President Calls for Armaments Drive With Increased Aid for Democracies; Irish Investigate Bombings of Dublin; New Congress Tackles Vital Problems

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CONGRESS:

State of the Nation

Calling upon all U. S. citizens to "make the sacrifices that the emergency-as serious as war itselfdemands," President Roosevelt in his personally delivered message to the new Seventy-seventh congress pledged full defense and help for those ". . . people who are keeping war away from our hemisphere."

He pointed out that he believed the United States to be facing an unprecedented foreign peril and he asked for a "swift and driving increase" in armament production. Both the United States and the "democracies" would reap the benefits of such increased production, according to the President.

"I also ask this congress," said the President, "for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations." While he did not actually list the nations to which such aid would go it is generally believed that he meant Britain, China and Greece.

President Roosevelt then proceeded to make clear that he did not consider such aid an "act of war even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be." He stated further that "When the dictators are ready to make war upon us they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war."

He also said that the American people would never "acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

NEW BROOM:

Gets Sweeping Material

The "old broom," namely the Seventy-sixth congress of the United States, 366 days old, having closed down, its successor found itself with a lot of "sweeping" to be done, and the evidence was plain that it was scheduled to be a stormy and epochal session.

Swearing in of new and re-elected congressmen accomplished, the senate and house hoppers, emptied of all unfinished business, rapidly began filling with the new, and it was plain that the bills would come under three general classes.

There would be bills aimed to test the strength of President Roosevelt's administration, most of them in the form of curbs upon his powers; there would be administrationinspired bills seeking wider aid to Britain and broader powers to rush forward the lagging American national defense; there would be something done about labor, unemployment and relief, what one might call the social relations field.

Rapidly, as the session rushed into its full stride, various figures of importance raised their voices in one or another of these outstanding issues, some expectedly, others to the considerable surprise of their constituents and the general public.

Back of it all the various polls, especially the Gallup Poll, which Ickes sought to stifle, kept sounding public opinion on moot questions. Eighty per cent of Americans wanted national defense industry speeded up; 54 per cent wanted all aid to England, even if it put the country into war; and so on,

It looked like a race to see whether congress would wag the polls, or if the polls would do the wagging. Outstanding among the early measures was one aimed to curb the President's financial powers, dubbed the anti-inflation bill; one aimed to change the national labor picture through revamping the labor board and creating an appeals "court" for labor; still another urging repeal of the neutrality act and a substitute at $30 the month

The Axis, both Rome and Berlin, immediately leaped into print claiming that the bombs had been taken from downed planes by the British, who had been calmly bombing her neighbor, trying to get the Irish mad enough to declare war on Germany.

Washington, D. C. HITLER REPORTED TO FEAR U. S. INTERVENTION

In talks with his close advisers recently, the President has revealed | turning out those batches of cooka much more confident opinion of the outcome of the war in Europe.

This conference rests partly upon the belief that Hitler, and Nazi officials generally, are greatly worried over the possible entry of the United States into the war, and are acquiring a genuine respect for what | manufacturer's ovens. All you the United States is accomplishing in the way of national defense.

Hitler, Roosevelt has told his friends, had the greatest scorn for Britain under Chamberlain, and for France. For some time, also, Hitler had the same idea about the the old stand-bys, the sand-tarts United States. The President confides that as far as he has been able to ascertain, Hitler regarded him just as another Chamberlain.

But now intelligence reports from Germany indicate that Hitler's opinion of the United States has changed to one of respect and even fear. Roosevelt plans to make the most of this psychological factor, and believes that sending every possible aid to Britain, short of war, will help to do it. He believes this can be done without getting into war. though he acknowledges privately that it carries risks.

Most risky American project would be to convoy merchant ships across the Atlantic, and so far Roosevelt has refused to commit himself, though this is what the British need most desperately. However, some of his advisers continue to be strongly for it, and believe they have made a dent on the President.

What they argue is this: The United States cannot be attacked as long as the war continues to rage in Europe and the British fleet remains afloat. Therefore, since we cannot be attacked, we can get into the war to any degree we like-without sending an expeditionary force.

