The dust has settled

The dust has cleared and settled since the summit was held in Geneva between President Reagan and Chairman Gorbachev.

I've had a chance to read the comments from several political pundits, plus view the statements made by the Reagan administra-

It seems most folks have hailed the summit as an achievement, noting it will lead to more meetings between the two world leaders.

Here's my opinion: the summit was a complete dud. Period.

You see, I'm lucky. I don't have to spin a line of long words and brilliant expertise to convince millions of readers that I have deep insight into world political situations. Our readers in the Twin Cities, I believe, don't appreciate the usual baloney that spews forth from the "pundits" (one of my favorite words).

Let's face it, the summit achieved virtually nothing. Nil. Zilch. It was a big waste of time and effort. Think I'm wrong? Then let's take a look at

So Reagan and Gorbachev are going to meet two more times. Well, what does that prove? Just because two boxers sparred with each other for one round, never getting bloodied, does that mean the same thing won't happen in rounds 2 and 3? I doubt seriously that the results will change one iota.

And just because they are meeting doesn't mean there can't be a war. Chamberlain met with Hitler, didn't he? The only real good that could come from these one-on-one meetings would be if the proper groundwork was laid: i.e., if there was a common area for agreement. Frankly, there isn't and won't be for many, many years. Reagan is going ahead with his space defense and I'm sure whoever is elected in 1988 will continue it. Since the Russians don't have the technology to compete with such a program, they will continue to fight it at all levels. Do you see any common ground there? I sure don't.

One of the "achievements" that came out of the Geneva summit, some have written, is that Reagan didn't back off the space defense program. You call that an achievement? That's like saying that it was an achievement for Reagan not to trip over his feet when disembarking the plane in Switzerland. Or saying that it was an achievement for Reagan to eat breakfast in the Gosh, I love how government can make an "achievement" out of nothing. I don't recollect our journalists pointing out how it was an "achievement" for Gorbachev to criticize the space defense efforts. But it surely must have been, if you put it in the same context as Reagan's "achievement."

Then, I notice that Reagan reportedly didn't discuss human rights violations in the USSR or the war in Afghanistan. Are those "achievements" too?

He should have brought up the Afghan resistance. What's happening there is pure genocide: the Russian Army is embarked on a calculated plan to kill all the Afghans. That probably is incomprehensible to Americans but that is exactly what is happening.

It's a tragedy of our times. And it's a big plus for the Russians in being able to move their offensive positions closer to American allies, such as Pakistan. (P.S. And you don't see our American TV networks reporting it, do you? They were all there in Vietnam, weren't they? But not in Afghanistan! Let's hear it for objectivity.)

Maybe I ought to be more objective in this column. I should point out the successes that came from the Geneva summit. Why, a cultural exchange was signed.

I love it. A cultural exchange. On the list of priorities to reduce tensions, this would rank at the bottom. But it was trumpeted as one of the summit's achievements.

Oh, goody, The Bolshoi Ballet will probably come to Washington, D.C. It will be a chance for the Washington bureaucrats to pay $50 a ticket to sit among their peer group and pretend they are important. Today the Bolshoi, tomorrow nuclear disarmament.

Yes, I remember the ping pong team's excursion into Red China and the opening of its doors to the

Box suppers raised money for Christmas trees

Julia Symcox moved to the Oklahoma Lane community in 1925 with her parents Willie Isaac (Coon) and Addie Rundell, and two sisters and one brother from Walnut Springs.

Coon farmed and help build the road between Farwell and Muleshoe. He worked with Charlie Crume. He also helped construct the gym at the Oklahoma Lane School. Her mother, Addie, was active in the church and home demonstrations. She canned vegetables and cured meat.

Her father died in 1968 and mother in 1964.

Mrs. Symcox has eight brothers and sisters - Thomas, Annabel, Willie, Cecil, Loyd, Robert, Weldon and Reta.

She recalls Christmas at Walnut Springs with the quilt boxes filled with pie and always eating Christmas dinner at Grandma Rundell's.

"After we moved to Oklahoma Lane, Christmas was held at the church and school. The school was also the church in the community. They would have box suppers to raise money for a Christmas tree and treats for the children. Most of the time that was all the Christmas the children had," she said.

She graduated in 1935 from Oklahoma Lane School. She was active in baseball, UIL spelling, picture memory and track.

