RANGER DESERTED AS THOUSANDS ATTACK CHUGHOLES IN ROAD

Road Work Picnic Is Biggest Community Demonstration Witnessed in Texas in Years; Fully 2,000 Men Toil With Teams and Tools.

Ranger moved to Bull Hollow before 8 o'clock this morning, deserting homes, business and pleasures, to improve the most important highway leading into the city. Not less than 2,000 volunteers, representing every walk of life and every enterprise of the city, manned picks, shovels, mattocks, scrapers and frenos in filling in deep ruts and chugholes and making possible a more negotiable thoroughfare into Ranger. By noon the impression made on this stretch of road five miles north of town was bearing the earmarks of expert engineering. The big road "construction" job was in charge of A. Davenport, police and fire commissioner, M. R. Newnham, street commissioner, with a number of subaltern road "bosses," including Ralph Stockman, Captain Jameson, Dr. Ross Hodges and Policeman John H. Moore.

TWO MEN HURT WHEN THROWN FROM TRUCK

Mr. Nash of the Nash hotel and Mr. Trammell were painfully injured this morning while on their way to the Good Roads picnic out Caddo road. Mr. Nash was bruised and cut around the head and may have suffered from concussion, and when it rained at streets, man, picks and shovels were pitched or shoved sharply to the ground. Trammell was sitting on the edge and his foot either was caught under one of the wheels or was struck by a pick. Nash was pitched out on his head.

NO QUITTING WHISTLE

"We have no regular hours for work on this job," said one road "boss" when asked by a reporter when the men went on and off. "We expect to work until the shades of night appear. No one will die over the results of his endeavors." Both the water wagon and the water-bay were conspicuous on the occasion. Aerated water in bottles stood on the sides of the road where the workers could get to it whenever needed—which was much of the time.

PAGE GOLDSMITH!

When the traveling man and visitor dropped off the train this morning and looked up Main street it was to peer upon a deserted city. Practically every business house in the city had closed its doors. The sidewalks were abandoned. Ranger had moved. It was the appearance of a "blowed up" town. But when it was explained that Ranger had gone road building the visitor immediately perceived that the spirit which made Ranger was as strong and resolute as ever before.

PRACTICALLY IMPASSABLE

Caddo road, the main transport artery into Ranger, has been not only an eyecore for months, but it has been at times practically impassable. Even during the present dry weather the chugholes and deep ruts cut by heavily loaded trucks make this road hardly negotiable. Ranger has lost much trade because of it. This fact imbued workers of Ranger, many leading business men, to the best of their ability in them.

COLD SNAP EXTENDS FAR SOUTH; MAY SAVE FRUIT

International News Service. FORT WORTH, Jan. 27.—Freezing as far south as Taylor was reported here today, making the cold snap one of the severest of the year. The minimum temperature here last night was 28 above.

Among the MOVIE STARS

Sue Mason and Harry Carey in "West is West"

"Body and Soul"—Star Has Strenuous Role—"West is West"—The Most Beautiful Woman—A War Hero—A Comedy Queen.

As Claire Martin, an American art student in Paris, in "Body and Soul," Alice Lake is declared by critics and theatre-goers alike to have scored the outstanding success of her astonishing career in motion pictures.

Her vivid and intelligent sympathetic impersonation of the leading role, which is of a dual nature, instantly stamped Miss Lake as one of the most promising of the younger actresses of the silent drama.

"Body and Soul" is an adaptation of the well known stage play by William Hurlbut. It relates the strange adventures of Claire Martin, the possessor of what is known as a dual personality.

One night she is accidentally thrown against a lamp post in the Latin quarter, the blow stuns her and causes her worse self to dominate.

Claire Martin, from a normal, lovable, refined girl is instantaneously transformed into a coquette and drifts into the artists' studios as a model. She becomes the central figure in a tragic murder and is executed only after she has suffered terrible agony of mind.

Stuart Holmes, an artist, is prominent in Miss Lake's support. The star is shown here posing for the painting that precipitates one of the tremendous dramatic scenes in the photo play.

Justine Johnstone, who has often been proclaimed "the most beautiful woman in America," has just been acclaimed by Paul Hellen, the famous French etcher, as "the most beautiful woman he has ever seen."

