LEARN THE TRUTH ABOUT BOWEL WORMS

The signs are misleading. Nobody is sure to escape. Worms can make real trouble. Anybody, anywhere, can catch roundworms. Do watch out for these signs in your child or yourself: uneasy stomach, nose-itching, loss of weight, itchy seat, nervousness. Get Jarn's Vermifuge if you ever suspect roundworms. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Jarn's is America's best known prophylactic worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. So, play safe! insist on Jarn's Vermifuge.

What Is Advertising Anyway?

A lot has been written about advertising.
A lot of speeches have been made about it.
But the whole fact in a nutshell is—advertising is simply a time-saver.
It saves time for the man or woman who wants to buy something — and for the store or factory with something to sell.
And like most time-savers, it's a money-saver too.

'Squirming Politicians' Get Lashes From W. Lee O'Daniel

WACO, June 3 (AP) — Wiscracking about the weather that unleashed a torrential rain upon his first open-air rally of the senatorial campaign, Governor W. Lee O'Daniel last night simultaneously charged that one of his opponents was "spending $250,000 to get elected."

After the cloudburst drowned out his musicians, who played "Beautiful Texas" through the worst of the storm to hold a dispersing crowd, O'Daniel began speaking 45 minutes later than schedule. Hard rain drove in under the dome of the re-painted sound truck from which he opened his campaign for votes in the June 28 special election.

In addition to the big van, two smaller sound trucks were added to his touring equipment, and his libbily band included ten musicians. Pat, Mike and Molly O'Daniel stood in the rain with their father.

The band played "It Ain't Going to Rain No More."

"This is a mighty fine little summer shower," O'Daniel said. "But we're not going to pass the barrels tonight. They're not rain barrels." O'Daniel said a "pay-off squad" of men benefitting from big federal contracts was disbursing the money he charged was being spent for one of his opponents, whom he did not name.

"I want to go to Washington to help the president," he said.

"I don't see how he gets along at all, he is so surrounded by the little measley, squirming politicians."

O'Daniel charged that "not one" of the members of the Texas delegation in congress "had had the nerve to introduce a bill to stop strikes." He said he had sent copies of his anti-defense strike bill to every member of the delegation.

"I can promise you I will introduce it if the minute I hit the senate floor."

"I may not know where to hang my hat — I may not even have a hat when I get there — but I do know how to introduce a bill," he said.

The governor claimed Texas soldiers were training at Camp Bowie with broomstick guns.

"Texas has done more for national defense than any other state," he said, "but we haven't scratched the surface yet."

"There is no sense in trying to whip Hitler with broomsticks. This shutting down on defense factories by communistic labor leaders must stop."

The candidate said he could "do more good for Roosevelt before breakfast" than any of his opponents, explaining that he knew his place and would stick to it, as a legislator, when he got to Washington.

New Speed Statute Is Ruled Invalid

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today held unconstitutional a law, passed by the present session of the legislature, raising the legal speed limit of motor vehicles.

Mann's opinion said the act "contains substantive matter not germane or pertinent to the law which it purported to amend."

Rep. James A. Stanford of Austin, one of the bill's authors, said an incorrect reference was made in the caption of the bill.

A new bill, exactly like the other except that the error has been corrected, has been prepared and passed through a house committee, Stanford asserted.

Sherrod Gets Full Carload Of Servels

Proof of the prosperity and the rising standard of living in West Texas homes is abundantly shown by the announcement this week by B. Sherrod Supply Co., that they are unloading a solid carload of Servel Electrolux refrigerators this week. It is also proof of the enthusiasm with which the recent announcement made by this dealer of a roomy, six cubic foot Servel Electrolux for a new low price has been received.

This announcement followed by only a few weeks the even more startling announcement that all 1941 Servel Electrolux gas refrigerators were to be backed by an ironclad 10-year guarantee. This guarantee clearly provides for replacing any and all parts of the refrigerating system of the 1941 gas refrigerator, any time within ten years from installation — for its original purchaser, the purchaser to pay only the small labor charge which would be required.

No other refrigerator manufacturer has matched this amazing guarantee on Servel Electrolux up to this time. "This," said the Big Spring dealer, "is without doubt because of the basic difference between Servel Electrolux and other standard refrigerators. Servel is the one automatic refrigerator — the only one — with no moving parts in its freezing system. In other words, with nothing whatever to wear, to make noise, nor to steadily increase operating costs due to its losing efficiency. Many owners in West Texas still have Servels in constant daily use, and have for the past 10, 12 or 13 years, and that cost not one cent more to operate today than when new."

