Churches Will Hold Special Easter Rites

Story Of Resurrection To Be Told In Prayer, Service And Song

The story of the risen Lord will be told in prayer, sermon and song in Big Spring churches Sunday as worshippers gather to commemorate the resurrection of Jesus in services of Easter Day.

Observance of the Holy Day here will be general, with practically all churches devoting special sermons and music to the Easter theme.

Sunrise services will be held in at least two churches. A sunrise memorial service is scheduled at the First Christian church for 6:30 a. m., and young people of the First Methodist church have requested worshippers to gather by 6 o'clock to join with them in sunrise communion rites.

Evangelistic Campaign

In the evening, an Easter cantata, Nolte's "Christ Victorious" will be given by musicians of the First Christian church the program starting at 7:45 o'clock.

First services of an evangelistic campaign will be held Sunday evening at the First Methodist church, with Rev. R. L. Flowers as the speaker. A visiting speaker, Bryce Twitty of Dallas, chairman of the Texas Baptist Pastors' and Laymen's conference, will be at the Fourth Street Baptist church at the evening hour.

Forrest R. Waldrop, minister of the Church of Christ, has announced a special Easter topic and Easter music at that church Sunday morning. Similar Easter worship will mark the day at St. Mary's Episcopal church.

Easter sermons and music for the occasion will be heard at the First Baptist church, St. Paul Lutheran church and the First Presbyterian.

Cantata To Be Presented At Christian Church

The Easter cantata, "Christ Victorious," by Nolte, will be presented at the First Christian church Sunday evening. The program is under direction of Herschel Summerlin and Virginia Lela Ogden will be the pianist.

Following is the program:

Chorus—"Rejoice and Be Glad," choir.

Bass solo—"Ride On In Majesty," J. C. Millburn.

Chorus, alto and tenor duet—"Go to Dark Gethsemane," Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Summerlin and choir.

Tenor solo and chorus—"The Hour Is at Hand," E. B. Bethel and choir.

Quartet, bass solo, men's chorus—"There Is a Green Hill Far Away," Stella Schubert, Mrs. Marchbanks, Steve Baker, W. B. Martin, men's chorus and choir.

Alto solo—"The Glory of the Cross," Mrs. J. C. Ernest.

Tenor and bass duet—"How Calm and Beautiful the Morn'g," R. W. Ogden and C. M. Shaw.

Chorus—"Joybells of Easter," choir.

Duet and trio, soprano, alto and tenor—"Hear the Story," Mrs. H. L. Bohannon, Mrs. K. D. Neely and J. D. Holmes.

Chorus—"This Is the Day," choir.

Men's chorus, women's chorus and choir—"Sing a Hymn of Gladness."

Soprano solo—"My Redeemer Lives," Mrs. G. C. Schurman.

Chorus, duet for soprano and alto—"Lift Your Glad Voices," choir.

Mrs. L. M. Brooks and Mrs. R. W. Ogden.

Finale—"O Lord, Thou Art My God," choir.

VFW Groups Here Tonight

State Commander Will Address Gathering At Scenic Park

Headed by E. E. Wiseman of El Paso, state department commander, a large number of West Texas members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be in Big Spring this evening for a district session. Representatives of VFW posts and auxiliaries from Abilene, Sweetwater, Baird and San Angelo are expected to join with the local units in the meeting.

A program of speaking and entertainment will be given at the mess hall of the CCC camp at Scenic Mountain state park following a dinner to be served by the local organizations. Wiseman will make the principal address.

Visitors will be registered at the Settles hotel from 8 to 7 p. m., and the program at the park will start at 8 o'clock.

Fred H. Woodward of Crane will preside for the program. With Wiseman, speakers will be Leland Martin of Fortson and J. T. Brooks of Big Spring.

Students In Sweetwater For Contests

First Events Of League Meet Held; Others Set Saturday

Big Spring high school's representatives were in Sweetwater today for first of the literary and athletic events being staged in the annual district interscholastic league meet. Others will go to Sweetwater Saturday for the final day of contests.

Competing in the tennis matches being held today were Jimmy Ford, Jim Brinkham, Preston Sligh and Jimmy Myers. Representing the high school in boys' debate were H. C. Btrris, Jr., and Sam Atkins. Jr. They engaged in preliminary rounds at Sweetwater today.

In literary contests scheduled for Saturday, Jean Hostetter will compete in girls' declamation; Gerald Anderson in boys' declamation; Sam Mellinger in extemporaneous speech, and Yonnie Martin in junior girls' declamation.

Also competing at Sweetwater tomorrow will be the local entry in the district one-act play contest. "The Big Spring production," "The Medicine Show," will be staged with plays from seven other towns—Merkel, Sweetwater, Roby, Abilene, Colorado, Fluvanna, and Stamford. "The Medicine Show" goes on the boards at the Sweetwater municipal auditorium at 11:15 Saturday morning. After presentations during the day, the two highest ranking plays will be staged again Saturday night for the selection of a district entry in the regional meet.

Appearing in "The Medicine Show," written by Stuart Walker, are Maurice Montgomery, W. T. Bolt, Franklin Robinson and Rommy Reeves. The cast is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Jordan.

Two hundred new stalls will be built at Tanforan racetrack, near San Francisco.

Weather

BIG SPRING AND VICINITY—Fair tonight and Saturday.

WEST TEXAS—Fair, frost in north portion, slightly warmer in Panhandle; Saturday fair.

Taxes, Relief Loom As Big Party Issues

Revenue Program Brings A Partisan Fight; WPA Under Fire

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—Taxes and relief, the two major measures blocking adjournment of congress, shaped up today as probable important issues in the forthcoming presidential campaign.

President Roosevelt's new $799,500,000 tax program was introduced in a bitter partisan fight which republican leaders predicted would be carried into the campaign, even after its expected passage by congress.

While democratic members of the house ways and means committee hammered the tax program to finance farm aid and soldiers' bonus into shape for housing appropriations next week, the house appropriations committee considered the president's $1,500,000,000 work relief request.

The work-relief program is under fire from republicans and some democrats. Efforts to earmark or increase the appropriation are expected.

Big Victory Reported As Duce Spurns All Talk Of Peace

ROME, April 10. (UP)—Rebellious Galla tribesmen who recently joined Italian forces inflicted upwards of 2,000 casualties on Ethiopian warriors in a battle south of Lake Ashangi. Marshal Pietro Badoglio informed Rome today.

News of the battle came as an informed source revealed that Italy is determined to complete disarmament of Ethiopia in order to turn the East African invasion into a program of police work, pending definite settlement of boundaries and Italian spheres of influence.

Planes bombed Sasa Basha, Doggeh Bur and other concentration points. Anti-aircraft fire and a heavy rain failed to halt the fascist attack.

Italy's delegate to the league of nations last night declined to discuss with a conciliatory representative terms under which Mussolini would halt his African warfare.

Salvador de Madariga, Spanish delegate to the league who was instructed to obtain the terms, received a cold reception from Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the fascist representative.

Plainly incensed over the refusal of the league committee of thirteen to empower Madariga to go to Rome for the conversations, Aloisi said he had no instructions whatsoever on the war settlement question.

To Send Delegate After Easter

Italian sources reported Aloisi told Madariga:

"It is rather for one to ask you your intentions than for you to ask me mine. The chief of our government has announced he is ready to send a delegate to Geneva after Easter but he also suggested he would be glad to see you in Rome before the Geneva talks begin. Naturally, we would like to know your answer."

Wildcat Six Miles North Of Garden City Is Drilling In Lime

Fleetborn Oil Corp. No. 1 F. C. Dodson, interesting Glasscock county wildcat 6 miles north of Garden City, was reported drilling at 2,490 feet in hard lime Friday morning.

Leasing activities in that area have quickened since the test had 2275-85 feet in lime and a small amount of gas from 2,371-90 feet. Friday it was reliably reported that acreage as far south as Sterling county had been leased.

South of Production

The test is several miles south of nearest production in the west extension of the Howard-Glasscock pool.

Shell Oil Corp. has made a location on the McDowell ranch just south of the unitized block which the Moore Bros.-Loffland Bros. No. 1 McDowell test was drilled in Glasscock county.

Completions this week include Continental Oil Co. No. 5 Eason in section 6, block 32, T-2-S, T&P survey. After treating with 1,500 gallons of acid it showed 1,272 barrels daily pumping. Sinclair-Frairie Oil Co. No. 32 Dodge in section 11, block 30, T-1-S, T&P survey had an initial production of 525 barrels a day flowing through casing at 2,536 feet. It was shot with 700 quarts from 2,740-2,525 feet.

Wooten & Ellis Prod. Co. No. 1-D, Schriver in section 4, block 32, T-2-S, T&P survey, was abandoned through three strings of tools in the hole. Total depth was 2,431 in lime and it had a slight showing of oil at 2,247-59, and 2,295 to 2,305 feet, and 2,387-93 feet.

Dust Rolls Across Texas, Into Gulf

(By The Associated Press)

Thick dust, 400 miles wide and as high as 16,000 feet, rolled across Texas overnight.

San Antonio reported the worst dust of the season, and points as far east as Shreveport were invaded by the choking dust pall. The northern and western sections of the state were hard hit last night, although the air was quieter today and skies were clearing. It was reported that high winds were carrying the dust into the Gulf of Mexico.

The West Texas area yesterday experienced the worst of the choking dust storms of the season, and the storm lasted until late in the night. There was little wind at most points.

GOES TO STAMFORD ON EXHIBIT WORK

W. T. Strang, Jr., chamber of commerce manager, left Friday morning for Stamford where he was to attend a conference of West Texas chamber of commerce officials in charge of the all-West Texas exhibit planned for the frontier centennial celebration at Fort Worth.

He said that the party would be concluded Friday evening and that he will return here Saturday.

INSPECTS WORK ON LOCAL WATER SURVEY

W. N. White of the U. S. Geological Survey Friday was inspecting the WPA underground water survey project under the supervision of Howard Samuel.

