Italian Version

Unquestioned was the fact that Italy had been kicked wholeheartedly out of the war by Britain, Greece and the Free French, together with other sundry allies such as Polish, Czech and other hands that had joined into the Battle of Greece and the Battle of Egypt.

The invader, who stepped briskly into the war just at the moment of France's collapse, shot forces along the Mediterranean coast from the border of Libya to Sidi Barrani, and who sailed across mountains for Athens from an Albanian take-off, had become the invaded on both to keep the true situation from becoming generally known, the debacle was too enormous to be hidden longer, and Mussolini's aides had to take to the radio and to the Italian press to prevent a spread of the disaster to home fronts.

Dismissal of leaders, disaffection in the Dodecanese islands, riots in the streets of the two big factory towns had leaked out, and then the Fascist party line editors and commentators began dishing out orders to the populace from the higherups, at the same time issuing warnings to Britain and the Hellenes as to what they might expect from the Italian troops when "they get really mad."

While there was some news of sporadic increased resistance at certain points in the fronts, the general words were two-retreat and evacuation all along the line. And the press' articles about the might of the British enemy and the "unfair" bayonets of the Greeks were just a foretaste of what was to come, with Tirana full of wounded and dying soldiers back from the front

Lights Necessitate More Poultry Feed

Poultrymen should remember that artificial lights stimulate egg production only because they encourage greater feed consumption and that more grain should be provided when lights are used, advises J. C. Taylor, associate extension poultryman at Rutgers university.

If the amount of grain fed is increased two to four pounds per 100 birds a day so that about 14 or 16 pounds are consumed daily, it will be easier for laying birds to maintain good body weight. When the limit has been reached in the amount of grain the birds will eat, a flushing mash of ground oats, ground yellow corn and milk may be fed to further aid in the maintenance of body

Cold Showers for Colds

If you suffer from colds, take a cold shower morning and night, advises Dr. Lloyd Arnold, University of Illinois bacteriologist. He says that is the best thing in the world for those who persistently suffer from colds. His five year experimentation, he declares, has established a relationship between colds and the temperature of the mucous mem- saw him hit a low punch. He be-

"Conn," he said, Grantland Rice "as everybody knows, is a fine boxer and he is also dead game. That ought to be enough for a 175-pound fighter. But apparently it isn't today, when almost everyone is looking for a

"Conn simply doesn't know how to punch-I mean the art of punching. He relies only on his wrists and arms. There is no shoulder or body support back of his blows.

"To be a good puncher," Socker said, "a fighter must know how to get in those shoulder and body muscles. I've talked about this with Bobby Jones in hitting a golf ball. As you know, Bobby in his prime was as long as anybody. He was far past Hagen and Sarazen off the tee, 10 or 12 years ago-when they were all at the top. Bobby relied a lot on shoulder and body and hip power to get this distance. The same thing is true of boxing when it comes to the punching side.

Dempsey and Tunney

"When Jack Dempsey nailed you with a left hook," Socker added, "he wasn't just flipping you with a wrist and arm motion. He had those big shoulder muscles, under the shoulder, working with the punch. He had his whole left side in that wallop. The same, to a lesser degree, is true of Gene Tunney. Tunney never had the explosive force that belonged to Dempsey-that belongs to Joe Louis-but he was a much better puncher than most ring follow- be made with long or short ers know about. Tunney wasn't a sleeves. natural athlete, but a great student tails that produce force. Gene knew how to get shoulder and body back of his punches.

But he wasn't big enough or strong enough to have a professional strong enough to have a professional strong man. You can't flick at somebody and do any damageunless, of course, you use a thumb as quite a few have done. But I'm not speaking of gougers. I'm speaking of real punchers.

About Billy Conn

"Billy Conn isn't big enough for a Joe Louis," Socker rambled on. 'Louis can hit too hard with either hand. But Conn should be a better puncher than he is today. The kid is a fine boxer, he is fast, and he is dead game. But apparently no one has ever taught him how to hit. No one has shown him what true balance means when you deliver a punch. No one has told him the value of shoulder and back muscles, working with hands and arms.

"If they have, Billy simply hasn't learned his lesson. He was able to measure Savold and hit him at will -at any spot, at any time. Yet he couldn't even rock him. If Joe Louis had delivered any one of those 50 or 60 punches to the chin Savold would still be dreaming of the hour. They would have found his body somewhere in the upper stands.

