

CANADIAN ATLANTIC CONVOY

Passed by Censor.

SINCE the outbreak of war, the Royal Canadian Navy which is owned and maintained by the Dominion wherever it is serving, has established an enviable record. It has convoyed ships carrying more than 27,000,000 deadweight tons; it has fought in the North Sea and it has captured several enemy vessels. At the declaration of war the strength of the Canadian Navy was about 3,600 men and 13 ships.

day, it musters more than 20,000 men and 200 vessels, including 13 destroyers, several of which were secured from the United States in the destroyer deal. By March, 1942, the Royal Canadian Navy, two of whose destroyers are pictured above, will be manned by some 27,000 men and the fleet will consist of more than 400 ships of various types. Many of Canada's seamen come from the prairie provinces.

Nephew of Local Man Dies in Fall of Bomber

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Vinyard of this city, returned home last week from Turkey, Texas, where they were called to attend the funeral of Mr. Vinyard's nephew, who was killed in an airplane crash at Jacksonville, Fla., on Oct. 16.

The nephew, John Paul Vinyard, 24, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Vinyard at Turkey, died when a large bomber which he was flying crashed into the ground from a distance of about 500 feet.

Three planes were flying in a V-shape battle formation, it is reported, with young Vinyard leading. One of the trailing ships got too close and ran into the plane handled by Vinyard, causing it to dip to the earth. The young pilot, who was scheduled to receive his "wings" in two months, made an effort to bail out, it was believed, but found himself too close to the ground. His body, badly mangled, was found 100 feet from his wrecked ship.

His father is agent for the Ford Worth & Denver, at Turkey. The body, accompanied by one of his mates who was in the flight, was brought to Turkey for burial.

SCHOOL MAY DISMISS

Officials of the Oklahoma Lane school are planning to dismiss school for at least two weeks, beginning Friday of this week, it was announced here today. School officials said that attendance has been seriously interrupted during the past several days, due to children helping in the fields.

Favorable harvesting weather next Friday will likely lead to the dismissal officials stated. If the weather should turn bad, halting harvesting, the school will likely continue, they added.

6 Hunters Get Deer

The first party of local deer hunters to return here this season arrived home Tuesday night, with a perfect record, each of the six hunters bringing down a buck.

Members of the group were Jack White, Arch Green, Grady Pierce, Paul Barnes, Claude Thomas and Lester Norton, who spent this year's outing in the Black Range, southwest of Magdalena, N. M.

White brought in the biggest buck of the group, the animal weighing 156 pounds dressed, with an antler spread of nine points. Green's buck had the largest set of horns, 11 points, and weighed 111 pounds.

Other animals included a 126 pound, 9 point, belonging to Pierce; a 106 pound, 7 point, brought down by Barnes. The two smallest animals went to Thomas and Norton, 92 and 90, respectively. The Thomas buck had 6 points, Norton's had 7.

The party reported unusually fine weather on the trip, with the absence of both snow and rain. Pierce got the first buck, on the morning of opening day, while the others got their allotment within four days after the season opened.

County Judge Lee Thompson stated today that the abstract had been approved and a draft drawn on the Fuhrman Petroleum company for $3,321.30, lease money on the Farmer county school lands located in Gaines and Andrews counties.

The draft was drawn through the First National Bank of Midland, Texas, and Judge Thompson said that it was payable through the Friona State Bank, the county depository.

The money represents the first payment of a like amount that will be made annually to this county as oil lease and rental fees from the Farmer county holdings in the two South Plains counties.

This money, Judge Thompson explained, will go into the county available school fund, to be distributed to the various schools of the county on a per scholastic basis each year for ten years. He added that the fund would amount to "about $2.20 per pupil" over the ten-year period. Other money coming into the county available school fund from other sources, Judge Thompson said, would give each school child "about four dollars a year".

Three Negroes Held In Sikes Burglary

Three Negroes are being held in the Farmer county jail for investigation in connection with the burglary of the Sikes Motor company on the night of Oct. 29, when an unsuccessful attempt was made to get away with three used automobiles.

Deputy Sheriff J. C. Wilkinson stated this morning that charges had been filed against two of the trio and "checking up" investigations were being continued. Two of the Negroes, Rudolph Brown and Herschel Adams, were picked up in Amarillo, and the third, Eugene Roschell, was apprehended at Vaughn.

"We believe we have the right parties," Deputy Wilkinson stated, "but we want to check up a little more to make certain."

The arrest of the Negroes followed the burglary of the Sikes Motor company on Tuesday night of last week after three used automobiles had been removed from the building and left in the street after an apparent unsuccessful attempt to start any of the machines.

Cotton Warehouse Is Discontinuing Here

The large cotton warehouse, operated here by the Southland Warehouse and Storage company, has ceased operations here and will "fold up" completely in the near future, Curtis Dillard, manager, announced today.

All of the cotton which has been on storage here under the terms of the government loan act has been shipped to Galveston, Dillard said. The buildings are being offered for sale, he added.

Dillard said that similar warehouses owned by the same company at Littlefield and Levelland were also being closed out. He said the reason for discontinuing the business was the constant rise in operating costs, with no increase in revenue.

Mrs. H. Y. Overstreet, roll call chairman, today announced the county who had been selected to act as chairmen in their respective communities for the annual Red Cross roll call, which opens on Nov. 11.

Supplies were delivered to most of the workers of the county last Sunday, but Mrs. Overstreet explained that due to bad road conditions, some of the outlying precincts were not visited. Supplies are scheduled to reach these before the close of the present week, she said.

Most of the workers, she said, had been contacted and agreed to accept the roll call responsibility in their communities, while others were named on recommendations.

Each roll call chairman, Mrs. Overstreet explained, will be expected to enlist the assistance of her own co-workers in the community assigned.

Following is the list of chairmen as announced by the Roll Call supervisor:

- Farwell, Mrs. H. Y. Overstreet.
- Friona, Mrs. E. J. McReynolds.
- Mrs. J. C. Wilkinson.
- Bovina, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Williams.
- Lazbuddy, Mrs. Bill Sherley.
- Rhea, Floyd Schlenker.
- Lakeview, Fred Barker.
- Black, Mrs. Clyde Hayes.
- Farmlerton, Mrs. Chas. Turner.
- Oklahoma Lane, Mrs. Lee Thompson.
- The Hub, Mrs. A. H. Boatman.
- Live-at-Home, Mrs. Lawrence Lillard.
- Midway, Mrs. Joe Jesko.
- Lariat, Mrs. E. M. Deaton.

Quota Is Hiked

The Farmer county quota has been hiked this year to 750 memberships, and Red Cross officials said today that only a concentrated effort on the part of every voluntary worker could meet the quota this year. Officials pointed out today that "the challenge to humanity and the freedom of the peoples throughout the world, intensified by the warfare this year, makes it imperative that our quota be met."

Following the practice established in this county a few years ago will be carried out this year, with half the funds remaining in the communities where it originated and the remainder sent to the St. Louis office of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Overstreet particularly called attention to the 100% placards, which are displayed in every home or institution where all members are among Red Cross enrollees. "We hope to have a number of such placards on display during the drive," she said.

Farwell Workers Named

In connection with the list of chairmen, the following have been named to make the solicitations in Farwell: Jennie Lee London, Hazel Anglin, Mrs. Jack Dunn, Mrs. J. T. Carter, Mrs. Bess Mansfield, Helen Newton, Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls, Mrs. John Aldridge, Mrs. Bess Henneman, Mrs. Earl Booth, Mrs. Dick Hunter, Mrs. C. J. Doose.

The membership drive will open officially on Nov. 11 and close on Nov. 27. Mrs. Overstreet has asked that chairmen in each community make a report to her by mail on Sunday of each week during the drive, giving a report of the progress made up to that time. "It's going to take some real work, and I'm expecting every worker to do his best," Mrs. Overstreet said.

Board Classifies 91 Selectees on Friday

The Farmer County Selective Service Board, meeting here last Friday in a night session, classified 91 Farmer county selectees, the majority of whom were given 3-A ratings.

On the same date, eleven of the selectees were ordered to report to Dr. V. Scott Johnson of this city for their physical examinations, on Nov. 6.

Call For Dec. 1

Today Mrs. Bessie Lee Henneman, clerk of the local board, announced receipt of a call for one man on Dec. 1. This selectee, she said, will be sent to Fort Sill, Okla., instead of Fort Bliss, Texas, where all Farmer county boys thus far have been sent for induction.

Classifications made last Friday were divided as follows: 8 in class 1-A, pending physical examination; 3 in class 1-A, following physical examination; 2 in class 1-B; 2 in class 1-C; 17 in class 1-H; 2 in class 2-A; 55 in class 3-A; 2 in class 4-F.

Those ordered to appear for physical examination on Nov. 6 are: Denver Willis Smith, Haskell Wallace McCurdy, Lester Wilson Harrelson, Eric Marion Rushing, John Henry Daniel, colored, transferred; James Elmer Green, David Hugh Carson, Barney Dean Crume, Reardon Kiley Wenner, Oren Dan Jerkins, William Cecil Robinson.

Board members stated today that as yet they were unable to announce definitely who would fill the quota of three men on Nov. 18. "Any one of a number of things could happen within the next few days to change a man's status," a member of the Board explained, adding "we do not know ourselves until selectees are mailed a notice for induction." The orders to report, he added, are sent out ten days in advance of the date of induction.

Loose Freight Cars Hit Derail, Wreck

Seven loose freight cars, all heavily loaded, broke away from an engine in the local yards, Monday afternoon and ran down the siding until they were halted by a derailment just east of the Henderson Grain elevator.

Only one car, loaded with cross ties, actually went off the track and turned over. The front trucks of the next car in the string went off—and there the run-aways were halted.

Railroad officials explained that a draw-bar in one of the cars being switched pulled loose, causing the run-away.

Six of the cars in the loose string were heavily loaded with ballast (crushed rock) and the seventh was piled high with cross ties. The upset occurred on a siding, and main line traffic was not interrupted.

Thin egg shells often are due to absence of enough limestone or oyster shell in the diet.

Sikes Motor Company To Handle Tractors

O. C. Sikes, of the Sikes Motor Company, local Ford dealers, announced today that he had added Ford tractors to his line, and would handle them in the future.

The first carload—ten tractors—arrived here the latter part of last week, and have been placed on display at the local dealership.

Sikes said that as yet he had not received a full supply of plows to go with the tractors, but delivery on these items had been promised within the next week.

Until recently, Fay Maxey has acted as agent for the Ford tractors, but relinquished the tractor line to the Sikes Motor Company with the announcement of his inability to handle the tractors in carload lots.

October Places Third In Rainfall For Year

The month of October came in for third honors for rainfall records so far established this year, a check-up here revealed today.

A total of 6.63 inches of moisture fell here during the month. May and June are the only two months to surpass the October precipitation, with 12.45 and 9.58 respectively.

First Snow Falls

October finished off with a flurry of snow and rainfall through most of last Thursday, adding 1.47 inches of moisture to the year's total, swelling the rain gauge to an all-time high of 42.62 for the first ten months of the year.

Farmers welcomed clearing skies the first of the week, and most of them were able to get back to their harvesting operations by Monday afternoon.

A fairly heavy frost, the first of the season, visited this part of the country Thursday night. The frost was not so heavy here in town, with tomato plants withstanding the blight. In the remote sections of the county, however, most farmers are reporting feed crops killed by the freeze.

The wet weather of the past weekend further delayed crop gathering, and farmers continue to hope for a few weeks of clear weather.

SKATING CANCELLED

Officials of the Texico school stated this week that skating hours, which have been held at the gym on Monday evenings for several weeks, have been cancelled. Supt. L. A. Hartley reported that, due to weather conditions and the press of harvest work, very little attendance was given, and it was decided to discontinue the skating for the time being. Proceeds from the weekly skating periods have gone into the school cafeteria fund.

Keep eggs moist and cool.

Turkey Season To Open Here Soon

Local produce men stated this week that the turkey market for Thanksgiving birds would open by the first of next week, with a fair price being in prospect for the national birds.

Turkeys intended for the first Thanksgiving on Nov. 20 should be marketed not later than the 12th of this month, with the second Thanksgiving birds, intended for Nov. 27, being sold not later than Nov. 17.