Samuel, also attached to the U. S. Geological Survey, has been directing tests on all wells in the south part of the county. Recently he has been making a search for an underground water supply for the east Howard county oil pool.

Blue Love Bird Developed

GEELEONG, Australia (UP)—The objective of hundreds of bird fanciers has been achieved by A. Anderson, a young factory worker here. He has produced a blue "budgerigar" with yellow wings.

These little Australian parakeets, or love birds, have been the subject of experiment for years.

Pick Committeemen For Farm Program

Willis Winters, W. T. Bly To Serve On County Group

Cotton producers of both the east and west districts of Howard county selected six community committeemen Thursday afternoon in a special election preparatory to the launching of the federal soil conservation program.

Willis Winters, Vincent, Albert Heckler, Luther, and C. F. DeVaney, Coahoma, were named committeemen from the east district. W. T. Bly, Knott, Arthur Stallings, Lomax, and T. M. Robinson were chosen by west district producers.

Winters and Bly were declared chairmen of their districts, thus automatically becoming members of the county committee. Alternates named were Glenn Cantrell and Walter Bishop for the east district and L. H. Thomas and Roy Bates for the west district.

Quarters For Visting Band Boys Needed

Meagre response from an appeal for housing accommodations for 1,500 high school band players who will be here next week-end left the problem still unsolved Friday.

Two developments, however, served to relieve the pressure of the situation. I. Fidele, national park service inspector, granted permission for the use of CCC barracks. In a telephone conversation with W. T. Strang, Jr., chamber of commerce manager, Maj. Robert Cray, district quartermaster, said that as many as 500 cots and bedding for that number could be borrowed from the army.

Meanwhile, the chamber renewed its appeal to residents to help provide beds for the visiting players. It appeared that at least 500 will have to be placed in private homes for one night.

The annual West Texas high school band convention opens here next Friday and will be concluded Saturday evening.

Some To Be Housed At CCC Barracks, But More Room Required

SENeca, Kans. (UP)—Two divorces from the same man in nine days with no intervening marriage is the record of Mrs. Ella Marcella Connel. After the first divorce was granted, Judge C. W. Ryan discovered the petition was filed one day short of the required 90 days and therefore invalid. A second petition was filed and another divorce granted.

WITH 60 DAYS TO GO, LONDON HEADS LIST OF GOP NOMINEES

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—The republican national convention will be in session in just two months and probably will choose a presidential nominee from among four men—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Idaho, Frank Knox of Illinois, or Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

With 60 days to go, Landon is leading the pack on the basis of national polls and surveys.

Borah got away this week on a precarious political parlay in which his presidential primary victory in Wisconsin he must add similar successes in Ohio and Illinois if he is to remain in the running. Illinois votes April 14. Ohio votes May 12.

Knox and Vandenberg appear to be trailing the governor and the Idaho senator. Knox campaigned the nation through the winter months but without creating persuasive evidence of a popular groundswell in his behalf. In contrast to these surface indications are predictions of some well-informed republicans that Knox will go to the June 9 republican national convention in Cleveland with an imposing bloc of delegates. Knox opposes Borah in next week's Illinois primary and the loser probably will be considered out of the race.

Vandenberg continued today to insist he was not a candidate for republican presidential nomination or anything else this year. There fore it may be mere coincidence that his senate floor strategy has been to lead the only effective congressional attack on the new deal. He has been firing facts, figures and inquiry at new deal ramshackle Vandenberg collected and demanded explanation of evidence that some local democratic leaders were making campaign contribution demands upon federal relief administration appointees. He persuaded the senate to refuse to appropriate for the Florida ship canal and a couple of similar but less spectacular projects. His senate tactics have approved a resolution to that end, and Vandenberg is ready to support it on the floor of the senate.

Borah's campaign for the republican nomination carried its first major hurdle Tuesday when the senator won at least 22 of the 24 Wisconsin convention delegates against opposition of a regular slate of candidates which would have gone to Cleveland unopposed if they had been named.

W. H. Richardson Of Austin Appointed To Succeed Baker

AUSTIN, April 10. (UP)—W. H. Richardson of Austin was due to take the oath of office today as the new member of the public safety commission. He was appointed yesterday by Gov. James V. Alfred as successor to D. D. Baker of Seguin, who resigned.

Appointment of Richardson apparently quieted the discussion which had arisen in the safety department. Alfred previously had persuaded J. W. McCormick not to resign as senior ranger captain. Baker's disagreement with the other commissioners was culminated by promotion of L. G. Phares from acting to permanent director of the new department. When the promotion was announced, Baker resigned and McCormick considered stepping out.

Richardson, prominent University of Texas student and member of the school's athletic council, is president and general manager of a hardware company here.

"He was not an applicant for the place," said Governor Alfred, "but I insisted upon his acceptance of the draft or duty, and he has accepted."

EMBASSY 'BLOCKADE' CHARGES HEIGHTEN RUSSO-JAP TENSION

MOSCOW, April 10. (UP)—The soviet government charged today a "veritable blockade" against its embassy in Tokyo, straining the already aggravated relations between Japan and Russia.

Moscow alleged all Japanese in the embassy had been arrested on the grounds that an espionage nest had been uncovered. The soviet correspondent in Tokyo reported that a news agency bureau was raided by four Japanese patriots and the correspondents ordered to leave the country.

Mutual Aid Pact For All American Nations Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—General Jorge Ubcio, president of Guatemala today proposed cooperation between American nations in pledging mutual assistance in case of foreign aggression.

His plan calls for all nations in Central and South America to adhere to the Monroe doctrine. It would be presented for consideration at the All-American peace conference at Buenos Aires this summer.

PLAN REVISIONS IN FARM TENANT BILL

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—Chairman Jones (D-Tex) of the house agriculture committee today said he planned to call a meeting of the committee shortly to consider dramatic modifications of the Bankhead farm tenant bill, which the senate passed last June and which has been left dormant since.

The bill would create a Farm Home corporation with 50 million dollars capital stock and a borrowing power of a billion dollars.

MAY 1 FIXED AS DATE FOR ABC CLUB DANCE

Club problems were discussed by the American Business Club in its regular weekly meeting Friday at the Settles hotel.

Date for a club-sponsored dance was set for May 1.

Dean Miller entertained the club with a tap dance number. He was accompanied by Miss Helen Daley, club pianist.

John Spurrer was introduced as a new member. Guests were Rowland Schwarzenbach, Glenn Golden, Jack Bull and Paul McDaniels.

Men Arrested At Homes In Surprise Raid

Former 'Iron Man' And Followers Sent By Plane To Brownsville

MEXICO CITY, April 10. (UP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, for eleven years Mexico's "iron man," was arrested today in a surprise move by the government.

Three of his principal advisors were arrested also. All four were placed aboard a plane carrying them to forced exile in the United States.

Federal troops and secret agents went into the homes of the four men at midnight to make the arrests. Others taken included Luis Morones, former minister of the Interior; Luis Leon, former minister of agriculture; former Governor Guajajuato; and Rafael Melchor Ortega.

Enter At Brownsville

The plane landed at Brownsville at 12:50 p. m. United States officials met the exiles' plane and cleared the men through entry regulations as quickly as possible. No difficulty was expected if their papers are in order.

At San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Josephine Torrebianca, Calles' daughter, prepared to welcome the exile if he seeks refuge there. In his previous absence from Mexico, Calles resided in California.

Calles and his former aides were held under guard throughout the night.

The arrests followed publication of charges by the left wing chamber of deputies that Calles was responsible for the bombing of a train in Vera Cruz Monday, when twelve were killed.

The leftists also claimed he was fomenting anti-government agitation in an attempt to provoke intervention by the United States.

For four days past Calles has been ill bed at his Santa Barbara ranch just outside the capital.

OLYMPIC SCOUTS EYE KANSAS RELAY ATHLETES

Professional Golf Field Not Open To Women, Says Young Patty Berg

SEARCH IS MADE FOR SUPER-MEN

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 10. (AP)—The search for super-men to represent the United States in the 1936 Olympic decathlon tests at Berlin begins in earnest at the 14th annual Kansas Relays here the week end of April 18.

It was this outdoor track and field carnival, the Midwest's major cinder-path premier each spring, which cradled all three U. S. decathlon stars who sprang to the color with marked success at Los Angeles in 1932.

The all-Kansas delegation four years ago was headed by James A. Bausch, the "Jersey Jim" who swept in from his Kansas Relays triumph to win the Olympic 10 day event test and establish a new world record.

The other members of the 1932 U. S. trio trained by Brutus K. Hamilton, an Olympic decathlon contender himself in 1920 and 1924, were Wilson (Buster) Charles of the Haskell Indian Institute here, and Clyde Coffman, then of the University of Kansas, Hamilton, then the Kansas track coach, now is head of the same department at the University of California.

Coffman Still Available... Wearing the colors of the Kansas City A. C. Coffman is the only one of the three still in competition. He won the Kansas Relays title last year, with Loyett Burk of the University of Oklahoma finishing a good second in his first attempt in big time competition.

Burk, a hurdling and javelin specialist, is looked upon as a big threat to other aspirants for places with the decathlon delegation to Berlin this year. Like Coffman, whose forte is the pole-vault, Burk lacks the heft that Bausch carried with emphasis in the weight events. The bulky Bausch was also an expert pole-vaulter, scaling more than 15 feet. His principal weakness was the distance run. Other events will catch attention from the scouts on the lookout for Olympic material when the hopefuls attempt to surpass the record-shattering orgy that produced five new marks in the various relay events and three in the special

'BOY WONDER' WHO TOPPED TRAPSHOOT FIELD IN 1930 SEEKS NEW TITLE—IN GOLF

By FELIX McKNIGHT (Associated Press Sports Writer) DALLAS, April 10. (AP)—Six years after he scored one of America's most amazing sports triumphs by winning the Grand American hand trapshoot title at the age of 14, Rufus King of Wichita insists it was all a "big fluke."

RUFUS KING

The slender, modest chap bested a field of 963 gunners to capture the most sought of all trapshoot titles at Vandalia, O., in 1930.

