The Blackwell well of Hughes et al, north of the Desdemona district and south of Olden, was shot with 200 quarts. The shot exploded prematurely and the hole bridged. The well has attracted interest on account of its location. It has been bailing oil for some time.

Texas Pacific has brought in a 200 barrel producer in the Strawn shallow sand. It is No. 114 on the Stewart tract and was shot with 280 quarts at from 1,685 to 1,714 feet.

It is drilling in shale at 3,335. It is an offset to Texas company's Gholson No. 8 B 7 is waiting on a shot at 3,515.

Hilburn No. 2 of Foster et al, located in the southwest corner of Eastland county, is making 107 barrels an hour or 2,500 barrels a day, from the deep line at 3,070 to 3,166 feet. It was shot late Thursday with 240 quarts.

The well is about a half mile from Hilburn No. 1 of the same operators. It made better than 600 barrels flush production and is still making good oil.

The Sun company has an offset to the Hilburn No. 2. It is the Hutton No. 1 now fishing for casing at 3,045 feet. With good luck it should be making oil in a few days.

SUNFLOWER BECOMES POPULAR PLANT; BEST FODDER

By International News Service.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 17.—Thousands of acres in this province will resemble gigantic flower gardens this year due to the increased cultivation of sunflowers for fodder. So great a hold has this plant upon the farmers of this district that a company has been formed for the manufacture of silos and named for it.

Six of the big farmers and dairymen of the Prince Albert region have taken up their prolific fodder plant, while the entire landscape will be dotted with patches large and small. The type selected frequently reaches a height of sixteen feet, surrounded by enormous blossoms a foot or more in diameter.

Experiments at Bozeman, Mont., Saskatchewan, Ed., and the Canadian demonstration farm at Strathmore, Alberta, have proved the unqualified success, not only in the yield of ensilage, but also in the quality and quantity of milk and meat.

Last winter at Scott, Sask., cattle fed on a sunflower ration showed a profit of $10 per head more than those fed under similar conditions on the usual fodder ensilage, such as corn, peas and oats.

LIKE THE JOLLY UNDERTAKER, OFFICERS SMILE DURING RITES

Good "red" and "white" liquor which, figuring by bootleg prices in the oil fields, was worth $2,000, was poured upon the ground at the police station yesterday. Thirty gallons of it there was, and without a tremor, Acting Chief of Police Reynolds turned it over bottle by bottle and jug by jug and let it gurgle itself into the thirsty earth. It is supposed that the earth was thirsty from the speed with which the liquor disappeared.

Such occasions are supposed to be sad and mournful as a tragedy, but in this case it did not follow the usual form. Jokes were cracked and at times those gathered around indulged in a laugh but it is well known that undertakers may smile as they attend to their duties and hangmen have been known to laugh merrily as some victim swung gently into space.

It is a hardening of the heart to a duty that must be done. The law says that moonshine liquor must be poured upon the ground and the law is supreme and must be obeyed. Only one incident added a moment of solemnity to the occasion. A visitor was asked that he over turn one bottle of the "joyful fluid." A hint of tears came into his voice as he firmly refused.

Preceding the pouring process the whisky and the still with which it was made were grouped and photographed.

The whisky with the still was captured several days ago by the police department near the edge of the city. Three arrests were made in connection with the case.

Will Make You Laugh, Laugh, Laugh. He is absolutely a scream, in the role of Corporal Luther Green A. E. F., and then as just plain Luther back on the farm. A role which is portrayed as only Chas. Ray, the most natural actor on the screen, can portray them. He really makes you feel as if you were with him. Even the baby can enjoy this one.

Our Sorrel-Topped Side-Whirler Once More Beats Buddies

TWO GAMES AHEAD.

While Adkins was proving once more that he was better than the Buddies, Ableue was dropping the final of the series to the Resorters...

Lefty Adkins did it again to the Gorman gang at Municipal park yesterday afternoon, the second time in three days...

