Mrs. W. B. Dunne is suffering from an arm and shoulder injury, received when her clothing caught in an electric washer Tuesday.

Fairview News

Fair weather the early part of this week has served as a spur to the cotton crop movement, and if it continues, crops in this community soon will be gathered. Some farmers have already picked all their cotton and are turning up land for a new crop. There is more fall plowing being done than in many years, as the season is right for plowing. Considerable terracing work also is under way in the community.

With the crop year ending, there will be considerable moving among tenant farmers soon. Some have not yet obtained places for next year.

G. W. Couch of Gay Hill is moving into this community.

Stewart Thomas left Sunday with a party from Moore to hunt deer in Mason county. He is expected back the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas and children and Mrs. Stuart Thomas were dinner guests of Truett Thomas in Big Spring Sunday.

Truman Thomas has been under care of a physician recently.

Dr. Rogers of Vernon was here the first of the week to visit his brother, Tom Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatch and family left Sunday for a trip to the Carlisbad caverns. They met a son, Jack, who is attending school at Lubbock, in that city, and were to meet another son, Happy, of Pecos, at the caverns.

Gaylor Bailey returned Saturday after a trip to Tampa.

W. A. Brown of Winters is expected here soon to visit relatives.

D. L. Knightstop, who became ill Sunday, is reported improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brummett are the parents of a daughter, born last Wednesday. Mother and child are doing nicely.

Several babies in the community have been suffering with an ear ailment.

With the approach of the Thanksgiving season, efforts are being made to have a large attendance at Sunday school and church Sunday. Regardless of the weather, the church building will be comfortable, since a new stove has been installed.

In September a total of 1,481,946 gallons of gasoline was sold at wholesale in Greenville county, S. C.

ITEMS FROM MOORE

The following new pupils were enrolled in school during the past week: Cleo Carter, Argelia Samaripa, Tom Samaripa, and Lilly Samaripa.

The Lomax junior boys, junior girls, and senior boys paid a visit to the Moore gymnasium on Wednesday night of last week. The games resulted in two victories for the locals. The junior girls' score was 20 to 8 in favor of Moore.

Geneva Brown, stellar forward from Moore, led the scoring with 16 points. The local senior boys' club easily won their tilt by a top-heavy score of 61-19. Joe Lusk, six-foot forward, led his scoring mate, Buster Broughton, by one point, hitting the basket for nine field goals and three free tosses. Jack Rice, of Lomax, led his team for scoring honors by running up 13 points. The game between the junior boys was the most interesting one. Although Lomax was a heavy favorite to win, the local juniors displayed an admirable fighting spirit and crowded their opponents to a close margin from the very beginning to the final whistle.

Grover Griffice, outstanding forward, was high-point man for Moore with nine points. Jack Rice led his club with 11 points. The local teams returned the games there on Tuesday night of this week.

The new heating system has been completed and work will probably start soon on the new shower baths.

Last Friday night three teams came from Brown school, in Martin county, to play the local teams. The senior boys defeated the Lobos by a heavy score. Brown, however, rates one of the best teams in this part of the country. They won the district last year and won second place in the bi-district. The local squad were playing without the services of Broughton, forward.

Miss Sarah Phillips, coach of the Lobos, is handicapped by having only six senior boys in school this year, and has only two regulars left over from last year's team. The veterans are Buster Broughton and Troy Newton. Joe Lusk, Jim Grant, Bill Rowland, and Victor Watts complete the entire group of seniors in school. The local junior boys won by a score of 16-11. The junior girls lost by a score of 5-4. This contest was probably the most interesting one of the night. The scores were tied, 4-4 until the last two minutes when a double foul was made and Moore failed to find the basket. Miss Anna Smith is coach of the girls and has a good record with the club. She was a student in this school last year, but finished here, and attended West Texas State Teachers' college last summer. She was a good basketball player in both high school and college. The one-point defeat from Brown was the first game her club has lost this season. They have played five games. Jim Grant, guard on the Lobo squad, is mentor for the junior boys. He has a fast, hard fighting little team, but every member is small, young, and inexperienced.