While local produce men are unable to quote a definite price this week, all indications pointed to a favorable market, with No. 1 birds ranging in the neighborhood of 15-17c, which is about 5 cents above the prevailing prices of a year ago.

Produce dealers said a survey revealed that the birds were not so plentiful this season as was generally the case here. They advise all growers not to sell their turkeys unless they would class as No. 1 birds, which means that toms should weigh at least 14 pounds and hens not less than 9 pounds.

CHURCH BOARD ELECTS

At a meeting of the official board of the Methodist church, held on Tuesday night, B. N. Graham was re-elected chairman; J. T. Carter, vice chairman; C. F. Bieler, secretary; Loyd Cain, treasurer; Edward Yoder, incidental treasurer, for the ensuing conference year.

The board went on record as favoring the budget plan for the entire financial program of the church and committees were named to prepare the budget for the year. It was estimated that the financial program of the local church for the coming year will total approximately $3200.00.

As long as turkeys are getting enough protein, they will eat more whole wheat grain and like it.

Financial Aid Ready for Small Farmers

Financial assistance is available through the Farm Security Administration to assist small farmers who need supplies, equipment and repairs to enable them to contribute to the Food for Defense program. Farmer county rehabilitation supervisor Frank Seale said today.

Expanding its services to low-income farm families, this agency of the Department of Agriculture is conducting a state-wide drive to give small farmers an opportunity to aid the defenders of democracy and to relieve their own distressed conditions, Seale explained.

Working under the direction of the State and county USDA defense boards, of which Farm Security is a part, this agency is said to be ready to make loans to qualified farm families to step up their production of needed foods. Long term loans are available for a great many purposes. Increased production and improved home consumption will be encouraged by the FSA for its borrower-families rather than the expansion of the farm enterprise. Better care of livestock, more adequate use of available facilities, purebred sires, culling, better housing for poultry and livestock, more canning and improved selection and preparation of food and feed storage are among the things being emphasized by the FSA.

Among types of assistance which the agency is prepared to furnish eligible small farm families in Farmer county to enable them to participate in the national defense program are:

- 1. Loans for the purchase of storage cutters, feed grinders, binders, trailers, and other harvesting and

Gals Chase Boys in Keeping With "Sadie Hawkins Week"

Not only are deer and ducks on the run this week, but the open season has now been extended to those panting creatures called "men" for this is "Sadie Hawkins" week, when the girls get out them thar guns!

"Sadie Hawkins" time, as members of the masculine gender might guess, is that period between Nov. 3rd to Nov. 7th, wherein such men may legally be pursued, wooed and won by the gals—the only catch being that the girls must provide money for the expenses of the courtin' and make their own dates—the latter being a thing at which most of them are proficient, anyway.

All "F. H. S. men what ain't married" were warned this week by a proclamation issued and decreed "by the power and majesty invested in us as the women of Farwell high school" that they were now considered as fair game, and might be expected to act as such. The proclamation bore the names of "Iwanta Man" and "Ila Ketchem".

Believing that "Marryin' Sam ain't come much business lately, and our town's done got a whole passel of gals what ain't married, and these gals wants to get married somethin' awful, and these gals' mummies and pappies has done got tired of furnishing them with board and keep, and we got lots of men what could marry these gals but just won't; and we deems it the birthright of our gals to have matrimony's joys and to be sure of eating regularly" the Farwell girls are taking things in their own hands, and the men are already on the run.

The climax, according to the announcement made by the gals, will be the "Sadie Hawkins" party, to be held for all high school gals who "bring their men", in the auditorium on Friday evening of this week.

INSTALLMENT 3 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon were joint owners of the vast King-Gordon range which stretched from Texas to Montana. When building up this string of ranches, they continually had to fight the unscrupulous Ben Thorpe. Thorpe rivaled King-Gordon in power.

CHAPTER IV

They buried Dusty King five miles south of Ogallala, beside the Great Trail which he himself had pioneered. They thought he would want to rest out there in the open plain, near enough to the cattle trail so that the rumble of hoofs would sometimes come to him through the ground.

Over his grave they piled boulders, after the fashion of the prairie men. Bill Roper himself fitted a cross of railroad ties, the most durable and massive timber available at Ogallala.

After that was all done, and night had come on, and everybody had gone back to town, Bill Roper went back to that lonely cross and squatted on his heels against the pile of stone.

After a while a ridden horse came toward the cross at a walk; and Bill Roper remained motionless, unseen against the stones, as the horseman came up.

The rider stepped to the ground and walked slowly toward the cross, the reins of his pony on his arm.

"Quien es?" Roper said, "Oh, hello, Dry Camp."

Dry Camp Pierce came and sat down beside Bill at the foot of the stones. "Find out anything, in the town?"

"Hell, no." "No," Dry Camp repeated after him. "No, and they won't."

"You talk mighty sure, Dry Camp."

"I talk mighty sure because I am mighty sure. Nobody saw Dusty killed except the three men that done it; and one other man."

Bill Roper's hand shot out and caught Dry Camp's lean arm in a grip that bit like a trap. "Who was that?"

"Me."

There was a silence, sharp and hard, before Bill said, "How is it you haven't told anybody this?"

"Haven't had any chance to talk to you," Dry Camp said. "I'm telling you now, ain't I?"

"Who was it?" "Cleve Tanner; and Walk Lasham, and Ben Thorpe."

Dry Camp took a match out of the pocket of his cowhide vest and chewed the end.

"You see—" he searched for his words painfully, after the manner of men who are much alone—"Dusty, he tied his horse out back of the wagon shed. There's a kind of a corner there, like you can't see into it from any place, hardly; and what with it getting dark—"

"Where were you?" "I was in Bailey's Harness Shop, next door. I saw Dusty turn off the walk, and walk back between the buildings. I'd been watching for him, because I wanted to speak to him a minute. I went back through the harness shop, and I was just going out the back door. And then hell bust in the wagon shed angle."

"The time it happened," Bill Roper said, "there must have still been a little light."

"Enough to see by, all right. These three varmints steps out of the shed quick and quiet. Dusty knew what he was up against, all right. His gun come out; but Walk Lasham grabs his gun arm with his left hand and bears down like he was wrestling him. Then the whole works seems to blow up, as all three of 'em let loose. They just stood and throwed it into him, and it seemed like he was never going to fall. Ben Thorpe pumped two more shots after Dusty was down, and dead."

That was all the story. Both of them seemed to recognize that there were no questions to ask, nothing to add.

"I promise you this, Bill," Dry Camp said at last. "I can't go up and testify against these men. You know why. If I let it be known that I'm here, that's the finish of me. But that would be all right. Only, what court, that we got, would believe me against them?"

Bill Roper said, "There isn't anything you can do, I don't suppose."

"Oh, yes, there is. There's one thing I can do. I'll have to kind of bite my time, and make it sure; but—I'm going to get me these three men."

"No, you ain't," Bill Roper said. "We're going to go at this thing a different way. Trouble with you, you're figuring these three men as just three men. They ain't. They got the biggest string of tough outfits in the country, and they spread all the way from the Rio Grande to the Rosebud, and beyond. We got to bust up the whole works, if we want to get any place."

Dry Camp was silent for several minutes. "What you aim to do?"

"I aim to start in Texas, where Cleve Tanner runs Thorpe's breeding outfits in the Big Bend; I aim to tie into him piece by piece, till Ben Thorpe is smashed out of the West."

"Lew Gordon will never stand for—" er and wealth, but he had gained his position through wholesale cattle rustling and gunplay. Their opposing interests came to a showdown when the Government announced the auctioning of the valuable Crying Wolf land in Montana. Bidding went high at the

"Then, by God, King-Gordon has come to its split-up!" Silence again before Dry Camp said, "And I suppose I'm expected to just kind of stand aside and stay out of it and see how you work it out, huh? Well, I won't do it, Bill."

"You're in this, Dry Camp." "How am I in it?" "I've got to have me an outfit. It's got to be made up of boys that aren't afraid of Ben Thorpe or all hell; boys that haven't got anything more to lose. I'll need near fifty men. But to start off with I want Lee Harnish, and Tex Daniels and Tex Long; Nate Liggett—Dave Shannon—"

"Wow!" said Dry Camp. "You get those four or five in the same bunch, they'll eat each other alive."

"That's the kind I want," Bill Roper said. "I want a wild bunch such as the West has never seen before."

"And me—what am I supposed to do?" "You—you're heading south. You're going back to Texas and you're going to start rounding 'em in."

"What you offering these boys?" "Horses and grub, and what other stuff we'll need. Not another thing." They sat silent for a long time more.

"All right," Dry Camp said. "I'll go."

In the starlight Bill Roper swung down in front of the little shack which served King-Gordon as a loading-foreman's office at their Ogallala pens. Within, Bill Roper found Lew Gordon sitting alone.

"I just talked to a man," Roper said, "that saw the killing."

Gordon was instantly alert. "Who was it?"

"He's a man that can't come forward, because he's already an outlaw in his own right. But Dusty was killed by Ben Thorpe, and Walk Lasham, and Cleve Tanner, the three working together. Walk Lasham bore down Dusty's gun."

They looked at each other for a long moment.

"This man that told you this—we've got to get hold of him; his story has to go to the authorities, Bill."

Roper shook his head. "He'll hang if they lay hands on him. Anyway, nobody would believe him against these three."

Lew Gordon made a gesture at once impatient and weary. "Whenever we turn we hit some snag of lawlessness," he said. "There's too many men afraid to stand forward and face out the law. Seems like nothing is done open and above-board any more."

"Never was, since I remember," Roper said. "I've got a couple of ways in mind right now. I'm going on the warpath, Lew."

Gordon had been fiddling with a pencil, and now he threw it on the table in front of him. "We're figuring you to take over the Crying Wolf, Bill. Dusty's half of King-Gordon naturally will stand in your name now; Dusty never paid any attention to any other kin. But the Crying Wolf was where he figured for you to go and work; and there isn't any call to change that, now."

"You can count me out of the Crying Wolf, Lew."

"What do you want to do?" "We're going to branch out a new way," Roper said. "We're going to have a warrior outfit. And I'm its new boss."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

auction, but King bid high to beat out Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, raced home to tell pretty Jody Gordon the good news. The two happy lovers were in each other's arms when a rider soon brought the news that Dusty King had been killed.

"We're going to carry the war into the other camp, Lew. For every outfit that Ben Thorpe has grabbed by force of arms, he's going to lose two; for every head that has come into his herds by rustle and raid, two head of his are going to be missing when he makes his roundup count. First thing, I'm going to break Cleve Tanner down in Texas. After that—"

Lew Gordon looked Bill Roper hard in the eye, smiled a little, and shook his head. His voice was slow and deep, stubbornly emphatic, as a granite cliff is emphatic. "No. We've never gone outside the law yet, and while I live we never will. We play the straight game always; and if we lose—that's in the hands of things beyond us."

Bill Roper angered. "I know how you feel about it," he said, keeping his voice down. "You swayed Dusty that way always. If you'd looked at it different, the guns would have been out years ago—and it would have been Ben Thorpe that went down. As it is—Dusty King is dead. Now you want me to drift on as we always drifted on, and I'm supposed to forget that Dusty's out there under a pile of stones. Well, I'm not going to play it that way, Gordon."

"While you're with King-Gordon," Lew said slowly, "you'll play it as I say you'll play it."

"If you want to buy me out," Roper said, "you can do it at your own price. Because I'm going to do exactly what I tell you I'm going to do; I wouldn't run a sneak on you, Lew."

"You figure," Lew Gordon said incredulously, "that you, one youngster on horseback, can smash up Ben Thorpe? You wouldn't last forty seconds longer than a celluloid collar on a dead gambler."

"There'll be a few go with me," Roper said.

"Who?" "Dry Camp Pierce for one; Lee Harnish, Tex Daniels, Tex Long; in all, maybe fifty men that I think I know where to get."

Lew Gordon looked as if he would explode. "You're naming the most vicious outlaws on the plains," he said. "If you ever get those men together, it will be the most infernal wild bunch that ever—"

"By God," said Bill Roper, "I'll show you how to clean a range or break a range; I'm telling you I don't care which."