Should Germany declare war on the United States, these Roosevelt advisers urge, we can merely continue with our present support to along with dates. Mix well. GUARDING THE PRESIDENT

No public appearance of the President receives more elaborate advance precautions than when he makes a speech or attends a dinner in a hotel. Secret Service men virtually turn the place inside out.

If you should happen to be registered at the hotel, the Secret Service men will find out all about you, your business in the city, where you came from and where you are going. Here is the procedure for guarding the President when he arrives:

The day before he is to appear, White House Secret Service Chief Edmund W. Starling carefully inspects every foot of the route through the hotel and the chamber used for the meeting. Next the guest register is inspected. All guests whom hotel officials can't vouch for personally are quietly checked up by Starling's men. In addition, the management must submit complete information about all employees.

If the President is attending a dinner, and extra waiters are needed, Secret Service agents get a 'line" on the ones employed. Sleuths, dressed as guests, are strategically posted all over the banquet hall. When the President enters and leaves an "invisible" cordon of guards surrounds him. Nothing is left to chance.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

THERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor. During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employes, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employes, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . .

Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour

Semi-skilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour

Skilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour

Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employes. Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50c.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly onehalf the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

> 25,819 between 40 and 50 14,731 between 50 and 60

3,377 between 60 and 70 417 between 70 and 80

12 between 80 and 90

In addition to the so-called regular employes, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate

Kathleen Norris Says:

Upon Taking Things as They Are (Bell Syndicate-WNU Service.)

If he is thoroughly alienated by years of being just a bill-paying boarder in his own house, she finds that the neat selfish little scheme she has built up is a house of cards and that she is being forced to join the ranks of the divorced.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THEN a woman writes me that after so many years of marriage three or ten or fifteen, she and her husband have made the dismal discovery that they have absolutely nothing in common, that they are beginning to jar terribly on each others nerves, that without wishing each other any ill, they can no longer live together in anything but continual repression, discomfort and utter futility, then I know that she-or he, or both of them -are exhibiting a lack of character and common sense.

It is quite different when serious matters are influencing either one. Intemperance, cruelty, infidelity may be valid grounds for the breaking up of homes and the separation of children, although in the last-mentioned case I have always thought divorce too high a price to pay for temporary weakness and vanity.

But when it is just a general lessening of affection, glamour, companionability, mutual satisfaction in being together, it means that one or the other has let go. Has stopped the pleasantness that is friendship in marriage, the eagerness to discuss plans, the readiness to forgive trifling mistakes, the old honeymoon anxiety to be generous and considerate and loving.

Once these are lost, they are hard to recapture. It can be done. But the wiser way is never to lose them. Husband's Position Parallels Child's.

That a husband is in much the child's position is a simple truth that many wives fail to grasp. Coldness, sharpness of voice, scolding, indifference, putting the feelings or the comfort of other persons firsther family, her old friends, herself -begins the trouble. Then when his affections wander, and when she suddenly senses that she no longer comes first with him, it avails her very little to reproach him, to ask pathetically how she has failed him. She has kept his house and borne kis child and never been unfaithful and given him the best years of her life, she protests. What more did

But if he is thoroughly alienated by years of being just a bill-paying boarder in his own house, with a wife whose interests run entirely to her own beauty, bridge lunches, matinees with the girls, friends he does not know or does not like, she finds-as thousands of women find every year, that the neat selfish little scheme she has built up is a house of cards and that she is being forced to join the ranks of the divorced.

Dislike Divorce.

Most women hate the idea of divorce. They suffer bitterly with loneliness, once marriage is dissolved, and they suffer more when they realize that a second marriage means life with another man just as faulty as the first, and the fearful problem of the children's loyalties and their happiness thrown in.

The moral of which is that it would pay many a woman to check up on her marriage now. It would pay her to determine that life was going to be lived at least half the time on George's terms. That the weary man of the house was going to be in for a little spoiling. That what he says at dinner tonight is going to have an attentive and interested answer; that his views upon low-hand before you involve yourself in roads, dams, canals, roads, bridges ered household expenditures and a even more complicated troubles. and what not, pretty nearly all over.

