Old War Problems Confront Members Of League Council

THEY STARTED FOR JERSEY

Two U.S. Congressmen, Rep. Jerry J. O'Connell (D-Mont), right, and Rep. John T. Bernard (D-Minn), left, are shown as they boarded a train at Washington, headed for a heretofore visit to Mayor Frank Hague's Jersey City, N. J. City officials warned them away, and the organization sponsoring their speeches cancelled the engagement.

Chinese Delegate Appeals Again For Assistance

By The Associated Press
Reverberations from the wars in China, Spain and Ethiopia dinned in the ears of League of Nations council members today, along with British and French declarations in support of their "realistic" diplomacy.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate, asked the council to apply provisions of the covenant to give China aid against Japan. He cited two resolutions, one by the league assembly last October and another by the council in February, which recommended that league members consider individual aid to China.

"With one exception," he said, none of the league members had come to China's aid. This was believed to be Soviet Russia. Viscount Halifax, the British foreign secretary, told the council that the recently-negotiated Anglo-Italian agreement was a contribution to world peace—attaining the same objective as that for which the league was organized.

Selassie The Loser

The French foreign minister, Georges Bonnet, echoed Halifax's contention. But to Haile Selassie, the fallen emperor of conquered Ethiopia, the British and French swing to realism meant almost certain defeat in his battle to save Ethiopia's international rights.

In accordance with their "realistic" policy, Great Britain and France yesterday won assurance that they would be freed of the league obligation not to recognize Italy's conquest of the African empire. The only dissenting council votes came from Soviet Russia, China, New Zealand and Bolivia.

While Dr. Koo charged Japan was using poison gas, the Spanish government delegate, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, reiterated his complaints against Italian and German troops aiding the insurgents. In Spain, the insurgents were making slow progress in their efforts to drive down the Mediterranean coast toward Castellon De La Plana and Valencia.

In China, the Japanese pushed toward the Lughai railway from the south, striving to accomplish from this direction what months of fighting had failed to achieve in south Shantung province.

In Rome, fascists said Premier Mussolini would take a step toward bringing the British-French entente into harmony with the Rome-Berlin alliance in a speech he is making at Genoa Saturday. This became known as Reichsfuehrer Hitler, his visit to Mussolini ended, crossed Brenner Pass into Germany.

Streamlined Train Quits The Rails

Four Injured Slightly In Mishap Near Waxahachie

WAXAHACHIE, May 10 (AP)—Four persons were injured, none dangerously, when the southbound Burlington-Rock Island streamlined train, the Rocket, derailed half a mile east of Reagor Springs today.

The Injured

The injured were: Miss Priscilla Ward, of Houston, who was given first aid treatment here and sent to her home in Houston;

A. D. Dority, of Houston, wrenched knee, treated and discharged from hospital here;

Willie Brewer, negro, cook on the train, scalded.

William Perry, Jr., negro member of the train crew. The two negroes were taken to Fort Worth for treatment.

None of the members of the Houston and Tulsa baseball teams, among the 70 passengers, was injured. Railroad officials said most of the passengers remained in their seats while the train bumped along the ties. The streamliner did not overturn.

Half-Open Switch

Conductor Hubbard of the Rocket said he believed the accident was caused by a defective half-open switch at a passing track. The rails along the main line and the passing track were badly twisted, and there was considerable damage to the undercarriage of the train.

Reagor Springs is six miles southeast of Waxahachie. At Corsicana, Burlington officials said the derailment was caused by a split switch. They said the northbound Zephyr would be detoured over Southern Pacific lines to Dallas.

There were 72 passengers on the train, and nearly all of them were reported trying to use a single party-line telephone at Reagor Springs to notify relatives they were safe. It was the only telephone line available.

100 AT WORK ON AIRPORT PROJECT

One hundred men were at work on the municipal airport project Tuesday as work on the task of installing base material for three long runways swung into full stride. With some small amount of blade work to be done in order to establish grade for the runways, the bulk of workers were finishing stripping operations on a caliche pit.

Charles Smith, assigned to the task by WPA, is in charge of the operations, proceeding now at a rapid rate. First job will be to install an eight inch loose caliche base which will ultimately be compacted into a six inch base. This will be the foundation for surfacing operations on the three principal runways, to be among the longest in the state.

BIG SPRING TALKED AS NEXT SITE OF ROTARY MEETING

BRECKENRIDGE, May 10 (AP)—Big Spring was mentioned most prominently today as the next convention city for the 127th district of Rotary, in session here today. The site for the next convention will be selected later by the executive committee. Registrations had passed the 500 mark when business sessions began today.

Election of the district governor was part of today's business. Bob Cluck of Cisco and Linton Estes of Wichita Falls were nominated. Speakers at this morning's session included Dr. R. Thomsen of Amarillo and Dr. J. A. Hill of Canyon.

Protest Allowable Cuts For West Texas Fields

AUSTIN, May 10 (AP)—The railroad commission today heard protests against the large oil production cuts it originally ordered for nine West Texas fields but later rescinded pending further study of the matter. Zra Butler of Fort Worth, who had maintained the original cuts were too drastic, advocated a program which would bring about varying reductions in the Wasson, Harper, Foster and Fuhrman fields. He represented certain operators in those pools. Because of declining market demand, Butler agreed to a cut of more than 50 per cent for Wasson, approximately 40 per cent for Harper and around 25 per cent for Foster and Fuhrman. He said such a program would put the fields more nearly on a parity.