His gun is rusty now and seldom does he take shots at the clay pigeons—but his golf clubs are bright and shiny and he gives promise of conquering a new field.

Rufus, now a 20-year-old student at Southern Methodist university, blanches when he talks of the day when, firing a gun almost as large as he was, he beat some of the world's finest trapshooters.

"Veteran" of One Year... "That was one of sports' biggest flukes," he tells you. "You know, I had been shooting only a year when my dad took me to the handicap. I had never broken more than 93 birds before in my life."

"The day of the big handicap, same and I argued with dad to let me enter. Finally he agreed, paid my entry fee and I started shooting. Well, I was awfully lucky, taking those 97 birds. "Incidentally, I won $2,000 in prize money — and dad at first didn't want to pay my $25 entry fee."

do trapshooting," says Rufus. "I guess I haven't shot at pigeons more than twice in the last two years. Golf is my game now."

He created a sensation at the 1935 national amateur golf tournament when he tore into Champion Lawson Little in the first round, fired four birdies on the first six holes and finally fell before Little's great closing rally.

BABE RUTH TO GOLF ON OPENING DAY OF SEASON

Former Sultan of Swat Cold To Baseball Talk

By TOM PAPOCKI (Associated Press Sports Writer) Babe Ruth was teeing up his ball for a drive. A short distance away, his former teammate, the New York Yankee, was busily engaged in training for the coming pennant race. But the Babe wasn't giving them a thought, much less taking the time or trouble to drop around to see how they looked. As a matter of fact, the big fellow was cold to any baseball talk.

"Do you plan on taking in one of the opening games this year?" he queried. "Hell, no!" he thundered back. "If it's a nice day you can find me events for individuals last year.

Winners of six 1935 special events indicate they will defend. Add Olympic Events... The Kansas carnival, in common with several other meets, has been authorized as a preliminary try-out for Olympic team contenders, with several events peculiar to the Olympics added to the program.

These include the 400-meter hurdles, 3000-meter steeplechase, and the hop, step and jump... Indiana, which sent the record-breaking medley relay quartet here last April, will be represented again, along with Illinois, Minnesota and Northwestern, also of the Big Ten conference. The Big Six and western schools have nominees ready for the starter's gun.

In the special events, Elwyn Dees, Kansas, who set a shotput mark of 51 feet 8 1/2 inches last year, is the only 1935 Kansas Relays champion out of competition. Cunningham Returns... Glenn Cunningham, the world-record miler, will return for another appearance before the old home crowd on the same track where he was handed a startling defeat by Glen Dawson of Tulsa, Okla., last spring in the comparatively slow mile time of 4:17.4.

Archie San Roman of the Emporia (Kas.) Teachers, intercollegiate mile champion and winner of the 1500-meter here last year in 3:57.2, indicates he will defend, as will Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist university, who set a new mark of 14.5 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles a year ago.

Other contenders are Mark Panther, Iowa javeliner; Duward Crooms of Emporia Teachers, 100-yard dash winner the last two years; Ray Noble, Kansas pole-vaulter, and Charles Pitts, Kansas broad-jumper.

Iowa, which shattered two relay marks last year, will be back with two members of the record-breaking teams—Briggs and Dooley—still running. The referee is T. N. Melcalf of the University of Chicago, a member of the committee on selection for the American Olympic track and field team.

out playing golf somewhere." Babe Ruth playing golf on opening day! There ought to be a law! It's Ruth-less Now... For the first time since "way back in 1915 when the Babe was a rookie pitcher with the Boston Red Sox the curtain will be run up on the major league baseball season without the presence of the most colorful figure the game has developed.

It's sort of shocking — this thought of a Ruth-less opening day. The big slugger, gloriing in the colorful inaugural ceremonies, generally came through with one of his prodigious home run wallops. He was always at his best on dress-up occasions.

The question quite naturally comes to mind—just what type of ball player is destined to step into the role of national baseball hero? There will be an idol—you can safely bet on that. There always has been. It's part of the game.

Will this new idol be a slugger? One who's batting feats will pale the Babe's efforts to insignificance? If so it will have to be a new and as yet unused hero. The crop of heavy hitters now operating in the big leagues—the Gehrigs, the Foxes, the Greenbergs, the Traskys, the Bergers and their like—may beat Ruth's amazing record of 60 home runs in a single season; but that does not mean that they will be proclaimed "another Babe Ruth" or make the Sultan of Swat's great reputation suffer. For one reason, they had their chance to outshine Ruth while he was still an active player—and they failed. For another, time is certain to magnify the Babe's hero, ball-batting feats.

Dimaggio in Line... The chances are the pendulum will swing the other way and a defensive player—a great pitcher, perhaps, will earn the popular acclaim. If Dizzy Dean had come along a few years later he might well have been the man. A great pitcher withoodles of color, Dean's antics and chatter were amusing for a time but grew a bit wearisome after too much repetition. Perhaps the baseball public will take a great all-around ball player to their hearts... a player of Ty Cobb's stamp. But Ty Cobbs don't come along more than once in a lifetime any more than do Babe Ruths. If Joe Dimaggio, starting his first major leagues campaign, lives up to the great reputation which preceded him, he is a logical candidate for the hero role.

It's all a matter of conjecture. Go ahead and think about it—your guess is likely to be as good or better than ours.

Optimism Prevails... Baseball is no longer "in its infancy" as the late Charlie Ebbetts, Brooklyn's owner, was constantly proclaiming, but it is still a thriving youngster. The owners of most clubs enter upon the new season with high hopes. Some of them have spent considerable money in increasing the seating capacity of their parks. There has been less talk of resorting to night baseball in the majors—another encouraging sign for the optimistic minded.

At the teams go to the post for the starting gun it is interesting to note that there have been no managerial changes since last fall. The same leaders who finished in the saddles when the season closed will endeavor to pilot their charges to the head of the procession.

NO MONEY TO ATTRACT THE FEMS

MINNEAPOLIS, April 10. (AP)—Patty Berg, youngest girl ever chosen to serve on the United States Curtis Cup golf squad, which essays to defend this international challenge against the attack of Britain's best linkswomen on May 6 at Glenelg, Scotland, has some very positive ideas about professionalism.

Patty would turn pro, she asserted recently in Coral Gables, Fla., only if so many other women traded glory for gold that the amateur tournament field for women became virtually extinct.

"I don't think this will ever come to pass," said red-haired, freckled Patty, just turned 18. "For one thing, the women aren't going into the pro field on a large scale until something like the same amount of money now available to the men is put up for the women."

Room for a Few... "Endorsing clubs and staging exhibition matches for the sporting goods companies form the main earning field for the woman professional," said Patty. "Obviously there aren't enough companies to make this line of work profitable to more than a few women professionals."

The philosophy of the midwestern high school lass was that golf's rights are too jittery, victory too uncertain, for a player to pin his livelihood upon the game.

"You can never tell when your game will sour on you," she observed. "I play a lot of golf because it happens to be my best, as well as my favorite sport. I'd turn pro if that were necessary for me to continue playing in all the best tournaments, but I'm not interested in carrying out a professional career in the game."

"As for my business career, I'm going to have me a store. I want to run a business. I'll go to college, preferably one where I can try for the school golf team, and study subjects to fit myself for the business world. I want a woman's clothing shop, but if I can't make a go of that, I'll branch out and sell anything, even groceries."

"A Vicious Circle"... Patty believed there was one broad step that might be taken toward professionalizing women's golf on a major scale—a Women's National Open tourney, comparable to that prime classic of men's golf.

"This step seems hardly justifiable, though, until there are a lot more women pros," she explained, "and so it's all a vicious circle."

The Minnesota sensation fared well on her Florida sojourn, winning two of her five tournament efforts, playing in the final of two others and reaching the semi-final of another.

It was in the Palm Beach women's tournament that Patty probably had her greatest satisfaction of the winter, although this wasn't one of the contests she won. It was there that she defeated Mrs. Glenn Collett Vane of Merion, Pa., women's national champion. Mrs. Vane stopped Patty in the final of the national at Interlachen, Minneapolis, last summer, and ironically the 3-and-2-licking Patty administered at Palm Beach was in the same proportions as her loss to the Pennsylvania veteran.

Patty won the championship of golf club champions at Punta Gorda and the Miami Biltmore women's invitation at Coral Gables. She reached the final at Palm Beach and Ormond Beach, but lost in the semi-final, victim of the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, at St. Augustine.

Her teammates hoped the stubby, thick-limbed Patty would "enough" over-rising star, 19-year-old Pam Barton, as her opponent in the Curtis Cup competition.

Aggs, Owls Meet In Dual Track, Field Meet Today... COLLEGE STATION, April 10.—With dope sheets saying they'll lose, the Texas Aggies will meet the Rice Institute Owls here this afternoon in a dual track and field meet. The Aggies lost 47-75 to the University of Texas Longhorns at Austin the past week and figure they won't be able to do much better than that against the Owls.

The Aggies were able to build up only seven first places in the Longhorn meet, and the Rice Owls, with Bill Wallace in both the low and high hurdles and Jess Petty in the discus, was expected to chop down at least three of these. Wallace, Petty, "Smoky" Brothers in the quarter-mile and half-mile, and Dave Weichert in the pole vault are expected to give the Owls a clinch on 30 points, a handicap the Aggies have small hopes of overcoming.

Earthquake Birdie Matches Butterfly Stroke In Tee Tales... By HENRY SUPER (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, April 10. (UP)—Stack your own clubs in a corner and listen to some golfing stories that seem incredibly true.

Here are a few tales recorded by J. Eckert Goodman, Jr., in the Sports Illustrated and the American Golfer:

"On Nov. 18, 1929, James Cash, Jr., of Omaha, a Harvard law student, teed off from the 16th hole of the Belmont Springs country club, Belmont, Mass. His drive was long and straight and when young Cash reached the green, he found his ball hugging the rim of the cup. He reached down, preparing to pick it up and score a birdie two for the hole. There was a sudden trembling of the earth. Cash hesitated. He could hardly believe his eyes when he saw his ball quiver, move slightly forward and suddenly drop into the cup. An earthquake, an almost unheard-of thing in New England, had enabled him to score a hole in one."

