Soil Stewardship Week Observed May 27-June 3

Soil Stewardship Week, a nationwide observance which emphasizes man's obligation to God as stewards of the soil, water, and other resources, will be observed, Sunday, May 27, through Sunday, June 3, according to Leon Grissom, Chairman, Parmer County Conservation District.

"Changing Challenges", the theme of this year's observance, invites you to increase your understanding, expand your perspective, and consider your responsibility to the challenges and changes of the world around you.

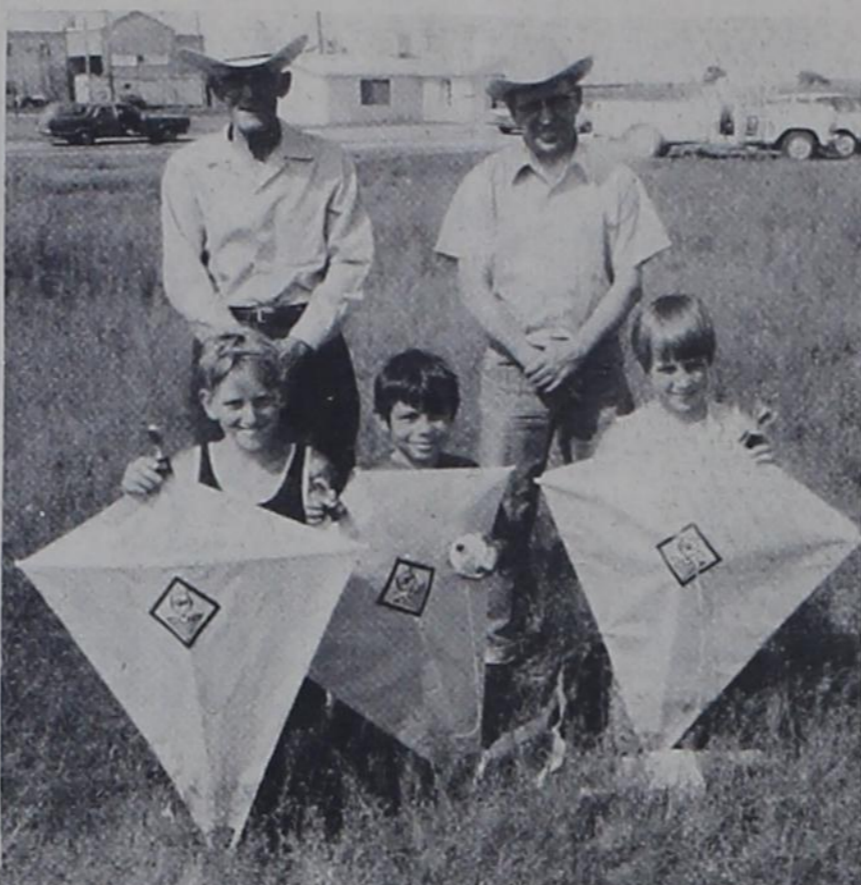

Parmer County Conservation District and some 3,000 companion Districts throughout the nation along with their State and National Associations are sponsoring the event for the 18th consecutive year. Among the local events scheduled for Soil Stewardship Week are special programs in area churches and for civic groups. Parmer County Conservation District will distribute upon request to churches of all faiths, attractive program blanks, bulletin inserts, posters and booklets created particularly for this year's observance.

Response of clergymen and laymen has been so warm and widespread that observance of Soil Stewardship Sunday has spread steadily, say Parmer County Soil and Water Conservation District officials. In 1954, the publishers of a magazine suggested to officers of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts that a still wider observance of Soil

Stewardship Sunday than had been noted could aid significantly in bringing about a national awakening and recognition of man's obligations to the Lord's earth. The publishers offered to relinquish their limited sponsorship of Soil Stewardship Sunday to the Association.

The Association accepted, and beginning in 1955, undertook to encourage a nationwide observance -- a mission to which it has dedicated itself ever since, under the guidance of a special Soil Stewardship Advisory Committee of clergymen representing many of the country's religious denominations. In 1956, recognizing possible conflicts with the observance of Rural Life Sunday, which was on the calendar of many churches, Soil Stewardship Sunday was changed to Soil Stewardship Week -- beginning with the fifth Sunday after Easter and continuing through the sixth.

