

Mitzenfeldt Draws 25 Year Sentence

Third Draft Quota Comes Feb. 7th

Tulon G. White, clerk at the Parmer county draft office, announced today that the Local Board had been assigned a quota of two more men to be inducted into military service on Feb. 7.

White stated in the same conversation that already two volunteers were standing in readiness to fill this quota. Glenwood London and Orville Whitefield have already filed applications to receive their military training voluntarily, and, barring some unexpected deferment, these boys will be the ones to go.

So far, the Parmer county local board has not been compelled to conscript a single man to fill any of the county's quotas—all have been volunteers.

White said that it appeared likely that this county would have another quota assigned it during the latter part of February, and expressed the belief that at least four or five men would be called at that time.

He added that with the volunteer enlistment of Whitefield and London, the list of volunteers in this county is now exhausted, and it began to appear likely this week that the next quota might have to be drafted.

"Several boys have been considering volunteering, however," White said, "and enough of them may come in during the next few days to take care of the quota."

Land Use Committee To Meet Wednesday

Chairman Fred Barker has called a meeting of the Parmer County Land Use Committee for this (Wednesday) evening, to be held at the school building in Bovina.

County Agent Jason O. Gordon will discuss a grain sorghum improvement program, along with the cold storage locker system, and the water facilities program will be discussed by Frank Seale, of the Farm Security Administration.

The "Cotton Comforter" program will be reviewed by Miss Elsie Cunningham, home demonstrator, and "Earn More Cash the AAA Way" will be taken up by Garlon A. Harper, of the AAA office.

Mr. Barker has assured all members that the discussions will be brief, and urges a representative attendance from each community.

May Install Bowling Alley in Texico Soon

I. F. Selman, owner of the Texico pool hall, stated today that he was considering putting in a bowling alley in Texico in the near future.

Equipment for a 4-lane alley has already been purchased by Selman and is now on storage in Texico. He said Tuesday that he would either put it in here or some nearby town, but at that time he was undecided.

The Texico Town Council, in session Monday night, passed an amendment to a town ordinance, which was construed as an inducement to the proposed bowling alley by lowering the license fee from $40 to $20 per year.

Selman had said that under the old ordinance the license fee was "too high", but he was not interviewed after the reduction was voted.

Meeting Is Held By Association Heads

The Board of Directors of the Tri-County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, embracing Parmer, Curry and Roosevelt counties, met in the office of County Agent Jason O. Gordon, in Farwell, Saturday afternoon, to discuss the problems of the association.

Various phases of the program were taken up, with Dean Pattison, president, L. H. Cooper and Tom Haislip, all of Roosevelt county; Geo. Templar, of Parmer county, and County Agents Charley Todd, of Curry; W. J. Vanzant, of Roosevelt, and Gordon, of Parmer, participating.

The directors agreed to sponsor a Dairy Day program in the near future, the time and place to be decided later. They also reviewed the program of the Tri-County Association, and expressed themselves as well pleased with the results obtained thus far.

Damage Suit Occupies Stage in District Court

The suit for damages, in which Mrs. Annie May Kimmins is seeking damages in the amount of $30,000 from the Panhandle & Santa Fe Railway Company, was on trial here Wednesday morning with indications that it would be turned to the jury Thursday afternoon.

The suit is the outgrowth of the death of Mrs. Kimmins' husband, Black school superintendent, who was killed at a railroad crossing at Black on Dec. 3, 1939.

All members of the jury panel who are now being used in the damage suit hearing, have been ordered, to report Friday morning of this week to consider other civil matters pending before the court.

The grand jury is in recess this week, scheduled to convene again Monday morning of next week, to consider any other matters that might be brought up.

Meanest Man at Large In Parmer County

The meanest man (or men, as the case may be) is at large in Parmer County.

Not content with noting the heavy loss sustained by Mr. and Mrs. Claude White in the fire which recently destroyed their home, the pilferer has twice tried to steal some of the equipment stored in the garage and wash-house at the farm.

On Monday evening, following the shower tendered the Whites by their friends, two men were surprised by the farm's hired hand, attempting to enter the garage and storage room at the White location.

Country residents are urged to keep a sharp look-out around their property for the thieves.

Friena People Hurt When Car Takes Flop

At least three Friena people were hurt, one of them seriously, early Monday morning, when the car in which they were traveling failed to negotiate a sharp curve in the road and turned over, according to rather meager information reaching here.

Those injured were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Settle, and Mrs. Fred Rogers, passengers in the car with Eugene (Weedy) Coffman. Reports state that Mrs. Rogers sustained breaks in both arms and four fractured ribs. Others in the party were injured less seriously.

The accident happened near Roscoe, Texas, as the party was en route to Brownwood.

Coffman, owner of the car, was asleep at the time of the accident, reports say, and Settle was at the wheel.

Bids on T-P Farm Building Are Listed

Frank Seale, acting supervisor of the Parmer County Farm Security Administration, announced this week that bids for construction on the farm home to be built on the property of Mose Glasscock, will be open to competitors, "probably the first of next week."

Glasscock, who secured a Tenant-Purchase loan through the FSA, is buying the former Pierce place, located just a short distance south and east of Farwell. The house now on the property will be torn down, and a new five-room house, with bath, will be built. Material from the present building will be salvaged insofar as possible, and used in the new home.

CARS COLLIDE

THEY'RE IN THE ARMY NOW—Seven Parmer county boys as they prepared to entrain for the U. S. Army Induction Station at Lubbock last Thursday. Information received here this week was to the effect that all had passed their final medical examination, which means, "they're in the Army now."

Parmer County Boys Pass Physical Exams

The seven Parmer county volunteers who entrained here last Thursday for the U. S. Army induction station at Lubbock, successfully passed their final medical examination, and are now in the Army, according to information received here the first of the week from induction station officials at the office of the local Draft Board.

This makes a total of nine men who have been sent from this county through the office of the Local Board and all have met the physical requirements.

A fairly large-sized crowd gathered at the local Santa Fe station Thursday afternoon to extend "good luck" wishes to the seven volunteers who made up the second quota to be called from this county under the provisions of the Selective Service Act.

The young men displayed every evidence of high spirits as they took their first step for a year's military training. They posed for photographs and cracked jokes with the well-wishers who had congregated to bid them good-bye.

MRS. THOMPSON IMPROVES

Mrs. Lee Thompson, a patient at the Clovis Memorial hospital, is reported to be showing gradual improvement this week, and indications are that she will be permitted to return to her home the latter part of this week. Mrs. Thompson, wife of County Judge Lee Thompson, underwent a major operation on Jan. 5.

HAS OPERATION

Curry Assessor To Be Here Next Week

Theodore Rozzell, Curry county tax assessor, has posted notices advising that he will be in Texico on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 28-29, for the purpose of receiving tax renditions from taxpayers of this section.

No announcement has been made here as to where he will maintain offices while in Texico.

Mr. Rozzell advises that 1941 tax renditions may be made at any time during the month of January by calling at his office in the Curry county courthouse. His appearance here concludes a schedule that carries him to every voting precinct in the county to receive tax renditions.

He asks that all parties, when appearing to render taxes, have in their possession their tax receipts for last year, as well as a full list of their taxable property. "Your land numbers are the most important thing," he emphasizes.

With reference to ex-soldiers' exemptions, Mr. Rozzell explains that no exemptions can be claimed unless the ex-soldier has been a resident of New Mexico since prior to Jan. 1, 1934.

The law provides penalty for failure to render property during the month of January, Mr. Rozzell points out.

NEW EQUIPMENT AT SIKES

O. C. Sikes of the Sikes Motor company, this week announced the addition of more than $500 worth of new equipment in his repair department. The principal items included in the new installation are an Arbor press and a piston pin grinder.

Of Interest to Farmers

By Garlon A. Harper, Sec'y Parmer County AAA

The attention of ranch operators who have range worksheets is called to the fact that guide lines for contour chiseling work must be run by level and that these lines must be run at one-half the interval for terraces. This requirement is rather strict and must be closely followed. Any ranch operator who intends to do contour chiseling work under the Range Conservation program should check this item closely and if not certain as to the requirements should contact this office before the chiseling work is done.

Under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation program, land planted to white cane or Atlas Sorgho will not be classed as non-depleting regardless of the use of the crop. Since this crop was used as "layout" on some farms in 1940, all farmers should remember that the crop will not classify as "layout" in 1941.

All wheat farmers who have Federal Crop Insurance MUST NOT destroy any wheat before the wheat is inspected by the County Crop Insurance Supervisor and permission given to destroy the crop to save the land from blowing. Permission will be given to list the land only if this is absolutely necessary to prevent serious wind erosion. Farmers having wheat insurance should do everything possible to save the wheat as well as the land by chiseling and other good farming practices. It should be remembered that the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is willing to allow the farmers who have insurance to list the land solid if necessary to save the land, however, they also expect and require that the farmer do everything possible to save the wheat before it becomes necessary to list the land.

Again we want to call your attention to the Tree Planting Program. These trees may be bought at a very low price and payment for planting trees is in addition to the regular payment which may be earned on the land. All farmers who own land in Parmer county should check with us on this matter.

Texico Defense Class to Begin Tuesday Night; 15 Are Enrolled

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Miss Rosa Childers, 66, died January 16th, of a heart attack, at her home in Abilene, Texas, it was learned here this week. Miss Childers was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Childers, and formerly resided in Texico, where Mr. Childers was at one time mayor. She will be remembered by many of the old settlers in this community.

With fifteen young men between the ages of 17 and 24 already signed up and "ready to go", Texico school officers announced today that the school defense class would open sessions in the agricultural building, Tuesday night, January 28.

Class sessions will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and three hours each evening will be spent in the periods, from Monday through Friday evenings.

The first class of students will study automotive repair and operation, and will be under the instruction of Floyd Francis, Texico automobile mechanic. This class will continue for a period of four weeks, after which time a course of instruction on metal repair and welding will be conducted by Ed Blain.

All young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years are eligible to receive the courses of instruction free of charge, but they will be required to provide their own transportation to and from class sessions.

The following afternoon, he was brought before Judge Witherspoon, where he was sentenced to serve twenty-five years in the Texas penitentiary for his part in the crime that came near costing the life of Wanda Lee Martin, 11-year-old Clovis school girl, on the night of Dec. 27, last.

Mitzenfeldt's plea of guilt was followed by confessions on the part of two Negroes, who had been held in jail here for the past several days, also charged with assault with intent to murder. The Negroes, Clarence Ingram, 21, and Charles Wilson, 18, drew sentences of 25 and 15 years respectively.

The evidence showed, Judge Witherspoon said in pronouncing sentence upon the Negroes, that Ingram was the party to fire the shot through the farm home window of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Watkins, three miles south of this city, and that the younger Negro merely accompanied him to the scene of the shooting.

Case Reviewed

Sheriff Earl Booth stated today that the trio would be taken to the state prison to begin serving their sentence within the next few days, explaining that he was "too busy" with court matters just now to leave the city.

The charges against the white man and the two colored boys grew out of a mysterious shooting at the Watkins home shortly after dark on the night of Dec. 27. Mitzenfeldt was the object of suspicion on the part of officers immediately, and was taken into custody a few hours after law enforcement officers began working on the case.

Officers recalled that Mitzenfeldt had had some domestic difficulties with his estranged wife, Ilene Watkins Mitzenfeldt, who has been making her home with her parents, the Watkins, for the past few months. Mitzenfeldt, it was recalled, had entered a plea of guilty in Parmer county court only a short time ago to a charge of sending a threatening letter to his former wife.

It was several days, however, before the identity of the person firing the 45 calibre pistol shot through a closed window at the Watkins home was revealed. This came to light, officers said, following a written confession on the part of Mitzenfeldt, implicating the two Negroes.

