-political movements, such as bond issues, leaving these things for the Chamber of Commerce, to which all members belong. His allusion to the world-wide importance of Rotary and the close touch with all parts of the earth through the Rotary tie also came in for a round of cheers.

2 Women Held After Husband of One Is Shot and Killed

By United Press.
SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 8.—Two women, Mrs. Nina Taylor, 28, and Harriet Wilson, 28, are being held here today on charges of murder, in connection with the death of Dick Taylor, 28, a service car operator, who was shot to death on the court of his home here today. Taylor was the husband of Mrs. Nina Taylor and it is thought that jealousy between the two women was responsible for the shooting. Both women deny having shot Taylor.

TWO RANGER STUDENTS AT UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA

Special Correspondence.
NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 8.—Eleanor Alworth and Darrel Althausen, both of Ranger, are among the many students attending the University of Oklahoma from cities in Texas. Eleanor Alworth is a junior engineer and Darrel Althausen is a senior arts and sciences student. Seventy-five of the 100 Texans here rallied at the request of Dr. W. E. Bizzell, president, and formed the University Longhorn club.

William Coit of Dallas was elected president, Miss Elaine Bizzell, formerly of College Station, vice president, and Miss Neva Clark of Wichita Falls, secretary-treasurer. Fifty-two Texas cities, many of them in remote sections of the state, have representatives here. Wichita Falls, with 19 students, heads the list, while Dallas follows with 17. Immediately after the organization of the Longhorn club, its members adjourned to the home of President Bizzell, where a group picture was made.

REV. MR. REEMTSMA LIKES HIS WORK IN CALIFORNIA

A letter to Eastland friends from Rev. H. J. Reemtsma, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Eastland, who left recently for California, states that he and his family are now located at Fairmead, in Madera county. Mr. Reemtsma says that his new work is intensely interesting and that he finds the people there fairly thirsting for religious leadership. "We have a very comfortable house and are as much at home as we can be with borrowed furniture, ours not having yet arrived," he wrote.

DEATH FOLLOWS FALL FROM SECOND STORY WINDOW

Explosion and Fire In Heart of St. Louis May Claim Some Lives

By United Press.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—An explosion wrecked the downtown office of the Laclede Gaslight company in the heart of the business district here shortly after 2 p. m. today. Early reports this afternoon failed to indicate if any were killed. Fire followed the explosion and hampered the work of the firemen, who were attempting to rescue persons said to have been trapped on the second and third floors. Within 30 minutes 10 per cent had been carried from the building, but it was not known if any of them was dead.

WELL COMES IN NEAR EASTLAND AT 3,184 FEET

Flows 250 Barrels Daily After Being Shot. On W. T. Hitson Farm.

Considerable interest has been aroused here among the oil fraternity by the bringing in last Tuesday of a well on the W. T. Hitson farm, about seven or eight miles northeast of Cisco, and something like the same distance northwest of Eastland. The well, which was drilled by Roy A. Reynolds and associates of Fort Worth, is located near the south line of section No. 2, Southern Pacific Railway company survey of Eastland County lands, came in Tuesday for an estimated production of 150 barrels per day, which was increased Wednesday to 250 barrels per day following a shot of 170 quarts of nitro-glycerine. The pay was found in the Caddo lime at a depth of around 3,184 feet. The Hitson is within about one mile of the well drilled in that vicinity some two or three years ago by the New Domain Oil company, which did not show up very favorably. The Humble Pipe Line company has a line within a mile of the well and will take the oil from it, it is stated.

Reynolds and associates control 1,200 acres in leases surrounding the new well. The Texas company, the Humble, the Marland, Gulf and Rockaway Oil companies also have holdings in the vicinity of the Hitson, and it is understood that a number of other wells are being planned for the immediate future in that section, some of them offsetting the Hitson. Oil operators believe that wells drilled in the section of country opened up by the Hitson have a chance at as many as six different pay sands, as follows: Strawn, Caddo, Lake Eastland, Gilman, Marble Falls and Donovan.

Fire Prevention Prizes Put Pep Into Pep Squad

The Ranger High school pep squad has divided into six competing teams to vie for the $25 prize offered by the four local fire insurance companies for the best trimmed window in Ranger during National Fire Prevention week, now on. All six teams have entered into a sporting agreement that no matter who wins, the $25 shall go to help pay for sweaters and other pep squad paraphernalia, so in order that the competition should be real and have something behind it to spur the fighters of each individual team, insurance men are offering additional prizes the extent or value of which is not yet stated. The prize of $15 for the best fire hazard picture to be drawn or painted by any Ranger school pupil, and the prize of $10 offered for the best essay on fire prevention, competition for which is also confined to pupils in Ranger schools, are still matters for individual competition. Teams out visiting the schools report rousing receptions and profitable programs.

Whether this has had anything to do with the general revival of interest in pep squad matters or not, it is stated that the pep squad is doing some training these days somewhat in keeping with the training the players on Ranger's football teams are undergoing. Serpentine dances, letter formations and the like are being whipped into shape and it is said that there will be no more death-like silences around town just preceding any of the future season's games.