You may already have half of an air-conditioning system.

A gas heating system is half of a gas air-conditioning system. The heating unit and the ducts. If you have central gas heat, and your ducts are big enough, you're halfway to having central air conditioning. Just get the cooling unit, connect it, and you're all set to enjoy the summer. Gas is a very good way to keep cool. It costs less to use, for one thing. Gas equipment is more dependable. It's a basically simpler mechanism, with fewer things that can go wrong. (Expensive compressors in electric systems tend to break down every 5 to 7 years; gas systems don't have compressors). Gas service is more dependable, too. The people who service gas air-conditioning systems are Southern Union Gas Company employees. And we're going to be around for a good long while. It's a better way to keep cool. Even if you have to buy a whole one.

Texico Tumbling Tots Work On Rope Tricks

Texico Tumbling Tots, 40 youngsters strong, have made a name for themselves this year by appearing in a number of events in various towns. The group is instructed by Jim Starkey.

Friday night, May 18, 12 of the Tumbling Tots group participated in the talent portion of Wolverine Variety Show.

Members of Tumbling Tots who showed their tumbling and jump rope agility were Tony Bradley, David, Elizabeth, Tony and Valda Cavallero, Lisa Crooks, Leslie Elliott, Javier Esparza, Traci Gaddis, Todd Gerles, Neal Haile and Kevin Jones.

Monday, the entire group of Tumbling Tots made an appearance at an assembly for Farwell Elementary and Junior High School students.

In April the group appeared in Portales in the Gym Circus at Eastern New Mexico University's P. E. Complex; performed in Clovis at Sacred Heart Church and for Sacred Heart School Board, and during halftime at Texico High School basketball games.

Starkey started Texico elementary school children tumbling three years ago in the physical education program at school. Since then, the children have mastered many tumbling exercises and, more recently, jump rope tricks.

"It takes a long time to teach each child these things (tumbling, rope tricks). It's a whole lot of hard work. It also takes daring and agility on the part of the child," Starkey said.

"It builds coordination of a child no matter what he does - whether he marches in the band, plays football, dances or just walks down the street," Starkey said.

Rope tricks, first done in public this year, include jumping, skipping and crossing forwards and backwards with jump ropes. The tricks are called "double doubles" and "single doubles" when two children jump ropes individually while jumping inside two more ropes. The "single double" involves only one individual rope thrown by one child around both children while both are jumping inside two ropes.

Also included in the rope tricks are jumping rope while lying on the back and sitting in a chair. Starkey said he had two boys doing those tricks.

Tumbling exercises include front and back hand and head springs, front and back walk-overs, front somersaults, dives and building pyramids.

PERFORMING "SINGLE DOUBLES" - Texico Tumbling Tots Elizabeth Cavallero, left, and Traci Gaddis, right, jump one individual rope together while they jump inside two ropes. The trick is called a "single double" and has been performed by Texico Tumbling Tots this year at their various public appearances. Begun three years ago as a physical education program for Texico Elementary School students, Texico Tumbling Tots included 40 youngsters.

Farwell Loses 4 - 3 In Regional Clash

Farwell High School baseball team lost to Wall, Tex., Wednesday, May 16, in a regional clash at Snyder. The Steers lost by a slim 4-3 margin.

Farwell won the District 3-A baseball championship May 8 by defeating Bovina twice in a three-game series. The first game was May 3.

Coach Don Alana said the regional game was a good ball game. "We made a couple of errors. They scored two runs on one error. I feel we outplayed them. We had 16 hits to their seven hits, but runs are what counts," he said.

"David Dannheim did an outstanding job as pitcher. Besides allowing only seven hits, he struck out nine players and walked only four of them," he added.

Alana commented that the Wall team had had a longer season and played more games than Farwell. He said he hoped Farwell would have a better season next year with more games. "We're just losing three seniors, Dannheim, Doug Johnston and Ray Norton," he said.

Boys To Play For Clovis

Three Farwell boys, Dwight Green, Paul Brigham and Ruben Castillo, will play baseball for the Clovis Rebels in the Mickey Mantle League this summer. The Clovis team is made up of 15 and 16 year olds. A senior division, composed of 13-15 year olds, was not set up in Texico-Farwell this year because of lack of interest.