Lew Gordon slapped his hand on the table; it fell with a dull and heavy wallop, but so hard it seemed the top of the table would split.

"No! No, by God! Not under my brand. Not in a hundred years..."

"Then draw up the terms of the sale."

Gordon was silent again, for a long time. He seemed very old, very tired. "Reckon you're man enough to make your own decisions, Bill."

"Thanks, Lew."

"But do me one last favor—will you? Don't decide here and now. Take a couple of days to think it over. It's for your own good. But I'm asking it as a favor to me..."

Bill Roper dropped his eyes, and for a moment or two he hesitated.

"I'll take an hour, he decided in compromise."

CHAPTER V

Bill Roper walked slowly to the Gordons' tall house, on its rise at the edge of the town, and let himself in softly. He wanted desperately to talk to Jody Gordon; but it was nearly midnight, and he couldn't make up his mind to wake her.

As it happened, decision was unnecessary. In the fireplace some lengths of cottonwood log still burned, and before the fire Jody lounged upon a buffalo robe, wide awake.

"You've been a long time."

"I know." He stopped beside her, half raised her in his arms, and kissed her lingeringly. Her arms and her lips clung, making it difficult for him to think of the road he had chosen. But presently he sat beside her on the buffalo robe, and turned his eyes to the coals.

"There's some stuff we have to talk about, Jody."

"I can think of better things to do with freight than just talk."

"Jody—King-Gordon is splitting up."

Jody brought herself up on one elbow. "Why, Bill—what do you mean?"

"Dusty's share comes to me, as you know. I—I'm taking it out."

"You're—Bill, you must be loco!"

"Maybe. I'm going against Ben Thorpe."

"But—but—" Jody was at a loss for words.

"Since the trail began, he's stood for everything we're against. Four of the biggest rustling gangs in the country are directly hooked up with him, if it could be proved. He's stopped at nothing, and where he couldn't force his way he's bought his way. But now—he's gone to far."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

"I don't get you."

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

Sin with its devastating consequences has its only remedy in the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. He died to set us free from the penalty, the power, and ultimately the very presence of sin. However, His death, which was for all mankind, is effective only for those who in repentance and faith accept His redeeming grace and turning from their sin.

I. Worldly Pleasure Brings Sorrow (vv. 11-16).

Selfishness is at the heart of sin, which is essentially self-will over against God's will. The younger son, who represents the sinner, wanted his own way. He suffered from

1. Restlessness Under Restraint (vv. 11, 12). The father loved his son and sought his welfare by proper parental control, but the boy wanted to be free to live as he pleased. God loves all men and seeks by loving and gracious restraint to lead them in ways of righteousness and peace. But they, while they want His blessings, are often eager to get away from His guiding hand.

2. A Request Resulting in Responsibility (vv. 12, 13). When the prodigal asked for his inheritance he took upon himself full responsibility for its use. The man who refuses to have Christ rule over his life assumes a grave and heavy burden which he is not able to bear.

It is an awful thing to rule God out of one's life, to attempt to steer a successful course through the stormy sea of life. Why do it? It will always result in loss and failure.

3. Riotous Living Leading to Reproach (vv. 13-16). In the "far country" he found for a time what we call "fun," but it led to bitter sorrow. To the flesh there are "pleasures of sin" (Heb. 11:25), but they are only "for a season"; that is, "very short lived—and they come high. The devil is not such a fool as to go fishing without bait." The pleasures of sin are the devil's bait, and they always have a hook in them. If you bite at the devil's bait you will soon have the devil's hook in your gills and be in the bottom of the devil's boat" (John W. Bradbury).

The end of Satan's "fun" road was a pigpen in a far country. That may not always be literally true (although it happens often enough), but it is always true spiritually. Men and women are in a state of spiritual collapse and disgrace because they have rejected God's way. But there is a way out.

II. Godly Sorrow Brings Joy (vv. 17-24).

Paul tells us that "godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation" and thus differs from "the sorrow of the world" which "worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10). The prodigal found his way back to the father's house. First, there came to him

1. Remembrance and Realization (vv. 17-19). He began to think. If men and women could only be made to think we would have more repentance, but Satan tries to keep them too busy to think. He remembered what he had as a son in his father's household. What memories will your boy have in his hour of need? You are writing that record now.

He "came to himself." The man in sin is really unbalanced, subnormal, not himself, spiritually insane. When he "came to" he knew that he was in the way of the perishing. Then came

2. Repentance and Return (vv. 20, 21). To repent means to change your mind, to turn your life in an "about face" from sin to God. Repentance calls for more than thinking or talking or praying. One must act. The young man "arose and came to his father." That was his part, and then came the father's part—

3. Restoration and Rejoicing (vv. 22-24). The son expected to return as a hired servant, but his father restored him to full family fellowship. God is gracious, and the repentant sinner finds himself clad in the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, wearing the ring of sonship, with shoes on his feet, so that he may go on the errands of his Father.

God's plan of salvation brings no half-way redemption. There are no steps or distant relatives in His family. It is a full salvation which brings glorious fellowship in life and service.

You who are still eating the husks of this world, who are in the far country tending swine, we invite you too to come to God and share in the rejoicing in the Father's house.

Life a Struggle

Life is a struggle, but not a warfare; it is a day's labor, but labor on God's earth, under the sun and stars with other laborers, where we may think and sing and rejoice as we work.—John Burroughs.

SEVEN American league cities' club owners and managers, are already wondering how they are going to keep the Yankees from another common canter next season. So far they haven't found the answer. Maybe there isn't any answer. There is, certainly no solace at hand in suggesting that the Yankees are growing old. The vital statistics show that a ball player's prime is somewhere between 26 and 30. It is here he has the combination of youth and experience linked together. For example, Ty Cobb was 26 when he had his greatest season in 1911—when he batted .420.

Grantland Rice

How does this concern the Yankees?

Well, DiMaggio is 27, Gordon is 26, Killer Keller is 25, Henrich is 25, Rizzuto is 23, Sturm is 25, and Bonham, Russo, Donald and Breuer are all under 29.

It's true that William Malcolm Dickey, better known as Arkansas Bill, is 34. But Dickey, always in condition, is good for 80 or 90 games, and Buddy Rosar, Dickey's understudy, is only 27. Red Rolfe is 33. Ruffing and Gomez are no longer in the kid class. But Priddy is only 22, and there is some first-class talent coming up from Newark and Kansas City.

The Yankees, in the main, are still a young team—a team that is in its active prime. And there is still Joe McCarthy at the head with his team blending influence. No wonder the other American league clubs are in a sadly baffled frame of mind.

For while the Yankees have been mauling all National league rivals with considerable gusto, they also have been mauling their own league just as lustily.

Great Second Basemen

Joe Gordon's performance in the last World series will more than hold its place when the Hot Stove league opens its winter session.

In Gordon's case it might be remembered that he is still a young fellow, with 8 to 10 seasons left in his wiry system, and this is too soon to compare him with the masters of the past.

In this masters list you'll find Nap Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Frank Frisch, Rogers Hornsby—and these four are enough.

Lajoie, the most graceful of all ball players, was also a normal .350 hitter. Eddie Collins was faster than the big Frenchman and in addition was a .340 or .350 hitter. Hornsby was the best hitter of the lot with a consecutive four-year mark above .400. Bill Hanna, one of the wisest of all the baseball experts, always ranked Hornsby and Ed Delehanty as the two greatest right-handed hitters of all time—not even barring Wagner and Lajoie. Frank Frisch was another great second baseman, fast, aggressive, smart, and dangerous at bat.

It would be foolish to start ranking Gordon, in his fourth big league season, with these veterans who starred for 15 or 20 years each. I'll say in behalf of Gordon, however, that on the defense he can make plays I don't believe any other second baseman could match.

About Third Basemen

In any event, there are no third basemen now around who even can be compared with the best of other years—Jimmy Collins of Boston, Bill Bradley of Cleveland, Buck Weaver of the White Sox, to mention only three.

Collins, a fine artist, was also a normal .330 hitter—almost as graceful at third as Lajoie was at second.

Buck Weaver is Ty Cobb's all-time pick and Buck isn't far away from the top. Red Rolfe, in better health, might have been a closer challenger.

Efficiency can also be costly at times. For example, there are the Yankees. They have needed just 36 games to win their last eight World series competitions.

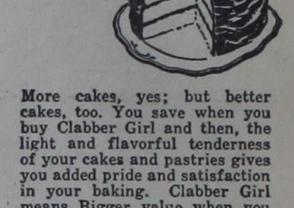

If they had been somewhat less efficient and had needed the full seven-game quota to win their titles, these eight World series contests would have required 56 games. This means 20 possible extra games blown off the docket, or a matter of some $3,500,000, which is quite a chunk of cash that combined ability and honesty have cost various club owners.

Mickey Owen's third-strike entanglement in the fourth game of the series undoubtedly cost both ball clubs over $250,000.

"I was standing close by at the moment," Joe DiMaggio tells me, "hoping for my time at bat. I can testify that that curve of Casey's broke with unusual speed and sharpness. Tommy Henrich is a cool-headed, quick-eyed hitter. Tommy is a hard one to fool. But he must have missed that sharp hook by at least a foot. Standing where I was, as close by, it is easy to understand why that third strike got away."

Dirigible as Air Weapon May Play Important Role

Almost Forgotten Air Arm Gets Serious Study; Federal and State Agencies Team In Unique Farm Experiment.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

While Washington debated the question of arming American merchantmen, the British were trying out a new and hazardous means of protecting their precious life-line of supply from attack from the air. Fighter planes were being placed on the crowded decks of freighters to be catapulted off when enemy bombers approached. When news of this move reached Washington it woke a slumbering plan for an almost forgotten defense of the skies.

The heroic British measure is an expensive undertaking, for there is no way to return a fighter plane to the ship once it is launched. Unless the vessel is within an hour's flight of land the plane must land at sea and sink. Unless the planes can land near the ship in quiet waters, the pilots have very little chance to escape a similar fate.

"Arming" their ships by means of this suicide measure is an example of the risks the members of the Royal Air Force are willing to take as their heavy share of battle and is evidence, too, of the extent to which the other arms of the British service have come to depend on these reckless knights of the air.

Englishman Tells Why

William Courtenay, member of the Royal Flying Corps, in the last war, flight commander of the R.A.F. in the present war, explained to a little group of American officers and members of congress in Washington recently why this step was taken.

"Just as command of the air won the battle of Britain," said Courtenay, "so command of the air is necessary to win the battle of the Atlantic."

Fire-power, he explained, is the essential in this war as it was in the last. Machine guns drove the armies of the last war underground and produced a stalemate which gave the British time to get their navy (and the United States navy) into action, break the German submarine blockade of the British Isles and blockade Germany.

To avoid such a stalemate again the Germans invented the panzer columns—high fire-power from very mobile units which ran the enemy down.

Thus Hitler won the battle of France, forced the British from the continent.

Then Goering began the battle of Britain. In Poland and in the low countries he had destroyed much of his opponents' air forces on the ground. He did this by surprise attack and because airfields were concentrated and the airplanes on them were close together. With the major part of the enemy fighters destroyed in Poland and in the low countries his bombers did their work without having to fight in the air for control of the air.

Luftwaffe Over Britain

The Luftwaffe lost the battle of Britain because the British dispersed their own forces on the ground—separated the airfields, spread out the planes along the edges. That saved their fighting planes and fighting planes gave Britain superior fire-power in the air. Because the bomber is built to carry a heavy load of bombs and gasoline to give it a longer cruising radius it cannot contend with the more mobile, more heavily armed and armored fighter.

The fighter's weakness, of course, is the fact that its cruising radius is short. It cannot remain long in the air and therefore, "the crying need," as Courtenay put it, "is a long-range fighter." If Germany had had long range fighters the battle of Britain might have turned out differently.

One way of giving the fighter range is to place it on a ship, but few ships are equipped so that planes can land on their decks. The aircraft carrier is an attempt to solve this problem but the aircraft carrier is the most vulnerable of ships.