She remembers seeing her first school bus. The drivers were Ruth and Jenie Bolton.

"On one April Fools Day Lester Norton who owned the school buses, parked them in front of the school. He told us, 'Your parents may get upset for what I'm fixing to do. So if you think you shouldn't do this you better not.' He put us on the bus and took us to the Sand Hills for a very enjoyable day. We always took our lunch so we didn't get hungry," said Mrs. Symcox.

Her brothers and sisters attended church singing on Sunday evenings. People would gather from around the area for the singings. At one of these singings, Julia met Harold Hillock and married him in 1938. They have five children -Roland, Judy, Gloria, Janice and Hillock farmed and trucked. He was a hard working man. When the war broke out there would be times he would work until 2 a.m., come home and be back out again at 4 a.m. Hillock enjoyed fishing and hunting. He died in 1949 as a result of an auto accident.

Julia was active in PTA, and put on musicals in Farwell and once in Muleshoe.

She remarried in 1950, to Vernon Symcox, who farmed in Clovis. Symcox is on the Equalization Board of Taxes and a member of the Farm Bureau. They have two children, James and Susan.

The Symcoxes were instrumental in getting the community center built out at Oklahoma Lane. As before, box suppers were used to help raise funds for Christmas activities and building the center. It was built about 1960. It has been used for family reunions and Christmas parties.

One of Mrs. Symcox's pet projects was the building of the gazebo in the Farwell City park. It was finished in 1979 in time for Bordertown Days. It has been the scene of weddings and

A lot of effort is made by the planners to make sure that everyone involved in the hunt benefits from it in some way. The land owner benefits in that his land is posted and patrolled, and unauthorized hunters are kept off his land. The hunter coming in from out of town is given a map, so he knows where to go to hunt. The community benefits, as the hunting season brings money into the community, and the sorority tries to keep at least part of it

In conjunction with the hunt, there will be a longest tail feather contest. The tail feathers are measured on the last day of the season at 5 p.m. at Farwell Hardware. There will be first, second and third prizes awarded, and also a countywide contest for the longest tail feather in

Wooley

Wooley International in Muleshoe, the International Harvester-Case farm implement dealer, has been sold.

Bill Wooley announced Monday that he is selling the firm to Henry Ford, of Earth, Texas, and Calvin Wood, principal stockholder of Wood-Jordan, Inc., a farm implement dealer in Earth. Ford has been managing a farm, Wooley said.

The contract is expected to become official Dec. 20. Meanwhile, Wooley is staying at the firm until then.

"I have really appreciated the support of the Farwell community," Wooley said. "I am going to miss all my good friends in that area. I hope they can come in while I'm still here and the coffee pot is on."

Wooley had owned the business since June 1971. He purchased it from Johnson Nix, who had owned it for 25 years. The company moved from downtown to its current location on the highway in 1974.

Country store to be built

The proposed development in Texico by Giese Development of Clovis will be a new Town & Country convenience store, according to Bob Giese Jr.

The store will be built in the area just west of Playorama. A dozen lots have been purchased by Giese. Giese could not comment on whether other facilities will be constructed at the site.

He said no date has been announced yet for the ground-breaking but that the store should be in operation by May. "Texico was chosen because of

West. That was a different case. Cultural exchanges with the Russians haven't meant any major relief in that dictatorship over the years. Each time a thaw might be evident, the Russian rulers crack

That's one of the problems in Russia: an overriding concern among that nation's leaders is to keep their power. To heck with the people, they want to keep their jobs. That might sound like an oversimplification, but it's a fact.

On one hand that's bad: the heavy-handed oppression of the Russian people is likely to continue. On the other, it's good: the leaders are unlikely to start a major war because it might upset the power structure which they want unchanged.

No, I don't consider the Afghan incursion a major war. After all the millions of people murdered by their own countrymen since the Communists took over, it doesn't phase the Russians to kill a few million Afghans.

Anyway, that's my view of the summit. A big waste. Well, maybe I shouldn't put it that way. I, for one, was worried that Reagan, in order to solidify his place in history, might give away all the goods in order to buy some kind of agreement with Good.

It's often easier to get a perspective on a situation when you are able to compare it to something

Remember Farwell's Celebrity Auction last summer that raised funds for the Community Center. It brought in more than $7,000.

Since then, two other area communities have had Celebrity Auctions. One in Hatch, N.M., raised $4,700, while another in Denver City, Texas brought in $1,200, we're told.