The arrest of the two Negroes followed almost immediately at Tucuman, N. M., where both were employed at a bowling alley. They, too, officers revealed, confessed to their part of the crime in a written statement.

Officers began work on the theory that the bullet was intended for Mrs. Ilene Watkins Mitzenfeldt, and that the striking of the little girl was

Tri-County Ag Meet Will Be Held Here

Representatives from twelve Curry Roosevelt and DeBaca county schools will gather in the Texico Future Farmers department, next Monday evening, in the regular yearly meeting of the Tri-County FFA association.

L. A. McCasland, as head of the local group, has announced that the program for the evening will be presented by the different clubs, with several being asked to take part.

The business meeting, which is the principal cause of the gathering, will be devoted primarily to the election of new officers, those in charge have stated.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

'Lend-Lease' Bill Would Give President Broad Powers in 'Aid-to-Britain' Plans; Greeks Continue to Push Back Italians As British Speed Up Campaign in Libya

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BILLIONS:

In Double Figures

Congress knew what was coming when the Roosevelt message on the budget was handed them, but it was a shock none the less.

Some things shock one even when one knows in advance all about them.

Seventeen and a half billions. More billions (unmentioned and extra-budgetary) when the lend-lease plan goes into effect.

A debt limit probably up to 60 billions. Hoary-headed congressmen harked back to the days when they worried about awarding a mere pittance of a billion and a half to World War veterans for the soldier bonus.

Yet the temper of the congress was such that even while being shot back on their heels by the magnitude of the thing, they agreed it would pass, and the lend-lease measures along with it.

And as to the "all-out" aid to Britain, the congress and the administration were seeing eye to eye, or at least nearly so.

The budget and the presidential message were received in kind across the ocean. The Nazi and the Fascist press were vocal in their distaste of the whole proceeding, while the Russian press was relatively silent.

Britain, not counting its chickens before hatching, nor its ships before receipt, was quietly appreciative, but seemed to feel her fate was safe in the hands of the President and congress. Whatever aid can be given will be given, the British felt sure, so why whoop it up?

SHOCK:

For Isolationists

Those in favor of knitting our own socks whether Europe collapses or not got a shock that had nothing to do with the budget.

Senator Nye of North Dakota declared there were between 30 and 35 positive votes (14 to 19 short of a majority) for the United States to declare war on Germany right away, with no more "beating around the bush."

Nye, a leader of the non-interventionist bloc, hasn't the faintest hope that the lend-lease bill (dubbed "blank check aid for England") will be defeated in either house.

He, however, flatly calls this bill a "declaration of war." He gave the 30-35 positive vote figure in case President Roosevelt should, after passage of the unofficial declaration, ask the congress to "make it official" with a formal declaration.

Nye's pessimistic (from his viewpoint) prediction of passage of the bill in some form was echoed by most of his colleagues in the non-intervention bloc, and they seemed ready to center their fight on a basis of some form of revision of the (to them) more drastic provisions.

President Roosevelt, admitting the bill gave him vast powers, sat back quietly waiting for victory in the voting, saying "I know it, but somebody had to have the power."

BRITISH:

Show Speed

Rivalling even the blitzkrieg that swamped the low countries and knocked France out of the war was a swift attack on Libya put on by the forces of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, trim British commander of the top-flight colonials in Africa.

Learning their lesson in Flanders that shock, surprise and speed are the primary qualifications of a successful attack, the British have kept going, even at the cost of getting hundreds of dangerous miles away from their sources of supply.

The despairing cry of Tommy Atkins in Flanders fields and on the road to Dunquerque was "give us planes!" General Wavell was not holding back the planes in the African offensive. Indeed inside information was that of the RAF pilots the banner men were in the Mediterranean offensive, operating both on the Albanian front and in Africa.

Sidi Barrani fell to the Italians without resistance. There they bogged down, never reaching the next stop, Marsa Matruh. Graziani halted and prepared, and waited for supplies that never came. Suddenly the British struck.

Sidi Barrani fell, then in quick succession Salum and Bardia. Then Tobruk was cut off, and the spearhead of the attack split in one direction toward Bengasi, the capital, and toward Derna, the only remaining coastal town of importance.

Fireside critics and editorialists were warning Wavell of "over-reaching" but Wavell's answer to these was to move faster and farther.

After Bardia, the British announced 44,000 officers and men killed or captured. Rendered ineffective since the campaign started, the estimate was around 100,000, or half Graziani's army.

Australian forces are being given much of the credit for the successful drive by the force of the British empire. Famous for their courage and ability in the war of 1914-18, the Aussies had their first major test in the battle for Bardia and they lived up to expectations. When the time came to attack the city there was no stopping them.

GREEKS:

Near Victory

Even if the Germans stage a "movie show" rescue act, and come rushing in at the last moment to knock out Greece, the Greeks have had their hour.

They stood on the verge of a complete victory with the fall of Klisura. Around Klisura, the Italians had made a determined stand. Regiment after regiment of "crack" Roman troops had been hurled into the defense.

The battle was fought amid severest snowstorms, some of near-blizzard proportions. But finally the Greeks had their way, and Klisura was abandoned.

Stories of this abandonment show how vulnerable the retreating army is in modern warfare, especially when inferior in the air. The Italians, according to the reports, hastened from the field of battle in long columns, winding along mountain passes and the rough Albanian roads.

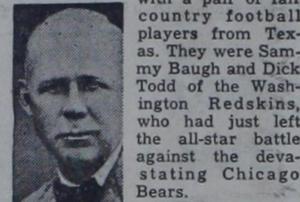

What a mark for British and Greek bombers, especially the eight-machine-gunned fighter craft of the Hurricane and Spitfire type. The British reported that their planes did devastating damage to the retreating Italian columns.

Men so "strafed" during retreat find little stomach for turning and making a stand. Yet turn they had to, at Tepelini, or the roads to Valona and Tirana would be wide open. The Greeks reached the outskirts of Tepelini—and this, according to military men, is the most vital town of all Albania.

LOS ANGELES.—What happens to our star football pros after the last kick-off? How do they manage to kill time between December and next August when they put on the old harness again? You might be surprised.

On my way to Texas for the Cotton Bowl game I spent two days with a pair of fair country football players from Texas. They were Sammy Baugh and Dick Todd of the Washington Redskins, who had just left the all-star battle against the devastating Chicago Bears.

Grantland Rice

"Well," I said to Baugh, one of the great forward passers and also one of the great kickers of all time, "nothing to do now until next August."

"No," he said, with the old Texas half-drawl, "nothing to do but handle my 800-acre cattle ranch and see those cattle get plenty to eat. I know an 800-acre ranch isn't so much in Texas, but I hope to add another 800-acre patch this winter and give my cattle plenty to eat. That'll keep me busier than chucking a few passes, even against those Bears."

"What was your college weight?" I asked Baugh, who is 6 feet 2.

"One-eighty-two pounds," Sammy said.

"What was your reporting weight in August and what did you finish with?" I asked.

"One-eighty-two pounds," Sam answered. Sam is strictly on the lactic side. He says what he has to say in the fewest possible words, which is one of the greatest of all human virtues.

"Where are you headed for, Dick?" I asked 168-pound Dick Todd, one of the best of the running backs.

"Just a little ranch outside of Sweetwater and a few head of cattle. Gee, I'm glad to get back. That home on the range looks good to me."

About Sweetwater Both Baugh and Todd got off at Sweetwater. This, also, is where Lew Jenkins lives. There must be something in the Sweetwater air that breeds athletes.

I asked Dick Todd what he thought of Jenkins.

"Lew's a much better fighter than he looks to be," Todd said. "You see he came up the hard way and I guess that's the best way, if you are trying to get somewhere. I don't want any part of the fight game myself, but this pro game is no easy way either."

"Early in the season I took a pass from Sammy here (meaning Baugh) and just as I straightened out of a half-spin Falaschi hit me. All he did was to drive part of my intestines back against my spine and I had to live on milk for two weeks till I got straightened out. Don't let anybody tell you they don't hit you in this pro game. Both Sammy and I ought to know."

I asked Baugh about better protection for the passer, after he has gotten the ball away.

"That's where the damage comes," Sam said. "I've had to take plenty. I think the officials might keep an eye on what happens after the pass is thrown. I don't mind being knocked down so much, but I don't like fists in my face."

Who does? I can't remember ever seeing an official watch the passer after the ball was thrown down the field. They all watch the ball. I've seen plenty myself that should have been called double-roughness—which never was called. Or was even seen.

About Danny Fortman Sitting on the bench you look at Danny Fortman, the star guard of the Chicago Bears.

Danny in his harness is a burly looking individual who doesn't seem to be headed anywhere in particular—off the football field. But Danny graduated at the head of his school Colgate at the age of 20 summa cum laude. He was a brilliant student.

He is using pro football to get his medical degree and there is certainly no student in the Ivy league who has more ability or greater ambition.

He is one of the great football guards of his era—smart, keen, aggressive, alert, and physically powerful. He is an exceptional medical student who is almost certain to go a long way in his profession.

Pro football has done a great job for these college graduates who otherwise might have been left out in the blizzard of the depression. It has given them the chance to make enough money to carry out their earlier dreams. I don't mean all of them. I mean a great many of them.

It gave Sammy Baugh and Dick Todd and many others the chance to carry out their hope for a "home on the range." It has given many of them chances which our present economic system couldn't offer them.

PREPARE COWS IN DRY PERIOD

Special Care Assures Better Production.

By GEORGE E. TAYLOR (Extension Dairyman, Rutgers University.)

Cows that are properly fitted and managed during the dry period may produce as much as 25 per cent more milk and butterfat during the following lactation period.

During the lactation period, especially during the first six months, the animal's body reserve of minerals, protein and fat becomes depleted. And the cow does not have an opportunity to build up this reserve again until the animal is given a six to eight weeks' rest period prior to the following calving.

Neglect on the part of the owner regarding proper feed, care and management of dry cows may cost the owner the value of one ton of milk. The loss in dollars and cents may be computed by using the market value of one ton of milk under any known market condition.

The amount of hay and grain which should be fed during the dry period depends upon the condition of the cow at the time she is turned dry. Animals that are in fair condition may be properly fitted on a liberal allowance of quality roughage, including pasture, hay and silage. Other cows may require some grain in addition to all the roughage they will eat. A daily grain allowance of six pounds is usually ample. Thus not more than 250 pounds to 350 pounds of grain in addition to one-quarter ton of hay, is needed to put a cow in proper condition.

Figure the cost of 250 to 350 pounds of grain and one-quarter ton of hay and compare it with the value of one ton of milk. The figure proves that a rest period of six to eight weeks along with proper feed and care during the dry period, really pays dividends.

Seed Treatment Proves Good Crop Insurance

Seed treatment is one of the most important phases of crop insurance. Not only can the crops be disease-free, but in most cases freedom from disease results in increased yield. Therefore, the use of high quality treated seed is a big step forward toward success.

Now is the time to make preparation for treating wheat, oats, and barley for smut. There are several materials on the market that, if properly used, will give good results. The first important step is to learn exactly the method recommended. If instructions as to the proper method of treatment are not followed, it is a waste of time and material.

Copper carbonate and mercurial dusts are suitable for the control of seed-borne diseases in a wide range of seeds, because they control a large number of seed-borne diseases besides smut. For this reason they can be used with crops of wheat, oats, barley, beans, and others.

Formaldehyde is still popular with many farmers but this material must be properly applied to give good results. The placing of a teaspoonful of formaldehyde in the top of a sack of grain and then turning the sack upside down for treatment is ineffectual. Formaldehyde when exposed to the air vaporizes as a gas; this gas is heavier than air. The above procedure prevents the formaldehyde from coming in contact with the seed.