Rigid Dirigible Considered

And so the attention of a little group in Washington has turned to an air arm which has been almost forgotten, the great rigid dirigible airship. True, 48 small airships have been authorized by congress for shore patrol duty and one has been completed, but the United States has no great dirigibles.

Capt. Charles Rosendahl has always believed in the dirigible. He was navigator of the first American-built airship, the Shenandoah, was the only senior officer who survived when that obsolete ship cracked up in a storm in 1925. Two more American airships, the Akron and the Macon, smashed, and then the German Hindenburg burned. This record discouraged almost everyone except Rosendahl. Today he believes that the airship would make an ideal patrol and aircraft carrier to supplement the other craft in modern warfare.

The airship, Captain Rosendahl says, can carry planes as easily as a surface aircraft carrier. They can return and anchor to her bosom. The great ship can spot submarines and mine fields below the surface, she can hover, even fly backwards, can drop depth charges.

Britain's latest step in "arming" merchant ships with planes may bring Rosendahl's dream to realization. Before the war is over we may see these great ships patrolling the sky-lanes once more, with the precious fighters tucked under their breasts, helping to solve the problem of establishing air superiority over the Atlantic.

An Experiment In Co-operation

There is always some starvation in the midst of plenty. With a record farm income ahead and prices on agricultural products going up there are still some folks who cannot make a go of it on the land because of circumstances which they cannot control. How federal and state assistance pulled some of these folks through in two North Carolina counties makes an interesting story.

Up in the Blue Ridge mountains in Allegheny and Ashe counties, farming among the boulders has always been tough going. It is a question for these farmers of getting part-time, outside work or going hungry. The trees used to solve the problem, the cutting of timber and selling it or working for the lumber companies. But the trees have gone.

The farms are not big enough to rate loans from the Farm Security administration, but properly run they could provide garden truck and grain for food and feed for their owners and pigs and chickens.

So the WPA stepped in, offered to give these mountain farmers from three to five months work a year provided the FSA would co-operate. An agreement with the North Carolina welfare department was worked out. Road building, a county office building, a hospital, needed conservation work, gave a small cash income to 500 certified families.

The farmers and their families did their part. They budgeted the money earned on the projects, improved their homes, water supply, sanitation, raised more food for their own consumption, canned an average of 300 quarts of vegetables and fruit for the winter.

The experiment was successful enough to interest the Farm Security administration to plan further, similar projects in the southern Allegheny region, which covers 55,000,000 acres. There is plenty of conservation work that needs to be done in that county and the forest service is expected to co-operate.

The net result of this program is work for men who need it, better food, better farms. This type of federal and state co-operation may grow into a great post-war conservation program.

The Office of the Chief of Chaplains has sent out the following order issued in 1776 by George Washington to the chaplains in the camps to support them in their admonitions against profanity:

"The General is sorry to be informed that the foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing, a vice heretofore little known in an American Army, is growing into fashion; he hopes the officers will, by example as well as by influence, endeavor to check it, and that both they and the men will reflect that we can have little hopes of the blessing of heaven on our arms if we insult it by our impiety and folly; added to this it is a vice so mean and low, without any temptation, that every man of sense and character, detests and despises it."

Fashion Advocates Lavish Use Of Fur in a Variety of Ways

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is most eloquently "saying it" with furs this season. According to the signs there is going to be a most grand and glorious display of furs this winter both as trimming and as coat or cape ensembles of sumptuous fur. Almost everything in the way of matching accessories that can be made of fur is being made of fur: hats, gloves, handbags, separate neckpieces, detachable plastron fronts, and lapel gadgets of bows and bou-tonnieres.

Milliners are giving of their best in creating fur hats matched to coats, to jackets, or to the trimming on one's gown and wrap.

The favor for browns has placed extra emphasis on the importance of mink. There's exciting fashion news in the sumptuous mink coat shown above to the right in the illustration. It is topped by a hat made glorious by a wide brim (huge fur hats will be worn this winter) of matching mink.

The young woman centered above in the picture is snappishly turned out in an ensemble of gray Chinese kidskin, the fingertip-length coat fashioned along very youthful lines.

The insistent call for sleek black by fashion sophisticates keeps Persian lamb and elegant broadtail in the limelight again this season. Royally luxurious is the broadtail ensemble shown in the upper left corner. Here a slim svelte princess coat demonstrates how up-to-the-minute is the styling given to furs this season. The hat is one of those new tall effects so definitely in style.

Its graceful feather trim is Kelly green for added color.

Fur capes are definitely something to talk about, for they are in the very foreground of the current fashion picture. The gorgeous cape lower right, is of lustrous black Persian lamb. The new rule for a black wrap worn with a color-bright dress is faithfully observed. The pretty, softly styled frock is in the widely sponsored new gold tone.

For daytime wear nothing exceeds leopard in chic, unless it be American opossum, which is also playing a star role. You will be perfectly tuned to the grandstand picture if you attend the game in a coat of leopard at lower left. It is a fashionable, three-quarter length style with a stand-up collar and bracelet-length sleeves—all very youthful and destined for an eye-smashing entry into any smart gathering.

A most extraordinary development in fur styling this season is the working of glittering embroidery on the lapels and collars of fur coats. The new fur capes are sometimes embroidered with a hem line bordering for evening. Brown sequins worked on mink hats, jet motifs on either black or white furs or metal thread embroidery punctuated with glistening jewels give to furs an entirely different aspect. Many of the most staid and conservative coats are bursting into glory with gleaming jeweled buttons.

Grandma's Buttons Make Style News

Dig into grandma's button box, and you may find hidden treasures that will cause your winter gowns and coats to soar to heights of sartorial glory. Better still, trek around to the button counters and see what a splurge buttons are making in the fashion realm.

Two important trends register in the button field, one of which is the inclination toward bulkiness. Buttons are sometimes massive and knobby. Also, the new buttons tell a grand and glorious color study. You, with everyone else, are going to wear a great deal more color this year than you did last, and accordingly button originals are keeping pace with the color commotion.

Plastic buttons are available in a full range of costume colors. A button that makes an interesting accent on frock or blouse is a molded plastic done in a flower design with nailhead detail. Fresh fashion interest is also developing in filigree buttons. A gold filigree button is proving especially attractive for dress-up blouses and party frocks. In fact, metal buttons rank high in favor, whatever the type.

Glitter is popular, and lovely rhinestone buttons flourish on wools, velveteens, dressy crepes, and the newest fashion note is rhinestone or other jeweled buttons on fur coats and jackets.

Woolies Defy the Chill Breath of Jack Frost

Farmers can prognosticate and their signs are unerring. It's "ditto" with fashion. Well, from all fashion indications, we will see wool mittens; long wool socks (sheer wool for daytime hose); heads done up in wool wimples; huge fur hats and muffs as extravagantly big. All will valiantly fulfill their mission of comfort and smart appearance when winter brings on its usual quota of days with a sharp tang.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

AFTER Veronica Lake made her screen debut in "I Wanted Wings," there was plenty of comment about what fashion experts call the "plunging neckline" of her attire. Veronica's necklines held the all-time record for plunging; for a while they attracted almost as much attention as Dorothy Lamour's sarongs. In "This Gun for Hire" the blonde bombshell is going to give the clothes-conscious public another jolt; this time she's going to wear tights. The script's to blame—she's cast as an entertainer in a night club who does sleight of hand tricks and sings, and that seems to call for tights. That is, it evidently does in Hollywood.

Telegraphers are going to have more fun than anybody when Eleanor Powell does that new tap dance in "I'll Take Manila"; to most of us it will be just a swell dance, but we're told that wireless operators will read a definite message in the taps!

Paramount's fixed up a bannister cycle for us—not Barbara Bannister, but the kind that accompanies stairs. In "Birth of the Blues" six-year-old Carolyn Lee power-dives down one, smack into Bing Crosby. In "The Great Man's Lady" Barbara Stanwyck slides down another, in crinolines. For "The Wizard of Arkansas" Bob Burns shoots the bannister chutes, but Burns, of course, is different; he picks up a splinter on the way. And this, it is felt, will definitely end the bannister cycle.

Richard de Rochemont, managing editor of The March of Time, says that filming "The Story of the Vatican" was like a vacation. Since 1934 he has been chasing film scoops, and more than once he's escaped death by a narrow margin. "At the Vatican I had a good crew of technicians, all our locations were in a small area, and there were no intrigues or subversive movements to be dealt with," says he.

The latest March of Time is "Sailors With Wings," which traces the development of the navy's air service and how it operates in partnership with the fleet; it's vital and absorbing, one of those pictures that you won't want to miss.

The manager of an RKO theater on Long Island heard patrons imitating the voice of the RKO Pathe rooster so often that he finally arranged a contest and let them crow for cash and poultry; several hundred persons mounted the stage and crowded like mad.

Glenn Ford almost sailed off to distant ports the other day as a way of getting into the right mood for "Martin Eden," his next picture. He was just stepping on board a freighter, believing that its next stop was San Francisco, when a production assistant raced to the dock and stopped him. He wanted to sign on as a seaman and see what it was like. But—five minutes later the freighter sailed—for Honolulu.

The radio scoop of the year is the signing of Shirley Temple to do four programs for one of the big watch manufacturers. For the first time in her career she'll be on the air regularly—Friday evenings, December 5 to 26, 10 to 10:30, Eastern Standard Time, on CBS. She will do a series of four Christmas programs, in which she will sing and present Christmas playlets, and her salary for the month's work will be $50,000. Radio sponsors have been pursuing the young star for years.

ODDS AND ENDS—"Hold Back the Dawn" is holding back other pictures; theater owners have found it so popular that they're extending its run, and it's running neck and neck in receipts with "Caught in the Draft," Paramount's top grosser of the year. . . . Oscar Levant, of "Information Please" and a couple of pictures, has been signed to a term contract by Paramount. . . . Berwyn, Okla., will appear on new maps as Gene Autry, Okla. . . . Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are reunited again in "I Married an Angel" . . . Milton Berle can tell five jokes a minute and keep up that pace for two hours without repeating himself, if anybody'll let him.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And, favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feet weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Carnival November 7th

In spite of the bad weather, which caused the annual Halloween carnival to be called off, the carnival this year will be the best in its history, according to director general E. E. Gregory. The carnival is being planned for Friday night, Nov. 7. Everyone is invited to come with pockets jingling, spirits high and faces smiling, for a good time. All carnival events will be carried on in great style, from the fish pond to the regular "baby show" featuring Fred Henry as the "baby". The proceeds from the carnival will go to the Bovina PTA and through that organization to the school for new band suits. All are invited to attend.

Increasing Farm Accidents Attributed to Machine Age

Above—When the horses start, the knife-sharp blades of the discs begin to turn. Agricultural implements are the leading farm accident hazard. Right—Cigarettes and gasoline are noted for their teamwork in causing serious injury and costly fires.

Farmer Is Urged By Red Cross to Check Accident Hazards

Washington, D. C.—Mechanization of the American farm is accounting for a mounting accident fatality toll, the Red Cross pointed out in an appeal for farm owners to participate in its year-round Home and Farm Accident Prevention drive beginning the last week of October.

Of the 4,500 farm workers killed by accidents last year, approximately 28 per cent were due to carelessness and the use of faulty implements, the Red Cross said. Ill-tempered animals, vehicles, excessive heat and falls led other farm accident causes in that order.

To the farmer, the Red Cross urges a close check-up for the removal of accident hazards. Machinery, tools and other equipment should be examined periodically and kept in good repair. Tools and implements should be kept in regular places, out of the farm yard or where they may cause a serious fall. Bulls, boars and other dangerous animals should be kept in secure pens.

Approximately 50 injuries of varying degree occur for every farm accident fatality—a nation-wide total of some 225,000 for last year, the Red Cross appeal for greater safety pointed out.

To launch this year's Accident Prevention program the Red Cross again will distribute 10,000,000 home and farm "check lists." By following the suggestions urban householders can systematically check the home for accident hazards. A similar check-up is outlined for the removal of hazards on the farm.

POINTERS ON MAKING SILAGE

COLLEGE STATION—Silage-making is under full steam in Texas but is attended by feed problems of harvesting, and selection and treatment of the feed designed for storage in the pit containers on Texas farms.