Physicians Work To Give Chicago Baby Partial Vision

CHICAGO, May 10 (AP)—Baby Helaine Colan's left eyeball, removed in an effort to save her life, went under the microscope today for examinations that might help physicians to preserve the vision in her other eye.

The 1 1/2 week old infant spent a comfortable night after the surgical operation which a council of 10 medical experts decreed as the only recourse against death from glioma of the retina.

"They were asked to make a decision when Helaine's parents were unable to decide whether she should undergo an operation and risk total blindness or to be allowed to die.

The cancerous growth had destroyed the vision in the left eye and had impinged that in the right. Dr. Robert H. Good, who performed the operation, said the baby reacted favorably and experienced no pain.

He said a laboratory study might suggest treatment that would check the malignant tumor in the right eye and save what vision remained.

BABY HELAINE COLAN

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP)—Augusta Horner, a blind teacher, was happy today that as a baby she underwent an operation she said was similar to that of the Colan infant in Chicago.

Miss Horner, an instructor at the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind, said her parents decided whether to let her live, forever blind, or die for lack of an operation. "I have always been grateful to my mother for deciding in favor of my life," she said.

Scores Are Killed In Mine Explosion

Many Injured And Others Trapped After Blasts In England

DUCKMANTON, Derbyshire, England, May 10 (AP)—Seventy-two miners were killed, 49 were known to be injured and a number of others were entombed in the wreckage today after two violent gas explosions in the Markham coal mine.

While rescue squads searched underground for trapped victims, Captain H. F. S. Crookshank, minister for mines, informed the house of commons in the disaster.

Through grim coincidences, the question of danger from explosives in mines was up before commons as a result of Ellis Smith, laborite, asking what was being done to prevent repetition of such blasts as the one last July at the Brymbo coal mine at Stoke-On-Trent when 27 miners lost their lives.

Sobbing women gathered around the pithead as the dead and injured were brought to the surface. Scenes were particularly grievous in the little mortuary where wives and relatives sought to identify the bodies, marked by yellow tags. Scores of rescuers fought through roof falls toward the trapped men.

Rescuers with gas masks, sealed up one section of the pit to prevent gas from seeping through to the trapped miners. A dull rumbling followed by flashes of flame and clouds of dust signaled the first blast in a shale seam 2,500 feet deep as the night shift was preparing to come to the surface. Telephone communication was maintained with the trapped men, and an adequate flow of air was being maintained.

Further Oil Shutdown?

Close-In May Be Extended To Two Days, Officials Hint

AUSTIN, May 10 (AP)—A possibility that Texas' 80,000 oil wells might be shut down on Saturdays as well as Sundays to bring supply into line with demand appeared today. C. V. Terrell, chairman of the railroad commission which regulates production of crude oil, said the body was "seriously" considering extending the closing of wells on Saturdays.

Terrell said an "extremely acute" situation faced operators because gasoline stocks were excessive and storage of crude oil stocks jumped 880,000 barrels in one week. The additional closing of wells probably will be discussed May 17 at a statewide hearing for taking testimony on which to base a new prorotation order.

BODY IS SOUGHT

REXFORD, N. Y., May 10 (AP)—State police began dragging the Mohawk river near here today for the body of a woman, believed to have been slain and tossed into the water. The action was taken after the finding of two female legs and an arm near here within a week. The second leg was discovered yesterday.

House Begins Debate On Measure

Committee Estimates Jobs Would Be Open To 4,135,000

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The administration's $3,054,425,000 spending-lending bill will provide jobs for 4,135,000 persons the house appropriations committee estimated today.

The primary purpose of the legislation, the committee said, is to furnish speedy "direct employment on the site and indirect employment away from the site of work, for some of the many millions who are unemployed and destitute or harassed by the specters that haunt the doorsteps of that too large unfortunate group."

The committee said it felt the earmarking of the funds with reference to individual projects, localities, groups or otherwise would bog down the program and defeat the primary urgent end and aim of the entire proposal.

Breaking down the job total, the report said an average of 2,800,000 would be employed by the Works Progress Administration for the seven months ending next January 31, 1,000,000 by the Public Works Administration for the period of its two-year program; 275,000 by the National Youth Administration in the 1939 fiscal year and 60,000 on federal public buildings.

In addition to the 4,135,000 total, the committee said approximations already approved for the Civilian Conservation Corps would provide employment for 300,000 individuals in the next fiscal year, while 500,000 more would obtain on general public works carried under regular appropriations to the various government departments.

House passage of the big lending and spending measure became the immediate goal of administration leaders, intent on adjournment by the end of the session. The position outside republican circles, however, was less certain. The legislation, key item in the $4,500,000,000 pump-priming program, would end the practice of giving lump-sum relief appropriations to the president. It would retain for him, however, the right to pass on all work relief and public works projects.

The position outside republican circles, however, was less certain. It would retain for him, however, the right to pass on all work relief and public works projects.

The 90 house republicans called their first party conference of the session late in the day to discuss their strategy against the spending-lending bill. Instead of giving money to the president who in turn could allocate it as he chose, the measure would appropriate the funds directly to the spending agencies.

The provisions which give the president specific authority to approve or turn down individual projects were pencilled into the bill just before it was introduced last yesterday. That action followed a White House conference among the president and legislators who handle appropriations.

Then, in what some senators called an attempt to obtain assurances that the senate would not tamper with those provisions, Secretary Morgenthau, WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, and Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell held another conference with Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) who will pilot the legislation through the chamber.