HAPPINESS IN MARRIAGE "Take marriage seriously," Kathleen Norris urges married couples. She advises them not to presume upon the affection of their mates for their own selfish ends, because this will gradu-ally destroy the mutual bonds that hold them together. Miss Norris adds that it would pay many a woman to check up on her marriage now before she unconsciously alienates her husband and destroys both their lives.

slightly stricter rule for the son and heir are going to be respected. In some families a man and a woman have reached the point when whatever is suggested by the one is violently antagonistic to the other. It never occurs to either to give way. The effect of this upon children is incalculably bad.

in my marriages," writes an Iowa woman. "My first was at 17, my oldest girl being born before I was 18. Her father was very young and irresponsible, as everyone else but myself seemed to know, and we were immediately divorced. Two years later I married a very fine mier of Saxony. fellow, but five years afterward he had the misfortune to be injured institution. Having then two little mystagogy. girls to provide for, I married for a home-a silly mistake, but I was desperate. A son was born of this marriage, but owing to actual injuries inflicted on me by a jealous, unreasonable husband he children and is a semi-invalid to this day. Divorced two years later, I made a comfortable home for myself and my children but was obliged to sue for my late husband's estate for their support when my son was five years old.

"It was then I met my first husband, who had gone away from our town, put himself through medical school by his own efforts, and obtained a really fine position. My youthful folly in insisting on a divorce cost me very dear, for the old attraction is still strong in us both, and Cal has a wife and two little sons. What I am writing to ask you is whether I still have any claim on him, as in some states our divorce would not be considered legal. If he were free I believe I could win him back."

And she sends me a sheaf of documents to prove that her marriage while she was not of age and his letters protesting against the divorce and other complicated details constitute illegality. The pity of it! At 32, burdened with an invalid child and two daughters, she would step back into Cal's life to destroy it, ruin the happiness of his wife and sons, and once more complicate her own existence, this time beyond all hope of recovery.

Patience-Mutual Confidence Needed. Seventeen is too young for marriage. But many a marriage begun in the teens has proved a success, nevertheless, and obviously this one might have been. Patience and mutual confidence and a little help from able and gathers his garlands and the grownups would have carried his royalties at the age of 35. Cal and Sally safely through. When Baron Von Killinger was German consul-general at San Francisco, from August, 1937, to January, 1939, Rep. Samuel Dickstein denounced him on the floor of congress as a "Nazi adventurer." On November 6, 1937, the Americanization committee of the American Legion demanded his summary rejection from this country as a spy delivering secrets of the American fleet to his government. He stayed on the job until the Nazis saw fit to recall him, as the war loomed, for more immediately urgent intrigue over there.

The next day came three acceptances. Harcourt, Brace was first in line and got the book, "Appointment in Samarra." The author got $50 a week for the three months and delivered the finished book within four days of the dead-line.

Such was the literary get-way of Young John O'Hara, author of the current hit musical show in New York city, "Pal Joey," the same being one of the most poisonous portraits of a "heel" ever etched with the steel-point of contempt. The book clicked and in the years between there was the routine stretch at Hollywood, and a series of magazine stories from which the unlovely portrait of "Pal Joey" gradually emerged.

"Pal Joey" isn't a show to which you would want to take your Aunt Tabitha, but there is a moral in the story of how young John O'Hara began to rise and shine. I shrugged, deliberately provoking

"So much that is-unconfortable to me, is nonsense to a Paget," I answered.

She grinned mockingly. "How proletarian! You care less about lifting yourself than pulling others down?' "Let's drop it," I said and flipped my cigarette into the wastebasket with needless force.

"Willingly," she agreed and laid hold of the rim of her chair's wheels. "Will you stay to lunch, David?"

"No," I said ungraciously, "I have an engagement. With Cochrane of the Press," I added to rub it in.

"I see," said Miss Agatha calmly. "When you come back this afternoon, we'll get the typewriter from the basement. And before you go out, you might see that whatever is kindling in the wastebasket is extinguished. We've enough on our creased and glazed placard, bearhands without adding arson."