Scanning a cross section of the problems, E. R. Eudaly, dairyman of the A. & M. College Extension Service, assures farmers that shocked grain sorghum stalks make good silage provided the feed is thoroughly wet as it is put into the silo. He suggests that the best way to add the water is to let it run into the cutter and let it pass out with the feed.

Smutty redtop cane heads will not ruin silage for cattle, but he advises against feeding it to horses.

It is not necessary to add molasses in making silage out of Johnson and sudan grasses, Eudaly says, if the grasses are headed out and the seed is in the dough stage. But if the grasses were cut before the seed was in the dough stage it would be best to sprinkle each ton with a mixture of five gallons of molasses to 15 gallons of water. Molasses also should be added when making silage out of alfalfa, clover, cowpeas, soybeans, peanuts, green cotton stalks, sunflowers, bermuda and other similar grasses.

Eudaly recommends two methods of handling feed which is not likely to mature before frost. One means is to cut it and allow it to lie on the ground, a bundle to the place, for a week, provided the ground is dry, and then put it in the silo thoroughly wetting it in the process. The other method is to let the frost kill the feed, then cut and put it in the silo with necessary water added. But he suggests delaying cutting until two or three days after the frost.

Sweet potato vines make good silage if they are cut and allowed to dry 12 to 24 hours, or are run through a cutter along with dry grain sorghum bundles, cane bundles, Johnson grass or some other dry feed. It is not necessary to add molasses. At present feed prices sweet potato vine silage is worth about $4 a ton. Failure to save the vines would represent a loss of $12 an acre.

PLAN HOME LANDSCAPING

COLLEGE STATION—The present is a suitable time to make a landscape plan which may be carried out during this year's planting season. Sadie Hatfield, specialist in landscape gardening of the Texas Extension Service says that it is generally considered safe to transplant trees and shrubs after the first frost and until the next growing season begins. The planning and planting of the home landscape is an activity in which the whole family can partici-

Chicken Loaf with GRILLED APRICOTS

by Dorothy Greig

THE next time you have roast chicken and it has reached that denuded state in which there is still some chicken left but not enough for a family meal, do this:

Take a sharp little knife and carefully strip off every last morsel and shred of the chicken meat until you have a good cupful of chicken pieces.

Just one cupful is all we need for this delicate chicken loaf. Yet by the time we finish, it comes to the table in all the glory of a fresh hot main dish for dinner, sufficient to serve four or five generously. We deepen the chicken flavor by adding condensed chicken soup to our mixture. This helps keep it moist, too. The red of chopped pimiento and green of parsley make it look extra appetizing.

The loaf is smooth in texture and tender to the knife, slicing down neatly without crumbs. As a final touch garnish with hot grilled apricot halves:

- 1 can condensed chicken soup
- 1 cup chicken
- 1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon pimiento, chopped
- 1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs

Strain the rice, celery and chicken from the chicken soup. Combine them with chicken and put through the food chopper using the small blade. Then mix the chicken mixture with the soft bread crumbs, chicken consommé from soup, chopped pimiento, chopped parsley, salt and eggs. Put into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 45-60 minutes or until firm. Garnish with grilled apricots. Serves 4-5.

*Special Note—If you prefer a loaf that is decidedly firm, add one more egg to the chicken mixture.

To develop a landscape plan successfully, some knowledge is necessary for making it, and thought and attention to it are required. Miss Hatfield suggests a preliminary visit by the family to some well landscaped homes to observe and use some of the desirable features such as convenient arrangement of walks and drives, placing of shade trees to keep out the sun, screening of the work area from public view, and outdoor living rooms or play areas. It is a good idea, too, for the family to make a trip or two to a nursery and nearby woods to study shrubs and trees which might be used in the landscape.

Each family should know the names of at least five shade trees, five evergreen shrubs, five deciduous shrubs, and five fruit trees which they would like to use in their homestead beautification. More or fewer plants than these may be used, but it is desirable to at least know those mentioned. Miss Hatfield believes it will be helpful to read aloud and discuss in the family circle some bulletins on landscaping. These may be obtained from the offices of the county extension agents or by writing to the Extension Service of A. & M. College.

Health Notes

by Texas Department of Health

AUSTIN—A timely and urgent warning against the careless handling of firearms during the hunting season was issued today by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"During the year 1940 a total of 179 deaths occurred in Texas as the result of firearm accidents, by far the majority of them due to hunting activities," said Dr. Cox. "A hunter's loaded gun, when not carried on safety, is a menace to himself and to everyone within firing range."

Dr. Cox pointed out that while hunting is one of the nation's most enjoyable outdoor sports; this deplorable toll of human lives goes on annually due almost entirely to carelessness. "Many men go hunting year after year without harm to themselves or their companions because they handle a gun cautiously and with good sense," he declared.

"There is little excuse for the brand of carelessness or clumsiness that kills. If each hunter will use precautions to go through the hunting season without accidental injury to himself or his hunting companion, the death toll in Texas from firearm accidents will be reduced nearly seventy-five percent," Dr. Cox stated.

Approximately 8,000 people in 1940 saw a movie, "Texas Cooperatives in Action", which was made by C. E. Bowles, Extension Service specialist in organization and cooperative marketing.

Women do many farm chores, and with boys being called to the colors likely they'll do more in the future. Those with such active jobs will do well to investigate some new work clothes designed by the Bureau of Home Economics, advises Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, clothing specialist for the Texas Extension Service. At the left is a one-piece cotton coverette made for chores such as milking, gardening and tending the chickens. For heavier farm work is the field suit worn by the girl on the right. It has fasteners which close the legs at the ankle and half sleeves that snap on and off.

ONLY "RIPE" TURKEYS SHOULD BE MARKETED

COLLEGE STATION—The year's biggest demand for turkeys is in the offing. It is timely, therefore, for producers to go over all marketable birds carefully, much as livestockmen cut out their cattle, says George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the A. & M. Extension Service. Only those turkeys often referred to as "ripe" are in best condition to go to market.

Growers can determine whether birds have developed well in flesh by feeling the keel and along the shoulders and thighs. If they are well fleshed then examine further to see whether they have put on fat. This is best indicated by layers of fat found along the thin feather tract of the breast and on the thighs. Examination should continue to see whether they have developed pin feathers.

Pin feathers, McCarthy explains, cut a turkey in grade probably more than any other thing. If a turkey has not developed pin feathers to the point where they protrude through the skin and have taken on a fanlike shape, then it can easily be classified as green. Should a turkey of this kind be dressed out a heavy scattering of pin feathers would be found over the breast and on the thigh. The degree of pin feather development can easily be determined by folding back some feather tracts along the breast to see whether feathers have developed well in the area, then looking on the inside of the wing to see whether feathers have protruded through the web part of the wing. If the thigh is rather smooth to the touch, then pin feathers have developed and taken on a fanlike shape, and the turkeys will dress out as a good market bird, McCarthy says.

"I find that lots of our toms are marketed too early. If they had been kept off the market another three or four weeks they would have topped the market in quality. So, in selecting turkeys for marketing at Thanksgiving, be sure to look over the toms carefully and do not sell any which are not in top condition."

Spraying of certain chemicals has been found to hasten the maturity of potatoes on experimental plots at an Idaho research station.

FOURTH AND FIFTH GRADE

Last week in our language classes each grade organized a Citizenship Club. Donald Ford was elected president of the fourth, and Warlick Thomas named president of the fifth. The fifth grade will meet for its first program Friday afternoon. The following week the fourth grade will meet.

In fifth grade geography we are studying the New England states. A number of toy trucks have been brought to school and we have loaded them with products from these states. This has helped us to remember the states and their products.

We have selected about ten dollars worth of new library books for our room. Three new books were added to our library this week by two class members Rosamond Booth brought "The Little Lame Prince", and "Helen's Babies". Marcia Anne Johnson donated "The Bobsey Twins in Washington".

Estelle Stanley was absent all last week because of illness.

DRAMATICS CLUB ORGANIZED

With Linnette Cain as sponsor, the Dramatics Club was organized and elected as its officers: president, Jane Lokey; vice president, Billie Sharpe; secretary-treasurer, James Martin; reporter, Nadire Smith; stage managers, Karl Gast, and Paul Robertson.

The first play to be is entitled "Sauce For the Gossips" with a cast of: Richard Taylor, Karl Gast; Margaret Taylor, Billie Sharpe; Robert Taylor, Arlon Lovelace; Elizabeth Taylor, Dorothea Deaton; Martha Lee, Ella Bee Shelley; James Ward, Lyndel Ritchie; maid, Maxine Justice.

Several names have been suggested as names for the club. Four of these have been put before the club for a vote, being: The F. H. Players, The Dramastoozes; The Tramdians; The Dramdoers.

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The junior class sponsored a bingo booth at the Hallowe'en carnival and we are very proud of our profit. We want to thank the members of the PTA for helping make the profit possible.

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

ECONOMICS NEWS

The Economics class has been working on the term theme, which is based on farm problems. We have also been studying about budgets. We had our three weeks test Friday.

ALGEBRA II

We have been studying products and factors, and also studying equations.

FFA NEWS

The Farwell chapter of the Future Farmers of America recently held the second meeting of the year for the purpose of initiating the greenhands, and for business. The members voted to buy a new owl for the advisor. A report from the secretary and treasurer was given.

The following boys were initiated:

Duane Sprawls, Silas Green, Lynn Smith, Frank Ford, Ronald London, Samuel Hines, Gilbert Blake, Glenn Phillips, Alton Young, Ruben Meisner, Billy Martin, George Magness.

FHT CLUB

The Farwell chapter of FHT held its annual Hallowe'en party October 23. A very large crowd of girls were present to enjoy different types of word games and bobbing for apples. Two feature attractions were the terror house, directed by Johnnie Hillhouse and Ella Bee Shelley, and fortune telling, sponsored by Miss Cain. Another enjoyable attraction was the freshman initiation, in which the freshmen were requested to push an onion across the room and back with their noses. Every time an upper classman spoke to one of them they had to get on their knees and bow, saying "praise Allah". The girls enjoyed refreshments of pumpkin pie and hot chocolate, prepared by the second year home ec class as a class problem. Each person also received a Hallowe'en favor.

Those appointed to attend the area meeting, Nov. 15, were the officers, including president Theda White; vice-president Jane Lokey; secretary Jean Ann Hart; and reporter Johnnie Hillhouse. Two delegates, one from each class, will be elected to accompany them.

WHO'S WHO IN SENIOR CLASS

Last week's "Who's Who" article was Merle Lovelace, if you couldn't guess.

This week we have a bright senior boy who has been with us all his school years. Some of his favorites are:

- Subject—Algebra II.
- Hobby—Eating.
- Actor—Spencer Tracy.
- Actress—Alice Faye.
- Sport—Baseball.
- Movie—Klute Rockne.
- Book—Death Comes For the Archbishop.
- Pet Peeve—He has none.
- Food—Ice cream.

HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION FOR A STRONG AMERICA

By Mrs. Ermon Miller Farwell Homemaking Teacher

Home economics contributes to education from kindergarten through adult life. It meets the needs of young people of both sexes in the fields of personal and home living; it prepares for homemaking; it trains for certain wage-earning occupations; it prepares for a wide range of positions on the professional level.

Shown below are the four major purposes of education, and these are the aspects of education for which home economics carries a major responsibility in many schools, or to which it makes a valuable contribution. Under the present Homemaking Program in the Farwell schools, the following objectives are repeatedly brought before the student through the experience afforded under the guidance of the local supervisor:

The Objectives of Self-Realization: The educated person understands the basic facts of health and disease; protects his health and that of his dependents; gives responsible direction to his life; appreciates beauty; works for the health of his community; is skilled in homemaking; maintains democratic family relationships.

The Objectives of Human Relationships: The educated person puts human relationships first; enjoys a rich and varied social life; works and plays with others; observes the amenities of social behavior; appreciates the family, conserves family ideals, is skilled in homemaking; maintains democratic family relationships.

The Objectives of Economic Efficiency: The educated person knows the satisfactions of good workmanship; understands the possibilities of various occupations; appreciates the social value of his work; plans the economics of his own life; develops standards for his expenditures; is an informed buyer; takes appropriate measures to safeguard his interests.