NO COMMENTS ON HIGHWAY MAINTENANCE CONTRACT

AUSTIN, Oct. 8.—Attorney General Dan Moody returned today from Houston, where he attended a hearing relating to the state highway department's contract with Sherman Youmans for road maintenance work. He had no comment to make on the court order.

"I was merely in court as an interested spectator and am looking after the interests of Texas league," he said. Ex-Gov. J. E. Ferguson today refused to discuss the Houston injunction, saying he only knew what he had read in the newspapers.

KAUFMAN MAN KILLED BY GIN MACHINERY

C. J. RHODES OF EASTLAND SHOT IN THE THIGH

Complaint Filed Against Mrs. Anna Malloy, in Whose House He Had Been Roomer.

C. J. Rhodes, about 42, superintendent of the Ringling railroad at Eastland, was shot in the left thigh about 6:30 o'clock last night, and taken to the Eastland sanitarium, where surgeons said he would recover if no complications set in. A complaint charging assault with intent to kill has been filed in the justice of the peace court at Eastland against Mrs. Anna Malloy, about 32, wife of J. P. Malloy, a locomotive engineer on the Ringling railroad. She had not been arrested at 2 o'clock today.

Rhodes is married, but his wife has not been in Eastland and he has been rooming in the Malloy home. He and the Malloys have been in Eastland two or three years. Last April Malloy filed a suit for divorce, but later the petition was dismissed. They have since been living together without any apparent friction. Rhodes made a statement to County Attorney Barnes in which he said that Mrs. Malloy had threatened previously to shoot him. He said she came into his room shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday evening and made some unreasonable demands, among them that he divorce his wife and marry her. He refused these requests and then asked her if she had a gun. She replied that she had none, but almost immediately afterwards drew a revolver and began shooting. He struck at the gun and deflected it down, when a bullet went through his thigh. She then dropped the gun, which he picked up and threw out of the window, after which she left the room and he had not seen her since. Officers said they did not know where Mrs. Malloy had gone.

Pittsburgh Wins Second Game of World Series

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8.—Forty-five thousand freezing, shivering fans saw one of the most nerve-racking games ever played in a world series today, ending in a one-run victory for Pittsburgh, after Washington had filled all the bases with no outs in the ninth inning. That was the second time during the game Aldridge pitched himself out of a hole, the other being in the fifth inning when the bases were full and none down. In that inning, he cut the Washington team off without a run. In the ninth, they got one on a sacrifice fly, but were unable to tie up the game.

Home runs by Judge, Cuyler and Wright were the deciding factors in today's game. Peck made two expensive errors, one after the other in the eighth, which sealed Washington's doom. Aldridge got four strikeouts to Coveleskie's three. Aldridge walked Peck, and Coveleskie walked Traynor, the only walks of the game. In the sixth inning Bluege, Washington's third baseman, was hit by a ball and it is feared is in a serious condition. He was carried from the field and was still having dizzy spells at the close of the game. The hits stood eight to seven in favor of Washington.

Had today's game been scheduled for Washington, it would have been called on account of rain. Rain threatened throughout the game but did not fall in Pittsburgh.

BIBLE THOUGHT.
Begin Right in Youth—Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them. Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man.—Ecclesiastes 12: 1, 13.

SUPERSTITION.
Faith and superstition play an important part in human life. The Chaldeans are supposed to have invented astrology 5,000 years ago, and it continues to attract adherents in all parts of the world. During all these centuries astrologists have held high places with kings and queens and emperors often without official guidance or restriction.
In Turkey the astrologer has been adjudged a nuisance, and a few of them have been executed or expelled. The government now proposes to put an end to the practice because it interferes with religious and governmental education, and is reactionary. But absurd as have been the pretensions of most professional astrologers, and gullible as have been the masses who patronized these wizards, dervishes and magicians, it is astonishing to find, here in our own country, otherwise intelligent people who believe in the efficacy of love powders. The testimony of a woman in federal court that these powders overcame her power of resistance supplies an outstanding illustration. The world is yet full of omens, signs, promises, warnings, etc., besides concoctions of witch doctors to cure pains and ailments that appear to be accepted in good faith by an incredulous people.

COLLECTING DEBTS.
After a prolonged and useless struggle France and Italy will pay what they must on their war debt to the United States but the greater part of the debt will probably be repudiated by coming generations who are being fed with the argument that America entered the war to save her own skin and that she was saved by the allies. Therefore it is rank ingratitude on our part not to forgive the debts and grant further credits.
The administration has expressed itself and shown itself disposed to go the limit of common sense in tempering conditions to the European "ability to pay," but its fight against unfair representation is a hard one and is made very much harder by the attitude of a few Americans impressed with the European slogans of Shylockism and equal salvation by the war.
According to our way of thinking and our observations of the past seven months, the real facts to be taken into account are that the debtors are having a very hard time of it, that at many points they are making a plucky and honest effort, that they are badly handicapped in their cultural development by their debts, that the right-minded are deeply chagrined by their bankrupt condition and mortified by the propaganda of repudiation, and that the average man is glad to be set right on the facts of the American position and recover his belief in our war altruism.