In that series he went out in the final and walloped them. He opened against them here Wednesday...

It was the same yesterday and allowing four hits, he won 3 to 1. He faced another young off-sider, E. D. Baldridge...

Three of the heavy men of the Buddies batting order, Taylor, Gray and Fuller, are right-handers...

Joe Adkins had all his stuff, more than ever before. He had 'em looking funny. The first three, that dreaded trio in the West Texas League...

The one tally against him may be charged to the reliable Joe Tate, who seldom kicks, one in the pinch...

The Nitros made up this in the third. Teet Tolar opened the inning with a Texas Leaguer to center...

Baldridge's Soliloquy "Now is the time," said Mr. Baldridge, to himself "to pass Jim Galloway...

Joe singled past short and Tolar came home. Tommy drove a short single to left and Clopp scored...

Those runs decided the game. Tolar walked in the eighth, advanced on Charlie's sacrifice and scored on Jimmy's double to right...

York was caught off by a snappy peg. Whitney to Sturdy hit Penn, drove out to left. Adkins singled Lovey to third...

Teet Plays Heady Ball Teet's head pulled Lefty out of a hole in the fifth when Burkhead dropped a short double in center...

Again in the seventh, Fuller was on by a hit to first. Gressett rolled a slow one past the box, and Teet took it...

Burkhead and Whitney singled cleanly to open the eighth, and it looked for a moment that the strain of sixteen innings in alternate days was telling on Lefty...

Jim threw out Gray in the ninth and Lefty himself had the pleasure of ending the game by handling Fuller's hot one to the box and then tossing out Gressett... pitched a banner game. He ran up five assists. He covered first on Taylor's wide grounder in the first and Jack York's toss beat the Buddie lead-off man a step.

No more at home until the Nitros return to the Resorters, a week from Monday.

Special to The Times. EASTLAND, July 16.—After Eastland had two runs lead, Cisco indulged in a batting rally and drove in five runs in the eighth and won the game, 7 to 4.

Cheever pitched a good game up to the eighth, allowing only four scattered hits, and the side would have been retired in the eighth unless but for an error and a double play that should have been made and was not.

The election of a new president who is not connected with any of the clubs and changing of the eligibility rules were the most important matters to come before the City league meeting last night.

JAPANESE STAR FUNNY; LAUGHS AT OWN ANTICS

LONDON, July 16.—Mlle. Susanne Lenglen, holder of the women's tennis championship of the world, has solved the style of play of the little Japanese wonder, Shimidzu, who soon will go to the United States to play.

Mlle. Lenglen takes the match between the Japanese and Gobert, the French champion, in which the latter was defeated.

"Although five sets were played before an end could be made, the game was not so good as that," says Mlle. Lenglen.

"Gobert would be the last in the world to wish anyone to make excuses for him, but although he said before the match that he was 'all right,' I knew he was not."

"Gobert fell, and after that he went to the net no more.

"Gobert playing from the back of the court is not Gobert at all.

"But Shimidzu—he is delightful. Only once did he not smile. Gobert's falls worried him as much as they did our champion himself.

"The little Japanese's service is so funny that he laughs at it himself. Monsieur Zeno looks as if he is going to apologize about it all the time. And yet it seems to trouble everybody.

"Surely," I think, as I see a big drive crossing the court, 'surely he will not get it.'

"Yet he is there, smiling as though to say: 'Thank you very much for sending me this one.'

"He might have been waiting in that spot for a year, to judge from his face, but he was certainly on the other side of the court a moment ago.

"How does he do it? I was quite a long time in finding out, because he does not run.

"This is the secret. He dances. I do not know what is the national dance of Japan, but Shimidzu seems to dance all in one place while the court moves under him and brings the ball to him.

"And then he smiles.

"His shot begins at his toes and ends by his trying to hide his head behind his right shoulder, and all the time he smiles.

"It all looks so simple, so impossibly simple. His smash is a push stroke.