Week-Old Calves Can Be Dehorned

Horns, at one time, were a necessary part of a cow's equipment. They were necessary for protection, but under present modern methods of management, cows do not need horns. Horns may be taken off when the calf is a week old without any loss and not too much discomfort to the calf. Do the job of dehorning as soon as the horn button can be found; clip the hair around this tiny bump and place a ring of vaseline on the lower side to prevent any drainage into the eye itself. Roughen the spot gently where the horn is starting with a corn cob or by scraping it. Moisten a stick of caustic potash and rub it on until the skin is a distinct pink. Caution: Use gloves on your hands and let no liquid from the caustic stick get into your eyes or the calf's eyes—it's dangerous.

Repair Now

The "stitch in time" adage applies forcibly to machinery care, according to Ray W. Carpenter of the University of Maryland. He says that an hour at this time of year, when the machinery is in storage, spent in oiling all polished surfaces to prevent rust, repainting bared wood parts, and checking, ordering, and replacing badly worn or broken parts will avoid delays, aggravation, and hours of valuable time when the spring season rush is on.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C. TWO MAN CONTROL There will doubtless be considerable criticism of the executive order setting up the new War Industries board—called, for some prideful reason, "The Office of Production Management." It may be said that two-man control (Knudsen-Hillman) is an administrative abortion, that not enough authority has been delegated and so on and so on.

That criticism will not come from this column which has been yapping for such action for two years. Mr. B. M. Baruch, the father of industrial mobilizations and war industries boards, is also enthusiastic.

I have just been looking up the 1918 documents that set up the War Industries board. The essential one was a simple two-page letter from President Wilson to Mr. Baruch. It is far less explicit than President Roosevelt's executive order and delegates less specific authority. Yet it worked to a marvelous result. It worked because, notwithstanding the supremacy of excellence or the ultimate in sloppiness in drawing up organization charts and orders, success or failure will depend on the ability and fitness of one man.

Regardless of organization charts, "Wherever the MacGregor sits is the head of the table." The principle question is not the curious "law firm" concept of two-headed executive control (Knudsen-Hillman). While a law firm is utterly inappropriate for executive action, the real question is whether or not Bill Knudsen is the MacGregor, as Mr. Baruch demonstrably was. It's all up to Knudsen. He says with some satisfaction that he can now "keep his hat on and spit where he pleases" (which is a quaint combination of the unmelancholy Dane and Uncle Remus) but now let's see whether he will do it. One doubt is that Mr. Hillman is there to tell him at least where he can't spit.

That doesn't trouble me very much. I have worked with Sidney Hillman. The President says he knows them both and isn't worried. I know them better and neither am I worried. Undivided responsibility is better than compromise, but Mr. Hillman is both a realist and a highly educated and intelligent leader. He will obstruct only on the greatest of provocation and the clearest case. On complete analysis, what Mr. Hillman has is no more than a limited veto power. In truth, it is less than that. It is a power to declare a division resulting in an automatic and instantaneous appeal to Caesar who, in the clutch of circumstance, must instantaneously and automatically decide. That would follow anyway if Knudsen were supreme and any such differences arise as would compel Mr. Hillman to make a fight.

AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY The "Captains and the Kings" of the production lines don't need any "talking at" for extreme effort in national defense, at least not in the automobile industry. I was asked by Mr. Knudsen to pinch-hit for him at his long-dated engagement at a convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers. It was supposed to be a "pep talk," a sort of harangue especially urging the farming out of orders, greater co-operation with the airplane industry and the invention of methods to use all idle skilled men and idle machinery.

My prepared talk sounded pretty silly. I arrived in Detroit several hours before I was scheduled to talk. In conversations with old friends in this industry and in press announcements that day, it became apparent that all I was supposed to talk about is being done, was started long ago and is proceeding with all the speed and vigor that is to be expected from this particularly swift and robust industry.

All the large companies are joined up with the big airplane companies to produce parts or engines for airplane assemblies on a scale that is dizzy in its magnitude. There may once have been some mutual rivalry, some fear among the aircraft manufacturers that the automobile people would like to take over their business, some apprehension among the motor folk that airplane work would hamper car production. There is no evidence of anything of that kind now.

The Detroit people are actually taking the lead in combined production and, so far as I can see, holding back nothing. It isn't confined to aircraft production either. These great manufacturing establishments are straining every effort to do whatever the Office of Production Management wants them to do on tanks, shells, guns, cartridge cases, armored cars or whatever else they can fit into their production lines.

They are not haggling about profits or commercial conditions. This confirms at the manufacturing end what I heard at the overhead management end in Washington before I came to Detroit.

In many ways, the extent to which this has gone is astonishing. In our competitive system where combination and joint action by manufacturing concerns is forbidden under heavy penalty by the law, it requires at least some government leadership, if not outright government sanction, for competitors to act together.

Accenting the Width Of a Narrow Room

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ON A Thursday afternoon the south end of a certain dining room was as shown here in the upper sketch. The following Monday it appeared as shown below. Cupboards had been added to display china and give storage space, yet the room actually seemed wider and more spacious than before.

The transformation was made by the handy man with no tools but a hammer, saw and screw driver plus the aid of his willing helper with needle, thread and paint brush. The new curtain treatment, shown in the sketch, made the window seem wider and the strong horizontal lines of the cupboards also helped to create an illusion of width. The cupboards were eight inches deep and made of one-inch lumber with doors of plywood for the lower part.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 are full of other practical ideas for making and hanging curtains. Each book has 32 pages of pictures showing you how to modernize and beautify your home. Send order to:

Crowned Before Born

Shapur II of Persia was the only king who was crowned before birth, the coronation, which consisted of placing the royal circlet on the head of his waiting cradle, taking place three days before he was born in 310, says Collier's.

Inez de Castro of Portugal was the only queen who was crowned after death, the coronation, for which her body was exhumed and set on the throne, taking place two years after she was murdered in 1355.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Publication of Farwell High School

At last, mid-term is over. For many it has been slow, to others it has passed quickly. Many of the students have very good grades; grades that we should all set as our goal each six weeks. Although the school has bought us books, and bought us books, some still can't seem to learn.

Several students have taken up new courses, and some have dropped others. The civics class finished their book and most of them are taking up Texas History. Farm shop is being offered as a half credit subject and several are taking it.

As mid-term comes at the close of the old year, what would be a better New Year's resolution than to resolve to do better in our school for the new year? School can be pleasant if we will only make it so. It is our duty as high school students to set examples for the younger children who will follow our footsteps in a few years. Why not leave a good record behind, for ourselves as well as for the following high school students?

AMATEUR NIGHT

The Lyceum Theater of Clovis, staged an Amateur Contest on the nights of the 14 and 15 of this month, this contest being sponsored by the Fox Drug Co., and the Western Auto Supply store.

There were several acts on the stage, from which the audience selected the winner. Patrons were handed ballots before the show, which were taken up at the end of the show.

There were three piano solos, two tapping acts, and several singing and guitar acts. One was an accordion act, and another act was given by three boys from Texico.

The prizes were: a radio, a $5.00 ticket book, and a $2.50 ticket book. The winners were: Pete Booth, pianist, first; a boy who played the electric guitar, second; and Robert Armstrong, tap-dancer, third.

We are very proud of both our boys, who were good winners. We are just as proud of our girls. Marilyn Anderson and Peggy Williams, who represented Farwell with a tap-dancing number.

The spirit of "good sportsmanship" shown by all the contestants, both winners and losers, is something of which the citizens of Clovis and the surrounding towns should be very proud.

WHAT ABOUT A FUTURE FOR THE STEERS?

About this time of the year someone is always predicting what will happen in the present year. We have fooled around and won only 2 games in the present basketball season. During this time, we have dropped four.

Through my crystal ball, I see a bright future for the Steers. We are a tall bunch of moon-fixers that could be playing over our heads a little (that would be pretty high), who have possibilities of winning a state championship.

We could put a team on the floor that would average a good six-one; and, besides that, we have shorter players that show plenty of speed.

This being my first attempt at predicting anything, I may be a flop; but I, at least, predict a county championship-to-be turned out at Farwell at the end of the season.

WHO'S WHO IN SENIOR CLASS

The who's who this time has long, dark brown hair, and blue eyes. She is about 5 feet 3 inches tall. She has attended Farwell school since she was in the first grade. She is treasurer of the Senior class and plays on the basketball team. This girl is also talented with a good voice and as a pianist. She is among the high ranking students in the class.

The last week's Who's Who was Alice Mae McCoy.

BIOLOGY

In our second semester Biology, now underway, we are having to start off on the Study of Plant Life of the World. We write notes and draw the entire class period.

HOME EC II

The Home Economics II-A class has begun the study of clothing, expense budgets, and clothing inventories.

This week they are keeping a time schedule of everything they do, and every move they make. The girls had to inquire of someone that was keeping a budget, about what they kept in it, and the form used.

They have started preparing for the County Teachers Association banquet now.

They seem to find this work very interesting.

COMMERCIAL LAW COURSE

The new course in Commercial

Law, taught by Mr. Conger, is taking on shape, especially since the new books for it have come. Several students are taking it for their extra 1/2 point, and since they are in the class, they have decided that they are going to get more real information than they had realized that they did not know. It is an interesting course, as it is such a timely one, and everyone has begun to enjoy it.

—FHS—

BASKETBALL

All that could be heard Wednesday morning, Jan. 15, was of the Farwell victory over Bovina Tuesday night. It was reported one of the best games of the year. The girls lost to Bovina with a score of 12-13. The boys won 41-34.

LIBRARY NEWS

The new books, mentioned in a previous issue of the paper, are having quite a good deal of popularity. When a reader wants a certain book he has almost to grab for it. The most popular books are those written by Richard Haliburton and Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings. "Bob Gordon, Cub Reporter" is also a very interesting book. The students are enjoying the books very much.

ENGLISH CLASSES

The English classes change from Literature to Grammar and Composition, or vice versa, at the beginning of the new semester, usually. The Seniors are trying now to learn what makes an argument, and are finding that just their own opinions do not always count, unless they can prove what they believe by giving some real facts.

The Juniors are beginning to get acquainted with American short stories, some of which they like and some of which they dislike, of course; but it is a different kind of work from the grammar they have been studying.

The Sophomores have only recently begun to get acquainted with that venerable old gentleman, Silas Marner, so they are not yet taking up the necessary grammar, which will soon be their portion.

The Freshmen are also beginning their literature course, which they are hoping will prove easier to understand than the course they have just finished in grammar.

SIXTH AND SEVENTH

The sixth grade is proud to say they have two new pupils, both boys, T. J. Coston from Dora, New Mexico; and Gaston Landrum, from West Camp. Gilbert Blake returned to the seventh grade, Monday, Bobby Jack Barlow has moved to Bovina.

BANQUET DATE SET

The date for the "Father and Son" banquet has been set a month ahead. It will be held Tuesday, February 21, if nothing prevents. We hope many fathers will attend, to find out more about the work in which their sons are interested.

WEST CAMP

The West Camp baseball team went to YL, Thursday, January 16. The boys put up a good fight, but were defeated. The girls also played, and won.

HOME-KILLED MEATS

COLLEGE STATION—While there are thousands of Texas farm and ranch families with access to cold storage and freezer lockers, there still remain thousands more who must wait until cold weather sets in before they have home-killed meat for the table.

Variety in preparation, even of the same food, keeps appetites keen, so farm and ranch families should plan for all possible ways of preserving their meat, says Grace I. Neely, specialist in food preservation for the A. & M. College Extension Service.