Of the WPA appropriation, a maximum of $428,000,000 could be used for highways and streets, $250,000,000 for educational and "white collar" projects, and $78,000,000 for miscellaneous developments, such as conservation, power and water plants, and parks.

SCHOOL EVENT Set Friday

Rural Seventh Graders Will Be Given Certificates

Promotion into the seventh grade into high school will be observed for 100 rural school students in exercises at the city hall at 8 p. m. Friday. Address to the seventh grade students is to be made by Dorsey B. Hardeman, San Angelo attorney and former mayor of that city. R. L. Butler, Chalk school student who made the highest grade of any seventh grade pupil in the county on the achievement tests recently completed, will give the address of welcome and Dorothy Lee Broughton, Moore, second high, will offer the response.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Foreman band under the direction of Carl Black-welder. No other special features have been planned. At the conclusion of the program, Anne Martin, county superintendent will make the presentation of diplomas of promotion to the seventh graders from more than 20 schools.

Staging of the exercises in the evening this year eliminates the rural school rally day held on the occasion of the graduation ceremonies. Those in charge believed that more patrons would be able to attend the evening exercises.

She was Mrs. Emily Runyan, whose span of residence in this city covered 56 years.

Mrs. Runyan, 84, succumbed at 9:55 Monday night at the home of a daughter, Mrs. J. C. Stephens, 610 Main street. Although her health had declined with advancing years, Mrs. Runyan had remained active until recently, and was ill only about a week.

Museum Assn. Reelects

Plans Mapped For A Membership Drive Soon

Encouraged by the new popularity of the museum in its quarters at the city park, members of the association Monday evening reelected the officials for another term and made plans for a membership drive.

Dr. P. W. Malone was returned as head of the organization and Carl Blomshild and James T. Brooks were re-elected to three year terms as trustees of the museum. Dr. Frank Boyle, first curator of the museum and who presided Monday in the absence of Dr. Malone, was named with the president as a committee to complete an agreement with the city for housing the museum.

Mrs. Mary Bumpass, who has had a leading role in the development of the museum, declared that figures on museum visitors reflected a decided advantage for the new location. Two weeks ago at the opening 500 persons were registered, Sunday 700 persons were registered between the hours of 1:30 p. m. and 7 p. m., when the doors were closed with the house full.

For protection of the collections in the museum, it was voted to reinforce the doors and windows of the building. Definite plans for a membership campaign were not formulated, but the membership was heavily in favor of a drive to increase support to the institution.

Joe Heads For Training Camp

Confident He Will Beat Maxie To The Punch

STEVENSVILLE, Mich., May 10 (AP)—This village, on the shores of Lake Michigan, has seen the last of Joe Louis, its most famous visitor, until after his battle with Max Schmeling in defense of the world's heavyweight championship in New York June 22.

The negro champion packed today to leave for Lafayetteville, N. Y., up in the Catskill mountains, to begin his six-week training camp. Louis was happy over the opportunity of returning to action, although he doesn't hate losing or eating plenty of fried chicken. That's what he has been doing mostly since he flattened Harry Thomas in Chicago on the night of April Fools day.

Getting even with Schmeling is the paramount thought in Louis' mind. He is positive he will knock him out.

"Smellin' is in for a good slamin' himself, if you are asking me," Louis said. "He'll meet a different Joe Louis when he turns around to face me this time. I'm hitting harder. I think I am punching faster, and I aim to beat him to the punch."

Louis, who weighed 202 1/2 pounds for his engagement with Thomas, ups the beam at 212 and expects to melt off about 10 pounds for the title defense.

Miss Miley To Meet Alabaman

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 10 (AP)—Doll's feminine stars of the Southland began today the "sudden death" eliminations in the 27th annual Southern championship with Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., in a favored position.

Miss Miley won the medal trophy yesterday with a record breaking 18, five under par. Her score broke the course record in competition by two strokes.

Her opponent today was Mrs. E. E. Beall of Birmingham, who survived a playoff of 97 scores.

Miss Miley's score barely withstood a challenge from the advance favorite, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, the runnerup with a 77. Her opponent in the first round was Mrs. E. C. Hollins of New Orleans, who scored 96.

The defending champion, Miss Dorothy Kirby, 19-year-old Atlantan, qualified with an 81, trailing Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, Texas, Miss Kathryn Hemphill of Columbus, S. C., and Betty Jameson of San Antonio, all of whom had 79's.

REYNOLDS SMITH, WALKER CUP STAR, SEEKS BRITISH TITLE

By FELIX McKNIGHT

Stokey Reynolds Smith, twice a Walker cup team player, has his sights set first on a singles and doubles victory against the British cup team—but he isn't modest about announcing his intention to bring back the British amateur title.

On top of a fine game that has won him two Texas men's titles in the last three years—and the state championship in Texas, where perhaps the greatest crop of American amateurs resides, is a good title to own—Smith is eager for the invasion.

Now 26 years old and winner of some 25 tournaments in his playing career, the 5-foot, 7 1/2-inch stylist is probably the outstanding amateur of the southwest. He puts his 168 pounds into every shot and, despite his stature, is one of the longest hitters in amateur golf.

The veteran Willie Maguire, Houston professional, calls Smith's game to the greens one of the best he has ever seen. Right now, the cocky little Dallas star is also wielding a deadly putter, which has made his game more effective than ever.