Butterfly Swoops Down... Does that one sound hard to believe? Here's how a butterfly helped a golfer:

"Jack Ackerman was playing his third stroke in a game with W. J. Little, a professional at the Bay of Quinte club of Belleville, Ontario, in 1934. His ball came to rest on the lip of the cup. As he was about to pick it up, a yellow butterfly swooped down, striking the ball with enough force to drop it in the hole."

A similar incident is recorded according to the magazine, in the London Globe of 1909. A bee, mistaking a golf ball for a white flower, lighted, discovered its mistake, and thereupon in its disgust "stung" the ball into the cup.

Another incident in which an animal helped occurred to an Isaac B. Dunlap who was playing a four-some at the Kansas City country club.

"On the 550-yard tenth hole," says the author, "he lost his ball. Then, Dunlap related: 'Finally one of the party discovered a small hole in the ground. Looking down into it, he saw the lost ball resting safely on the back of a frog. Someone thought hastily of the idea of making the frog produce the ball on the green. We tickled the frog with a twig; he attempted to jump; that threw the ball from the hole and gave my partner a good lie for his next shot. We won that hole.'"

Played in Little America... A few other golfing oddities: In Little America, some of Admiral Byrd's men chipped balls amid the piled-up ice floes... English army officers have course laid out in Razmak, which is in disputed territory between India and Afghanistan. Caddies on this course are army subalterns who carry rifles for protection against sniping tribesmen who lurk in the bushes along the fairways.

Probably the worst conditions under which golf can be played are to be found on a course near Melbourne, Australia. It's holes were hewn out of the solid jungle by aboriginal prisoners. Wallabies and bandicoots (giant rats and dwarf kangaroos) constantly dig and scratch up the turf in search of roots. Thousands of land crabs from the mangrove swamps that line it emerge to seize a ball that has just come to rest, carrying off to their holes. Hawks and kites wheel overhead, ever awaiting the chance to swoop down and make off with any balls the crabs leave.

AGGIE MINOR SPORTS... COLLEGE STATION, April 10.—Two Texas Aggie teams in minor sports will swing into Southwest conference action against the Rice Institute Owls here Saturday. It will mark the second series of intercollegiate matches for Coach J. P. Abbott's Aggie tennis team, as they polished off the Sam Houston teachers two weeks past, but Saturday's matches with the Owls will mark the Aggie golfers' first outside competition of the year.

Hauser Swings Stick Again

Counted Out Two Years Ago, Shufflin' Joe Scores Comeback... MINNEAPOLIS, April 10. (UP)—Shufflin' Joe Hauser—old Woodson Shoes—is back at his first-base station with Minneapolis in the American association this season, without a sign of the leg fracture that laid him low two years ago.

Holder of the organized baseball record of 69 home runs in one season, Hauser was counted out by all but himself both last year and this.

He played most of last season, after a slow start, and his big work club helped the Millers land the association pennant.

Even President Mike Kelley believed "Unser Joe" was definitely through now, but Hauser convinced him he should be given a trial in the South this spring.

Camp reports say he "looks like the old Hauser again" and runs bases without thought for the bad leg. His batting eye must be sharpened, however.

Dual Swimming Meet At Fort Worth Saturday

COLLEGE STATION, April 10.—Coach Arthur Adamson's Texas Aggie freshman swimmers will engage the Fort Worth Y. M. C. A. in a dual swimming meet Saturday night at Fort Worth.

Aggie entries will be: Free style—Norman Zellman, El Paso; Ward Casell, Amarillo; Clifford Armstrong, El Paso; Harrison Graham, Cisco; Clifford Whall, San Juan, Puerto Rico; Ray Trimble, San Springs, Okla.; and Raymond Pipkin, Eastland. Back stroke—Wallace Seales, San Antonio; Martin Sealey, Houston. Breast stroke—Diving—Milton Wallace, Houston.

Longhorns In Waco To Play The Bruins

2 Losses To Texas Would Ruin Bears' Pennant Chances... (By United Press) Uncle Billy Diehl's Texas Longhorns, the invincibles of Southwest conference baseball, swung into Waco today for a two-game series with Baylor which may sustain or ruin the Bears' chances of winning the pennant.

The Grizzlies, whose title hopes have been shaded considerably by losses to the Texas Aggies and Southern Methodist, are concerned most with pitching worries. They have lost two and won two games.

to keep a perfect record, Coach Morley Jennings has picked SoRelle as his ace card to face the invaders.

The Texas Christians, defeated 9 to 1, and 14 to 4, by Texas last week, will dispute for second place with A. & M., in games arranged for today and Saturday at College Station.

Will Wallis, first sacker, suffered a shoulder injury in the game with Texas last week and will be out of the TCU squad. Harold Lester will take his place, while Darrell Fullenwider goes into the outfield. The Frogs go to Houston for a game with the Rice Owls Monday.

Southern Methodist, 4 to 1 winner over Baylor in a game last Saturday, will meet Rice at Houston, Friday and Saturday, in a pair of games which probably will determine which remains in the conference cellar. The Mustangs have won one and lost three games, while Rice was losing three.

The Aggies trampled Rice 21 to 2 and 18 to 3, when the Owls made a disastrous jaunt to College Station last week-end. Southern Methodist will tackle the strong, second-place Aggies in a game Monday at College Station.

Bucky Tinkers With His Washington Senator Twirlers

NEW YORK, April 10.—Clock-maker Bucky Harris is tinkering with his twirlers. . . . The manager of the Washington Senators has wound up Jack Russell and unwound Buck Newsom. . . . Only a dozen men in the last seven A. B. C. tournaments have averaged 200 or better. . . . Charley Pelton, of Berryville, Va., who raced a string of horses at Bowie, has been named track superintendent at Charleston which he visited as an all-Rockmont Stakes will be run at Belmont park on June 6. . . . Del Mar Larsen traveled 20,500 miles as a member of the University of Utah's football and basketball teams. . . . His longest trip was to Hawaii, which he visited as an all-Rocky Mountain conference half-back last season. . . . Chief Bender, the old pitching star of the Philadelphia Athletics, practiced springing to keep himself sharp as a fielder. . . . The McPherson, Kans., Oilers, who appeared in the Olympic basketball finals, were the tallest team in the country, the nine-foot squad averaging 6 feet 8 inches. . . . With California and Washington concentrating on the Olympic trip to Berlin, their three-mile race on Lake Washington, April 15, should be the same kind of back-breaker as last year.

Calls 'Em Right
With half of the world seemingly unemployed, consider the case of Bill Stewart. . . . Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, and Ford C. Frick, head of the National Baseball league, fairly pulled the baldish chap apart. . . .

Calder wanted him to referee the hockey playoff. . . . Frick maintained that the former minor league player should umpire professional games between the Red Sox and Bees in Boston. . . . It is likely that Joe Louis will box the ancient and honorable Johnny Risiko in Cleveland in July. . . . By that time the negro youth will have knocked out Max Schmelling, unless all the experts are wrong. . . . Mike Kowalik currently is rated the Chicago Cubs fifth starting pitcher. . . . Apparently convinced that pari-mutuel betting at New York tracks isn't far off, Jamaica not only will introduce the camera-eye's finish and public address system when New York racing opens April 15, but plans also call for approximate odds boards, electrically controlled, in the infield. . . . The Preakness, carrying $25,000 in added money and Maryland's greatest horse race is to be run on May 16 at historic Pimlico.

Millies Top Kick
Walter Millies will be the first string catcher of the Senators. . . . He was purchased from the Brooklyn club which brought him up from the Southern association. . . . George Earnshaw is likely to be the Dodgers' opening pitcher against the Giants. . . . Van Lingle Mungo is complaining of lameness in his right shoulder. . . . League park, Cleveland, is so completely sold out for the inaugural with the Detroit Tigers April 14, that Alva Bradley, president of the Indians can't begin to take care of his friends. . . . Joe Sewell lives in Tuscaloosa, where the University of Alabama, from which he graduated, is situated. . . . Joe could have managed Birmingham, one of the Yankee farms, but decided to remain in the hardware business. . . . While in Pine Bluff, Ark., with his Giants, Bill Terry visited that town's new stockyard and contracted for two new sows for his farm near Memphis. . . . William A. Brady once refused admission to the Lambs club for fear that he would introduce his pugilist there, but when James J. Corbett joined the New York club it was the occasion of one of its greatest gambols.

Oilers And Chemists Clash Again Tonight
The Codden Oilers and Ernie Richardson's Chemists will meet in the rubber game of their spring series tonight at 8 o'clock on Mundy diamond. . . . In their two meetings thus far, each team has won one game, the Henningermen taking the first, 6-0, and losing the second, 17-12.

