

158 First Draft Number, Held by Farwell Man

Sanford James Stormes, of Farwell, will be the first man to be called in Parmer county to appear before the Parmer County Selective Service Board...

Stormes is listed with the Local Board as No. 158, which was the first number drawn from the huge fish bowl in Washington at high noon Tuesday...

The second number drawn in the national lottery was No. 192, which is held in this county by Haskell Fillmore Free of Bovina...

Then a series of eighteen numbers were drawn in Washington before another Parmer county man was affected. The nineteenth number taken out was No. 105...

Of the first three men to be called in this county, only one of them is shown to be married and having dependents, according to the records on file at the office of the Local Board...

Free and Hastings are both listed as unmarried and having no dependents. Free, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Free of Bovina...

The complete registrations in Parmer county included only numbers from one to 842, and all numbers drawn in Washington above the latter figure will have no bearing on the Parmer county selection...

Due to this fact, there is no way of determining at this time the exact order numbers as they affect the Parmer county men.

Other than the first three numbers listed above, the next ten men to be called in this county will be in the following order:

A complete list of the serial numbers and the orders in which they were drawn in the national lottery, entirely too lengthy for publication this week, may be seen at The Tribune office by all who are interested.

First Draftee Leaves States

Ralph Hempton Palmateer, who drew serial No. 1 in the Parmer County registration for Selective Service, has made application with the Local Board for a permit to leave the United States.

Palmateer, who lives 18 miles north of this city, appeared before the Local Board on Monday and explained that he expected to depart the latter part of this week for Detroit, Mich., for the purpose of bringing back a new automobile. He plans to visit in Canada before his return.

His application to leave the country was granted after he had complied with the regulations requiring him to file his questionnaire with the Local Board.

Sanitation Program May Close Saturday

County Judge Lee Thompson stated this week that very definite steps had been taken by Lewis W. Bradley, area engineer, to discontinue the sanitation program in Parmer county on Saturday of the present week.

"The only thing that can insure its continuance is for the people of the county to provide the crew with more pit toilets for immediate construction," Judge Thompson said.

Once the project is discontinued, it will likely be several months before it will be launched again in this county, the Judge opined.

The sanitation project, which is sponsored by the Commissioners' Court as a means of giving employment to men of the county, cannot be carried out unless property owners co-operate by signing up for the toilets.

Unless there is a very definite increase in the number of applications for such work before the close of the present week, there is a strong probability the project will be discontinued, it was announced officially. Parties desiring toilets should contact Olen Hughes of Bovina, project solicitor, this week.

LOCK YOUR CELLARS

It would be a good idea to lock all cellars, if reports reaching here this week are to be taken as a warning. More than 100 cans of fruits and vegetables have been taken from cellars at farm homes near here during the past few nights, it was learned here today. Those missing canned goods from their cellars are: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hamburger, Mr. and Mrs. Mose Glasscock, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kimbell.

It takes 32 gallons of maple sap to make 7 1/2 pounds of sugar.

Meeting Called to Consider Bond Issue

Farm Hand Killed by Mad Bull

The body of Henry Wegman, age 52, was found at an early hour Sunday morning at the stock feeding lots on the farm of Judge Bill Kennedy, 12 miles southeast of here in Bailey county, where he had been trampled and mauled to death by a vicious bull.

Wegman, a hired hand at the Kennedy farm, was alone at the time of his death, and all the details are not known. However, it is presumed, from the evidences gathered on close investigation, that he was attacked and killed some time during the day on Saturday, probably around the noon hour.

Several head of cattle were being fed out on ensilage at the Kennedy farm. It was Wegman's custom to feed the stock about noon every day, and it is presumed that the victim was attacked while carrying out this daily chore. His body, horribly mangled and decomposed, was not discovered by Judge Kennedy until Sunday morning, when he went to call the hired man from his bed in a small house some distance from the Kennedy residence.

Judge and Mrs. Kennedy had left Wegman alone at the farm early Saturday morning, when they went to Amarillo.

Indications pointed to a terrific battle between the victim and the bull, a large Poll Angus weighing more than 1500 pounds. Wegman's purse and some small items from his pocket were found some thirty feet from where his body lay, just under the fence.

A team of horses, hitched to a sled, stood near the corral, which indicated that Wegman was engaged in sledding feed from the silo to the feeding troughs when he met his death.

It is said that the bull was of a vicious nature, and had attacked other persons before. On one occasion, it is claimed, the same bull knocked Wegman down, about a year ago, and inflicted slight injuries.

Funeral services were held for the deceased Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church at Oklahoma Lane, and burial was made in the Oklahoma Lane cemetery with the Steed Mortuary, of Clovis, in charge.

He is survived by his former wife and three married daughters, all of whom live in Colorado, and one daughter, Miss Arline, of this city. Other survivors are three sisters and one brother, Mrs. John Kloepper of Lariat; Mrs. Lee Harrell, Ovid, Colo.; Mrs. Mary Gober, Sedrick, Okla.; John Wegman, Sedrick, Okla.

First T-P Loan Docket To Regional Offices

The first loan docket on the Parmer county Tenant-Purchase program was sent to the regional offices in Amarillo, on Tuesday afternoon of this week, on the application of C. L. Caloway, one of the five-named T-P clients of the county, to purchase land under the program.

The application for purchase was approved in the local office, following the inspection of an engineer on Monday of this week, it has been reported, and the final "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" decision now rests in the hands of regional officials.

Caloway is making application to buy a half-section of land, with improvements, in the Rhea community, now the property of M. M. Shirley, according to information received by The Tribune.

There was no announcement as to when the four remaining applicants would have their dockets completed and sent into the Amarillo office, since all land under tentative option must get the "OK" of specialists and engineers.

Tip Isham, Bovina Citizen, Is Buried

Funeral services for Tip Isham, age 63, a resident of Bovina for the past 14 years, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. W. Rogers in Clovis, were held at the Methodist church in Bovina last Friday afternoon and burial was made in the Clovis cemetery.

Isham passed away Wednesday of last week following a lingering illness. He had lived at Bovina for the past 14 years, moving there from the Pleasant Hill community in New Mexico, where he located in 1910, coming here from Oklahoma. He was one of Parmer county's most prominent citizens, and owned considerable property in this county.

Minister Goodnight, of the Church of Christ, assisted by Rev. Hester, Methodist pastor, both of Bovina, officiated at the funeral services.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Isham; three daughters and four sons: Mrs. E. W. Rogers of Clovis; Mrs. E. A. Fasholtz, Pleasant Hill; Mrs. R. R. O'Neal, Pleasant Hill; E. V. Isham, Bovina; C. L. and N. N. Isham, and a step-son, J. S. Glover, all of Clovis.

Two sisters and two brothers, who were present for the funeral, also survive. They are: Mrs. J. Davis, Weatherford, Okla.; Mrs. Lillier Shivers, Clinton, Okla.; C. Isham, Blair, Okla.; and Gordon Isham, Fort Worth. Other survivors include 23 grandchildren.

Receives An Award For Careful Driving

Chas. Lovelace of this city, has just received a very attractive medal, awarded him by the Hartford Insurance company in recognition of his careful driving of trucks and automobiles during the past four and one-half years.

During this period, Lovelace estimates that he has driven more than a half million miles, and has never had an accident of any kind. Most of his driving has been at the wheels of a gasoline transport truck, operating between here and the Borger oil fields.

"I have had to leave the road a few times to avoid a crash," Lovelace admits, but he has never been involved in an automobile accident of any nature.

His driving has included almost every kind of car and truck over all kinds of roads, including mud, ice, snow, sandstorm, and what-have-you.

OFF ON DEER HUNT

Two parties of deer hunters, one from Texico and the other from Lazbuddy, departed this week for the wilds of New Mexico, where they will hunt deer and pneumonia during the open season, beginning on Nov. 1st.

Both parties will camp in the Black Range, with the Texico delegation setting up in Black Canyon, and the Lazbuddy nimrods going farther down in the Members Canyon. Those making up the Texico party are: Claude Thomas, Jack White, Luther Pierce, Arch Green, Ira Selman, Grady Pierce, Junior Selman and Francis Bailey.

NEW COFFEE MAKER

The Fox Drug Store has installed a new Silex coffee maker in connection with the soda fountain, and will be in a position to serve hot, fresh coffee at all hours. Light lunches will also be a new feature at the fountain, it was stated.

County Judge Lee Thompson stated today that a meeting had been called at the court house in Farwell next Saturday for the purpose of considering the advisability of voting a bond issue for the purpose of building an all-weather road from the Parmer-Bailey county line to Friona.

Judge Thompson made it plain that he was not in favor of the voters of this county taking on any additional debts at this time, but the meeting is called merely to discuss a proposition that appears to be a safe way of getting the road paved without the project costing the taxpayers a cent of money.

Some years ago, the State Legislature passed what is known as the Bond Assumption Act. Those acquainted with the provisions of this Act explain that it provides that counties may vote bonds on roads that have been designated as State Highways, and the money spent on the construction of such roads would be reimbursed from State funds, which are already available and on deposit.

The County Commissioners, in session here Monday, went over the matter thoroughly and finally concluded that it would be advisable to call a meeting of the taxpayers of the county to discuss the issue before taking further steps. Frank B. McMahon, of the Dallas Union Trust company, has agreed to be here Saturday and explain the provisions of the Act.

The meeting is called for 10 o'clock a. m. and will be held in the county court room. It will be informal and every interested taxpayer will be allowed to express his views and raise any question he might have in mind.

The Parmer county road is commonly known as the Friona-Muleshoe road. It was designated as a State Highway in 1938.

In discussing the road bond issue, Judge Thompson explained that most assuredly he was not in favor of calling an election to vote bonds that the taxpayers of this county would have to pay. "But," he added, "if provisions are open whereby we might build this strip of pavement without cost to our taxpayers, it is a matter that might be well worth looking into."

He expressed the hope that a good representation of Parmer county taxpayers would be present for the meeting on Saturday.

Mrs. Overstreet To Head Roll Call Drive

Mrs. H. Y. Overstreet of this city has consented to serve the Parmer County Chapter American Red Cross as roll call chairman this year, and will be in active charge of the annual membership drive which opens on November 11 and closes on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Overstreet went to Amarillo last Friday, where she attended a meeting of Red Cross workers from over the Panhandle, who had gathered in that city to hear the details of the work explained.

She will be assisted by a corps of workers in every community in the county, who will be named within the next few days. With millions of American boys being inducted into the service during the next few months, the demands upon the National Red Cross are expected to be the heaviest experienced in any peace time year.

A determined effort will be launched by the Roll Call Chairman and her assistants to raise the Parmer county quota in full in the forthcoming drive for memberships.

Legion Plans Armistice Day Parades

Roberts To Auction 51 Head Dairy Cows

D. K. Roberts, county clerk elect, is this week advertising a public sale of choice dairy cows, which will be offered and sold at auction on Thursday, Oct. 31st. The sale will start at one p. m. Texas time.

Practically all of these choice cows are from his dairy herd, and are all tested and approved stock. The sale will be held at the Jim Walling place two miles east of Farwell, with Col. W. H. Flippin Jr., of Friona, acting as auctioneer. Mr. Roberts will clerk the sale.

A complete list of the cows to be offered will be found in this issue.

The Friona Post of the American Legion is making plans to sponsor at least three large parades in Parmer county on Armistice Day, it was announced here today by J. D. Thomas, local Legionnaire and member of the Friona Post.

Under the plan outlined by Thomas, parades will be staged at Farwell, Bovina and Friona during the day. The first will be at Farwell in the forenoon. After this, the Bovina parade will be staged around the noon hour, moving from there to Friona in the afternoon.

