

R. R. MAN IS CALLED FROM BED AND SLAIN

REGULATION OF LAW VIOLATION IS COUNSELED

Commissioners Advise Officials as to Policy to Pursue.

The city commission yesterday instructed Acting Chief of Police Reynolds, Police Judge L. H. Flewelling and City Prosecuting Attorney Dudley to enforce all sanitary laws to the letter; to give Walsh and Burney thirty days notice to remove the obstruction in Main street before taking legal steps to enforce their removal and to regulate whisky selling, gambling and the habits of immoral women as far as possible.

The action concerning whisky, women and gambling was not the action of the commission but was given in private opinions by three of the commissioners who were present at a meeting yesterday called especially to confer with the officials of the police department, at the request of the officials.

City Attorney Dudley stated to the commission that their object in being before the commissioners was to ask them to give definite instructions as to the policy the commission wished them to pursue or at least instruct them to enforce the laws as written. This statement was concurred in by Judge Flewelling and Acting Chief Reynolds.

Mr. Dudley discussed the sanitary laws; the obstruction in Main street; punch boards opening in Ranger; gambling, whisky selling in the city, and immoral women.

The commission instructed that the sanitary ordinances should be enforced.

Thirty Days to Clear Main In the matter of the construction house on Main street used by Walsh & Burney, in the erection of the Hodges-Neal building and those directly across the street in front of the new Wilson hotel, Mr. Dudley was instructed by the commission to prepare a written notice to Walsh & Burney the contractors giving them notice to remove the buildings and other obstructions in thirty days, else the city would institute legal proceedings to have them removed. Mr. Dudley was also instructed to prepare for the consideration of the commission an ordinance that would allow the city to maintain trash cans on the down town streets but would not allow any other sidewalk obstructions other than the eighteen inches the present ordinance allows for the display of merchandise.

The speaker declared for a clean town, in every respect but he declared that his province was to follow the wishes of the commission and he wanted instructions as to whether the city was to run open or closed.

The acting chief made the same request, declaring that personally it made no difference to him. Judge Flewelling said he did not believe in being unreasonable about anything but like the other speakers he wanted the co-operation of the commission.

Gambling in Hotels Each of the three were of the opinion that whisky was being sold in several places in the city and said that they had heard many rumors that gambling was going on in certain hotels. Mr. Dudley said the police department was making an effort to stop gambling and had investigated every place where they had information that it was going on. While talking on this line Mr. Dudley said that he had heard it said that in one hotel there was an electric wiring system which ran from the rooms in which the gambling went on to the office of the hotel and when there was danger the clerk in the hotel sent the alarm to the gambling room. He would not vouch for the veracity of the statement.

Mr. Dudley declared that there were many immoral women in the city and the only thing the police could do was to arrest them and fine them for vagrancy. Where the fines were made too heavy, he asserted, the women would not pay and were left on the city and where it was made light it only amounted to a license to carry on their calling.

In discussing the cabarets, Acting Chief Reynolds said that at one time they were very bad, but that now there was no smoking, swearing or other loud talking by the women and on the whole they were conducted in an orderly manner. Commissioner Deffenbach expressed his opinion that violation of the law that came to the notice of the police department should be prosecuted. He was of the opinion that if the impression became prevalent over the country that Ranger was a wide open town it would do it untold harm. He declared that he was for making the town as clean as possible, in reason.

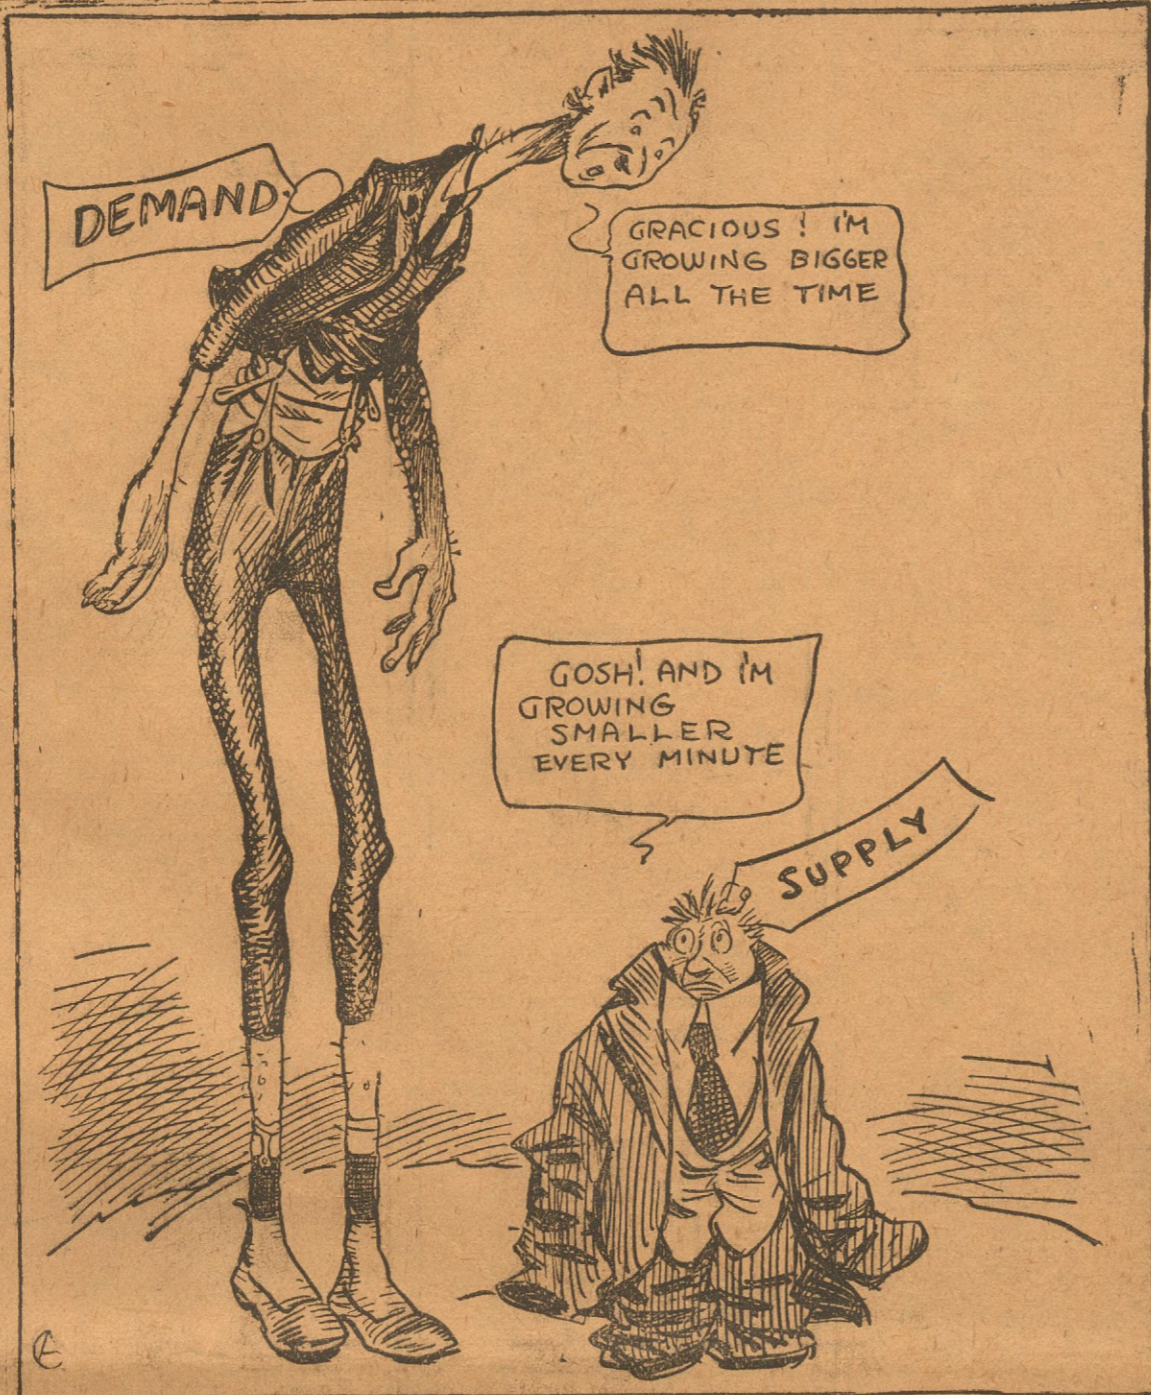

M. R. Newnam, street commissioner, asserted that he was glad that the police officials had called the meeting and he believed in giving them instructions to guide their actions.

Regulation Advised In the matter of gambling, he said that if games were being run for the purpose of making money those in charge should be apprehended and prosecuted. Immoral women, Mr. Newnam said, would always be in the city. To get rid of them entirely, he declared, would be an almost impossible task but he said they should be stopped from plying their trade on the street and should be kept out of sight as much as possible.

The police, he said, should go where they knew whisky was being sold, gather the evidence and turn it over to the county officials, since the police department has no jurisdiction in the mat-

"COOTIE" THRIVES IN WATCH CASE OF FORMER SERVICE MAN

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 5.—John E. Vlack, jeweler, was given a watch to repair by a member of the American Legion who had returned three months ago after more than two years' service in the army. Vlack was unable to find out why the time-piece would not register the correct time, after several trials.

Finally, he took the watch apart and discovered in the inner work a genuine French cootie, untamed and much alive. It was removed and is now in a glass case in the Vlack jewelry shop, where it races around with undiminished vigor. Members of the legion who had ample opportunity for observation, say that it is the real thing in the cootie line.