A loud speaker used in Schenectady, N. Y., during the past summer, can be heard at a distance of three miles.

An applicant for naturalization was rejected because he stated, "The vice president, he don't do nothing." If the same question had been asked of half the American-born citizens of the nation it is more probable that our population would be materially reduced. The fact is a great many of the questions asked in naturalization examinations could not be answered by some of our college graduates.

PASTIME CLUB.
The Pastime club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conley, Tuesday evening for their every two weeks session at bridge. Perhaps no club in Ranger has better times than this club, which is one of the few clubs including the men, and the good time Tuesday evening was right in line with other good times they have experienced in the past. The high score ladies' prize went to Mrs. Harry Logsdon and the low score ladies' prize to Mrs. E. E. Crawford, while Mr. E. E. Crawford carried off high honors for the men and Dr. Logsdon low score honors. TUESDAY BRIDGE.
The party given Tuesday afternoon at the Gholson, when Mrs. A. G. Jury extended her hospitality to the members of the Tuesday Bridge club and a goodly number of extra guests, will probably be the last party that the friendly veranda of the second floor will harbor this season, for doubtless until the dawning of another summer, it will be closed to parties. Even Tuesday, although the thermometer hovered around summer heat, it was decidedly autumnal, not in atmosphere, of course, but its floral decorations of potted plants and vari colored cosmos suggested autumn and the many colors of fall and winter gowns and hats worn by the guests intensified this impression. Prizes attractively wrapped and tally cards suggested the same warm colorings. The club high score prize, a silver sandwich tray, went to Mrs. D. L. Jameson, and the club second prize, a silver bud vase, to Mrs. J. A. Martin. Guest high score, a polychrome boudoir lamp, went to Mrs. C. C. Craig, and the lucky winner of the cut prize, which was a silver gravy ladle, was Mrs. Jimmie Tolland. other?" she asked Waterbury.

He waited for a moment before he answered. "I honestly don't know," he said at last.

"Tell me about Francie Lee," May asked. "What is this hostess job of hers, anyway?"

"Well, it's a rather new profession for actresses out of work," Waterbury explained. "They hire themselves out to these supper clubs, and their job is to entertain the mob patrons. But, look here, I don't want to talk about the Francie Lees. I want to talk about you!"

He drew her very close to him, holding her arm above the elbow.

"Doesn't it seem to you that we've known each other longer than just a few hours?" he asked.