Saturday, May 19, Tide swept past Aldridge 23-4. Goldsmith was winning pitcher and Richard May, losing pitcher. Kelly Green topped Worley Grain 15-1.

Saturday night's games were hampered by rain and blowing sand.

Tuesday, May 15, in make-up games, Kelly Green beat Worley Grain 10-4. D. D. Foster was winning pitcher and Orlando Ortiz, losing pitcher.

Tide slipped past Aldridge 8-4. Rowdy Chandler was winning pitcher and Steve Owens, losing pitcher.

"DOUBLE DOUBLE" DUO - Elizabeth and David Cavallero perform a "double double" rope trick in practicing for a Texico Tumbling Tots appearance Friday, May 18, at Wolverine Variety Show. ANSWERS TO TRUE-FALSE QUIZ

1. TRUE - The nutrients needed during the winter months are the same as those needed during the summer months. However, the amounts vary with the weather. During the cold winter months there is need for some additional calories in order to maintain body temperature along with the need for additional amounts of some B vitamins.

2. FALSE - Calories are not nutrients but are units of measurement of energy whether derived from food or expended by the body.

3. TRUE - Oranges, grapefruit, tomatoes, strawberries and Vitamin C fortified instant breakfast drinks are rich sources of Vitamin C and that's why at least half a cup of one of these sources should be consumed daily.

4. FALSE - While they contain a fair amount of calcium and Vitamin C, particularly if onions are eaten as a vegetable, the greatest contribution of onions and garlic to the diet is flavor and aroma.

5. TRUE - In addition to increasing the energy output, climbing stairs also increases strength and coordination of leg muscles, improves gait pattern and develops endurance. Think twice before taking that elevator!

6. TRUE - It is difficult to make up in one or even in two meals the amounts of essential nutrients needed for the day.

7. TRUE - Better walk away from the coffee wagon next time unless you plan to go the four mile route!

8. FALSE - Although liver is an exceptionally good source of iron, which is needed to produce good blood, there are also other good sources such as whole grained and enriched cereals, eggs, meats, dry beans, dry peas, greens, apricots, prunes, and raisins.

9. FALSE - Milk and cheese are easily digested by most people. If the diet contains sufficient bulk from a variety of foods, milk and cheese do not cause constipation.

10. TRUE - Foods high in starch are also the most economical source of body energy which explains why starchy foods such as rice and beans are the mainstay of so many diets throughout the world.

Plants Are Noise Barriers

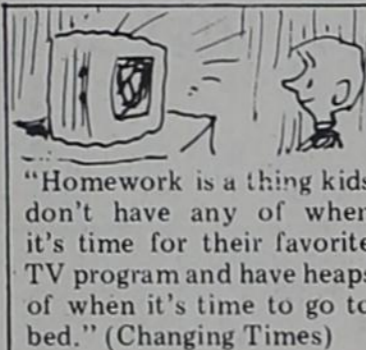

Ever hear of using plants to reduce noise levels?

"Research has illustrated that properly designed landscape plantings can be used to deflect, absorb and mask excessive environmental noise," says Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to experts, noise levels are increasing at an alarming rate. One out of 10 Americans have a hearing deficiency and this number will increase in the next few years at least partially as a result of excessive environmental noise.

Plantings 25 to 50 feet wide placed close to the noise source have been shown to reduce high frequency noise more than 50 percent.

"Urban residential property may be effectively screened from normal passenger car noise with a single row of dense shrubs backed by a row of taller trees," notes the

"Homework is a thing kids don't have any of when it's time for their favorite TV program and have heaps of when it's time to go to bed." (Changing Times)

Texas A&M University horticulturist.

Vegetation reduces noise by breaking up sound waves, changing their direction and reducing their intensity. Since winds channel sounds, plantings that divert and direct winds also reduce noise levels.

"Combinations of trees and shrubs usually provide the most effective noise control. Shrubs by themselves are not tall enough and trees alone usually lose their lower branches in time, creating a large area void of foliage," points out Welch.

For year-round noise reduction, use evergreen plants.

Texas trees effective in reducing noise include adapted pine species, Eastern and Western red cedar, Arizona cypress, live oak, salt cedar and camphor.