Two bands, one from Bovina and the other from Friona, will be in the parade. In announcing tentative plans for the observance of the day, Thomas said that every club and organization in the entire county would be expected to be represented in the parade. School children from the three towns will be among those to join the parade, he added.

"We have given very little attention to Armistice Day in the past," Thomas observed, and added, "but we are living under a different period than we did last year or the year before." And he called upon the patriotic men and women of the entire county to join hands in observing the forthcoming Armistice Day in a fitting manner.

Further details will be announced next week, Thomas promised. In the meantime, he pleaded for all civic and social organizations to begin now making plans to participate in the huge parade.

Of Interest to Farmers

By Garlon A. Harper, Sec'y Parmer County AAA

the best chance to make; (2) The land on which the wheat is seeded must be properly cared for by the farmer in order to keep wind erosion at a minimum. In other words, the land must be cared for by the farmer just as he would care for the land if the wheat were not insured; (3) The county office must be advised when and if an inspection is desired on the wheat for the purpose of releasing the land for other crops.

The second type of farm is the farm on which no insurance application has been filed. On these farms it is left to the judgement of the farmer as to whether the wheat should be seeded or not. The allotment to the farm will not be lost unless the farmer has not seeded for three years straight. The allotment may be affected slightly by failure to seed, but not to a great extent under the present regulations. If the wheat is seeded and no wheat is produced, the yield on which the farm may be insured and on which ACU and Parity payments are made will be reduced one tenth and the premium rate in cost of insurance in the future will be raised.

The members of the county and community committees understand the situation which faces most farmers of the county. If any farmer has a doubt as to what should be done on his farm he should see his local committeeman immediately or contact the local ACA office.

Due to the dry conditions which have prevailed during the wheat seeding period of the fall, there has been much confusion and many questions asked in regard to the necessity of planting wheat. Insofar as the Agricultural Conservation Program is concerned, there are two classes of farms into which this discussion of wheat seeding might fall. The first is the farm that has Federal Wheat Crop Insurance and the second is the farm that does not have this insurance.

Those farms on which an application for Federal Wheat Crop Insurance was filed should seed the wheat sometime during the fall. This insurance is not in effect until the wheat is seeded, therefore, if the farm is to be covered by the insurance it will be necessary to seed the wheat. County Crop Insurance Supervisor, Clyde I. Magness, has written several letters to wheat farmers explaining the necessary steps to take to have the farm covered by insurance after the application has been made. These letters and the copy of the Insurance Regulations which were mailed to the farmers making application for insurance should be reviewed. However, in short the requirements for the farms covered by insurance are: (1) The wheat must be seeded some time during the fall. This seeding in the present conditions should be when the operator thinks the wheat has

Election Day Holds National Spotlight; Tension in Balkan States Increases As Axis Demands Greek Concessions; British Carry Air War to German Soil

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR: Aerial

There were rumors and counter-rumors about the total evacuation of London, in the face of Goering's aerial bombardment. Old people over 65, school children, and active mothers were advised to leave as soon as possible, taking with them all sick or invalidated souls.

About half a million children—more than 50 per cent of the school population—were out of town, and 500 expectant mothers were departing weekly for parts unknown. It was not a cheerful picture. The British government still refused to leave, although an emergency parliament house had been prepared in readiness, at Cheltenham, in the extreme west of England. The board of trade already had announced the removal of its business offices records to the Grand hotel, in an unpronounceable spot in central Wales. The spot was, actually, Llandudno. The British board of trade corresponded to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Reports from London, Berlin and Rome indicated that the British air force had launched a major air offensive against the axis powers in reply to the constant bombings of London by the Nazis.

While the RAF had by no means been idle during the preceding weeks, this current drive seemed to take on more force than heretofore. Invasion ports on the French side of the English channel were severely bombed and shipyards at Bremen were reported blasted. Industrial cities of northern Italy came in for their share of the beating, according to the dispatches from British headquarters.

Disease

The worst news of all was this: Spinal meningitis had broken out. This was due to the fact that nearly 3,000,000 people had been sleeping in unsanitary subways, crowded into unhygienic surroundings. Nerves were wearing out, and so was physical resistance, with an average of only four hours' sleep per night. The "cerebro-spinal fever" was blamed on a nose and throat germ, presumably air-borne. There was further danger of typhoid, influenza, a higher insanity rate, and other attendant ills. It will be remembered that epidemic disease is one of the four grim horses of the apocalypse, and perhaps the worst of the grisly team.

The Balks

When it came to the Balkans, there was increased tension. Rumania was further occupied by the German invaders. Bulgaria headed straight for the Axis orbit, while British citizens began to decamp from both Bucharest and Sofia. Yugoslavia, squeezed between Italy, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Italian Albania, signed a new trade and political pact with Hitler, which tied up the Yugoslavs in the German continental system, at least for the time being. Greece was threatened by the Bulgarians and Italians, and was backed up by Russia and Turkey. Greece and Turkey, along with Egypt and Portugal, were still nominal British allies. The Soviets were moving increasingly to the anti-Hitler viewpoint, for a Germanized Balkans did not appeal to the Kremlin at Moscow. The actual military value of the Red army was under constant discussion. Had it found itself, in the last month of the Finnish war? Was the Red aviation any good? Were there any suitable Red generals left alive after Stalin's purges? These were the moot questions, and even the left-eye monocles of the Prussian general staff were in some doubt about Marshal Voroshilov's warbirds and warboys.

Reported demands upon Greece by the Axis powers included: (1) immediate severance of economic relations with the British, (2) cession of territory to Italy and Bulgaria, (3) use of Greek air bases by the Axis, (4) abdication of King George of Greece, (5) grant of a right of way to Italy for construction of a major military road.

young men that registered, which topped the forecasts. In reference to these young men, War Secretary Stimson declared: "Only God and Hitler know what will happen to the United States." The army, it was stated, plans to train 900,000 annually for the next five years, which is the life-length of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill recently passed by congress. The B-W bill provided that an annual 900,000 was to be the maximum number called up per year.

Western

One southwestern Indian was found who claimed to be a member of the German Bund, and didn't want to register. He said he was waiting for Hitler to come and "free" him from the white man, the White House, and the great white father. Some people said that this aborigine was red in more ways than one.

POLITICS: Wind Up

As the politicians all over the nation were busy winding up their blasts of campaign oratory, American voters were preparing to go to the polls to cast what was expected to be the largest ballot in the nation's history. Major candidates were completing their pleas to the electorate and latest public opinion polls indicated a close presidential race.

On Mr. R.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt did not try to predict the result of the 1940 campaign, which was coming to a peak. She said she simply didn't know, and implied she could take it or leave it.

Said Mrs. Roosevelt, who is popular even with the foes of her husband: "As far as the polls go, they mean very little to me. They are so often too much one way, or the other. When you've been the wife of a politician long enough, you learn not to express anything one way or the other, but just go along and see what happens . . ."

Duelo

Meanwhile, Clare Boothe and Dorothy Thompson disagreed on the election. Miss Boothe wrote "The Women" and other things. She stood firm for Willkie. Miss Thompson, N. Y. Herald Tribune or no N. Y. Herald Tribune, plumped for Roosevelt. Miss Boothe razed Miss Thompson, and the Herald Tribune held up Miss Thompson's stuff. There was quite a to-do about it all, with Miss Boothe apparently worsting Miss Thompson in this blitzkrieg of hairpins and cat-calls.

Right at the head of the silk parade of fall fashions comes daytime dresses, evening gowns, blouses, headgear, cunning little evening shawls and innumerable other accessory items made of silk jersey. For draping and achieving sculptured "lines," there is nothing in the entire fabric realm comparable to supple, lovely silk jersey.

Gray silk jersey is endorsed throughout the entire style parade, starting with blouses that will take you from luncheon right through to cocktails and important little dinners. For the most part these have long fitted sleeves, although the below-elbow length is also favored. The attractive blouse to the left in the illustration is typical. It is made with a high neck and curved seams running toward the armhole in front, in order to secure the cowl drapery in pretty precision. The sleeves are long and modish. The draped Persian silk turban gives just the right dash of color to glorify this exceeding chic blouse.

Bewitching are the dark silk jersey afternoon dresses. Because of the slim fall of the material, skirts are cut slightly fuller and there is much shirred and draped detail in bodices that will flatter every type of figure. See to the right in the group a black silk jersey daytime dress. Here the new long torso sculpting draping interprets current styling at its best. The American designer Kievette created this dress

Shows Pompadour

Smart hats for fall and winter are fashioned and worn to show off the new pompadour hair-do. Here are two hats that do just that—play up to the fashionable pompadour coiffures. The one at the top is a youthful version with a big brim that lifts off the face and swoops low to the nape of the neck. The foundation of the hat is black felt with gold, maroon and navy stitching over its entire surface. A trio of quills in gold, red and blue puncture the up-lifted front brim. The black velvet dinner hat below was especially designed for the new pompadour hair-dress which shows off the forehead so becomingly. It promises to become increasingly popular.

Spotted Furs Have Become the Vogue

If you keep seeing "spots before your eyes" don't be alarmed. It is simply fashion making a demonstration of what's what in fur coats and fur trimmings.

The tremendous vogue for leopard and ocelot and other of the spotted type pelts is developing almost to an epidemic of spots. When in doubt as to the fur to enhance your new cloth coat, use the spotted kind and you will be fashion correct.

The way spotted furs will crowd the grandstand this year is something to marvel at. There will be entire coats of leopard or ocelot. There will be muff and neckpiece sets with matching hats of the spotted fur. There will be more than that, for huge pockets of spotted fur are adorning cloth coats.

There's no end in sight of the procession of novelty accessory items that will enliven the fall and winter style picture. You will be seeing spotted fur gloves with belts made of the same material. Hand bags to match are available, and lapel gadgets of "spots." Of course the program includes smart headgear of spotted fur to "make good" a complete ensemble.

New Wool Fabric Dress

Knitted sleeves in a wool fabric dress is big news. Attractive jersey dresses in the very new neutral colors take on sleeves and knitted sections. Details such as large pockets, belts and cuff-and-collar sets are done in yarn accurately color-matched.

Washington, D. C.

RUSSIA AGAIN BUYING COTTON Here is big news for the South. Soviet Russia is back in the American cotton market.

She already has purchased 58,000 bales, of which 18,000 are en route via Vladivostok in Greek ships, and has indicated the total orders may run as high as 500,000 bales.

To facilitate transportation, the maritime commission last week granted sub-charters to Amtorg (the Soviet trading agency) for three U. S. freighters, the Carleton, Export and motor ship Excelsior, which will load the cotton at Houston and Galveston.

The last time Russia bought U. S. cotton was in the early 1930s.

Official Russian explanation for the U. S. purchases is that under the latest five-year plan, her spinning equipment is so rapidly expanding that she needs more cotton than she produces. According to the Soviet buyers their spindle capacity will reach a point in 1942 which will require a 40 per cent increase in cotton supply.

The matter of possible Russian re-export of the U. S. cotton to Germany was one of the subjects discussed by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and Soviet Ambassador Oumansky, who gave positive assurances that the cotton was strictly for Russian use.

DIPLOMATIC CAPITAL

It looks as if San Francisco is slated to become the capital for Axis diplomacy in the United States.

For several years, the city has been the headquarters of Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's World war commander and personal representative in this country. And now he has been joined by a new Italian consul general of equal behind-the-scenes eminence. He is Carlo Bossi, who ranks as high in inner Mussolini councils as Wiedemann does in Hitler's.