Thanksgiving in the Moore community will be celebrated by a box supper and amateur program. The amateur program will be in charge of Mrs. Henry Long. Any individual may enter with whatever kind of number he wishes to give. The winner will be given a wrist watch. This event is attracting much interest. At present seven entries have been filed, and many others are expected. This program is free, and will be held in the school gymnasium Thanksgiving night. Following the program, an old-time box supper will be held, and there will be novel contests.

Farmers in this section are appreciative of the good weather for the past two weeks. Almost every one has completed gathering of cotton. Binders are running night and day, and much food can be seen in the shock. Crops in this section have been fairly good. The sandy land has an average near a half a bale while the tighter land will produce a quarter of a bale per acre.

Mrs. W. F. Cook, who has been in the hospital at Lubbock, was moved to the Big Spring hospital this week. Neighbors in this community are glad to hear that she is doing very well.

Mrs. C. C. Harris, teacher in the local school, has been at the bedside of her niece, who is seriously ill in the hospital at Big Spring.

Ted and Edgar Phillips will leave this week for Detroit, Mich., to bring back a new Ford. They will stop off at several points for sight seeing trips.

Miss Louise Douglas, teacher of grades seven and eight, spent the week-end in O'Donnell with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Spears and children; Mrs. Della Lay, and son, Tolle Hale, all of Coahoma, and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wheeler and family of Stanton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Wheeler and family Sunday.

New Comic Team In Ritz Picture

OLSEN AND JOHNSON

Olsen and Johnson, a rollicking, rolstering comedy team of stage and radio fame, make their bid for a screen following in the opus, "Country Gentleman," which plays Thursday at the Ritz theatre.

The Scandinavian duo portray the shady characters of phoney stock promoters, bill jumpers, kidnapers, confidence men, forgers and scoundrels, who in the end prove that their intentions were noble all along.

The plot unfolds merrily, disclosing Olsen and Johnson in hilarious situations brought about by their efforts to fleece the public

Evening Meeting Draws Good Attendance For Junior High P.T.A.

EFFICIENCY OF THE RED CROSS

A suggestion by Will Durant, philosopher and student of social problems, which has been taken up by the press is that administration of relief be under direction of the American Red Cross.

There is a difference between governmental supervision of relief and the broad activities pursued by the Red Cross, and it is not likely that Durant's suggestion will be followed; but the proposal itself can be taken as a tribute to the efficiency of the Red Cross as a relief organization.

The American Red Cross is managed by persons who have been trained in the work they do, and who are in the work with no regard other than to assist in their organization's efforts in behalf of humanity.

No American citizen challenges the benefits of the Red Cross, but the citizen is apt to pass up the significant fact that the only way this organization obtains funds is through subscriptions.

There is only a week remaining of the period set aside for the Red Cross annual Roll Call, wherein it seeks to enlist all Americans as members subscribing to the charity, accident prevention and health and safety programs.

A dollar can go to few places where such a big percent of it is spent actually in meeting human needs and relieving human wants.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—The joys of being a celebrity aren't all confined to hero-worship and ne plus ultra limousines. They constantly have to deal with job-seekers, charity solicitors, autograph maniacs, strangers, and spongers.

Elsa Maxwell is boisterous, hearty, unpredictable and invariably boasts of some new purpose in life. Her latest whim is to teach society how to milk cows.

Helen Hayes is polite, shy, but emphatic in what she has to say.

John Halliday is friendly and a corking conversationalist. Noel Coward is effusive and wisecracking. Approach Katharine Cornell and you'll find a gracious yet serious and remote person.

Spends Quips Freely

Alfred Lunt and Charles MacArthur are both unserious. Jack Dempsey is an affable and half fellow well met. Gary Cooper usually exposes the blunt, aloof side of his nature.

Marta Abba, the Italian actress now in her first season on Broadway, has a genius for bright phrases and doesn't waste her newest and most impromptu observation on anybody within hearing.

Jack Pearl is a sincere person but he never talks in dialect or stage. He is extraordinarily superstitious. Conrad Nagel meets strangers as easily as he faces movie cameras.

Tallulah Bankhead is frank, generous, talkative. She can, and frequently does, keep three cigarettes with as many conversations going at the same time.

Arturo Toscanini is eagerly sought by interviewers after each crossing because he contributes excellent copy. He has a pleasant way with strangers and does not encourage aimless conversation.