She suggests curing hams and bacon and storing them in cotton seed oil; making a generous supply of sausage—canning some, freezing some or curing some, according to the family's preference; making pickled pigs feet and head cheese, and canning or freezing pork roasts.

The loin, sometimes called the choice cut of any animal, can be cured and made into Canadian bacon. Or it can be canned for roasts or frozen for pork chops, the specialist says.

Beef can be preserved in as many different and interesting ways as pork. Just now, chili seems to be one of the most popular canned beef products in Texas. Chili made from goat meat is also winning favor, as evidenced by orders for over 2,000 cans of chevon chili to be shipped to eastern states this year by home demonstration club women in Menard County.

Information on canning, curing, or freezing of meats can be obtained from the A. & M. College Extension Service at College Station.

Trail Blazers to the Sea

The Louisiana Purchase in 1803 added more than a million square miles to the United States. After securing an appropriation from Congress to explore the vast territory, President Thomas Jefferson chose Captains Meriwether Lewis and William Clark to lead the expedition.

Starting up the Missouri River near St. Louis in May, 1804, they returned in September, 1806. Not only had they found a land route to the Pacific and located a river flowing to the sea, but they had transferred the western boundary of the United States to the Pacific Coast.

Lewis and Clark were the trail-blazers who opened up this vast new territory holding so much of promise for the future of the country.

There are trail-blazers in industry today. In the telephone service they are not only the men who build the lines over mountains, deserts and plains, but the trail-blazers in science in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, ever seeking better ways to do the job.

Keeping the nation's channels of communication open twenty-four hours a day is the job of your telephone company... a responsibility it shoulders eagerly. Whether it may be a local emergency or one of national defense, telephone men and women are ready.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Just how far Dr. Arnulfo Arias, new president of Panama, will co-operate with the U. S. A. in defending the Canal Zone has been a topic of considerable argument in the last several weeks, some of it out in the open. Several correspondents have flicked the president with charges of Fascist leanings and have quoted him as saying that any grants for naval bases would not of necessity be limited to the United States. Not necessarily as a riposte to these thrusts, he now pledges co-operation with his northern neighbor, but makes certain qualifications. He proposes to abandon no sovereignty and demands "understanding and unselfishness from the United States." Which seems fair enough at this distance.

President Arias, son of a wealthy cattle-raiser, attended Hartwick college, Oneonta, N. Y., took a bachelor of science degree at the University of Chicago, and a medical degree at Harvard. He began practice as a surgeon, but was diverted to politics in 1931, being in the diplomatic service at Paris and Rome. At the age of 39, he is the youngest chief executive in Latin-America.

One cause of much pulling and hauling over the president's political leanings was the new constitution which he promulgated within 17 days of his election last fall. It withdrew citizenship from about 90,000 non-Spanish speaking Panamanians, many from the West Indies, and left them without a country. It extended the powers of the state in the expropriation of property; and the president, in decreeing its adoption, said it would provide "state socialism consonant with social movements." This take-off, with many later references to a "disciplined people" stirred, possibly irresponsible, talk of foreign derivation of the new constitution.

Good-looking, handsomely tailored, a facile orator, Dr. Arias was elected by the largest majority ever given a Panamanian president. Washington has shown no official concern over the liberal and left charges of doubtful allegiance.

JOHN P. FREY, president of the metal trades department of the A. F. of L., announces the "no strike" and full co-operation policy of his organization in the national defense effort. Chief Is Firm for Labor Status Quo Mr. Frey, one of the most eminent of the elder statesmen of the labor movement, is, like Ernest Bevin of England, a staunch conservative who has cracked down on the left-wingers and has singled out radicals, rather than employers as the most dangerous foes of labor.

When the C. I. O. was established he raked John L. Lewis as "a tool of Moscow" and never ceased firing until Mr. Lewis' withdrawal. It is understood that his animus is considerably less toward Philip Murray, Mr. Lewis' successor, and the more optimistic among labor critics and onlookers see hope of peace, under the unifying stress of the defense call. Mr. Frey has great influence in the A. F. of L. and his metal trade workers, nearly a million of them, are in a key spot.

White-haired, baldish, clerical in appearance, facile in speech and a ready writer and controversialist, Mr. Frey is a veteran joustier in many wordy tournaments in which he has expounded the old-line Sam Gompers gospel of labor paddling its own canoe and not getting caught in any errant political or intellectual drifts.

Gompers repeatedly warned labor to fight shy of governmental entanglements, and Mr. Frey has carried on from where he left off. This drive has brought him into some violent collisions with the New Deal labor program. He has vigorously assailed the Labor Relations board and the wages and hours act.

Mr. Frey has been known as a "labor educator" for many years. Among the half-dozen books and scores of labor tracts and pamphlets that he has written, there is only one that deviates from orthodox conservative opinion, "Bankers' Domination," written in 1933 and charging the depression to the bankers. He is 70 years old. He was editor of the Molders' Journal from 1903 to 1927. He has lectured on trade unionism at the University of Chicago, and was president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor from 1924 to 1928.

Suede Apparel Is at New High In Both Chic and Wearableness

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL over the country stores that set the fashion pace are displaying new and intriguing suede garments and accessories in tempting array. Modern science has performed miracles in leather processing until suedes nowadays are as supple and workable as any fabric, and their colors are incredibly beautiful.

Suede is comfortably wearable at any season of the year, but for mid-season and early spring it is simply ideal. Light in weight yet dependably protective, no wonder that suede has become the "darling" of fashion. Women are coming to know more and more that there is no type of garment that fits better into all year-round wear than beautiful soft suede with its persuasive colors and its caressing "feel."

There's luxury, there's chic, there's practicality in a coat with turban, gloves and bag made all of suede as worn by Dorothy Lamour (to left in the picture). One cannot do justice to the superb coloring of the new suede costumes in mere words. In this instance the coat shown is of stone blue (smartly in fashion this season). Note the interesting double belt treatment. The turban, gloves and bag are in luscious wine red. Yes indeed, leather is a fashion favorite in Hollywood.

Can you imagine anything more appealing for town wear than a dress of wine-berry colored suede with a long suede coat in identical color? Positively brainstorming both to the observed and the observer especially when accompanied with beret, envelope bag and gloves done in a lighter tone of red, is the ensemble pictured to the right in the trio. She carries the coat over her arm, as you see.

Ardent golfers count their suede two piece suits as shown centered in the picture among favorite sport ensembles. The skirt of this most attractive outfit is in chartreuse, gored to give plenty of freedom. It is worn with a loose fitting jacket of burnt orange suede with buttons high at the neckline. To keep her curls in place this athletic young modern wears a suede flower "beanie" in the bright chartreuse.

Other fetching leather novelties include nail studded boleros and belts that show a decided trend toward the Western theme. Waist-length sleeveless jackets with bright bindings and a touch of embroidery are inspired by the South American vests. Jerkins in unlimited style variations, side-buttoned and in bright colors, are grand for wear with skirts, suits or slacks and over countless dresses. Waistcoats with suede fronts, knitted back and sleeves and casual collarless cardigans with slide closings are stressed with matching or contrasting tweed skirts.

Classic one-piece suede dresses button down neckline to waist or feature the slide fastener fly-front closing. Boxy knuckle or slightly longer coats are important as well as the mannish notched collar model with three patch pockets. Stunning two-piece suede suits with fitted jackets are extremely smart. Long coats range from the bulky belted country coat to the dress-maker type for avenue wear.

"Beanies" and drawstring mittens or the new "sockem mit" in colors are suede "finds" for the college girl. Snapprim suede classics and berets are still favorites. A new Pixie cap has been designed for winter sportswear.

Clever sportsy leather jewelry is new looking with tweed suits and sports clothes. Fringed and saddle-stitched collars and gauntlets reflect the cowboy influence.

Glitter Accents

Nothing glitters like a diamond! This pretty girl with vanity mirror in hand is examining her unusual diamond clips. One clip is a lotus blossom, the other the lotus leaves. Clips that take apart make interesting news. In the picture this young modern wears her clips separately, with striped jersey jacket and cap to match in keeping with the new vogue for dramatic jewels with simple dress. On her evening gown she will wear them together to form a complete jeweled flower. Her bracelet is in the new diamond "lace" design, like a band of lace with invisible closing. And she is a bride! Her ring finger wears one of the new oblong solitaires and the narrowest possible diamond band.

Gas Mask Filter Used in Footwear

A gas mask and a woman's shoes are two very different themes we admit and it has been left to science to relate them. And here's how! Since the war and the necessity for personal protection came experiments and improvements on the gas mask of 1914-1918. Inventors took old gas masks apart, put new ones together, substituting, adding and perfecting with the result a new filter has been developed.

Since then it has been discovered that when specially treated this filter was found to have the qualities which make an ideal medium for innersoles. So now you can get shoes, by making known your wants to your salesperson, with "insolated" innersoles that actually do relieve "burning feet," the ailment generally conceded to be the cause of foot fatigue and the many foot ills following it.

Something that would establish a normal foot temperature would accomplish the cure, doctors said, and onco-insolated does just that. This new comfort-giving sole which newest smartly styled shoes have also acts as a shock absorber and is molded with first wearing to the individual contours of the foot.

The fact that insulation is put to good use in shoe as well as gas mask construction is just one more indication of American ingenuity. It gives us one more reason for being glad to be Americans in that our women are buying shoes for the protection of feet instead of gas masks for the protection of life.

URGENT

Bill Smith, who kept the village store, went one day to a big town some distance away and ordered a supply of goods to be delivered immediately. The rest of his business took a long time, and the goods arrived before he did.

Mrs. Smith, worried at her husband's long absence, took in the packing case and resumed an anxious watch for his return. Then she turned for another look at the case and her eyes fell on the label. She uttered a shrill scream, then, snatching up a hatchet, feverishly attacked the box.

For in large print on the label were the words: "Bill Inside."

"It don't make a single bit of difference about them clocks. The train goes at four-ten, no matter what," he said.

"If you are going to live in this country and enjoy the privileges of working here, you've got to sacrifice whatever is necessary." The above quotation sent a thrill up and down our spine the other day. It came from a young business man in Dallas who was drawing $10,000 per year, yet was giving up his position to take his place in the selective service. He is connected with the largest and most exclusive mercantile business in the Southwest. He is an authority in his own field, which is far from national defense, and which might seem to many to be a luxury. This young man is not asking for deferred classification. His firm is not asking for deferment of this young executive. He is going to take his place in the rank of 900,000 young men who will learn how to operate trucks, tanks, machine guns and other emblems of death and destruction. Many young men with $25 per week jobs are trying to secure exemption because they are considered "key" men. It is refreshing to find a man like the Dallas executive who thinks more of his country than he does his personal welfare.—Canyon News.

FARM SECURITY NEWS

Farmers in Parmer County who will need operating funds in 1941 and who can not get adequate credit elsewhere, should make application to the Farm Security Administration immediately, according to Frank Seale, county FSA supervisor.

Funds in the form of loans are available to qualified farmers for the purchase of feed, seed, tools, livestock, and other equipment necessary to carry on farming operations.

"The Farm Security Administration," Mr. Seale said, "was created to help needy and low-income farm families and we invite the farm operators in Parmer County to come in and discuss their problems with us. We may be able to help them."

Mr. Seale explains that his agency has a number of programs designed to help troubled farm families in addition to that of making rehabilitation loans to individual farmers. Among those mentioned by Mr. Seale were loans for community services, farm debt adjustment services and tenure improvement.

"Community service loans," Mr. Seale said, "will be made by the FSA to groups of qualified farmers to buy tractors, combines, pure-bred sires, feed grinders, veterinary services and many other services and facilities which a single farmer could not afford alone."