Bossi, who is carefully avoiding the limelight, played a leading role in Italy's support of General Franco against the Spanish Loyalists, and is credited with directing the capture of Barcelona, the blow that crushed the Republic. He is strongly anti-British and has close ties with both Nazi and Japanese bigwigs.

It was no accident that Bossi assumed his San Francisco post shortly before the announcement of the Axis-Japanese alliance. From the Pacific coast city, and working closely with Wiedemann, he will be in a strategic position to represent Il Duce in the Far East.

NEW SYSTEM FOR ARMY BUYING

Nothing has been said about it publicly, but the defense commission has persuaded the army to make a revolutionary change in its purchasing methods. It will mean juicy orders to hundreds of factories which never had a look in before.

The new system junks the old procedure of advertised bids and substitutes a modified plan of negotiated contracts. Instead of buying shoes, shirts, or raincoats in huge quantities from a few large concerns, the army will purchase these goods as far as possible within each of the nine corps areas.

This means that small local factories will have a chance to obtain a chunk of the army's business.

On the basis of orders already granted under the new system, experts say costs will be no higher than under the old procedure.

WINNING ISOLATIONISTS

Very quietly, the administration is waging a campaign to win over Midwest isolationist sentiment. Most striking feature of this campaign is the distribution of the Bullitt speech given at Independence hall in Philadelphia.

This distribution has now reached the amazing figure of 2,384,000.

After his speech, Bullitt received no less than 9,000 letters and telegrams, with unsolicited contributions totaling more than $6,000. This paid for distribution of the speech.

Three people saw the Bullitt speech before it was delivered. One was Stanley Hornbeck, state department adviser on Far Eastern affairs, who urged, without success, that Bullitt tone it down. Another was Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, who was elated with it. The third person was the President.

Note—Highlight of the Bullitt speech was the warning: "The United States is in as great peril today as was France a year ago . . . Unless we act now, decisively, to meet the threat, we shall be too late."

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels

with herb laxative, combined with syrup pepsin to make it agreeable and easy to take

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with good old Syrup Pepsin to make your laxative more agreeable and easier to take. For years many Doctors have used pepsin compounds, as agreeable carriers to make other medicines more palatable when your "taster" feels easily upset. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna, combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully its herb Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines, to bring welcome relief from constipation. And see how its Syrup Pepsin makes Dr. Caldwell's medicine so smooth and agreeable to a touchy gullet. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist's today. Try one laxative that won't bring on violent distaste, even when you take it after a full meal.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strains on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, a waking—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

CREATING NEW WEALTH TO ORDER Advertising creates new wealth by showing people new and better ways of living, and as it creates new wealth it contributes to the prosperity of everyone touched by the flow of money which is set up. In this way, don't you see, advertising is a social force which is working in the interest of every one of us every day of the year, bringing us new wealth to use and enjoy.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C.

WAR PROPAGANDA

Never in our history has there been such open propaganda for offensive action that would make unavoidable our prompt involvement in war on the other side of the world — war indeed over a range at least as wide as the vast stretch from the Straits of Malacca to the Straits of Dover. It might be wider. If we enter this war on the side of England, whatever we call ourselves we shall be her ally. We must fight wherever defeat threatens, or victory beckons.

It now seems quite probable that the direction of the war has turned from westward to southeastward. New Theaters threaten in the Mediterranean, the Balkans, perhaps Persia, the Persian gulf and even into India.

That is the British domain on which "the sun never sets." Propagandists now openly say that to preserve democracy on earth we must preserve the British empire. Perhaps the millions of conquered and exploited black people in Africa and brown people in Asia and Malaysia are their idea of democracy; but to try to push this great, powerful and peaceful nation into wars to protect such foreign possessions is hysteria that has broken all bonds of reason.

These war-minded men advance measures which could take us into such remote and sterile fields as "defense of America." They say that the Atlantic and Pacific oceans are no longer barriers of defense, but avenues of attack. Since Hitler can't cross twenty-odd miles of the British channel to get at Britain with a land army, it is a safe bet that he doesn't turn up his nose at the Atlantic ocean, even if these potential architects of their country's disaster do so every day in their war dancing madness.

If we push our belated defense preparations on land and seas as rapidly as possible, the chance of our involvement in bloody war, no matter what may come, is too remote to consider.

The catastrophe of our involvement in war would not be merely the bloody loss and danger to life and limb. It would immediately adjourn our free democracy for a war dictatorship. It would permanently adjourn our free economic system of private ownership and liberty of enterprise by so burdening it with additional debt and taxes that the government would control all private property and absorb all private income in the United States.

ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

The senate has twice refused to ratify the St. Lawrence waterway. It never was and never will be a waterway project. It is a power project. It was called a shipway to fool the Middle West. Actually a 10,000 cubic foot diversion into the Mississippi from Lake Michigan which was bargained for with Canada in the boundary waters treaty for the Chicago Drainage canal has already been largely surrendered. That greatly helped low water navigation in the Mississippi. Its surrender hurt every Mississippi valley state far more than the St. Lawrence can ever help them.

The plea was "Great Lakes navigation." The facts were that inexpensive works in the lake outlets could have raised their levels 10 times the amount that diversion lowered them. The motive was not navigation but power—and, in that particular case, private power at Niagara Falls.

SHADES OF TEXAS GUINAN

"Hello, suckers!" So Texas Guinan used to greet her guests in her high-class honky-tonk, where she sold them champagne which they knew to be faked from apple cider, at prices which they knew to be multiplied. She fleeced them outrageously in many other obvious ways from the moment they gave their wraps to the hat girl to the instant of their departure.

She was rolling them, but made no effort to conceal that process of her methods of doing it.

Texas Guinan was tops in inventing and putting over attractive fakes. She gloried in being able to do that even while laughing openly at the weakness of their deception and the incredible gullibility of the suckers who swallowed them, paid through the nose for them, and clamored for more.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Some time before the effort to protect ourselves at a cost of billions, Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle boldly told the Senate O'Mahoney business-baiting committee that increase in federal debt and taxes would inevitably result in final federal ownership and operation of all private property. The job was one-third complete before the "national defense" spending began. When the new "national defense" taxes and restrictions are fully applied it will be at least two-thirds.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Being Disagreeable Is a Luxury

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

He is soured by being held too tightly in a rut; by feeling that Mary and the girls merely want all the money he can make, for pleasures and purchases that mean nothing to him, and that the kindest thing he could do for them would be to die and leave them the big insurance.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

TO MAKE himself disagreeable is a luxury that costs a husband very little.

When life goes dull for him; or his business is worrisome; when he has nothing to remember of his fishing trip but sunburn and an unpaid poker debt; when one child has a cold and the mouth of the other is disfigured by dental bands, then it is Dad's royal prerogative to be disagreeable, and he has to be a man of real strength of character and real sweetness of temper to be anything else.

Nobody can stop him if he wants to be disagreeable. When a man drinks or gambles to excess, beats his children, is unfaithful to his wife, there is something she can do about it. But when he merely criticizes, sulks, snaps and growls, she is helpless unless she wants to turn shrew, and at the same time turn the house into a hell for all concerned.

Dad's Mood Affects All.

Most women don't do that, if only for the sake of their own dignity and for the children. They overlook, they smile, they explain and placate and endure until the bad mood passes.

"Dad is in a bad mood tonight," they say in an undertone. The children glance at him apprehensively. A dismal quiet rules the dinner table. No young voice dares pipe up about the movie; the approaching finals at school; the need of new shoes. Mother makes a few tentative starts.

"Nice that Doctor Smith won the club golf match," she says. And after a moment, "Harriet telephoned today, just to ask about all of us. They've decided not to move."

Silence. Silence. The head of the house looks unutterably weary, looks faintly annoyed.

"My husband is everything that is good and fine in character," writes a Boston wife, "but he is so glum! I could count on my fingers the times I have seen Larry really cheerful. We have four young daughters, and have had hard times financially. But times are better now, and we are paying off bills and planning—or, I am, at least, for a move to a nicer house and a little expansion generally. Larry takes no interest in this, he glooms away silently at meals, is very apathetic over any talk of change, and goes silently through life as if he were half-dead.

"The effect of this on me and the girls is of course perfectly terrible. We can't start up a conversation while that death-head of boredom and disapproval is looking on. As a result we make our own plans and keep quiet when Papa is around. Larry resents this, too, for when I ask for money he hasn't heard our plans, doesn't know what it is for and generally growls about it.

No Criticism Allowed.

"All this seems very sad, to me. We could be so happy! The girls deeply admire and really love their father; I have never allowed myself or them the slightest criticism of him. I have always reminded them that he works hard to keep us all comfortable and happy, that he stints himself to carry a heavy life-insurance, just for us, and that he does truly love us, deep down in his heart. But I find it hard going, sometimes. Now Patsy and Sheila are 16, twins, and Brenda and Margaret getting into their teens, too, and these are days for simple hospitalities and pretty, if inexpensive frocks and good times. I've begged him to relax, to be cheerful, to stop worrying. I've prayed about it. Can you make any suggestion to "just one more Mary?"

DISAGREEABLE?

Kathleen Norris answers a letter from a tearful woman who complains that her husband is always glum and moody. "He acts half-dead," she laments. Miss Norris warns that this may easily be her own fault. Her down-hearted husband is probably carrying too heavy a burden resulting from excessive expenses of his wife and daughters. "Come down to earth," she advises, "and you will all be much happier."

The only suggestion I can make is that there is a reason for this man's moods, and that when it is found and diagnosed, like any bodily sickness, Mary will find that she is halfway to the cure.

It may indeed be physical. It sounds very much like stomach ulcers or colitis or any one of the similar ailments that so often attack men whose habits are sedentary and who eat heartily. If Larry can be persuaded to walk two miles a day, eat a light dinner, and substitute for rich desserts the invaluable orange, apple, saucer of prunes or compote of raw fruits, he may find life taking on a much rosier color.

Trouble Probably Mental.

But much more probably Larry's trouble is mental. He is carrying too heavy a burden. If two of those daughters had been sons he would feel very differently. "The boys will be helping out in a few years," would be his natural thought.

That boys DON'T usually help out, and are much less reliable as money-earners than girls are, doesn't often occur to the father of daughters. But that's an aside.

The cure for Mary's problem might come through a move indeed, but a move to simpler and less expensive rather than finer quarters. It might come through a determined lessening of expenses, rather than an increase in them. It might come if the twins started talking less of college and sorority days and more of jobs. It might come if Mary and the girls all talked honestly to Papa, dismissed the maid, gave up the apartment for which they pay $85 rent and planned for a country farm near the city, at $35. It might come if they gave Papa a chance to do a little gardening, to split wood and chop down trees and putter with a windmill's machinery.

Helping Dad Out of Gloom.

There is escape for all of us from difficult conditions, if we will but open our minds and hearts to find it. A wife and four daughters, when the man of the house is the only bread-winner, shouldn't have a maid. Larry's family has one, and often, for part-time, another. Girls in such a family should be busy putting up fruit to sell, or taking after-school jobs in frock shops or tea rooms. A mother like Mary should be talking of resources, not of constant needs. If she found some weather-beaten old place outside the city, painted it with the girls' assistance, opened a lunchroom, took a couple of small children to board, started a bank account of her own, from which to supply her daughters the luxuries they want, she might find the man of the house a changed person.

Worry over family finances will make the best natured men "disagreeable." If the family would cooperate to help save or earn money, this moodiness usually disappears.

A combination quilt and bedspread show for Farmer county women is under consideration by home demonstration clubbers and FSA farm women, Miss Ruth Eoyd, home demonstration agent, said, following action taken by the demonstration council on Saturday.