Shrubs that are effective include elaeagnus, yaupon, American holly, Pfizer junipers, waxmyrtle, oleanders, pampas grass, ligustrum, pittosporum and primrose jasmine.

"The greater the total width of planting, the more effective it will be in controlling noise. However, wide plantings are not always possible in urban situations. Vines covering exterior walls of a building can also reduce noise," adds Welch.

PLAY SCHOOL STORYTELLING -- Homemaking I students at Farwell High School spent two weeks recently working with pre-kindergarten age children in a Play School. New liquid measuring cup includes metric units.

Within 10 years it is expected that the United States will be converted to the International Metric System. Authorities agree that the first step toward switching to metric is to start thinking metric. One way for the homemaker is with Foley's new liquid measuring cup. It includes the customary cup and ounce measurements up to 2 cups (16 liquid ounces) plus metric measurements to 500 milliliters -- a cook's introduction to the metric system.

There are six basic units in the International Metric system. The unit of length is meter, mass is gram, volume is liter, time is second, electric current is ampere, and temperature is celsius (formerly called centigrade). All other units of measurements are expansions of these six base units. The entire system is based on ten and multiples or submultiples of ten. A milliliter, the measurement used for the new Foley measuring cup, for example, is one thousandths of a liter. A liter is a unit slightly larger than a quart. Five hundred milliliters measure a little more than 2 cups, or a little more than a pint. The new metric measuring cup is made in clear plastic with a convenient long handle and two pouring spouts. It is available with and without a juicer that snugly fits the top.

Lunsford Property Gets Special Use Ordinance

A group of interested persons attended a hearing Tuesday night at the regular meeting of Texico City Council to change B. L. "Buster" Lunsford's property on Eunice Avenue from a B to a C zone.

The group was opposed to changing the property, which Lunsford plans to turn into a trailer park, from a B to a C zone, because the C zone is open to businesses.

The Council decided to pass a special use ordinance which would allow Lunsford to use his property for a trailer park only.

Ralph Douglass, an engineer who was hired by Texico sometime ago to work on the city's sewer lagoons project, met with the Council to discuss progress made in the project.

Douglass told the Council he had been called to Santa Fe on Texico's request for state and federal funds to make improvements to the city's existing sewer lagoons.

Mrs. Clara Wiehl, Texico City Clerk, said forms have been signed and approved by the Council requesting the funds and have been sent to Dallas to the Environmental Improvement Agency.

Bills were paid and the meeting was adjourned.

America

What do you see when you look at the word America? What mental pictures do the seven letters create in your mind?

To me the capital "a" suggests our magnificent snow-covered mountain peaks, and the wigwams of the original Americans.

The letter "m" symbolizes the broad shoulders of our pioneers; shoulders-to-the-wheel pushing our frontiers westward; broad shoulders swinging axes, building a Nation.

The letter "e" might be the lariats of the cowboys riding the plains; lariats of Kit Carson or Buffalo Bill.

The letter "r" is a man with a hand outstretched in friendship and cooperation toward all who love freedom, justice and peace.

The letter "i" represents the individual American with his rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The letter "c" is a bent bow from which an arrow has just sped toward the stars of mankind's highest ideals.

The final letter "a" is a man on his knees in prayer, symbolizing a Nation which recognizes its Creator and gives thanks for His blessings.

Yes, America is a beautiful word.

Norma Jean Berry - -

Local Newscaster Leads Varied, Interesting Life

by Ruby Goforth

"I would rather be accurate than timely," states newscaster Norma Jean Berry of Clovis, who works as a "stringer" for a television station in Amarillo and is news director for a Clovis radio station.

Norma Jean started what was to be a lifetime career in news work as a teen-ager just out of high school. She recalls she had applied for a job at the bank in Belen, her home town, and while she was waiting for an opening, she became interested in the local newspaper.

The editor of the bi-weekly Belen newspaper, an old friend, invited her to come in and help out. Before long she was writing, taking pictures and even typesetting. When the job of bookkeeping at the bank opened up, she was no longer interested. She kept her job at the Belen newspaper for five years. At the end of that time, upon the death of her father, she and her mother came to Clovis to live. Norma Jean then went to work for the local newspaper.