"For farmers in Parmer County who are overburdened with old debts, the FSA offers help to have the debts to their ability to pay. This service is available without cost to all farmers, whether or not they take part in other phases of this agency's program."

Mr. Seale explained that a local farm debt adjustment committee meets with the debtor and his creditors for a discussion of their mutual problems. These meetings often result in an agreement for extending the time of payment, reducing interest rates, scaling down the debt, or refinancing part of it through an FSA rehabilitation loan. In this way, the farmer is saved from foreclosure, and the creditors get substantial payments on what might otherwise have been bad debts.

In an effort to conserve and build up the soil in this county, and to assist landlords and tenants improve the tenancy system, the Farm Security Administration is encouraging better leasing arrangements.

Mr. Seale said that emphasis is placed on long-term or renewable contracts and on agreements which will encourage the tenant to protect the soil and improve the property. Flexible farm-lease forms are obtainable free at the FSA office and the personnel will be glad to assist in drawing them up for the landlords and tenants.

"I feel certain there are many farmers and landlords in Parmer County who need the services of this agency," Mr. Seale said, "and I wish to issue an invitation to everyone to visit our office in the Parmer county court house and give us a chance to be of help."

"The Farm Security Administration," he concluded, "is a part of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is maintained by and for the people of this country, and we want to help all farm families who need help."

Approximately 335,000 pounds of Texas mohair were graded last spring compared with 200,000 lbs. in the fall of 1939 when the grading program began.

More Cotton Goods But Less Acreage

COLLEGE STATION—Texas farmers are expected to take full advantage of the supplementary cotton program which will compensate cotton farmers for voluntary reduction of cotton acreage below the 1941 national acreage allotment, by providing them with cotton stamps for the purchase of cotton goods.

Commenting on the supplementary program announced Monday in Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, George A. Slaughter, chairman of the state Triple-A committee pointed out that for the past several years Texas farmers have not planted up to the total allotment for the state.

The supplemental program is expected to bring about a reduction in 1941 cotton production of around 1,000,000 bales, and at the same time help reduce further the government's holdings of the cotton surplus, which now amounts to nearly 12,000,000 bales. "Basic conservation and parity programs already in effect under the AAA will be in no way changed by the new voluntary program," Slaughter said.

Administering the program will be a responsibility of the Triple-A and the Surplus Marketing Administration will provide and redeem up to 25 million dollars worth of cotton stamps which farmers will receive for their voluntary reduction below their individual allotments. In cooperation, the Extension Service of A. & M. College will carry on an intensive educational program to help cotton producers obtain the greatest benefit from the provisions, according to H. H. Williamson, Extension Service director.

Farmers will receive stamps for planting less than their 1941 allotments or their 1940 measured acreage, whichever is lower, at the rate of 10 cents a pound times the normal yield of the underplanted acreage, up to $25 per family in the case of sharecroppers, tenants, and owner-operators. The new program is to be accomplished by an intensive campaign to encourage improved living standards through more gardens and food and feed production for home consumption.

Health Notes

By Texas Department of Health

AUSTIN—An appeal for the immediate mobilization of Texas citizens in a united health front against venereal disease, the most serious threat to the health and morale of the armed forces and defense industrial workers, was made today by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer.

The need for intensified civilian activity to stamp out venereal diseases during peace-time preparedness will be emphasized on Fifth National Social Hygiene Day, February 15, 1941, throughout America. Over five thousand communities will stage observances of Social Hygiene Day, the 1941 theme of which is "Social Hygiene and National Defense." Cooperating groups include federal, state, and local health authorities, religious, educational, and welfare organizations.

"We must realize that the nation's defense is of necessity based on a healthy population," Dr. Cox emphasized. "America's armed forces can be fully effective if protected against syphilis, Public Health Enemy Number 1, and its partner plague, gonorrhea. This same health protection is needed by civilians, especially those in key defense industrial work."

Dr. Cox stressed the fact that vigilant control measures kept venereal infections low and made the American Army "the cleanest in the world" during World War I. In spite of these precautions, however, a total of 6,804,818 man-days were lost on account of syphilis and gonorrhea.

"The State Health Department feels that National Social Hygiene Day focuses attention on the many problems attendant to venereal disease control in Texas. For this reason we are pleased to cooperate with the other national, state, and local organizations sponsoring the programs over Texas."

"The concentration of troops in many areas of Texas makes National Social Hygiene Day of even greater import to certain of our communities. We strongly urge that interested citizens of these towns consider legal, medical, educational, and protective measures which can be enlisted to protect the military population from the hazards of venereal disease, together with plans for providing healthful recreation for members of the armed forces when on leave in their vicinity," Dr. Cox concluded.

Andrew Jackson was the first territorial governor of Florida.

OUTLOOK FOR WHEAT

COLLEGE STATION—Strength shown in the wheat market in the closing months of 1940 seems to have been due to the limited supply in commercial channels rather than to any favorable underlying causes. Wheat remaining outside commercial channels went into loan stocks.

W. E. Morgan, Extension Service economist for Texas A. & M. College, says domestic consumption of the 1940 crop, plus the limited exports in prospect for 1941, will leave about 375,000,000 bushels in the carryover next July 1. New crop supplies, however, may be about normal. Acreage in the United States will be about the same as last year's, and if this condition holds in foreign wheat-producing areas and yields are normal, or nearly so, world wheat prices will continue depressed, the economist believes. Only if world supplies are short in 1941 will world wheat prices be expected to rise above the bottom set by the loan.

Even in that event, the dislocations in export trade arising out of the war give a gloomy cast to the picture.

The Texas petroleum industry alone now pays 45 per cent of all state taxes, exclusive of sales taxes such as gasoline taxes which are paid by the consumer.

Softball, originally called indoor baseball, originated in 1887.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

Annie returned and announced Senator Groesbeck.

"Alone?" Miss Agatha asked and the wistfulness in her voice hurt me. "Then I'll see him in the living room, Annie."

The maid pushed the wheel chair down the hall. I sat at the desk and strove to set down on paper, after Miss Agatha's prescription, my own outline of the Morello mystery. I found it hard, for each item bore innumerable streamers of surmise and suspicion. I do not know how long Allegra had been standing in the doorway when I looked up.

I rose clumsily. She was still pale but she seemed more tired now than angry. There was a droop to her shoulders and I cursed myself for feeling pitiful. She said at last: "You make it just as hard as possible, don't you?"

A few hours earlier she had pointed out the abyss that lay between her and me. I had sworn then never to strive to rebridge it. Sense still assured me that it was best for her to remain on her side and I on mine. Hunger for her, desire to aid her were checked by memory of my recent, adolescent idiocy. It hurts to have even a silly dream kicked apart. I said:

"I beg your pardon."
"You heard me."
I made no reply. She went on, like a child reciting a lesson:

"If I've misjudged you, I'm sorry."
"Miss Paget," I told her, "I misjudged you—and am even sorer."
"I came in here," she told me, "to apologize because Agatha thought I should."

She might have been talking to the butler. There was no call for her to put me in my place. I was there already and had sworn not to leave it again. I said:

"That seems to me about the worst reason in the world."

Again she apparently hoped for something in my face that was not there. She muttered:

"You make it very hard."
She was just a kid after all. Which was still another reason why things should stay as they were. So I said:

"You said that before—which leaves us just where we started."
"Do you want to leave it there?" she asked directly, and I forced myself to answer:

"Why not?"

There was a stir in the hall and the sound of voices. I did not know whether I was relieved or desolate when she left. Senator Groesbeck, now sleek and pompous, passed the doorway. Miss Agatha trundled herself into the room.

"What was Allegra doing in here she asked."

"Apologizing," I said.

She gave me one of the looks that made me feel she was counting my vertebrae and then said, "Hah!" in an odd tone. Thereafter, her mind dwelt on other matters.

"I wish," she complained, "that I hadn't so respectable an attorney. I need a scoundrel who'll help an idiot who won't help himself."

"As bad as that?" I asked.

She nodded and lighted a cigarette.

"Grove," she said, "is being held as a material witness. He still won't talk, so they're going to take him before the grand jury presently. If he doesn't talk then, he'll be indicted."

Her brisk voice was armor that, I know, hid great distress. She brooded a minute, while I groped for words and then asked:

"Where's the typewriter?"
"You said," I told her, "that it was in the storeroom."
"Why didn't you get it?"

"Miss Agatha," I asked, "can you imagine Higgins letting me rummage through a basement storeroom without a writ of mandamus, a habeas corpus and a strong-arm squad?"

The lines of worry in her face slackened and she chuckled.

"No," she admitted. "I'm an old fool, David, but just the least bit bedeviled today. We'll go down together."

I trundled her into the hall and rang for the elevator. She said nothing till the car appeared, but the grim lines had deepened again on her face and I knew she was eating her heart out for her nephew. Hoyt took us down. I could see his ears pricked for tidings, but we did not speak. I had propelled Miss Agatha into the basement hall. A wan light burned there and the air was heavy with the familiar smell of lime and coal gas and cabbage for the Higgins' dinners, past and present. Miss Agatha dug in her handbag and chose a key from a ring.

Along one side of the basement hall was a series of iron doors, with gaps at lintel and threshold for ventilation. They guarded the cubbies that served as attics for tenants of the Morello. It was against one of these that I had reeled during my dark struggle with the intruder. I thought, as I fumbled with the lock, how brief a space by actual measurement, yet how long ago, that had been. Perhaps if I had been less clumsy that night, I might have ended the mystery. I might have saved innocent folk much danger and distress. The smell and gloom of the basement allied themselves with memory to tighten my nerves so that

I flinched when Miss Agatha said impatiently:

"Can't you do it?"

She rolled forward to take the key. It turned as she moved and I pulled the door open before her advancing chair.

"There it is," Miss Agatha said, "over—"

Her voice died. The harsh sound of her indrawn breath set my neck to prickling. The light of the ceiling bulb poured into the maw of the storeroom. It shone upon something at Miss Agatha's feet at which she stared, at which I gaped, first stupidly, then in frantic disbelief. I bent forward.

"Careful," Miss Agatha warned in a dry whisper. "Don't touch it."

CHAPTER XVIII

Wind boomed in the elevator shaft and I heard the whine and catch of a car shifting gears in the street. The rest of my mind had stalled under its sudden load. Close to my ear Miss Agatha's breath came and went quickly. So we remained for a palsied instant, watching the object on the storeroom floor.

It lay just within the ventilation space at the iron door's base—a bizarre item for a spinster's storeroom, yet, in itself, nothing to wake dread. It was a knife with a black leather handle and a worn gray blade, streaked with what might have been rust. We both knew whence it had come.

"I came in here," she told me, "to apologize."

It was the knife that had hung in the sheath they had found on Blackbeard's murdered body. It had been driven into its owner's heart. It had uttered the flat sound of smitten metal when it had fallen during my struggle in the basement, to lodge inside the door of the Paget storeroom.

I bent over it again. Miss Agatha made no further protest as I picked it up by its point, swathed it loosely in my handkerchief, and rose. Her eyes met mine and asked a question. I feared to answer. I heard myself say:

"We had better go upstairs."

She nodded. I placed the handkerchief-wrapped knife in her lap and trundled her to the elevator shaft. We were silent on our upward journey. In the work-room, I picked up the muffled weapon carefully and laid it on the desk. Then I faced Miss Agatha.

It was hard to ask the question. The knife had killed; it might kill again. It was the link between the murdered and the murderer. My voice was hoarse:

"What shall we do, now?"

She blinked. Her speech was calm as her face:

"I think we had better telephone Captain Shannon."

I said:

"There may be no one's fingerprints on that knife. There may be—anybody's."

I could not speak her nephew's name, but she understood.