Smith, who took a business course at Southern Methodist university, did not graduate. At present he is a golf columnist for a Dallas newspaper—and a fair hand at chronicling fairway news. Smith has resided in Dallas all his life.

When he isn't on a golf course, he can be found around a ping-pong table. His favorite sports are boxing, football and wrestling.

If there is a weakness in his game, it would be an occasional hook from the tees.

Smith started his golf career at 13 and won his first tournament—the Lakewood club championship—little more than a year after he swung his first club.

Smith has competed once this year—he was eliminated in the first round of the Houston country club invitation tournament. However, Walter Emery, former Walker cupper and eventual winner of the tourney, had to beat Smith's sensational 69, 1 up, to oust Smith from the meet.

The doughty, dark Smith set what is believed to be a world's record in the 1934 National amateur tournament when he won five straight extra-hole matches, finally falling in the semi-finals.

Jap Immigrants In Manchoukuo Awaiting Girls Sent Out From The Homeland To Become Their Brides

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, May 10—Several thousand lovelorn young Japanese immigrant-farmers are sighing under the spring moon of Manchoukuo (Manchuria) and counting the lagging hours until the arrival of 2,400 girls who are being sent out from the homeland to become colonial brides.

These little women and their prospective husbands are among the "covered wagon" pioneers of one of the world's greatest colonization schemes. They are the vanguard of 5,000, 000 Nipponese who will be sent out to consolidate for mikado and country this rich conquest, for which Japan stands condemned by many nations.

It is a far reach from the cherry blossoms of doll-garden Japan to the endless fields of waving grain in Manchuria—a hard adventure in a land of mystery. But the girls will go forward to the youths they never have seen, to build homes and work in the fields and bear babies for the glory of Nippon, trusting blindly in the old Japanese proverb:

"Love makes every girl beautiful to her man."

The colonization scheme is, as has been said, the mopping up of a conquest, Japan's virtual annexation of Manchuria by force has let loose an avalanche of condemnation, and precipitated a controversy which will outlast this generation.

There are two sides to most questions, and if you ask a Japanese why his country invaded Manchuria, he most likely will point out: The total area of Japan proper is only about 148,000 square miles—almost exactly the size of New England and New York state. Into this comparatively small territory are jammed 70,000,000 people.

The population per square mile is 468—more than eleven times as many people to the square mile as we have.

to consolidate for mikado and country this rich conquest, for which Japan stands condemned by many nations.

It is a far reach from the cherry blossoms of doll-garden Japan to the endless fields of waving grain in Manchuria—a hard adventure in a land of mystery. But the girls will go forward to the youths they never have seen, to build homes and work in the fields and bear babies for the glory of Nippon, trusting blindly in the old Japanese proverb:

There are two sides to most questions, and if you ask a Japanese why his country invaded Manchuria, he most likely will point out: The total area of Japan proper is only about 148,000 square miles—almost exactly the size of New England and New York state. Steers Headed For Clincher

By The Associated Press
One more victory, to make it a round dozen, will give the University of Texas Longhorns the Southwestern Conference baseball championship. They play the third-place Baylor Bears in Austin Friday while the second-place Texas A. & M. Aggies engaged Rice, the cellarites, in Houston.

Uncle Billy Ditch's aggregation, heading for the twentieth title since Ditch started coaching the Longhorns, triumphed over the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs, 3-0, for their 11th consecutive win yesterday. The game clinched at least a tie for the title.

Durwood Horner, Frog right-hander, led the visitors to six singles, but he let one run in himself with a wild heave in the sixth. Ned McDonald, an infielder pitching his first game, set the Frogs down with four hits.

As against Texas' 11 victories and no defeats, the Aggies have eight wins and four losses, Baylor six wins and four defeats.

READING AND WRITING

MORALLY WE ROLL ALONG

Mrs. MacLaren's "Morally We Roll Along" by Gay MacLaren; (L.H.B., Brown; $2).

Those whose memories go back not so far to the days when every considerable town had, for at least a week each summer, a large brown tent pitched on a gently sloping green hillside, surrounded like a hen with chicks by smaller brown and white tents—these will read Gay MacLaren's "Morally We Roll Along" with delight.

Mrs. MacLaren has been a Chautauqua trouper most of her life. She began as a 15-year-old reader of plays, although she wasn't permitted to call them plays in those days. Out of some unexplained recess in her ancestry she inherited the ability to reproduce accurately whatever she heard; she never learned her plays from scripts, but instead went to the theater five or six times and then was ready to go on as all the ten or a dozen characters, on any stage which supported a chair and a table.

She began her incredible tours in the days of the great independent agents, began in fact at the first (and only) real Chautauqua, meaning the one on Chautauqua Lake, N. Y. She continued through the days when a chautauqua was a unit, traveling from town to town a little like a circus. And she has tasted both varieties, and seen them both die under the heels of radio, the movies and cheap motor cars. Chautauqua is no longer a symbol of "culture" to people of small towns.

"Morally We Roll Along" is Miss MacLaren's personal experience on cinder-flied trains, dusty chautauqua "grounds," in bug-infested dirty hotel beds, with professional uplifters, and booking agents who shot her from Kansas to Massachusetts and back to Colorado within the week. It is also the perfect picture of a departed manner of life. To many chautauqua people, their work was "the work"; they were "doing good" and endured their hardships because of that fact.

There were "Egyptian Entertainers" and so forth by the hundred in "the work." There also were plenty of people who could have laid 'em in the aisles on Broadway, and some actually have done that—Chic Sale and Edgar Bergen, for example. Miss MacLaren knows them all and so will you, after following her through her book.