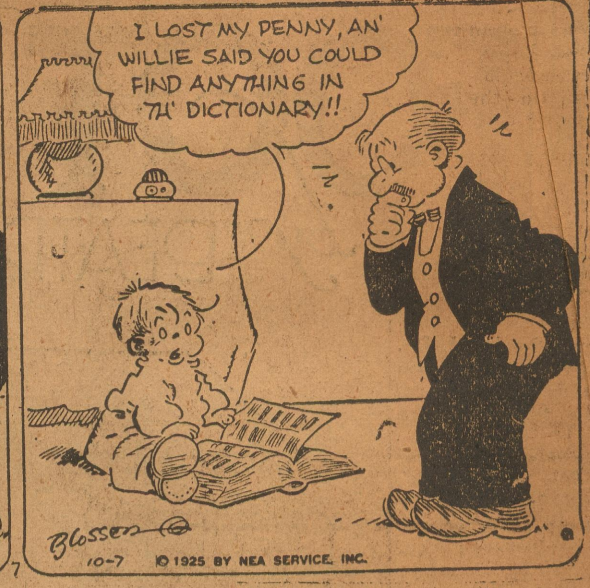

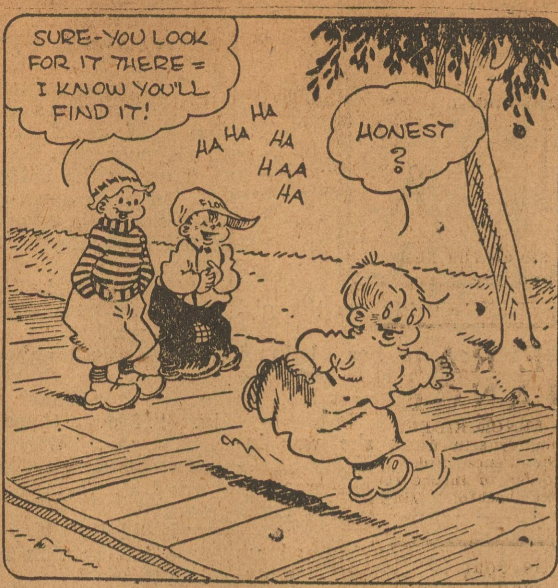

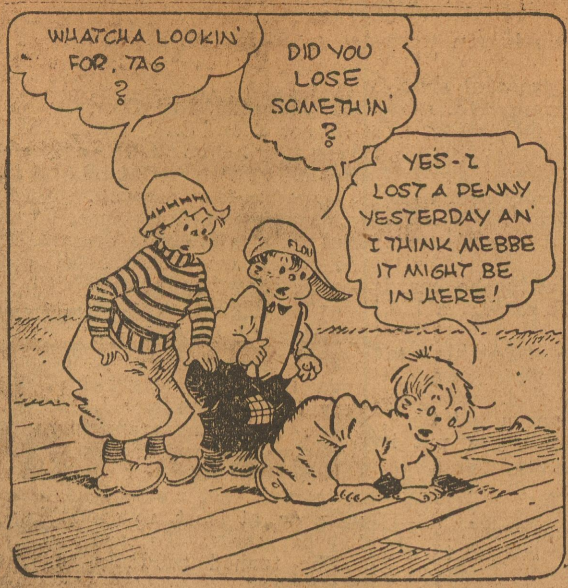

May shook her head. "No," she said. "I feel that I don't know you at all—of course, I don't!"

Waterbury laughed almost without a sound.

"Well, there, I'm going to tell you something about myself," he said. "I'm just Herbert Waterbury, plain and honest. And because I am plain and honest, I'm going to ask you something. Won't you give me that money of yours to take care of, until you decide what you want to do with it?"

WO MILLION PIMPLE VICTIMS SWEAR BY IT

Sounds like a big figure, and it is big. That many times during the year people go to their nearest drug store and ask for Black and White Ointment and Soap, because they have come to depend on them to keep their skin free from pimples, blotches, bumps, eczema, rash, tetter, "break-ing out," etc.

You won't know what real happiness and fun is until you make yourself presentable, so to speak, to the people who want to associate only with those who are good to look at. Begin using Black and White Ointment and Soap and feel the thrills girls, women and men experience when they see their ugly skin clearing up, feeling smooth and looking lovely.

They are both economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both Ointment and Soap.

School Children Told How To Report Fires In Ranger

Speakers addressing the several Ranger schools during National Fire Prevention Week, report that few are found who have taken the pains to post themselves on the exact method of reporting a fire. Within the week the fire department was sent on a cold trail because of failure to specify the exact street on which a light blaze was started. Happily this did not result in serious damage, as the blaze was a slow blaze.

The exact process of reporting a fire, as is being explained to the schools, is as follows:

Ring central. Ask for No. 8. Central will ask, "Do you wish to report a fire?" When told yes, you will be connected with the fire department and will give them the exact street and number, being very particular to say "north" or "south" when streets have north and south extension, etc. In the event you do not know the exact number, give the neighborhood, naming some building near by.

If the Ranger Bulldogs fail to win the 1925 district championship, it will not be Breckenridge, or Eastland or Brownwood or Abilene that will defeat them, but their own over-confidence. Such, at least, is the opinion of the Ranger coach and in that opinion long-headed Ranger fans concurs. In a desperate effort to give them one real fight before the opening of the season's conference games, a game has been scheduled for Friday, October 8, with the

Expectant Mothers

"I ADVISE all expectant mothers to use Mother's Friend." Writes Mrs. Wesley Miller, Hudson, Mich. "I have had nine children. With my first three I suffered for 24 hours. Beginning with the fourth I used Mother's Friend and was sick only 15 minutes. Since then I have had five and was only sick about 10 minutes with each."

Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician and has been a positive blessing to thousands of expectant mothers for over three generations. Plain oils penetrate the skin. But the highly refined oils and other ingredients in Mother's Friend make it penetrate through the skin to the muscles and ligaments; making them soft and pliable, thus aiding the tissues to relax and adjust themselves to the changes during motherhood.

The mothers who praise Mother's Friend the most are those who did not use it with their first baby but through its use with the second, were able to realize its almost unbelievable results.

Mother! Insist on Mother's Friend—the same as used by our mothers and grandmothers—don't wait—start using tonight—and meanwhile write Bradford Regulator Co., Dept. 84, Atlanta, Ga., for free valuable book "Motherhood and the Coming Baby" (sent in plain envelope). It tells how Mother's Friend can help you during expectancy and at childbirth. This booklet also tells you many other things you want to know. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists—every the Bulldogs. The Simmons bunch was caught between days and on a Friday. The dope on them indicates that they will out-weight and out-play any team yet appearing on the local gridiron this season, it is said.

In the two games Simmons' first team has played the present season, they have won in a walk and won, it is said, with greater ease than they win on the home campus against the scrubs who will play in Ranger. The win over Texas Teachers college by Simmons was by a score of 30 to 0. Ranger fans are going to look the scrubs over when they come to Ranger and make their own estimate as to whether they will be able to give the Ranger boys the drubbing they seem confident they have in store for the Bulldogs.

Simmons College scrub team, the team which plays and keeps in playing fettle the husky Simmons bunch, which, last year, held Baylor to a 10 to 7 score and made T. C. U. shake in its boots.