I smelled scorching paper and bent over the basket.

"Annie," said Miss Agatha, moving toward the door, "should have emptied it, but when the police come in the door reason flies out-'

"Wait a minute," I begged. There was a single balled sheet of paper in the wastebasket and the tip of my castaway cigarette lay on it. I picked up the crumpled wad and an odd feeling, half inspiration, half theory, excited me. My fingers trembled as I undid the ball. It was a half-completed letter, broken off in mid-sentence. As I read it I could see Grove, blindly in love as twenty-odd can be, hammering out reproach and devotion to the woman who had not kept their tryst. I could see him look up, where the typing ended, and mark that a window in the Ferriter flat was bright. Ione had returned. She had not failed him. He had torn the paper from the typewriter, cast it into the basket and rushed, headlong, into disaster. I handed the crumpled sheet to Miss Agatha without a word and she, too, read it through be-

I had expected something more from her than this, though even to me the missive was more pitiful and less ridiculous than most letters of its sort.

"But don't you see," I asked, "what this means?" She turned toward me and replied with equal

"See? Of course I see? This is what put my nephew's fingerprints on those typewriter keys. This is the letter he said he had been writing. That note the police found on him was written by Everett, bent on suicide, earlier. This merely proves that Grove has told the truth. It seems more of a surprise to you, David, than it does to me.'

She read it over again with a crooked little smile and folded it with gentle hands. I suggested:

"Shan't we turn it over to Shannon. It proves-

"Shannon?" she repeated with odd indecision. "I don't know. It seems to me a rather sacred thing. You see, no one ever wrote such a letter to me. Let me think it over, David. We'll talk of it later.' She rolled herself away without another word. I looked at the clock. It was almost time for my appointment with Cochrane.

CHAPTER XVII

The food before us cooled while I talked and Cochrane listened. Like the Ancient Mariner's stooge, Jerry had to take it and like it. I had come to the beanery to Tell All. My mind had been partly laundered by my confession to Miss Agatha. I wanted to complete the cleansing by holding back nothing from Jerry. There was too much darkness for me to increase it by further reti-

It was bitter, under his mild and trustful regard, to lay bare things I might have told long ago, but I went through with it. I saw his eyebrows go up, and up, as I told of Grove's earlier visit to the Ferriter apartment, of the voice I had heard in Mino's and, finally, of Duke's letter. Then I leaned back, feeling empty but easier and Cochrane looked from me to the salt

He still played with the shaker. "So the old lady didn't have Win-

"Which should keep you busy," Jerry said, "at least until day after tomorrow. Would you like any help?'

I did not understand him.

"I mean," he went on, "is this just a personal or a professional conference? Do I forget all you've told me, or do we work it out together?'

Flying Ferriters." Cochrane gave it to me and said:

"Handle it gently. I got it from Henkel, old-time vaudeville agent, and I've got to return it. Recognize anyone?"

I did and started to speak. I looked more closely and at last faced Jerry's expectant grin.

"Either of the two middle ones," said at last, "could have been Lyon Ferriter, ten years ago."

"Excellent, Watson," Cochrane crooned. "My own idea. The one on the left, Henkel tells me, was Lyon Ferriter. His neighbor was his cousin, Andrew Horstman. The other Ferriters were named Levine and Pappas. They were semi-headliners in the old two-a-day era."

"Proving what?" I asked him, folding the placard carefully and returning it.

"Not a thing in the world," Jerry answered, "except that your friend used to be the daring young man on the flying trapeze. Henkel has the memory of an elephant but even he doesn't know what happened next. He does say that Lyon and his cousin were very intelligent, for acrobats. When the movies ruined Art, and the Four Flying Ferriters flew apart, Henkel thinks that Horstman went into acting and played in stock for a while and that Lyon went to Alaska."

"Part of which," I told him,

"checks." "It does more than that," Cochrane drawled with the sleepy air that was his mask for excitement. "It practically proves that the Horstman who joined the Ferriters, Lyon and Ione, in their honky-tonk, or whatever, in Alaska was their cousin. And he, if you recall, went out looking for gold with them. They found it and lost Horstman. He never came back." "Well?" I asked, at last, for he ous." seemed to have run down, yet I knew the pause was for dramatic

"Neither," Cochrane crooned, "did Lyon and Ione."