To me, that shows the type of community we have here: one that is supportive and stands together on its projects. Well done, Farwell.

Last week, the Texico City Countil approved a resolution that vacates Turner Street, which lies south of the highway and deadends at the railroad. This was needed before Giese could go ahead.

The resolution's approval is contingent on four factors, including granting of an easement by Giese for utility lines.

'Managing For Survival' theme of program for families

The depressed farm economy has agricultural producers struggling for survival, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is leading the way to help farm families cope with the crisis.

As part of this effort, this year's annual South Plains Development Conference, Dec. 17, at Lubbock, will have as its theme, "Managing for Survival," said Gary Patterson,

KEVIN OWEN

Owen attends 4-H Congress

More than 1,600 4-H'ers from every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico gathered for the 64th National 4-H Congress, Nov. 30 to Dec. 5, at the Chicago Hilton. Some 50 Texans were in the delegation, including Kevin Owen from Parmer county.

Owen, of Farwell, is one of 16 from Texas claiming top honors based on 4-H recordbooks. This is one of the largest groups of winners from Texas in the entire history of the awards program. He will receive a national $1,000 scholarship for his recordbook in Agricultural Careers, during the National 4-H Congress in Chicago. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dee Owen.

Parmer County Extension agent for agriculture.

"We have assembled an outstanding group of experts and educators to help farmers and ranchers better understand the economic, political and financial issues as they affect us at the moment," Patterson said. "And they will have some sound advice on things we can do to help ourselves."

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-TX) is scheduled to address the noon luncheon. The Congressman from Lubbock serves on the House Agriculture Committee.

The program at the Lubbock Civic Center will begin at 9:30 a.m. Patterson urges area producers and their wives to take advantage of this opportunity. The $12 registration fee includes lunch.

The conference will open with an update on the status of the new federal farm bill. It will be presented by Dr. Ed Smith, Extension marketing specialist, from College Station.

The stress on farm and ranch families, resulting from the economic situation, will be addressed by Dorothy Taylor, Extension family life specialist, College Station.

What agricultural lenders expect from farmers will be explained by John Anderson, president of Hale County Bank at Plainview.

After lunch, participants may select two of five concurrent sessions designed to provide "how to" information on marketing, financing, record keeping and-if necessary-finding other careers. The topics and leaders are:

An additional feature of the SPD Conference will be a microcomputer display. At this, several county Extension agents will demonstrate selected computer software developed by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to help farm and ranch families make decisions. These will include agricultural programs and others with home and family application. The South Plains Development Program is a regional organization sponsored by the Extension Service to promote economic development and improved family living in 20 area counties.

Hunting rules explained

It would be wise for all prospective hunters to review rules and regulations that go along with the Most all laws concerning hunting deal with either the safety of hunters and others, or the rights of people to privacy on their own property.

This year, the pheasant season opens Dec. 14 in Parmer County and Dec. 7 in Curry County. The Parmer season continues through Dec. 29, while in Curry County season lasts through Dec. 10.

All Texas residents are required in their home county to have hunting licenses. A resident hunting license is $10, while the combination hunting and fishing license is $15. Certain persons may qualify for a resident exempt hunting license that costs only $6. These persons are classified as under 17 years of age; 65 years of age or over; and certain disabled veterans. A non-resident small game license is $75.

Licenses may be purchased locally at Hughes True Value Hardware and at the Parmer County Clerk's Office, located on the first floor of the Parmer Court house.

This year, in Parmer County, the bag limit is two cocks per day, and the possession limit is four cocks.

In order to insure that hens are not shot, hunters must leave the heads and feet on their birds until they have reached their final destination. There will be a severe fine if this rule is not followed. It is illegal to shoot hens.

The legal shooting hours for game birds are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. Hunting is prohibited on any public road or road right-of-way. Calling devices, except recordings and electrically amplified calls, are permitted.

It is illegal to hunt on privately owned land without the consent of the owner or the owner's agent. The tresspass laws are very explicit, and you may be charged with a Class B misdemeanor, which carries a maximum fine of $1,000 and or 180 days in jail. It is not necessary for a property owner to post no trespassing signs, if he has fences. If there are no fences, signs are

'Water Management Notes' available

In an effort to encourage irrigators to harvest the rainfall they receive, as well as make wise water management decisions with the irrigation water they apply to their crops, the Water District, with assistance from the USDA Soil Conservation Service, has just completed three new "Water Management Notes."