The Simmons fellows who will come to Ranger were procured after scouring the country for a team that could put up a real defense against the Ranger aggregation. That no such defense has been shown by either of the three teams which have come to Ranger heretofore, is manifest. Coach Cherry made a trip to Fort Worth in a vain effort to induce one of the husky Fort Worth teams, preferably Central High, to play one pre-season game in either city with Never take another dose of the old style "raw" calomel. It is too drastic on your system!

There is a newer and more improved kind that is mild and pleasant. It does not tear through your system like a streak of lightning. It is combined with pepsin which makes it act slowly, thoroughly and more effectively.

This new pepsin and calomel combination is known as "pepsinated" calomel. It has all the beneficial system cleansing and germ-inactivating effects of ordinary or "raw" calomel—but the drastic and unpleasant effects have been entirely neutralized by the digestion aiding pepsin. Nasty "follow up salts" are not even necessary.

People who are ill or suffering with biliousness, constipation, indigestion, and especially backache, headache and torpid liver can secure immediate and complete relief with Pepsinated calomel.

One tablet at bed time lets you rest well all night long and yet while you sleep it slowly and effectively drives out the poisons that are responsible for your illness and suffering.

Hereafter when you buy calomel, always demand the "pep-sin-a-ted" kind. It is better for you, for it is purer, milder and more beneficial to your entire system. For sale by Phillips Drug Store and all other good druggists in 25c and 50c packages.—Adv.

MAY SEYMOUR FOOT LOOSE

by BEATRICE BURTON

THE STORY SO FAR:

May Seymour, whose husband, Dr. John Seymour, killed himself because of her love affair with Jim Caréwe, returns to her home town after a year's absence.

Heavily veiled, she comes late one night to the home of her lawyer, Dick Gregory, and Gloria, his wife. She tells them how the ugly story of her past has followed her everywhere. And so she has made up her mind to go to Europe where no one will know her.

She asks Ulysses X. Forgan, a wealthy widower who is in the real estate business, to sell her house for her. Ulysses advises her to live in it, and live down her reputation among her own townpeople. But May tearfully insists that she wants to be footloose.

She tells Dick to sell her stocks and bonds for whatever they will bring. All she wants, she explains, is enough money to dress the part of a wealthy widow and "land" a rich husband.

A week later with $8,000 in her handbag, May goes down to Atlantic City for a short rest. There she meets a divorcee, Mrs. Carlotta Frothing, and a middle-aged friend of Carlotta's, Herbert Waterbury.

Waterbury takes the two women to Adoree's little supper club the first night he meets May. There they are joined by Dan Sprague, an admirer of Carlotta's.

May accidentally drops her handbag, and when Waterbury picks it up and lays it on the table, May's huge roll of bills slips out. Sprague asks her if she has been robbing a bank.

GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Herbert Waterbury raised his eyes. May's roll of money, and led from her to Dan Sprague. "You was a queer, twisted smile on your face."

"Imagine that, a woman carrying a roll of money, and in a handbag!" he said. "Not even travelers' checks, but in honest-to-god money! Doesn't that prove you said to you the other day, 'Remember my telling you that woman ought to be allowed to have her own money?'"

"I nodded solemnly. "What's that so?" Carlotta piped up. "Because I've heard different. And if there's any better ally in the country than I lead me to her! Any day I'm perfectly able to handle my own money. I'll let you boys know about it. Station HAN!"

"What do you mean 'Station HAN?'" Dan Sprague asked. "I heard as nails—that's me," Carlotta answered cheerfully. "I'm a regular little Hetty Green under my soft, sweet, smiling exterior."

She broke off, suddenly, and stared across the restaurant with her china-blue eyes. "Oh, look who's here!" she exclaimed. "Your old friend, the vamp, Dan!"

May turned, and saw a slim young woman who threaded her way toward them through the tables that packed the white room. As she came, she looked straight at Dan Sprague, with her large dark eyes, and smiled, showing prominent white teeth. Her skin was almost as white as they, and her straight black hair was pattered into a knot at the nape of her neck.

"Who is she?" May asked Waterbury, in an undertone. "Her name is Francie Lee, and she's one of Adoree's hostesses,"

Waterbury said quickly, as the girl came up to the table. "Carlotta pursed up her babyish lips, and stared down into her glass of ginger ale with the rapt look of a crystal gazer."

May could see that she was intensely jealous of the thin, black-haired woman, and that she was not going to speak to her if she could help it.

But Dan and Herby jumped up and greeted the "hostess" with enthusiasm. "Come on over here, Fran, and I'll give you the low-down on this Volsstead stuff," Dan Sprague said. He put out his hand and pulled a chair from the table behind him. "How are you feeling tonight? Rather Bacardi?"

Francie Lee shook her head. She looked from May's face to that of Carlotta, who sat as one frozen. And she backed away from the table.

"No thanks, Daniel," she said. "I have a heavy supper date with three Chicago gentlemen who are in the bone-button trade, and I must be my bubbling self for them."

As she spoke, the lights all over the cafe began to go out, cluster by cluster. And only a great yellow spotlight shone in the middle of the dance floor like a sun.