Then There's Jimmy Walker

No selective list of name personalities would be complete without Ina Claire who is sure to bob up with a wealth of coolly sophisticated small talk. Kathryn Brush talks just like her novels, and so do Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Norris.

Then there is Jimmy Durante who though he may give the impression of having sand in his throat, is surprisingly serious conversationalist. He seldom talks about his achievements unless prodded.

Fiorillo LaGuardia's moods are a gauge to his remarks. He usually talks in a frank, open vein, round-phrased but friendly.

Finally (and you knew he couldn't be left out) Jimmy Walker is still in the van of infectious gaiety. Although he isn't about as much as he used to be, the former mayor has no peer in the matter of putting a stranger at ease.

President seeks to make world peace-conscious. Pan-American pact would have only psychological effect. White House seen urging Landis to keep SEC post. Trade treaties get publicity build-up.

Vacations: WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—President Roosevelt declined to be drawn into an official explanation of his Pan-American peace and fighting trip. He countered such questions the other day by saying it speaks for itself.

First Step: A diplomatic spokesman for the new deal has been advising observers privately to watch the Pan-American conference for "its effect on the league of nations neutrality moves."

Hold-Overs: A month ago it was almost certain that Chairman Landis of the securities and exchange commission would shortly leave the new deal to become head of the Harvard law school.

Mandates: Those who consider the election a mandate for everything advocated by everyone in the Roosevelt camp should make a study of the variety of reasons why people voted for the president.

Trade Build-Up: The state department has started a series of elegant trade agreements. The first one, on the Canadian treaty, was published the other day. It covers 35 pages.

The Wrong Murderer

Chapter 32 THE POLICE

"That's all right, Mr. Bassett," said Eli. "You been in my back room smokin' my cigars. The furniture van is in the back yard."

"Have it brought right up against the back yard at once," ordered Bassett. "An' bring me a big sheet."

He called up the stairs to Barney and Chippy: "Come on, you fellows. You got to get away, quick. The police may want to search this 'ouse as well as next door."

Fatty's plans were simple and efficient. Lake's bound figure, wrapped in a big sheet, was thrust quickly into the covered back of the van; Barney and Chippy got in with him.

Within a minute of the time when the men had entered the house, the furniture van glided away from the back door and was lost to sight in the traffic. Fatty sat down solemnly in Eli's back room, lit a cigar, and began to take a great interest in a set of pewter tankards.

Ruth, hidden behind the curtain in the house next door, heard the crash as the man Barney hit went through the window, and saw something dark and heavy fall past the window of the room in which she was hiding.

Very cautiously she peered through the window to see what it was. Lying on the pavement outside the house was the body of a man. The crowd which had assembled round her car was now assembling round the fallen man, and growing in numbers every minute; from outside the house came a babel of excited conversation.

Very softly she left the room and peered up the stairs. She could hear nothing. For a moment she hesitated. Then, nervously determined for the effort, she mounted the stairs to the small landing. A door was open, and she stepped forward and looked into the room beyond.

What she saw made her shrink back suddenly with a gasp of horror. On the floor were lying the figures of three men. Police whistles were blowing in the street; there was a sound of banging on the front door of the house. Ruth went back on to the landing outside the room.

"Mr. Bassett! Mr. Bassett!" she called. But there was no answer. She was alone in the house with the three men lying on the floor of that room.

Swiftly she descended the stairs. The front door was giving; in a moment it would burst open. She must not be found in that house. She went down the steps to the basement and crossed the kitchen to the back door. Luck was with her; no one was there. A few seconds later she was walking quickly along the street away from the house.

But though she was free for the moment, she realized that she was in a terrible position. The police would know she had been in the house when that man's death took place; her car was still outside the front door.

If only, she thought desperately, she could find Mahony; he would be able to tell her what she ought to do. Perhaps he would be at his rooms by now. She entered a telephone box and rang up his number, but his landlady told her he had returned.

At last she thought of a plan. A letter written and posted to Mahony now would reach him by the evening post. She must write to him and tell him of her plight, and ask him to come and see her.

She must also find a hiding place where she could wait safely for him in case he did not get her letter till late that night. Her guardian owned an unoccupied house in the St. John's Wood Road. If only she could get into that house she ought to be pretty safe there for a few hours. That would be her best hiding place.