FISCAL AUTONOMY ASKED OF BRITAIN BY IRELAND

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Premier Lloyd George was told at a conference with an Irish deputation yesterday that great progress has been made among Irish Unionists during the last few months in favor of a broad policy giving self-government to the Irish people, says the London Times. The deputation issued a unanimous and strong denunciation of the government's Irish crime bill, and opposed any scheme for the partition of the island. Fiscal autonomy also was demanded.

ter. A Davenport, police and fire commissioner, stated that he wanted Ranger to be made a good town to live in but he thought reasonable measures should be used.

The city, could, he said, stop all gambling and they could close all the hotels, but his opinion was that if gambling was fairly well regulated then the city had done its duty.

Immoral women, he said, he did not like to discuss, "but," he continued, "Ranger is in pretty good condition in this respect and if the women can be kept out of sight and regulated no city could do more."

While in St. Louis, Mr. Davenport said he and a friend went out and bought two drinks of whisky one day. St. Louis, he said was 200 years old. The majority of the citizens of Ranger, Mr. Davenport said, were care-free kind of folks and many of them were here because they could live without too many restrictions. He thought whisky selling should be controlled.

Mayor M. H. Hagaman stated that he thought the commissioners had said all that needed to be said on the matter. All agreed that operating punch boards was a matter for the county officials and was not in the jurisdiction of the local police.

Poles Fail to Stem Drive of Russian Guards

Strenuous efforts of Poles to stem the Russian Bolshevik invasion which threatens Warsaw, seems to have been futile. Brestlitovsk, the last Bastion in the permanent defenses of the east Polish Capital is in the hands of the Soviets; Lema, an important railroad junction and strategic base to the northeast and Kovel, northeast Brestlitovsk, have been deserted by Poles.

The Soviets have thrown forces across Bug river and it appears, will compel the Poles to retreat important fortresses west of Brestlitovsk.

The Soviets are maintaining an average progress of six miles a day in the direction of Warsaw. They are being held to the south, however, and were being pushed back from the districts of East Lemberg, the objective of the present campaign.

American aviators fighting with Kosciuszko squadron are battling against General Budenny's cavalry and infantry along the Sereth river, where Soviet forces are held. Soviet losses for this district Wednesday are reported heavy.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Soviet Russia concluded a secret treaty with Germany concerning Poland a few weeks before the last Polish offensive, says a correspondent of the London Times, who claims the information from "Excellent authority." The treaty is said to contain the provision that Russia, without German interference, be allowed to appropriate all Poland's arms, munitions, rolling stocks and foodstuffs and after the conquest of Poland Russia be permitted to send commissioners there to control export of Polish supplies. It is declared Russia then undertakes to evacuate Poland in favor of Germany who will hold the country as a guarantee against future credits to Russia in return for German gold and labor.

Statements printed by extremist newspapers here report Great Britain has threatened to declare war against Soviet Russia, if Bolshevik advance into Poland is not halted. The report is not confirmed in authoritative quarters while it is generally agreed the allies are taking an emphatic stand upon terms sent by Earl Curzon, foreign affairs secretary, recently, that if Soviet made war on the Poles, the allies would assist the Poles. Nothing reliable is known to justify the assumption that such assurances take the form of a declaration of war.

Among British officials and foreign diplomats undisguised anxiety is felt over Russo-Polish situation. One said "the situation is grave as that of August, 1914."

The Times correspondent adds that Russia intends to try to avoid terms treaty by creation of Polish Bolshevik army. "When Russia withdraws, she leaves this Polish army permitting Germany to take such steps as can face the

TEXAS EXPERTS WILL WORK FOR CONSERVATION OF GAS

AUSTIN, Aug. 5.—Plans proposed by F. G. Cottrell, director of the federal bureau of mines, for holding a general conference on conservation of natural gas, at Bartlesville, Okla., during the month of August, have been approved by the Texas railroad commission and the public service bodies of the states of Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Mr. Cottrell stated in his communication to the Texas commission a similar conference was held on July 2 at the Pittsburg experimental station and attended by commissions of the states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Western New York and Indiana. This meeting proved quite successful, according to the director, who added that a co-ordinated program was arranged for a uniform system for the conservation of natural gas.

Major Butte, chief of oil and gas division of the commission, will attend the Bartlesville conference and also probably a member of the commission.

BUBONIC PLAGUE VICTIMS IN GALVESTON ONLY TWO

GALVESTON, Aug. 5.—Galveston's mortality record from the bubonic plague, which made its appearance here over a month ago, is 66 2-3 per cent, according to announcement by the United States public health service. Of the three persons contracting the disease so far, one, a negro man, has entirely recovered, the statement says.

While more than seven thousand rodents have been killed and tested for the disease, only thirty-two, or a fraction of 1 per cent, have yielded positive cultures, the statement says.

Thirty-six professional trappers are engaged in the rat-extermination campaign and 3,700 traps are employed.

SEWERS MUST BE LAID BY OWNERS RANGER HOMES

Sanitary Laws of City to Be Rigidly Enforced, Judge Asserts.

The sanitary laws of Ranger will be enforced as written according to Police Judge L. H. Flewelling, who was interviewed this morning. The statement followed instructions issued yesterday by the city commission to the police department officials to enforce all such laws.

The judge declared that the first step he was going to make in this direction was to see that the sewer lines of the city were connected with by property owners wherever possible. The statement was qualified, however, by him saying that he knew a good many people were not in a position financially to care for the necessary expense, but he did know that many others were able to have the work done and were not doing it.

It is the latter class the judge said he was going to get behind and see that they obeyed the law.

In the next few days Judge Flewelling said among others, he was going to make it a point to notify the Texas & Pacific Railroad company that they must install sewer connection and drain the water off their premises where it stands in stagnant pools after each rain. Other folks he said, would get the same warning.

When the requests were not heeded the judge said he would institute legal proceedings against the property owners.

HARDING LENDS HIS AID TO SWING VOTE ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Senator Harding in telegrams to Republican and suffrage leaders at Nashville further exerted his influence for ratification of suffrage by the Tennessee legislature in a telegram to John Houk, chairman of the Republican state committee. Harding said he believed Republicans "position can serve both party and country by effecting ratification" and asked information as to the roll of Republican members of the legislature regarding ratification. He telegraphed Carrie Catt, encouraging state Republicans toward ratification.

TRIED TO CONTROL BIRTH, LANDLORD IS ARRESTED.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 5.—Adobe houses may soon be seen in Denver. House shortage and the high cost of material recently resulted in a change of the city regulation permitting adobe construction. Several requests for permits have already been filed.

"Houses of adobe can be made durable and attractive," F. M. Ladd, city building inspector, declared in commenting on the changes. "If they are constructed properly, we will not oppose their construction."

Three conditions were named in the issuance of permits. They will be permitted in frame residence districts; advice of the city building inspectors as to the making of adobe bricks and construction must be followed, and the buildings, when completed, must be given coats of stucco.

SWAT THE RAT!

The war which is being staged on rats over the country has reached Ranger with Monday, August 9, as the day set by the sanitary department for the residents and citizens to begin a concerted movement to rid their premises of the rodents.

According to Sanitary Inspector Stowe, the number of rats in Ranger has reached a multitude that is alarming and unless they are killed out they will be a real menace to health. Several cities, Mr. Stowe declared, are fighting bubonic plague, which is a disease carried by rats it is not unreasonable to suppose that they would be the agency through which it might break out in Ranger.

So cautious are some cities becoming that they are threatening to quarantine all houses where rats are known to exist.

The sanitary department does not believe that any such drastic action will be necessary in Ranger but it does believe that the citizens should join in a movement to kill every rat possible.

Sanitary inspector Stowe has written this communication and requests that full co-operation be given its terms.

"War on rats must start. We all must put a shoulder to the wheel and get together. My suggestion is to trap the rat or to poison the rat with rat paste. This paste will kill the rat immediately after application and thus eliminate the possibility of having the rat crawl under some building to die and then creating an unsanitary place. Let every person in the city of Ranger on Monday morning, the 9th day of August be ready to start the war on the rat in the down town and residence districts. This is a call for every person in Ranger to give and do everything in his power to get rid of this pest and keep the city clean.

"This plan would only be enforced if every man, woman and child will get together in an effort to keep the down town and resident sections of the city clean.

STATION AGENT OIL BELT LINE SHOT TO DEATH

Four Suspects Are Held; Quarrel Over Gaming Is Theory.

Special to The Times. BRECKENRIDGE, Aug. 5.—L. Reber, 30 years old, station agent of the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth line at Breckenridge, was shot and killed last night at one o'clock on the platform in the rear of the station. The crime was committed with a 12 gauge gun, which according to police is the property of George Gist, 21 years old, of Oak Park, Ill. Gist together with Frank Baccarini, 27 years old, of Lombardy, Italy, John Arcey, 34 years old, of Marlow, Okla., and Jack Frazier, 23 years old, of San Francisco, are being held by Sheriff C. B. Sears, of Breckenridge on suspicion.

Reber when found was dressed in shirt, pants and shoes, apparently having been called out after having retired for the night. He had about $400 in his pockets which leads the police to believe the killing was the result of a quarrel over a gambling game. All the arrested men have been employed on the railroad in the neighborhood of Nessville. According to Gist, he loaned his gun to the station agent earlier in the evening. Three of the suspected men after the shooting carried the wounded man into the station and laid him on the bed. County Attorney O'Connor is making an investigation.

Compulsory military service is the only way of solving the Mexican military problem. Calles declared and expressed himself as favoring the establishment of five military zones, northern, southern, central, Atlantic and Pacific.

OPERA HOUSE—Georges Carpentier in "The Wonder Man."