Miss Johnstone was dining at the Ritz the other night when Hellen, who happened to be dining at a table nearby, spied her. He asked the head waiter for his card and proceeded to draw a rapid two-minute sketch of Miss Johnstone.

When he had completed it, he went over to Miss Johnstone's table and presented her with the sketch and told her she was "the most beautiful woman he had ever seen," and asked to have the privilege of making a sketch of her this winter. Mr. Hellen is over here to make sketches of the most beautiful women in America.

On his last trip here he pronounced Mrs. Leonard Thomas, now Mrs. John Barrymore, as the most beautiful woman in America. So far, on this trip, Miss Johnstone can claim the honor.

Florence Ziegfeld recently pronounced Miss Johnstone one of the five most beautiful women on the screen.

It was not so very long ago that Miss Johnstone was hailed as the most beautiful girl in the Follies. "Blackbirds," her first starring picture has just been released.

Harry Carey

"West is West" is the story of a cowboy with brains, a natural free-lance, who uses his head as well as his horse; or how he settles a miner's strike by shirt sleeve diplomacy, wins a fortune for his friends as well as for himself and makes a certain young lady realize that she is not too good for him.

Among the supporting cast are Charles Le Moyne, Joseph Harris, Ted Brooks, Edward Latell, Otto Nelson, Jack Dill, Sue Mason, Mizogane, William Millett and Adelaide Halliday.

Carey entertained Eugene Manlove Rhodes, the author for a week at his ranch in the San Francisco canyon, and helped him whip his popular novel into shape. The scenes of "West is West" are laid in the ranching and mining section of Arizona and actual locations were used in making the film.

The mining scenes were taken at the United Verde and Daisy mines, the richest copper producers in the world. Eight days and several nights were spent underground at the 500 foot and the 1,700 foot levels of the United Verde, and 1,100 foot and the 1,000 foot level of the Daisy. Actual operations were filmed and as many as sixty miners took part in one scene. By special permission a mine explosion was staged at the 500 foot level. To avoid the danger of asphyxiation, the fumes were drawn out of the shaft by the compressed air used to operate the mining drills. In subsequent scenes the actual paraphernalia used in case of disaster was brought into play. The managers of the two mines say that a quarter mile below the surface of the earth is the deepest that motion picture cameras and lights have been used—so that the record is held by this picture.

Harriet Hammond

Alice Lake and Stuart Holmes in "Body and Soul"

Elinor Field

Elinor Field has just been selected as leading woman for Joe Ryan, star of the serial, "The Purple Rider," a thrilling chapter play of love and adventure.

Elinor Field

Richard Tucker. After a period of success as a war hero, Captain Richard Tucker has returned to the Goldwyn studios to pursue a career of villainy with equal fervor. A captain of infantry, Richard Tucker was thrice listed as killed in action, but he turned up very much alive with the Army of Occupation at Nuremberg, a famous watering place in Germany, where he took charge of all the theatres. A heavy of the first rank the erstwhile hero has done some fine work in "Dallies and Sense," "The Woman in Room Thirteen," "The Great Lover," and "The Branding Iron," a picturization of Katherine Newlin Bart's famous novel.

Harriet Hammond

According to the judgment of James E. Abbe, one of the best known of New York photographers, specializing in theatrical portraiture, Harriet Hammond is the most beautiful girl on the screen.

While Miss Hammond's loveliness has been exploited to the world of screen patrons as a product of California—particularly Southern California—she is really a cosmopolitan. She was born in the state of Michigan, educated in Texas and she completed her scholastic days at a convent in Hollywood. She studied music in Los Angeles and is a musician of rare accomplishments whose first ambitions directed her towards a professional career. This she would doubtless have entered had not her health given way. Her physician advised her to drop her rigid piano practice for a period of at least six months. That was two years ago and during that time she visited the movie studios with a friend. She attracted attention and was offered a position at a salary that tempted the young musician since it was considerably in excess of anything she could hope to earn on the concert stage for many years. Her histrionic ability soon made itself known, and besides, as a child she had achieved local celebrity in her Texas home as a dancer. This art she had never ceased to develop and it is of great value to her screen impersonations.