At that time, the club women voted to stage such an exhibit, and are asking women of the FSA client division to assist them in putting on such an affair. Miss Eoyd said. The demonstration committee appointed Saturday is composed of Mrs. Will Jones Mrs. J. R. Caldwell and Mrs. Guy Bennett.

Members of this committee, along with three women selected from the FSA clientele, will meet in the office of Miss Eoyd on Thursday of this week, at 4 o'clock, to perfect details of the show.

OBITUARY

In loving remembrance of Robert E. Lee Williams, born July 10, 1874, passed from this life Sept. 19, 1940, at the age of 66 years, 2 months, and 9 days. I first met this good man near Athens, Texas, in 1909, from that time we became very close friends. I can truly and sincerely say that the everyday life of this man was an inspiration to anyone to be a Christian. It has never been my lot to be associated with anyone whose life was more filled with self-sacrifice. I have seen him risking his all that he might be able to help those who came to him for assistance. His character was far above reproach, and though poor in this world's treasures, he laid up treasures in heaven "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal." (Matt. 6:20) "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." (Psalms 116:15.)

A precious one from us has gone. A voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our home, which never can be filled. God in His wisdom has recalled The boon His love had given, And though the body slumbers here, The soul is safe in Heaven.

A Friend.

Advisory Council Is Selected for County

The Farmer County Selective Service Board Tuesday named three men in each of the four communities of the county, whose duty it will be to assist draftees in their respective sections in filling out the eight-page questionnaires that will begin to be mailed from the office of the local board within the next few days.

Attorney Sam Aldridge of this city, has been named by District Judge James W. Witherspoon to head up the Advisory Board in this county, a duty which he has assumed, and is already laying preparations to carry out.

Aldridge stated that the task of assisting individually every draftee in this county with the lengthy questionnaire was too much to ask of any one man, and he appealed to the local board for more help.

The local board responded with the appointment of the following men in their respective communities:

Farwell—J. D. Thomas, J. C. Wilkerson, Jason O. Gordon.

Bovina—Willie Williams, Aubrey Brock, W. O. Cherry.

Friona—Frank Spring, Harlan O'Rear, J. R. Roden.

Lazbuddy—Bill Sherley, John Gammon, Garvin Thorn.

Aldridge, as head of the Advisory Board, will meet with the members named above on the following dates, to explain the technique of filling out the questionnaires:

Farwell—Thursday, Oct. 31, 7:30 p. m., at the courthouse.

Bovina—Friday, Nov. 1, 7:00 p. m., at the school house.

Friona—Friday, Nov. 1, 8:30 p. m., at the school house.

Mr. Aldridge explained that he had already contacted the Lazbuddy helpers, and no meeting has been assigned to that community.

VOTE

Next Tuesday the voters of the United States will have an opportunity to cast their ballot for the candidates of their choice. It will not make so much difference as to who they vote for, as it will whether they vote at all.

All the countries of the world are ruled by the voters of their respective countries, or by Dictators who have deprived the people of their votes. So long as a majority of the people exercise the right of suffrage, so long will our country be safe. But when 51% of our voters decide it is not worthwhile to go to the polls and vote on election day, then it is we will be treading on dangerous ground.

In times past, voters counted it a duty, as well as a great privilege, to go to the polls on election day and cast their ballots for their favorite candidate. But, now, I fear, some of us consider it too great a task, and just remain at home. If you are guilty of falling to vote on election day, it can only be construed to mean that you do not care who is elected, unless you are prevented from voting for some good reason.

If a majority of the American people want a law enforced, it is relatively easy to enforce. And if a majority of our people think enough of their right to vote, to go to the polls and exercise that right, our Democracy will survive.

THINK IT OVER. VOTE!

W. J. MATTHEWS.

MRS. HUNTER TO RETURN

Mrs. S. C. Hunter, who has been recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident near Bonne Terre, Mo., some weeks ago, is expected to return home within the next few days. Mr. Hunter left here Monday by train to accompany her on her return.

Mrs. Hunter was injured early in August, when, in company with her husband on a vacation tour, she received injuries when their car was struck by a large truck loaded with rock. She suffered a broken arm and a fractured shoulder in the crash. Mr. Hunter escaped with less injuries and has been at home here the past few weeks.

If the Farm Program is so good, why is Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. McDonald, a life-long Democrat of Austin, Texas, going to vote for Wendell Willkie? This is food for thought for some of us Democrats in the West who do not know the inner workings of the Farm Program like Mr. McDonald, who has been studying it daily, for seven and one-half years. (Pd. Pol. Adv.)

HOME FROM CONVENTION

Judge Lee Thompson, T. E. Levy and J. M. W. Alexander returned Sunday from Waco, where they were in attendance at the annual meeting of the Texas Judges and County Commissioners.

One of the high points of the convention was the adoption of a resolution supporting the candidacy of Bill Corry for the office of State Agricultural Commissioner in opposition to J. E. McDonald, who, it was charged, has "bolted" the Democratic party and announced the support for Wendell Willkie, the Republican candidate for president. The convention went on record as favoring that McDonald's name be scratched from the ticket in the general election, and the name of Corry be written in.

Corry, a Tarrant county farmer, was runner-up in the Democratic primary, which nominated McDonald.

Makes Nice Profit From Sale of Calves

Crump Melugin reports the sale of his calf crop last week, in which he realized a nice profit. The calves had been fed out at his ranch, a few miles north of here.

Thirty-one steer calves averaged 641 pounds each and brought $57.43 per head. Thirty heifers averaged 571 pounds and sold for $45.57 per head.

Melugin said that the calves were last spring calves and were fed on ground feed, produced on the Melugin farm. He added that he realized more profit from feeding the calves than anything he had undertaken in recent years.

GINNING REPORT

306 bales of Farmer county cotton had been ginned in this county up to Oct. 18, according to figures released today by the Department of Commerce. The same report gives 1276 bales ginned up to the same period last year.

HOME FROM CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Roberts returned home the first of the week from Austin, where they were in attendance at the annual meeting of Texas Seedmen, last weekend. They bring back the report that there is a strong sentiment for the Republican candidate, Wendell Willkie, among the seed dealers of Texas.

Eligibility For The 1941 Wheat Loans

COLLEGE STATION—A loan has not been offered on the 1941 wheat crop, but—

The wheat farmer who is deciding how much acreage to plant this fall should study the eligibility rules for obtaining a loan in 1941 if one is offered.

A producer's share of the wheat produced on a farm will be eligible for the loan only if a 1941 parity payment can be made with respect to that share of the wheat in accordance with the eligibility provisions of the 1941 parity payment regulations. E. N. Holmgreen, state AAA administrator, said in a statement issued from AAA headquarters.

Which all means that wheat produced will be eligible for a loan if none of the following provisions are violated:

(1) The acreage planted to wheat on the farm is not in excess of the wheat acreage allotment for the farm.

(2) The sum of the acreages of wheat and cotton for the farm does not exceed the sum of the allotments or permitted acreages for such crops under the 1941 program.

(3) The producer's aggregate share of the 1941 acreage of wheat and cotton on all farms in the county does not exceed his aggregate share of the allotments or permitted acreages for such crops under the 1941 program on such farms.

(4) The producer's aggregate share of the 1941 acreage of wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco on all farms in which he has an interest, wherever situated, does not exceed his aggregate share of the allotment or permitted acreage for such commodity under the 1941 program for such farms to such an extent as to offset substantially the performance on the farm with respect to which the loan might otherwise be made.

Eligibility for parity payments will be determined early in 1941, the administrator said, and, since those eligible for parity payments will be eligible for loans, only one determination of eligibility need be made.

The announcement of these eligibility rules does not in any way constitute an announcement of a loan on the 1941 crop, Holmgreen pointed out. The statement was issued as a protective measure for the producers so that they might plan their farms for a loan if one is offered.

DON'T LAUGH! It's true. Better light makes a big difference in the way you feel. See how a three-lite I. E. S. lamp ($6.45 and up complete with shade and bulb) discourages grumpiness and sharp retorts.

See how much easier recipes go together and how work seems to fade away with the bright, cheery light of a Renewalite (only $1.95 complete with bulb). It costs surprisingly little to have better light for old eyes and young.

Enough socket type units and I. E. S. lamps to completely light condition your home may be purchased for only 45c down and only $1.00 per month, or eight months to pay the balance. No carrying charge, of course.

WHO'S WHO IN SENIOR CLASS

Who is it that has dark hair, brown eyes, is about five feet eight inches, and lives at West Camp? He is on the football team, and in one of our former games, he received a broken rib. He drives a green Ford and runs around with two other football boys.

The answer will be given in the next issue.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

Due to the wear and tear that has been put on the grass lately, it is getting bald-headed in spots. The teachers ask that for a while we do not play on the grass.

Farwell, unlike most of the schools of its size, has a very pretty lawn. Let's all cooperate and help keep it that way.

Within the next few weeks, the grass will grow back, if given a chance, so put your wear on the sidewalk instead of on the lawn.

FIRE DRILL

Last week saw our first organized Fire Drill. It worked very well, as there was no noise or confusion; and all the students were out of the building in record time. With James Martin as Fire Chief, we have a well-organized squad of firemen and monitors who see that everyone is safely out of the building in very short time.

FACULTY PARTY

On the night of Thursday, October 24, the faculty of Farwell school, with Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Conger, Mrs. McCuiston, Mr. Miller and Billy Charles Rogers as guests, enjoyed a chill supper at the school. THE BAND

There is a new organization gradually coming to life in Farwell School. It will be a band, one of these days, as we now have five trumpets, two trombones, one clarinet, one French horn, three snare drums, and one bass drum, from which some sounds—occasionally music, occasionally noise—have been issuing lately. Then, too, one student has been practicing diligently on a violin; and probably two others will begin. We hope to be able to perform now and then on assembly programs and, perhaps, in public before long.

If there are any others who might be interested in helping Farwell to develop a band, we hope they will report to the music room during one of the following periods: from 8:30 to 9 a. m.; from 11:15 to 12:00; or from 3:00 to 4:00. There is no charge for these lessons, but the student must have his or her own instrument, and will need to buy his own book as soon as one is chosen.

As yet, we are playing the music which we have written in music note-books.

—FHS—

FOOTBALL GAMES

The Farwell Steers won the game October 18th with Whitherral by a wide margin, the score 33-12. This was the first home game.

The Steers were defeated by Claude October 25th, 45-6.

The Steers were far out-matched in the speed, but about equal in weight. This was probably the hardest game of the season. The next game will be with Spring Lake, at Spring Lake.

—FHS—

THE CARNIVAL

The Parent-Teachers' Association will again sponsor a carnival on Halloween night, at Farwell school. There will be all kinds of games; a picture show, pop corn; ice cream; candy, sandwiches, etc. Bring your best friends, and come have a good time all evening, from 7 to 9. While you are having a good time, you will be helping the school in all its different departments, as well as the P. T. A. and its good work. Then, too, come prepared to support the girl who is your choice for carnival queen. Remember the candidates are: seniors, Madaline Randol; juniors, Johnnie Fae Hillhouse; sophomores, Pat Bagley; and freshmen, Theda White. Each girl can look like a queen, and deserves many votes.

Visit the picture show at the carnival! The Seniors are giving a picture show at the Halloween carnival. We have two films: one, a comedy, called "Topnotchers"; the other, a cartoon, called "Jailbirds". Both of these will give you some real laughs. DON'T MISS IT!!!!

—FHS—

CARNIVAL QUEENS

"Nominations are now in order for a candidate for queen", could have been heard in every class room last week, because every high school class was voting on a candidate for the post of Carnival Queen. From what is being said around the school everyone is going to support his queen, and may the best one win!

The votes are cast by paying one cent a vote, and every vote counts 1. Now, everyone back up your queen with something BESIDES talk!