She entered a little stationer's, bought a packet of note paper and envelopes, wrote a brief note to Mahony, and posted it. Near the post box was a large cinema, and at the sight of it she paused again. In order to reach the house in St. John's Wood she had practically to cross London. Mahony would not receive her letter before about nine that evening; if he came in late he would not receive it till midnight or later. It would be safer for her, she reflected, to cross London after dark than in broad daylight; in the meantime she could remain fairly safe hidden inside that cinema.

She bought a ticket and entered the darkness of the picture theatre. With a sigh of relief, she sank into the softly cushioned seat. Here, for five or six hours, she would be safe. Mahony waited for about a couple of hours in the empty house in St. John's Wood Road where Lee-Ramsden had sent him. The time passed very slowly; he chafed at his inactivity. All the time he was wondering what was happening, what Lawson was doing, and whether Bassett and his band of toughs would have had time to take advantage of the warning Lee-Ramsden was supposed to have sent them.

It was about four in the afternoon when he heard a sound of wheels on the gravel drive that led up to the house. Looking through the window he saw that a car had drawn up at the front door. Two men were dismounting from it, one of whom was carrying a suit case. "Thank heaven," thought Mahony, here at last was his disguise.

He went down and opened the front door. One of the men spoke to him. "Is your name Mahony?" he asked. "Yes," answered Mahony. "I and my friend have been sent here with directions to disguise you so that no one can recognize you," said the man.

"Good. Come along inside," invited Mahony. He showed them into the empty drawing room.

"Is this job going to take long?" he asked. "Half an hour or so," answered the man. "It isn't easy to disguise a man in a way that will defy detection. Now do you mind standing here, well in the light, and keeping quite still?"

He stood in front of Mahony, looking him up and down, while his companion wandered restlessly about the room.

"Stand quite still," he said. And as he spoke, he made a bad mistake. His glance left Mahony, staring over his shoulder at his companion, who was just behind Mahony, and there was an expression of tense excitement in his eyes that could not be accounted for by any interest he took in transforming Mahony's appearance.

Mahony turned sharply, moving slightly to one side. That movement just saved him. The clubbed revolver, wielded by the man behind him, missed his head and struck him a glancing blow on the shoulder.

That blow hurt Mahony; it also angered him. It seemed to him that everywhere he went he encountered treachery, and he was fed up with it. With a sharp, vicious movement he brought over his right fist in a short hook, and all the strength of his anger and all the power of his right shoulder were behind the blow.

It took the man who had just struck at him fairly on the angle of the jaw. With a heavy bump the man sprawled flat on his back.

And then Mahony sprang at the other man; as he did so the man sprang to meet him. There was a brief, fierce interchange of blows, each man hitting out with all his strength. The fight lasted about 20 seconds. A tremendous right cross to the jaw followed by a left hook to the stomach ended it. Mahony's opponent sank to the ground out for the count.

Both of his adversaries were, for the time being, out of action. He stepped quickly across the room, and opened the suit case which they had brought. It contained nothing but a coil of strong rope. Mahony laughed a trifle grimly at that.

He turned out the pockets of the two men, then tied them securely with the rope they had brought with which to tie him. There was nothing of any great interest in their pockets, but both men, he noticed, had cards of membership of the Golden Centipede Club. Evidently that club was used by nearly all Lawson's band of crooks.

Leaving the two men tied up on the floor of the empty drawing room, he left the house.

Mahony gets information from Kennedy, tomorrow, which surprises him.

A total of 5,352 persons of the 16,861 committed to the North Carolina state prison in 1934 had previously crossed the room.

WEATHER DATA TO BE GLEANED IN ICY FLIGHTS

FORT SMITH, N. W. T., Nov. 19 (UP)—Three Royal Canadian Air Force pilots are ready to make a series of winter flights into the sub-tropics over the north-west territories to chart weather conditions for Canadian and U. S. weather bureaus.

Daily, throughout the winter months, the fliers, Sergeants R. I. Thomas and P. E. Sorenson and Corporal L. S. Thompson, will soar 15,000 feet into the air and record temperatures and other weather conditions on instruments installed in their plane. They will be assisted by a meteorological observer.

The results of the surveys will be sent to the Canadian meteorological service and the U. S. weather bureau.