HOT DEBATES IN STORE OVER THREE NEW DEAL AGENCIES

AAA Payments, Relief Activities, Resettlement Unit Up For Senate Argument

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—Lively debates over three new deal agencies were shaping up today in the senate, awaiting only a lull in the Ritter impeachment trial before bursting into the open. The lines for the senate struggle were being drawn quietly on these issues: 1. The Vandenberg resolution for a report on AAA benefits exceeding $10,000. 2. The Davis resolution for an investigation of relief activities. 3. The movement for a check-up on resettlement administration projects. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., attempted late yesterday to gain floor consideration for his resolution. Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson objected that several senators wished to speak on the resolution and its consideration would take more time than was available at that moment. Sen. James J. Davis, R. Pa., has made several unsuccessful attempts to pry his relief resolution out of the senate audit and control committee. Some new dealers in the senate said the necessary for the Davis resolution was removed when allegations of political manipulation under the federal relief program were brought within the scope of the senate inquiry into campaign expenditures. The works progress administration has sent 125 investigators into the field to report on charges of political graft in the work-relief program in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan. Reports already made range from charge by Sen. Rush D. Holt, D. W. Va., that "WPA is playing politics in West Virginia" to the complaint of Mato Majajic, Robertson, O., that his nose was frozen on WPA work last winter. Sen. Robert Carey, R. Wyo., and Holt have complained of practices of the resettlement administration. The relief situation is complicated by the proposed appropriation of an additional $1,500,000,000 for work relief. Senate efforts will be made to sur-mark the appropriation for specific purposes as a counter-suggestion to President Roosevelt's demand that appropriations be kept within budget limits. He died yesterday while his fellow townsmen planned to make him the central figure of Bremond's centennial observance on July 24. Is Charged With Attempt To Wreck Husband's Train PENSACOLA, Fla., April 10. (UP)—Railroad detectives charged attractive Mrs. L. W. Vann with hiring two negroes to wreck a train on which her 70-year-old husband was engineer, hoping he would be killed so that she might marry another man with his insurance as dowry. Only the fact that the negroes did not understand the action of a train wheel's flanges on rails thwarted two attempts to execute the plot, near Cantonment, Fla., authorities said. Sheriff H. E. Gandy said the negroes, Allen Langston, and Allen Finley, 16, confessed that for $50 in hand and the promise of $500 additional they twice pulled spikes from rails over which Vann's train passed. The rails spread and buckled under the train both times but because Langston and Finley removed spikes only from the inside rail on a curve, the train passed safely. Had the outer rail been loosened, railroad men said, the wheel flanges swinging outward with the weight of centrifugal force of a speeding train would certainly have made the plot a success. Mrs. Vann, middle aged but comely, denied the negroes' story vehemently. But Sheriff Gandy held her and Earl Travis of Castleberry, Ala., Mrs. Vann under charges filed by railroad officials and Travis for investigation.

MINNESOTA'S GOP DELEGATION DIVIDED

ST. PAUL, April 10. (UP)—Minnesota's 18 delegates, selected for the national republican convention, today were tagged seven for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, six for Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, three for Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho and two doubtful. The surprise in the congressional district voting was Knox's unexpected strength. Landon had garnered four favorable delegates in twin city congressional district convention Saturday and was slated to come through with a clear majority. Each of the nine congressional districts elected uninstructed delegates but the preference of most

The SPORTSMAN

By LAREY BAUER

That gamy fellow, the small-mouth bass, is a fish worth knowing—if you're not already acquainted—and one that will test the angler's skill with light fly equipment.

For more than 20 years we've sought, and (sometimes) caught these fish throughout their range, but they still remain our big problem—and therein lies the joy of fishing.

If all fish were easy to take, there wouldn't be much sport of anticipation in tossing out the lures.

Studying the habits of game fish, where they lurk at different seasons, what they eat, etc., is an interesting as well as fascinating pastime, and it also helps put a few in the reel or on the stringer.

However, this course hasn't helped us much with the small-mouth, for when we think we have him catalogued he does just the opposite of what is expected.

"A Temperamental Cuss"

When all the signs show he should be taking only live bait and weighted flies, lo and behold, he rises to the dry-fly! Other times he'll turn up his nose at feathers, hair and plugs when they should be good and strike live minnows.

The small-mouth is a temperamental cuss and not as voracious as the big-mouth. It requires more to tempt him. When hooked, some will fight it out in the depths while others do a fin-dance on the surface that would make a big-mouth burrow into the mud for shame.

Here's the story of a veteran (and truthful) fisherman about his experiences on a good small-mouth stream:

"Everything seemed right for the wet fly. Too early in spring for insects or other surface food. Tried everything in my kit and then turned to live bait, including worms. No luck. Toward mid-day the fish appeared near the top and lazed around in small areas like they do in spawning season—but that was six weeks away. The day was chilly.

"They disappeared during the afternoon, evidently to the deep places in the little river from where other fellows took some nice ones a few days previous. Tried minnows when the fish seemed to be 'sunning'—without results. Also tried dry flies without showing myself or casting a shadow. Only a few under-limit ones responded."

Well, brother, your guess is as good as ours.

Air Drama Is Ritz Feature

Fred MacMurray And Joan Bennett Have Leading Roles

Romance, intrigue and excitement are the themes of "Thirteen Hours by Air," the new Paramount drama which plays at the Ritz Friday and Saturday.

Fred MacMurray and Joan Bennett play the leading roles in the film, with ZaSu Pitts, John Howard, Bennie Bartlett, Grace Bradley, Alan Baxter, Brian Donlevy, Ruth Donnelly and Fred Keating heading the supporting cast. It's based on a magazine serial by Bo Gori Rogers.

OLDEST TREASURES TAKEN FROM TOMB IN EGYPT DISPLAYED

CAIRO, Egypt, April 10. (UP)—Priceless treasures of ancient Egypt, the oldest ever unearthed in the historic Nile valley, were put on exhibition today in the museum of antiquities.

They were from 42 secret chambers of the tomb of Henmaka, a nobleman who was grand vizier to King Den of the first Egyptian dynasty, some 3,300 years ago.

Found at Sakkarah, 100 miles from Cairo, the objects taken from the tomb comprised the largest and rarest collection of archaic objects found in Egypt.

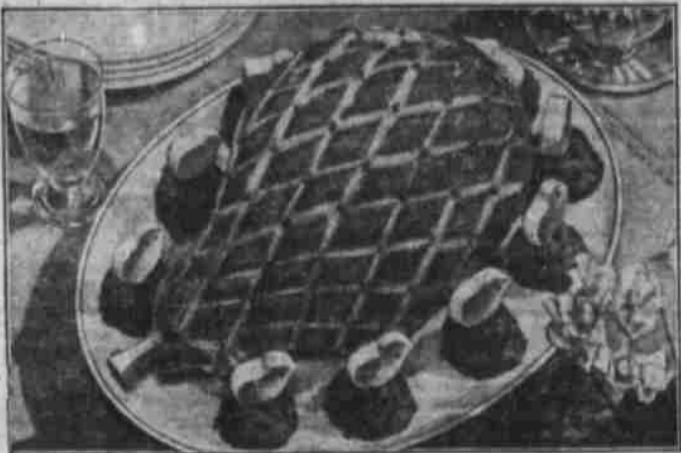

Included was a bullhide quiver packed with 30 arrows or bolts and ivory, for use by Henmaka after death. Beside the quiver was a spear with a long ivory pointed head.

Easter Dinner With Ham And Chicken Biscuits 'Round It

Whatever happens in April, you want to make your Easter dinner a gala occasion—you want to have something different, something special.

Along about this time of year you begin to feel that there must be, if you could find them, new dishes to go with your new clothes and the new season. You are looking for some gay note in the Easter parade of food.

To find this new note, you will take one look, and then look again, at the striking portraits of the ham in Easter array on this page. The ham is one that bakes with very little bother and work on your part.

This ham has a special cure that makes it uniquely mild. And a special method of smoking, called ovenizing, has made it deliciously rich-tasting. Best of all, these hams are actually more delectable without parboiling! Try one that way for Easter and you'll be thrilled with the results.

Here is the no-parboiling recipe: Place a 12 to 14-pound ham with two cups of water in a covered roaster and bake in a slow (325 F.) oven, allowing 21 minutes per pound. (For small or half hams, allow 25 minutes per pound.) When done, remove ham from oven. Lift off the skin, score the fat and drub with whole cloves. Brown, uncovered, in a hot oven for 20 minutes (400 F.), basting with strained honey.

The cunning little biscuit chicks in the nests of spinach are really very easy to make and awfully good to eat too. For the little nests, cook and chop one peck of fresh spinach. Mix the spinach with one-half cup of thick cream sauce, one-quarter teaspoon of nutmeg, and mold into nests. The nutmeg flavoring makes the spinach good.

As a pattern for the chicks, draw on cardboard a small chicken similar to the ones in the picture, with two points on the bottom for feet to be stuck into the nests to support the chicks. The children would love to do this, I'm sure. Then cut out the pattern.

Next, make a cheese biscuit dough as follows: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1-4 cup grated yellow cheese, 3-4 cup milk.

Sift flour, measure, and sift again with salt, and baking powder together. Cut in the shortening with a pastry blender or two knives until finely blended. Add the cheese. Then add the milk and mix to make a soft dough. Toss the dough on a lightly floured board. Knead lightly about 20 seconds. Roll out to one-quarter inch thickness. Cut out the chicks with the pattern, placing a clove in each head for an eye. Bake the chicks in a hot oven (475 F.), about 8 minutes. Place the chicks in the nests just before serving.

Hostesses at smart Easter dinner parties will be serving this "set up" so I pass it on to you. Then, with this "set up" as the gay keynote of the Easter dinner, suppose we consider the other delicious things you might serve.

The first course might be a soup or a cocktail (vegetable or fruit). If you have a fruit cocktail, make it fresh fruit or none. Pineapple, strawberries, grapes, bananas are all on the city markets. A pineapple shell is good for more things than keeping pineapple intact. Split a pineapple lengthwise. Cut two gigantic wooden sickles, with a cutting edge composed of narrow sharp flints fitted into a groove, and with two large wooden adze handles. All were perfectly preserved.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Services Sunday, 11 a. m., room 1, Settles hotel.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, April 12.

The golden text is: "All flesh shall see the salvation of God" (Luke 3:6).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes" (Revelation 7:17).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If sickness is real, it belongs to immortality; if true, it is a part of truth. . . . But if sickness and sin are illusions, the awakening from this mortal dream, or illusion, will bring us into health, holiness, and immortality" (page 230).

Statues To Go To Winners In Band Events

More Than 20 Organizations Already Entered In Contests Here

A bronze statue of victory will be presented to winning bands in the West Texas high school band contests to be held in Big Spring next week-end, it has been announced by D. W. Conley, director of the local municipal high school band, who is in charge of arrangements for the convention.

One of the victory statues will be presented to the highest ranking band in each of the A, B, and C classes.

Across the base of the model is the place for engraving the name of the winner and its classification.

The contents will begin next Friday, as the feature of the annual convention of the West Texas Band Teachers association. More than 30 organizations compete each year, and more than 20 already have entered the Big Spring events.

Of interest to the public will be a massed band parade and a massed band concert, the latter feature to be held on the night of Saturday, April 12, as the concluding number on the convention program.