"He almost plays it with his racket in both hands. Holding the frame before his face with his left hand, he peeps through the strings and pushes."

The Short Cut Every advertisement in your paper is a short-cut. Advertisements make it possible to tell you in a few minutes all you want to know about the service or articles you need. At a glance you can sift what interests you most and in a moment you know just when and where to go for what you want. Figure how many steps, how much needless walking and talking the advertisements thus save you and your neighbors. Then you realize the great economy and necessity of advertising in your daily life.

THE ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY - AN OPPORTUNITY.

The impending expiration of the present Anglo-Japanese treaty opens up a phase of international relations in which the United States is vitally interested. Opposition to a continuation of the treaty is strongly expressed by the British dominions of Canada, Australia and New Zealand. This opposition reveals the attitude of these countries toward the Japanese as almost identical with that of the United States.

The problem is one of Japanese immigration. The British dominions object to the invasion of their soil by Japanese labor, just as California objects to the invasion. They find in such invasions an accomplished to date a real danger to their standards of living, and a competition which is damaging the prosperity and defeating the ambitions of their own nationals on their own soil. They wish to check it before it becomes a political menace as well as a social and industrial menace.

That Britain recognizes our common interest in the subject is indicated by the report that America probably will be asked if it cares to become a party to the new treaty. At first sight the suggestion might be rejected as meaning entangling alliances. It need not be that. A treaty is not necessarily a defensive or offensive alliance. It may be merely a definition of international relations. In this case it might be merely a diplomatic smoothing out of the points of irritation between the three countries. Of these points of irritation the immigration question is the sorest.

Both Britain and the United States understand that Japan is no longer large enough to house the Japanese. They must find room outside their island. The point, then, is where to find such room. The United States doesn't want them. Canada doesn't want them. Australia and New Zealand do not want them. The natural line of expansion according to the Anglo-American view lies in Asia. If a treaty can be drawn to define this point of view and keep America and the British dominions from the irritation of Japanese industrial and agricultural invasion it will do more to remove a potential cause of another great war than any league of nations that has yet been suggested.

The chief nation of Europe, the chief nation of Asia and the chief nation of the western hemisphere would be bound by an understanding to keep them from warring upon each other. The only other possible source of another great war seems to be the Russian Soviet effort to revolutionize all the governments of the world. Bitterness between France and Germany might some day develop a clash, but the two outstanding possibilities of a great trouble seem to lie in the red peril of the yellow peril.

Britain invites us to participate in a treaty which will eliminate the latter, as a nation will do well to consider most thoughtfully.—Chicago Tribune

CLOTHES IN RANGER.

Ranger has grown past the youthful boyishness which only a short time ago delighted in the unconventionality of dress. Gone are the days when the person with leather puttees and army trousers surmounted by a belted coat and a cap, was held to be clothed to the minute—in "Ranger full dress." Those whose occupation permits it now wear white collars and the other accoutrements which civilization has thrust upon us.

That does not mean that dress makes a man and determines his position—not in Ranger. People now wear and continue to wear the clothing best fitted to the task at hand.

If Jim Jones, the oil magnate, wants to go to dinner and the theatre in his putts and khaki shirt, that's his business. And if Tom Smith, the driller, wants to wear a silk shirt and palm fronds, surmounted by belted coat and a cap, beach trousers white on the job, that's his business.

JOHN-A-DREAMS

LXXII. HOLIDAYS SPENT IN

Dreams in which we are conscious of living through a holiday are rare but full of deep significance. They mean exactly what the vision portrays—making allowances, of course, for some of the queer antics played on our minds when our bodies are at rest.

Let us take an instance. Suppose you dream of Christmas and find yourself standing at a coffin—just this will happen at Yuletide. Suppose it seems to be Easter and you are among merry companions—next Easter will bring much joy into your life. All other interpretations of incidents of any sort, heretofore given, must be disregarded when they are connected with holidays for in these cases life's experiences cast their shadows ahead and your dreams reflect actualities in the future's shining mirror.