"Conn is still just a kid. He still has a lot to learn. Not about boxing, but about punching. He should punch the heavy bag oftener, and learn how to get in those shoulder and back muscles. Otherwise he is just going to be another good light heavyweight. I doubt that he will ever get much bigger. His thin legs show that. He may reach 180. But he has enough boxing skill to get his opponent ready for the kill-if he only could get that kill into his right or left hand. You can't get that with a flick."

"What about another Pittsburgher, Harry Greb?" I asked. "I still think Greb in his prime could beat any heavyweight I ever saw, and Harry was no great puncher."

."Greb was different," Socker said. "Greb, a little Hercules, was a stick of dynamite. He was even faster than Conn. I'd say much faster. And he'd hit you with everything knew no rules-except to win.

"He was one of the greatest fighters we've ever seen. If Greb, in his prime, had been fighting Savold the other night, Savold would have died by drowning-in his own blood. His face would have looked a horrible sight. It wouldn't have been a

Watch Your Kidneys

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fall to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be passing backache.

poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

WHO'S NEWS THIS

By LEMUEL F. PARTON Consolidated Features-WNU Service.)

VEW YORK.—This writer happened to be down in Elizabethton, Tenn., in 1928 when Edward F. McGrady was kidnaped from his hotel Army Labor Aide in the middle For Fair Break to of the night, Ownership, Labor put down in the wilderness and told to keep going. He was an A. F. of L. representative, organizing the rayon mill workers. He walked straight back to town, met his assailants, and explained to them there had been a mistake. Always dapper, smiling a wry smile, he never so much as lost the crease in his trousers in this adventure. The vigilantes bought him a drink.

Nobody knows the trouble he's seen, but he's straightened out a lot of it, too, and now at 68, he becomes the special labor aide to the army as special labor consultant to Secretary Stimson. He has held down many a sizzling-hot lid of labor strife and, respected by ownership for wise counsel and fairdealing, he is equally respected by labor as a hard-hitting contender for its rights.

It was in September, 1937, that he was upped 53 stories to a mahogany and mono-metal office and a salary of $25,000 a year as director of labor relations for the Radio Corporation of America. His singular success as a labor conciliator during the preceding five years, while assistant secretary of labor, lay in keeping the friendship of both sides. But no one ever called him a yes man. He is hard-headed and toughminded.

He was a newsboy in one of the sleaziest of Boston slums. He became a newspaper pressman, and a union organizer. Samuel Gompers sent him to Washington, where he remained 14 years as the legislative agent of the A. F. of L.

His habits of speech, never bookish or turning to doubletalk, have had much to do with his success in clearing up what be calls "misunderstandings." In short, hard-hitting words, he has preached the responsibility of labor to co-operate and produce, as well as bargain, along with the responsibility of ownership to give the worker a fair break. He was assistant administrator of the NRA under Gen. Hugh Johnson. In his new post, he serves without salary, having been partially released from his duties by President David Sarnoff of the R. C. A.

With his co-dictators, he has assailed democracy, but his country has been for centuries more or less in British leading strings, and he is charged with none of the brutal excesses of the other Continental tyrannies. It was in May of last year that he made a sharp break with Italy and Germany and swung into the British orbit.

In 1928, when Gen. Antonio Carmona seized power, he summoned the acidulous, little, bespectacled professor to take a hand in the government. Dr. Salazar said it would be all or nothing. With the understanding that England would continue its benign mandate over Portugal, he took over as premier.

He dislikes uniforms and never wore one, and dislikes oratory even more. He has made four short speeches in the 12 years of his premiership. By cutting out all social reforms, and curtailing expenditures for public health and education, and by developing a guild system of his own devising, he has conserved resources and cut down the external debt. There is a disagreement as to what has happened to the internal debt. His critics say it has risen sharply and that real wages and the standard of living of his people have been lowered.