This contest is being sponsored by the F. F. A. and F. H. T. under the auspices of the P. T. A.

Lee McDaniel.

—FHS—

McGUIRE-ANDERSON NUPTIALS PERFORMED OCTOBER 29TH

Miss D'Esta McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McGuire of Texico, became the bride of Richard Anderson of Durant, Mississippi, on Tuesday afternoon, October 29th, at four o'clock.

The quiet home wedding was performed in the home of the bride's parents, with Rev. W. Taylor North, pastor of the local Baptist church, reading the vows before an improvised altar. Tall baskets of mixed chrysanthemums were arranged on the mantelpiece. The single ring ceremony was used for the couple. The bride was attractively dressed in a street dress of black velvet, with a full skirt and tight bodice accented with colorful applique. Her accessories were of black, and for her corsage she wore a single purple orchid.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held in the dining room, with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink and white and topped with figurines, placed in the center of the covered table. Bouquets of sweet peas were arranged on the table, and Miss Adabud McGuire, sister of the bride, presided at the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were one of the popular couples in Farwell high school during the past year, with Mrs. Anderson graduating in the spring, while Mr. Anderson finished his schooling at Canyon during the summer months.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Anderson, of Durant, Mississippi, from Farwell residents, and the couple departed this (Wednesday) morning for that city to reside, where Mr. Anderson is connected with the Gulf Research unit.

Attendants at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl McGuire and daughter, Miss Adabud; Mrs. A. R. Anderson, of Durant, Miss.; Mrs. Galoway, guest of Mrs. A. R. Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Coffee and children, of Clovis; Mrs. W. Taylor North, and Dwight Sheriff.

Notable speakers at the convention were W. R. White, newly-elected president of Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene, Texas, and Mr. Kraft, president of the Kraft Cheese Co. Various departments of church work were discussed during the conference.

TEXICO LAUNDRY

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

SYNOPSIS

David Mallory, in search of newspaper work in New York, is forced to accept a job as switch-board operator in a swank apartment house, managed by officious Timothy Higgins. There David meets Miss Agatha Paget, a crippled old lady, and her charming niece, Allegra. One day, talking with Higgins in the lobby, David is alarmed by a piercing scream. David finds the scream came from the Ferriter apartment, not far from the Pagets'. The Ferriters include Lyon and Everett, and their sister, Ione. Everett, a genealogist, is helping Agatha Paget write a book about her blue-blooded ancestors. Inside the apartment they find a black-bearded man—dead. No weapon can be found. The police arrive. Higgins, who actively dislikes David, informs him that he is fired. David is called to the Paget apartment. There he finds elderly, prim-appearing Agatha Paget sipping a cocktail. She offers him a job helping write her family history—which will unearth a few family skeletons. He accepts the offer. Meanwhile, police suspect Lyon Ferriter of the murder. Jerry Cochran of the Press offers David a job helping solve the murder.

"The fine old Mallory luck still holds," I said. "You're about three hours too late."

I told of my discharge by Higgins and the life-line Miss Paget had thrown me. Cochran heard me through with his pink face quiet, but his eyes were narrower when I finished.

"I don't know why you're balking," he said. "You're sitting pretty, right in a family that lives across the way from the Ferriters, a family that's taking care of the girl tonight and that hires one of the brothers."

I felt better, but I was still bothered.

"Look," I said. "This old lady has been more than white to me. If I throw in with you, I'm double-crossing her."

"You think maybe the Pagets had a hand in it?" he asked softly and that stung me.

"Why—" I began, so hotly that he grinned and looked like a rowdy chub.

"All right, all right," he soothed. "Then if they're in the clear, how are you crossing them? Mallory, this town is paved with good newspaper men who would give one hand for your chance. Better take it."

I nodded agreement at last. For a moment I had the good feeling inside that at last the breaks were going my way. Then I said:

"I don't know why you think the story is still so hot, after Lyon Ferriter's pinch."

"What!" he said as though I had struck him. I repeated what Fineman had told me.

"Holy, suffering martyrs," he jerked beneath his breath and shoved back his chair. "And here I've been sitting. Shannon's been holding out again, the dirty tramp. So long, fella. Wait. I'll see you—let me think. Right here. Three tomorrow. G'by."

He rose, thrust his check at the cashier and vanished with a wheeze of the revolving door. I ate a piece of pie and then another before I followed him.

Mrs. Shaw was suspicious when she answered her doorbell, but after I had paid a week in advance for the room I had used during my first month in New York and had redeemed my trunk as well, she was glad to see me back.

I took all my things from my trunk. I thought, as I hung them up, of Allegra Paget and the ghostly uniform in which she first had seen me. I should have dreamed of her that night, by all standards of romance and Freud, but I didn't. I was too tired to dream of anything.

I took a long time dressing. My shoes had to be shined and my hair needed cutting.

I had barely time for a cup of coffee and arrived a little out of breath before the Morello where Higgins, and gilt more arrayed in maroon and gray, glared at me.

"I'll trouble ye, Mallory," he growled, "for the key of me flat downstairs. And I told ye to move your things last night."

I gave him the key and told him I would call for the suitcase later. I meant to gall him by my manner and I must have for he turned redder and muttered something about upstairs and "that old so-and-so upstairs." I grinned.

"Miss So-and-so to you," I said, and went on in.

The patrician gloom of the Morello had been proof against yesterday's upheaval. Hoyt beamed at me as he took me upstairs, and muttered congratulations. Shannon, emerging from the Ferriter flat as I stepped from the elevator, was not so cordial. He followed me into the Paget apartment.

Sunlight on the opposite white-washed wall of the air shaft filled Miss Agatha's dining room with a soft reflected cheer. The sun had been no more visibly marked by the day before than the old lady herself. She sat in her wheel chair at the table's head, white-haired and sharp. Grosvenor, sullen from lost sleep, looked far less competent.

"Good morning, David," Miss Agatha said precisely. "Captain Shannon, one more call and I'll have to ask your intentions."

Amusement softened the policeman's face. "I'll not tell 'em before witnesses," said he. "I'd like to see Ione Ferriter a minute if you please."

Grosvenor set down his cup with a clatter.

"Miss Ferriter," the old lady replied with ever so slight a stress on the title, "left twenty minutes ago. Her brother Everett called for her. They are going to stay at a hotel until tomorrow—the Babylon, I believe."

"That's where Lyon is hanging out," Shannon growled.

"Possibly," Miss Agatha agreed, and nodded at the paper folded by her plate. "Then he hasn't been arrested?"

Her question made the Captain angrier. His thick neck bulged over his collar.

"He has not. We took him in for questioning, that was all. He's told the truth as far as we can prove it. He ate at Mino's and washed up beforehand at the Grand Central, like he says. We have nothing to hold him on. Before we were through with him, his lawyer sprung him. I'd like to know who tipped off the papers last night, I would indeed."

I looked across the air shaft at a window of the Ferriter flat. There was movement behind it, where Shannon's subordinates still searched for the missing weapon.

"Someone," the Captain said in a surly voice, "killed that man. That's why I want to see Ione Ferriter."

Color crept into Grosvenor's handsome face. He blurted:

"Ione of all persons. What utter rot!"

Miss Agatha's eyebrows twitched. Her nephew crumpled his napkin in

"You think maybe the Pagets had a hand in it?" he asked.

his fist. Shannon, angry and thwarted, welcomed opposition.

"Is it?" he asked nastily. "Who found the corpse? Who is the only one we know was in that flat, besides the dead man? Ione Ferriter, me lad. Make what you will of it."

Grosvenor's voice shook.

"I know what you dumb cops do, first crack," he shrilled. "If you're too thick to understand a thing, you try to pin it on a woman. Why don't you accuse my aunt? She lives here too. Ione Ferriter knows no more about this thing than you do."

He choked and water slopped from the glass in his hand. He drank with hot eyes still fixed on Shannon. Miss Agatha said dryly:

"I'd suggest, Grove, that you pull yourself together and get on downtown. If you will dance all night, you're bound to be jittery in the morning."

The lad hesitated, rose and flung himself out of the room. Shannon asked without expression:

"It's the Babylon they're staying' at, Miss Paget?"

Miss Agatha looked at him with studious care.

"It is," she said at last.

He let his eyes rest on me a second, nodded and left the room. Miss Agatha pushed her wheel chair back from the table and propelled it toward the hall.

"Somehow," she said half to herself, "an outburst at breakfast makes me feel young again. It's as if my own dear father still were alive. In here, David."

We entered the chamber into which I had carried her yesterday. She pointed to the paper-laden desk. "In the top drawer," she said, "you'll find my outline for a first chapter, together with Everett Ferriter's bowdlerizing expansion. When you've read his work, you'll know how I don't want the book written. The dossiers of the Pagets from the first Calvert—who incidentally got a baronetcy under Charles II for double-crossing the Protectorate—are there. You might read them, too. It'll be a long day's work, I said it would be, didn't I? If there's anything you want, there's a call-bell on the desk's edge."

She nodded briskly and wheeled her chair about with deft hands. As she rolled toward the door, she said over her shoulder in a mild scathing voice:

"Mr. Ferriter is still too shaken by yesterday's happenings to work. I suppose if Captain Shannon calls at the Babylon, he will have another relapse."

I thought I heard her chuckle as she trundled away.

All morning I plowed through the uncensored annals of the Paget ancestry—quotations from innumerable books, excerpts from court records, old letters and the like—all compiled, no doubt with frequent shudders, by Everett Ferriter, genealogist.

When someone moved in the hall, I found my eyes jumping from the scandalous annals before me to the open door. My heart would pound and then, when nothing happened, I would swear and bend again to my work.

Once, in mid-morning, I heard Allegra laugh in the dining room. Toward noon Miss Agatha rolled herself in.

"Well," she asked, "do you begin to see why I wanted a newspaper man to write it?"

"I begin to see," I told her, "that a book like this would sell."

She lit a cigarette, blew smoke through her nose and shook her head.

"I know," she said. "One of those literary strip dances. I'm a sinful old woman, David, but I'm not selling the bones of my ancestors, no matter what I think of their owners. This book will be a family affair. Allegra and I are going out to lunch and you better, too."

I thought of my date with Cochran and shook my head.

"I had a late breakfast. I'll slip out later. There's a lot of reading still ahead of me."

"If you can't finish today," she began, but I cut her short.

"If I'm not in the way, I'll stay till I've finished. Then we can talk it over tomorrow morning and get to work."

"You're an obstinate person, aren't you?" Miss Agatha asked, and grinned.

"Aren't you?" I asked her. She chuckled and turned her chair. Her warmth almost made me halt her and confess my arrangement with Cochran, but I hesitated and then she was gone.

Later I saw Allegra push her aunt's wheel chair past the door. She did not look toward me and I took my mind by the scruff and jammed it back into its job so thoroughly that it was ten minutes past the time appointed when I recalled my tryst with Cochran.

He beamed as I took the seat opposite him.

"I'm glad to see you, accomplice. We beat the town for one edition on Lyon's getting pinched."

"And got him unpinched again," I added, and told of Shannon's anger that morning, his squabble with Grosvenor, and the Ferriters' retreat to the Babylon. That pink and chubby mask through which he peered did not stir. He gave me an envelope.

"Confirmatory letter from Milligan," Cochran explained, "and a week's pay in advance. There's an expense account on this job, too, if you need it. How far along have you got?"

"As far," I told him, "as Selah Paget who died in the odor of sanctity and foreclosed mortgages in 1737."

"Not that"—he grinned—"this killing."

"Nowhere."

"You and me both," he answered. "Let's order and then solve it."