He beamed. I said, "All right; spring it."

"They never came back to their cozy little shack," Jerry went on. "That's pure Robert Service, eh? Ione and her brother showed up the following spring in Fairbanks, which is a considerable hike from Tanana Crossing, where their place stood.

"They claimed that Horstman got lost in a blizzard and he wasn't there to say he didn't. They had samples with them that started a "A guy who's That Way is never stampede. Cochrane chuckled. "It all adds up," he admitted, "to whatever you choose to make it. It's background on the guy you and the old gal have elected murderer, anyway.'

I said, "It's also a problem in relationship. Everett used to be a Horstman. Then he wasn't brother to Lyon and Ione. He may have

I bogged down.

"Brother or something to the Horstman the blizzard is alleged to have abolished," Cochrane finished for me. "It'll take a genealogist to figure it out, eh? And the authority on the subject broke his neck last night. That's too bad. We need him."

"No," I told him, "what we really need is Lyon's weakness. That's what Miss Agatha Paget wants."

I went over my recent talk with her. Cochrane ate and then forgot his food to sit listening, apparently

"Do you mean it?"

"I'll phone and see," I said, rising, "But you'll have to keep her out of the papers."

"Oke," Jerry beamed. "It'll be enough of a thrill just to get inside the Morello."

At the telephone, I told Miss Agatha I was bringing Cochrane up to see her. If I had asked permission, I think she might have forbidden it, but I followed up with persuasion and reassurance until she consented and promised at my suggestion to clear our way through the hostile lobby. She was in the workroom when we entered. She seemed relieved that Jerry had neither horns nor tail and welcomed him serenely. THE SLIGHTED INVITATION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready.—Luke 14:17.

Actions speak louder than words. What a man says is important, but it is his life which determines whether we accept his words as true. In spiritual things men have too often professed to follow Christ but failed to do His will. It is the business of the church to press home the necessity of an acceptance of Christ as Saviour which also makes Him the Lord of our life.

I. Pious Words (v. 15).

who said, "Blessed is he that eateth bread in the kingdom of God," was expressing the sincere longing of his heart or merely making a bit of concerting matters (vv. 1-14). On such occasions there is usually He had been too generous for me someone on hand to spoil the effectiveness of the admonition by uttering some religious platitude which will direct conversation into more comfortable channels.

> Even though the man was sincere, he had evidently not made any preparations to be present at that great feast. This appears from the story Jesus related in response to his words.

II. Poor Excuses (vv. 16-20).

It is not enough that we know that God has prepared a place of blessedness, nor does it suffice to speak approvingly of God's invitation to come; we must accept. God graciously bids all men to come; but miring it as the ideal thing to do, begin to make excuses.

Observe that the men gave excuses, not reasons. There is a great difference. Note also that the excuses were poor ones. One had a new possession-a field-which he "must go out and see." The second had a business matter to care for-One of the few perquisites of third had a personal affection he age," Miss Agatha told us briskly, wanted to foster-a new wife whom

The fact is that none of them "Only," he said solemnly, "in my wanted to come, and these were but excuses. What man buys a field Miss Agatha's face changed and without seeing it, or oxen without she glanced at me. She picked her trying them? And we agree with Dr. Morgan that the one who had "I had understood that this was married a wife "was the most foolish of all. Why didn't he take her "It is," Jerry told her, and she with him? Just excuses." Reader, chuckled as she reached for the what excuse is keeping you from accepting God's invitation?

It is the first business of the unconverted to accept that invitation. Miss Agatha looked at him hard Dare you refuse? In one of his last meetings in Kansas City, Dwight L. Moody graphically portrayed the inthe invitation. He first wrote a note "Because," Cochrane went on, "I declining, the final words being, "I take a pen and put your name down "Pooh," said Miss Agatha, "broth- to such an excuse? What duck soup that is to argue down.