Baptist Men Will Entertain Wives At Next Affair

Men's brotherhood of the First Baptist church will hold its next regular meeting outdoors with wives and families as honor guests. The session will be held in the city park on June 13, it was announced at the meeting Monday evening.

At the Monday meeting Walter Wilson outlined the ways of getting men to come to Sunday school and church, holding that there was no substitute for personal invitations. Edward Lowe, discussing means of holding men in the church services, said that this was not so much dependent upon any of the services as upon exemplifying the principle of love.

Music for the occasion consisted of two numbers by a quartet composed of Tillman Bryant, Wayne Matthews, Joe Hansard and Alton Underwood. Roy Cornelison and Orville Bryant favored with three guitar and madolin numbers.

Committeemen announced for the next meeting were: W. C. Blankenship, presiding; George Meleser, Claude Miller, and Joe Meleser, attendance; Ed McCurtain, Alton Underwood, and Martelle McDonald, program; and Roy Reeder and Nat Shick, transportation.

Waffled Bread Is Something New For Entree Or Dessert Base

Here is a truly new way to serve bread and make it a base for an entree or a dessert—or even a salad accompaniment! It is waffled bread and surprisingly enough it becomes a delectable crisp piece of toast looking for all the world like a waffle. It is very simply made and the directions are given below.

Some of the interesting ways one can use this ingeniously made toast is as a foundation for creamed foods such as creamed eggs, hot chicken a la king and tuna fish with mushrooms. Then, too, it makes grand clubbouse sandwiches, Welsh rarebit or other sandwiches. Best of all, however, is waffled bread shortcake. In this guise, the bread can be used as a basis for any type of fruit shortcake and served with fresh fruit and whipped cream. It makes a truly delightful dish.

Waffled Bread

Trim crusts from slices of bread. Brush both sides with melted butter. Place in hot waffle iron and toast until brown. The slices will become crisp.

Waffled Bread Shortcake

Cover slices of waffled bread with sliced peaches and serve with sweetened, whipped cream.

Creamed Eggs Goldenrod

2 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour

1 cup milk

1-2 teaspoon salt

Dash of pepper

4 hard cooked eggs

Make a white sauce by melting butter, adding flour, milk and seasoning. Separate the yolks from the whites of the hard cooked eggs. Cut the whites into small pieces and press egg yolks through a sieve. Add the whites to the sauce. Serve on waffled bread with sliced yolks sprinkled over the top.

Welsh Rarebit

1 tablespoon butter

1 tablespoon flour

1 cup milk

1-2 teaspoon salt

1-4 teaspoon dry mustard

1-4 teaspoon paprika

2 cups grated cheese

Melt butter, add flour and milk. Add seasoning and cook until thickened. Add grated cheese and cook over boiling water until cheese is melted and the sauce is smooth, stirring constantly. Serve at once on waffled bread.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Average Of $1,473 Paid On Insurance Policies During The Past Year

(This is the second in a series of articles printed this week by The Herald in connection with the Annual Message of Life Insurance. The articles deal in an informational manner with life insurance.—Editor's Note.)

Fewer than half of the people who died in the United States during 1937 owned life insurance, according to estimates made public today by the Big Spring Assn. of Life Underwriters.

These believers in protecting the economic value of their lives left their thousands of dependents a sum totalling 30 per cent more than aggregate factory payrolls of American automobile and automotive parts manufacturers last year.

Dependents of these life insurance owners, however, have not been guaranteed against loss of current earnings of their bread winners for a lengthy period, as the average amount of insurance per policy holder was only for $1,473.

"Despite the smallness of average individual protection," declared the committee, "it is a tribute to the thrift and self-reliance of thousands of Americans who, by tradition, count no sacrifice too great if through it they achieve security for their family."

"In an attempt to accumulate capital sufficient to produce an income adequate for the support of their dependents thousands turn to life insurance, which is the only means known to accumulate a definitely set sum of money if the saver's life is terminated before the savings goal has been reached."

Deaths in the United States last year were estimated at 1,427,000. People owning insurance policies, in an endeavor to protect their loved ones against their economic loss, aggregated 651,600 or 45.7 per cent of the number who passed on. The 651,600 people who owned life insurance at the time of their death carried 1,086,000 policies, an indication of their belief that life, as well as property, has an economic value.

Payments to the thousands of beneficiaries of the 651,600 policy owners who died during 1937 aggregated $960,000,000 or an average of $1,473 per policy owner. This sum contrasts with $806,000,000 total factory payrolls of American automobile and automotive parts manufacturers, who had 517,000 factory employees last year.

The original face value of the insurance owned by the 651,600 policy owners who died last year exceeded the $960,000,000 of payments to beneficiaries, because some of these policies had outstanding against them unpaid loans which reduced their face value by that amount.

Although 651,600 deceased left their dependents $960,000,000 there were 765,400 people, or 54.3 per cent of the total who died in the United States during 1937 who left their dependents without one dollar of insurance.

Total life insurance in force at the end of 1937 of $110,000,000,000, which includes ordinary, industrial and group policies, according to Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, was about four times greater than the $27,000,000,000 in force at the end of 1917.

Approximately 320 Americans carry life insurance policies amounting to $1,000,000 or more.