Right at the start of his regime, there were complaints from tourists that Portuguese hotels were infested with fleas. Dr. Salazar, a recluse with no fear of detection, tried out one of the hostelries and didn't get linery parade your coiffure is conmuch sleep. ### Overshoes Have

Overshoes don't change much from year to year. They just become a little neater looking, a little more streamlined and a bit more decorative. But this year the principal news is that the makers of galoshes have finally realized that many women wear low-heeled shoes during the winter months. So this season you will find even the velvet carriage shoes trimmed with black bunny fur, available in three heel heights-low, Cuban and high. These are extremely smart worn with a velvet trimmed cloth coat or one of fur. The familiar all-rubber galoshes are also made in the three heel sizes this year, and the toes are given a boxy look. You'll find a black on black contrast in these, with shiny rubber applied in a pattern over the arch, and in a panel around the toes, and on the heels.

There are low overshoes that look like grown-up rubbers. These are styled to cover the entire shoe, but stop below the ankle. In order to make these look like shoes they are given a smart suede finish and trimmed with shiny rubber for a suede and patent look.

Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money-more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued -14-

Allegra's silence bothered me. Her profile was clear and sharp as the head on a coin in the uneven pulsing of lights beyond the taxi window. She said, looking straight ahead:

"I lied to Agatha today. I don't usually do that. I told her, when Grove dropped out, that I couldn't get anyone to take me to the opera tonight. I never tried. I only said of fresh tragedy rose to blow her that I was disappointed and she did about. She heard me coming and what I hoped she'd do."

Once or twice in a lifetime, fortune offers you the thing you want most and, remembering the way she has treated you, you don't believe it. I did not now. I thought I was reading wild meaning into her words. She turned toward me with an odd little smile and hurried on:

"I've been lonely and frightened and I-needed you, I guess. I needed to be alone with you and Tell All. I thought we could be-friends. And instead, you behave as though you were-well, a millionaire that a low-down gal was trying to compromise."

"If I have," I told her, "I beg your pardon, my dear. I think, though, that you've got the parts mixed up. You're the millionaire. Wait a minute-" I saw she was trying to break in and I hurried on:

"It galls you to have-misled your aunt. All right. What about me? She's lifted me out of a hallman's uniform; she's given me a job and her confidence. I have little integrity, maybe, but I'm not a complete so-and-so. It mightn't do you a bit of harm to consider the problems of someone else now and then."

The girl did not answer. She had turned her head and was looking out of the window. I did not wonder that so few persons in this world were ever nobly renunciatory. There was no pleasure in it. I said:

"And now that that is all cleared up to our mutual dissatisfaction, how about changing the subject?"

"It's not necessary," she answered and turning as though she had decided something, looked squarely at me. "We're almost home."

"And maybe that's just as well, too," I answered. "Thank you, Miss Paget-for a great many things."

Her laugh was like a breaking stick. Then she caught hold of her- up with me." self.

I could see the marquee of the Morello, just ahead, and a group of men who lingered on the curb beneath the street light.

"Will you?" Allegra asked again, and I wondered why her voice was

"I promise," I told her and belatedly wondered if I were pledging myself to disloyalty to Cochrane. "Unless," I added, "it concerns someone else." For a few minutes I had forgotten the murder and Lyon's almost certain part in it. It came back to me now and made me a little sick. The cab slowed down. Allegra asked in a low, clear

"You're in love with me, aren't you?'

The taxi had stopped and Walters was opening the door. I might have kept silent, but her hand clung to mine as I helped her out. I heard myself say:

'You'll never know how much." She hurried on into the foyer while I paid the fare. As I turned to follow, someone said:

"The society bellhop, himself." Larry Duke was of the group that gathered around me. I knew the faces of others and the malease within me quickened into nausea. Why were reporters hanging, like vultures, about the Morello again? "Any statement," Duke asked nastily, "on the most recent-unpleasantness, Count?" The foretaste of disaster was bitter in my mouth. Its savor made it easier to hold my temper.

"I'll leave the issue," I told Duke, "to the good sense of the American

I started away but someone else caught me by the sleeve. "Listen, fella," he begged.

"They've just found this Everett Ferriter's body at the bottom of the area. What's it all about?" When I could speak, I said as steadily as I might: "You tell me. Suicide?"

"Suicide, hell," Duke said with "They caught your girl friend's brother in the Ferriter flat. right after Everett went out the window. And they're dusting off the hot seat for him, right now."

CHAPTER XIV

A reporter asked another question. The words made no sense. As I broke away, I stepped on someone's foot and he swore. I ran into the foyer.

pass. Then I saw her at the end of the gloomily ornate foyer.

She waited beside the elevator shaft but the car was upstairs. Wherefore, I was thankful and, at the same time, wretched. I must tell her what had happened, here and now.