These truths are self evident: that it is to our great interest to see Britain win; that the hateful destruction of England embitters every American heart: that force rather than honor and good will now rule We do not know whether the man | the world and that we hate that as we hate Hitler who has been foremost in advancing that hellish condition; that we are in great danger and that our only course is swift pious conversation. Any advocate of what is rushing us to a war alliance -who denies the sincerity of these opinions of others as a basis for his argument, is beclouding the real issue-the dreadful question of peace or war for America.

There can be only one question in the troubled heart of every true American-what is it best for us to do to safeguard the present and the future of our own country? Is it best to engage now in a two ocean war with a one ocean navy? Is it best for us to send, or threaten to send, our armed forces to seize the Azores, the Irish harbors, the tip of West Africa and Singapore-to plunge into warlike operations all all too many, while willing to admit | the way from the Straits of Dover the desirability of coming and ad- to the Straits of Malacca and, conceivably even further-through the Mediterranean and Red seas to Greece, Egypt, the Dardanelles, Calcutta and Colombo?

Short of this, is it best to take the intermediate step leading straight and inevitably to this course by putting our overseas shipments into American bottoms and, with a contrying out oxen he had bought. The voy of cruisers, attempt to buck the line of a legitimate blockade? Is it best now to undertake to finance another nation in a new world war, when we are already staggering under a mountainous burden of debt and confronting a near necessity of doubling it as a necessity in our own defense?

These are real and basic issues and not at all the ill-considered or emotional conscious or deliberate obstruction of them by attacking the patriotic integrity or plain sanity of the people who raise them.

Furthermore, let this be faced: If our defense is so wholly dependent on Great Britain as we are now told -if she is now fighting our decisive battle which, if lost, loses our freedom-then the course advocated by those who say we should contribute unlimited material resources, but no blood, without regard to any of the considerations raised here-if these things we are told are true-then that advocated course is the most futile and pusillanimous ever followed by an honorable nation. If they are true, we should have been in this war a year ago with everything we have. Surely there is a question of truth here that deserves debate. The whole of our future is at stake on the wisdom of our

. . . OVERNIGHT OFFICERS

The army is not making the best use of its trained officer personnel. The war department quite properly and necessarily encourage tens of thousands of civilians to take appointments as reserve officers. Naturally, some of them were rank amateurs as soldiers and the bulk of them held lieutenant's commissions. Now we are calling thousands of them to active duty. When they join for duty with troops they have to earn their advancement, but when they come in on staff assignments, it is becoming a very different matter.

A little personality plus, sometimes, a political drag, works for many of these neophytes what many years of service don't work for a regular. New captains, majors and lieutenant-colonels are being created out of reserve subalterns who haven't a year of active duty.

At the same time, men with complete military experience and education, who have resigned or retired or are World war veterans returned to civil life, get a deaf ear when they volunteer to be recommissioned and recalled to active duty.

It is demoralizing to officers on the active list of the regular army. We should as readily condemn the selection of an amateur officer to look after their welfare as an amateur doctor to look after their health, especially if there is a reputable specialist available.

Making a Frame For Rug Hooking

You can see by this that I rather favor working without a frame though I know perfectly well that it is more efficient to work with one. Almost all professionals have frames that rest on a permanent base. I have sketched here the type of frame that most amateurs use. You can buy the corner clamps at the hardware store and put the frame together quickly. It may be the size of your rug or smaller. If it is smaller, just part of the rug is stretched on the frame at one time.

SEWING Book 5 tells you exactly how to prepare the burlap for a hooked rug like the one in this sketch and gives much other valuable information on rug hooking. There is still another hooked rug design in Book 6; also a braided and a crocheted rug. Send order to:

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator. WINS STATE MEDALS

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.) WASHINGTON. - Rough - hewn seems to be the word I'm after.

I sat in the office of the secretary of agriculture, a big empty-looking room, and thought of a new axe biting into a log. Chips were flying. Then, there was the cut, clean and fresh. Then another. And another. Not smooth, machine edge, such as a new saw makes with the regular lines the teeth leave across the surface. But a good straight job, the mark of each blow, surely placed, across the grain, clear through.