"Don't pray for rain if you don't take care of what you get," is the first statement readers will see in the first of these brochures, "Furrow Dikes, Small Reservoirs Of Yield Potential," which discusses the beneficial uses of furrow dikes. This 1937 quote by R.E. Dixon, superintendent of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Spur, Texas, is just as true today as it was 48 years ago when Mr. Dixon made the statement at a field day at the Spur Experiment Station.

Research has proven that the use of furrow dikes to harvest precipitation is the single most cost-effective conservation practice that the producer in the High Plains of Texas can implement to increase his yields and profits. Maximum utilization of precipitation through the use of furrow dikes, will help reduce the withdrawal of water from the Ogallala aquifer, reduce production costs associated with supplying the crop's water needs and increase the potential for higher crop yields. Research statistics are also provided to illustrate potential crop yield increases due to additional water that is available to the crops through the use of furrow dikes.

The second of the new brochures entitled, "The Pre-Plant Soil moisture Survey, A Guide to Water Management," outlines and explains the three principal objectives of this annual soil moisture survey.

First, the irrigator is provided with an estimate of the amount of water in storage in the plant root zone profile prior to planting. Secondly, estimates of the amount of water needed to fill the root zone soil profile to field capacity are provided so that the irrigator can determine his pre-plant irrigation needs. And third, the Water Management Note describes how information on the distribution of moisture in the root zone soil profile can be helpful to the irrigator.

"Estimating Soil Moisture By Feel and Appearance," is the third of the new brochures. The "feel and appearance method" of monitoring soil moisture allows irrigators to estimate the amount of moisture stored in the plant root zone at any root depth in the field without the purchase of specialized equipment.

This method of determining soil moisture conditions entails the physical collection of soil samples and firming the samples in the hand. Different soils react and appear differently when they are squeezed and contain various amounts of moisture. By comparing his soils with pictures provided in this note, the irrigator can estimate the amount of water held in each soil sample.

Copies of these new brochures, or copies of other Water Management Notes that were previously distributed, can be obtained by contacting the local offices of the USDA-SCS or the High Plains Underground Water District No. 1, 2930 Ave. Q, Lubbock, Texas, 79405.

Dear Parents,

Elementary School is once again sponsoring the Christmas Card project. For those not familiar with this, we are asking for a donation. In turn, we will place your name or your family member's names in the Christmas issue of the State Line Tribune, wishing all your friends and relatives in the area a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. It will save you the time and money that is usually spent on sending individual cards.

The Elementary School will use the donation for computer software and enrichment supplies to be used by all of our children. Below is a form for you to fill out and send back with your donation. We would like to have these by December 13th.

Elegant court sleeves of French chantilly lace formed points at the wrists. The full chiffon skirt is edged with alencon lace cascading into a cathedral length train. Completing the ensemble was a alencon hat that featured a shallow crown and narrow brim tipped on one side to reveal small silk flowers and pearl sprays. The entire hat is encrusted with pearls and sequins, with a blusher veil in front. A large pearl studded pouf falls into a fingertip veil length.

The bride carried a small hand cascade with ivory roses and babys breath and Chinese ming fern, with ivory lace ribbon.

The wedding music was presented by organist Dean McIntyre. The music included "Jesse, Joy of Mans Desiring," "Two Fugues," "Come Christians Join To Sing," "Symphony of Fanfares," "Trumpet Voluntary in D" and "Ode to Joy."

They were attired in dark emerald green tea length dresses, with a dropped basque waistline made souffle material and an ivory antique lace round collar. They carried peach alstromeria lillies with babys breath and fern.

Keeping with tradition the bride wore a topaz ring for something old, something new was her wedding gown, something borrowed was her pearl and diamond earrings from a friend Bernice Norton, and something blue was her blue garter.

Lindsey and Joshua Harriman of Seminole, cousins of the bride, served as the flower and ring bearer. Lindsey wore a dress styled in ivory lace and silk organza. The neckline was enhanced with a wide ruffle of lace, and just under it, another wide ruffle of lace topped the bodice. The puffed sleeves were or organza, and had a wide band of lace ruffle. The fitted waistline featured a wide sash of ivory satin ribbon, with a large bow at the center front. The full skirt was of ivory organza, and had wide ruffles of lace at the bottom. The cake featured delicate peach flowers and greenery, with ivory icing covering the cake. The grooms table had a beautiful dark emerald green table cloth, with pleats around the table and love knots at each corner. Belgium farms are smaller but...