Utility Companies Prevented From Issuing Securities While Court Test Of Holding Company Act Is Pending

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (UP)—Every once in a while organizations in litigation with the government get caught in a squeeze play that adds a little side drama to the issues actually presented to the court, even though the squeeze may be entirely involuntary on the part of the government.

One "squeeze" is "playing court" before the supreme court while constitutional of the public utility holding company act is tested.

Under terms of the act, public utility companies must register with the securities and exchange commission and submit for commission approval any securities they wish to issue. The act does many other things but the above is enough for the "squeeze."

How "Squeeze" Works Many companies sought to test the constitutionality of the act, but the government designed a suit of its own against the Electric Bond and Share company which it contends will test the act more completely than other cases. In order to get supreme court action on the Electric Bond and Share case ahead of the others, the government obtained a lower court order holding up the cases brought by the utility companies.

The companies immediately appealed from the lower court's order. Meantime, however, they can issue no securities. A utility attorney told the supreme court that even if the companies sought to issue securities in defiance of the securities commission, the public would not buy them in fear they would be later branded invalid.

The squeeze lies in this. Many companies have securities outstanding at high interest rates. They want to refund them now at current low interest rates but can't. The attorney insisted that as a result they were daily suffering "tremendous and crippling" losses.

But nothing much can be done about it until the litigation ends, which may be months, at a time when the cheap money market has gone.

Oil Company Hit The oil production control legislation, since invalidated, provided another example.

A Pacific-Northwestern independent oil distributor bought two shipments of gasoline from the East Texas field which the government contended was "hot," that is, illegally produced. An injunction was obtained by the government preventing unloading of the gasoline at Seattle.

Then started the squeeze. The ship owners began charging demurrage for every hour the vessels were compelled to wait in harbor. This ran up a bill of about $2,000 a day. The litigation lasted several weeks. The independent oil company, not too strongly financed at best, had to foot the bill and ultimately pleaded for a compromise.

Subsequently the supreme court threw out the oil control legislation but the oil company could not get its demurrage money back, nor did the government offer to share the loss.

AMERICA'S EGYPT TO BE DESCRIBED BY CARVETH WELLS

Youngest state in the union — with a history "so ancient that ethnologists have not yet been able to read the inscriptions left on painted rocks by that unknown race that inhabited her cliff dwellings and buried cities." That's Arizona—Egypt of America—the southern part of which Carveth Wells will describe Sunday, November 22, in the Continental Oil company radio broadcast "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells."

"At this time of the year," says the internationally known explorer reporter, "so many people make plans to escape winter by taking expensive trips across the stormy Atlantic to the sunny shores of the Mediterranean. But most of them do this simply because they have no idea that southern Arizona enjoys a winter climate that far surpasses that of the Mediterranean."

Furthermore, Wells explains, this region's scenery is as interesting as its winter climate is comfortable. Persons once declared insane are forever denied the privilege of voting in North Carolina.

BANK ROBBERY CASE GOES BEFORE JURY

FORT WORTH, Nov. 19. (UP)—Criminal cases taken up by the federal grand jury here today included that of John Shackelford, 21-year-old youth charged with robbing the First National bank of Sudan Aug. 27. Shackelford now is in jail at Wichita Falls. He was arrested

Ways To Curb Drouth Loss Are Outlined

Committee At Washington Hears Suggestions Of Farmers, Ranchers

DALHART, Nov. 19. (UP)—Lean ranchers who raise cattle and wheat on the broad acres of the high plains country gathered here to tell a committee from Washington what they believe should be done to stop drouth damage in the nation's dust bowl.

Suggestions also were expected regarding government aid to offset financial setbacks caused by business and weather conditions the past two years.

President Roosevelt's Great Plains drouth committee, headed by Morris L. Cooke, director of the rural electrification administration, met the ranchers at the Mission theater. The sessions will continue until late today when the committee moves to Bismarck, S. D., for other hearings. The delegations here came from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado.

Among the problems to be spread before the committee were those involving irrigation and conservation of meager water supplies. Wind erosion and dust storms, scourge of the great Southwest two years ago, will be considered. Payments under the soil conservation plan which replaced the invalidated AAA also will be taken up. Rancher W. O. Culbertson said he would ask that the government pay ranchers 15 cents an acre for all leased and deeded and under grazing during the two years prior to next May 1 to make up for the expense of carrying huge herds through drouth periods.