Selected players from each of the contesting bands will make up the concert unit. In addition to contests for bands in each of the three classes, there will be solo contests on the two days, and about 75 soloists are expected to participate.

Novel Candy Decorations For Children's Birthday Parties

To contrive a colorful and novel table decoration with candy is no trick at all. The colors are so enchanting that they may easily provide the keynote of a party. Most hostesses prefer an original scheme of decoration so the following are merely ideas that can be adapted to suit the requirements of the party.

Sunburst Centerpiece
The candy required is stick candy or opera sticks (twisted stick candy), large and small gum drops in all colors. In the center of the table, arrange a solid circle of large colored gum drops. Working out from this solid circle, form rays by placing stick candy at right angles. Fill the space between the rays or stick candy with small colored gum drops. Any number of color arrangements may be effected by alternating the colors of the stick candy, using plain colored gum drops or using only two colors for the entire sunburst.

Bad Elimination Makes It Easier To Catch A Cold

With the right sort of food and proper exercise, constipation might be rare, but in actual living conditions, how few manage to escape it! Mr. Clyde Martin, of Ona, W. Va., recently very aptly wrote that "constipation is the root of a lot of sickness, but if Black-Draught is taken right it will keep down constipation."

"If I let myself get constipated," he explains, "and my system filled with impure matter, I feel bloated take cold easily, and feel out of sorts in a lot of ways. I will take about two good doses of Black-Draught. It seems to cleanse my whole system and I feel like doing my work."

Sold in 25-cent packages.
BLACK-DRAUGHT

THESE FAMOUS "HUSKIES" Eat HUSKIES

SENSATIONAL NEW CEREAL IS RICH IN FOOD-ENERGY . . . HELPS BUILD MUSCLE!

"LEFTY" GOMEZ, N. Y. Yankees' speed-ball artist, says: "I'll string along with HUSKIES! They're swell for breakfast—and a satisfying lunch."

LEO SEXTON, brawny Olympic Shot-put Champ, says: "For the muscle-building essentials of whole wheat and a taste that's 'tops,' eat HUSKIES."

ART WEIS, Texas League 1935 Batting Champ, writes: "Check me off as a HUSKIES booster, for the food-energy every athlete needs."

HELENE MADISON, world-famous swimming record holder, says: "HUSKIES are chock-full of food-energy . . . they sure hit the spot."

IN ROMANCE OF AVIATION

Fred MacMurray and Joan Bennett, who have the principal roles in "13 Hours By Air," a romantic adventure film which plays Friday and Saturday at the Ritz. The story tells of exciting events aboard a transport plane.

ably rakish angle give the whole centerpiece a droll appearance. Scatter other animals about the table in groups or in units before each child's plate. For individual place cards, form the letters of the names of the guests in little red cinnamon candies. Place these back of each guest's plate.

Favors
To keep the children happy and occupied, the party must be planned from three angles: there should be good things to eat; jolly games to play and a few inexpensive favors to take home.

The candy counters are filled with colorful, packaged candies that can be used as party favors. If there is a special color scheme to follow, wrap the candy favor in matching, transparent paper. For instance, a candy bar, a package of life savers, or a lollipop in a swirl of colored paper, tied with crisp ribbon are sure to appeal to the young fry. Another sweet that all children seem to adore fits in beautifully as a take-home favor and that is a box of cracker Jack.

Games

Here's a jelly bean game: Hide jelly beans all over the house. Give each child a noisemaker, in order that he may signal his team leader when he discovers a bean. Only the leader can collect the beans. The leader collecting the greatest number receives a prize. (The prize winner, by the way, returns the jelly beans to the hostess.)

A similar game is played with lollipops: The children sit in a circle. One child leaves the room. Another hides the lollipop while the other watch. Then the child outside is called in and he begins to hunt. As he gets near the lollipop the children clap loudly for "warm" as he moves away they clap softly for "cold." Each child who finds the hidden candy within a stated time may keep it.

Hoot Gibson Star Of Western Film Booked At Queen

It's murder on the range that causes the plot complications and keep Hoot Gibson in and out of trouble in his newest western production, "Swifty," which is the Queen Theater's feature for Friday and Saturday.

Janet Gaynor, Robt. Taylor Co-Featured

There is mystery and high suspense in "Swifty" and this element, added to some exciting chase scenes, make the Gibson picture a real action melodrama.

Gibson keeps the story moving from the moment a man is murdered in the first reel and "Swifty" is framed, until the final scenes when the whole mystery is finally cleared up.

Story Of Mounted Police Featured At Lyric Theatre

A stirring adventure romance of the colorful Royal Northwest Mounted Police, with George O'Brien in the starring role, heads the Lyric theatre's program for Friday and Saturday. The picture is called "O'Malley of the Mounted."

O'Brien appears as a mountie who becomes involved in a dangerous manhunt that eventually leads him to a love affair. Action scenes are presented as he encounters difficulties in tracking his fugitive, but O'Malley finally gets his man—and the girl.

The film was adapted from a story by William S. Hart, himself.

Janet Gaynor, Robt. Taylor Co-Featured

Appear in Romance, "Small Town Girl," At Ritz Sunday-Monday

Janet Gaynor, star of many films since her first success, "Seventh Heaven," and Robert Taylor who scored heavily in "The Magnificent Obsession," have joined hands to bring to the screen a modern romance, "Small Town Girl," which will play at the Ritz theater for Saturday midnight matinee showing, and on Sunday and Monday.

Taken from Ben Ames Williams' popular novel, the plot of "Small Town Girl" concerns a country girl who marries a handsome doctor while he is intoxicated.

Her efforts to win his affection after she has fallen in love with him bring both comic and tender scenes.

The Hunt Stromberg production, directed by William Wellman, has a supporting cast which includes Blinn Barnes, Lewis Stone, Andy Devine, Elizabeth Patterson, Frank Craven and James Stewart.

Miss Gaynor is said to achieve new standing as a star with her portrayal in "Small Town Girl." Taylor adds to the laurels he gained in "The Magnificent Obsession," and "Broadway Melody of 1936."

A famed western actor of the screen's earlier days, Irene Ware plays opposite O'Brien.

Republicans Organizing A 'Brain Trust'

Economists, Statisticians To Provide Ammunition Against New Deal

WASHINGTON, April 10. (UP)—Formal organization of a campaign year brain trust headed by Prof. Olin G. Saxon of Yale, and including economists and statisticians from several other colleges and universities was announced today by Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the republican national committee.

Saxon was introduced to Washington correspondents at a press conference and identified himself as a Harvard alumnus who had taken three courses under Prof. Felix Frankfurter, a power in the new deal brains division. But he intimated he did not agree with the Frankfurter philosophy.

Both Fletcher and Saxon insisted the committee's new research division would be impartial and unbiased in its approach to political-economic questions.

"We have men on our staff who voted for Mr. Roosevelt and men who have been life-long democrats," Saxon explained.

"Why, I voted for Roosevelt, myself, in 1932. I regret it."

"The division is not a 'brain trust' in the sense of the small group of personal advisers named by President Roosevelt," Fletcher explained.

"This is a research staff, not a group of politically ambitious college professors with pre-conceived ideas who look forward to getting on the federal payroll in the hope of 'Childhood Today.'"

The program was opened with singing of "America." Roscoe Ferguson and Bobbie Nell Gully gave piano solos. Ruth Cornelison gave a reading.

T. E. Pierce announced that the morning of April 21 would be visiting day for parents at school. This day will not be a holiday.

Reports of committees filled the business session.

West Ward Hears Talk On Childhood

The Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist church, made an inspiring address Thursday afternoon before the members of the West Ward P-T. A. on the subject of "Childhood Today."

The program was opened with singing of "America." Roscoe Ferguson and Bobbie Nell Gully gave piano solos. Ruth Cornelison gave a reading.

Gas Wastage Law Will Go To High Court

Action Follows Texas Ruling On Ratable Taking Rules

AUSTIN, April 10. (UP)—Attorney General William McCraw has announced immediate plans for a test of the Texas anti-gas wastage law in the United States supreme court.

That course was decided upon he said, at a conference in Houston attended by State Sen. Clint C. Small, Amarillo, author of the act; Maurice Cheek, Fort Worth; Charles Francis, Houston, and Alvin Maloney, Tulsa, Okla. They are attorneys representing gas companies that want to sustain the state's conservation law.

A three-judge federal court held that ratable taking of gas is not an anti-waste measure although coupled with the waste act. Despite that ruling, Lone Star Gas company and Northern Texas Utilities company advised McCraw

SCIENCE ADVISES AGAINST MEALS LOW IN NEEDED "BULK"

Reports ALL-BRAN Supplies This Dietary Adjunct

Scientific tests have shown that meals which miss the proper "bulk" tend to cause constipation. This condition causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches, loss of appetite, even serious disease.

Avoid these faulty meals by adding Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to your menus. It supplies generous "bulk" in convenient form. This absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is often more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN may be served as a cereal with milk or cream. Sprinkle over soups, salads or other cereals. Or work into appetizing muffins, breads, waffles, etc. It adds a delicious nut-sweet flavor to your recipes.

How much better than taking patent medicines—sometimes harmful! ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEW TEXAS ALMANAC

The book of 100,000 facts—the 1936 edition of the Texas Almanac—is just off the press. It is the largest volume in the history of this publication—a total of 512 pages, on better grade of paper and more profusely illustrated. The 1936 book, although designated as the "Centennial Edition" and compiled in tribute to the grand celebration in Texas this year, misses only twenty-one years of reaching its own centennial year, having first been issued in 1857 by the Galveston News, the parent organization of The Dallas News, its present publishers.

While much new material of historical nature is included in the new issue, none of the chapters that has made The Texas Almanac the standard reference book of Texas in the past has been omitted.