That's what I was thinking about as I talked with Claude Wickard, the big round-faced, homely fellow, a little awkward behind the mahogany desk but not awkward, I felt sure, standing up in a farm wagon, reins in his hands, confident and solid, his feet apart as the wheels bumped over the field.

Not so much at home but sure of what he was after behind the desk, the way he was that night when he called the meeting in the little Indiana schoolhouse, a kerosene lamp that hadn't been cleaned for a long time sputtering beside him, 14 or 20 farmers sitting in front of him as he organized the first Farm Bureau meeting in his community—the first one he ever attended, too.

COMES TO WASHINGTON That scene, as he described it, stuck in my mind because it seemed to be the turning point in his career, or perhaps the first milestone on the road that at last took him reluctantly away from the acres that had been in the Wickard family since the 1840s and brought him down to Washington-into the government where he has been trying to put into practice the ideas he thought would be good for other farmers and other acres from Maine to California.

Claude Wickard first came to the capital in 1933 to become assistant and later chief of the corn-hog section of the Triple-A. He was made secretary of the department of agriculture last August when Secretary Wallace resigned to run for vice president. But his heart is still back in Carrol county, Indiana, where his 71-year-old father and two men are running his farm.

Corn and hogs were on Secretary Wickard's mind when I talked to him the other day, and it was corn and hogs that brought him to Washington in the beginning by way of Des Moines, Iowa, but it really goes back further than that. The schoolhouse meeting, I spoke of, was the milestone, but the day he told his father he was going to college was really the beginning. In those days -and it isn't so long ago because Wickard is only 47-a lot of farmers thought that all a boy would get in college was a lot of darn-fool ideas. Only one of the Wickard's neighbors had been to college, but Purdue university was only 30 miles away and the idea percolated. Young Claude went and when he was graduated (agricultural course, of course) in 1915 he was ready to take over the farm. Twelve years later the Prairie Farmer named him as a Master Farmer of Indiana. That was the only thing he boasted about in the half-hour conversation I had

Spain Needs Cotton

Receipts of raw cotton in Spain during the three months beginning August 1, 1940, totaled about 50,000 bales all of which was Argentine cotton except for 2,100 bales of American, according to information received in the office of foreign agricultural relations. These quantities represent little more than half of normal requirements for the three-month period so that the shortage of raw materials is still acute.

Scientists Sterilize Soil

With Electrical Device Scientists at the Cornell university agricultural experiment station are "pasteurizing" soils with electricity to rid these soils of insect pests and weed seeds.

Soils that have become unproductive are thus made productive, as heat disinfests or disinfects the soil. Many growers of flowers and vegetables who do not have equipment to steam-"sterilize" find that limited quantities of soil can be "pasteurized" with electrical devices, according to Prof. A. G. Newhall.

A soil temperature of 150 degrees Fahrenheit was found high enough to insure the death of all important disease organisms and most weed seeds.

Soil in greenhouse benches and ground beds was brought up to pasteurization temperature with a series of buried portable pipe-type heaters. Successful use was also made of an electric dairy-utensil steamer to pasteurize soil in flats

Danger from over-heating soil is reduced to a minimum by the new low temperature electric pasteurization methods.

Value of Silage

A simple rule and one that works out pretty well is to consider silage worth one-half the value of good legume hay. Silage that runs 10 tons to the acre must make about 50 bushels, therefore 1 ton of silage should be worth 5 bushels of corn plus 300 pounds of hay. With corn at 75 cents a bushel and hay at $15 a ton, good silage would be worth about $6 a ton.

Tomatoes Valuable

One medium-sized ripe tomato supplies about half the day's requirement of vitamin C, and about onefifth the vitamin A requirement of one person.

Farm Notes

000,000 waiting for the mutuel windows. Santa Anita and Florida together will hang up close to $2,000,000 in purses this winter, which is more coin than horsemen have ever looked at in the racing game, as far as I can add up the figures. But the two main topics of interest you run across out this way are the following:

1. How or where can they dig up a horse which can prevent Challedon from cracking Seabiscuit's all-time money record with so much gold to shoot at?