CARPENTIER SHOWS LIGHTNING SPEED AND HARD WALLOPS

If the long heralded fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier ever takes place in this country, a number of fight enthusiasts of Ranger will very probably go to see the big match. In the meantime the opportunity is offered to see Carpentier in action and to form a good opinion of his ability as a scrapper. A special feature picture, "The Wonder Man," billed for a four day's run at the Opera House beginning yesterday, shows the French war hero and ring champion not only as a fighter but as an actor of no mean ability.

"The Wonder Man" is a society drama with plenty of thrills, baffling mystery adventure, and a four-round slugging contest which will make any boxing fan sit up and take notice.

Without attempting to pass judgement on the relative merits of Carpentier and Dempsey as boxers, it should be said that reports of Carpentier's lightning speed with the mitts have not been exaggerated in the least. In repose he looks light for a heavy—almost frail—but when he gets into action, one is reminded of a mountain bob cat. Always on his toes, admiration of any fan, terrible in in-fighting and with a long wallop in either hand that, to say the least looks dangerous. Carpentier makes decidedly a good impression.

The drama which has been built to suit his style of acting is very clever. In not "overplaying" the Frenchman. One gets the idea that he is really of a modest disposition. In "civilian" clothes he is a fine looking man, with the type of face that is often seen in a noted general or noted scientist. He has the face of a fighter but with a spiritual quality that seldom marks a prize fighter.

Fulton Can't Stand the Rough Boys. NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—After his showing with Wills the other night we're convinced that Fulton doesn't like them rough. Wills tore in from the top of the gong, tossed the tall plaster around a few times and traded lefts and rights.

Fulton backed away from the onslaughts, but smiled, as though he had his man measured. In the next two rounds Wills did the same thing, but instead of getting better Fulton slowed up.

The right hand uppeared he got wouldn't have killed a walter, yet Fulton took the old count as though he were dead.

The same thing happened when he fought Dempsey. A great many of the spectators that day failed to see the right hand punch that dropped Frederick, yet both he and Dempsey declare that it landed.

Before the fight the other night the writer saw Jack Dempsey and asked him about Fulton.

"He's a good fighter," said Jack with a grin, "but he's scared of me. I think I'm poison to him. I'd like to take him on again just to prove it to the boys. He thinks he was double-crossed that day. Well, any old time that the people want to see us together again I'm willing to start."

HISTORIC ESTATE ON SALE; PRINCESS' COFFIN, AND ALL

International News Service.

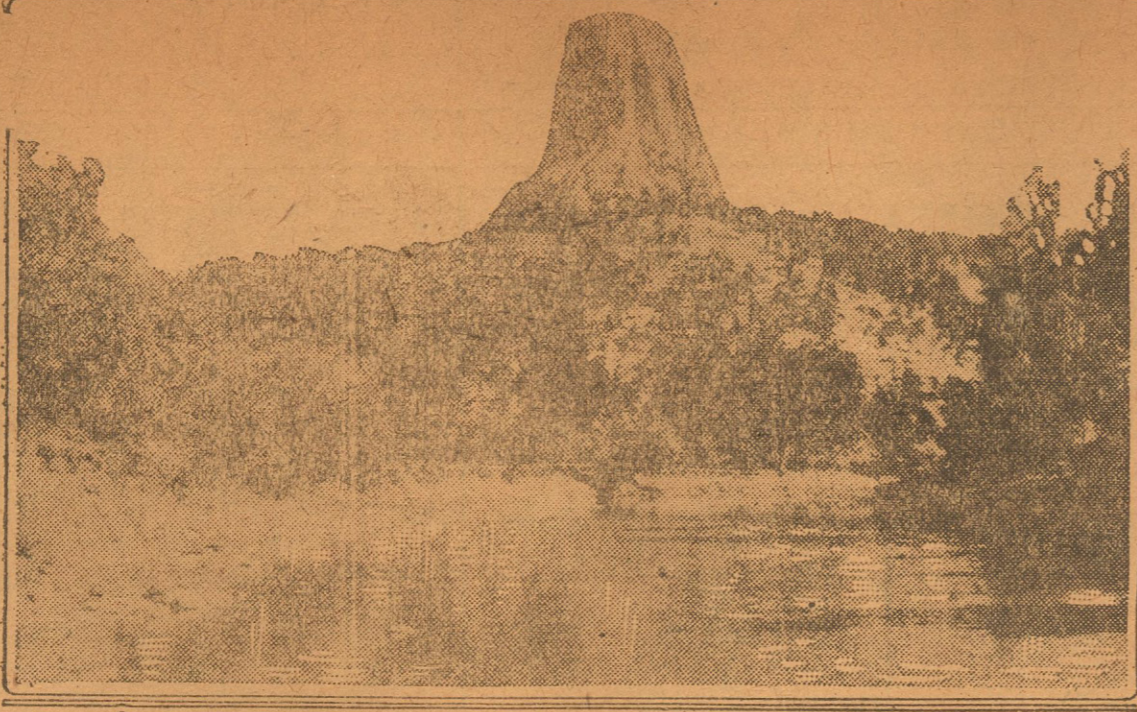

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Any American with surplus cash who wishes to add a historic estate, including a princess' coffin used as a watering trough, to his collection, has the offering of Baron Hill estate, Isle of Anglesey. It includes 5,000 acres and the town of Beaumaris.

A royal coffin of stone in the ground connects the estate with the tragedy of an English princess—Joan, daughter of King John of England, and wife of Prince Llywelyn ab Iorwerth.

At the siege of Montgomery Llywelyn took prisoner a knight named William de Breos and lodged him in his castle. Princess Joan fell in love with the captive, and when, after de Breos had been liberated by ransom, her husband discovered her unfaithfulness he enticed de Breos back and killed him.

Joan died many years later. For 250 years her coffin was used as a watering trough for cattle until, in 1808, Lord Bulkeley removed it to Baron Hill.

UNCLE SAM SETS ASIDE SCENIC FREAK AS NATIONAL MONUMENT

Devil's Tower.

SUNDANCE, Wyo., July 27.—There are many legends regarding Devil's Tower, in the mighty basalt monolith that rises almost sheer 1,500 feet from the top of a hill twenty-two miles northeast of Sundance, and which has been set aside by the federal government as a national monument. A legend new to the "pale-faces" of this section was told recently to General Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., by an aged Ogalalla Sioux. Here is the story:

Ages and ages ago seven Indian maidens were disputing themselves on the hill where Devil's Tower now stands, when they were attacked by bears. They took refuge on a rock and beseeched Manitou to preserve them. The ravenous bears rushed at the rock and began climbing its sides, but miraculously the rock began to grow higher. The higher the bears climbed, the taller the rock became until finally it was the mighty eminence called by white men Devil's Tower, but which, said the old Ogalalla warrior, the Sioux always identified as Bear Lodge because of its origin and its resemblance in form to a titanic Indian lodge. The bears, the old Indian continued, finally desisted in their efforts to reach the maidens, but not before their claws had scratched tremendous furrows in the sides of the growing rock and the rock had become so tall that the maidens, although safe from the bears, were unable to descend and perished miserably from thirst and starvation. Their spirits, the old Sioux related, ascended to the sky and became a seven-starred constellation which annually is above "Bear Lodge" on the anniversary of the miracle of the growing rock. In substantiation of his story the old Indian pointed to the fact that the bones of many bears have been found at the base of the rock (early white explorers found numerous bear skulls there), which, he stated, were those of the bears that were shaken from the side of the rock by its rapid uprearing and perished from the fall. Also he called attention to the perpendicular serrations hundreds of feet in length on all sides of the rock, which, he averred, were the marks made by the claws of the climbing bears.

The sides of Devil's Tower are so precipitous that it has been scaled on only a few occasions. The first ascent was accomplished in 1905 by a ranchman and his wife, who scaled the tower by driving steel spikes into crannies and cracks in the basalt. It is planned eventually to build a stairway up the most sloping side of the rock and make its summit accessible to sight seers. From its top is observable a magnificent panorama embracing portions of three states—Wyoming, South Dakota and Montana.

YOUNG JAPS TAUGHT TO WORSHIP MIKADO IN HAWAIIAN SCHOOL

HONOLULU, Hawaii.—Certain priests and language school instructors in Hawaii are teaching young Japanese children that their first loyalty is to the emperor of Japan, even if they become American citizens, the Japanese committee of the Hawaiian board of mission reported in submitting the following resolution:

"Be it resolved, That it is the point of view of the Hawaiian board at the beginning of the second century of mission work that for plantations to continue, as in the past, to financially assist the non-Christian religious organizations is detrimental to the welfare of Hawaii, and is a hindrance to the Christianization and Americanization of the alien peoples in the Hawaiian Islands; and we urge the members of the board financially interested in the plantations to present this view to the boards of directors."

With the resolution was this explanation:

"The idea expressed in the new resolution is by no means new. Several years ago both Japanese preachers and Anglo-Saxon missionaries brought to the attention of the members of the board the fact that the non-Christian religious organizations on the plantations were anti-American and were hindrances to the development of American communities and to Americanization of the Hawaiian-born children of alien parents. It was, however, thought not wise for the board to take any action in the matter, as such action might be taken as actuated by denominational jealousy. Recent developments resulting from the Japanese labor strike (on Oahu island plantations) have made it clear that certain non-Christian religious organizations do now and for many years have taken a stand and quietly worked against Christianity, endeavoring through all means possible to prevent their people from coming under Christian influences; also, that certain priests and language school teachers have taught the children that their first loyalty is to the emperor of Japan, even if they become American citizens."

"Now there is absolutely no desire to interfere with the priceless liberty which permits man to worship in any way he may choose and there is no intention of placing any restriction on non-Christian religions. If the people desire to erect churches, temples, etc., and promote organizations which are un-American, let them bear the financial burdens themselves."