LAMB
In "The North Wind's Malice," which is playing at the Lamb theatre, Rex Beach has written a stirring drama of the frozen north around a novel set of characters, that afford unusual acting opportunities. He also employs an allegorical figure called "The Spirit of Malice," which is very effective.

The two outstanding figures among the men are played by Joe King and Tom Santschi. Both are in love with Lois Folsom, played by Jane Thomas. When the story opens, Lois is the wife of Roger Folsom (Tom Santschi). A series of incidents create bitterness and misunderstanding and makes Roger madly jealous of Henry Carter (Joe King). In the progress of the story through a terrific Alaskan blizzard, Lois and her husband become separated.

The minor love interest of the story is sympathetically portrayed by Edna Murphy as Dorothy Guth, and Walter Abell as Tom Folsom, the young brother of Roger, and a gambling ne'er-do-well. The Guth family plays an important part. There is Abe Guth, played by William H. Strauss, and Rachel, played by Vera Gordon, a Russian actress, who has done some remarkable work for the screen and on the legitimate stage. The part of the villain in "The North Wind's Malice" is taken by Henry West. He has sold a fake gold mine to the Guth family and manages to get young Folsom in his power. "The Spirit of Malice" is portrayed by Dorothy Wheeler.

and handles it most effectively. Holbrook Blinn is in the part of Stuart Doane, and Irving Cummings is excellent as a young minister. The picture was staged under the capable direction of Barry O'Neill, who evolved a meritorious piece of work in every particular. Others in the cast are Montague Love, Madge Evans, Edward M. Kimball, and Mrs. Woodward.

WOOF! WOOF!
NILES, Ohio, Jan. 27.—George Patino of this city, has a bulldog which has forsaken all the hereditary belligerency usually associated with one of its breed, and has taken over the duties of a hen. It has mastered everything save the chick, according to Patino.

The big animal may be seen any day, patiently walking about the Patino barnyard, with a brood of chickens following around, hatched by the dog, after the hen had deserted the nest.

"I found the dog sitting on the abandoned nest," Patino said. "When I tried to pull him away he growled and snapped at me. The chickens, when hatched, immediately took a liking to their foster parent, who dug worms for them, and in general has taken as good care of them as a mother hen."

The time due for the voluntary surrender of weapons having expired, the German disarmament commission has ordered beginning of the military search of every house in Gerlach for rifles, revolvers, and the guns or similar weapons.

NEEDS YOU

A MESSAGE TO EVERY MAN WOMAN AND CHILD

Today was Good Roads Day in Ranger. The monster turnout on this occasion was another evidence of the solidity and the solidarity of Ranger. So long as the residents of this community hold this belief in their town and in their ability to make it a city, that long will its progress continue.

The Road Day celebration is just a starter for the work that is to be done. Thousands of persons have today had thrust before the eyes an actual condition that must be remedied. The need is imperative. Relief must be had. And as community effort has today made a portion of this road usable, so can community effort make the whole road good.

Further improvement depends upon proceeding on business-like principles, backed by CASH. Are you with us there, as you were with your manual labor today?

Remember this is a Ranger movement. Remember that the people who believe in Ranger are supporting it. Remember that those persons who do not support it are leeches on the community. Their interest consists only in taking what they can from the fruits of the other fellow's efforts. We are for Good Roads and for everything that will benefit Ranger. Are YOU with us?

RAISE YOUR OWN.

A dozen persons met yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and said they were going to have a poultry and pet stock show in the city. Those on enthusiasts living and breathing the spirit of Ranger, will probably have the exhibition and by the time it is staged many other persons no doubt will be interested in the move.

A show of this nature is usually held for the purpose of exhibiting prize winning stock, and possibly make sales from the strain. The show, if held in Ranger will not be for that purpose this year, it was declared yesterday, but will be primarily for the purpose of interesting visitors in blooded chickens and pets. However, no exhibition will be barred and it is thought many exhibitors will be here from over the state. In fact, it was stated that those who placed stock on show would be far greater than anyone anticipated.

If the show is held it is bound to do much good. Every small flock of chickens maintained in back yards is a wealth producer, and the exhibition is bound to convert many to this truth.