She looked so small, in her brocaded evening wrap-slender as a fall.' flame and unconscious that the wind turned.

I saw in her smile a trace of the last words I had blurted. She thought I was a lover, returning to complete a pledge half-spoken. That made it harder. The world had changed since I had helped her from the cab.

The elevator might appear; someone else might intervene, at any second. There was no time for tact. A dirty job was best done quickly. I let her have it all in one breath.

"You'll have to take it, my dear. Everett Ferriter is dead and they think your brother had something to do with it."

Vaguely, all that evening, I had wondered how much of her high color was make-up. I knew now. Her face grew white. Her lips were gray, but they did not tremble. She took it standing and never wavered. Her eyes hurt me. She asked, 'What happened?" in a level voice, and I told her what Duke and the others had told me. She said, "He didn't do it."

I said, as cheerfully as I could: "Reporters think in headlines. It's probably much less serious than they say. I only wanted to tell you before you walked into it."

"Where is he?" Her eyes held mine as though that impersonal contact kept her up.

I said, "Upstairs," and rang again for the elevator. After the far shrill of the bell, I heard the old machinery groan.

I stumbled over many things I wished to say-yet might not, and at last managed:

"I've hurt you but it seemed the only way. I'll leave you here, but I'll wait. If you, or your aunt, want me, you can telephone the foyer." "Please," she whispered as the shaft door slid open, "please come

She stood, stiff and silent, on that "If you don't stop patting me on journey upward Toward its end the head," she warned, "I'll take a | she turned as though her neck were stiff and asked:

"A cigarette?"

I lighted it for her and we stepped from the car. The door clanged behind us. She fumbled in her bag for her key. The first shock of the blow was wearing off. Her mouth worked and her fingers blundered. In front of the Ferriter flat, a plainclothes man watched us. He chewed gum and his derby rocked with each movement of his jaws. Allegra said at last:

"Please ring the bell. I don't think," she added with a twisted smile, "we're likely to get anyone out of bed."

Annie, in a rumpled wrapper, opened the door. Her eyes were red and her breath came in small Annie wept. "Yonder," she wailed. 'Them cops-" She jerked her head toward the Ferriter apartment and could say no more. I followed Allegra down the hall.

Miss Agatha Paget, her body folded precisely in a black silk dressing gown, sat in her wheel chair and smoked. The lids of her keen eyes were unreddened by tears. Her hair was drawn back by a thin braid from the face that had the bold calm of the hawk.

For an instant, as her niece ran to her and the old woman looked up for her kiss, I saw the hard features soften. The girl bent over her a long instant and then, with one hand locked in her aunt's, turned to me.

"He didn't want to come up," she defended. "I made him. Agatha, what is it? What's really happened?"

Miss Agatha drew on her cigarette and blew smoke through her beaked nose. I thought, as she looked at me, of the figurehead of a ship, worn and immune to storm.

She asked dryly: "Material for another chapter in the book, David?"

"No," I said. "I had no business barging in. Only if there is anything I can do-

Her thin shoulders drew together in the least possible shudder.

"Grove," said Miss Agatha, quite calmly, "was in the Ferriter apart-ment. They caught him coming out, You know he had a latchkey?"

She looked up sharply at her niece.

"Yes," the girl admitted. Miss Agatha patted Allegra's

"I wonder," she mused aloud, "if there aren't limits beyond which loyalty is no virtue. We both knew and yet-"

The bell rang and we heard Annie shuffle to the door.

"Because," the girl began, but her aunt took the thought away from

"Because Grove is such a stubborn young devil that we were afraid if we protested it would only drive him further. We were wrong, my dear. Marriage with Ione is better than the murder of her brother."

"He didn't!" Allegra exclaimed. Miss Agatha nodded and bit through an invisible thread.

"One might fight to prevent a suicide, as well as to commit a murder."

Miss Agatha looked at me hard. "Every now and then, David," she told me, "I admire your mind. It is so much like mine. Obviously, that's what happened. I doubt whether the police will accept our explanation."

The Lord is coming! One of the chief reasons for the worldliness in our churches today, the indifference toward soul winning, and the neglect of personal holiness, is that preachers and people alike have neglected the truth of the second coming of Christ. He is

Fruit Spots.