"Call Captain Shannon," she said, and there was a lump in my throat as I obeyed. I spoke only briefly, asking the Homicide Bureau chief to come at once with a fingerprint man; then hung up on his further questioning. The receiver clattered as my shaking hand restored it. Miss Agatha said:

"We both need a drink," and rang for Annie.

I nursed the liquor I would willingly have gulped. Miss Agatha sipped hers and at last spoke part of her thought aloud:

"This was what you heard fall, that night in the basement, but how—why—I don't see—" flat. I object less to that, David, than to the knowledge that he is laughing at us now. I never have liked to be laughed at. It's been my legs, I suppose. Heavens, our assembled brains should be as good as his. If only we could find a flaw, a weakness."

She drank again and then went on:

"Everything radiates from Lyon Ferriter, but none of it reaches back to him."

A thought pricked me and some of the jumble of fact fell into coherent pattern.

"That's why," I blurted, "Lyon tried to kill me; that's why my room was searched. He thought I had found that knife. His own fingerprints must be on it."

"They won't be," Miss Agatha promised grimly. We were still for a moment. Then she said:

"Day after tomorrow is Grove's birthday."

Her voice was so bare of sentiment that it was piteous. The day when Grove attained his inheritance, the day toward which, all his life, she had steered her foster son, would find him in disgrace and danger, unless—

I jumped at the telephone's ring. Could Shannon have arrived so soon?

"Answer it," Miss Agatha bade and her voice quavered a little.

I obeyed and was ashamed of my own agitation.

Jerry Cochrane drawled:

"Dave, I want to see you. I've got hold of something a bit interesting, my laddie. Where can you meet me?"

He slipped away from further questions. It was too important to discuss over the house telephone, he said, and for like reason I forbore to tell what we had found. At last I clapped my hand over the mouthpiece and said to Miss Agatha:

"It's Cochrane. He sounds so sleepy, I know he's excited. May he come here?"

At once she refused and then, to my amazement, gave way before my arguments. I pleaded that it might be important before Shannon came, to learn what Cochrane had discovered. I said we needed the alliance of Jerry's quick mind. Miss Agatha consented at last:

"Have him come, David. You're very stubborn and I—I imagine I'm getting old."

I bade Cochrane hasten and hung up as Miss Agatha said:

"Allegra, my dear, will you tell the hall force that Mr. Cochrane is to be admitted?"

The fur collar of the girl's cloak softened her face and the February wind had lent it color. Her aunt told her dryly and briefly of our discovery. Allegra glanced past me at the swathed weapon on the desk. Then a thought startled her.

"Agatha. You've sent for the police. And no one knows whose fingerprints may be on that knife. Even—"

"Even Grove's," her aunt completed in a level voice. "Yes, my dear. I'm not a Roman matron, but I have a respect for law. If they are there—"

Allegra had stepped quickly toward the desk. I knew her purpose and moved between her and the knife.

"They aren't your brother's," I told her. "He was here when that knife was lost."

Anger lighted her eyes but her face went white.

"If you think," she said in a taut voice, "I'm going to let my brother's life be juggled about because a spy has hoodwinked an old woman—"

Miss Agatha's quiet speech stilled her.

"I'm not too old, Allegra," she said, "to be obeyed in my own house. Will you tell the hall force to admit Mr. Cochrane, or shall I?"

I saw what was coming. The girl's face seemed to break apart into quivering fragments. Her voice shook with ghastly mirth.

"I won't. It can't be happening. It's a funny, hideous—"

I said sharply.

CHRIST'S CONCERN FOR THE LOST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Lost! What fear and disquietude grips our hearts when we hear that word! A little boy strays away into the forest, and the whole countryside gives up its work to go and seek him. An airship fails to reach its destination, and hundreds of ships go to seek after it, while an entire nation waits in suspense. A ship is lost at sea, and the whole world grieves.

But listen! It is only when applied to the spiritual life that the word "lost" finds its real depth of meaning. To be "without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12) and without hope—that is to really be lost. Yet parents who would not rest a moment while their child was physically lost go on without concern over his spiritual condition.

Our Lord had no such unconcern. He was deeply moved over the lost condition of men; He came "to seek and to save that which was lost." The two parables of our lesson teach us three truths.

I. Lost and Lamented (vv. 1-4, 8). The publicans and sinners recognized their need of a Saviour and He, knowing their lost condition, received them, much to the disgust of the Pharisees and scribes who felt no need to be saved. They have their descendants in our churches today.

The good shepherd cannot rest while one of the sheep is lost. Though "there were ninety and nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold," he sought the lost one. His grief-stricken heart compelled him to go out into the night to find him.

One wonders how we who profess to follow Christ, the Good Shepherd, can be so complacent about the lost. What if we do have the ninety and nine in church—where is the lost one? Even if we do have a large Sunday School class—where are the boys and girls who are lost? Do our hearts grieve over them? If so, we will go and seek them. We who would quickly join the woman in seeking for her coin—will we join the Saviour in seeking the lost?

II. Sought by Sacrifice (vv. 4, 8, 10). The woman laid aside her usual duties and the pleasures of life to seek her coin. The shepherd left the warmth, the comfort, and the rest which he had earned to go out into the wilderness to seek his sheep.

"But none of the ransomed ever knew how deep were the waters crossed; Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed through Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

Soul-winning calls for sacrifice. If the love of Christ constrains us, we will do it gladly, but if the self-seeking, comfort-loving spirit of this age controls our lives, we will always find some excuse (not a reason, but an excuse).

III. Restored With Rejoicing (vv. 5-7, 9, 10). The lost coin back in the owner's hand brought joy to her and her neighbors. The shepherd calls in friends and neighbors to rejoice over the restored sheep. How intensely human that is, and how altogether appropriate.

The great truth, however, is found in verses 7 and 10, where we learn that the repentance of one sinner sets even the bells of heaven ringing as the angels of God rejoice.

How long is it, my Christian friend, since you caused such joy by permitting yourself to be used of God in winning a soul? Yes, I know that it is God who seeks, but He uses human beings as His messengers, as His seekers. That is our first business after we ourselves have been saved.

Our lesson will not be complete unless we consider the rest of the chapter—the parable of the prodigal son. In its main points it is like the other two parables, but there is this vital difference—the shepherd sought his sheep, the woman searched for her coin—the father did not seek the son; the son sought the father.

Some prodigal, far from the house of his heavenly Father, may read these lines and say, "I wish someone would seek me out and bring me to God." But, my friend, you need not wait for anyone. Do as the prodigal did—"arise and go" to God. He is waiting for you; His love has never faltered; He wants you to come now. Make His heart rejoice, and set the choirs of heaven singing, by coming to Him by faith—just now.

As Ye Go, Preach

And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.—Matthew X, 7-8.

FARM BUREAU CHIEF CHIDES ROOSEVELT

The President's chat with Ed O'Neal, soft-spoken head of the American Farm Bureau federation, was not as harmonious as the impression given when he emerged beaming from the White House.

On foreign policy the two men saw eye to eye, but it was quite different on the farm question. O'Neal bluntly chided Roosevelt for not giving more consideration to agricultural interests in the defense program.

"We've been hearing how business will prosper and the rights of labor will be protected," O'Neal said. "You've had plenty to say about this in your speeches, but you've been silent on the farm question as related to national defense."

"Maybe that's because I have no complaint against the farmers," said Roosevelt, in effect.

"Well, we have a complaint against you," shot back O'Neal, with no trace of jocularity. "All this bickering and indecision in congress about farm legislation to be submitted at this session is due chiefly to the administration's failure to agree on steps that should be taken."

O'Neal had no real success in urging on the President the Farm Bureau's plan for government loans up to 85 per cent of parity on basic crops to keep production up to demand. (Parity loans now range from 52 to 75 per cent.)

Acreeage control benefits, plus the loan guarantee, he contended, would enable farmers to get full parity, while "dumping" on government warehouses of cotton and wheat surpluses could be stopped by the imposition of penalties for overproduction.

This plan was a compromise, O'Neal told Roosevelt, between the present loan program and the processing (sales) tax proposal of the Republican-backed income certificate plan.

Roosevelt agreed that farm prices would have to be jacked up and production restricted, but demurred at appropriating more funds for parity loans. He argued that the vast defense expenditures would boost crop prices automatically. But this line of reasoning did not persuade O'Neal.

"Mr. President," he said with a grin, "I'm telling you now that we're going to demand full parity from this congress. Our convention in Baltimore approved the plan I have outlined to you and we won't rest until we get it."

U. S. FAR BEHIND EUROPE IN PLANES' PROTECTIVE ARMOR
One hushed-up sore spot in the dragging plane program is in armor protection—a field that, like so many other aviation developments, originated in the United States but was left to others to exploit.

Armor-plate protection for fighting planes first saw the light of day in the Nicaraguan campaign against the rebel General Sandino during the Coolidge administration. To protect themselves against snipers lurking in the jungle, marine corps pilots equipped the undersides of their ships with makeshift armor guards.

Although crude, this protection saved more than one pilot's life. But beyond this start, the army and navy did almost nothing. And it remained for the alert Nazis to develop the idea, just as they did the Stuka dive bombers which originated with the U. S. navy. As a result Nazi planes are among the best protected in the world.

Simultaneously, the Nazis began increasing the caliber of their airplane guns in order to offset enemy armor plating. Belatedly England turned to armor protection and heavier guns, but we did nothing regarding armor and very little regarding guns—until recently.

As a result, the United States is now up against a double bottleneck. One is limited technical experience on how to armor planes without diminishing speed and maneuverability. Two is lack of plant facilities to produce a light-weight, bullet resistant armor.

BRONZE KINGFISH

Huey Long has returned to the halls of congress.

A seven-foot bronze statue of the late "Kingfish" has been placed in Statuary hall of the Capitol between two other noted figures, William Jennings Bryan and the elder Sen. Robert M. LaFollette. Long's statue is covered with an American flag and will be formally unveiled at a ceremony sometime this month.

The work of Charles Keck, Brooklyn sculptor, the statue took several years to complete and cost $15,000.

American Food Service Baffles Spanish Refugee

"You Americans make things so hard," says Conchita Genoves, Spanish refugee at Texas State College for Women, as she sits down to eat and is confused at finding meat and vegetables on the same plate. In Spain only one item of food is served at a time. One does not have to think—"will I eat this first or that?" An exchange student recently enrolled at TSCW, Conchita was forced to flee Spain last February with her mother and two brothers, who are now in Mexico. Her father is still a political prisoner in Spain.

COLD STORAGE LOCKER PLANTS

Better living on the farm, greater use of home grown meats, vegetables and fruits, substantial savings in living costs, an increased market for farm produce to town people... these are some of the results reported from the use of refrigerated food lockers. As a result, one of the liveliest topics of conversation among farm people today is food lockers. Land use planning committees, boards of directors for cooperatives, and other groups are studying locker systems from various angles.

The first modern locker plant in Texas was constructed at Plainview, in February, 1938. This system is operated as a department of the cooperative creamery which has been operating successfully for some thirteen years. The first unit consisted of 250 lockers, and it was later found necessary to build an additional 250 storage unit.

Some locker plants are connected with cooperative gins, poultry cooperatives, grain elevators, or other farmer-owned enterprises. Some are operated as a private business.

There are many advantages in having a locker plant owned by the people who use them. If the lockers are owned by the farmers, additional service features may be added as they are needed or as finances are available. Any saving which the group can make may be used for increasing the service, lowering locker rentals, or both.

The science of freezing foods has received a very thorough study by the Department of Agriculture, and agricultural colleges. Foods are now frozen and preserved for long periods of time. They retain their natural color and flavor to better advantage than any other method of preserving.