There is, however, one exception which must be carefully noted. If some one or figures with particular prominence and distinctness in your dream, that one will be absent at the holiday event of which you are dreaming. Remember these things:

We speak of Merry Christmas, And many a Happy New Year; But each in heart is thinking— Of those that are not here.

If you seem to be celebrating a holiday without being able to identify it, you will enjoy an unexpected vacation.

Answers to Dream Questions. A reader has requested me to differentiate between dreams which are superintended by things to be heard, seen or done and those which are not noted in some recent incident. She desires to know whether both have equal value from the interpretative point of view.

It is evident that they have not, and a submitting dreamer to me for reading a beg that those he omitted which clearly seem to grow from some recent experience. Naturally, unless I am especially informed, I will be unable to tell whether the visions came direct from the subconscious self of the sleeper or "indirectly" by way of a trick of memory.

In the latter case they mean virtually nothing. How could they? Is it not obvious that a vision which is merely a continuance of a waking episode can be nothing but a distortion? Suppose you see five—and the same—eight you dream flames. No doubt the actual experience produced the dream, thus it referred to the past and not to the future, and dreams, "true dreams," are future's messengers, not echoes of the past.

In other words, then, whenever you see a dream which is not noted in some recent event, if you can, discard it as valueless. But if you dream and are unable, despite your best efforts, to connect the vision with something that happened in your waking memory, then you have had a "true dream," one that came from the depths of your mind's eye, and you may rest assured that its prophecy is one that may be believed.

In the next chapter I will tell you of Avarice and Envy.

PREMIUM REFUND DUE IF INSURANCE IS CANCELED

By Associated Press. AUSTIN, July 17.—Insurance companies when calling in policies on which they have paid out insurance on partial losses must refund to the holder a pro rata share of the premium paid in to the company on the unused part of the insurance, according to an announcement by the state fire insurance commission. The announcement stated that it had come to the attention of the commission that companies had in some instances failed to refund unearned premiums when calling in such policies.

SYLVESTER BAND REORGANIZED.

SYLVESTER, Texas, July 16.—Reorganization of the Sylvester municipal brass band, locally famous in Fisher county just before the war, has been perfected, according to Vernon B. Carothers, cashier of the local bank. A director is world, bitterness between France and Germany might some day develop a clash, but the two outstanding possibilities of a great trouble seem to lie in the red peril of the yellow peril.

"Tinker Bob" Stories by Carlyle H. Holcomb

THE KING FINDS RED FOX.

Tinker Bob was not so much surprised as you might think when Jerry the Jay told him that Red Fox was down in the thicket all tangled up in his coat and hat and walking stick. Of course it was the intention of Red Fox to return all of the King's clothing in good shape and put them in the right place, and that is the reason he even tried to carry the walking stick while running after Young Rabbit. It was the walking stick that caused all the trouble.

You see, it was like this. When Jerry made such a fuss, Red Fox was not exactly ready to spring up on Young Rabbit, for he had his back turned toward him, and he had to turn around. And when he did get squared around, he had to carry that walking stick under one arm and run on three feet.

There He Hung With the Stick Fast in a Bush, and He Didn't Know How to Get Out.

When he came to the thicket he was going as fast as three legs would carry him, but the walking stick caught in a small bush and Red Fox stopped so quick that he nearly lost his ears. He wouldn't let go of the stick, however, for fear of losing it. So there he hung with the stick fast in a bush, and he didn't know how to get out.

This was again Jerry's chance, so he went to him and told him that the King would surely punish him for this trick. "Oh," cried Red Fox, "if you will only help me out of this, I will never never do such a thing again, and then he cried and about being frightened—Red Fox could not say a word for he was afraid that his time had come.

"Now Jerry thought he could get a promise out of him under this spell, so he said: 'Will you promise never to hurt me if I help you out of this trouble?' 'Oh indeed I will do anything for you in all this world if you will only help me this once. And I will promise never to ask you again.' Because of this promise Jerry went to the King and told him about Red Fox stealing his clothes.