To go into possibilities, the time is very short when much business will be done in Ranger from persons living or adjacent farms. Any student of economic problems will admit that fact. With an annual poultry show growing with the farm movement it is not unreasonable to think that in time it will become an event that may take in all of West Texas.

WHERE LANGUAGE MEANS LIBERTY.

It behooves gamblers, highway robbers, murderers and their like to learn Greek or some other outlandish language not understood by the police. A crime is not a crime when committed in an unintelligible tongue. Judge Ittner gave an example.

Four men were before the judge recently charged with gambling. The policeman who arrested them testified that they were seated at a table playing cards and that $3.55 in lawful money of the United States was spread upon the table. They were making gestures in the universal card game language, but their speech was Greek. The judge asked what they said. The policeman could not tell. "Discharged," said the judge.

The lesson in this for malefactors of high and low degree is that, if the judge is right and if they would escape the consequences of their misdeeds, they need only speak a language which no policeman can understand. Thus, the highwayman who chants a strange jargon while jolting up a prominent citizen will have nothing to fear, even if interrupted by a policeman, because the policeman will not be able to tell what was said.

That is, if we understand the logic of Judge Ittner's ruling. It becomes us to be dogmatic about it, because the logic of a police judge's rulings is a fearful and wonderful thing. Police court rulings, happily, do not serve as precedents, but if it is a good rule that a violation of law is not valid unless accompanied by comprehensible utterance, the higher courts may feel called upon to fall into line with Judge Ittner.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Apt, Though Not Elegant.

A certain young school teacher in a particularly dirty, sordid, unsavory section of the city has many amusing stories to report now and then. And her little foreign charges, although their filth and ignorance are appalling, give her an opportunity for a smile once in a while.

Little Colombo Antonio Giuseppe, etc., etc., is the type of child who is carefully sewed up in his clothes at the beginning of the winter and so remains until well into the spring. The clothes themselves are in griminess his brown face and hands and his greasy, dirty mop of black hair. Teacher decided to investigate his case, since Colombo is a nice little fellow, and see if his parents could be induced to clean him up and keep him clean.

But she found father, proprietor of an unbelievably dirty little fruit store, even worse than his son in the matter of cleanliness. He took offense at any mention of cleaning Colombo and broke into a term of Hato-American, which convinced the teacher that an appeal to him was useless. Dirt, actual soil, lay so thick on his face and hands that it seemed as if one could scrape it off.

A few days after the visit, teacher called upon her class to bring some earth or soil to school so that she could plant a fern in the spring. The clothes themselves were in griminess his brown face and hands and his greasy, dirty mop of black hair. Teacher decided to investigate his case, since Colombo is a nice little fellow, and see if his parents could be induced to clean him up and keep him clean.

Circumstances Alter Tastes. The Suburban Lady has recently made an acquaintance whose husband is one of the many to whom the war and its disquieting influence has brought a fortune. Let us, for convenience, call her Mrs. Newmower.

Not long ago this lady condescended to drink tea in the lady's modest sitting room. The hostess poured her out a fragrant cup, not too weak, not too strong, and offered the lemon and the sugar. Mrs. Newmower sipped her tea, her little finger effectively crooked, her eyes critically observant. "My dear," she said in the voice of a connoisseur, "where do you buy your tea?"

The Suburban Lady hesitated and was lost of course, as, dropping her eyes, she answered: "My tea? Oh, I am very particular about that. I always get a special blend from an imported house."

"Ah, I was sure you did," murmured Mrs. Newmower. "It is delicious." And she finished her cup with obvious satisfaction.

Later the Suburban Lady told a friend of the incident, with much amusement. "If I had told her that I buy my tea and everything else at a cash grocery she'd never have enjoyed it. She trades only at the most expensive stores, where she says fancy prices and orders over the telephone. Nothing fit to eat can be bought anywhere else. One must really admire the sublime way in which she ignores these days 'before de wah,' when she carried home the family rations in a paper bag."

Theatrical Gossip. Sometimes the Woman is reminded of that old-time humorist who said that "he'd rather not know so many things than know so many things that weren't so." For instance: He and she who sat behind her at the theatre not long ago were busily discussing plays, past and present, while they waited for the curtain to go up.

