Yes, Virginia, somebody does win

Ever see those stories in the newspaper each year about unclaimed funds due them?

You see a list of names and wonder what funds are due them, or if the whole thing is some kind of hoax. Anyway, that's the way I've always looked at them.

Recently, the Tribune ran its annual list from the state of Texas of folks who apparently had a refund due them.

Then, last Friday, Cleo Fulton wandered into the newspaper. Cleo, of Floydada, farmed south of Farwell (near the Kalbas farm) in the late 1950s. An old Farwell friend had seen his name in the Farwell list and sent him the article in the mail.

His curiosity aroused, Cleo came to the Tribune to see what we might make of it. I told him I didn't know what type of refund might be due him but the best way to find out was to call the state treasurer. So he asked me to make the call while he waited.

After getting the usual "all lines are busy, please hold on" for several minutes, we finally got through. I told the gal who answered that I was making the call for Cleo and asked her to find out why his name was on that list.

A few minutes later, the gal returned to the phone and asked exactly where Cleo had lived while in Farwell.

"On a rural route," I replied. "Did he receive West Texas Rural Telephone Service?" she asked.

I relayed that question to Cleo, who nodded affirmatively. And before I could tell the gal that, Cleo jumped up with, "Why, I bet it's that $50 deposit that I never got a refund for! When I left Farwell, I still hadn't gotten that deposit back!"

So the gal gave Cleo the name of the fellow at West Texas Rural Telephone to see in Hereford. And it looks like Cleo is going to get his long-due refund. What's 25 years anyway?

A lady stopped by from Muleshoe Friday. Seems like a historical group there is planning a Celebrity Auction. They heard about the one in Farwell last year and will be doing something along those lines.

I gave her our book on celebrity names and addresses and told her how folks worked together here to make ours a success. I'm sure Muleshoe's will be a success, too.

We received a nice letter last week from Mrs. Duncan Williams, a former Texico resident who now lives in Lynwood, Calif.

After reading a recent column about the Hassel murders in 1926, she wrote to say she was 12 years old at the time.

"My mother, Leona (Randol) Osborne kept the papers telling all about it. I still have them and one is dated Dec. 30, 1926 telling all about it. I also have another Tribune telling of his sentence. And I have a Clovis Journal telling of the murders Hassel committed in California.

"I enjoy reading the Tribune and know a lot of old-timers still living there. My aunt Mrs. Ebb Randol still lives there. I grew up in Texico and my dad had a store - Osborne Mercantile Store - in Farwell. He also ran an elevator and was a grain buyer.

"I married and in 1941 moved to Lynwood. I have lived here ever since. I knew the "Hop" Grahams, Andersons and all the old-timers."

We had old friends from Virginia stop by Saturday. The man, who works for the Army, is now in charge of a team that handles "control" for contracts with civilian firms.

When he told me that, I immediately jumped him about the Armed Forces paying $500 for a hammer and other such silliness.

The way he explained it was that previously, civilians were hired to check contracts and some didn't have the proper understanding of contract language. So instead of checking to make sure the government was getting its money's worth at decent prices, they were just checking to make sure the items ordered were delivered.

Anyway, now there are "control teams" that specialize in contracts

Twin City officials hear economic presentation

Twin City officials, along with those from Portales and Clovis, attended a presentation on economic development Monday night at the Farwell Community Center.

Twenty-eight city officials and those involved in economic development programs participated. The presentation was given by Jonathan Krebs, manager of Farwell Development for Southwestern Public Service.

The meeting was an outgrowth of a discussion at last month's Farwell City Council meeting when the topic of development was raised. Jim Martin, manager of the SPS office in Clovis, was at the session and volunteered to help put on a presentation.

Among those present were Texico Mayor John R. Hadley, Texico Chamber of Commerce Secretary Ann Cooper, Farwell City Clerk Janie Bowery and Farwell Councilmen Martin Kube, Curtis Smith, Elizabeth Phillips and Ysleta Kitrell.

After the meeting, some of the Farwell councilmen indicated that they might call a meeting of various Farwell groups, such as the Chamber of Commerce and Farwell Development Corp., to discuss economic development.