The Objectives of Civic Responsibility: The educated citizen is sensitive to the disparities of human circumstance; has defenses against propaganda; respects honest differences of opinion; has regard for the nation's resources; measures scientific advance in terms of the general welfare; respects the law; has unswerving loyalty to democratic ideals.

The outstanding trends in home economics education today are the growing part it plays in general education thru its contribution to units, courses, and core programs; and its emphasis on human values and understandings, on the worth of the individual, on attitudes, appreciations, and skills that will make life satisfying.

Develops Physical Fitness

Harriet Elliot, Consumer Commissioner of the National Defense Commission, writes: "Defense is planes and guns: It is this and more, it is building the health, the physical fitness, the social well being of all our people". We are not a physically fit nation. Many people do not have money to buy the food they need; many who have the money do not know how to select the proper food, nor do they desire to learn how.

Home economists see as one of their major tasks the need to work with all agencies in schools and communities in order to reach the individuals and groups who need help to achieve the physical fitness so essential to any nation. Parmer county has an active group of vocational people conducting a lively program.

While the greatest contribution of home economics to the attainment of physical fitness has been thru its work in the field of food selection and use at various levels of expenditure, this is not its only contribution. Home economists are working with families in order that they may better understand the importance of housing adapted to family needs and income; many are helping to plan and equip "model-housing" projects under both private and federal auspices.

Thru classes and conferences, individuals and families gain knowledge and skill in the selection of clothing that is comfortable, affords protection, is easily cared for. Emphasis is laid on the importance of cleanliness, not only of clothing but of person and surroundings.

Adequate food, housing, clothing, a balance between work and play, are all factors in attainment of physical fitness.

Improves Economic Well-Being

The old saying "a penny saved is a penny earned" was never more true than now. The modern concept of saving is two-fold—putting into use as well as laying away for the future. Home economics helps families and individuals to increase their resources by teaching understandings and skills in use of materials, money, energy and time. It helps by teaching purchase, utilization and care of foods, clothing, home equipment and supplies. It helps families to better utilization of time and energy by teaching efficient methods of work and by increasing use of labor saving devices and techniques.

Homemaking in schools helps family nutrition through work with young people who carry home information and skills learned, and, frequently, adults are reached directly with such instruction. It does this by teaching food needs of the body and how these can be supplied, how to modify recipes, to simplify them, or lower their cost; how to make use of homegrown foods and supplement them with purchased foods; how to plan meals that are nourishing, appetizing, and within range of the budget; how to prepare foods to conserve food and food values.

Well-nourished people tend to be healthy and free from many of the disabling ailments, and thus lose less time from work. In this way, not only is loss of wages prevented, but also expenditures for medical attention. Hence, home economics makes an indirect contribution to economic well-being thru its work in the field of nutrition.

This phase emphasizes consumer education, enabling people to get better returns for money expended. It helps plan the best use of income and develops understanding of the importance of weighing values, distinguishing between wants and needs, luxuries and necessities. Thus families are able to get greater satisfaction from their incomes with less worry. Thus, thru its interest in individuals and families, home economics is able to improve economic well-being thru the better management and use of material and physical resources.

Teaches Ways Of Democracy

The major responsibility of the preservation of the democratic way of life rests in the home. The school can only supplement or modify the attitudes and ideals established before the child enters its doors and then conditions within the home may tend to nullify much the school has accomplished.

Enriches Family Life

It has been said that a nation of wholesome homes will solve its economic and social problems. Since no nation can be stronger than its homes, human values must be conserved by preventing the development of fanatics, of dwarfed twisted personalities, thru home and family life that is satisfying to the group and to its individual members.

Dr. Muried Brown writes in the Journal of Home Economics: "It is the business of a family life education program to help people discover what it is that makes family life good; to find out how they can work consistently toward these values in their own family situations; to develop the appreciations, attitudes, and skills to implement their philosophies."

Home economics education recognizes that family life is enriched not thru courses alone, but thru their application.

Baptist Ladies Entertain City Church Women

Members of the Baptist missionary group acted as hostesses the past Wednesday afternoon to ladies from all churches of the city, with sixty persons being in attendance.

The purpose of the program was a discussion of uniting the ladies' organizations of all churches into a federated city group, with the various representatives being asked to bring up the matter at their respective groups.

Taking the theme of "Friendship", Mrs. Warren Powers opened the meeting with the welcome, to which Mrs. E. J. Sloan responded. Mrs. S. G. Billington presented the scripture, after which Mrs. Roy B. Ezell led the group in prayer, and Miss Lynnette Cain gave a reading.

The object of the meeting was discussed by Mrs. E. G. Williams, and Mrs. John Lockhart spoke on "Friendships", following which Mrs. W. H. Graham sang, "What Is A Friendship?" was given by Mrs. D. J. Brown.

With the church being beautifully decorated with masses of bright fall flowers, the ladies then were invited to the tea table. Roses floating in a low bowl and guarded by tall candles formed the centerpiece, with Mrs. Lockhart and Mrs. W. C. Wright presiding.

Takes Special Work In Chicago Conservatory

Mrs. Florence Millwee Vinyard, Farwell piano instructor who conducts classes locally, in Clovis and Bovina, returned the past weekend from Chicago, where she had spent eight days studying at the American Conservatory of Music.

Mrs. Vinyard had been carrying a course through the conservatory by means of correspondence. While there she did additional work on counterpoint and composition. Mrs. Vinyard has written a number of songs for local talent, which have been very well received.

Her ability as a music instructor is unusual, with a number of her students being listed as outstanding pianists in this area.

Week of Prayer Held By Methodist Ladies

With weather conditions cutting the expected attendance, the Methodist ladies held their annual Week of Prayer program at the church building, the past Thursday evening.

Mrs. W. H. Graham acted as leader of the program, with Mrs. E. J. Sloan, Mrs. Marty Ezell, Mrs. Roy B. Ezell, Mrs. B. N. Graham, Mrs. Loyd Cain, Mrs. V. Scott Johnson and Miss Hazel Anglin taking parts. Prior to the program, the group enjoyed a buffet supper.

Keith Levy, a Texas Tech student, was a weekend visitor with friends and relatives in Farwell.

Girl Scout Troop Is Organized Locally

Miss Lynnette Cain, of the Farwell faculty, has assumed the responsibility of sponsoring the local Girl Scout troop, it has been announced here, with the group holding a meeting recently, at which officers were elected.

Standing officers for the year include: First Lieutenant, Jane Lokey; Second Lieutenant, Billie Sharpe; Scribe, Peggy Schleuter; Treasurer, Norma Jean Thomas; Patrol No. 1, Thea White; Patrol No. 2, Johnnie Hillhouse.

The date for meetings has been set as alternate Wednesday afternoons, at 3 o'clock, in the school building, with the dues for membership being 50c per girl for the year.

"Education" Is Theme Of PTA Meeting

Taking as its theme "Education At The Crossroads", the Farwell Parent Teacher Association will meet on Thursday evening, November 13th, at the local school building.

According to the yearbook of the association, the following program has been arranged: Thanksgiving supper, 7 o'clock; special numbers arranged by Miss Lynnette Cain; "Shall We Take the Cost of Military Defense Out of the Education Budget?", Sam Aldridge; and "Helping the Child to Adjust in a Changing World", Supt. L. A. Harley, Texico.

Local officials urged today that all members of the PTA be on hand for this program, which is considered one of the most educational of the year.

Mrs. L. M. Grissom Is Hostess To Society

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Oklahoma Lane Methodist church met in the home of Mrs. E. L. Grissom, last Tuesday, for a "Week of Prayer Program".

Each member present took part in the program, which was followed by a chain prayer and an offering.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Geo. Lindop Nov. 6.

Those present were Mesdames E. H. Young, Grandma Hughes, W. N. Foster, Geo. Lindop, C. F. Summers, C. C. Christian, L. M. Grissom and Alta Roberson.

Faculty Will Gather For Annual Social

The annual get-together of the Farwell faculty, plus invited wives and husbands, will be held in the homemaking department on Thursday evening of this week, officials of the school said today.

Entertainment for the evening will be games of "42", and refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the social.

Program Held Tuesday

The Pickering Family, which was to have appeared in the Texico auditorium last Thursday evening, instead presented their musical concert to a good audience here, on Tuesday night, the date being changed due to inclement weather. Supt. L. A. Hartley stated that a nice profit was realized from the program, with the proceeds going to the hot lunch project of the school.

Tid-Bits »

Mrs. E. J. Sloan went through a most embarrassing experience a few days ago. Visiting at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Sloan took her leave while another visitor was also present—and from force of habit, entered the other lady's car and drove merrily off down the block, returning with a shamefaced expression a few minutes later. Funniest part of it was that the Sloan car was completely out of town, and it isn't a Chevy, but a Plymouth!

Modernization may be quite the thing of the moment, but Claude White isn't quite sure whether he likes it. Last spring, the White home burned, and the family now has a new house, complete with the latest in furniture—only Claude, when coming in from the field, isn't allowed to sit on a thing until it is carefully covered.

And Jean Ann Hart wished she had a hole to sink through the other night at the carnival. All toggled out as a trumpeter in the coronation of the Queen, Jean Ann forgot to place her trumpet to her lips when the man-behind-the-scenes broke out with the fanfare, giving a rather peculiar effect, all the way 'round.

Jennie Lee London was mourning the loss of a tooth this week, which will have to be replaced by a bridged-in man-made chawer. "My mouth is going to be the most valuable thing I have," she said today, "and if anybody comes to me wanting to borrow money, I'll just take out my tooth and hand it to them."

Funniest story we've heard in a long time was going the rounds this week. Seems that a truck collided with a car driven by a minister, and the burly truck driver promptly leaped out and proceeded to cuss the minister up and down and 'round and 'round, for everything he could think of. When he finally stopped for breath, the minister said mildly, "Well, son, I'm a minister of the gospel, and don't use profane language—but I hope when you get home your mother runs out from under the porch and bites you".

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Policy of 'Delivering the Goods' In Effort to Aid Foes of Hitlerism Is Nation's Objective, Says President; Nazis Pound Russians on Three Fronts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

POLICY: Defined by FDR

On the same day as the senate opened its debate on the historic measure aimed at stripping the neutrality act of all restrictions on American shipping, the President delivered his Navy day address in which he declared that the U. S. foreign policy was one of "delivering the goods" to friends of democracy.

He said that despite U. S. efforts to avoid it, "the shooting has started." Bristling with "challenges to the Nazis, his speech pledged his administration to a policy of destroying Hitlerism and assisting in establishing a peace which will make a better world.

In writing to the Foreign Policy association an exposition of his own foreign policy, President Roosevelt had said that it was so simple a child could understand it.

The cardinal principle, he asserted, was the destruction of the "Hitler menace" and the protection of the American way of life from a system that would destroy it.

He admitted that there were those in this nation who would lull the people into a sense of false security, but warned that this action had preceded the fall of every country now occupied by Axis forces.

This and his Navy day address served the purpose of clarifying the situation as regarded the road the United States was prepared to travel in following the administration's leadership.

The President expressed himself as confident that his aims were the popular aims of the nation, and that the people would be ready with such sacrifices as would be necessary to carry them out.

SOVIET DEFENSE:

Last Ditch

What was called the "last-out" attack possible for the Germans to launch had been touched off on all three of the major Soviet fronts, and there were indications that the defenders were reaching their last ditch.

The "military miracle" was happening before the eyes of the world, as the Red troops had apparently halted the full fury of the Nazi advance, had kept their defense lines intact, and were putting up what even Berlin admitted was a magnificent defense.

But whether they could continue to hold or not remained the latter part of the needed miracle. Germany announced the fall of Khar'kov, Donets basin industrial center, a city of 850,000 souls, of 12-

These are three women of the crew of the Russian freighter Petrovski which docked in the U. S. recently—the first Russian vessel to arrive here since the outbreak of the Russo-German war. story industrial buildings, dubbed the Pittsburgh of Russia.

Fantastic stories were told of the losses on each side.

"Strange was the report from Moscow, telling of Stalin in personal command, of the removal of Budenny and Voroshilov from command, to take charge of the forming of new armies, and of the placing of Timoshenko in actual command of the defense of the capital.