2. Will there be truer racing form in the wake of the recent jockey scandal when so many alert riders were located in the pay of crooked gamblers, who had no trouble picking winners in advance?

This latter system gives the picker, on the inside, a great chance for a mop-up. The main idea is that he can't miss, which is at least financially sound. So those who are on the outside, meaning only 99 per cent, who were badly stung, are now waiting to see what will happen.

Which means that beaten favorites, even those beaten on the straight level, will be regarded with deep suspicion unless the normal average above 35 per cent is main-

Around the East this favorite average was dropping down to something like 25 per cent or less-or the size of your hat. Don't think the East was any too pure.

This Jockey Stuff

I can say this much. In Jerry Geisler, California has one of the best and smartest chairmans of a racing commission the sport has ever known. He is both completely honest and just as able.

With sportsmen such as Carleton Burke and others on the lookout, Santa Anita has built up every known precaution against cheating. It will take an extra shrewd manipulator or an extra clever jockey to open some new form of chiseling.

There is nearly always chiseling in racing, wrestling and the fight game. They just happen to be built along those lines, in so many ways. It's a vital part of the trade-like poli-

It so happens that racing has the widest gap of all—the drop from such sportsmen as Al Vanderbilt, Carleton Burke, Charley Howard, Bill Boeing and many others to jockeys and a few trainers, who happened to be lured by the fragrant odor of easy, if tainted, cash. Racing is a thrilling sport. On the average it carries far more thrills for those who have $2 across or $10 on the nose, than any other sport.

It is no way to make any money. Anyone who thinks he can beat 12 per cent is what you might call comical in the cupola. Ask Colonel Bradley about the extreme difficulties of beating 51/2 per cent at roulette. Or even a steady 4 per cent.

But as long as the men and women, the boys and the girls, like to have their whirl, why try to stop them? You can't, anyhow.

Back to Santa Anita

Doc Strube, general manager of the Santa Anita track, figures this will be his best year. He has a flock of purses that run from $10,000 to $100,000, including several $50,000 tests. This naturally has brought out a full share of the best horses, in an off year.

They have brought in crack thoroughbreds from all over the bombed and unbombed world to run for all this money, including three of England's best. St. Andrews II from the British Isles has run the mile and a quarter in 1:59%, which is motorcycle time.

But the shadow of Challedon, the Brann Blaster, the Maryland Special, still hangs over Kayak II, Mioland and others now pointing for the main swag.

The 1940 opening was technically or officially known as a gala event, wherein a flock of motion picture stars shared the spotlight with good horses and more than 3,000,000 flower blooms, not including orange groves shadowing the rim of the Inspiring as these flowers, mountains and orange groves are to arguseyed tourists, they are merely incidental to most of the fans who come here to watch the horses.

Track Surroundings

I could tell you again about the snow-capped peaks that hover over the tropical blooms around the ex- track, where they can handle 60,000 spectators without too much crowd-

I could write more about Bing Crosby, Louis B. Mayer, Loretta Young, Pat O'Brien, Joe E. UTOUTS like this are a happy idea to be used for plants you grow indoors. You can add interest to the flowers you keep in the house and to the attractiveness of your rooms as well if you use boxes in clever designs like these. Bits of plywood are cut out with jig or coping saw, painted and nailed together to make the boxes.

License plates for 1941 were received at the office of County Sheriff Earl Booth recently, attaches said this week. Plates for the regular passengar cars have been opened and displayed, revealing the fact that the '41 tags are of black, with bright orange letters. Due to the fact that more than one million tags were issued before Parmer county numbers were reached, this county has a serial of A07-, and the first tag to be issued will bear the number A07-151.

WILL BROADCAST

Miss Elsie Cunningham, home demonstration supervisor for Parmer county, has announced that beginning January 20th, she will make regular broadcasts over station KICA, in Clovis, each Monday morning at 8 o'clock, Texas time. Her topics will be chosen from the various themes in which home demonstration clubbers and other rural women are interested, and persons in this section are urged to tune in.