DRUNKEN DRIVING TEST IS GIVEN A TRYOUT

AUSTIN, May 10 (AP)—There were, of course, no drunken automobile drivers handy today when highway patrol rookies were given a demonstration of a device to test the degree of intoxication of a drinking driver.

But from the ranks of the trainees Dr. F. M. Nesbitt of Arlington, the demonstrator, found a volunteer.

No corks popped or glass tumbled, however. The doctor inserted a bit of cotton in alcohol, placed it in a rookie's mouth and had him blow his breath into a cherry red balloon which was then deflated into the testing machine.

Asks Views On Labor Act

Burke Receiving Suggestions For Amendments

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Senator Burke (D-Neb) said today he was canvassing numerous suggestions for changes in the Wagner labor relations act, which he wants overhauled at the 1939 session of congress.

Burke, a frequent critic of the labor relations board, explained it was too late to seek revision at this session.

He recently sent about 40,000 letters to employers and employees requesting proposals for changing the law. He said today he has received several thousand replies, principally from business men, industrialists and representatives of independent unions.

Burke said many of the replies urged that some provision be made to fix employe responsibility under the law and to prevent the labor relations board from acting "both as prosecutor and judge" in collective bargaining cases.

The senator said he was seeking some way to define "employe responsibility" and "unfair" labor practices. Sit-down strikes should be strictly prohibited, he asserted.

Discussing possible methods of separating the board's present functions, Burke said he was considering a plan to make the board simply a prosecutor.

New Star Discovery Being Studied

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis. May 10 (AP)—A star new to the astronomical charts claimed attention today because it may be the nearest one to the earth.

The star's existence was disclosed by spectra obtained by Prof. G. F. Kuiper of the University of Chicago's Yerkes observatory here.

It has been designated Wolf 424 and is of the 15th visual magnitude.

Dr. Otto Struve, observatory director, said last night it was found to have "a very late M-type spectrum" duplicated only by the star, Wolf 359, the intrinsically faintest star known.

Alpha Centauri heretofore has been the nearest star known. It is about 4.3 light years, or more than 25 trillion miles, away.

The probable distance of Wolf 424 was computed at 2.7 light years, less than that of Alpha Centauri. Thus, according to the astronomer's calculations, the new star would be about 3,780,000,000,000 miles away.

Dr. Struve said the star "probably is either the nearest or the second nearest star in space."

Today And Tomorrow By Walter Lippmann (Mr. Lippmann's column is published as an informational and news feature. His views are personal and are not to be construed as necessarily reflecting the editorial opinion of The Herald—Editor's Note).

SENATOR NYE GROWS OLDER On the subject of American neutrality Senator Nye has long had strong, not to say passionate, convictions. But he would, I am sure, be the first to admit that he has changed his mind. Thus as chairman of the debates on the various neutrality acts he has stood for statutory embargoes. A year ago in January he joined in a unanimous vote of the senate imposing an embargo on the export of arms to Spain. A year ago in March he introduced a resolution which would have put an embargo on the export of all arms to all nations and at all times, except only to an American nation at war with a European or Asiatic power. But now he has a resolution in congress which confesses that as regards the Spanish embargo "the purpose has not been served," and he wishes to raise the embargo and let the Madrid government buy American arms.

Senator Nye's inconsistencies are shared by almost everyone in this country. They arise out of the fact that on this immensely difficult subject virtually all Americans have contradictory opinions. With Senator Nye they believe that to export arms to a warring nation is to run the very grave risk of becoming embroiled with its enemies. Under the influence of this idea Americans approved of the Spanish embargo. They approved it so thoroughly that in January, 1937, after about one day's debate, the embargo was imposed in the senate by a vote of 81 to 0 and in the house by a vote of 411 to 1. But with Senator Nye Americans also believe that a nation fighting an aggressor should be allowed to obtain arms with which to defend itself. And so when Japan invaded China less than three months after the latest neutrality act had been passed, the country upheld the president when he did not impose an embargo. The president was able to avoid an embargo because both China and Japan found it convenient not to describe their savage warfare as a legal war. And there has been no real protest in congress against the nullification of the intent of the neutrality act.

So we placed an embargo against Spain because we thought our peace was served by not exporting arms. And now we have an embargo in the Far East because we think our interests are served by the Chinese resistance. And now we have an agitation in this country to raise the embargo against the Spanish loyalists because many think the cause of freedom and of peace is bound up with the resistance of Valencia and Barcelona to General Franco and his Fascist allies. It is clear that the net result of the experiment in neutrality by act of congress has been to jeopardize the whole principle of American neutrality. The embargo against Spain was a clear violation of the established rules of international law, yet now, the raising of the embargo after nearly two years of civil war would be a clear violation of the spirit of neutrality. We should be changing the rules of the game in the middle of the game and we should be changing them because we did not wish General Franco to win.

The position in which we find ourselves in the Far East is equally embarrassing. We continue to sell arms and war materials to China and Japan on the transparent fiction that they are not at war. We take advantage of this fiction because we hope that China will resist successfully. We are able to take advantage of the fiction because Japan is obliging enough not to declare war and so force the president to proclaim an embargo. And Japan is so obliging because we are selling her war materials that she needs in order to conquer China. Thus we are able to nullify our own laws because we have made it worth while to Japan to let us nullify our own laws.