IT LOOKS LIKE I'VE BEEN BUNCOED!

"Tinker Bob" Stories by Carlyle H. Holcomb

MR. FOREST BEETLE IS SAFE.

You remember that we said something strange happened, but we couldn't tell it all yesterday. Well, we will tell you today. Tinker Bob went out to the edge of the lake and stood by the water. In the twilight he saw something coming toward him. It looked like a small bird. But it wasn't a bird, for all the birds were asleep. The King of the Forest had seen such a thing before but not in the South Land. The creature that looked similar to this one was not so large.

Anyway, the King watched it coming and it seemed to be making right toward him. He stood still and waited. The bats were chattering so that they could not hear anything, and they were not looking to see anything. On this stranger came till he found a resting place on the King's shoulder.

New let me tell you something. When this thing happened there was some swift movements among the Tribe of Red Bats. For every bat in that part any where was after the new creature on the King's shoulder. All of them aimed at the state, not and all reached it about the same time. You can surely imagine what happened. They bumped each other on the nose and first one fell to the ground and then the other. But not a one of them harmed the fellow that clung fast to the King.

Some of them tried it the second time, but failed. This fellow seemed as safe as any creature in the Great Forest. None of the Tribe of the Red Bats seemed to understand why it was they couldn't take this fellow from off the King's shoulder. Of course the thing they wanted to do was to eat this harmless creature, but everyone of them failed.

"What is all this trouble about?" said Tinker Bob. "I don't see that anyone ought to be in such haste to harm a creature like this."

They were surprised to hear the King of the Forest talk in this manner. "That fellow is hard to catch," said Reddy Bat, "and we are all very happy when we can catch such a creature, for we don't have to eat for a week after we have captured him."

"That Fellow Is Hard to Catch," Said Reddy Bat.

Reddy Bat, "and we are all very happy when we can catch such a creature, for we don't have to eat for a week after we have captured him."

"You need not try to get him for you can't do it," said Tinker. "Don't you know that no one can harm this fellow while he is clinging to me, the King?"

The Tinker Bob took this fellow from his shoulder and held him in his hand and told them they could try again if they wanted to, and they did it but it was of no use for no one could touch him. Did you ask who this fellow was? Well, he was of the tribe of the Big Forest Beetle, and the Bat family is an enemy of his.

Then there came another creature to the King, and we will see who he was tomorrow.—Why Bats Are Bad.

MULE KICKS MAN WITH 'IRON BEAM,' BREAKS LEG AND DIES A CRIPPLE

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Jan. 27.—The claim of Joseph Jones to hospital attaches that he had "some bean" was borne out today when his story that he had been kicked by a mule on the head, and that as a result the animal was lying helpless with a broken leg, was investigated and found to be true.

GIRL, HIS 'ANNOYER,' TRIES TO DIE BY LEAP

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Miss Beatrice Hebert, twenty-nine, of Montreal, arrested Wednesday night and held in $1,500 bail for "annoying" the man she says she loves, tried to leap from a sixth floor window of City hall.

After the hearing, at which Miss Hebert was held for a further hearing next Thursday, the young woman, who had flown across the Canadian border in an airplane to reach the man she loves, was detained in a cell room until a van should arrive to take her to Moyamensing prison.

NEW YORK BRIDE AT MONTE CARLO WINS $100,000 ON AGE "HUNCH"

Mrs. Harry Schwartz, twenty and prettily, a bride of six weeks, "played her ace" on the roulette wheel at Monte Carlo time after time, starting with a small bet, and finally quit the table with a nest-egg of $100,000. Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz told their story upon arrival from Europe. While the couple were in Monte Carlo Mrs. Schwartz celebrated her twentieth birthday. It occurred to her that a fitting celebration of her twentieth year would be the playing of the number twenty. When Mrs. Schwartz quit playing her "hunch" she had "taken" the bank for $100,000 and the game was closed for the night.

THE JAPANESE QUESTION.

By WARREN F. HICKERNELL, Ph.D.

Director, the Business Conditions Service, Alexander Hamilton Institute.