Petra Breyne, Texico-Farwell's exchange student from Belgium, presented a slide presentation to the members of Beta Sigma Phi. Petra showed photos of her home country of Belgium which is about the size of the state of Maryland, but which has about 10 million citizens.

Petra's hometown, Oostkamp, is a city of 10,000 which is noted for radar and computer manufacturing. It is not far from a farming region.

Farms in Belgium are small by American standards (about 20-30 acres), but they are farmed intensively. They have very high output per acre. A small farm is sufficient to support a family. Corn is grown in Belgium only as fodder for animals. "I guess I'm kind of strange, because I like corn."

Sugar, from sugar beets, is grown and processed in the Oostkamp area.

In addition to differences in farming, Petra also spoke of differences in schools. In Belgium, children begin school at age three. They continue until age 18. Competitive sports are not as important in Belgium as they are in the United States.

Language study is far more important. Students learn French, English, and German. In addition,

Oklahoma Lane reunion held

The Oklahoma Lane community reunion of ex-students, teachers, former and present residents was celebrated with an all day affair Nov. 29 at the Oklahoma Lane United Methodist Church, which was formerly the school gymnasium and elementary building. The last reunion was in November of 1980 at the same place.

Name tags were presented to 238 people who were registered. Serving at the registration table were Lois Billingsley, Avis Carpenter, Joyce McGuire and Maxine Brown.

Doughnuts and coffee were available all day but especially for "early birds", as the doors were opened at 8:30 A.M. with some still visiting until 8 P.M. A delicious meal was catered serving over 200 people. Tables were decorated by Tina Sides and Gwen Corn with fall motif of pumpkins, ears of corn and apples. Cashier was Ginny Blankenship, assisted by Louise Chris-

After lunch, everyone gathered in the sanctuary for a short business meeting after Harold Carpenter, president of the organization, called their attention by ringing the old Oklahoma Lane school bell. Wendol Christian, vice-president, presided at the meeting. The former teachers present who were recognized were Madeline (Cox) Hegi, who taught 1931-1933, Dorothy (Harris) Brown, taught ten years, Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Harper, Ernestine (Hromas) Lovelle, Oleta (Thompson) Paden, Geraldine (Verner) Meeks, Dorothy Donaldson, Rosalee Wilhoit, and Kenneth Grissom. Webb Gober was the only school board member.

According to our records, there have been 87 people who have lived at Oklahoma Lane who have died since the last reunion in 1980. So it was decided to have the next reunion in three years (in 1988) instead of five, which will be at the same place and the same time, the day after Thanksgiving.

The present officers, Harold and Avis Carpenter, Wendol and Louise Christian, and Lois and Ponce Billingsley, were re-elected to serve for three more years.

Denzil and Kathy Young, Becky Young and Stanley Maxwell were recognized as coming the farthest from Toms River, N.J. A standing ovation was given a special former 94-year-old resident, Mrs. E.A. Hromas, as she was wheeled to the front to join in celebration of visiting and reminiscing. She and Mr. Hromas helped "build" Oklahoma Lane. He was a carpenter and school board member.

After the business meeting the remainder of the day was spent visiting and taking pictures and renewing old acquaintances.

There were people in attendance from 14 states -- Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, New Jersey, Virginia, Geor-

Keep Christmas tree fresh

This year you don't have to watch your Christmas tree droop and turn brown before the holiday even arrives.

With proper selection and care, you can keep your tree fresh throughout the season, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service forestry specialist.

Start with the freshest tree you can find," says Alan Dreesen. "A Texas-grown tree you cut yourself at a tree farm or buy off a lot will be fresher than trees shipped from distant states."

The forestry specialist recommends the following steps to keep a fresh-cut tree at its peak:

*Place the tree trunk in a container of water, since a fresh-cut tree will still be growing when it's harvested, and will initially absorb from one-half to one gallon of water

*Store the tree in a shaded area. such as a covered patio or garage. *Before you take the tree inside for decorating, remove the loose interior needles by tapping the tree on the patio or driveway a few times. The interior needles turn brown when they no longer get direct sunlight, and this is not a sign of dryness.