Viewed as a whole our Spanish-Chinese neutrality is contradictory, capricious, evasive and undignified, determined not by any general principle but by fluctuating sympathies. The whole policy very much needs to be clarified. It would not, I think, be difficult to do this and to amend the law so that it will conform to American sentiment and American interests. The American people believe, rightly I think, that they should not again be drawn into quarrels and perhaps into war over the seizure or the sinking of ships carrying munitions and war materials. But they also believe that nations fighting for their existence should not be denied the ancient right to obtain arms, and that to refuse to export arms is to make it easy for the highly militarized powers to conquer the more peaceable nations.

These two views can be reconciled by repealing the statutory embargoes and providing that all war trade shall be on a "cash-and-carry" basis. If this were the law, the American people would not have to care if a ship carrying arms made its way to America by land or sea. The cargo would not belong to an American. The ship would not be long to an American. If this principle had been in effect from 1914 to 1917 we should have had no controversy about munitions either with Germany or with the Allies. On the other hand, China, Spain, Ethiopia or any other nation could still obtain arms here if they had the money and the ships. And since their enemies could also obtain arms on the same terms, no question could be raised about whether our policy was in fact neutral. The cash-and-carry principle, plus its corollary that Americans must trade at their own risk with nations at war, is a sound and useful revision of our traditional neutrality. The embargo, either by presidential proclamation or congressional statute, is unsound, unworkable, and dangerous. The cash-and-carry principle is truly neutral and non-interventionist; the embargo is in fact an intervention, and leads into rather than away from entanglements in foreign disputes. Thus the Spanish embargo is in fact intervention against Madrid; its repeal now would be intervention against Franco. The failure to impose a Chinese embargo is intervention on behalf of China. The American government ought not to have to decide whether it

Manhattan by GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—There is, it appears, an inexplicable tendency on the part of actors, even among stars and the more celebrated players, to jumble their lines on opening night. They seldom muff cues or forget their lines, but they frequently say them backward and thus provide audiences with laughs not intended by the authors and directors. One such contretemps occurred the other evening and the audience completely broke down. I have in mind that scene in "The Circle," a revival starring Greece George, where one of the actors has a line which goes: "Why, Lady Kitty, she had a beauty that would take your breath away." The momentarily befuddled actor said it this way: "Why, Lady Kitty, she had a breath that would take your beauty away." It was nine minutes before quiet was restored.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds by ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—The "tank" on the back lot is covered over with cloth to keep out the sunlight, and the cloth—hundreds of yards of it—billows and flaps loudly in the wind. The "tank" is an overstated swimming pool, surrounded on three sides by a cyclorama of grey which substitutes admirably for far horizons in sea scenes. For waves gasoline motors on the far side, out of camera range, can churn up a stiff running surf. The other day Loretta Young and David Niven, both fully clothed, spent hours being "dunked" after the collision of their sailboats. Joel McCrea, wearing swimming trunks and a flannel beach robe, spent hours in the corner of the tank, all ready to help out in the rescue under William Seiter's direction for "Three Blind Mice."

Preparations All Wet By lunch-time the collision business, and the scene in which Loretta (who really can't swim) knocks out Niven to lug him to shore had been finished. What had to be done in the afternoon was the scene in which Loretta and Niven crawl up on McCrea's rock. Clad in dry duplicates of their morning costumes—sailing duds—the pair descended gingerly from the rock into the water where several prop-men, in trunks, worked and swam. Niven dunked himself completely, his head emerging dripping. Loretta threw back her head to sop her hair thoroughly, and they were ready. Sitting on the rock, feet dangling in the water, both splashed water over themselves to stay dripping. There wasn't a hair-dresser in sight. When they shot the scene, Loretta's hair was as stringy and wet as yours would be in the same situation. (They've stopped that business of half-drowned heroines coming up with permanent waves unmoistened.)

Moving The Rock Then for a second "take" they waited to move the rock, or the little rock beside the big one. This should have been a tough job: we waited around to see the fun. We pictured a half-dozen prop-men in there pushing and groaning. But what happened? They slung a long rope under the rock, did a little easy tugging—from the dry floor—and the heavy business glided along smoothly—on casters. (But it wasn't so heavy, at that—just a framework rock.) All this time Loretta Young and David Niven stayed in the water, up to their chins—"We've got to," called Loretta, "we were freezing up there!"

OCTAGON HOUSE BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR Chapter Three RUNNING THE GAMUT "When I found the ambergris," Pam rushed on, "I did a lot of hard thinking. Funny that in all these years of hunting, I never once considered aftermath and transportation problems. Anyway, the lump wasn't staked, or above high water mark. The sand was soft there, and I couldn't see any footprints. But I'll admit the wind was whipping so that it practically had covered my own prints in the sand. On the other hand, anyone who might have found it before me wouldn't have left it, any more than I intended to."

"Right," Assey said. "Well, I got a stick from some dune drift and levered the lump up above the highest water mark. Helped ambergris I've hunted all my life, and there was the tide, bounding in. I thought of swimming it back, but three miles is too much for me, and if anyone picked me up from a boat or anything, they could claim salvage. And you happen to know Rodney Stru?" "Young Rodney? No," Assey said, "but Bill Porter claims Rodney'll be the first of the idle rich they're sending to the penitentiary, and a good thing it'll be."

"Pam nodded approvingly. "That's Rodney. He's got a shooting camp beyond the point. I noticed fresh tire marks—he keeps a beach wagon with big tires to taxi his bunch over and back. After considering that angle, I decided I'd practically rather shove the ambergris back into the water than ask Rodney or his pals to help. I've had my little run-in with Rodney, like the rest of the local gals."