UESTION: How can huckleberry stains be removed from clothing and linen?

Answer: Most fruit stains when fresh can be removed from cottons and linens by pouring boiling water coming again-are you ready? Am through the stain from a height of I? These are serious and urgent three or four feet. The stained part of the fabric is stretched over a pail and tied in place; boiling water is then poured on it, and has sufficient force to take out the stain. Soap should not be used on a fruit stain, for it sets the color. If fabric stained with fruit juice has been laundered, removal is much more difficult. One method is to bleach with Javelle water, which, however, if not thoroughly rinsed out soon after using, may weaken the fabric. Follow directions on the label of the container. This chemical will also work with stains that are old and dried. Another method is to rub the stain with glycerine, to let it stand for some hours, and then to pour boiling water through the stain from a height. These methods are for cotton and linen. For stains on colored fabric, silk or wool, and for all valuable pieces, it is best to have the job done by a professional.

Copper Valleys.

Question: I would like your advice as to the use of copper in the flashing of valleys and slate surfaced asphalt shingles. I have been told that a chemical reaction takes place at a point where the edge of the asphalt shingle contacts the copper, causing pinholes. Strips of the same material of which the asphalt shingles are made, have been recommended. The top strip is laid wider than the under strip. What is your opinion?

Odor in Refrigerator. Question: Our gas refrigerator has a removable top. Roaches had established themselves inside, and in order to destroy them, we removed the top and poured in a disinfectant containing concentrated cresol. Now everything placed in the box becomes permeated with an obnoxious taste and odor. Please help. Answer: Never use any chemical that has a strong odor in a refrigerator or any other food storage container. Wash the affected area with warm water to which has been added one teaspoonful of trisodium phosphate. Rinse with clear water. Do this when the refrigerator is defrosted. An excellent deodorant for refrigerators is powdered charcoal. It is made up in perforated containers, and can be purchased at most stores handling kitchen appliances and utensils.

Heating Plant. Question: (same writer) What type of stove should I use for heating my house in the mountains?

Answer: If the house is compact in design and of open interior, and if the ceilings are not more than 15 inches above the top of the door openings, you would get satisfaction with a pipeless heater, to be put in the cellar, or a circulating hot air heater to go on the ground floor. Either one of these would be especially good if you plan to use the house only on week-ends and short visits. If you expect to live there permanently, you might do better to put in hot water or steam heat. Old Boards.

Question: Could boards on the walls of an old barn be used as under flooring, or possibly even for finished flooring? In the latter case, is it better to lay the flooring first, and then to use a machine sander, or to have them planed at the mill before laying?

Answer: Boards that are not warped, and that are sound, can be used again. If they are hardwood, they would make good finish floors. preachers, teachers and Christian If they are fairly smooth, machine sanding after laying might be enough, but I should prefer to have them run through a planer at a mill. Washington, D. C. McGRADY SELECTION

The selection of E. F. McGrady to advise the war department on labor relations couldn't have been improved upon, from the government's point of view. From Mr. McGrady's, it may not be so hot. Eddie is a dollar-a-year man. He can't afford to be that except on a part-time basis.

After a life of unselfish service for labor unions at wages far below his worth, he was getting on. He had family obligations. In addition, he is the easiest "touch" I know. If you are out of luck, all you have to do to get McGrady's money is to ask him for it. So he didn't have anything put aside.

The RCA did one of the most intelligent things in recent industrial management. It employed this great union labor leader to keep its labor relations straight, made him first a director and later a vice president and paid him a salary commensurate with other first lieutenants of Mr. Sarnoff. RCA would not willingly lose his services, and Mr. McGrady can make belated preparations for his old age.

For these reasons, it would be unfair to require him to give up that job. It would also be unnecessary, because if the war department is wise it will keep out of labor disputes. Keeping out wouldn't take too much of McGrady's time.

Except at the arsenals, and to a limited extent elsewhere, the war department is not an employer. It procures its supplies from contractors. They will get into some disputes. There will be some strikes. Some of them will delay the rearmament program. But it is not the army's business to horn in. That is the business of Sidney Hillman's labor organization or the Perkins conciliation service.

Army officers are not fitted by training, background or office to conduct themselves well in the heat or emotion of a strike situation where you can't move men by yelling: "Squads right." If the army doesn't push this porcupine over to the departments where it belongs, or if it permits them to push it over to the army, some soldier is a sucker. It is a safe bet that it won't be that if it is done he won't stay there.