Looking back over her career, she remembers the time at the end of World War II when she had the opportunity to interview a returning POW. She learned that the young man would be arriving by train from California, so she had her mother to drive her to Vaughn where she caught the train that was bringing him home. In the time that it took the train to travel from Vaughn to Clovis, she met and interviewed the young soldier. Upon arrival in Clovis, she hurriedly left the train and submitted her story to her editor, having stolen the march on the other news media.

Another event of interest that happened to her involved the marriage of a young soldier stationed at what was then Clovis Air Force Base. The soldier's future mother-in-law wrote to the newspaper where Norma Jean worked, asking if someone in Clovis could act as a stand-in for her at her daughter's wedding, as she was financially unable to accompany her daughter to Clovis. The bride-to-be lived in one of the eastern states.

Norma Jean spearheaded a campaign to raise the money to have the mother brought to Clovis for the wedding, all unknown to the daughter. She stated that the reunion of the mother and daughter was so heart warming, she would never forget it.

She also led the campaign to have the old steam engine put on display in Hillcrest Park.

In 1953 when the late President Eisenhower, who was touring the country's drought areas, came to Clovis, Norma Jean had the privilege of covering the story. She relates that being rather naive she was being pushed back by the more experienced reporters and really having a difficult time getting any pictures at all.

Mr. Eisenhower was visiting a hog farm near Ranchvale when Norma Jean got her chance. She saw him leaning over the fence and realized that if she were to get in front of him she could get a great picture. Casting caution to the winds she climbed over the fence rail, and had her camera all ready to shoot when two burley government men grabbed her by each arm and pulled her to her feet.

She quickly told them she was a local reporter and that she had been unable to get any good close-up pictures of the President. She told them she was quite sure the local residents were going to be disappointed if she didn't come through. To her relief the men were understanding and allowed her to take some pictures before she had to get out of the pen. Reportedly, these were the best ones anyone took during Mr. Eisenhower's visit.

A few years later there was a terrible train wreck near Portales, and Norma Jean was given the opportunity to fly to Portales and get some pictures of the wreckage from the air. She remembers that she had the pilot of the small plane to circle the site of the wreckage as she madly filmed the activity.

In order to get better pictures she held the door to the plane open with her foot. It was only after they had started the return trip that someone asked her if she had ever flown before. She realized that she hadn't and when the realization of how risky it had been, filming with the door open, hit her she became ill. During the excitement of the moment, she simply hadn't thought about herself.

Between the time she worked for the local newspaper and up until about two years ago, Norma Jean worked for 13 years for the Norman Petty Enterprises in the music publishing business. She was first induced to try her hand at newscasting by Jimmy Self. She recalls that he talked her into making a tape of her voice for Norman Petty and submitting it for a test. They liked the tape and she was in.

She worked with her predecessor for awhile, trying her hand at short announcements. But the first day that she was completely on her own, she was petrified. She still remembers her voice quivered because she was so scared.

Her first important interview came on the second day of her job, and that was an interview with the then governor of New Mexico, John Simms. The next day she had a note from Gov. Simms commending her on the fine job she had done and appointing her as one of his colonel aide de camps. She says now she realizes he was just practicing good politics, but then it gave her the confidence she needed to feel like she could really do the job.

"Living alone has its rewards," she declares. "In fact, in my line of work I sometimes have a problem trying to be alone for awhile." She may come in early, tired out from an assignment, and catch a few hours sleep and be up working at 3 a.m. Her assignments come at any and all hours.

She gets her news from a regular beat, much as she did when working for a newspaper. She also monitors police calls, and many news sources come from friends in all walks of life who remember her when something of interest comes up.

Norma Jean says she is a dog lover; in fact, she used to raise Chihuahuas. Now she just takes in all the neighborhood strays. She also loves to cook when she has time.

Of all the stories she has covered, Norma Jean readily admits the bus-train wreck near Ft. Sumner was by far the hardest. She was pleased that the film she shot was selected for use on Walter Cronkite's newscast.

PREPARING TO GIVE THE NEWS on her daily broadcast from a local radio station is newscaster Norma Jean Berry. Starting out as a reporter for the bi-weekly newspaper published at Belen, Norma Jean has worked her way up to news director at a local radio station. She is also a "stringer" for an Amarillo TV station.