The purpose of the Monday meeting was to hear an explanation of how economic development occurs. It noted that large cities have different goals than small towns.

Among the points that Krebs made were:

--If Farwell were to seek new firms, it should concentrate on businesses that employ from 5 to 10 people.

--Farwell and Texico should embrace Triad, the area industrial group.

--Communities need educated labor forces to handle jobs that open, like computers.

--Questionnaires should be sent to residents to get their views on economic development. What kinds of businesses would they like to see? Is more housing needed? What kind?

--It would be good if Farwell had an industrial site ready in case a prospect for Clovis or Portales would prefer to locate in Texas.

Also at the meeting, Don Williams, president of Farwell Development, noted how Farwell's main street has gone downhill. He suggested improving the thoroughfare as a project.

Krebs also noted how some folks say, "We like it the way it is; we don't want change." Krebs said towns are always changing, and the economy changes daily.

Hard-boiled eggs in pockets kept their hands warm

A.B. (Dutch) Bell came to the Texico-Farwell area with his family in 1907.

His family moved from Petersburg, Ind. when he was one. The family moved by train with all their goods. They bought a farm six miles south of Texico. Over the years there were 12 children in all.

They lived in a large dugout. They had no electricity, just coal oil lamps and woodburning stoves. They raised row crops, cows, horses and had an orchard.

He attended Locust Grove school, which only had one room. Bell also attended the Pleasant Hill school. He walked to school sometimes, and rode on a spotted mule other times.

While in school he played some baseball. Bell said, "I really didn't have much time for what sports they had." Both he and his wife picked cotton a lot instead of attending school.

Ethlene Bell came to Texico from Crosby County. She lived in Texas until 12 years of age. She lived in Colorado for two years and then came back to Farwell in 1929.

She lived with her aunt from Dickens, and rode horseback to school.

She said, "I carried hard-boiled eggs in my pockets. It was a good way to keep my hands warm. When I rode in a buggy, we used heated bricks to keep our feet warm." In January 1934, the Bells married.

They farmed for awhile, and Bell ran a truck for farmers. He drove a Model A Ford. He also worked as a carpenter and mechanic. For about two or three years, he worked at Henderson Elevators, loading trucks and moving sacks.

They moved to Hereford and lived on a ranch for a short time, then went to Colorado. They kept their milk in the watering trough and raised chickens. They had an icebox that you had to buy ice for.

They came back to Texico. They really liked the area. They've been in Texico since 1945.

A.B. AND ETHLENE BELL

They moved into a small house not far from where they live now in Texico in 1945. It had one bedroom, bath, kitchen and living room for seven of them. They raised chickens, cows and cured their own meat.

Five children have been raised by the Bells: Katherine of Austin; Weldon of Longmont, Colo.; Carol of Portales; Merlene of Texico and Darlene of Portales, - twins.

When the twins started to school, Mrs. Bell started to work at the Texico cafeteria in 1954.

Mrs. Bell retired as cafeteria supervisor in 1985. Upon retiring she received a plaque from the school. She has head cook 21 years.

She has seen three generations of children go through the school. Bell was custodian for the Texico schools from 1957 to 1971, when he retired.

They both enjoy riding horses, bike riding and Mrs. Bell enjoys embroidery.

They are members of the First Baptist Church of Texico.

They have nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Changing careers is not unusual

Editor's note: This article begins a periodic series by John Grigsby, Farwell school superintendent, on education.

Recent studies show that the average citizen will change careers (not jobs) three times during their working lifetime. We are rapidly changing from a mineral-oriented state to a technological manufacturing state. Thus, students must be more adaptable, flexible and versatile in order to cope with drastic career changes.

Most of the future openings will be in the service and trade sectors. According to the new studies, many of the specific jobs which will be "targeted" in the next decade including nursing, truck drivers, delivery persons, housekeepers, (commercial and domestic) child care workers, mechanics, repairmen, cooks, waiters, cashiers, sales clerks and restaurant managers.

Other fast growing occupations will involve paralegal workers, computer specialists, technicians and engineers concentrating on computers and electronics.