"I would suggest long-term loans at low interest rates for ranchers wanting to rebuild herds," Rancher Joe Smith said and Farmer George Phillips had prepared a suggestion that the government stop "speculative farming by corporations and businessmen," who, he charged, gamble with land to evade income taxes.

Texas Panhandle ranchers planned to urge immediate crop loans. Delay last year, they said, prevented farmers from taking advantage of late rains. Other delegations will ask that payments of $1 per acre be made on soil building crops planted under the conservation program provisions but which failed to develop due to weather conditions. The government also may be asked to stand expense of putting grass on lands taken out of production under the same program.

GROUP IS NAMED TO STUDY TRAFFIC CODE

AUSTIN, Nov. 19. (UP)—Gov. James V. Allred today announced the appointment of R. G. Waters, casualty insurance commissioner; Capt. J. D. Moffatt, of the public safety department, and Carl J. Rutland, chairman of the Dallas traffic commission, to serve upon a committee recommended by the Texas safety council to compare present statutes with the uniform vehicle code in order to make recommendations to the next legislature.

The committee will start work immediately upon the study in order that its recommendations may be ready for the regular session of the legislature beginning in January.

American Colony of Rio De Janeiro Awaits Expected Visit by President Roosevelt

By Ewing Galloway, N. Y.

REPRESENTATIVES of twenty-one nations of the western hemisphere are today converging on the city of Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentine, where the Pan American conference opens on December 1 to discuss the possibility of an all-American League of Nations.

"But of these twenty-one nations," according to an article in the initial issue of Life Magazine, "the biggest and perhaps the potentially richest will not be the United States of America, but the United States of Brazil."

And in glamorous Rio de Janeiro, capital of that vast empire of tropical jungles and sub-tropical plains, the American colony eagerly awaits the expected visit of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, it is hoped, will be able to pay a short visit to beautiful Rio should he attend the Buenos Aires gathering.

An invitation has already been extended by President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, presented in Washington by the Brazilian Ambassador, Oswaldo Arango. Many Americans in the Brazilian capital hope that President Roosevelt's warship will arrive there on Thanksgiving day so that they may hear the President give his Thanksgiving Day proclamation from an American cruiser in a foreign port.

Latest Rio de Janeiro dispatches, however, indicate that the president may not arrive before November 27th, the day after Thanksgiving.

"The wealth of Brazil funnels into the capital, Rio de Janeiro," according to the Life article, "to make it one of the world's greatest pleasure cities. Rio citizens who call themselves Cariocans spend most of their time in the area shown in the left of the panorama picture. Here are the shops and offices, the Archbishop's and the President's palaces, and the great boulevards." On an adjacent hill, facing the Sugar Loaf, is a gigantic 130 foot statue of Christ, which dominates the colorful scene below.—From Life Magazine.

COSDEN PROGRAM ON AIR AT NEW HOUR STARTING SATURDAY

The Cosden Traffic Cop program will come on the air over WBAP at a new period this Saturday night. From now on this half-hour program will start at 7:30 instead of 7 o'clock. The highlights of the Cosden Traffic Cop show Saturday evening will be an instrumental number, "When a Gypsy Makes His Violin Cry," by the Higher Octaves featuring Marius Thor on the violin. Cy Leland will review Saturday afternoon's conference and other football games and will interview one of the star players in the S. M. U.-Baylor game. The "Humming Birds" will be heard in "Until the Real Thing Comes Along" and "Guess Who?" and Ted will sing "Lullaby of Broadway." The Traffic Cop and his Little Pals will put on another short Traffic Cop Club skit and the Higher Octaves and "Humming Birds" will close the program with, "I Take To You."

Charging Bear Killed By .22 Caliber Bullet

GULL LAKE, Ont., Nov. 19. (UP)—A 400-pound bear, measuring 6 feet 10 inches from nose to heels, was shot with a .22 caliber rifle as it charged a party of miners here.

The party, headed by A. O. Burnese, Toronto lawyer, was surveying a mining property when the bear came lumbering out of the woods and charged. Only one of the miners, Jack Haight, was armed. He carried a small rifle. He shot at the bear five times, but the bullets merely enraged it. A sixth shot, however, lodged in its head, killing it.