Now when Red Fox arrived on the scene, Red Fox was still crying. And when he saw that the King was so scared that he didn't know what to do, the King spoke to him, he jumped at though he had been hit with a club.

"Well, Red Fox, you are in trouble again, are you?" the King said. Red Fox could not say a word for he was afraid that his time had come.

"Didn't you know that it was very dangerous to take the King's clothes?" Tinker Bob waited a moment for him to reply, but he said not a word. "All right, Red Fox, if you cannot speak, I will tell you what your punishment will be. On the great Day of Frolic that I have set aside in the Forest, you shall appear in this very same coat and hat which you had when you stole my clothes. You shall walk before all of the Forest Dwellers that they may see the kind of a fellow you are."

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

A City of Mansions Is it New York provincialism to be amused at the conversations one overhears carried on by the visiting middle Westerners, the Woman wonders, or is one justified in chuckling to the extent one does? According to one such conversation overheard by the Woman recently, the middle West must be more respectful than she remembers it and heavenly cheap.

A woman from "Kansas City, Missouri," and a man from some island—Rhode Island or Rock Island or perhaps Long Island—sat on the seat back of the Woman on top of a Riverside bus discussing New York from many standpoints, but chiefly from that of the H. C. L. New York, they said, only too truly, is an expensive place. Chicago is just like New York, except that it is much cheaper.

The island man, who evidently considered himself a man of some wealth, since he was willing to tell the world loudly that he had money enough to stay here all summer, declared you could get four rooms in Chicago for the same you pay for one in New York. Now since it soon developed that the Kansas

City matron was paying her hotel four dollars a day for two rooms and the man was paying his three dollars for one, the Woman submits that Chicago must be much less expensive a place than benighted New Yorkers have been led to suppose.

Why don't we all go there to live? Or to Kan's City, Missouri, which must be a most magnificent town? For as we rounded into the Drive from Seventy-second street and approached the Schwab place the "Kan's City" dame asked the island man whether it was a public institution or a private dwelling. The man with the nonchalant manner of the wise one who knows, said it was a private place of some sort. And his companion said, with the air of having at last found something worthy of her admiration: "Now that is like the houses we have in Kan's City." One got the feeling of boulevards filled with one Schwab place following hard upon another. The Woman wanted to see "Kan's City, Missouri."

His Cheerful Monologue

His voice was the deep booming kind that filled the elevator and rumbled out into the crowded spaces. The Woman heard it for the first time when he belatedly said: "Goin' up! Dis cah ain goin' up! Up, please!" And the Woman stepped from the basement floor into the car.

"Street and main flo!" he roared next, in the heavy gate rolled back. "Move to the back ob de car. Dis cah ain goin' up."

"Messalin' balcony—millinerys and books. Any one out?" "Second flo." Underwear, wearing apparel and shoes. "Dis cah ain goin' up." The woman, amused by the darkey's pronunciation and intonation, decided to stay on to the very top. It was worth while staying on, for at the third floor he announced: "House furnishings, upholsteries, groceries and accounts."

Then followed: "To'th' flo. Furniture, toys and sporting goods." "And then last but not least: 'Bif flo,' last stop. Restaurant—sweet potatoes and strawberry short cake, Ladies waitin' room to yo' right. Pitcher gallery and Mary Antonette SalOON. Dis cah ain goin' down!"

It All Depends on Coney The Mid-Victorian Lady was making ready to leave New York for her cottage in the mountains and she wrote to Viola, a maid who had been with her the season before, asking if she would come again. Viola called on the Mid-Victorian lady promptly.

"At reckon Ah ought to go long with you, cause las' season Ah said Ah would. But Ah'm not sure Ah wants to go to the country this summer. My mind hits on the fence," said Viola.

"When will you make up your mind one way or the other?" asked the Mid-Victorian Lady. "Because if you don't come with me I'll have to engage some other girl."