The opportunity of serving fresh fruits and vegetables at any season of the year appeals to the average housewife... the idea of killing and curing a hog any time of the year appeals to the farm manager. Vegetables from a visit of several days with relatives and friends in and near Ft. Worth.

Miss Wana Vestal and mother, Mrs. Cecil Vestal were Hereford visitors, Saturday.

Doyle Cummings had the misfortune to get the end of a finger cut off while grinding feed last week.

There has been illness, due to colds and flu, in practically every home in this section since Christmas. However, there have been no real serious cases, and almost all are feeling better and able to be up and out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Guinn and Frances Kay Holt, of Muleshoe, spent the weekend in the C. A. Guinn home. Everett Sparkman and Delitha were Farwell visitors, last Friday.

table crops must be preserved during the hottest season of the year... hog killing during the coldest season. Who wouldn't enjoy a more comfortable, and convenient, time of doing these necessary jobs?

There are many of our Farmer county farm families who are enjoying the services of Food Lockers located at Hereford, Dimmitt, or Muleshoe. Fried chicken, good beef steaks, and LIGAL VENISON dinners in January are not bad... so they say.

"Oh, I dream of Jeannie, with the light brown hair, Borne like a vapor on the summer air..."

WASHINGTON. — I heard that sweet, simple song the night after the President delivered his message on the state of the Union. It wasn't a summer day. The Washington monument was a cold pillar in the sunlight, the Potomac a sheet of shimmering metal beyond bare trees. But that song, its beauty born of the suffering of Stephen Foster; the symbolic monument, and the echoing memory of the solemn voice of the President blended together to make an unforgettable moment in which I suddenly seemed to see a changing America, a nation stepping forward on a new and unknown road.

I have said before that many of the President's close advisors believed that he saw, growing out of the war in Europe, a new role for the United States, the role of world leadership. Each day's developments seem to confirm the belief that such is the part Mr. Roosevelt expects the nation to play and that if he can he will direct us in that path, the path he mapped in his two recent speeches.

The America which produced "Jeannie with the light brown hair" had disappeared even before Admiral Dewey blazed the way to empire for America in Manila Bay. The last vestiges of American provincialism were trampled into the mud of France by 2,000,000 pairs of American boots. We thought, and some of us fervently hoped for a while we were going to leave Europe to her own devices, after 1919, forget, if we could the white crosses we left there and tend our own fireside.

Isolationist Sentiment Weakens.

We have tried for a year to stuff up our ears at the roar of the Stukas but each explosion over Europe sounds nearer. The majority of letters which I receive are still very much against any step which would lead us into war but the congressmen coming in for the new session report a weakening of the isolationist feeling.

One thing was clear when the President delivered his message to the joint session of congress on January 6. Although many minds there did not meet his, though much debate was to follow, it was plain that his plan to make America an arsenal for the democracies had majority support, that step by step he was doing the leading and step by step congress was following.

I watched the session from the floor of the house of representatives for radio has a little room at the side of the chamber to the left of the rostrum.

There was a long silence when the President was announced. The audience rose and stood with hardly a whisper. Finally the President appeared at the entrance just to the right of the speaker's desk and walked slowly up the ramp between his aide and a secret service man. Then came the applause punctuated with only a few of the shrill "rebel yells." And throughout the speech, with few exceptions, the handclapping came only when the President emphasized a passage.

Foreshadows New Role.

But to me, the significant lines, the ones indicating that the President was foreshadowing this new part he felt America must play, were these:

"In the future days which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

"The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world..."

"The third is freedom from want, which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world."

Reading them over now in cold type they don't have quite the same effect. But perhaps you recall, if you heard the broadcast, how he emphasized, climactically, the phrase "everywhere in the world." It was plain his concern did not stop at our own frontiers, but "everywhere in the world."

Then he went on to describe his "new order" quite as specifically as

MORSE SALISBURY

Morse Salisbury, whose genial voice has been familiar to millions of Farm & Home hour listeners for a decade, has been made director of information of the department of agriculture. Morse knows a lot more things about most things than most people. He was born in Iowa and grew up in Kansas. He is pint-size and usually looks a little surprised, but never is.

Hitler has described his:

"That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation. That kind of world is the very antithesis of the so-called 'new order' of tyranny which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb.

"To that new order we oppose the greater conception—the moral order. A good society is able to face schemes of world domination and foreign revolutions alike without fear."

Admirer of Wilson.

It must be remembered that Franklin Roosevelt is a great admirer of Woodrow Wilson. We have forgotten what a tremendous following President Wilson's ideas had for a short time among the peoples of Europe. We only recall now how tragically his plan failed.

I recall very well the tremendous ovations Wilson was given in Europe. I am certain that Keynes is right when he says that the peoples (not the governments) of Europe acknowledged Woodrow Wilson "not as a victor only but almost as a prophet."

As I said, the world has forgotten this. But Franklin Roosevelt has not. It is within the realm of reason that he feels, having lived and studied these chapters of history, that he may be able to avoid the pitfalls of the past and succeed where Woodrow Wilson failed as a world leader.

Latvian Minister Retains His Post

Alfred Bilmanis has moved.

That was not highly important news in the diplomatic chancelleries of the world, although Dr. Bilmanis is, according to our records, a minister plenipotentiary to the United States from Latvia. But it will be of interest to more than one reader of this column who has drunk lemonade in the Latvian legation in Washington, and trooped up the stairs, past the stained glass window to look upon the marvelous maiden of wax in her gay peasant costume and great amber necklace.

For Alfred Bilmanis, like the former head of the little Baltic country now under Russian domination was a great and enthusiastic friend of the Four-H. For many years when the Four-H clubs encamped in the Washington Mall they met this cheerful round-faced man who told them about organization in Latvia which Carl Ulmanis, president of the Baltic state had founded, patterning them after the farm clubs in this country. Ulmanis once before had been driven from his country by the Russian government. He came to America where he became an ardent student of our farms and our farm methods, our agricultural schools and the various activities connected with rural life in this country.

Under Russian Yoke.

Now Latvia is under the Russian yoke again and the 4,000 young people who were members of the organization which President Ulmanis and his representative in this country, Alfred Bilmanis did so much to encourage, are probably all turned into "Young Communists" if they exist at all.

Since the United States government has not recognized the recent seizure of the Baltic states by the Soviets, Dr. Bilmanis still remains minister of Latvia even if Latvia, as a government, no longer exists in Russian eyes. But he was unable to maintain the old legation where he often entertained members of the Four-H and where guests loved to admire his art treasures which he has collected through the years.

The new legation into which Mr. Bilmanis and his charming Polish wife have moved is about half as big as the friendly one with the high front porch which he has had to give up. And there isn't room downstairs for the big, brown leather chair that is his chief pride as a keepsake—Napoleon brought it back from Moscow.

The chair is probably a comforting thought to Mr. Bilmanis, too, for it is a reminder that no Napoleon rules forever, and that when the modern Napoleons fall, his country will be free again.

Mr. Bilmanis is certain of this. He believes England will win, the government of his country will be restored and that he will be able to build his museum. Meanwhile he is second in command of his state for, before the Russians came in, his government, fearing the worst, drew up a secret document appointing their minister to London chief of state in exile. Dr. Bilmanis would succeed him and so it is quite possible that America will be the starting point for another free Latvia, just as the former president secured his support and his inspiration here

Kathleen Norris Says:

When a Woman Deliberately Fools Herself

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

I hear he is going with another girl, not seriously, but he has taken her out twice, and it makes me feel just heartbroken. I will never like anyone else as well.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THIS week I had two letters that said the same thing; one from Nancy, a girl of 16 in Los Angeles, and the other from Anne, a woman of 44 in Boston. Each one was fooling herself and each one wanted me to go on with the fooling.

It was the old question. "I know he likes me better than anyone else; he was unmistakable in his attentions and intentions for months, but something has happened—he was away, or I was away, and now for some weeks he hasn't telephoned or come to see me."

The girl of 16 is quite desperate about it.

"I wrote him twice," she writes, "and then I returned a book he had loaned me, and telephoned him to see if he had gotten it. He was as nice as he could be, and said he would telephone as soon as he was free for an evening, but that was a week ago, and I'm just sick about it! I hear he is going with another girl, not seriously, but he has taken her out twice, and it makes me feel just heartbroken. I will never like any one else as well, and I seem incapable of getting any interest in life except thinking of him."

Older Woman's Case Sadder.

The middle-aged woman is less despairing, but after all, her case is sadder, for at 44 a love-affair bites pretty deep, and one is not at all sure that there will be another coming along in a year or two to heal the wound.

"I was unhappily married more than 20 years ago," says the Boston woman's letter. "The marriage was a mistake from the first, and after seven months of it we were divorced; my daughter was born some months later. This marital failure was a bitter experience to me, and for years I took no interest whatever in men, devoting myself to my child and my profession. I am department head of a preparatory school for girls. My daughter, now 20, was married a few weeks ago. She has been the one great interest in my life until recently, when I became extremely friendly with a doctor, widowed, two years younger than I am, and in every way the man I have dreamed of all my life. He is successful, good-looking, popular, music-loving; his daughter, an only child, has been with us in the school for a year.

"Billy began paying me real attention last spring—a happy time for me! We took both daughters on little trips, he dined often at my little apartment, sent me books, flowers, telephoned every day and finally asked me to have a photograph taken especially for him, which I did.

Her World Stops.

"Then, quite suddenly, just three weeks ago, everything stopped. I was stunned. No message, no telephone, no dates; it left me feeling scared and blank. I wrote him, tried to resume the old easy tone, but I felt that I failed. After some days he did come to dinner, but he brought his young office associate with him, making the meal a three-course that was an utter loss to me.

"I made a luncheon engagement with him, knowing that something must be very wrong, and determined to be quite frank with him and ask him what had happened to break up our friendship. However, on the morning of our luncheon he telephoned the office to say that he could not keep the engagement, but would 'get in touch with me soon.' He has not done so. So after some hesitation, believing the whole thing to be a dreadful misunderstanding and mistake, I wrote him honestly. His answer came today. It was cheerful, friendly, casual, and answers absolutely nothing. He says he is terribly busy but will come around soon. This morning's paper lists his name as a guest at a smart little theater supper given by one of our prominent society women.

FACE THE FACTS

"Stop fooling yourself" is the sound advice Kathleen Norris gives to women in love with men who do not return their affections. When a brief period of mutual love is terminated, they try desperately to restore the old bonds of affection. Miss Norris advises them that the shortest way to peace is to realize the love affair is over. She admits this may be a heartbreaking task, but believes it is the best way out.

"I know he likes me better than any new-found friend. We have known each other for seven or eight years, although the specially intimate friendship only began last spring. For the first time in my life I am in love, and I cannot have the whole thing terminate this way, and yet I have my pride to consider, and I don't want to overstep the line. In what way can I attract him back to me, for I know that it would take little to restore the old happy confidence."

Love a Fleeting Fever.

Both Forty-four and Sixteen are fooling themselves. They know in their own hearts that until an engagement is announced and the ring safe on a woman's finger, a man is as free as air. A few loveletters, a few exquisite memories are all that remain to the woman, and at most they would go only to prove what we all know anyway, that man is a fickle animal, as woman is, and that once that fleeting fever called being in love is over, it is OVER.

Any attempts to restore it only bittles the woman in the man's eyes. No man needs any reminder if he really wants to see a woman. In the happy first stages of an affair she has a thousand proofs of this. He finds excuses for messages, meetings, exchanges of notes.

Her life is one blissful reminder of his devotion.

Go Bravely On.

When it stops, the only thing to do is to make the most of flattering memories, and go bravely on to the next exciting friendship. Reproaches and reminders will only annoy him, and destroy the remains of his affection.