Vaughan MacCaughy, superintendent of public instruction for Hawaii, wrote to the board:

"I have received and read very carefully your recent circular letter concerning anti-American influences of many Japanese organizations throughout this territory. I agree most heartily with the findings and resolutions of your committee and hope that your report may be given widespread publicity.

"The anti-American influences in this territory constitute an incalculably oppressive handicap upon the work of the public schools. There is no other religion under the stars and stripes where the American public school system is endeavoring to operate under handicaps as severe as those which confront us in Hawaii.

"There is no other part of the United States and no other country in the world where one-half of the total school population regularly and systematically attends alien schools in an alien language and conducted expressly for the purpose of maintaining the religious beliefs, customs and political ideals of an alien people.

"On some of the islands—Kauai, for example—the Japanese language schools outnumber the American public schools. Quantitatively this territory at the present time is pagan."

JOHN-A-DREAMS

LXXXIV. DREAMS OF ERROR. It requires a good memory and considerable discernment to be able to recall dreams of error in such manner that they may be properly reported. To begin with it is necessary to be able to discard without hesitation the recollection of nearly all the incidentals to the dream and to retain only the knowledge of the error and the one particular event to which it applied.

At all times, remember this: Errors, like straws, upon the surface flow: He who would search for pearls must dive below.

In other words, in order to properly understand a dream of error we must first make up our minds whether we are dealing with a trifling mistake or with one of fundamental import.

If, in your dream, you become obsessed with a certain idea only to find out before the vision ends that you were completely mistaken, then you have had a true dream error. Let me illustrate this with one of the many examples which could be cited. Suppose you dreamed that you believed yourself to be swimming, while, ultimately, you discovered that you were going through the motions of swimming on dry land. Of course you believed yourself to be talking to a man friend only to find out later in your conversation that you were addressing a woman. Or, again, you had been riding in a fast automobile when finally, the consciousness came to you that you were merely sitting on a chair. Such are true dreams of error, not to be confounded with mistakes such as for instance, your engaging in a quarrel because in your dream vision you thought someone was poking fun at you, when as a matter of fact, he or she merely joked in a good-natured way.

The meaning of dreams of error is, invariably, and no matter what the picture around which they are woven, that a recent important step undertaken by you is leading you in the wrong direction. When people once are in the wrong, each line they add is much to long; Who fastest walks, but walks astray; Is only furthest from his way.

In the event of such a dream it is imperatively necessary for you to retrace your steps, to make a complete turn-about to undo what you have already done. If you fail to take the warning you will have many bitter reasons to regret your stubbornness. In fact, you may call yourself exceedingly fortunate that in your dream a kind hand pointed the way in the right direction.

As you remember such a dream do not dismiss it lightly with the thought that since you can not at the time recall an important decision on your part of recent occurrence, the dream can mean nothing. Remember that great oaks from little acorns grow and it may be some apparently trifling matter which holds the potentialities of developing into an event of overshadowing importance.

In the next chapter I will tell you of Dreams of Cooks and Cooking.

BUDDHIST PRIESTS SUFFER TORTURE TO GAIN FULL VOW

By Associated Press. CHANGCHOW, Kiangsu Province, Aug. 4.—Dr. John Dewey, American exchange professor at the University of Peking, visited Changchow recently in the course of a mission lecture tour of China, at a time when the city was observing a holiday and 1,080 Chinese Buddhists, becoming priests, suffered holes to be burned into their heads as a token of their religious vows.

The holiday was a spontaneous affair arranged by a group of devotees of the Changchow Buddhist monastery, then graduating a class of novices into the priesthood. Chinese had come from all parts of the country in response to a call the monastery sent out. The Buddhists at the same time honored the victims of the Taiping rebellion who were killed sixty years ago.

The Buddhist ceremony of ordination in China follows ancient lines that are barbaric—in the eyes of the Occidental—and this explains why the shaven polls of the priests the traveler meets are marked with deep-pitted scars. The novitiate is a matter of forty days usually and at its close, as a climax of the temple ceremony, upon the shaved heads of lines of kneeling novices are placed lighted cones of highly inflammable incense. These sink into the flesh as a chorus prayer issues from the throats of the assemblage. Upon the heads of the most devout—those taking the "full vow"—is placed a circlet of twelve smoldering incense heaps.

Of the 1,080 who became priests at the recent ceremony here, 822 took the full vow, while the other accepting lesser orders, were sent forth with fewer scars, some with but one and the rest from two to nine.

ALL SORTS OF AD SPACE SOLD—BERLIN

International News Service. BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The bankrupt German State Post and Telegraph System has entered into competition with the national bill posting and advertising agencies. Postage and telegraph rates have reached the limit; the cost of mailing letters is so high that people have cut their correspondence to the minimum.

The billion mark deficit continues to grow. The postal authorities are looking around to sell or rent anything which will bring in money. Consequently they advertise that they will rent advertising space on the interior and exterior walls of post office buildings.

You may buy advertising space on the backs of postal money order forms, telegraph blanks, or in the margins of postage stamps. Mail wagons and telegraph poles will be rented as advertising mediums. Even the cancellation stamp will be sold to the highest bidder. A post office commission has been authorized to censor the advertisements and reject unsuitable or undignified matter.

AMERICANS EXPERT AT "PASSING BUCK"

International News Service. COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 4.—"America

suffers from the vice of superciliousness. We are temperamentally not equipped for patient, "thorough-going work." We always are in a hurry. We are experts at shifting responsibility. Americans thrive on "passing the buck."

This is the arraignment voiced by Dr. Marion L. Burton, president of the University of Michigan, in an address here on "What the Schools Must Do."

President Burton declared that "a new emphasis on the old-fashioned accuracy is desirable."

"We must teach our boys and girls that it is not a haphazard world in which they live. We must see that this question of accuracy goes deep down into the fibre of our national life. The great question is not so much what you teach as how you teach it.

"Nine minds out of ten accept polish passively. Only one in ten sensitively reacts. We must quicken our boys and girls until they respond to the problems that confront the world. To get this sort of teaching, well-paid teachers are indispensable. With the cost of living doubled, salaries of teachers should also be doubled."

Reading Is Better Than Rummaging

When you go to buy a pair of boots, a can of peas, or a kitchen cabinet, do you know what you want? Or do you just take "pot luck"?

You can save many a dollar and many an hour's time if you know beforehand what your money is going to get you—and where to go to get it.

Merchants with established reputations are the best with whom to deal.

Merchandise with established reputation is always the best to buy.

If it's clothing, you know how well it should wear and what the style should be.

If it's a musical instrument, you know what to expect in tone and workmanship.

If it's a carpet sweeper, you know what kind of service it should give.

The way to be sure of the goods you buy is to read advertisements regularly. Then you won't go wrong.

COURT CO-OPERATION.

Judge George Davenport, whom Ranger has the honor of claiming, in his initial speech to the attorneys of the Ninety-first judicial district strikes a leading note when he points out that it is as much the fault of the attorneys, as much as of the courts, that the crowded dockets are not handled with greater expediency, and asks that they give their cooperation in bringing cases to speedy trial and disposition as circumstances will permit.

Abnormal conditions obtaining in the Eighty-eighth judicial district since the start of the oil congestion have contributed in part to the feeling of "unconcern," as far as trial of cases is concerned.

The establishment of the new court, in answer to the greatly expanded needs of Eastland county will do much to remedy the congestion, if the attorneys give the co-operation which the new district judge requests.

In return for their aid and as a result of the spirit of unity which he hopes will rule the officers of the court in their relations with the court, he promises each a "fair and patient hearing in such matters in which you may be interested, and so long as I occupy this position, such courtesies will be extended to you."

He makes the surest and most direct appeal to them in "You are all officers of this court, and a part of it."

In the opinion of an old officer of the Eastland courts, who listened to the maiden remarks of the new jurist, the approval which was won by them arose from the straightforward utterances at this, his first term of court. They had the right ring to them.

While on the way to work this morning, a pleasing and amusing example of industry was afforded by the street sprinkler driver, hurrying his horses at a trot to finish sprinkling the streets before the storm.

Intoxicated pigs in Kentucky led to the discovery of a moonshine still, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The distiller might have escaped had he not permitted them to make hogs of themselves.

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING

THE FRUITS OF HARD WORK

It is a rather strange fact that, of all the hundreds of letters I have received from my readers, not one letter has contained a complaint that housekeeping is "drudgery" or a "thankless task." And in reflecting upon this splendid fact I have come to the conclusion that the average woman does not resent the daily grind of housework and has no complaints to offer!

Why is this? Here is the way I have explained it to myself:

Several years ago I came in contact with a girl artist who had tried and tried to sell her work, but with no success. After two years of struggling, she became thoroughly discouraged. "I'm going to give up art and try to get a business position," she told me. "I've plugged away at art for two solid years and never earned a cent. There's no use in wasting any more time." Not a week later she ran in upon me with a look of radiance upon her face. "What do you think?" she cried. "A pen-and-ink drawing I left with a magazine a year ago (I'd forgotten all about it) has been accepted! And I was just going to give up art. Now I'd plug away harder than ever."

In short, this girl had given her best self to her work, denying herself the pleasures that other girls had, and as she sowed her seeds of sacrifice, one little seed had taken root, only one, but that was enough to encourage her to go on and repay her for all the fruitless seeds.

And so it is with the woman whose life is a constant round of housework. Her family does not praise her every time she bakes her excellent bread; the hundreds of tedious duties she performs are not even realized by those she serves; she receives no sympathy for her backaches which come, week in and week out, as she does certain tasks which tire her. And yet—the little one seed of sacrifice that takes root occasionally repays her a thousandfold for all the fruitless seeds she sows.