Features of the current issue include an extensive description of the Texas Centennial, including celebrations at Dallas and other points in the State, an outline of the history of Texas from its beginnings to the present, an illustrated chapter on the wild flowers of Texas, lists of the different kinds of trees and wild animals found in Texas, extensive lists of historic old towns and origins of names of Texas towns, a test of the State Constitution with all its amendments and brief account of submission of all adopted amendments since adoption of the Constitution, and the new farm census figures of 1935. There is much of interest for the coming political campaign, including the current poll tax payments by counties. All figures on State, county and city bonded debt are brought up to date. There are several chapters devoted to points of interest for the Centennial tourist in Texas, and a new map made in four colors especially for this edition of the Texas Almanac, entitled "Texas for Tourists," is folded between the leaves of each volume.

There are more than 100,000 facts about the history, natural resources, crops, livestock, industries, commerce, transportation, finance, government, politics, educational system, cultural institutions and other phases of Texas economic, political and social development.

The Texas Almanac, always in demand by business and professional men and women and students in the Lone Star State, will be more in demand this year than ever before. Texas history is more glamorous and richly appealing on the State's 100th birthday. Thousands of out-of-State visitors and newcomers will find this birthday edition particularly acceptable.

★ Man About Manhattan ★

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Not even friendship stands in the way of the moochers and the chislers—But let Irving Eastman tell the story. He is the interior decorator involved:

"I just shut the door on an old client of mine," he confides, "a young man who made good in the advertising business—large office, private secretaries, you know."

"He called me this morning, requesting an appointment and dropped in this afternoon."

"Look here, Eastman," he said, "I'm getting married next week to a very wealthy girl. We've arranged that she is to buy the furniture for our new home and I want you to handle this. But, you understand, I want 10 per cent commission on it!"

"And . . ."

"I didn't want to go to Sing Sing for murder, so all I did was drop him down the elevator shaft."

I want to get down to Chambers street and have a ride on that new ferry—the one with the broad yellow seats and the spacious decks. So vast an improvement is over the old ferries that habitual commuters thought for a moment they had wandered onto the wrong craft. It has a soothing silken motion, effecting the choppy crossing like some swan-drawn Aegean bark.

Most ferry boats are grim affairs with the seats on the engineroom side. Their passenger decks are gloomy runways with little or no light. This newer one, in comparison, is a floating palace. All the seats have an incline and a dip that seems to glue the passenger in place.

C. T. Revere was a plain cowhand before he became famous as a cotton expert. After that he grew restless and wrote several plays. Then, for a variety, he lashed together a novel, "Hands and Bands" and also a flock of short stories.

But, it was old Dan Sully, the Cotton King, who induced C. T. to try his luck on the stock exchange. But for him he probably never would have seen Wall Street. As it is, he is known all over the world as one of the ranking authorities on cotton.

Question: Will somebody kindly tell me why all prima donnas, regardless of nationality, are called Madame?

Only recently have waiters in New York shown any sign of losing the arrogance and lagging habits inspired by large tips during prohibition. In those days the Big Money boys were afraid not to haul out lavish gratuities for fear of becoming known as "cheap," many of them making it a habit to toss $10 to $20 notes around like so much rice. As a result the waiters fell into the habit of expecting these sums, and was to the "miser" who ladled out a measly 10 per cent.

Some of the silliness persisted even after the crash, but repeal brought about an abrupt halt to most of it.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It is almost unprecedented for two senators from the same state, especially from the same party, to lock horns so obstreperously in public as the two senators from West Virginia.

However, when the real story of the Rush Holt-Mathew Neely row develops it is going to be even more side-splitting and sensational.

Fact is that the youngest member of the senate was carefully hand-picked and hand-groomed by Senator Neely and friends. They needed a good, rabble-rousing utility-hater; someone who could flay the big gas, power and coal companies of West Virginia.

Young Holt, to them, seemed the ideal man. Then only 28 years old, they were sure they could control him later.

At first, after Holt was elected, there was nothing Senator Neely would not do for his young friend. He almost got down on his knees to beg the committee on privileges and elections to seat Holt, despite his election before the constitutional age of 30.

"Alva," he told Senator Adams of Colorado, "you can have my vote on anything for Colorado you want, if you'll only help me to seat that boy."

Woman in Case
Neely even helped to hush an allegation of a "fictitious suit" which an irate husband threatened to bring against Holt, just at the crucial moment when his seating was before the senate. Holt claims that his one-time friends are now trying to smear him with this.

"The whole thing is a generated political attack," says the youngest member of the senate. "There's nothing wrong with my relations with this woman, and I'd swear to that on a Bible."

He explains that when he first met her, she was in the company of a lawyer whom she was consulting for a divorce. That divorce subsequently was granted. He adds that on a recent Sunday in Charleston he saw the lady (in company with a witness) and she told him she had been offered money to reopen the case.

The lady, Opal Westfall, is employed in the labor division of the West Virginia WPA, for which she was recommended by Holt.

"If Neely drags up this Westfall case," threatens Holt, "I'll spread out the record of his affairs back in 1911 and 1913."

And so on, far into the night. It's one of those good old-fashioned West Virginia feuds, no weapons barred, and no truce until one side or the other is wiped out.

To Green
Ned Smith, former West Virginia editor, now member of the Guffey coal commission, compares Rush Holt in his early political days to Ebenezer Field's former speech:

"A little peach in a garden grew. Kissed by the sun, warmed by the dew."

"He looked to be just what we wanted," continues Smith, "so soft and nice, but waiting to be picked."

"But," Smith adds with a wry face, "we smacked him too green."

Based on the many threats and attempts against Coffey's life.

Though one of the ablest members of the career corps, and although he has done a good job in Cuba, Coffey has suffered the unpopularity which every American ambassador experiences in that country.

He will be transferred whenever the state department can pry loose another ambassadorial opening.

Budget Balancer
On a recent field trip, Paul A. Porter, lanky Triple A cotton expert, was called aside by a small-town banker when he knew.

"Paul," he said, "I'm worried about all this government spending. I think the president has got to balance the budget. Why doesn't he do it?"

Porter observed that a number of economy measures were under consideration, among them a plan to cut in half all benefit payments to cotton farmers.

"Oh, Roosevelt can't do that," said the banker. "The farmers won't let him."

"Well, there are other methods," such as calling in all government loans to banks, railroads and industry."

The banker's hands shot up in alarm. "Why," he exclaimed in horror, "that would ruin the country!"

Then you really don't want the president to balance the budget after all, do you?"

"All I've got to say," insisted the banker, "is that this boondoggling stuff has got to stop."

Merry-Go-Round
Congressional housewives are in a tizzy about their leases. Most of them, when they arrived in January, took apartments for only four months, confident of early adjournment. Now congress threatens to hold on until June 1. . . . Soil erosionists claim, as their number one convert, Thomas Jefferson. They have found a letter written by him in 1813 about "contour plowing" on his Virginia farm. . . . A recent balmy Sunday brought over 6,000 visitors to see TVA's Norris dam and lake. . . . WPA has ruled that peddlers of candy and fruitcake may not hawk their wares in theatres where federal theatre projects are showing. An old ruling bans any selling on government property, and the show houses, while the show is on, are so considered.

Chapter Eight NEW PLANS

"Oh, Morgan, thank you! And forgive me for being so horrid to you."

Morgan tightened his arms about Iris before he released her.

"There's nothing to thank me for. You've never been horrid," he said inadequately.

"Let's go downstairs. Let's begin right away!" she said.

As he followed her slim erect figure, flying lightly down the crazy attic stairs, he realized that he was in a state of everything in spite of his cynicism and bitterness and everything in his past—in love again. In love with Iris Lanning.

"But I won't tell her so. How do I know she's any honest than the rest of them? I'll see her through this queer affair; it wouldn't be decent not to help her. But I'll wait," he told himself.

Nevertheless, he quickened his steps, following her.

They shut themselves in that sacred and only private place, the salon parlor that had been her father's studio, and eagerly leafed Ella Lanning's scrapbook over to gether.

"It's here all right," Morgan said. "She didn't lie to you. She never has, actually." He read the yellowed scrap aloud.

"Jean Ross Lanning. Suddenly June 12, 1927. Aged 28."

There was no more than that.

"And then Josie Ross—"

"She's your aunt, you know. As much your aunt as Miss Ella."

"Why, so she is. If she's alive. She must have gone away and taken little Owen."

He smiled.

"Little Owen must be twenty-four now."

"Oh, he must be somewhere! Suddenly she was crying. "Morgan, Morgan, I can understand Aunt Ella—she's never cared for anything but Daddy. But Uncle Will—"

Morgan laid a gentle hand on her quivering shoulder. She was crouching in her father's sacred armchair, her tossed, unfashionable lovely hair down over her hands that hid her face. He hoped his love did not show in the tone in which he answered her.

"It's because they all loved you so, they were afraid if you knew you had people somewhere else they'd lose you."

"But that wasn't honest!" she cried out. "You wouldn't do a thing like that to anybody, would you?"

The innocently implied faith in him thrilled him. He answered honestly.

"I would try not to."

As he spoke he remembered that he had no choice about trying. Before he knew he loved her he had given her his word that he would find her brother for her.

She sat up, her hands on her knees, and setting herself in order.

"The girls you know don't cry, do they?" she demanded, trying to smile.

"Only when they're angry. You're natural, Iris, I want you to be just the way you are."

Something in his look made her drop her eyes.

Everybody does. The way people want foreigners to go on wearing national costumes in America. And I hate it the way they must hate it. Don't think I'm foolish, Morgan. But I've been picturesque and Victorian all my life. You wouldn't like going round in side-winders and a stock, even if it was awfully becoming!"

He laughed at her, as she was so pretty and so pliant and so alive, sitting up in the big chair, tousled and ardent.

"Of course I wouldn't."

"What do you think Owen is like?" she demanded. "Do you suppose he'll like me? Don't you think it's wonderful, having a long-lost brother like a fairytale ahead of you?"

Morgan's less hopeful mind fore-cast possibilities he would not offer her: a day-laborer, an asylum-cared child, perhaps one of the ragged hopeless young men hanging about employment agencies.