T. F. Glenn of Mercer, Pa., reported in late October that a tree on his place had sprouted a second crop of 17 apples.

County Agent Busy Staking Lines For Land Terracing

County Agent O. P. Griffin was in the field today staking out more terrace lines in fields of the north-eastern part of the county.

He spent most of Wednesday running lines and today was piling up a lead on a tractor and blade which he believed would keep the machines busy for more than a week.

Terracing with the heavy machinery has been little more than half as fast as planned, partly because of the heavy type of work and partly because of the sort of terraces being constructed.

Farmers are demanding good, 30-foot terraces, the agent said. These require five turns of the large blade and seven with the smaller. About the best one machine can do is a mile of 30 foot terrace in a day's time.

Two tractors and blades are now being used on the terracing program, one north of Coahoma and the other in the Center Point area.

HIGH SCHOOL TALENT WILL BE FEATURED IN MONDAY PROGRAM

High school talent will be featured in the second of a series of auditorium night programs to be offered free to the public Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the municipal auditorium.

Charles Frost, who will be in charge of the program, said today that he had more than 16 applications for places on the program and that he would begin the task of arranging numbers Friday.

Among the acts to be presented are ones by the Spanish club and ensemble from the high school band.

WPA CONTINUANCE IS URGED BY MAYORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. (UP)—Reiterating that work rather than a dole is "the American way" to provide relief, the United States Conference of Mayors today asked Congress and the president to provide sufficient funds to continue WPA through the fiscal year ending June 30.

Delegates previously had estimated from $500,000,000 to $900,000,000 would have to be appropriated for this purpose. Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, re-elected president of the conference, said the mayors agreed the money should be voted "early in January," soon after the new congress meets.

In the closing session of their three-day meeting, the mayors also urged the railway labor act be extended to the maritime industry to provide machinery for settling disputes like that now crippling shipping.

All conference officers were re-elected. In addition to LaGuardia, they included Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco and Mayor Edward Rogers of Amarillo, Texas, trustees.

Red Cross Campaign Is Short Of Goal

Shirley Phillips and Mrs. Harvey Williamson, co-chairmen of the annual Red Cross roll call, were fearful today that Howard county would for the second consecutive year fall short of its quota.

With about $700 in sight, Phillips said that every effort would be made to reach the $1,000 quota by Thursday of next week, deadline for the roll call.

He said that Big Spring was one of the few places in West Texas which has not made its quota this year, and one of the very few in the state falling short on consecutive years.

John Wolcott, county tax collector and assessor, returned Tuesday from Hot Springs, N. M., where he has been for several weeks undergoing treatment.

An area within a radius of seven miles of Terlingua, Texas, is the second largest producer of quicksilver in the nation, California is first.

FORMER WIFE OF RUDY VALLEE DEAD

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 19. (UP)—Fay Webb, former wife of Rudy Vallee, radio crooner and orchestra leader, died at a hospital here last night of complications following a surgical operation.

Death came at 8:40 p. m. after she had lain in a coma for 41 hours. Her father, Police Captain Clarence E. Webb, and her uncle, Perry Webb, were at her bedside. Peritonitis followed a major operation performed last week and she had been kept alive for several hours by the use of oxygen.

The tall, exotic-appearing young woman was 27 years of age.

After playing small parts in motion pictures, she married Rudy Vallee, the orchestra leader and singer, July 6, 1931, in East Orange, N. J., beginning a tumultuous relationship that ended May 20, 1935, when she won a divorce in Los Angeles.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

by PAUL MALLON

APPEARS EVERY Day On The Editorial Page

In The DAILY HERALD

The world races on. Are you keeping up with it? In Berlin, Jewish hearts are beating faster. In New York, financial kings are being broken, made, re-made. In Washington, they've got a stranglehold on the depression. In Chicago, wheat is once more a golden grain. McAdoo is maneuvering for a fast one. Glass is peppering up the South.

Do you understand it all? Sure, you know about it. It's on the front page. It's in the air. But do you understand it—do you understand the How—the What, When, Where—the News Behind The News? Have you grasped the full meaning of these tremendous events now shaping the world you live in?

Not many of us do. But Paul Mallon is one of the few in the world able to point—and explain—where we're all going. And he does it in a crisp, readable way that makes it all seem easy. His subject is the most compelling drama known. He makes it come alive. Read him every day.