What are these fruitful seeds? Some-times they take the form of the look of

"Tinker Bob" Stories by Carlyle H. Holcomb

THE HUNTER'S STORY.

There was no one more surprised than Tinker Bob to see the hold Hunter bring forth the foot that belonged to Three Legs the Musk Rat. All the Forest Dwellers had known Mr. Musk Rat by the name "Three Legs" for some time because he hobbled about on three feet. While some of them knew about the circumstances that caused him to lose his foot, the great majority knew nothing about it at all.

Great tear drops stood in the eyes of the Hunter as he handed the foot to Tinker Bob, King of the Forest, and he said: "I never thought I was doing so much harm to the wonderful creatures of the Forest till now. Oh, I am so sorry! O King, will you let me tell you how I happened to get the foot that belongs to Mr. Musk Rat?"

Tinker Bob was only too glad to let the Hunter tell his side of the story. "We will only be too happy to hear your story, Mr. Hunter."

Then he began: "You see, it was just like this. It was in the winter time and the snow and ice were covering everything, and away off in the big city the people want something to keep them warm. And they were offering gold and silver and precious things to anyone who would catch the animals that had thick fur and kill them and send their skins to the city to be made into coats and hats and mittens."

"I wanted the gold and the silver, O King, and one day late in the afternoon I took my traps and my dog and went into the Great Forest in search of a good place to catch such fellows as Mr. Musk Rat. When I came to the river I saw where he had been going in and out, and I knew there was a hole leading into his home from under the water. I set my trap near the edge of the water and went away to wait for him to come and step in it."

"It was so cold that I could not wait long, so I returned home and felt sure the next morning I would have such a nice big fellow to send to the city. I was nervous all night that I could not sleep, and when morning came I called my dog and started out to see if my trap was going to bring me something good. On my way I saw the tracks of many Forest Dwellers that had been out during the night, but I did not see a single creature. I supposed they were all asleep."

I Set My Trap Near the Edge of the River and Went Away to Wait for Him to Come out and Step on It.

didn't know, O King, that they were in hiding where they could see me. "When I arrived at the river bank I saw signs of fighting, and the snow was bloody. There had been a struggle during the night, and when I examined my trap I saw nothing but this foot lying by its side. I was angry to think I did not catch the little creature, but now I see what I did—and I am so sorry that I caused this fellow any suffering—for I know now that with his own teeth he must have cut his foot off to save his life."

SUMMER MONTHS.

July's a month that makes me sad, while on my errands trotting; the air is hot, the flies are bad, and I'm kept busy swatting. Though August fills our souls with grief, we yet may all remember a few short weeks will bring relief—the next month is September. But in July no kindly thought of that sort soothes the spirit; for August will be twice as hot, and so we dread and fear it. And as we drink our bitter cup, and chase the bugs that bit us, we say to friends, "Cheer up! Cheer up! The worst is yet to hit us!" By day I plod with weary tread along the streets a-blazing, and sleepless spend the night in bed, all kinds of thunder raising. And when I rise at six o'clock I feel like those poor critters who lived for weeks on private stock or home-brewed brands of bitters. I drool and glibber as I slide to get a bromo seltzer; in winter Hope walks by my side, but summer comes and melts her. The heat's so hot it cooks the trees and all the fruit is rotting, and I get on my hands and knees to do my daily swatting. It's no use to look ahead to Autumn's frosts that dazzle; before they come we'll all be dead and roasted to a frazzle.

pride on a husband's face when he passes his guest a piece of supremely delicious cake baked by his wife. Sometimes they come to view in the casual reference of the merest stranger who has heard of the sower of the seeds of sacrifice is "a wonderful housekeeper." Sometimes they appear in the sudden, impulsive suggestion of a loved one that the housekeeper "take a day off, because you work so hard."

In other words, the housekeeper who works hard and constantly, asking no return, has the deep-down, certain feeling that her efforts are appreciated, and this is the secret of her willingness to make the sacrifice she is making. Hard housework has its fruits, and the sweetness of their unexpected blossoming repays a woman for all the long hours of labor which are seemingly unappreciated.

"REDS" TRIED HORSE AND SENTENCED IT TO DEATH

(By International News Service) PARIS, Aug. 4.—According to Paris Sport several very valuable blood-stock horses have been rescued from the Bolsheviks. The animals were removed by the British authorities after General Denikin's defeat and are now at Constantinople, where they are being held as security against Russia's debt to Great Britain.

The rescued horses include Aboyeur, which won the derby in 1913. A son of Sunstar was in Russia at the time of the Bolshevik outbreak, and, having learned that this horse won a cup offered by the late czar, the Bolsheviks had the horse tried by court-martial and shot it, after sentencing the horse to death for "having had dealings with the old regime."

Senora Adolfo de la Huerta, wife of the president of Mexico, is celebrated for her beauty.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

An Infant Agitator. Have you a little Trotsky in your home? One family the Woman knows has.

Bobby Brooks was deaf for a kodak—for his birthday. But he could only secure the promise of one if he earned the festive day he should earn $1 toward its upkeep. One dollar isn't much these days. In fact, we are constantly assured that $1 is really only 43 cents. But Bobby hadn't any such relief. His dollar contained one hundred hard copper pennies, and represented thirty-three hours and twenty minutes' hard labor—weeding, and picking potato bugs and minding baby and fetching the milk and shelling peas and freezing ice cream—and as many other variations as mother's imagination was capable of at three cents an hour. If the labor unions should ever get hold of it. Well, Bobby's thirty-three hours and twenty minutes should net him $20.75, or jail for his parents for violating the child labor law at the very least.

As it was Bobby was perfectly satisfied with the arrangement and was busily and unconsciously enacting the parable of the laborers in the vineyard until along came Babs. Babs is seven. On that particular morning she was lonely, as well.

Mother overheard the following colloquy:

Babs—Come on and play, Bobby!

Bobby—None. Have to work.

Babs—You don't have to work.

Bobby—Well, I want to work.

Babs—That's a fib. You hate to work much as I do.

Bobby—Well, I want a kodak.

Babs—You're a fool to work for only three cents. Three cents is too little. I wouldn't!

Bobby—It's all mother'll give, and I got to earn a dollar.

Babs—How'd you know it's all your mother'd give? She's got to get the garden weeded. (Then, after profound thought) say, Bobby, I've got six cents. If I give you the six cents will you stop working for your mother for three cents and come play?

And Not in Fetherston's Time, Either!

A hot, blustering sirocco blew the fine urban dust into the Woman's face as she turned west out of Fifth avenue. She literally felt the grit between her teeth and knew that somewhere on her face was a black smut. She was wondering why it was that a black patch is so unbecoming, when a black patch is just the opposite, when the particular cause of her present annoyance loomed up ahead—the ash can dragon lumbering on its dumpward way.

A sudden puff of wind and the whole block was asswirl with thousands of tiny, multicolored feathers—old Dame Holle, it seemed, shaking out her feather bed with a vengeance, only shaking out a rainbow instead of the time-honored snow-cloud. A chuckle rippled down the street. Children grabbed in the gutters for handfuls of fluffy red and green, yellow and blue. And the gay waste from some feather duster factory cheated the D. S. C. and escaped for the time being its incineratory doom and found its way into the buttonholes of chauffeurs, the license plates of truck drivers, the caps of messenger boys and the linings of pockets of those untold little hoboes of the streets, the Passer domestics.

A Point of Privilege.

At a popular New York swimming pool young girls, like as nymphs, swam and dived in the green depths, with flashes of pink flesh and shadows of the gray-blue of their scant attire. Laughter echoed in the tiled room.

In the visitors' gallery sat a little old lady. Her eyes were bright, her cheeks glowing, her gray hair framing a happy face. One of the captivating water nymphs addressed her as "Cousin Nettie." How the name fitted.

At the finish of an exciting diving contest the little old lady turned to the Woman to say: "I wonder if men are allowed here?" Preparing for instant flight the Woman answered with a gravity that tried to meet that of her questioner: "I think if they were allowed they'd be here!"

I was standing so close if I'd of bin standing any closer it mite of hit me too, and I'll prove it in court, too. So will I, sed Puds.

Heers my witnesses, I sed, and the man said, Aw go home and take your mother she wants you. I'll give the hole 3 of you a kick in the slats, oranges, oranges, mavy oranges.

And he wevked away and he did his horse and nutting elts happened.

Two Children Are Killed by Lightning Bolts

International News Service.
LITTLE ROCK, L. I., Aug. 5.—Jennie and Edward Staburski, nine and two years old respectively, were killed by lightning while sitting in the kitchen of their home here.

Jennie held her brother in her arms and was near the window when struck. The two children were thrown forward on the table, which stood near the window. Lifeless. Their mother, with her ten-month-old infant, Sigmund, and mother daughter, Sophie, six, were also in the kitchen at the time.

The storm had frightened the children. Edward began to cry. Jennie, cuddled him in her arms, and the mother tried to pacify the other children. A moment later a huge bolt, flashed into the kitchen, striking Jennie and Edward.

Running screaming from the room, Mrs. Staburski summoned her husband, Stephen, working on their little farm, a few hundred feet in the rear of the two-story house. She then called the family physician, but the two small victims of the storm's fury were beyond the help of any doctor.

These were the only fatalities reported in the season's second and strongest electrical storm, which came like a big black ball up from the south. The black ball began to unravel and stretch a cloak of blackness over the sky. Lights appeared in downtown offices. Pedestrians scooted for cover. Then the storm broke.

Hailstones of thumb size rattled on the downtown streets and bruised many pedestrians.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Murder will out.

Here's the tale of how William E. Johnson, who lost an eye in England in the "dry" cause, received the nick-name of "Pussyfoot."

Johnson told it himself on a recent visit here.