"Perhaps he'll be like you. Perhaps he'll be like your mother's people," he answered. "He ought to be fond of you—people are. But, Iris, don't put your hopes too high. It's so long ago, perhaps I mayn't be able to find any trace."

She shook her head.

"The aunt that went away with him was younger than Aunt Ella. She might be alive, too. Oh, find out everything you can from Uncle Will. I don't want to talk to him about it; he's always so gentle, and I'm afraid I'd get angry and scold him for not telling me. Please find out why he never told me."

Her trust in her people, he saw was shaken.

"After all, your father didn't tell you. Perhaps he wouldn't let your uncle." Her face lighted. "Oh, that was it, that must have been it. After all, it is a father's place to say about things, isn't it?"

She was so eager to believe in them.

"Of course," he said, furious meanwhile at the unfairness of her. "I'll find out for you the first minute I can."

It was a good deal to do; to demand of that proud, gentle old man so intimate a thing. But the next night, when they were together after dinner, he did it. He was, as his habit had become, helping Uncle Will with some briefing. Iris was still in the kitchen, helping her aunt with the dishes.

He laid down the fountain pen with which he had been making notes from the law book, and looked across.

"Mr. Lanning, there's something Iris wants to know, and she's so fond of you she can't bear to ask you herself. I know I'm barging in unforgetably—if it were for anyone but Iris she found out yesterday that the brother she thought dead is still alive. I've promised to help her find him. I have to tell you—and ask you for any data you have about him."

Uncle Will took it quietly, excepting for a whitened face, and a trembling of the long wrinkled ivory hands moving among the papers.

"Is she angry?" he asked. "I couldn't bear to have her angry."

"No." He felt as if he were sitting in judgment, and he hated it. "She's hurt but she thinks there must be a good reason."

"My poor little girl! There's a reason, but I can't know how good she'll think it is. My brother was so afraid that if she knew about any of it she would go away from him. He made us promise. Here is a petition of great charm, my brother, and of immense talent."

Morgan wanted to cry out. "But he's dead!" He did not. He only asked quietly, "Can you tell me then, anything that will help me to find your nephew?"

"The last time I saw him was in Philadelphia, after Jean's death. The next time I went Josephine had moved, leaving no address. I—"

And yet you gave her up!" he could not help it.

"My brother's talents made my financial help necessary," Uncle William stiffened. "I never gave her up. I hoped on till she terminated the engagement."

Morgan did not pursue this further. The story was plain: Miss Ella had insisted; Uncle Will, like many otherwise good and wise men, had been a coward and slave before his womanfolk.

Morgan asked the last address of Josephine Ross, and everything else about her that might lead to her discovery, which Uncle Will gave with lawyer-like precision.

"But if Josephine is living, and doing well—and she was the type that succeeds—she may want to take Iris away from us," he said. He looked across the faded tablecloth with terror. And Morgan, with a like fear in his heart, could only say, "But it's her right, sir."

Uncle Will nodded. "Yes. It's her right." He put out the hand that had been leafing over the briefs and took Morgan's.

Iris, in the kitchen, was saying nothing about any of it to her aunt. Miss Ella was just as usual. The scene had passed. When you have lived with anyone all your life routine holds you. Iris was used to her aunt; she loved her. She was used to having everything sacrificed for her father's "genius."

And so, instead of demanding or reproaching, she took for granted the fact that Miss Ella always had put her father first and always would, and talked about the dishes and the next day's dinner.

Morgan gets a highly important letter, Monday.

Perhaps he'll be like you. Perhaps he'll be like your mother's people," he answered. "He ought to be fond of you—people are. But, Iris, don't put your hopes too high. It's so long ago, perhaps I mayn't be able to find any trace."

She shook her head.

"The aunt that went away with him was younger than Aunt Ella. She might be alive, too. Oh, find out everything you can from Uncle Will. I don't want to talk to him about it; he's always so gentle, and I'm afraid I'd get angry and scold him for not telling me. Please find out why he never told me."

CHEVROLET'S MARCH SALES SET RECORD

DETROIT, April 10—Chevrolet sales in March, 126,119 units, were the highest for any month in the history of the company. It was announced here today. A new record was set also for the first quarter sales, which totaled 272,149, a gain of 91,839 over the same period a year ago. The previous high record for a single month had stood ever since May, 1928, totaling 174,437. The largest previous first quarter record was 248,875 units, in 1929. Sales of used cars by Chevrolet dealers were 165,170 in March, and $81,834 (a new record) in the first quarter.

Yaquis Ready For Unusual Easter Rites

Ceremonies, Half-Pagan, Half-Christian, Date To 16th Century

GUADALUPE, Ariz. April 10 (UP)—Arizona's Yaqui Indians, descendants of the fierce Mexican tribe which never has been conquered, completed preparations today for their weird, medieval, half-pagan, half-Christian observance of Easter.

Late this afternoon, festastically costumed tribesmen will reenact the betrayal, capture, trial, condemnation and crucifixion of Christ. In ceremonies which have their origin in the 16th Century when their forefathers were visited by intrepid Jesuit missionaries, they will set up a bier and guard it closely until sunrise Easter morning.

For a month "los Fariseos" (Pharisees), men doing penance for sins have hunted the desert around this village of 500 persons, only 12 miles from Phoenix in actual distance, but hundreds of years and hundreds of miles away in customs and ceremonies.

The "Fariseos" seek a mythical figure behind the cast, under the mesquite and palo verde trees, and in possible underground hiding places which they tap with decorated sticks. Fantastically masked, they also are ogres to children. Naughty youngsters are captured by the "Fariseos" and put in jail, from which they may escape only by payment of a fine. Failing to pay the fine, they remain in the jail until "The Night of Darkness" before Easter Sunday and, on this night, are whipped while the "Fariseos" are flogged.

Act as Pilate's Soldiers
Tonight, the "Fariseos," appearing as "los Pilatos," soldiers of Pontius Pilate, finally will "find" Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane, a crude bower of cotton-wood boughs.

As "Pilatos," the men are masked and carry spears.

The "Pilatos" capture of their prisoner and their bearing him away for symbolic trial and crucifixion are to the accompaniment of a half-Christian, half-pagan chant marked by stuttering gong-like drums, squealing home-made flutes and whining violas and the swish and rattle of pebble-filled gourds.

Some of the chants, in unorthodox Latin, are the remnants of chants taught the Yaquis 400 years ago when the first Jesuits fearlessly entered their mountain strongholds in Sonora, Mexico, and converted them to Catholicism. Others are purely Indian, with origins in the tribe's ancient pagan rites.

Ceremony Weird and Ancient
The whole ceremony is a weird but compelling mixture of a medieval Passion play, heathen mysticism and modern Christianity.

Tomorrow night, "The Night of Darkness," the Yaqui will begin their Easter dance. Half-naked, garishly dressed men will stamp and prance to the rhythm of the drums and rattles.

Bearing fantastic headdresses, their bodies painted, they will dance until dawn, then all will attend mass in the adobe mission church the Yaquis built when they first settled at Guadalupe. All—men, women and children—will hear the Roman Catholic service said by a priest from Tempe, Ariz. The church will be decorated with paper flowers made by Yaqui women.

The Easter dance always is witnessed by hundreds of Arizonians and visitors from other states, despite the Yaquis' annual request that they be left to themselves.

Sincere, deeply religious, they resent the laughter and scoffing of white visitors. This resentment, on occasions, has led to violence, so that to prevent recurrence a dozen deputy sheriffs patrol the plaza during the ceremony, removing those who might endanger themselves by profaning the rites.

How far back into Yaqui history the Easter ceremony goes, no one knows definitely. The Arizona Yaquis brought the rites with them when they left Mexico more than 40 years ago because of Mexican persecution and migrated to the Arizona desert.

Church records show that the tribe first was visited by Jesuits in 1539 when Padre Marcos de Niza made a journey to their stronghold in what now is known as the Yaqui valley of Sonora.

Ruthless in War
Claiming to be descendants of a mythical wolf, the tribe waged a relentless and cruel war upon Spaniards, Mexicans and other Indians who attempted to enter their domain. Their practice of taking women and children prisoners—although they slaughtered their male members in time brought a strong infusion of white blood into the tribe, which maintained its unity despite this fact.

Arriving in the United States as political refugees, the Arizona Yaquis have no rights as citizens, receive no federal aid, and have been forced from the first to make their own way. The townsite of Guadalupe was acquired by "squatters' rights."

The Yaquis nominally are Catholics and have been since 1549.

Devil's Wash Basin, Hidden Lake In New Mexico, Believed To Hold Bones Of U.S. Agent Slain By Bootleggers

DES MOINES, N. M., April 10. (UP)—In the murky depths of Devil's Wash Basin, a hidden lake in forbidden Northeast New Mexico, state police seek verification of an informant's story that Ray Sutton, six years missing, was murdered in gangster fashion by bootleggers.

The report shows that United States travelers abroad in 1935 spent less than 25 per cent of what they did in 1929. The total figure for 1934 was $187,400,000 compared with $446,000,000 in 1929 and $368,000,000 in 1928.

The report criticizes the present German government's practice of making it expensive for German citizens to travel abroad by charging large passport fees. It considers attention should be drawn to the retaliatory measures which follow from such action.

It's a dream to handle. It's a joy to own. It's so rugged you'll wonder what service stations are for and thrifty as you never thought an eight could be.

There's one here ready to show you what it can do. It will cost you, under the new General Motors Installment Plan, only two or three dollars a week more than the lowest price cars. So this time—why not something special—a Buick Special—a car that's right now way out in front?

It's fast—no heedful man will ever want to travel a highway at the "open" pace of a Special—but its abundant speed is balanced with the smoothest, lightest tiptoe hydraulic brakes you ever put a foot to—and its solid, low-slung, road-hugging bulk spells security that even back-seat drivers sense!

It offers not just power, but the oil-hushed, mile-eating powder-flash power of the ablest straight-eight engine in the world!

It's smooth—not with the pulpy smoothness of rubber—but with the solid, lasting, lash-free smoothness of precise engineering—the positive torque-tube drive—road-leveling Kneec-Action wheels.