The sooner we cease talking about the intellectual and economic equality of the Japanese, the more speedily shall we restore our relations with Japan to their formerly friendly basis.

Japanese students who have attended American universities have displayed a high order of intellectual ability and have not suffered by comparison with American students. The Japanese who have engaged in agriculture in California have displayed efficiency in that industry. We might well conclude that it would be a good thing if the entire population of the United States were all Japanese, so far as economic production is concerned.

But that brings up the crux of the matter. Do we want our population a century hence to be all, or even half, Japanese? The Japanese question is entirely one of race and citizenship.

Experience shows that national solidarity is impossible where the population is made up of heterogeneous communities of mixed race and color. If 5,000,000 Chinese should colonize upon the land of the Japanese empire, the Japanese government would be quick to pass laws restricting Chinese immigration. Even granting the intellectual and economic equality of the Chinese, the Japanese government would exclude the Chinese as an act of national self-preservation.

Similarly, if 3,000,000 American whites were to settle on Japanese land and were to show a birth rate higher than that of the Japanese people there would be great alarm in Japan. There would be no question of race equality discussed. The Japanese would merely debate whether they wanted the future control to be in the hands of the Japanese or the white race, and they would vote in favor of the slogan "Japan for the Japanese." That is all that is the matter in California. It is merely a question of whether the land and the government shall continue to be controlled by Americans or by another race.

There could easily be 10,000,000 Japanese in the United States within fifty years if immigration is unrestricted. There would probably be 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 Chinese in the country now if congress had not restricted Chinese immigration in the year 1888. We owe a debt of gratitude to the members of congress who passed that law, not because the Chinese are not economically productive and intellectually capable, but because national achievements can be better realized with a homogeneous population.

Imagine the result of the recent war if the American people had been 30 per cent Chinese and 20 per cent Japanese. They would not have been so largely of one mind and one purpose. They would not have been so inspired by the best in American traditions as they were. Shall the American people continue to be one in heart and soul, or shall this country at the end of the twentieth century see its congress become a League of Nations devoid of national spirit and American traditions?

I had a grate idea for an invention and won Puds Stinkins' came around I sed, Hay Puds, do you want to go in on a swell invention with me? and he sed, Sure, wat? and I sed, Its a invention so wen people wash their teeth it will taist like lemminead and everybody will be washing their teeth all the time on account of the taist and jest think how meny bottles we can sell, holey smooks.

I sed plain lemminead? sed Puds, and I sed, Certenly not your poor fish, its regular tooth stuc with some lemminead juice squeezed in it.

And I went and got a lemminead out of the ice box and we went up in the bath room and squeezed half of it in the bottle of red stuff you need for his teeth, and then we taisted it and it didnt taist jest rite so I got some sugar and put in it, being a good improvement, and Puds took the other half of the lemminead home to put in his fathers tooth stuff, and after suppr pop went in to clean his teeth and I stood outside the bathroom door thinking I mite heer something, wich I did, being pop cawfing and saying Well of all this blamed confounded taists I ever taisted this is the blamed-estest confoundedest, this tooth wash must of some enazy.

Not soundng if he meant it complimentary, and I thawt, Gosh, holey smooks, And I was jest wondering whether to slide down the banisters or go down the back of the stairs wen I herd pop say, Lemminead seeds, by all thats impossible, lemminead seeds. And the bath room door opened quick and pop looked out holding the bottle of red stuff in one hand, saying, So heer you are, are you? Meaning me, and I sed, Wats the matter, pop?

O, youre jest as innocent as a berglar cawt in the act, how dare you try to poison me? sed pop, and I sed, No sir, pop, I did not. I was jest trying to make it taist like lemminead to test a invention and some of the lemminead seeds must of got in wile I wasent looking.

An Advertising Editorial of Interest to Readers

The Women Who Appreciate Good Clothes

It is a praiseworthy ambition to aspire to be well dressed, and the woman who has it possesses one of the essential qualities which contributes largely to success in both the social and business worlds. To be well dressed means no more than to be fittingly gowned for the occasion—whatever it is; and that is an achievement within the reach of every woman who reads these columns.