Education

It appears that, in Texas, the vocational schooling of the future will be "a lot about a little." Students will still be offered broad prerequisite skills in home economics and vocational education. But, the primary focus of state vocational funding will be in the training of students on specific job skills, designed for paid employment in targeted areas.

Students will receive specific training for "targeted areas." (as determined by state-wide and regional plans) State vocational funding will not be based on the number of students in the program, but on the number of students trained to actually go into that specific field as a paid worker.

Brewer Class issues checks

The Brewer Class Distribution Project began issuing 54,647 checks totalling $3,094,366.87 representing payment of claims for a share of $75.5 million in settlement funds received in the New Mexico Natural Gas Antitrust Litigation.

Texico is included in these payments.

"There are two types of claims," stated Anthony C. Leonard, Class Manager. "The first is from people who did not receive a check in our first mailing last fall and who believed they were included in the Brewer Class. The second type of claim is from persons who did receive a check in the mailing last fall but who had lived at other eligible service addresses not covered by that check."

The claims checks complete the first half of the Brewer Class distribution which, with the checks mailed last fall, totals $30.5 million.

The Brewer Class includes single meter residential customers of Gas Company of New Mexico who had purchased natural gas at any time from July, 1976 through March, 1984. Payments to each member are calculated based on the amount of gas purchased during that period.

After the completion of the claims check mailing, which is expected to take about a week, the Distribution Office will handle inquiries relating to the claims checks.

40 sign up for Camp Fire Youth

Tuesday afternoon, 40 boys and girls, signed up for Camp Fire Youth. The leaders for the clubs are: 1st grade - Ruth Ann Bennett and Cindy Bowery; 2nd grade - Rhonda Kirkland and Debbie Sewell; 4th, 5th 6th grades - Sudie Foster. Camp Fire is a national organization developed in 1910. The organizational headquarters for Farwell is located in Hereford.

The purpose of Camp Fire is to provide, through a program of informal education, opportunities for youth to realize their potential and to function effectively as caring, self-directed individuals, responsible to themselves and to others; and, as an organization, to seek to improve those conditions in society which affect youth. Through Camp Fire, youth learn how to function in groups, how to make things happen, how to make decisions, how to plan, how to get things done. Camp Fire thus prepares children to take their place in the community to make things happen through and with others.

Anyone interested in information concerning Camp Fire Youth or wants to sign up call any of the leaders or Sudie Foster at 825-3707 or Cindy Bowery at 481-3392.

Being safe

If you are at home and you suspect someone is trying to break in:

-If possible, leave the house immediately. If necessary, escape by a window or back door.

-Call the police.

-If confronted by an intruder:

*Try remaining as calm and confident as possible.

*Consider your own and your family's well-being the highest priority.

*Choose the strategy (e.g., negotiating, fleeing, screaming, fighting) that seems safest and most effective relative to the situation that you are in.

Scott cited for performance

Clovis Police Dispatcher Diane Scott was selected by the Board of Supervisors as the Officer of the Month for February.

Police Chief Caleb Chandler said, "On Jan. 15, 1986 an aircraft was stolen from Clovis Municipal Airport. On Feb. 13, the aircraft was found in South Carolina. The emergency dispatcher from South Carolina called Clovis and advised emergency dispatcher Diane Scott that they were having difficulty confirming that the aircraft was stolen, through the National Crime Information Center Computer."

"Scott talked the dispatcher through on the proper procedure in running an aircraft through the computer."

"Because of Scott's knowledge of the NCIC system the aircraft was confirmed as stolen and a suspect that stole the aircraft was apprehended. Scott's dedication to duty and outstanding performance is to be commended."

Mrs. Scott is a Farwell resident.

Directors

Fannin and his army surrender to a Mexican force

1836: THURSDAY, MARCH 17. In a marathon session that lasted until 4 o'clock this morning, the Convention meeting in Washington-on-the-Brazos completed its work on a Constitution for the Republic of Texas, and elected members of an ad interim government to lead the country until the Constitution is ratified.