While we ate, we groped among the scant unrelated facts, making crazy guesses, building theories and pulling them down. There were only the dead man—still, Cochran said, unidentified—and the guttural voice I had heard over the telephone. Except for that, he might as well have been struck by lightning. No finger-prints, no weapons, no purpose in the killing, no clue to the slayer, no proof, beyond the phone call and the body, that anyone had been in the Ferriter apartment.

"I'm laying off mention of that voice on the phone," Cochran said, sawing away at his steak. "Shannon is sitting on it and so am I. No use tipping off the gifted murderer to all we know."

"Gifted is small praise," I told him. "We're tinkering around the perfect crime."

"Hokey," he snapped. "Perfect crimes are as rare as perfect thirty-sixes, my lad."

I liked his mind—quick and daring yet solid—and it whetted mine. The long hand of the white-enamelled wall clock circled its face while we talked and I forgot Miss Agatha and the waiting records of the Paget family in a spell that was half puzzle, half hunt. Cochran said at last:

"What have we got? We know who had keys to the flat. All right, one of the Ferriters or your friend Higgins did it. Let's not kid ourselves. One of them did. Yesterday noon, while you were away, and Higgins may have been downstairs, and the other guy—this Hoyt—may have been upstairs with the elevator, is the only time Blackbeard and his able assassin could have got in. All right again. Then it wasn't a planned murder because they couldn't have known that luck would leave the way clear. But it wasn't unintentional, at that. For they walked upstairs. As soon as the killer knew they hadn't been seen, he began to design slaughter. Right?"

"As far as you've gone," I agreed.

JESUS DECLARES HIS MISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:16-30. GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Ready for service! It's an exciting and auspicious occasion when the one who has prepared for a life work is ready to set forth on his mission. Joy and sorrow mingle; encouragement and opposition both appear and become his constant companions. Recognizing God and following His Word is of greatest importance on such a day.

The mission upon which Jesus entered on the day of our lesson was important far beyond any service of man, for, while He set out upon an earthly ministry of doing good, it led to the cross where He wrought out deliverance for the captives of Satan. That day found Him back with His own people in the synagogue in His home town.

I. Prophecy Fulfilled (vv. 16-22). It is significant and appropriate that Jesus' declaration of Himself as the fulfillment of Isaiah 61:1, 2 was made in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. He met with the people in the house and at the time set apart for God's worship. He opposed spiritual deadness, the misinterpretation of the truth, the distortion of religious principles; but He was not, as some would have us believe, a religious free lance who despised the established worship of His people.

Having been prepared by the years of silence, and more particularly by the baptism and the temptation in the wilderness, He appeared at the synagogue in Nazareth to declare Himself as the fulfillment of prophecy.

Those who teach that Jesus was only a young Jewish teacher with a new philosophy of life have evidently not read the Scriptures. He knew Himself to be God's Son come into the world to bring the good news of salvation by His own blood to poor, sin-captive, blinded and bruised humanity. He is the Saviour!

Look at Isaiah 61:1, 2 and note that Jesus stopped reading before the end of the sentence. "The day of vengeance of our God" will come when Christ returns. This is the day of grace. Sinners are urged to accept God's love now, and thus to escape the terrible day of judgment.

II. Faith Recognized (vv. 23-27).

The Jews gloried in the fact that they were the chosen people of God and insisted it was through the exercises of their formal worship that God's blessing must be received. Now this one whom they erroneously call "Joseph's son" (v. 22) comes to disturb them in their self-satisfaction. Seeing their rising resentment, He declares by striking words and example that the benefits and blessings of God come through faith and not because of any racial relationship.

The glory of Christianity is that its grace and power are to be received by faith and are fully and freely available to the simplest and poorest of men. Race, position, wealth, education, have nothing to do with it. All too often they are a hindrance, although they ought rather to be a help.

Every reader of these notes, regardless of age, education, wealth or any other condition or circumstance of life, stands on an equal footing before God and has a full and unlimited opportunity to take right now, by faith in Christ, all that God has for him—salvation, spiritual strength and usefulness, joy, peace, and all the other blessing of God. Will you do it?

III. Truth Rejected (vv. 28-30).

Like a torch cast into gunpowder, His words set off all the explosive power of narrow bigotry, national pride, jealousy, and they were all "filled with wrath" (v. 28).

They rejected not only the truth of His words, but they rejected Him who is the Truth (John 14:6). Note it carefully—in rejecting or neglecting His Word, you reject and neglect Him.

Observe that until the time had come for Him to be "delivered" (Rom. 4:25) into the hands of wicked men to be crucified they could not touch Him. There is no more majestic scene than that in verse 30 where the Son of God turned at the brow of the hill and, walking through the midst of the crowd, went His way.

What have I to fear at the hands of wicked and gainsaying men as long as I follow this all-powerful Son of God? He that is for us and in us is greater than he (the devil) that is in the world (I John 4:4). We follow the victorious Christ, who quietly but majestically walks through the ranks of His helpless enemies and goes "His way." Will you join us—today?

Be Temperate

Woe to them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them.—Isa. 5:11.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—In 1933, young Nelson A. Rockefeller was handed a delicate job of commercial and cultural co-ordination, indeed a Rockefeller Well assignment for a beginner in this field. It was to persuade the fiery Diego Rivera to x-out that head of Lenin in his murals at Rockefeller Center. He managed the affair with tact and restraint, undisturbed by the thunder from the left.

Now he has progressed to full-time work in that highly specialized field. He is co-ordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the United States and other Western hemisphere nations. Currently he is in the news as he appoints John Hay Whitney to his staff, to take care of motion picture details of the above co-ordinating.

I remember talking to one of his teachers at Lincoln school, New York. She said Nelson was good material for progressive education, as he had a way of getting on with people. He was a good student, too, romping so far ahead of schedule at Dartmouth that they gave him his senior year off. He devoted it to a wanderjahr, in which he went to India and had a long chat with Mahatma Gandhi, and studied photography. Taking up the rich man's burden, he devoted himself mainly to the family real estate, becoming president of Rockefeller Center, which, incidentally, is one of the most successful feats of commercial and cultural co-ordination in the world.

Mr. Rockefeller, born in Bar Harbor, Maine, in 1907, is tall, blond and reticent, an abstainer from alcohol and tobacco, always deeply earnest. With his manifold business interests he combines a careful and diligent trusteeship of the Museum of Modern Art. This department can't help but feel a bit doubtful about co-ordinating commerce and the arts—unless there is a John Masefield around to write a poem like "Cargoes."

KING BORIS of Bulgaria is doing the best he can for his little Cinderella kingdom, but things don't look so good. He reviews troops and shifts tanks and Rather Be 'Casey guns around Jones of Balkans smartly, but there is a hint that he is just making himself a lot of unnecessary trouble. As a king, he never did have his heart in his work.

He has a passion for trains and never misses a chance to drive a locomotive. Engines fill his life and his dreams. When his father, Ferdinand, abdicated in 1918, the young man insisted that he be allowed to go to America and be a railroad engineer, but his father forbade it.

Ascetic in appearance, always of seemly behavior, he moved immaculately through Balkan wars, revolutions and internecine dogfights. Ferdinand had apprenticed him to a versatile fighting man in 1912, when he was only 18 years old. He fought dutifully, but seemed always to be listening for the whistle of old 97, coming round the bend.

His wardrobe, one of the best in Europe, runs mainly to pinstripes. He is a nimble dancer, good at all such orthodox sports as boar-hunting and timber-topping, but aroused and eager only when he has his hand on the throttle of a locomotive.

In 1930, he married the Princess Giovanna of Italy. This alliance was regarded, among other dynamic ties, as a stabilizing and safeguarding influence for his kingdom, but now seems of small account. In 1934, internal stress led the king to set up a dictatorship, by a military coup. It didn't help much. About 80 per cent of the exports of Bulgaria continued to go to totalitarian countries, and it came more and more under their thrall. The king flirted with Russia for a while, with no gratifying results. He has been in frequent peril of assassination—and nothing seems to matter much, since they won't let him be a railroad engineer.

In 1935, he lost his job selling oil burners when the company folded up. Julia, his wife, said, "Now's your chance to do some of that singing you were always going to do." So he piped up right away and sang his way right through to the dotted line on a Metropolitan Opera contract. That's young Arthur Kent, one of the ten new singers booked this season at the Met. He began singing in cafes and churches and then got 46 weeks in "I Married an Angel." His repertoire includes Italian, Spanish, French.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

To frost windows make a very strong solution of epsom salts and vinegar. Apply it with a paint brush and when it is dry go over it with white varnish if you wish it to remain on for good.

If the juice from an apple pie runs out into the oven, shake salt on it. It will burn crisp on the bottom of the oven and may easily be removed.

The color and flavor of roast beef gravy is improved when a tablespoon of brown or white sugar is added to it.

It is usually advisable not to store cookies or cakes in the same container with bread. The odors and flavors are likely to mingle. However, if you wrap a loaf of cake or cookies in several thicknesses of heavy waxed paper you will have no trouble.

Apples stuffed with mincemeat and baked make a delicious winter dessert. Wash, peel and core the apples and stuff them an inch from the top. Bake as usual. Lemon sauce goes well with this combination.

A pastry brush is a very handy kitchen tool. You can buy one or use a small well-made paint brush. Use such brushes for glazing rolls and cookies, dusting baked fruits and vegetables and for "painting" fish, fowl and meats with savory sauces or melted fat. Wash the brush thoroughly after using and sterilize it for five minutes in boiling water. Wipe dry and hang up until next time.

Always add a little melted butter to uncooked frosting. It improves the flavor and also prevents cracking.

A small quantity of leftover pie crust may be rolled thin, cut into squares, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon and baked until crisp. These are very good served with lemon sauce for dessert.

Cookies and cakes in which honey is used need about two weeks for ripening. They improve with age, provided, of course, they are stored in covered jars in a cool place. Regular fruit jars with rubber rings make good containers.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew! Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Congress Establishes Vocational Schools to Train Farm Youth

Rural Schools to Offer Instruction in Mechanical Trades; Rumors Predict Roosevelt, Willkie Will Name Loser to Head Defense Board.

By BAUKHAGE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON.—Remember that old song: "How you going to keep 'em down on the farm, after they've seen Paree"?

Well, you're not going to be able to keep some of them down on the farm who haven't seen Paree. This time it isn't the bright lights that are calling, it's the pay envelope. Not the lure of the ladies but the lathes and riveters and stamping machines in the factories that are calling.

At least, that is what the experts here in Washington who claim they can see through a haystack without blinders prognosticate.

And Uncle Sam is helping. Most people didn't notice it but congress slipped $10,000,000 into the last deficiency bill, most of which is going toward helping the farm boy get a job in the city. The money is to be appropriated as part of the industrial defense program for "out-of-school rural and non-rural vocational schools" but the fact is that states will share in the fund according to their farm population.

At present more than 2,500 rural vocational schools are offering instruction in vocational agriculture. These schools, if they get additional money for equipment and teaching, can provide training in auto-mechanics and other skills basic to defense industries.

City Employers Prefer Men Raised on Farm

And this isn't just a defense measure, either. We know that scarcely any city produces enough babies to keep its population even. We know that while some farm districts are overpopulated now and have been since the depression, a lot of farmers' sons will always go to the city if they can find work there. Right now defense industries need help and they prefer a man with a card that shows he has had vocational training. This doesn't mean that agricultural vocational training will be cut down but the $10,000,000, while it won't go very far, will help a lot to give the farm boy the mechanical training the city boys have been getting.