Appointments In Washington Often Stop-Gap

WASHINGTON, June 2 — The arrival in Washington of America's most recently appointed senator, Andrew Jackson Houston, was greeted here with a considerable amount of curiosity over the bearer of such an historic name but with a full understanding of the political motivations which caused Governor W. Lee O'Daniel to make the appointment. Stop-gap appointments of this kind are a fairly well-known political device here.

The usual manner of filling a senatorial vacancy is for the governor to appoint a good man to the office. In a spirit of fair play, however, stop-gap appointments are occasionally resorted to so that no contestant will be given an advantage. Such was the appointment in 1937 of Mrs. Dixie Bibbs Graves, the wife of the Georgia governor, to fill the unexpired term of Justice Black such also was the appointment in 1935 of Mrs. Ross Long to fill her husband Huey's unexpired term.

Another type of stop-gap appointments are those which are obviously political wherein the governor appoints a foil to keep the seat warm until he himself can run. Such political maneuvering, however, are not always successful. The most recent parallel to the present stop-gap appointment of the Texas governor was the attempt by Governor Charles Bryan, of Nebraska, to save the senate seat for himself in 1933. When a vacancy occurred in the senate that year upon the death of Senator Howell, Bryan appointed an ancient Nebraska octogenarian to the seat, knowing that this appointee would give him no trouble, but when election time came, Bryan failed to receive the democratic party's nomination.

Observers here have been speculating whether the Houston appointment will enable Governor O'Daniel to control the senate seat for himself or whether — and this seems most likely — the appointment will not be a boomerang. It has been pointed out that the defense effort requires men in congress who know what is happening, and after the Houston appointment, among other things, many in Washington are doubtful that the Texas governor realizes the gravity of the world crisis. One Texas paper quoted in Washington is near the mark when it suggests that President Roosevelt is "probably irritated with O'Daniel for having sent him a way time senator aged eighty-seven to help him whip Hitler."

President Threatens To Veto Farm Appropriation Measure

Opposes Plan To Put Floor Under Prices

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt, authoritative sources reported today, will veto the bill carrying funds for the 85 per cent parity loan agriculture program. It congress insists on attaching an amendment fixing minimum prices for government purchases of farm products.

Mr. Roosevelt, these sources said, was so opposed to the minimum price legislation that he would reject it regardless of the vital importance of the measure in which it happened to be incorporated.

As matters now stand, they declared, the situation is this: No funds were provided in the recently enacted law making 85 per cent parity loans mandatory on this year's wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice crops.

Funds would be provided, however, by a measure now pending before the house banking committee. As it stands this legislation would authorize an increase of $1,000,000,000 in the lending power of the Commodity Credit Corporation so the parity loans could be financed. (Carl B. Robbins, the corporation's president, said yesterday this amount would have to be upped at least $242,000,000 more to provide the necessary loan funds.)

But congressional farm leaders are working to tack on to this bill an amendment which would forbid use of agriculture department funds for purchases of farm products at prices less than 85 per cent of parity.

(Parity is the price that theoretically would give the farmer the same return on his crops, in terms of purchasing power, as he received in the base years 1909-14.)

Agriculture department officials said a price fixing amendment would seriously interfere with programs under which surplus products are being bought for Great Britain and for distribution among needy families in this country.

When Paper Says Rain, Reader Receives Word Of Skilled Army Of Weather Men

"Well, I see the paper says rain." That remark is about as common as the coming of the morning mail in this country, for virtually every newspaper carries a paragraph or a few paragraphs on the front page telling of the weather conditions likely to prevail during the next 24 hours.

Strictly speaking, the newspaper does not say it is going to rain, or be fair, or turn cold, or what have you. No one on the newspaper's staff is skilled in weather prediction. Indeed, the paper quotes a source much more reliable—the weather bureau.

The weather bureau is by far the best means we have of forecasting tomorrow's weather. Indeed, it is about the only means, outside of plain guessing.

For hundreds of years people have tried in vain to devise an instrument that would do a satisfactory job of forecasting the weather. Remember the miniature houses we used to sit on the mantel? An old witch came out one door if rain was to come; a fair maid out the other if weather was to be fair. These gadgets told if the witch was damp at the time, but the witch knew nothing about tomorrow's weather.

The most useful of these devices is the barometer. Years ago there was no better method of forecasting the weather and many barometers were marked "stormy, rain, change, fair, dry." We know now that those old barometers meant little. A barometer reading in any one place is not a good indication of tomorrow's weather.