President Burnet, a former impresario, said in a brief inaugural address: "The Alamo has fallen! The gallant few who so long sustained it have yielded to the overwhelming power of numbers; and if our intelligence be correct, they have perished not in vain! The ferocious tyrant has purchased his triumph over one little band of heroes at a costly price; and a few more such victories would bring down speedy ruin upon himself."

The Convention failed to ratify the loans made by the commissioners in New Orleans at the beginning of this year, and authorized President Burnet to handle the matter. The Convention then adjourned sine die. According to Colonel William F. Gray, who attended the sessions, "The members are now dispersing in all directions, with haste and in confusion. A general panic seems to have seized them. Their families are exposed and defenseless, and thousands are moving off to the east."

1836: SUNDAY, MARCH 20. Colonel J.W. Fannin and the entire Texian army under him, consisting of almost 400 men, today surrendered to a Mexican force more than twice that size, headed by General Jose Urrea. They have been fighting for two days in an open area about a mile south of Coletto Creek, on the road between Goliad and Victoria.

It is understood that the terms of surrender are most honorable. The Texians will be treated as prisoners of war, and their private property will be respected, except that side arms must be given up. They will be sent to the port of Copano, and from there they will be shipped to the United States within eight days. The agreement was drawn up in both English and Spanish, and signed by both commanding officers. The prisoners were then marched to Goliad, where they arrived at sunset today. A large number of wounded Texians, including Colonel Fannin, are still en route.

Colonel Fannin was ordered by General Sam Houston as long ago as March 11 to destroy the La Bahia fort at Goliad and fall back to Victoria "as soon as practicable." He delayed for a number of reasons, and finally set out yesterday morning after a scouting party on the previous day had engaged a unit of the advancing enemy forces. In that incident, the enemy made a precipitate retreat, thus seeming to confirm Fannin's conviction that they would not dare to attack him during the march to Victoria.

Yesterday morning scouts reported that the Victoria road was clear, and Fannin ordered the La Bahia fort dismantled. He set out with his artillery, which considerably hampered the progress. It was especially difficult to cross the San Antonio River and drag the cannon up the muddy banks, and they were delayed there until after 10 o'clock.

When they were still about a mile from Coletto Creek, they were set upon by some 350 cavalry, followed by an infantry force of 1,000 or 1,200. They were caught in the open, unable to reach Coletto Creek, where there was water, and woods would have provided a good screen for Texian sharpshooters. A fierce battle ensued, from 1 p.m. until after dark. The Texians used their cannon with great effectiveness, but being without water for cooling, they soon became too hot to use. The Mexicans had no cannon. With the Texians lack of cover, they lost seven killed plus several mortally wounded, and some 60 badly wounded. The enemy's loss is thought to be about five times greater.

The Texians spent last night building a breastwork of earth, carts, wagons and packs. They did not try to fall back because they did not have a way to move the wounded. They still felt confident of victory. However, during the night General Urrea was reinforced from Bexar with 500 men under Colonel Morelos, and three pieces of artillery.

This morning the enemy commenced fire with the artillery. Since they did not venture to bring it within range of the Texian rifles, it did not inflict many casualties, but broke up the breastwork, which was intended only to withstand rifle fire.

The wounded Texians were in great agony because of lack of water, and after consulting with his officers, Fannin decided that they could not be kept alive unless they were capitulated. He was himself wounded. The Texians raised a white flag, and an honorable surrender was negotiated.

General Houston is currently encamped on the west bank of the Colorado River, near Beason's place. His recruits are increasing daily. "In a few days," he reports, "my force will be highly respectable." General Houston admits that during the past few days "I have found the darkest hours of my life! My excitement has been so great that for 48 hours I have not eat an ounce nor have I slept." Yet he remains optimistic. "We can raise 3,000 men in Texas," he answers, "and 1,500 can defeat all that Santa Anna can send to the Colorado."

1840: THURSDAY, MARCH 19. In an unexpected battle that broke out in the Council House at San Antonio today between Texians and Comanche Indians assembled there for a conference, 35 Indians were killed, and seven Texians. In addition, eight Indians were wounded, and 27 Indian women and children and two old men were taken prisoner. The Texians suffered eight wounded.