But there is another reason why more farm boys are going to get city jobs. They are preferred in a lot of industries anyhow. A farm boy makes a good factory worker, the experts tell us, if he comes from a farm where machinery has been used, because he's just that much more experienced than the city boy. Especially the tractor wheat farms of the Northwest, the corn-belt, the Mississippi South. He knows a cam from a gear, he knows what makes the wheels go round. He can transfer this "feel" he has for farm machinery to a lathe or any other simple machine.

Another thing, he's better disciplined than the city boy. On the farm Pa is the foreman. The boy is used to taking orders. Also he's used to working hard. And when he goes to the city he's likely to be steadier and more reliable than the city worker.

Defense Commission Post in Doubt

There is an interesting rumor chasing itself around the lamp-posts on Pennsylvania avenue these days. It's one of those wish-fathered thoughts but it's worth repeating over anybody's back fence. This is the way it goes:

"If Roosevelt is elected he's going to make Wendell Willkie chairman of the defense commission. If Willkie is elected he's going to name Franklin Delano Roosevelt for the job."

Such a consummation might do more to unify the defense program than any other single thing.

At present there isn't any chairman of the commission. When Mr. Knudsen, head of the production unit of the group, has a problem that involves national policy he has to put on his hat and walk over to the White House, or else call National 1414 and ask to speak to one Franklin Delano Roosevelt, for he's the boss.

The same thing applies to the heads of the other units. As a matter of record there has been no public criticism on the part of the defense commissioners about the arrangement but some people feel that it would be a wonderful thing as far as public opinion goes, if the next President, whoever he may be after next January, picks his erstwhile

TRADE SCHOOLS

Farm youths will soon be offered training in mechanical trades, according to Baukhage. He passes on the rumor whispered in Washington that when Roosevelt or Willkie is elected in November, the losing candidate will be appointed chairman of the Defense commission. If the election is close, Baukhage writes that it is possible the United States may be without a president after January 20.

political opponent as head of our gigantic effort to ring America with an impenetrable wall of wings and ships and men.

U. S. May Lack President in January

As a matter of fact when inauguration day rolls around there actually may not be any President to inaugurate.

At least that's what some of the prophets of gloom on Capitol Hill are predicting will happen if the November election should be very close.

This is what the worrying ones say:

"When the Lame Duck amendment to the Constitution was written and inauguration day and the convening of the new congress were moved back from March to January, Senator Norris and everybody else thought our troubles were over. We all agreed it was wonderful to get rid of the painful sight of lame ducks limping around the political barnyard. It was a waste of time, often with a defeated President still in the White House, always with some defeated congressman who really didn't represent anybody, sitting in the Capitol until the March following the November elections.

"That's all very well under ordinary circumstances, that is when we don't have a close election. But suppose we do have a real close election this year. Congress meets on January 3. The brand new congress. It has to organize, elect a speaker and be ready for the joint session with the senate three days later because that's when the electoral vote is counted. And until the vote is counted and approved by the whole of congress the results of the election are not official.

"Usually this ceremony is just an empty form—unlocking the specially made box, taking out the beautifully engrossed certificates from each state signed by the proper officials and reading off the score that everybody has known since election day. But suppose the vote is close and there are charges of fraud and the side which makes the charges has enough votes in the house to demand a recount?"

Close Election Would Necessitate Recount

"The law says that if the electors can't decide on the President that the Vice President with the most votes has to take over the presidency in the interim. But it would be quite likely that if one candidate's vote was questioned his running mate's would be, too. So who would be President then?"

This is the problem as some of the legislators see it. They point out that if fraud were approved in a single precinct in a single state, it might change the electoral vote of that state and so the outcome of the election. Meanwhile, an investigation might drag out and postpone the approval of the electoral vote indefinitely.

Of course this isn't likely to happen but at least it provides something for congress and the country to worry about and take their minds off the war. And it could happen.

In the famous case of President Hayes the vote was protested and it took a nine-man commission to settle it. Congress selected three members of the Supreme court, three senators and three representatives to do it. Their task was considerably expedited, however, since they had a pro-Hayes majority and simply threw out all the electoral votes challenged by the other side. The supporters of Tilden, the defeated candidate, were never convinced that he wasn't cheated out of the presidency.

Such a thing could hardly happen again but it is true that fraud charges are predicted this year and nobody but a spendthrift or a violently loyal partisan is anxious to risk his money betting on the number of seats that will be won or lost in the house in November.

What we forget is that the American people usually go in for land-slides and the close election is the exception. That's probably why we don't take close races into consideration and perhaps it's why Senator Norris and his friends who drew up the Lame Duck amendment didn't allow a little more time between the meeting of the new congress and the counting of the electoral vote and inauguration day, "just in case."

A humorous note was given defense preparations recently when President Roosevelt vetoed legislation designed "to safeguard and promote the breeding and training of the homing pigeon for use as a means of communication in an emergency." The President commented that this was carrying national defense "a little too far." The measure would have made it a Federal offense to shoot or tamper with a homing pigeon, because the birds may be needed to carry military messages.

LEGUMES RAISE SOIL FERTILITY

Nitrogen-Rich Crops Need Special Handling.

By C. B. WILLIAMS
(Head, N. C. State College Agronomy Department)

Legumes plus proper fertilization hold the key to fertile, productive soils.

The most practical method in building up the productive power of soils calls for the proper growth and handling of suitable legume crops in rotation with properly fertilized major crops.

The mere growing of legumes does not assure added fertility unless these crops are handled properly. If the legumes are removed from the field, leaving on the land only the stubble and roots, their use in this manner alone will prove a delusion so far as being an effective means of increasing the producing power of the soil in a permanent way is concerned.

Effective methods of increasing the fertility of soils must be those that will leave the soil at the end of each year fairly well supplied with thoroughly decomposed organic matter and an increasing amount of readily available plant foods. This will be the effect which the proper growth and handling of legumes will have on the land.

Anyone at all familiar with the simple principles of soil management knows that fertility cannot be maintained when the crops removed take off the land more plant foods than are returned to it. That's why it's so important to turn under some of the legumes.

The best time to apply ground limestone is from three months to one year before seeding legumes. This gives the stone sufficient time to contact acid in the soil particles and counteract it.

The application of lime to cultivated land should be made after plowing, and the material should be mixed with the topsoil. Little benefit may be expected if lime is plowed under before being properly mixed with the topsoil. On pastures it is only necessary to scatter the lime on top of the sod; however, better results will be obtained if it can be worked in by light harrowing.

Good Laying Hens Do Not Die Young

The hen that lays the golden egg, and lays it regularly, can live as long as her less productive sister, according to a five-year study made at the Pennsylvania State college by Dr. Dean R. Marble, associate professor of poultry husbandry.

"Many poultrymen believe that the high mortality of laying hens is due to breeding for standards of egg production which are so high that the bird's physique is weakened," Dr. Marble stated. "However, during a five-year period we cut the mortality of selected poultry in half and proved that we can breed longer-lived poultry without any loss in egg production, egg size, or body weight. Selecting and breeding for all these characteristics is practical."

During the past decade mortality has been increasing, Dr. Marble claims. He believes that careful breeding could help to solve the problem.

Sheet Erosion Destroys Fertility of Farm Land

That crop yields decrease as soil erosion increases is shown by tests made on farms last summer by the Soil Conservation Service.

In tests made on five farms, it was found that fields with less than 25 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 51 bushels of oats or 47 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 25 to 50 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded 42 bushels of oats or 28 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 50 to 75 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 35 bushels of oats or 23 bushels of barley, and land with more than 75 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded only 23 bushels of oats and 17 bushels of barley.

"There is an evident relation shown here between topsoil losses and crop losses," says M. A. Thorfinnson, soil conservationist. "Sheet erosion removes the top, or most productive layer of the soil. With each inch that washes away, there is left a material that is not only less productive, but that is more subject to erosion."

New Worm Treatment

Phenothiazine, a new and powerful drug which is now being used experimentally for treating sheep and goats for worms, has been giving splendid results on flocks around Columbia. Flocks that have been treated twice have been doing splendidly. It takes about five days after treatment to clean the animals of worms, and all worms are killed, except possibly some tapeworms. Even the nodule worms are killed.

IN THE wake of football's mid-season mark we find again one major flaw in the mental attitudes of too many supporters. It is this. When some team gets beaten the crowd swings from that outfit to others unbeaten and untied.

This is all out of focus. In the first place, most teams have certain objectives for which they must later on be ready. In the second place, schedules play a big part in any season's final roundup—a terrific part.

Pennant-winning teams in the National and American baseball leagues are only supposed to have a .660 average—about two out of three. Few coaches have the reserve strength on hand to get keyed up for every game. It can't be done unless the reserve material is exceptional or the schedule is full of weak spots.

Why should a team that plays eight or nine hard games be judged against a team that plays four hard games and four or five setups?

Take Your Choice

I recall a good many years ago when Major Daley was coaching Army. His two main assignments were Yale in October and Navy in late November.

"I can win either game," he said to the Army staff. "I can beat Yale in October or Navy in November. But I can't win both. Which is your main objective?"

We'll take last fall. Ohio State won one of the hardest conference championships football knows—the Big Ten. Yet Ohio State lost two major games—to Cornell and Michigan.

Southern California won the Pacific conference title and the Rose Bowl windup. Yet Southern California was tied by Oregon and outplayed by Washington, both of whom were beaten and outplayed by U. C. L. A.

Shining Examples

The two best teams in football last fall were Cornell and Texas A. & M. They were neither tied nor beaten. Nor was Tennessee until it hit the Rose Bowl. But in all frankness not one of these had to play a Notre Dame or an Iowa schedule—nor a Minnesota schedule.

For another example, suppose most teams had to meet Vanderbilt's current schedule—Princeton, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee among others.

Let some of these mop-up winners try out that last-named menu on their piccolos.

I'll give you another—U. C. L. A. Here it goes—S. M. U., Santa Clara, Texas A. & M., California, Oregon State, Stanford, Oregon, Washington State, Washington and Southern California. Only nine or ten tough ones in a row, including six of the nation's best.

The Big Difference

Two or three setup games can make all the difference in the world, such as many high ranking teams have. They give the coach a chance to rest up any injured men and get them ready for the next hard test, while another coach, facing one tough opponent after another, has no such break.

For this reason there is no such animal as a national champion. It is a complete impossibility with so many teams playing so many different schedules.

The closest claim I recall to any so-called national championship was Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team—1930—that mopped up East, Midwest, Southwest and Far West. The only close calls came against Southern Methodist and Army, the latter on the worst football day and the worst football field I ever saw—rain, sleet, snow, fog and ice.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois, philosopher, artist and coach, comes closer to calling the turn on football than anyone I've ever known.

1. "There are times you can lose 'em all, and still look good in every game you lost. There are times you can win and not look good at all."

2. "There is only one thing in football that is more important than winning. That is to leave the field with your opponent's respect, win or lose."

The Game's the Thing

After all, if you have left either a winning or a losing field without your opponent's respect for the main things that make up sport—we'll say courage, clean play, hard play, decency—the harvest is hardly worth while. It's tougher to be a good loser, but a good loser looks better in defeat than an overbearing, unsportsmanlike victor does in his moment of triumph.

Once again I believe too many football followers expect too much from too many teams.

A CASE IN POINT

The professor of economics had been talking steadily for more than an hour, and his class was becoming a trifle restless.

"Take any article, for instance," he droned on. "When it is bought it goes to the buyer—"

"What about coal?" interposed a weary voice.

The professor gazed over his glasses at his interrupter.

"Well," he snapped, "what about it?"

"When coal's bought doesn't it go to the cellar?" asked the youthful student.

Opportunity at Last

Mrs. Smythe-Browne was making the final arrangements for her elaborate reception.