Into it floated the figure of a red-haired woman in a billowy white silk dress. This was Adoree, herself.

There was a tired look in Adoree's painted eyes, and the broad smile on her scarlet mouth was strained.

"She's old!" May thought, and pitied her.

"You know, of course, that she has a grown son," the low voice of Herbert Waterbury said in her ear.

"She looks old enough to be somebody's grandmother," May answered.

Then presently she spoke again. "It's a terrible thing for a woman when she begins to get old," she said wistfully.

Herby laughed. "How do you know? A woman as young as you?" he asked.

May sighed. "Oh, I'm not so young," she answered. "I'm 27. Pretty old, isn't it?"

"What would you do if you were 45?" the man asked.

May shrugged her graceful shoulders. Her eyes dreamily followed the light, thistledown movements of the dancer.

Then, in the half-darkness, she felt a hand close down warmly over hers, as it lay palm upward in her lap. She started slightly but did not move away.

"You sweet little kid?" she heard Herby whisper. "You're just a kid, aren't you?"

Again he laughed. "To think of you carrying all that money around in your handbag!" he said humorously. "If ever there was a kid trick, that's one. Why don't you put it safely away in a bank? What did you draw it out for, in the first place?"

"I didn't," May answered. "It's some money, that my lawyer turned over to me."

She felt a movement beside her, and saw the slender figure of Francie Lee slip away toward the door of the restaurant.

"Speaking of lawyers, reminds me that I ought to hear from fine, soon," broke in Carlotta. "He's down in Missouri collecting three months' back alimony from my former husband. Believe me, if that old boy doesn't crash through with the coin, I sure do run him ragged!"

Just then the lights flashed up again as Adoree whirled out in a little gust of applause. Herbert Waterbury gave May's hand a quick pat before he drew his own away.

The restaurant had slowly filled with the gay midnight crowd. And May looked around her curiously at the woman with her marcelled hair, their bright silk evening coats, their jewels.

Somehow they all looked alike. Surely they all wore a uniform—the uniform of Prosperity. And in their powdered faces, their eyes had no more life than the shoe-button eyes of a rag doll.

Near the door, Francie Lee sat with the Chicago button manufacturers—heavy-jowled man, seriously intent upon having a good time.

May felt a sudden pity for Francie Lee. What a life her's was! To make a living by being a "hostess" in a place like this one that belonged to Adoree!

To be pleasant and entertaining, night after night, to heavy-jowled, middle-aged men! To have to listen to their dull, doubtful jokes! To accept their maudlin flattery! To earn a living by taking tips from these men!

She looked at Francie Lee's colorless, thin face with the stamp of worldly wisdom upon it. And then another face flashed into her mind—the fresh-colored, happy face of Gloria Gregory as she bent over her sleeping baby!

The women, like Gloria, who settled down and had their children. Were they, after all, the only women who knew the meaning of happiness?

Or was the greatest joy to be wrung from a fancy-free, footloose life? These Nomads around her in the restaurant—these hotel gypsies—were they happy?

"I don't know," May confessed to herself. "I don't know."

But she had set her foot upon the open road that might lead to the very rim of the world, for all she knew. And she meant to follow it.

Somewhere there must be a by-path that would not be a blind alley. A by-path that would lead to happiness, or, at least, to something very like happiness. To ease and leisure.

She turned suddenly to Herbert Waterbury. "Let's go home," she said. "I think I'm tired of all this. And I didn't get much sleep last night."

"You should have taken that little drink I offered you," he answered. "Nothing like a touch of hardware when you're feeling low."

In the dimly-lighted hall outside the supper room, May and Carlotta waited while the men retrieved their hats from the pretty check girl.

May heard Dan Sprague say something to her in a low tone as he took his hat and coat from her.

"He does that to make me jealous," Carlotta whispered to May, "but I just pretend that I'm deaf, dumb and blind."

She laughed, but the eyes that were fastened on Sprague's face were dark with misery.

Suddenly she walked over to him and took him by the lapel of his coat. "Come on, aggravating papa!" she cried.

"Why, she's really in love with him!" May told herself. She wouldn't have believed that the soft, pink mask of Carlotta's face covered an emotion so deep as the feeling she certainly had for Dan Sprague.

Waterbury took May's arm as they stepped out into the night, and Carlotta and Dan dropped slowly behind them. Once May looked over her shoulder, and saw them standing at the rail along the Boardwalk, deep in earnest conversation.

med, with colored applique around the bottom of skirt and near neckline. The hat to match was especially nobby, employing as it did the choker effect ties now so greatly in vogue.

Mrs. Joe Pardue, modeling for White's, wore among other gowns a creation in black satin, with trimmings of white, two-piece suit effect, showing full flare on sides of the skirt, carried black and white gloves and wore a small, close-fitting black hat.

Mrs. Ethel Hoague modeled for White's a smart dress of black satin trimmed in gold bandings and wore a gold lace hat. At another time she modeled a striking Eton effect suit, showing a full black satin skirt, with silver metallic Eton packet, with which she wore a small silver hat.