'BUTCHERIES':

Continuing

Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and General DeGaulle all had their say about what they called the "Nazi butcheries" of hostages which were continuing all over occupied Europe.

Resentful people were taking pot shots at high Nazi officers, and each time one of these hit a vital mark, scores of persons connected only distantly with the crime were being executed.

DEFIANCE:

By Miners

Following a 40-day period in which the National Mediation board had sought vainly for a peaceful settlement, and in which finally President Roosevelt himself had attempted to take a hand, a strike of 35,000 coal miners in seven vital mines had been called by John L. Lewis.

The headlines made the issue plain. Lewis Defies Roosevelt. Once an enthusiastic partisan of the administration, a man who had seen his C.I.O. grow to enormous stature under the broadly liberal labor laws passed under the Roosevelt administration, Lewis openly defied the President's personal request for "no strike."

The mines were the captive mines of the steel companies, and from them the coal and coke vital to steel-making were drawn, the steel firms contracting for the mines' entire output.

The strike was seen to hit at the very heart of the national defense.

Out of it, the friends of the labor movement frankly feared, would come the signing by the President of a long-dreaded "work or fight" order which would draft all defense strikers summarily into the army.

The strike was being watched with keen anxiety in dozens of important quarters.

KNOX:

And Japan

Secretary Knox of the navy, in an address, had stated that some sort of clash of a military and naval nature with Japan was "inevitable" and for once Tokyo seemed willing to agree with one of his utterances.

From Tokyo comes this picture of a Japanese aviator described by the caption as "about to take off" in fighting the Chinese. Note the Japanese flag being tied about his head.

The Domei news service, and the Times Advertiser, both authoritative, predicted that a special session of the diet would be called for the direct purpose of discussing Japanese-American relations.

They were both gloomy over the outlook for the lasting peace in the Pacific that the United States desired, and Japan was apparently fighting for—provided it would be a peace dominated by Nippon.

The American formula for peace was this: Withdrawal from China and Indo-China of Japanese, Americans and British. Recognition of the United States of the puppet government of Manchukuo. Guarantees of inviolability of territory to the "status quo" of governments.

And all recognized that Japan was far from willing to sign any such treaty.

KEARNY:

A Diary Story

The widow of a London doctor, only passenger on a recent convoy from Britain to the United States, kept a brief daily diary of her trip, and from it readers were able to glean more facts about the Kearny's torpedoing than they had from naval reports.

The torpedoing occurred two days after the convoy left Iceland, two days after the ships had been joined by the Kearny and "another U. S. destroyer."

Though the diarist's vessel was some distance from the naval ships, she wrote of the shattering impact of the depth bombs discharged by the Kearny when a submarine was reported.

She wrote: "Our ship trembled like a leaf at each discharge. I thought surely we had been hit."

The Kearny and the other destroyer left the convoy, and were not seen again, she continued. Two days later she heard the Kearny had been torpedoed.

This gave the public a picture of the incident, and showed that in all probability the Kearny, after dropping depth bombs, must have followed the trail of the submarine, and finally was hit by a torpedo during the pursuit.

PARACHUTE: A New Hero

ARTHUR H. STARNES
A long drop for science.

One of aviation's most thrilling stories was that of the parachutist, Arthur H. Starnes, who leaped from a plane at 31,500 feet, carrying some 25 pounds of extra equipment, and didn't pull his rip-cord until he was 1,500 feet from the ground.

He risked his life to find if a human brain could retain consciousness through such a free fall from such an altitude. He lost consciousness for just a second, at the moment when his chute opened and snapped him into comparative immobility.

At the instant it opened he was traveling 190 miles per hour. He somersaulted in the air—fell straight, tried everything, and took 14 breaths, 6 deep and 8 light, in the 1 minute and 56 seconds he was falling.

He landed safely two minutes after the first of the two chutes he carried opened up. His feat opened a new way for pilots to escape in case their planes were disabled in combat.

NEUTRALITY:

Fight Commences

The fairly close vote in the senate foreign relations committee by which it was decided to add to the ship-arming bill an amendment permitting American ships to travel where they pleased with lease-lend cargoes, indicated that a severe fight was in prospect.

Senate anti-administration leaders, however, did not predict victory for themselves, but said that the bill, as amended, would probably pass by a close vote.

Delay and a full debate was what they promised, though there were indications that the ship-arming bill would have passed swiftly.

Wendell Willkie, in a statement following the committee action, had expressed himself "gratified" by the vote, and especially by the Republican reaction. But this was hard to understand, for only one G.O.P. member voted "aye," Senator White.

PLANES:

Death in Peace

The loss of five pursuit ships of the P-40 type, the American Spitfire, as it had been called, which vanished during a fog during which a squadron of 19 became separated from each other, showed this country that deaths in plane training could be heavy in peace as in war.

One pilot was seen to parachute from his ship in the mountains near Tehachapi, Calif. Another was found, burned to death, in the wreckage of his plane.

Seven bombers were searching for the others, systematically. They had to land on a field. The field was too small, and one cracked up.

Before they could take off again, a tractor and road graders were obtained. Emergency crews went to work lengthening the runways by 3,000 feet.

The bombers of the searching party arrived at the field in early morning. It was late afternoon before they could resume their search.

There was no expectation of finding the missing three pilots alive.

BENES:

His View

The former president of Czechoslovakia gave his views on the war, saying that the sudden and early winter in Russia was the death knell of Hitler's hopes.

The Nazis, he said, might last through this winter, taking the defensive in Russia, and turning their forces to other fields where the weather was better.

He could not see Germany surviving another winter. He claimed that Hitler was losing faith with his present associates, and that a military dictatorship soon would be formed, and following that Germany would collapse, for an internal schism would be set up.

Lincoln's Beard Result Of Little Girl's Suggestion

A little girl from Westfield, N. Y., once wrote Abraham Lincoln a letter as follows:

"I am a little girl, eleven years old . . . have you any little girls about as large as I am . . . If you will let your whiskers grow, you would look a great deal better for your face is so thin . . . I must not write any more answer this right off. Good bye. Grace Bedell."

A few months later, Lincoln let his beard grow. On one of his trips he passed through Westfield and immediately sent for Grace. He thrilled her by pointing to his beard and saying: "You see—I let those whiskers grow for you, Grace."

Washington, D. C. CANAL DEFENSE PLAN UPSET

It isn't going to be announced, but Nazi propaganda in South America has upset U. S. plans for an important new base defending the Panama canal. Plans had been carefully laid for commercial development of an island off the coast of Ecuador, to be followed by naval installations. But genial Jesse Jones innocently let the cat out of the bag, and the Germans did the rest.

The island is known as Albermarle, in the Galapagos group, lying southwest of Panama, a perfect location for watching Japanese maneuvers near the Pacific entrance of the canal. To inspect it Roosevelt went fishing there three years ago, when the U. S. S. Houston took him on a Pacific cruise.

Roosevelt had heard about the Galapagos since childhood. His great-uncle, Capt. Amasa Delano, put in at the islands on his voyages to China. And his mother, as a young girl, stopped there on a voyage to China.

The President personally was responsible for the strategy of forming an American trading company to develop Albermarle. He knew the sensitive Latins, knew that a direct proposal for building a U. S. naval base would arouse the old enemies of "Yankee imperialism," and that the only safe way was to set up a company for the development of fishing and cattle, thus bring the navy in edgeways.

Accordingly, the Pacific Development company was formed, incorporated in Delaware, and financed with funds from the RFC. First it got a credit of $30,000, but later, when a credit of half a million was extended, RFCzar Jesse Jones innocently announced it to the press.

Jesse Jones' Joke.

Apparently the naval stratagem was such a dark secret that even Jesse, a member of the cabinet, didn't know about it. So he announced it as nothing but a commercial development, because the island was owned not by Ecuador but by a private individual. And then he added a little jest of his own.

"And if you can spell the man's name," said Jesse, "I'll give you the island. The name is pronounced 'heel.'"

Up spoke a correspondent who knows Spanish well. "You spell it G-I-I," he said.

"That's right," said Jones. "Go to the head of the class."

"No," said the newsman. "I want the island."

"I'll owe you the island," said Jones, and everybody laughed.

But there was no laughter in the navy department; for German propaganda, through short-wave radio and local newspapers, stirred up the old fear of Yankee aggression, intimating that a U. S. naval base off the west coast of South America would make little puppets of the Good Neighbors for all time.

The propaganda was successful, and the deal had to be cancelled. It may be that the Pacific Development company will still pursue its "livestock, fishing, and mining of sulphur," as provided in the concession, but President Roosevelt's dream of a Panama defense base is sunk.

MORE CRACKDOWNS

You can put it down as a certainty that there will be other OPM crack-downs, in addition to the one on the Chicago "juke-box" firm, for "bootlegging" scarce raw materials.

OPM Priorities Director Donald Nelson said nothing about it, but he has his gimlet eye fixed on a big steel plant, an auto manufacturer and others. Both have been secretly thumbing their noses at priority restrictions.

The auto maker was called on the carpet by Nelson and spent several uncomfortable hours trying to explain the unauthorized purchase of a large quantity of strategic materials and the action of a parts subsidiary selling such supplies.

When the auto executive left OPM he was red-faced and obviously worried.

The steel company is suspected of secretly filling orders for big customers in direct violation of defense requirements, particularly naval. An investigation is now under way. The company has a long history of battling the government and the fur will fly if the suspicions are substantiated.

Note: After Nelson's investigators finish with their aluminum inquiries, they will move into chemicals, where there have been numerous complaints of wholesale disregard of priority orders.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Informed that defense officials want to use her famous legs to publicize non-silk stockings as soon as she has recovered from her fractured ankle, movie queen Marlene Dietrich sent back word that she stands ready, or will sit if preferred, for any patriotic purpose.

One subject that Speaker Sam Rayburn always is ready to talk about is his Texas ranch. "I like to be known as a rancher," he grins, "although I haven't got much to show for it."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Mothers-in-Law Should Remain Aloof

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

My son Don's interest in a twice-divorced woman quickly developed into an infatuation that swept everything else aside. I had hoped it would end when the voyage ended. She came to Brooklyn and he saw her every day.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"THE sons of all the other mothers I know have married decently," writes a despairing mother from Brooklyn. "Sometimes they haven't especially liked the girls, but invariably they have been fine girls, ambitious to make good homes, have children, help their husbands in every way they can.

"Only mine has lost all his bearings, forgotten everything I ever taught him or helped him to discover for himself and is planning a marriage that will wreck his life and alienate him from me forever! Let me tell you a little of his background. Both his father and grandfather were well-known doctors. My father was a musician; my mother belonged to one of the finest old families of Kentucky.

"Don lost his father when he was three, and I gave my whole life to him. His friends were the children of my friends. I tried in every way to keep him simple and unspoiled, for his beauty and charm were noticeable from the first. We spent many summers in Europe, where he perfected his languages. We were in Europe when the war broke out.

"It was with great difficulty that I obtained a cabin for the home trip. We had no sooner gone on board than Don brought to me a young woman with a small boy. Don was then 26, the woman admits being five years, and I think is at least eight years older than he. She is beautiful; the divorced wife of an Austrian count, herself American born of Swedish and English parents.

Married at Sixteen.

"We found out much later that her mother had been in a circus, and that she herself had been married at 16 to a man she divorced also. Don insisted, on this first meeting, that she and the child move into the cabin with me, while he found a bunk somewhere else; and I consented.

"I have blamed myself a thousand times for this, because Don's interest quickly developed into an infatuation that swept everything else aside. I had thought that with the end of the voyage it must end, but she came to Brooklyn, lived near us, and he saw her every day. He gave her the money for her divorce from the Austrian; gave her a great deal more than he could afford; bought her everything for which she showed the slightest whim. He paid over $2,000 for medical attention for the child.

"Now, you would think, if she decided upon a third marriage, it would be to my poor infatuated boy. Not at all. While spending Don's money at Reno she met a man who was, she said, the only man she ever had loved, and she married him there. My poor Don attempted suicide; we found him unconscious. Transfusions saved his life. I took him to Mexico, feeling that I would rather live there the rest of my life than expose him again to this siren.