For Sixteen, of course, life holds deeper and truer emotions; she will laugh at her little-girl tragedy some day, and regard the object of it with indifferent amazement. But for Forty-four the matter is more serious. It is a real calamity to have glimpsed, at that age, after the lonely and hard-working years, what companionship and a home and the devotion of a fine man might mean, and to relinquish it will be a hard slow painful task.

Women pay high for everything they get in this life; love means more to them than it does to men, and married life offers them inducements that it doesn't hold for their mates. Children cost mothers infinitely more than they do fathers; they have a higher value for their mothers. But of all things for which women pay an incomplete love-affair is the most expensive; Anne is going to need real philosophy in the next few months.

To stop fooling herself is perhaps the shortest cut to peace. The sooner she does that, and poor little Sixteen does that, the happier they will be

Floor for Game-room.

QUESTION: I have an ambition to make a game-room in my basement. The floor presents a problem, and it is not bone-dry. My preference would be for an oak floor, if that would be practical. What do you think?

Answer: Before going to the labor and expense of putting down a really good floor in your basement, you should make very sure that there will be no leaks either through the foundation walls or through the floor. This important point should be looked into by a competent mason.

My own preference would be for asphalt tiles as a suitable flooring rather than wood. (These tiles are not linoleum, which would rot in a cellar.) A dealer in linoleum, however, can give you information on this product.

If you prefer an oak floor, the lowest layer should be of concrete. On top of this put a layer of liquid asphalt, and over this a layer of heavy waterproof felt. On this put another layer of asphalt, all of which will make the floor waterproof. You can then lay a wood floor. The boards should be bedded in asphalt, which will hold them in position and add to the waterproofing. Whatever flooring you decide upon, the work should not be attempted by any one who is not thoroughly fitted to do the job. It requires special knowledge and experience.

Painting Plasterboard.

QUESTION: I have just completed a room in my attic, making the partitions of plasterboard. I should like to paint the board; shall I have to put on some kind of a size or priming coat before I paint?

Answer: The way to paint your plasterboard is as follows: First, see that the surface is absolutely clean, dry and free from dust. Use a sizing coat or primer, made by mixing equal parts of a good grade of varnish size and ready-mixed paint of the desired color; or with white lead thinned with turpentine and tinted to suit.

Before sizing the surface, apply a coat of primer over the joints and nailheads, and stipple with a stubby brush. When dry, apply a coat of primer uniformly and carefully over the surface. Let priming coat dry at least 24 hours, then touch up any "flat spots" and let dry before applying the first coat of paint.

Insulation for House in Mountains.

QUESTION: I own a house in the mountains, clapboard outside and unfinished inside. I contemplate insulating the walls and roof and finishing the inside. What materials do you suggest?

Answer: For the walls and for the roof between the rafters you could use any one of several kinds of blanket insulation enclosed in a waterproof jacket. These materials are made of the proper size to fit in the spaces between studs and rafters. With the walls thus insulated, the inside finish could be plasterboard. If you want more insulation, use stiff insulating boards.

Loose Fire Brick.

QUESTION: How can fire brick be kept from becoming loose? I built an outdoor fireplace with fire clay mortar between the bricks. But after building a fire in it, the clay became hard and then cracked, so that the bricks loosened.

Answer: You used mortar in too thick a bed. In laying up fire brick, spread a little thin mortar on the surface, put the next brick in position, and then rub it against the lower brick to bring it into contact. The mortar is not intended to separate the bricks, as in ordinary brickwork, but only to fill in the roughnesses.

Drainboard Surface.

QUESTION: In my house, which is in process of construction, I have the choice of a chromium trimmed linoleum drainboard or a drainboard made of tile. I am undecided between the two, and would like to know your opinion as to which is more serviceable.

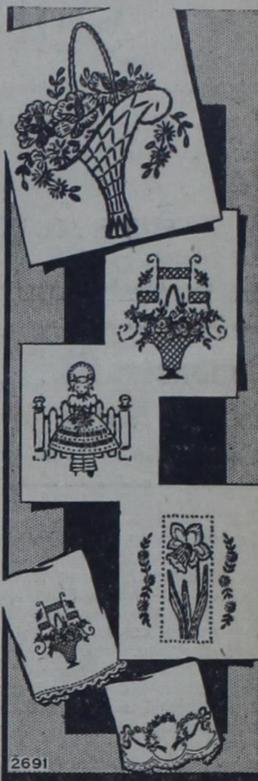

Answer: My preference would be for linoleum. For one thing, the softer surface will not be so damaging to china and glassware. For another thing, cement between tiles will stain and is difficult to clean. A few months ago, in making that same choice, I picked linoleum.

Floor of Swimming Pool.

QUESTION: In making a swimming pool by damming a brook, would it be better to make the floor of sand or gravel?

Answer: My preference would be for sand. In building your dam, you should provide means for draining the pool when cleaning becomes necessary.

Bloomin' Parrot Was Passing Its Lesson On

Bert had spent hours trying to teach his parrot to say "Hello, Uncle," ready for the visit of his wealthy relative.

Uncle came—the parrot was dumb. Bert seized the bird by the throat. "Say 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck," he roared.

And when silence continued he twisted the bird's neck and threw it into the fowl pen.

Queer squawks drew him to the fowl pen next morning. On the ground were three dead hens. The parrot had a fourth by the neck, shaking him and shouting: "Say, 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck."

Lazbuddy Cagers Take Two Matches Here

Two games staged in the Farwell gymnasium, Friday evening, chalked up wins for the visiting Lazbuddy cagers, with the girls match, which was definitely poor, ending 23-42, while the boys clash showed an improvement, with the score 35-37.

Playing one full quarter with only four girls on the court, and finishing the last three minutes with only three players, the Lazbuddy girls (mostly second-string) had no difficulty in mopping up the floor with the locals.

While Lazbuddy had two guards to three forwards for Farwell, the local players were unable to muster up enough vim and vigor to draw the defense from under the goal.

Briscoe was high for the game, with a score of 17, while H. Eubanks and L. Eubanks came in with 10 and 13 respectively. H. Eubanks, a freshman player, definitely showed promise with her one-handed shot. Hughes was high for Farwell with 12.

Although the Farwell boys showed considerable improvement over former games in their style of play, the split-second thinking so essential to successful ball clubs is still lacking among the players, which fact led to their close two-point defeat.

Repeatedly in the last minutes, Farwell failed to take advantage of opportunities offering a chance to score by indecision on the offense, but the game was superior to those staged previously.

Acker played the best game for the locals, while Semcox was good on defense. Shooting a large number of times, Phillips led the scoring for Farwell with 10, while Acker counted up 9.

Vise, of the visitors, was the star of the game, breaking for the goal time after time to tally 26 points, and giving the Farwell offense a lively time.

Texico Takes Fourth Straight Loss, Friday

The Texico senior boys sustained their fourth consecutive cage loss on Friday evening, when the visiting Field team took them to a close three-point tumble, the count being 22-25 at the end of the match. The local girls, also contacting Field, won their game, 31-20.

Hurt principally by the inability of the forward division to come up to standard in scoring, Texico turned in a valiant fight throughout the four periods, but was unable to handle the scrapping Field aggregation, which boasts the return of most of the 1940 season players.

The Texico defense looked good throughout the evening, with the loss being chalked up to the inability of the locals to make a large number of their attempts for points count. J. Flye turned in probably the best game for Texico, both offensively and defensively, spectators report.

Pacing the visitors was Witchert, who scored 12 points, and ran the Texico men ragged throughout the game. Field featured a fast break and took advantage of the inexperience of the Texico team to make most of its tallies.

The girls game, which began with Field taking a 10-2 lead in the opening five minutes, raced through the periods with both teams hitting the basket for good scores.

Newman, who scored 17 points for the visitors, was by far the outstanding player for Field, featuring a one-handed shot which heckled the Texico guards consistently. Doolittle was high for the game, with a total of 20 points for the Texico players.

Friona Teams Entertain Farwell, Friday Night

The Friona Chiefs and Squaws will be hosts and hostesses to the Farwell cage teams, Friday night, Coach M. D. Conger and Coach Iris Thornton, head of the local squads, have announced.

With the teams having met previously this season, the boys splitting games and the Friona girls taking both tilts, sentiment, as per usual between Farwell and Friona, is running high.

The Farwell boys, in a close match with Lazbuddy last weekend, showed improvement over previous games, and observers are cautiously predicting that "maybe they're hitting their stride."

The girls, on the other hand, have been unable to get "steamed up" on the court, to the disappointment of spectators, and are yet in the doghouse so far as picking the favorite is concerned.

TAKES OVER PASTORATE

Minister H. H. Stone was in Farwell attending business matters the past weekend. He announced that he had accepted a call to be the minister at the Church of Christ at Lazbuddy and was moving his family there. This organization has a large membership in that community, and Minister Stone said that he intended to devote all his time to the work there.

Sportsman's Park is located in St. Louis, Mo.

Basis Changed For Filing Income Tax

The Revenue Act of 1940 has made important changes this year in respect to the liability of individuals in filing income tax returns. Individuals under the following circumstances are required to file returns covering the calendar year of 1940; and it will be noticed that the amount of GROSS income, not net income, determines liability:

Single individuals, or married individuals not living with husband or wife, having a GROSS INCOME of $800 or more.

Married individuals living together, having a combined GROSS INCOME of $2,000.00 or more.

The net income is no longer to be used in determining the liability for the filing of a Federal income tax return. The liability of a citizen or resident of the United States to file a return is dependent upon his status as a married or single person and the amount of his GROSS INCOME. Therefore, every citizen or resident of the United States will be required to file a return for the taxable year 1940 if his GROSS INCOME in 1940, regardless of the amount of his net income, comes within the amount specified above for his particular status. A return must be filed even though, by reason of allowable deductions from gross income and of allowable credits against net income, it develops that no tax is due.

Form 1040A should be used for GROSS INCOME of not more than $5,000 derived from salaries, wages, interest, dividends, and annuities of more than $5,000. Form 1040 should be used for GROSS INCOME from salaries, wages, interest, dividends and annuities. Form 1040 should be used regardless of the amount of your income. While returns must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which you reside, it is urged that they be filed as soon as possible after January 1.

If in doubt as to your liability for the filing of a return and if your employer has no blank return forms available, make request of the collector of internal revenue for the district in which you reside, or of any deputy collector stationed in your vicinity, for the 1940 individual income tax return and the printed instructions accompanying the form.

Failure of individuals, under the circumstances outlined above, to file returns will subject them to the imposition of the penalties prescribed by law.

Newspaper Advertising Favored by Continental

PONCA CITY, Okla.—Continental Oil Company in 1941 is again allocating to newspapers a major portion of its yearly advertising budget, it was announced at the company's general offices here recently.

Although Continental uses almost every kind of advertising medium, the company has for several years spent the greater part for its advertising dollar with newspapers. More than 1,300 newspapers throughout the United States will share in this year's expenditures, it was stated, and the advertising is expected to reach more than 35,000,000 readers. Small town newspapers will again share in the company's plan as extensively as metropolitan newspapers.

For the past several years, the company's advertising campaign has been conducted primarily to assist the local distributor of Conoco products. The 1941 advertisements will continue to feature the quality products and outstanding service of the company's local "mileage merchant."

GRADE TEAM WINS

The grade team of the Texico school took a cage match, 29-14, on Tuesday afternoon, when the boys met the Friona team, in that gym.

L. Lewis was high for the game, with a total of 16, while Johnson was high for Friona, with 10 points. Coach A. D. McDonald reported that the game was "fairly good" for the youngsters, although the locals missed a number of shots which should have netted them points.