Frocks displayed by the different models representing J. M. White & Co. were from Max Wiefen company, designers and importers. Coats from H. B. Kuens, hats from Elzee and Patricia, shoes from Boyd-Welsh. Mr. Dewey Jones, of course, modeled Kuppenheimer and Schloss Bros. suits and overcoats and Packard shoes.

S. & H. Frocks. S. & H. store presented a splendid showing, among their frocks being a clever wool frock, worn by Mrs. Frank Sage, which showed insets of embroidered brocade on side, straight lines, and bewitching fur trimmings. With this costume she wore a silver and fox hat. Another gown that was favorably received, worn by Mrs. Sage, was a dark red charmeuse with grey squirrel around neck and lower front waistline, elaborately trimmed in embroidery, back showing the full flare, with which she wore a Gage hat of black and gold.

Miss Helen Brady, modeling for S. & H. store, wore for her first number a marvelous black satin, trimmed in beige, a princess-effect gown, with back trim ending in a side flare, which was lined with the beige, and topped with gold embroidery, and black and gold Gage hat completed the stunning effect. Another gown she displayed was a black and white Alebaum dinner gown, over which she wore a Corinthian colored needlepoint coat, trimmed around collar, front and hem with marmot, and a stunning Gage hat.

Mrs. C. A. Atwell of Fort Worth, who modeled for S. & H., showed the slenderizing effects of the fall clothes, wearing large sizes than the other models. A black satin frock, with full flare skirt, with overdress effect, with which she wore a black Gage hat, and carried a brown fox fur, was very popular. Mrs. Atwell also modeled several wonderful looking coats among these being a $3,000 moleskin with natural grey squirrel collar and cuffs.

Mrs. Arthur Feil modeling for S. & H. store, displayed some good styles, among them being a black satin model, princess style, with great red embroidered motifs around the bottom of the skirt, with which she wore a black velvet and a lace Gage hat.

Gowns and coats displayed by S. & H. store were from such well known firms and brands, as Nellie Don, Peggy Page, Afelbaum & Stearns, Herman Ben Marks and Jalkhoff, and Gage hats.

The Globe's Fashions. The Globe numbers were the very last word in business, sport and dress wear for men, showing all the wanted shades. Each garment being care-

While San Francisco police are hunting Mrs. Barbetta Hammell, former owner of a smart shop, who is charged with passing a worthless check, she and her two children are hiding in a tent near the city. There a newspaper photographer found her, as the picture above shows, but she refused to reveal her hiding place. In place of fashionable gowns, Mrs. Hammell is now wearing overalls. fully chosen and well displayed. They were Society brand garments, a name that is to clothes as sterling is to silver. Shoes worn by Messrs. Dunn and Mason were the Bostonian and Edwin Clapps, while hats shown were Stetsons, Shobel and Knox brands.

The Globe's showing was very smart and very cleverly executed. Of course some of the models flirted with the pages and one of them, feeling very sporty in a real sport topcoat, carrying a handsome bag, wearing a nobby hat, and looking as though he was indeed rushing for the Grand Central station, threw souvenirs to the audience in a room-part suggested by his sporty togs, reminding one of the Society brand ads one sees in national magazines. Clothes displayed showed the popular two-button and three-button effect coats, some full bottom trousers, and some straight bottom trousers. The little accessories that go to make a man well groomed were not forgotten, suggesting themselves in ties, socks, kerchiefs, etc.

In the final scene, the models for The Globe played a prominent part, displaying models well suited to the young man for informal wear—models that suggest society, and models that were "society." Dewey Jones, modeling for White, displayed a great advantage the different Kuppenheimer and Schloss Bros. models that he appeared in at various times.

Tonight the Liberty theatre will show "Siege," with Virginia Valli and Eugene O'Brien starring. The management of the theatre has taken special pains to put on a splendid picture each night and this one promises to be right in keeping with the rest. Tonight at the style show, all the stars modeling for the different firms, will appear for the last time this season. They, too, promise an hour of spectacular entertainment. They may have saved the best for the last. Let's go and see for ourselves.

By THE FENCE RIDER. (Items for this department must be phoned in to the Fence Rider, by 12 o'clock daily in order to insure their insertion. Don't be bashful. Jingle the telephone bell.)

Mary Had a little goat With mohair white as snow. She sold the clip in Ranger and Now Mary has the dough.

One of the prettiest bits of self-control witnessed for many a day was that of the little lady who got her cards wrong at the style show Tuesday evening and was unconsciously announcing ladies' trousers and men's frocks and gowns. Once her attention was called to it, she deftly corrected the mistake and never batted an eye or lost her poise for an instant.

"I've been thinking over our little spats about doctors," wrote a friend to a Ranger doctor. "There are alleopaths and homeopaths and osteopaths. And I have about come to the conclusion that all these paths lead but to the tomb."