Twelve years ago he was a federal special officer chasing folks who sold firewater to Indians down in Oklahoma. A bad saloon keeper of Haskell sent an emissary to Johnson's office at Muskogee with word that if Johnson showed up in Haskell he, the saloon keeper, would shoot him promptly and straight.

On a dark night Johnson disguised himself, rode into Haskell with a whoop, tied the horse to the rail in front of the saloon man's shack, and walked up to the bar. There was a gun on every hip pocket in sight.

"Gimme a drink," said Johnson.

He sampled what was put forth. Then he smashed the bottle on the bar.

"Piff!" he said (for the Oklahoma equivalent), "that's pap. Give me some hell fire."

The saloon man opened a secret trap behind the bar and produced the hell fire.

The next day the local paper had the whole story and it dubbed Johnson "Pussyfoot." The name stuck.

MAN IS FINED FOR DISPLAY OF PISTOL IN RESTAURANT

W. W. Westbrook was fined $50 and court costs in police court this morning on a charge of rudely displaying a pistol. The charge lead out of Westbrook going to the Busy Bee cafe on Hunt street and collecting $20 which he claimed the cafe owed his mother.

According to Westbrook's story, his mother worked at the place for five days and the man in charge would not pay her. Yesterday Westbrook said he imbibed a few drinks of "jake" and went after the money. He got it he said but did not have a gun.

Other evidence given at the trial was that Westbrook did not have a gun on his person when he visited the cafe.

During the fifty-one years since the New York Exchange for Woman's Work was founded in 1878 by Mrs. William G. Choate it has paid out more than $2,000,000 to consignees and has helped thousands of women to become self-supporting in other ways.

COLLEGE HARVEST HANDS COME TO WORK IN CARS

International News Service.
FARGO, N. D., Aug. 5.—Eastern college students are coming to North Dakota to work in the haying and wheat harvests. They have begun to arrive. Many of them have come in automobiles putting in a part of their vacation in a cross-country drive. A number are engaged in tours in the suburbs of Fargo, ready for work when haying begins. These young men are regarded by farmers as good workers and there will be plenty of work for them during the harvest. The money they earn will go toward paying expenses during their next college term.

Farming communities throughout the State have begun to plan for the army of field workers that will be necessary to harvest the unusually heavy wheat crop. Boy scouts have been engaged in advance. Business men of the towns have promised to form twilight harvest gangs. It will be possible for these to work from four to six hours a day after business is over, as the long twilight in this northern latitude does not fade until 9:30 or 10 o'clock at night.

Miss Marguerite Funcho, a Red Cross nurse, established a record for women recently by swimming across Lake Geneva in Switzerland. She is the first of her sex to accomplish the feat.

MRS. M. E. SMITH, prominent Tampa, Florida, woman, who says, thanks to Tanlac, she is now able to walk around without the help of a cane after eight long years of suffering.

"I am so glad my health is being restored after suffering for over eight years with indigestion and rheumatism that I feel like telling everybody about Tanlac," was the enthusiastic statement made recently by Mrs. M. E. Smith, one of the best-known and most highly respected women of Tampa, Fla., residing at 906 Morgan Street.

"The rheumatism from which I had suffered for years even before I had stomach trouble, pained me worse than ever and until recently I was not only unable to walk without the use of a cane, but I was so weak at times I could hardly get out of bed. I tried many medicines but nothing helped me and I almost despaired of ever getting any better.

"Then Tanlac came along and in just a few days after I began taking this grand medicine, my appetite began to improve and in only a short time I was able to enjoy my meals and everything seemed to agree with me perfectly.

"My rheumatism is so much better and I have so much more strength I am now able to walk all about the house and up and down the stairs without my cane. Friends who have been so accustomed to seeing me walk with my cane are astonished when they see me now walking around without it.

"I will always praise Tanlac for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Ranger by Phillips Bros. and in Eastland by Butler Drug Co.—Adv.

Henpecked Hubby Hardly Would Say Rolling Pins Could Be too Light

EVERYWHERE, U. S., Aug. 5.—Hardware dealers are in a quandary. They are all carrying new stocks of rolling pins and the pins serve every culinary purpose desired. But sales of rolling pins have diminished.

And the dealers are wondering if there is truth in the funny papers after all.

The new rolling pins are made of aluminum—bright, shiny, easily cleaned, ornaments to every kitchen, and light. That's the trouble, the dealers say. They are light.

They are not too light for rolling out pie crust or biscuit dough, after a fashion that will cause a husband to sally forth to his daily stunt with sunshine in his soul.

But they are mighty light for any effective use when that same husband returns home to his domicile with a grouch or a hangover or a depleted pay envelope.

For years the rolling pin has been the traditional wife weapon of offense. But then the rolling pins were of toughened, hardened wood. A caress with the old type was as effective an argument as "You didn't talk that way to me before we were married," or "I'm going back to mother."

But now no husband dreads the gentle reproach of a feather-like weapon of aluminum.

Still the husbands are not satisfied. The fear exists among the male members of many households that the rolling pin is to be relegated to the museums along with the short sword, the arquebus, the halberd, and the morganstern.

They fear the butcher's cleaver is to be substituted.

Avers Big Ship Era Is Doomed; too Expensive

By J. PERCY WATSON,
International News Service Special Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The big ship era is doomed. Such is the only inference to be drawn from the statement of Mr. Harold A. Sanderson, the White Star Line chairman, to a party of distinguished guests on board the Olympic after it again had been made into a floating palace from a war-time troopship full of the honors of war.

Mr. Sanderson made it clear that the mammoth liner of today is no longer an economical proposition, that it costs too much to build, to maintain and to run. Of the "monsters" built by the White Star Line, he said, the Olympic was the one live lamb remaining, and would continue to be for a long time. The White Star Line was going to build to the extent of their money and their credit, but declared Mr. Sanderson emphatically, the people would have to be satisfied with something less luxurious than the Olympic.

Mr. Sanderson let us into the secret of this decision of the White Star directorate. The ships that had been sunk had to be replaced, he said, and if the White Star Line had never paid one penny dividend since the war, if it had accumulated all its earnings, and had in addition added the money received for the ships that had been lost, and the insurance money, the grand total would not enable them to replace the ships and to restore the company to its old position.

This decision of the White Star to concentrate on smaller ships has undoubtedly been come to after discussion with the Cunard Company, and effect has already been given to its new policy. The new liner Homeric, now building at Belfast to run in conjunction with the Olympic on the New York-Southampton service, is of only 33,000 tons, as compared with the Olympic's 46,000. All the new Cunarders on the stocks are also of appreciably smaller tonnage than the giant Aquitania, now completing reconditioning.

Modiste's Dream Artists' Despair; Poor Miss Venus!

(By International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 5.—Picture it to yourself—Venus de Milo walking the streets of London's fashion-plate West End, and jobless.

It might happen. That is, it would, inevitably, happen if the classic beauty of ages past came to life and followed in the footsteps of her modern sisters-in-beauty, who sell gowns by wearing them and making them things of loveliness.

Miss de Milo might find other work, but she could never be a Manequin in these days. It isn't so long since a bold male critic of the arts, past and present, voted her to be better fitted, physically, for a wet nurse than for a model of beauty by present standards. The dressmakers of the West End don't go so far as that, but they read her out of the beauty class, and uncompromisingly they do it, too.

"If Venus came to me for a job," said Mme. Hayward, of Bond street, "I could give her nothing to do except display tea gowns or cloaks. It would almost be impossible to dress her gracefully, except in loose-flowing draperies."

"The Venus of Milo would look a frump unless she were swathed in a gown of black velvet," testified Miss Howes, manageress of the Maison Alexander. "I agree with the artist who said that the dressmaker's dream is often the sculptor's nightmare."

"The slim, straight figure looks its best in modern clothes, whereas the classic figure would often look merely dowdy in a frock that was considered a masterpiece."

Venus, returned, enrolls in a school for stenographers.

"YOU CAN HAVE HIM, I DON'T WANT HIM"

International News Service.
ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 5.—Faced by two wives, each waiving a marriage certificate, J. J. Clackum, of Smyra, pleaded guilty to charges of bigamy. Considerable speculation in the court was caused as to the correct procedure when Wife No. 1 declared she was through with Clackum, and Wife No. 2 said she loved him and wanted him.

"You can have him," snapped Wife No. 1. "I've had him twenty years and I'm tired of him."

"I've got him," retorted No. 2.

"You didn't treat him right or you could have kept him."

"I didn't want to keep him, he was no good," shouted No. 1.

"I'll take him, ladies," interceded the judge.

Clackum, it was charged, married Mrs. Caroline Clackum twenty years ago, reared a family of four children, and two years ago abandoned her and married Mrs. Ona Clackum.

Clackum told the judge he wanted to be tried and get it over with. He did not intimate which, if either, of the wives he would take.

Shepherd Loses Ears in Fight with Lion

International News Service.
CHESTER, Cal., Aug. 5.—Guiseppe Martin, a mountain shepherd, is recovering from wounds sustained in an encounter with mountain lions, the details of which are more thrilling than fiction.

Recently Martin, at sunup, drove his flock of sheep toward the mountain summit. Mounting on a crag, from which he could watch their grazing, he was confronted by a mountain lioness. Drawing his revolver, the shepherd fired four shots as the lioness closed in on him. Her furious leap knocked the revolver from his hand, and, with a knife, he fought for his life.

It was an unequal battle and quickly he lost consciousness. Hours later he regained consciousness to find himself in the lion's cave, with her cubs feeding upon his ears and fingers. The lioness was stretched dead at the entrance of the cave.

Both of Martin's ears are gone, and his hands are badly mangled, but otherwise he has practically recovered from his experience.