'APPEASEMENT'

Out of the administration are coming private warnings that one great American danger just now is organization and daily growth of "appeasers" and their cunning propaganda to stir up public sentiment for "appeasement." It isn't easy to define just what is meant by this use of the word. Appeasement, as a by-word, grew out of the series of settlements with Hitler acceded to by France and England, whereby they welched on the alliances France, at least, had made with such little nations as Austria and Czechoslovakia, in order to "ring Germany in a cordon sanitaire of steel" and to preserve the provisions of the treaty of Versailles. They tossed those little nations to the Nazi wolves quite obviously because there was nothing else they could do. They had allowed themselves to become too weak and Germany to become too strong to do anything else. The very word "appease," taken with the circumstances of those settlements, implied that there was some right on the Nazi side. The appeasing concessions were used not as a truce to gain time for allout defense. They were used as a narcotic assurance to the British and the French of "peace in our time," with an effect that they went on snoring while Germany became stronger and stronger.

Some of us began to insist that we prepare, years before Munich and with growing insistence ever since -insistence on our own weakness, on the great threat growing in the world and the absolute necessity for American rearmament.

Many, if not most, of those who took this stand believe we are not even yet arming effectively. have preceded and supported every move to speed and increase total defense to the point of American invincibility on this side of the world.

Our only point of difference with other equally earnest and sincere Americans is that we do not believe in either the necessity or the wisdom of scattering our defense over more territory than we can guard, do not believe in putting our country into a military situation in which its defense depends on the strength or weakness of others-their blunders or successes.

We do believe that, whether Britain wins or does not win, we shall never be safe again without adequate defense of our own, that part of our strength is our financial soundness and that we cannot weaken it by undertaking to finance the wars of others at a cost which, in quaintances for God, turn the inter- which is kept closed. ### Dykstra Plans Aid to Conscripts Released After Year of Training

Draft Head Strives to Provide for Their Re-employment; Future of Military Training Program Depends Upon Its Effect on First Draftees.

By BAUKHAGE (National Farm and Home Hour Commentator)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
The time will soon be over when the boys who wanted to get into the army will be the only ones calledthe volunteers for the draft are rapidly being used up. Then it will be the turn of those who have to go whether they want to or not. But Washington isn't worrying about how this last contingent is feeling. What it is worrying about-or at least thinking about—is how the whole "new army"-all the boys who do their one year's hitch-are going to feel when they get out. That is one of the most important things that Uncle Sam has to consider in connection with the entire selective service system and that is why C. A. Dykstra was called to be selective service administra-

When I sat down in his new office in Washington-which a month ago was the dining room of a flat in an apartment house the war department has hastily made over-Mr.

CLARENCE A. DYKSTRA

Dykstra didn't look any different from the way he did when we sat down for a bull session in the fraternity house back in 1908. He has the same warm, overflowing nature and his face is still its window.

After we'd exchanged a few reminiscences, I said that I supposed he had been chosen to head up the draft chiefly because, as president of a great university, he stood for youth. He said he supposed so. Then I asked: "But what are you really here for? This selective service system runs itself, what are you supposed to worry about?" Then, we got to the real meat of the nut.

"The thing we are concerned with," he answered with that dash of ginger that spices his scholarly thoughtfulness and makes everything Dykstra does, live, "the thing that we are concerned with is what is going to happen next year."

I realized he was way ahead of

"We have the continuing responsibility of training a citizen army"and he emphasized the word "continuing.'

"We have to ask ourselves how the boys who have finished a year's training are going to report back home. Will their report be such that their parents and their friends will say 'it was a good year'?

Training Should Improve Conscripts

"We want the boy to report that he is physically better off; that his morale is strengthened; that he has seen and learned a lot about the country and is convinced that we have something to defend.

"We want him to be advanced in his education, the kind of education you get living with others; we want him to get a feeling for the whole population; to find out how the Texan looks at things and the boy from the great Northwest; the fellows from across the tracks and on the hill, the country boy and the one from the crowded city.

"We want the boys to learn from talking to each other about all kinds of things; have them learn the defense point of view; to understand and feel their whole country.

"We have to be interested in what happens this year if we are going to look ahead.