Did you ever see a celery tree? Then call at the Ranger grocery stores, or such of them as were supplied out of a recent shipment into the city and get an eye full. These trees (by courtesy called stalks of bunches) of celery have diameters, circumferences, radii and are almost as tall as some of those yarns that railroad man and others have been telling the Fence Rider. And that's some tall!

We venture the assertion there is not a corner in Fort Worth or Dallas where the traffic is any more crowded Saturday nights and many other times, than at Main and Rusk streets, Ranger. Grant that they have more crowded corners than Ranger, but not corners more crowded.

Tulsa, at Ranger's age, gave no more promise of being a city of skyscrapers than does Ranger. Well, if we must have the truth, the Fence Rider did catch a little tiny whiff and there was one man on the streets Saturday night who walked as if his shoes might be hurting him. But Ranger is as sober as any town of its size anywhere except perhaps some town too dead to stagger.

mounted on a swift, coal black (Shetland) steed, awakened citizens dwelling on upper Main street, Sunday, taking the town completely by storm. She rode up and down the street until her sleepy hour came when she went home and had mama tuck her snugly in her little bed.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

That the advertising columns are in the shoppers service. That hardly a day passes that you do not find it necessary to make some purchase. No matter what you want to buy, reading the advertisements is the quickest way in which to find where to buy what you need. That every citizen should realize the value of the advertisements and read them carefully. They are interesting reading for they tell you where you can get the fullest value for your money. That reliable concerns who have confidence in the quality of their goods and service, persistently advertise those interesting facts. Unreliable concerns are never continuous advertisers. Progressive business concerns know that it takes high quality merchandise, prompt service, reasonable prices and advertising to get the business. That is why it pays to trade with them. You should visit the stores that are regular advertisers, and do it often so you can take advantage of the bargains offered.

RESIGNATIONS PRESENTED TO SHIP BOARD

Vice President and General Manager Emergency Fleet Quits.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Rear Admiral Cone, vice president and general manager of the emergency fleet corporation, resigned today. He asked Chairman O'Conner of the shipping board to accept the resignation as soon as possible. Commander C. P. Fullinwider, assistant to the president of the fleet corporation, also requested President Crowley to accept his resignation soon after Crowley was sworn in. Admiral Cone was the chief assistant of Admiral Palmer, who was ousted as president of the fleet corporation yesterday. The shipping board "defied the wishes and policies of the president of the United States in discharging Palmer, who was carrying out the president's policies," Cone said. "Without regard to other considerations I cannot, as a retired naval officer, serve any such organization."

APPETITE FOR BREAKFAST IS NORMAL CONDITION

NEW YORK.—If you have no appetite for breakfast, consult a physician, something is wrong with you, according to Dr. John Duff of the medical division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. "Many employees suffer illness because they do not eat breakfast or because they do not eat a proper breakfast," Dr. Duff declares in the daily bulletin, issued to the company's 9,000 home office employees. "If a person really has no appetite for breakfast despite good intention and perseverance," he continues, "a physician should be consulted, because this is an abnormal condition. Breakfast should consist of fruit, cooked or uncooked; cereal, cooked or uncooked, or egg, poached or scrambled; coffee, tea, cocoa or milk, roll or toast, water. A slice of bacon would not be out of place in addition to the foods mentioned. "If you have been in the habit of not eating breakfast, it would be advisable to start simply and gradually become accustomed to larger amounts of food, such as described above. A few extra minutes spent in bed at the expense of breakfast are misspent and will not pay health dividends."

LIPSTICK RESTORES OLD-TIME GALLANTRY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Kissing the lady's hand, a gallant form of greeting belonging to the days of courtesy, is coming back. Authority for the announcement of its recurrence, Cleveland Health Commissioner Rockwell, explained that the occasion had nothing to do with sanitation. The secret is the lipstick. "Girls are getting tired of having to fix up their lips every time they are kissed," the commissioner pointed out. "Likewise their suitors fear the betraying red imprints scattered over their faces. So the style now is for the fair lady to be kissed on the hand."

SUITS FILED

WHEN AL G. BARNES BIG CIRCUS COMES ROLLING INTO RANGER

"There's a Burma girl a-waiting, and I know she thinks of me," one is likely to quote from Rudyard Kipling, when the Burmese "rapid transit rolling stock" with the Al G. Barnes big four-ring circus comes to Ranger, Wednesday, Oct. 21. This unit of the Al G. Barnes great wild animal circus represents a part of the 2,000 educated wild animals and 1,080 performers and actors, including three tribes of Indians—Washoes, Escondidoes and Apaches, who will play an important part in the sensational circus feature, "Pocanontas at the Court of Queen Anne," the colossal fantastic extravaganza that opens the big program. More than 100 pretty girls from sun-kissed California, many of whom have appeared in some of the latest motion picture productions of this year, will also be included in the cast of chorus and ballet girls.

SHOWERS FORECAST FOR GAME IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Probable showers for tomorrow's baseball game in the world series and a cool afternoon was forecast by the United States weather bureau today. "Increasing cloudiness tonight, probably followed by showers and slightly cooler," said the forecast.