Pepper Pemberton's Single Defeats Old Mates, 1 to 0

WELL FLUNG, FRANK. The weather having caught the games today, two will be played with the Eagles as a wind-up to the series tomorrow. This will leave one of the series to be played the next time the Eagles come our way. The Nitros will stay ahead of the Eagles with an even break in the double bill, but to make any gain on the league-leading Resorters, I should take two. Nick Carter and Smoke Boyer are probable choices against the best that Bugs Young can put out, choosing between Crowson, Holden, Gaines and Gomez Hill.

Table with columns: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. Rows for Abilene and Ranger players and their statistics.

Pepper Pemberton, formerly catcher of the Abilene Eagles, now doing the same for the Nitros, had the pleasure of dashing his old accomplices' hopes for a victory in a tight duel yesterday. He did it in the seventh stanza of an excellent matinee. This way: Jody Tate led off with a hot single through the box to center field. It passed to the port or left side of the Eagle slinger. He lapped it briefly, or smelled its smoke. Bunting fell to Lovey, who two innings before had been the first to nick a hit off Carl and the first player to get a base-hit out of the infield. Tommy's bunt was pushed toward first and placed Jody on second easily.

Dude Mooney considered two called strikes, the second verbally to the amount of $5 so adjudged by McDonald, the well rounded arbiter. Then Dude ticked one which Shaffer held, completing the whiff. Two down. In his first two appearances, Pemberton had fallen once before a close-in look of his aforesaid battery mate, Carl Hill, whose slants he has observed many times from behind the bat. His second time, he had hammered a single past Carl.

Now is the Time. And now was the time, as they type in the business colleges, for the good man to come to the aid of his party. He pumped a single to center. Bogus, who used to first base for the Eagles, and who has always been a favorite mark of the Nitro fans, came in to gather it on the hop. Jody Tate never hesitated at third, but took the chance of scoring.

Had the throw been good, the play at the plate would have been close, if not disastrous. As it was, Bogus threw ten feet wide of the latter and Jody romped over, standing up. Pepper took second on the throw-in.

It must have been a particularly satisfactory moment for Pepper, as he stood on second, dusting his trousers and contemplating Bugs Young, his old time manager.

He and Bugs, shower-bath rumor has it, fell out about the time that Pepper left the Eagles and the argument went as far as a joust at arms, or knuckles, in which Pepper had the better of it. Then Pepper in the exuberance of youth, for there's many a youngster as bald or baldier than Pepper, issued a broadcast defi at the Abilene club. About that time, or shortly before, or after, all diplomatic relations between Pepper and the Abilene baseball club were severed.

Pepper Gloats. So it must have been a happy moment for Pepper as he stood on second and contemplated his former manager and his former battery teammates, from the standpoint of the batter who had just slugged over the run to defeat them. It sometimes happens that way, does it not? Member Jack York and the Cisco Scouts: Yes, it sometimes does.

"Weak ordinances relative to supervision and unsystematic method of enforcement are held responsible by Inspector Scatterday for toleration of improper steps in the best dance halls in these western cities."

"I was assured that the Columbus ordinance virtually will be copied by both cities," she declared. "Welfare officials agreed that their own laws improperly cover the subject and leave numerous 'open holes' through which offenders are enabled to evade prosecution."

AW, SHERIFF! NOT REALLY AND TRULY? AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 4.-A moon-shine hunt was on. A posse of twelve deputy sheriffs and marshals, directed by Sheriff Hutchinson and Mayor Decker, was industriously following up trails.

One trail led to the property of Joe Hoffman, East Liberty. An extensive search, however, failed to unearth evidence of illicit activity.

Finally the sheriff noted a dog sniffing and pointing. "Making friends with it, he whispered 'rain jack' into the pup's ears. Then the canine pricked up his ears, wagged his tail and started on a trot for a thicket near Hoffman's home. Sheriff Hutchinson called to his men to follow. The "whiskey hound" led the posse to a mound. When the dog began scratching the officers followed suit, uncovering a big still in a dugout. "That damn dog no good," exclaimed Hoffman when the Mayor fined him $300 and costs.

EASTLAND LOSES FOURTH STRAIGHT SHUT OUT CONTEST

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES. EASTLAND, Aug. 5.-By losing the Mineral Wells game here today, 5 to 0, Eastland made its fourth consecutive game without getting a run across the plate, with thirty-five scoreless innings. Eastland was unable to hit Toner at the opportune moment.

Word, pitching for Eastland, heaved a good game up to the seventh, allowing only three hits, all scattered. He then blew up, allowing five straight hits that scored three runs. Manager Maloney made no attempt to take him out. The feature of the game was a catch by Payne.

Summary. Stolen bases: Stidelle 2, Nokes, Bristol, Rose; two-base hits, Dooley, Bratcher; struck out, by Word 4; by Toner 4; bases on balls, off Word 3; wild pitch, Toner; passed ball, Byers. Umpires Wakefield and Markley.

Two Eagles got lives on errors, both by Jim Galloway. He was not yet reacclimated at second base. He showed that he was getting used to the switch when he went behind second on Bogus in the final frame, knocked one down, grabbed it up and flung the big boy out. It was the best play of the game.

Homer Ezell had little chance to show flashy stuff, but handled his every chance cleanly. He moves fast, plays the ball easily and throws nicely. At bat, he took a good cut at it, which was all that most boys were doing at Carl Hill's curves.

Umpire McDonald, who has more curves than most pitchers appeared here for the first time. He would make a hit with the fans if he would indicate balls more clearly, with an arm signal. His called strikes are unmistakably done. They're done by showing the right arm forward, in an accusing manner directly at the batter.

He will not stand for back-fire. He slapped a $5 plaster and Bugs Youngs for mimicking him and then another on Mooney when Dude implied that something was wrong with the Mrs. eyesight on a called strike. He might have implied that Al was a blind whatcha-call-em. That's all $5 worth.

It's the first fine assessed a Nitro this season. Very little said, either. Jim whiffed, the first time up. Swung at the last one too. Doesn't do that very often, Jim doesn't.

Frank Hudspeth won his game with eighty-one pitched balls, an average of nine to the stanza. He pitched twenty-four called balls, seven of those in the sixth inning, in which it took fifteen pitched balls to retire the Eagles. The shortest frame was the last, with six pitched balls.

All in all if you like pitcher's battles, it was the best of the season. Two with the Eagles today.

BIG DRILLING OPERATIONS

IN STEPHENS COUNTY IN FALL
The Conside-Martin interests are planning a heavy drilling campaign in northwest Stephens county for this fall, according to information received here. The company owns about 10,000 acres located in the Ivan and Crystal Falls districts of Stephens county.

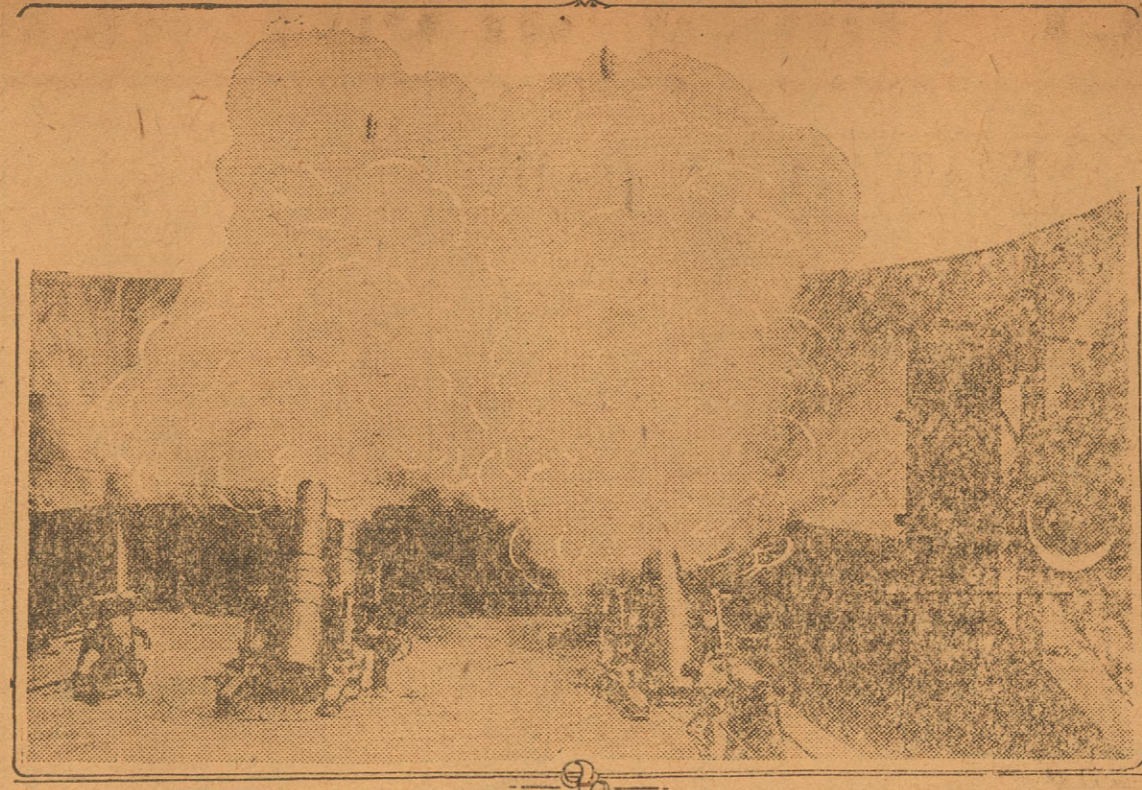

A well drilled near Ivan by Conside-Martin has proved a phenomenal producer. It came in during April of 1919 for better than 1,000 barrels and has never fallen below 800 barrels, which is about the rate at which it is flowing now.