"A month ago he left me without leave-taking, joined her, and is living with her now, caring for her and the child in a flat in New Jersey. Her marriage to her third husband, he says, can be proved illegal, and that as soon as she is free they are to be married. Meanwhile, as she is quite ill, and should have an operation, he is caring for her, bringing her trays, washing dishes, going to market. I followed him up, attempted to see him, to reason with him. But he is determined to make her his wife.

"I need not tell you what agony of spirit this causes me. She will never have a child. There will be an end to the family. She will not be faithful to him or give him a home; she has already all but ruined him; she will not be satisfied until he has my modest fortune, too. He asks me to try to understand her, that she is at heart only an adorable child.

MUST STEP ASIDE

The time has come, says Kathleen Norris, for this "Devoted Mother" to step aside, even though in doing so she must watch her only son risk his happiness by marrying a woman already two times divorced. There is nothing she can do for him now. And, of course, there is always a chance that he will make a success of his marriage. Then she will be sorry to have with her the memory of harsh words and bitter recriminations. Some mothers-in-law are lucky enough to be needed. But most mothers, Kathleen Norris continues, must learn that there may come a time when another woman means more to their sons than they do. Then they must face a period of loneliness before they begin to build for themselves a new and equally useful life. Don't fail to read this story of a "Devoted Mother."

"But I understand her only too well, and if that is the heart of a child there is something wrong with the child. Is there no way that I can stop this before it goes any further? Appeals to him have failed. Is there any use in appealing to her?"

"Don used to talk of being an architect; Cara wants him to go on the stage. He has not done a day's serious work for more than two years. I cannot stand idly by and see his life, trust, faith, future all ruined together! What can I do?"

In answer I would say, my dear "Devoted Mother," that in having this splendid son to yourself for the first 26 years of his life, absorbing him, glorying in his constant affection and companionship, you have had, in the argot of the day, about all that is coming to you.

Mother Should Withdraw.

Since there is no common ground of understanding between you and the woman he is so determined to make his wife, your only course is to withdraw. Tell them both frankly that you wish them well, that you want them to forgive any lack of enthusiasm or co-operation, and that if ever they need you you will be ready. And then go back to Mexico or to China or to Baffin's Bay and build a life for yourself, while attempting to assimilate the bitter truth, that the time comes when another woman is more important to a boy than even his mother, and that you are just about as necessary to Cara as your mother-in-law was to you 30 years ago.

Our mothers-in-law! Those dim, elderly dames who were to be a little considered and petted and cultivated because it pleased darling Tom, but who remained shadows still, quite apart from the vital, absorbing interests of our young lives. How little they mattered!

You're in that place now, "Devoted Mother," and it's for you to say whether they ever will love you or need you again. For wealth is no help here. In fact, it's in a poor family that grandma holds her own; she is necessary there, and often she really is beloved.

"I suppose I love my own daughter as much as I do my son's wife," one fortunate mother-in-law said to me some years ago, "but Ann doesn't need me, and it's so good to be with Jinny, because she does."

Okl. Lane Senior Boys 4-H Club
The Oklahoma Lane senior boys 4-H club met Monday to sign cards for the coming year's work. Officers were elected as follows: Leon Grissom, president; James Smith, secretary; Donald Watkins, vice president; Kenneth Thompson, reporter. After officers were elected, Agent Lee McElroy issued record books. Those present were Leon Grissom, Wendell Christian, Kenneth Thompson, Melvin Sudderth, Donald Watkins, Henry Young and James Smith.

Okl. Lane Jr. Girls 4-H Club
The Junior 4-H club of Oklahoma Lane met in the club room Monday Nov. 3. Miss Cunningham asked each girl to report on what she had done since last meeting. The reports showed that a lot of interesting things are being done. Those present were: Edith Roberts, Bobby Jo Hammonds, Vernell Berry, Barbara Foster, Billie Jean Roach, Betty June Hughes, Wilma Atchley, Gladys Tholsland, Betty Foster, Wilma Dell Dasher, Bonnie Sudderth, June Christian, Frances Sudderth, Sue Robertson, Miss Elsie Cunningham, Mrs. Verda Summers.

Food Production Is Theme Of Meeting

Increase in practically all lines of farm food production was the theme of a special meeting held in Lubbock, the past Friday, attended by members of all agencies under the USDA, home economists, and representatives of the Federated Woman's Clubs of Texas. Miss Elsie Cunningham, local demonstration agent, stated that the meeting brought a high pitch of interest among those present, with eleven different organizations being represented, and all taking part in laying the foundation for the increased production of poultry and its products, dairy products, and pork.

Representatives from the various Department of Agriculture agencies were the principal speakers at the meeting, outlining ways and means of increasing food production, and stressing that all units must "work together, and must strive to use the facilities on hand rather than speculating through over-expansion—always a disastrous move". Attending from Farmer county were Miss Cunningham, County Agent Lee H. McElroy; Frank Seale, Mrs. Edna Elms and Ermon Miller, of the FSA; Keltz Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reeve, R. B. Ezell and Walter Menefee, AAA delegates.

Mrs. Will Nittler Heads H. D. Council

Mrs. Will Nittler, of Bovina, was elected chairman of the county Home Demonstration Council at a call meeting held in the Blackwell Hardware store at Friona, Nov. 1. Named to assist Mrs. Nittler in carrying out the program for 1942 were Mrs. Travis Galloway, of Midway, as vice chairman; Mrs. Claude Blackburn, of Farmerton, as secretary; and Mrs. E. L. Fairchilds of Lakeview, as treasurer. Mrs. A. H. Boatman, the retiring chairman, was unanimously elected parliamentarian of the group in view of her wide experience with club and council work.

American Education Week To Be Noted

In accordance with a proclamation setting aside November 9-15 as "American Education Week", Supt. J. T. Carter of the Farwell school, stated that the local institution would observe the special days. Posters have been placed in prominent places in the city, and parents have been sent pamphlets on education, and are invited to visit the school rooms during the week. The theme of the week this year is "Education for A Strong America", Supt. Carter added.

Grade Boys Winners; Senior Girls Second

Holding up tradition, the grade boys softball team of the Texico school walked off with county honors at the tournament held in Field, on Tuesday of this week.

The boys first drew a bye, then advanced in the second round to meet the Ranchvale aggregation, downing them 33-3. In the last game, with St. Vrain up to bat and the score at 12-11, Texico, Gerald Spries, on the mound, provided the biggest thrill by loading the bases with three passes, and then striking out the next three men up.

Girls Lose Close Match
Going through to the final round, the high school girls suddenly went to pieces against the Field players and lost the match 20-21, after having Field down 15-1 at the end of the third inning. Earlier in the day, the locals met Ranchvale, winning 20-10, and Pleasant Hill, defeating that team 16-13.

The high school boys' team, on the other hand, went out in the first round of the tourney, dropping their initial match to Grady by a count of 10-2. Grady went under in the championship match before Field.

Coach A. D. McDonald reported that he was well pleased with the showing made by the local teams, and complimented the girls on the brand of ball played, despite the fact that they dropped the final encounter.

A trophy will be presented to the winning grade boys, he added.

Last Conference Game Slated For Farwell

The final conference game of a disastrous season will be played by the Farwell Steers at Anton, Friday afternoon of this week, with the locals operating under a revised lineup and considerably hurt by the absence of the main backfield man, Bill Brand.

Brand sustained a broken collar bone in the tangle at Amherst, some two weeks ago, and is definitely "on the bench" for the remainder of the season, Coach Jeff Hooper said on Tuesday, thus necessitating drastic changes in starting positions.

Dycus, Billingsley and Ritchie will take up their jobs in the backfield, according to Hooper, with Gast dropping back from his line position to fill the vacancy. The remainder of the tentative lineup reads as follows: Symcox and Dow, ends; Martin or Noack and Hollans, tackles; Smith and Lovelace, guards; Acker, center. Acker has been doing some work in the backfield this season, but for the Anton game will crouch over the ball, the position he has played for a couple of years.

Asked as to how Anton and Farwell compared as fighting units, Hooper reported that the Anton boys were badly downed by the Whittharrel team, which has likewise lambasted the Steers during the season, but declined to make a prediction on the outcome of the game.

This will be the last of the conference clashes of the year, with only one other game remaining on the schedule, that being with Friona, in Friona, on the night of November 14.

Bovina Mustangs To Contest Vega, Friday

The Bovina Mustangs, six-man football squad, will meet the Vega Longhorns on the Bovina field, Friday afternoon at 2:30 p. m., it has been announced locally.

The two teams played in Vega several weeks ago, at which time the Mustangs came out on the long end of a 32-29 score. The Vega Longhorns, not having taken the defeat humbly, are out for revenge, while the Bovina team is considerably excited and hopes to repeat the defeat.

The starting line-ups are: Vega—Walcott and Wurs, ends; Krahn, center; S. Price, QB; W. Price, HB; Brentz, FB. Bovina—Jonsson and Ray, ends; Lovelady or Rhodes, center; Smith, QB; Bates, HB; Eberting, FB. Elliott, Hawkins, Bonds, Norton and Charles will also be ready for play on the Mustang side of the line.

Tommy Ruth Shelley Is Carnival Queen

The sophomore class of the Farwell high school put its candidate, Miss Tommie Ruth Shelley, up for coronation ceremonies at the annual Halloween carnival, last Friday night with Miss Shelley ascending the throne during elaborate ceremonies.

Members of the Queen's Court of Honor were made up of the three other candidates and their escorts. Young Jim Carter acted as crown-bearer, while Nancy Johnson and Darlene Kay Sprawls were the train-bearers. The trumpeters were Jean Ann Hart and Peggy Williams, with Pete Booth at the piano during the ceremony. Just before the coronation, Twila Mae Strickland sang, accompanied by Freda Acker.

Carnival Is Success
Although complete information as to the amount derived from the affair was not available early in the week, those in charge stated that the carnival was one of the most successful ever staged by the PTA with all booths taking care of capacity crowds during the evening.

With bingo as the top drawing card, other attractions were rushed during the hours of the show, and unusually attractive prizes were offered.

Sponsors of the affair this week extended their appreciation to the public for the liberal patronage given the carnival.

operating expenses to store feed crops in trench silos or other storage methods.

2. To increase the production of poultry, poultry products, dairy products and pork, Farm Security will finance suitable shelter for poultry, dairy cattle or hogs, either by the use of temporary shelter, remodeling present buildings, or constructing new buildings, providing proper tenure agreements can be made.

3. Farm Security will finance supplements for a good feeding program; the agency will finance, in some cases, purchase of milk cows, sows and feeder pigs up to the normal carrying capacity of the borrower's farm. FSA will finance the purchase of young chicks to bring the farm flock to normal carrying capacity of the farm.

4. To aid in food preservation and storage this agency will finance eligible farm families to purchase pressure cookers, jars and other canning equipment. Loans are available to construct cellars, milk coolers, shelves or other storage space needed to protect the family's food supply.

5. To provide ample water supplies for the production and storage programs, Farm Security will finance the development of available water, including wells, pumps, towers, windmills, overhead supply tanks, pipe, etc., as rental arrangements will justify.

Mr. Seale said loans are available to qualified small farmers for many purposes other than those listed above, to enable them to improve their own conditions and contribute to the national defense program.

Farm families interested in improving their own conditions and increasing production for the "Food For Freedom" campaign should contact Seale at his office in the Farmer county courthouse at Farwell.

Discussion Offers Little Relief to Area

A special meeting held in Clovis the past Wednesday for the purpose of discussing means of securing laborers and binders needed in this area for row crop harvest brought forth little encouragement for the relief of farmers, County Agent Lee H. McElroy said today.

The meeting was attended by AAA, FSA and County Extension workers in this area, with various reports on the scarcity of workers being made by labor employment boards, called into this section for the meeting.

Edwin R. Henson, coordinator of the Southern Great Plains council, was one of the visiting speakers, and pointed out that "as long as there is work in the defense areas where the workers may obtain high-scale wages, we are unable to secure sufficient help in this vicinity".

Those in charge considered the possibility of establishing migratory workers camps in this area, but as far as relieving the present situation, little, if anything, was done.