"Well, said Viola, as her dusky eyes rolled heavenwards, "Ah ain't been to Coney Island yet. Ah ain't never seen it and Ah been livin' 'Noth mos' a year an' a half. Jus' as soon as Ah kin go out an' see Coney Island Ah kin make up my mind. Ah'll let you know sure if you can spec' me just as soon as Ah see Coney."

ROCK OF AGES USED TO CALM COWS FOR MILKING

GREENSBURG, Pa. July 16.—Cows are being milked to the calming strains of the old hymn "Rock of Ages" by John Leighty, wealthy dairyman of East Huntingdon, who purchased two highly bred Holsteins a few days ago. He found he had two of the worst kickers in the country on his hands. How to reform them kept him awake nights until he saw an old Austrian woman swarm bees to a hive by placing a phonograph on top of it and grinding out jazz music.

Leighty started a jazz tune on his phonograph and began to milk one of the new cows. Tossing her head, the cow began to prance. Leighty then tried the old hymn, "Rock of Ages." Bossie settled comfortably on her feet and a great calm came over her.

Jewish Relief in Europe Takes Immense Sum

New York, July 17.—More than $31,000,000 has been expended in American Jewish Relief work in Eastern Europe and various war-affected areas throughout the world since aid for Jewish war sufferers was organized shortly after the outbreak of the war, a report of the Joint Distribution Committee, made public today shows.

Most of the funds which the committee spent in thirty-three countries and territories, was raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee, of which Louis Marshall is chairman. During the past eighteen months, when the committee carried on non-sectarian campaigns throughout the United States under the direction of Henry H. Rosenfeld, the first time in the history of the Jewish people that they ever went outside their own race to ask for aid, over $16,000,000 was raised.

Poland Gets Half

Poland, together with Lithuania and Courland, received almost half the appropriations, $14,784,908.76. Palestine, with $4,345,337.38, and Russia, with $4,323,247.42 followed. In Austria-Hungary and Balcan $3,323,310.52 was expended; in Greece, Turkey, Serbia and Syria $1,542,909.79, and in Rumania $1,218,150.86.

Soup kitchens, milk stations, supplying of clothing, food and medicines, and other emergency relief measures necessary to save war sufferers from annihilation by starvation and disease comprised the major part of American Jewish Relief work. With conditions becoming better in many localities, except in those parts of Eastern Europe where fighting is still going on or where the countries have not yet been opened for relief work, the committee is going more and more into reconstructive and rehabilitative relief, it announced. The recent $5,000,000 appropriation to carry out a reconstructive programme in Eastern Europe in order that the people who have been saved from starvation may now become self-supporting, marks a definite change from palliative relief measures, except in cases of extreme emergency like in the Ukraine and Russia, the report states.

Sewing machines, tools and raw materials have been sent to Poland and other Eastern European countries; loans have been made to workmen and shopkeepers to establish them on a productive basis again, and factories and homes damaged by the war have been repaired, the report shows.

PROFESSOR TO ADDRESS MATHEMATICS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Texas, July 16.—The mathematical association of America has asked Edward L. Dodd, associate professor of actuarial mathematics at the University of Texas, to deliver an address at a meeting in Chicago on Sept. 6. The subject of this address will be, "The Plan of Pensions and Insurance Suggested by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching."

Mr. Dodd is a member of the executive council of the mathematical association of America, and is an associate editor of its official publication, "The American Mathematical Monthly."

ITALIAN KICKS WHEN ARMY CLERK CHANGES HIS SEX

Some idea of the part which America's Italian immigrants played in the war may be gathered from the fact that the bureau of war risk insurance handled 80,000 monthly allowances to Italian families here and abroad. Thirty thousand of these allowances totalling $500,000 were sent each month to dependents in Italy, where they helped materially to alleviate the miseries of the war, although the failure of some soldiers to spell correctly the names of their Italian villages, or to designate specifically the allottees, prevented or delayed the delivery of some of these checks by the clerks in Washington caused by the clerks in Washington changing the gender of names, as the following letter from a perturbed but determined Italian father will testify:

"The distressing change of my sex made by you prevents me from cashing my check. I let you know that I am a man, and therefore my name is Alessandra, with "a" at the end. The bank does not accept my explanations. I shall write you every week till you correct your mistake."