Various Comanche tribes had been invited by the Texas government to send representatives to San Antonio to discuss peace terms. The Comanches have frequently attacked outlying homesteads, killing the men and taking women and children prisoners. Last January Texians were surprised when three Comanche chiefs rode into San Antonio as representatives of a general council of Comanche bands, and demanded a meeting to negotiate a treaty.

The meeting was arranged for today. The Comanches were requested, and they agreed, to bring with them all of their white prisoners and permit them to be ransomed by the Texians. However, when the Indians assembled, they had with them only one white prisoner, a young girl named Matilda Lockhart. She was terribly emaciated, the flesh burned from her nostrils apparently by live coals, and her body covered with bruises. Sobbing, she informed the Texians that the Indians were holding 15 other women in the hills outside San Antonio, and were planning to ransom them one at a time.

The Texian delegation, headed by Hugh McLeod and William G. Cooke, was outraged. Supported by three companies of infantry under Colonel William S. Fisher, they demanded that the other white captives be brought in, and stated that they were determined to hold the Indians in the Council House captive until then. There were some 70 Indians assembled, including 12 chiefs, plus the women and children. A fierce battle broke out, in which most of the Indians were killed.

Both Texians and the Comanches have expressed extreme anger at what they consider to be the other's violation of a truce. It is understood that the Comanches, in retaliation, have tortured 10 or 12 of their prisoners to death. They are now expected to increase the raids they have been conducting, and perhaps even to launch large-scale attacks on Texas communities.

SILENCE...Our world is seldom silent.. We have had so much sound for so long that silence is even bothersome. We turn on the radio to drown out the car noise. We leave the TV on even when we aren't watching it to cover the sound of traffic and trains. We become uneasy when we are with someone and the conversation doesn't continue to flow.

We listen to a lot of noise and often fail to hear the most important sound. "Be silent, and listen," said Moses to the people of God. God has spoken to us but we must slow down and be quiet. Psalm 46:10 says, "Be still, and know that I am God."

Take time to come and listen as men speak the Word of God:

Seniors plan LA trip

The Farwell School Board Friday gave approval for the seniors to have their annual trip to California.

The trip will be similar to last year, when seniors visited Los Angeles and Disneyland.

Originally, the seniors had planned to go to New Orleans but the expense was prohibitive.

The seniors will take a bus to Albuquerque, then fly to California. Also, a diner fund-raiser is planned April 6.

In other business, the board rehired its professional staff. It was announced that R.T. Langston, school transportation director, was retiring.

The maintenance staff was rehired.

It was noted that Howard Carlyle, county guidance director, will be able to spend more time next year at Bovina and Farwell schools because a new Lazbuddie professional hired has expertise in that field.

Williams second in hurdles

The Farwell varsity boys track team competed in the Bovina meet March 15.

Eddie Longley placed fifth in the 400 meter dash.

Eric Williams placed second in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles. Steve Lara placed third in the 200 meters.

David Woods, Eddie Longley, Eric Williams and Steve Lara placed fifth in the 1600 meter relay. Jesse Anzaldua placed fourth in the shot put.

Steve Lara and Mario Lara tied for sixth place in the high jump.

Steve Lara placed third in the long jump.

"This was a good meet for us," said Coach Monte Barnes.

Burger Barn has new owners

The new owners of the Burger Barn are Walter and Lois Potts and their son Billy Joe and his wife Zandy Potts.

They are long time residents of the Rosedale community. They farm about 2,000 acres.

They are planning new games for the recreation area.

The business hours will be 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday. All times are (MST).

The Potts have three children - Billy Joe; Becky, who will be attending college this fall, and Monia Ann, in junior high.

Date extended

Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng announced that the date for determining the status of individuals or entities to which payments are made under the 1986 farm programs has been extended from March 1 to April 1.

Lyng said the action was taken to allow farmers more time to make the status decision because of the late enactment of the Food Security Act of 1985 and subsequent changes plus the large number of farms signing up to participate in the 1986 farm programs.