To be well dressed requires just a little time, a careful reading of the advertisements in this newspaper, and the expenditure of only as much money as a woman wishes to devote to it.

That is to say, clothes may cost extravagant sums, and clothes may be bought at a moderate expenditure. The point in buying them is this: Whatever their cost they should fit the occasion for which they were intended; fit the wearer in style and individuality, and reflect good taste and judgment in selection.

The ablest aid to clothes selection is our advertising columns. Information of what is newest, what is most desirable in mode and fabric, is first found here. If there are price savings to be effected in the purchase of articles this news also comes first through the medium of the advertising columns.

The more time spent in reading "clothes news," the more thought given to the information found in it, the easier and more economical it is to be well dressed.

Women who are wise buyers of good clothes appreciate these facts and are consistent readers of clothes advertisements. Such are the women readers in the prosperous homes reached by the Daily and Sunday Times. They have invaluable and accurate sources of clothes information through both the news and advertising columns.

Fashion hints are frequently given. Featured in the advertising columns daily are the announcements of the shops and stores where the best and newest things in woman's apparel may be found.

All their wants in gowns, hats, shoes, gloves, lingerie and all the dainty accessories which go to make up the wardrobe of the well dressed woman are amply met by the advertising in these columns. It will pay you to shop first here, and afterward over the counter of the shops and stores whose merchandise is offered to you here.

To do so is to make your allowance for "clothes go farthest and to enable you to take your rightful place among better dressed women of the city.

Banquet Given to Employees by Chestnut-Smith

Sixty-two employees and officials of Chestnut & Smith were guests of the company Tuesday night at a theatre party at the Majestic and a banquet later at the Ranger cafe.

At the banquet L. A. Vandervoort, retiring superintendent of the local office, and the incoming superintendent, F. G. Yehere, addressed the banquet. J. E. T. Peters, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, also made a short talk. Mr. Vandervoort will be with the company in Oklahoma.

Both men spoke along the lines of co-operation and gave much credit to the employees for the success of the company in this section. It was such co-operation that had been shown that advanced the interest of their employers and at the same time advanced their own, was a statement made to the guests.

Mr. Peters told the gathering that Ranger was frankly proud of the Chestnut & Smith interests and proud that it could as a city have such men as citizens who made up its working force, both officials and men. He also touched on the good roads move and asked for co-operation from everyone.

The guests at 7:30 o'clock gathered at the offices of the company on Oak street and from that point went in a body to the Majestic.

In the region of Verdun, where 800,000 soldiers fell during the war, about half of whom were French, only 10 per cent of the bodies have been recovered thus far. It is estimated that it will take at least fifteen years of work to exhume the bodies of fallen soldiers.

GIRL IN PIERCE SLAYING ESCAPES MAXIMUM CHARGE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 27.—Marie "Boots" Rogers, the girl who was involved in the murder of Henry T. Pierce, manufacturer, at his apartment on Market street, on the night of Nov. 9, will escape trial on a charge of first degree murder. She was indicted on that charge today, along with Peter D. Treadway and Joseph A. Moss.

Marion Elliott, alias Al Smith, who has not been caught yet, was also indicted on the first degree charge. If caught, he will be tried with Treadway on the first degree charge, while Moss and the girl will be tried merely as accessories.

Treadway, Moss and the girl pleaded "not guilty" when they were brought from Moyamensing prison before Judge McCullen today.

Statements made by Moss, it is said, both at Pittsburgh and here after his arrest, have been fully borne out by investigation. His former employers declare him to be one of the best scale mechanics in the country when sober.

Marie was visited last week in her cell at Moyamensing prison by her mother, who lives in New York. She was told the family would stand by her, but because of lack of funds she could not depend upon them to engage a lawyer for her.

SERVANT PROBLEM STILL VERY ACUTE IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The servant question in France remains as acute as ever and girls who during the war worked in factories are loath to don apron and bonnet. In order to ease the troubles of these housewives seeking servants and in order to afford an opportunity to those girls who are willing to take up house duties, an "association of housewives" has just been founded in Paris which will centralize all the demands of employers and employees and attempt to rid the domestic service of unscrupulous and dishonest servants. The association includes among its members many women of high standing in Parisian society.