Another source of confusion was misunderstanding by the allottees of the bureau terminology to the question, "What is your relationship to the soldier," wives frequently replied: "Our relations are very cordial, such as beloved wife and husband."

The knowledge that their government would provide for their wives and children was a great solace to the Italian soldiers and their letters announcing the precautions taken were often a curious mixture of humor and pathos, as may be seen by the following:

"My beloved wife: I inform you that I have taken an insurance policy for 50,000 lire. If I die, you will be rich. Don't go, however, as you are accustomed, telling this to the neighbors. It may be that I shall not die, and then you will receive nothing. If I die, you will get 50,000 lire, will care for Peppino, and thing from time to time of me."

Indications are that the coming elections in Rhode Island there will be more women voters than men.

PHYSICIANS TOLD HOW TO INSPECT RATS FOR PLAGUE SIGNS

AUSTIN, July 17.—In order that all physicians in the state may be fully acquainted with methods to employ in the examination of rats for evidence of bubonic plague germs, the state health department has issued the following information:

"Take rats and tuck them upon boards with legs spread to widest angle, and assistant incising and reflecting the skin. Examine skin carefully for discoloration, pathological conditions and glands for buboes or other evidence of disease. Open cavities and examine for effusions and pathological lesions. If any suspicious lesions are found make cultures, guinea pig inoculations and microscopic examinations. Use salt agar media for growing bacilli. See all before announcing opinion. After autopsies and laboratory processes burn all rats in the furnace of some commercial plant."

ABSENTEE VOTERS' PLEDGE FIXED BY TERRELL LAW

AUSTIN, July 17.—County clerks throughout the state are not legally required to make an absentee voter take any additional pledge other than that prescribed in the Terrell election law, held the attorney general's department in an opinion to Fred C. Malone, county clerk of Travis county.

The Travis county Democratic executive committee has inserted on the official ballot in this county an additional pledge to which voters must subscribe when they offer to vote in the primary election on July 24. County Clerk Malone took the position that he was not required to insist upon absentee voters making this additional pledge, and he was sustained by the attorney general's department. This opinion affects all counties where additional pledges have been prescribed for the voters.

To the Voters of Eastland County, Texas Eastland, Texas, July 12, 1920.

Dear Friends—Mr. W. V. Dunham, of Eastland, who is a candidate for the office of County Attorney of Eastland county, was very suddenly taken with acute appendicitis some days ago and was compelled to undergo an operation for same, and he is now confined to the sanitarium on account of the operation, and although he is doing nicely as could be expected, he is not very likely to be able to be out among the voters of the county any more before the July primaries, and for fear some might not understand why Mr. Dunham is not active in his campaign and might even conclude that he is out of the race, his friends take this method of informing the voters of the county that Mr. Dunham is still a candidate for the office of County Attorney of Eastland county, and will be in the race to the end, and is still confident of victory. All he asks is that you do not forget that he is still in the race, and that you give him a fair consideration.

Mr. Dunham's many friends feel very confident that he will be elected. Perhaps the main reason they feel that way about it is that they know Mr. Dunham, and they know him to be a very capable and active young lawyer, and further, that he is fearless and has no favorites and will have none when it comes to enforcing the law. That is what Eastland county needs, especially now since the oil boom has come to the county and with it a wave of criminals and consequent crime.

Another good point in Mr. Dunham's favor is that he is full of energy to the brim, and is such that he will not spare himself when it comes to doing well and work he might undertake. If he is elected to this place he pledges you that he will give his personal attention to enforcing the laws of the state, and if it is