But when many of these barometer readings, covering a large area, are entered on the weather map they are of great value. So all over the United States a small army of men and women go at appointed times each day to their posts to read instruments and record the various elements that make up the weather. These observers send in their reports to central stations by telegraph, teletype, telephone and radio. Observations are exchanged with Canada and Mexico.

Within two hours after an observation, each of the weather forecast offices in the nation has a complete list of readings entered on its weather map.

It is necessary to also have information as to the conditions avoc the earth's surface. Small balloons are freed and observed as they rise, to give a measure of air currents at different levels. Larger balloons carry miniature weather and radio stations aloft and send back signals of weather conditions high above the ground.

When all the observations are entered, the weather forecaster studies this momentary picture of the everchanging weather situation, examines previous maps to see what changes have taken place, then attempts to visualize what this complex picture of the atmosphere over the United States will be like during the next 24 or 26 hours.

He calls into play a mass of scientific knowledge, most of which is based on accurate records kept over many years. His "guess" as to tomorrow's weather is more accurate than anyone else can make, simply because he has more information at hand and more training in meteorology.

It isn't an easy task. Abruptly the weather may begin to move with unusual rapidity or it may slow down and become almost stagnant. Rain may fall, as predicted, in some spots while others

Launch Campaign On Mosquitoes

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—An attack on mosquitoes has been launched by the state health department to prevent possible malaria epidemics in army camp areas.

Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, said 19 trucks and a large supply of oil for use in spraying had been donated to the department and would be distributed to health units in military areas. He said $200,000 had been allotted to the army for malaria prevention inside army camps.

Eight Complaints On Liquor Sales

Eight complaints charging sale of liquor without a permit at Mary's cafe, on the Lamasa road on the north edge of Big Spring, have been filed in county court.

Signed by Deputy Sheriff R. L. Wolf, the charges are made against Virgie Rodriguez (three complaints), Mary Ingram, Jose Hernandez (three complaints) and Andrews Ceniceros and are identical in wording. They allege in each case sale of liquor to W. R. Russell, who is an agent of the Texas liquor control board. All offenses are alleged to have occurred Sunday.

County Judge Walton Morrison, in whose court the complaints were filed, fixed bond at $500 each for Mary Ingram and Andrews Ceniceros and $200 in each case for Virgie Rodriguez and Jose Hernandez.

PRESIDENT WILL EXTEND ATLANTIC PATROL

WASHINGTON, June 3 — Thus far, the president has taken only one concrete step to implement the policy laid down in his message to the nation. He has reinforced and extended the Atlantic fleet's patrol...

too small to make the patrol really useful. Third, the Atlantic fleet has now been reinforced, however, and he patrol has been extended. The reinforcement was decided on shortly before the president's message to the nation...

Individual and business courtesy has been stressed in these columns as an essential for building a better city; yet this is but half of the picture. Equally important is community or collective courtesy.

hind his desk. His dark rugged face was blank and unfriendly, after its flash of surprise. All right. Open instead of secret unfriendliness was a relief.

"What can I do for you, Mrs. Dane?" he asked stiffly. "What you promised before I married Martin. I want a job."

"I'm sorry if cafe-society has pulled; but the institute has a principle against society volunteers."

"My marriage is washed up. I want a paid job. She hurried on before he could refuse again. "You were right about my being a fool to want to marry him. He did it the same way he brought home two snow leopards once. Just wanted to see what a gold digger was like close to. I won't take a cent from him. I've written him so over my signature. Captain's down there, he spilled it all to her. I was just a slight break in their lifelong engagement. Mr. Delevan, you hate me as much as you do Caroline, but you have a stake in getting me a job here under another name, freeing Martin from me quietly. Find me work. Handle the divorce without telling Martin where I am."

Lewis was around the desk. His deep magnetic voice suddenly warm. "Eileen, I do believe in you now! I always knew you could be this sort at bottom. I never hated you. I'll help you, guide you, show you how to help others."

She stood over her, tall and rugged, taking both her hands. She left the office, to return next day, with Lewis Delevan's deep voice ringing hearteningly in her ears. "You're going to have a new life, a worthwhile life, full of big things, not little personal ones."

As she stared at the bright subway cards, sitting wedged between a fat Negro woman and a long-bearded old man in sweat-soaked clothes, she suddenly wanted the little personal things in a terrible backwash of feeling. Martin's soft laugh, his amused voice in her ears, his face against hers. Not believing any good of her, just taking what he would get from an affectionate little adventuress... "Sweet kid."

She braced, and made herself stop hearing that voice. A new life. A worth-while life. To be continued.