"Bridget," she said to her old servant, "for the first 30 minutes after six o'clock I want you to stand at the drawing-room door and call the guests' names as they arrive." Bridget's face lit up.

"Very well, ma'am," she replied. "I've been wantin' to do that to some of your friends for years."

Father—I have told him the same story five times and he laughs at it every time.

That's Better

Little Mary was left to fix lunch, and when mother returned with a friend she noticed Mary had the tea strained.

"Did you find the lost strainer?" mother asked.

"No, mother, I couldn't," replied Mary, "so I used the fly swatter."

Mother was nearly swooning, so Mary completed it with, "Oh, don't get excited, mother, I used the old one."

Not Guilty

The inspector was examining the class.

"Who drove the Israelites out of Egypt? You," he said, pointing to a boy in the corner.

"Twasn't me, sir," replied the boy. "I only came back from the country last week."

When in Rome . . .

"Brown-Smith never comes to this club but he acts the fool."

"Very true sir, perhaps he believes in the saying: 'When in Rome do as the Romans do.'"

Daisy Hot Dish Mat An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS the flower handle of the tea-pot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubbing. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a Christmas gift or would attract attention if used to sell at a church bazaar. All the directions you need to make one are right here in the sketch.

Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

NOTE: There are directions for a hot dish mat made of cable cord in SEWING, Book 4. Books 2 and 3 also contain directions for many gifts and novelties. These booklets are a service to our readers and each contains 32 pages of illustrated directions for things to make for the home. Old Gent Didn't Suspect Child Was in Duplicate

A young wife was aboard ship, sailing from New York to Panama, there to join her husband. Just before the ship was to dock, she missed her little twin daughters and set out to hunt them.

"Have you seen my twins?" she asked a crusty old gentleman in a deck chair.

"Twins?" he repeated. "I didn't even know there were any on board."

She was just going to remark that it was odd he hadn't noticed, when she spied a pig-tailed head peering around a corner. "There's one now," she told him.

"Oh, that child!" said the man. "I've seen her all over the place!"

Ag Teacher Attends Meeting in Canyon

T. A. McCuiston, head of the vocational agriculture department of the Farwell school, was in Canyon the past Saturday, attending a meeting of teachers and FFA members of this district.

Following a program at the college, the group was taken to the Tierra Blanca farm, near Canyon, where FFA boys participated in judging stock, and then inspected hogs and cattle on the farm.

Mr. McCuiston reported that a very interesting program was given, and expressed his regret that local FFA boys were unable to attend, due to the press of farm work at this season.

Claude Downs Steers by Lopsided Margin

Featuring a razzle-dazzle backfield, combined with a particularly strong line and blocking that reached the perfection of college teams, the Claude Mustangs lambasted the visiting Farwell Steers, 45-6 in a game played at Claude Friday.

Double-reverse plays, which so thoroughly covered the ball that the Farwell defense was unable to fathom the attack, was the heart of the Mustang offense, and with blockers tearing through the Farwell line like razors through so much tissue-paper, the Steers were definitely out of their class.

Taking the ball on the kickoff, Farwell was held on its own 28, and Phillips booted to midfield. And then the fireworks began. J. Wilson, backfield star, took the ball on a reverse which completely befuddled the locals, and swept into the end zone on the first Claude play of the game, without a Farwell man in hailing distance.

Taking the ball on their own 30 when Farwell was held for downs and forced to kick, Claude took to the air, and with G. Doshier passing to J. Wilson and B. Hammitt tossing to Disher, advanced to the 30-yard line. Calvert ripped off yardage to get to the 11, and on the next play went over center for a counter, also running the line for extra point.

Another score was counted up by Calvert in the first quarter, after J. Wilson had driven to the 20-yard line, where he was nailed by Dotson. Early in the second quarter, J. Wilson went around right end into pay dirt, and with the half nearing, Calvert broke loose, scored a touchdown, and added the extra point. Counters in the third quarter were made by J. Wilson and Calvert, spiking the score to 45-0.

Fighting gamely, Farwell suddenly cracked a substituted Mustang line in the final quarter, and drove to the 22-yard line, where Hughes sneaked off end and went over the last stripe unmolested, for the only Farwell tally. A bad pass from center was fumbled on the try for extra point, and Hughes finally picked up the ball and tried a drop-kick, which failed to go between the uprights.

Putting up a game fight throughout, the locals were not greatly surprised by the defeat, since reports received here indicated that Claude boasted one of the strongest teams in the conference. This gives Farwell a 50-50 count on conference matches, they having won from Dimmitt and lost to Claude.

The local backfield was seriously handicapped by the weight advantage of the Claude line, which ripped open the defense to leave the ball carriers extremely vulnerable. The usual Farwell pass attack was also stifled, with alert Claude men either smacking down or intercepting a number of the attempts.

Hughes was probably more effectively stopped than in any game this season with Wilnot and H. James, linesmen, breaking through to snag him when the Hammitt brothers, at the ends, were taken out. White turned in the best defensive game for the Steers, while Pipkin and Gast got in several nice tackles.

Interest is Registered In Calf Progress Show

Good interest from parents of club boys, along with visitors from over the county, was manifest at the first "calf progress" show to be held by the 4-H boys in this county, on Saturday, when the clubbers exhibited calves in Friona.

County Agent Jason O. Gordon stated that a good number of visitors were present for the show, held in the afternoon, and the boys expressed themselves as having received valuable information from Merrill Brigrance, who demonstrated grooming and show-ring technique.

During the morning, calves were clipped, and in the afternoon, final polishing features, to make the stock highly presentable in the show ring, were demonstrated by Brigrance. Stress was laid on proper grooming, combined with conduct of both the calf and owner in the show ring.

Ten calves were exhibited, with each animal being weighed, in order that the boys might compare the present weight against the poundage of the calf at regular stock shows in the spring. No judging was held, with each boy taking a merit review of his calf as compared to the others on exhibit.

Boys showing calves, and the weights of the animals, were: Perry Barnes Jr., 680; C. L. Caloway Jr., 660; John McFarland (Angus), 640; Jimmie Baxter, 630; A. V. Warren, 610; Billy John Thorn, 540; C. D. Julian Jr., 530; Stacy Queen Jr., 420; Lewis Welch, 410; John McFarland, 400.

"This particular time of year is the period when most boys are apt to neglect feeding would-be show animals properly," the agent said, "and it is for this reason that the show was held at this time."

Basketball Practice Is Started in Texico

Beginning the 1940-41 basketball season early, boy and girl aspirants of the Texico teams were out on the floor this week, taking preliminary workouts under the direction of Coach A. D. McDonald.

And the boys are in the dumps, for, they point out, the Texico team lost practically all of the men on whom it had depended for several years, by graduating last spring. On the other hand, Coach McDonald is emphasizing the fact that the exes were not any better than the youngsters now on hand at the start of their basketball careers, and is urging that recruits forget the shadow of the has-beens and turn out for strenuous workouts.

Actually, no places have yet been cast for members of the team, with all boys merely going through series of passing and shooting, the coach reported, and although it is probable that the team this year will not reach the standard hung by the retiring team, still, there is a good deal of material on hand to shape into a squad to threaten visitors who may think the locals "easy."

Returning for duty this year are Jack and Leonard Flye, Murray White, Gene Curtis and Walter Baldock, all of whom have been in a number of games, while new men, including Potts, Phillips, and Summers, are showing up well in practice sessions.

Girls Take Workouts

The girls' team, which usually takes a back seat in county athletics, was also hurt by graduation last spring, but with a half-dozen or so former players out, is promising to come out of the doldrums for the current season.

Freda and Pearl Martin, Doris Doolittle, Edna Earl Thompson, Mary Margaret Martin and Lila Boss are among the returning players, and with the new material on hand, an about-average team is predicted by the time actual play begins.

At present, no schedule for the season has been drawn, as the majority of schools in this section are still football-conscious, but it is planned to arrange a scrimmage match within the next week or so, officials have announced.

Springlake-Farwell Tussle on Nov. 1st

Meeting for the first time in sports history, the Farwell Steers will tangle with the Springlake eleven on that gridiron, Friday of this week, in the homecoming game for the entertaining team, Coach M. D. Conger has announced.

And since it is homecoming, the Springlake squad will be hard to handle, being primed for the game after taking a sound wallop from the Friona Chiefs on Friday, officials believed today.

On the other hand, Farwell also fell prey to a much stronger team last Friday, and are hoping to balance the budget on a team more in their class.

As to actual statistics: Farwell lost to Friona 21-0, and Springlake fell before Friona 38-6, which apparently gives Farwell an edge over their opponents, but the dope bucket has a way of upsetting at the most unpredictable times, and most observers are waiting until after the game to make any remarks.

With all men back in the lineup and no injuries marked up from the tangle with Claude, the Farwell team is expected to hit its stride again. Several of the regular first-string men, who have been out "picking bollies" have returned to the squad, consequently strengthening the line.

The Friday game will begin at 2:30 on the Springlake grid. This is not a conference match.

Coronation Ceremonies To Highlight Carnival

With a fanfare of trumpets, the annual coronation of the "Carnival Queen" will be the highlight of the Halloween festival sponsored by the Farwell Parent-Teachers' Association, to be held at the school auditorium on Thursday night of this week.

Early in the week, no announcement was forthcoming as to which girl was leading in the race, but information has leaked out that voting will be "hot and heavy" in the final phases of the carnival, with the voting boxes to close at ten o'clock Halloween evening.

In view of the fact that a number of patrons may not have cast their votes—only one cent each—for their favorite candidates, sponsors of the various girls have reiterated that voting boxes have been placed at convenient places over town, and urged that all participate in the selection of the queen.

Queen candidates and escorts, are: senior—Madaline Randol, Bill Dotson; juniors—Johnnie Hillhouse, Scott Billingsley; sophomores—Pat Bagley, "Smokey" Gast; freshmen—Theda White, "Muggins" Graham.

Princesses and escorts are: seniors, Emma Lou Herington, Dwight Sheriff; juniors, Merle Loelace, A. G. Acker; sophomores, Jane Lokey, Arlon Lovelace; freshmen, Maxine Hughes, Luther Hawk.

Pete Booth will officiate at the piano during the coronation ceremonies, with Jerry and Rex Pool as the trumpeters. Marilyn Anderson will be the scroll reader, and will also perform a tap dance for the court of honor; Jill Dunn is the page, and Virginia Carter and Mary Bell Airdridge will serve as train-bearers. However—the coronation is only one part of the above-par carnival that is being enthusiastically and excitedly planned, with Lester Rogers, in charge of booth arrangements, stating that a large number of attractions have been secured for the carnival.

The ducking board—that very popular game whereby the participants throw at a target and upon hitting the bulls-eye, send the "nigger" into a tub of water—is likely to prove one of the most patronized amusements of the evening, while the doll rack is also slated to vie for attention honors.

In addition, there will be a cake-walk, where the visitor can take a chance on a home-baked cake; grocery store, a fortune telling booth—and no Halloween carnival is complete without this—a shooting alley; a fish pond, and gobs of "feed" booths, where one may buy anything from the lowly hamburger to favorite ice cream.

A picture show, with two comedies to be shown, will also be given during the evening, and balloons and popcorn will be on sale for the younger set.

No admission will be made at the door, which will be opened to the public at 8 o'clock and all local patrons desirous of having a lot of fun for a small cost are urged to attend.

TO DAIRY MEETING

County Agent Jason O. Gordon announced today that he would be in Lubbock Friday of this week, in attendance at the annual dairy day program at Tech college. He is urging that all dairy herd owners, as well as cream buyers, in Parmer county, plan to attend this instructive meeting.
