

PROTECTION OF GIRL WORKERS COUNCIL'S AIM

By Associated Press
CHICAGO, March 25.—How great a weight should a woman be permitted to lift? What occupations are dangerous for women? How much time is needed for their lunch period?

These are a few of the many problems confronting the employers of 12,000,000 women in the United States which are to receive the attention of the women in industry section of the national safety council during the ensuing year, in accordance with a decision of the executive committee. It is announced at the headquarters of the council here.

The program of activities for this section presented by its chairman, Miss Tracy Copp, formerly of the Wisconsin industrial commission, was introduced by the following statement of the problem:

"From the employer's standpoint, the problem is to so order the work performed by women and so regulate the conditions under which they shall work that a maximum of production may be obtained without impairment of the health and efficiency of the women workers."

The subjects receiving special attention are:

What occupations are dangerous for women? Keeping absenteeism down to a minimum. Practical methods to reduce fatigue. Requirement or specifications of a proper factory chair for women. Summary of evidence and authoritative opinion on the limits of weight which women should be permitted to lift. How much time is needed for the lunch period. Practices of member companies employing large number of women, with respect to safety, sanitation, supervision. Modifications of processes or equipment which have resulted in greater comfort for employees and greater production. How to overcome objections to physical examination—when and how should physical examinations be conducted? Factory uniforms and clothing for women workers. Americanization of women workers. The safety and health aspects of night work for women. First aid rooms for women workers.

Chicagoans Beat High Rents With Houseboat Homes

By Associated Press
CHICAGO, March 25.—While Chicago's flat dwellers are forming unions to fight alleged rent profiteers and council committees are investigating 100 and 200 per cent increases in rents, several hundred families are living here in comfort and paying rents averaging $1 per month.

The families who apparently have solved one big problem in the high cost of living are the owners of the houseboats which dot the various branches of the Chicago river, the Calumet river and the lakes of the South Chicago district.

Land owners usually charge the houseboaters $1 a month for mooring privileges. If the scenery becomes monotonous or the neighbors undesirable the colonist need only crank up the gasoline "fly-verb" boat attached to the mooring, and the house boat and be towed away to new pastures.

When the colonists find a satisfactory location and settle down for a stay of any length they usually install all the modern improvements, including city water, electric lights and a telephone. Some of the boats have their own electric lighting plants.

A large colony of the boats wintered this year in the vicinity of Western avenue and Belmont avenue bridges on the north branch of the Chicago river. Their colony was presided over by Captain Streeter, one time commander of the "desdistrict of Lake Michigan," who for years maintained squatter's rights over a portion of the Chicago water front.

A typical boat in this colony has five rooms—parlor, dining room, kitchen and two bed rooms—all finished in white pine and comfortably furnished. The boat cost $1,000. The owner, with permission of the land owner from whom he rents his mooring site, has installed a chicken run on the bank, and in the summer time has a vegetable plot.

Houseboating the year around is not undesirable, the colonists say. The five-room boat is heated with three stoves and uses about one and a half tons of coal a month.

BOY CRITICS QUICK TO LEARN NAMES OF ST. LOUIS CARDINALS

BROWNSVILLE, March 25.—Those critics who are the "last word" in judging baseball players, big league or sand lot, had the St. Louis Nationals "sized up" within thirty minutes after their arrival here for the spring training season.

Most of the "critics" should have been in school when the train bearing the Cardinals pulled in, but "absent" was written opposite many names in the Brownsville public schools that day. And the transfer man who hauled the players' effects from the railroad station to their hotel didn't need the several helpers he brought with him. There were at least two boys to every handbag, and if it had double grips, four youths encircled it.

The "parade" to the hotel gained more youthful recruits, and by the time afternoon practice was over the boys had learned the name of every player and knew each one by sight.

"That big guy's Clemens, the catcher," one voice piped. "And that other fellow's Hornsby, the bird Rickey wouldn't sell for $130,000—or something," another yelled.

And so, one by one, the Cardinals heard their names spoken with the awe of admiring youth, as they were placed in their niches in youth's imaginative "Hall of Envious Fame."

COURSE IN PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING ATTRACTS STUDENTS

Special to the Times.
AUSTIN, March 25.—From the increased class and the number of applicants showing an interest in the course of public health nursing at the University of Texas, many of whom express a desire to enter the school in the fall, there is evidently a need for this training and a promising future for it, according to Miss Jane Duffy, director of the school. The students of the winter term whom completed their theoretical course March 20, are now in Houston engaged in field work under the direction of Miss Sabina Fritsch, supervisor of public health nursing. At the completion of the work in Houston the nurses will be ready to assume their duties in various communities throughout Texas, working under the auspices of the nursing committee of the Red Cross chapters. "These classes will help supply the great demand for public health nurses throughout Texas," said Miss Duffy, "but many more will be required before the health of the rural communities can receive anything approaching adequate care. Therefore, this branch of nursing offers a lucrative and interesting field for those nurses who wish to be pro-meters of better health throughout the country with the advantages of home and social life not always permissible in other branches of the profession."

Twelve students are now enrolled in the school of public health nursing at the university.

LAMB.
Twins Alike in Body But Dissimilar in Spirit.

The body, physical researchers tell us, is the garment that clothes the spirit. Stephen and Jim Browning, the prominent figures in "Other Men's Shoes," Edgar Lewis' potent drama of today, showing now at the Lamb theatre, were twin brothers whose bodies had been cast in the same mold. As to face, form and voice they were so alike that their most intimate friends could not identify them; but their spirits were vastly different.

LIBERTY.
Prohibition? Bosh! Here's How to Beat It.

Want to become intoxicated? There's a perfectly respectable way, without liquor. Just listen to Manager Palmer of the Liberty theatre tell it: "Charlie Chaplin, in 'A Day's Pleasure,' is showing for the last time today at the Liberty. This picture begins with the funniest scene ever shown in a motion picture. And the following scenes are guaranteed to intoxicate any audience with laughter."

"A Day's Pleasure" is Chaplin's fourth million dollar picture under his contract with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

EAST SIDE.
Half Loaf Not as Good as One New Idea.

The new philosophy that half a loaf is not better and, in fact, not half as good as no bread at all, reaches the screen in Vitagraph's new picture, "The Bramble Bush," in which Corinne Griffith is starred. This picture will be shown at the East Side theatre tomorrow.

The dazzling, fresh young beauties who in former times were gobbled by soulless men of wealth have entered a new era.

The payment of millinery bills and the trips on yachts no longer count against the marriage ceremony.

WOULD ESTABLISH HEALTH CENTERS IN EACH COUNTY

Special to the Times.
AUSTIN, March 25.—In order to prevent unnecessary deaths among the children of Texas and to raise the health standard so that the many who escape actual death will not drag through a sickly childhood and an inefficient maturity, Dr. C. W. Goddard, state health officer, would establish a child health center in every county in Texas.

As a step toward attaining this goal, Dr. Goddard is mailing out a bulletin, outlining a practical working program, to all health officers in the state, branches of the Mothers' congress and Parent-Teacher association, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, Red Cross chapters, etc. This bulletin, which was compiled by the bureau of child hygiene of the state health department, explains how to organize a child health center and states its purposes.