The district running south and east from Ivan toward the Palo Pinto county line is due for immediate development by a number of big companies, according to local oil men.

With 218 kilometers of French railways now electrified, plans are under way for electrifying 6,015 kilometers, with an additional 1,923 kilometers under consideration.

STUDENTS FIRE UNCLE SAM'S BIG GUNS AT IMAGINARY ENEMY

Shells leaving big guns at Fort Monroe.

The photo was taken a few days ago during target practice at Fort Monroe, Va., participated in by students from over twenty military schools from all parts of the country. The firing was at moving targets with twelve-inch rifles and mortars and six-inch rifles.

Well Northwest of Here Is Now at 550 Barrels

Earnest No. 6 of the Sinclair Oil & Gas company, situated just south of the Eastland-Stephens county line and seven miles northwest of this city, is making 550 barrels from the shallow sand at a total depth of 1,905 feet. The well came in yesterday and is practically certain to show more production as soon as a cleaning out job is completed.

The Sinclair company has five producing oil wells and one good gas well on the Earnest tract. The shallow sand area along the county line has shown long life and consistent production and has afforded one of the best paying propositions in either county. When it is developed to its fullest extent, this region will be an oil field by itself with a larger daily run than many fields which receive extended mention in trade periodicals.

Sinclair's Rogers No. 2, in the Breckenridge district, is making 500 barrels from the line at 3,068 and has a chance for more production when completed.

SHALLOW OIL AREA NEAR STRAWN SEEMS LIKELY TO EXPAND

The possibility of picking up the Strawn shallow sand two and a half miles east of the present limit of shallow production north of Strawn is good at this time. W. W. Lang, of Milwaukee, and G. C. Randall of Dallas and Ranger have drilled a well to a depth of 1,546 on their 80-acre Robertson lease, six miles north and a little east of Strawn. The bit passed through twenty-three feet of hard-packed oil sand and the well is showing for small production.

The shallow sand on the Stuart and Hohertz tracts of the T. P. Coal & Oil company is encountered at something like the same depth, and Randall and Lang are confident that they have struck a rich oil-bearing formation. Their well will be shot within the next two or three days according to present plans, and the owners believe that an injection of nitro will loosen up the strata, which is noticeably "tight," and bring the well in for good production.

Such an extension of the Strawn field would be one of the most important developments of the year. The Strawn sand is long-lived and the shallow depth makes the drilling a very attractive proposition. The well was started as a shallow test and the owners did not intend to go below 1,800 feet, which is about the deepest level of the Strawn shallow pay in that area.

Big Gonzales Well Is Good Publicity Agent at Breck.

Special to The Times.
BRECKENRIDGE, Aug. 5.—The Gonzales well in the city of Breckenridge is proving to be a bear out, its history starting mildly with a 1,500 daily production and in three days developing into an 8,800 barrel well which the gauge showed last night. Not all of the oil, however is being saved, much of it is spattering over the sides of the flow tank, so great is the gas pressure. The well seems to rival the famous Stoker No. 2 and the Platana well on the Wood tract. The big gusher Gonzales is just in front of the Chamber of Commerce and persists in doing stunts for the advertisement of Breckenridge.

150-BARREL WELL NEAR SIPE SPRINGS TO BE SHOT

Puett No. 1 of the Pittsburgh Oil company, located six and a half miles north and a little west of Sipe Springs, is making 150 barrels with heads from 70 feet in the line. The well is shut down for orders and will probably be shot in an attempt to increase production.

Several good producers have been found in the shallow pool at Sipe Springs in the last week. Two wells on the Turnbull lease at the western edge of the field are reported in and making 40 barrels each.

BOY INJURED BY TRUCK IS LIKELY TO RECOVER

Elmer Platt, 15 years old, who was run down by a motor truck at Olden a few days ago and was injured internally has been operated upon by Drs. Weir and Swan and is reported as doing well with a fair chance of recovery.

Young Platt was standing at the rear of a truck of the Eastland Wholesale Grocery company and was in the act of picking something from the ground when the machine backed up and passed over his body.

Hunting Bargains in Ranger

Wise purchases are noted in trips through Ranger shops and described here, briefly, for the benefit of Times readers. You may learn where you may see those that meet your needs by calling the Times office, telephone 224, and telling the Shopping editor the paragraph which notes the bargain in which you are interested.

(By DAISY WATKINS)

I.
Some very dainty organdie frocks were seen at a local shop today. These frocks were on sale at half price and they were real bargains too. New and striking colors were used in very clever embroidery designs and they looked just the thing for these hot afternoons and evenings when it is so hard to look cool and dainty. Organdie is very serviceable for the summer months and one of these charming dresses would finish this season nicely and with a little freshening up it would come in handy as a beginner for next summer.

II.
I wonder why many sometimes spend $6.12 for railroad fare and nearly twice that much for other expenses in going to Fort Worth to hunt bargains. A shop in our own town has real gorgeously waists on sale for $5.45. These waists are made of the regular $3.50 yard grade of gorgeously and are prettily embroidered and beaded in the new designs. One of them would go very nicely with your last spring's suit when you begin wearing it in a few weeks as your new fall outfit. It is a good idea to take advantage of a bargain when it is so sure.

FIRE CHIEF COMES FROM CONVENTION; PLATOON PLAN BEST

Charles L. Buttomer, chief of the fire department, who, together with Mrs. Buttomer, have been attending the convention of fire engineers which was held at Toronto, Canada July 26 to 30, returned home last night. Mrs. Buttomer stopped off in St. Louis for a visit with friends.

Chief Buttomer said this morning that nearly 500 firefighters from the United States and Canada were in attendance at the meeting who, together with the representatives of the companies manufacturing fire fighting equipment and the wives of the firemen or other guests who accompanied them swell the total to about 1,000 persons.

Many new ideas for fire fighting were discussed, Chief Buttomer said, as well as rules for handling men. The convention, he asserted, went on record as favoring the platoon system for firemen.

This system is that instead of keeping a large force of firemen in attendance at all times to have two smaller forces who only work twelve hours each, but at the same time have every man subvert to duty when bad fires break out.

The manufacturers of fire fighting equipment, Chief Buttomer said, went to great lengths to entertain those attending the convention and as he remarked they had the goods to do it with.

John Pealy, chief of the fire department of Denver was chosen as president of the association for the coming year. It was decided to hold the 1921 convention in Atlanta, Ga.

W. F. R. & FT. W. R. R. MEN DENY REPORT OF RINGLING MERGER

Local officials of the Hamon & Kell railroad deny any knowledge of the stories that are in state papers that the Ringling road out of Eastland would connect with that of the Hamon & Kell near Breckenridge with the object of using it as a common line into that city.

J. M. Strupper, general freight and passenger agent for Hamon & Kell interests with headquarters in Ranger, when asked concerning the project said that he had heard the rumors but had not received their verification.

ETHEL CLAYTON IN "THE LADDER OF LIES"

The clever American actress, Ethel Clayton, plays the main role in "The Ladder of Lies," a feature drama which was exhibited at the Lamb theater yesterday and is billed again for today. The play presents just enough of a problem to arouse speculation as to whether a lie is ever justified, even when told to shield a friend or a loved one.

Miss Clayton takes the part of a very successful illustrator in New York city. Her work brings her in contact with a firm of young book publishers. One of them is engaged to a fickle girl of shallow mind and character, whom he thinks is "a divinely mysterious child." This girl engages in a flirtation with a society idler of notorious reputation. In order to shield her friend, the book publisher, from the knowledge of the girl's perfidy, the illustrator accepts the odium of a rather compromising situation.

After her friend marries this girl, the illustrator falls in love with his partner, a man who detests a falsehood and holds that "one lie makes a liar."

The action of the story is well handled and Miss Clayton's work is fresh and appealing. The picture is one to be enjoyed.

LEPER CURE REPORTED FOUND BY HAWAIIAN

International News Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 5.—From the leper colony at Hawaii comes a story direct from Honolulu of a new discovery for the dreaded malady of leprosy.

The new method of healing the disease which has baffled science down through the ages is known as the "Dean" process.

At the Kallhi leper receiving station are thirty patients who, it is said, will within a short time walk out of the hospital and return to their homes, cleansed.

The patients have undergone the treatment through the chaulmoogra oil process, which is the result of successful experiments by Dr. Arthur L. Dean, president of the University of Hawaii, and Dr. J. T. McDonald. Through this process the essential remedial elements of the oil have been separated and are used for injection purposes.

It is stated that the Hawaiian board of health, as well as the two physicians, have received letters from all parts of the world asking for information regarding the new method.

"VIOLENTLY" IS GOOD.

International News Service. GRIDLEY, Cal., Aug. 5.—A dislocated shoulder and three broken ribs were sustained by Margaret Nores, seventeen, recently, when she sneezed violently.

WINNEPEG.—Lee An, a laundryman of these parts, is either going to invent a motorcycle that understands the Chinese language or he's going to quit riding.

A day or two ago when a circus was in town and the streets were more crowded than usual, he was out for a spin on his new power cycle. Something went wrong. Twist the levers as he might, talk as kidly to the machine as he could, that motorcycle would not slow down. It went faster.

Such was the testimony painfully extracted from Mr. Lee in police court when he was arraigned for speeding.

Mr. Lee wanted to know what else he could do but stay on the seat when the machine kept going faster and faster.

"Why didn't you stop your engine?" Magistrate Macdonald inquired.

Lee On never thought of that. Ten minutes of conversation between Mr. Lee and Wong Lu, interpreter brought forth this. During the talk the magistrate suggested that an interpreter be obtained for the interpreter. A fine of $8 was imposed by the judge.

"Z&—&—&—" said Mr. Lee.