"Upon the boy's report will depend what happens on the floor of congress later. Maybe congress will decide that perhaps the boys should happen here."

Spanish Popular

Washington is going "the South American Way" rapidly, according to Baukhage. A great craze to study Spanish has broken out and its "Como esta Usted" all up and down the street. And it's not only in Washington. The Office of Education reports that figures from seven North and South Carolina colleges show an increase of 77.1 per cent in the number of students studying Spanish.

or the forests, fighting pests."

As we talked it was easy to see how much further than the parade ground and the hike, the drill regulations and the rifle range, Administrator Dykstra was looking. Originally he studied to be a professor of history but he switched to political science, partly because of the influence of that great scholar, Charles Merriam, under whom he studied. Political science, the study of things that make the wheels of government go round, helped to pull him away from the campus and the library and into an active role in civic administration. He was finally called back into the college world again. After seven years as city manager of Cincinnati, where he made a splendid record, carrying that busy city through the terror of the flood of three years ago, he was made president of the University of Wisconsin.

Before that, he was head of the water and power department of the city of Los Angeles through the period of the building of the Boulder dam when the frightened farmers fought with guns and dynamite the new project which they thought would rob them of their water.

And another thing which he is thinking about when he says "next year" is the job situation and the part the government must play in fitting the trainee back into civilian Inside fact regarding the present mystery trip of Col. William Donovan to Europe is that his real destination is Greece.

En route, however, he will stop in North Africa where he will see his old World war friend, Marshal Weygand, now controlling the large French army in Africa.

If this powerful force took the field his adopted son, and Willie the on the side of the British, the Italians, already in a precarious position as a result of their defeats in Greece, would be finished. This would release British naval forces for desperately needed convoy work in the Atlantic.

With the British supreme in the Mediterranean and their big fleet available for operations elsewhere, Japan would think twice before attempting any new grabs.

On the Greek front, Donovan will make a survey similar to that which he made in England last spring.

In England last spring, Donovan made a thorough survey of invasion defenses, military intelligence and the royal air force. He spent a week in the field with the British army and made several flights with the R.A.F. Various U. PRE-ADJOURNMENT JUNKET On November 19, when the house defeated a motion to adjourn until January, members righteously declared that congress should remain on the job in these grave days of emergency.

But today a dozen members of the house are enjoying a cushy junket to Panama, at the expense of the government. And with one exception, everyone of the group voted to stay on the job.

On December 5, a fortnight after so voting, they quietly sailed from New York on the S. S. Panama, which is owned by the government. They will spend two weeks cruising and three days in Panama.

Several are members of the military affairs committee and might have some legitimate reason for making a "defense inspection," but the war department says it knows nothing about the junket.

. . . LONGEST SPEECH

Tom Dewey got a thrill and a chuckle from his luncheon at the Capitol with Floor Leader Joe Martin and other house Republicans. The thrill was an invitation to be the principal speaker at the G. O. P. Lincoln day dinner, which the ambitious district attorney accepted.

The chuckle was evoked by a story about the "longest political speech on record" which gangling, Bing Crosby's brother Bob, well curly-haired Rep. John M. Robsion of Kentucky, a member of the Lincoln day committee, said he made when he first ran for congress in One hot July night during the campaign Robsion addressed a big crowd in a county courthouse and was amazed by the enthusiastic reception. Cheers rent the air with every sentence and there was a vociferous "more, more" when he tried to conclude after an hour.

As he was leaving with the local sheriff, Robsion boasted: "These people sure were enthusiastic. It looks like this county is in the bag.'

"Don't set too much store by the way them fellers carried on, Jack," confided the sheriff. "Nobody there (hic) was sober but you."

WHAT BRITONS READ

WPA's library service made an interesting discovery in a survey to ascertain what the people of warstrafed Britain are reading these

One fact uncovered was that the long, dreary hours of blackout, with no outside recreation, have greatly revived interest in household arts and handicraft. Books on these subjects are at a premium. Also, the classics are in heavy demand, with Shakespeare, Chaucer, Dickens and Kipling as the favorites.

But the one subject in which Britons are most interested is the author of their affliction. The most widely read book in England, according to the WPA survey, is Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Every ship in the U.S. navy is being equipped with a DeGaussing cable, the anti-magnetic mine device used so successfully by the British. The installation job is tremendous and will require more than 40,000,000 feet of cable.