*Cut an inch off the base before placing the tree in a water-holding stand. Then check the water daily for the first week to keep the stand full. Don't let the water level fall below the tree's cut base.

*To prevent premature drying of the needles, place the tree away from heat sources such as warm air ducts, plate glass windows with a southern exposure and space

"Keeping your tree well-watered and away from heat sources will help the tree keep its needles, shape and fragrance throughout the holiday season," says Dreesen. "A tree which retains some moisture is also less of a fire hazard in your

Holiday safety tips offered

Everyone looks forward to the holiday season. Unfortunately, accidents never take a holiday and can quickly turn joy into sorrow.

So make safety part and parcel of all holiday activities, says Janette Pierce, Parmer County Extension

Home Economist. She offers these safety tips:

-- Clear walks and steps of ice, snow or objects to make coming and going safer for guests (and your family). Shoveling snow is hard work and overexertion by older, out-of-condition or health-impaired people could lead to collapse.

-- Turn on outdoor lights at night when you expect company or a car drives up. -Always drive with special caution when traffic is heavy or road conditions are abnormal. Since many holiday drivers are impaired by alcohol, be alert for their driving

--Select a fresh Christmas tree or a flame-resistant artificial one. Set it away from heat sources and curtains. Check lightstrings for broken sockets and frayed wires. Pull the plug before retiring.

--Since the kitchen is usually a busy place during holidays, make sure there are no dangling appliance cords or protruding pot handles for children to grab.

--If you partake of "holiday cheer," let another drive or limit drinks to one an hour.

How to safely wake up a sleeping furnace.

Since last spring, it has stood silent and unnoticed. Lying dormant for months in a closet, attic or garage. Now, cold weather is here —time to wake up your slumbering gas furnace. Are there any special precautions you should take?

A yearly check-up.

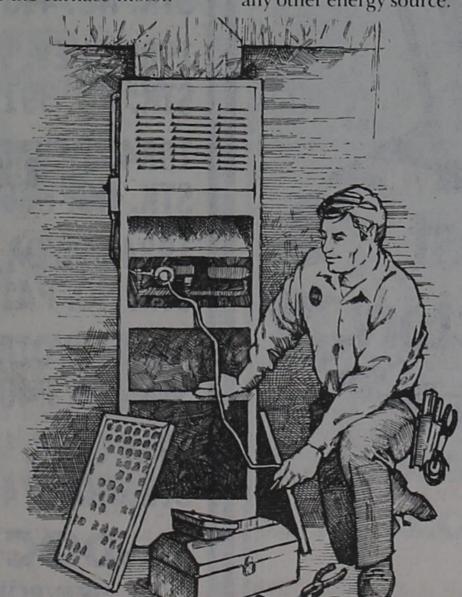

Like any piece of equipment, a gas furnace needs occasional routine maintenance. Southern Union Gas recommends a once-a-year inspection to insure safe, efficient operation.

By examining the shape, size and color of the gas flame, an expert can determine whether your furnace is operating at peak efficiency, as well as perform a carbon monoxide test, adjust the pilot light, check the limit switch and take other safety measures.

A qualified professional will also check the air filter and thermostat. adjust the fan belt and oil the furnace motor.

Use common sense.

Properly maintained, a gas furnace will give many years of worry-free heat for your home. Naturally, a gas appliance should be used with care, the same care you use around electricity or any other energy source.

If you choose to work on your gas furnace yourself, be sure to follow all of the manufacturer's instructions. Do not try to light the pilot light unless you are familiar with the furnace operation. Remember always, if you smell the distinctive odor of natural gas, be sure to call us.

This year, give your gas furnace a wake-up call from a professional, and enjoy a warm, comfortable and safe winter.

Farwell varsity boys lose

The Farwell Varsity boys basketball team lost to Bovina at home, 73-71, Dec. 3.

"We didn't play all that badly. We're improving every game. I felt that we got the ball down the court well. Our defense caused some turnovers. Bovina had a pretty good team. Teams with height will cause us some problems this year," said Coach Larry Gregory.

No segment of the economy has ever been challenged to change so fast and so completely as has the new agriculture.

Never in American history have so many innovations been adopted in such a short time.

When these changes have required capital, your Federal Land Bank Association has been a primary source of funds. We recognize the inevitability of change — except in the importance of the man and the land.

We also believe that a free agriculture — based on the family farm will continue to flourish in any new environment.