"Like A Tawny Tiger" "And then Rodney's beach wagon bounded up in front of me, and in it was Sister, apparently on her way to Rodney's. She plays around with him, does she, huh?" Pam shrugged. "Father and I decided years ago that we were happier not knowing Marina's playmates. It's all very well to take up the white man's burden, but you have to draw the line somewhere. Well, there was Sister, Assey, and she caught on about the ambergris. Her eyes gleamed like—like a tawny tiger—I never saw a tawny tiger, but that's the only way I know of describing her. It somehow I don't honestly think I ever hated her more than I did that moment."

"Would the ambergris mean so much to her? The money, I mean?" Assey asked. The moonlight caught Pam's twisted smile. "Her modeling and Jack's patent would keep Father and me in utter luxury. But Sister and Jack have expensive tastes, and they're usually more broke than we are. Sister caught on, all right. Don't think she's anyone's fool. I knew there wasn't any use haggling with her. I said, 'All right, Hattie, if you take it back.' Her cigarette, but described an arc into the water."

"And Sister said," Pam continued, "that I could go to hell. She said she was the only one who could get the stuff back, and without her I'd have nothing. In short, she would have it all herself. And that was that." Assey grunted. He hadn't liked the sound of the bewitching Marina when he first heard about her. Now he gave up being open minded and let himself hate her, thoroughly and forcefully.

"If hope," Pam said, "you knocked her teeth out." "I picked up the stick I'd used as a lever," Pam said, "and I don't know where I got the strength, but before she had time to understand, I had that lump of ambergris down in the surf." Assey's eyes narrowed. With $50,000 and all that meant staring her in the eye, this amazing child preferred to throw it away rather than let her sister get it— "Yes, I'd rather have lost it entirely," Pam echoed his thoughts. "So would you. When Sister saw that lump hit the surf, she was out of that beach wagon in a flash, yelling for me to get it. And that time, I did the laughing."

"Old Rats And Mice" "Didn't she go for it?" Assey demanded. "Sister," Pam said, "is terrified of water. She can't swim. And let me tell you, Assey, the primitive emotions that got aired on that beach—I felt like something out of one of those earthy novels, all heaving breasts and stark urges. We ran the gamut, Sister and I did. And the ambergris bobbed on the surf." Assey puffed at his pipe till the bowl burned his fingers. He marveled at Pam Frye, and the impersonal way she could describe such a scene, as though it had happened to two other people entirely. It was, he decided, the Cape Cod's half of her speaking. Her mother's family had been an indomitable tribe. "Go on," he said. "I knew the lump would float back in with the tide," she said. "But Sister didn't stop to figure that out. After she got exhausted, I said I'd get it, if she'd promise to take it back for me for $5,000. And she put that in writing. Assey, on the back of a grocery bill, I've got it here. After that, I marched into the surf and fished out the ambergris. She helped me get it to the beach wagon, and we covered it with a tarpaulin, and started home. She was a rag, emotionally, and I was a pulp, physically. The surf out there is something awful, and fighting the undertow almost caved me in."

"Did you trust her?" Assey asked. "Trust Sister?" Pam laughed. "Don't be silly. Of course not. Half-way home, she said we mustn't tell a soul. I agreed we mustn't. Then she said, let's take it straight to Boston, now. And the air was full of the smell of old rats and mice. I said we couldn't, without my telling Father. Otherwise, he'd have the police combing the Cape for me when I didn't return to get dinner. She said that mustn't happen, and I kept on agreeing. It was damning on me, Assey, that she hadn't an idea in the world of letting me have my ambergris, after all. It was one of those things you could feel."

THE PLACE OF THE HOSPITAL

Thursday of this week, May 12, will mark the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale. An immortal as a nurse, she devoted her life to the cause of better hospitalization, and due in part to her pioneering has been the continued program through the years to our better and better facilities for the treatment of the sick.

It is fitting that May 12 should be designated as Hospital Day, in memory of the work of Florence Nightingale. Hospitals will observe the day again this year, inviting the public to visit their plants, view their equipment and get a better idea of how these institutions of mercy function.

As one editorial writer has pointed out, every individual and every family is a potential hospital occupant, and it behooves each of us to become acquainted better with those hospitals in our own community that render service in time of sickness and accident. The hospital must be recognized as a top-ranking factor in community life. It is a place not only for the scientific and sympathetic care of the sick, but also is—and this is becoming more in evidence each year—a place for teaching and research. Without the equipment and trained personnel and the spirit of science and research—and the spirit of humanity, if you please—that mark our hospitals, our nation still would be in constant menace of pestilence and plague; what now are minor illnesses or minor accidents, thanks to hospitals and the doctors and nurses who staff them, would be major and perhaps fatal occurrences. Every hour of the day, every day of the year, the physicians, the nurses and the scientists and all others associated with our hospitals are on duty for the sole purpose of saving human lives and correcting mental illnesses. Health is a vital basis for happiness; and the hospitals, with all the investment in money and human skill they represent do a very great thing toward maintaining health and happiness. In time of need, we all appreciate the hospital. Hospital Day should serve to make this appreciation more than temporary.

LABOR TROUBLE AT PLANT AVERTED

DETROIT, May 10 (AP)—Threatened trouble at the plant of the Michigan Steel Castings Co. where 11 persons were injured yesterday failed to develop early today. Union pickets paraded briefly and then were dismissed until 3 p. m.

An impressive show of police strength was made after reports became current that the United Auto Workers (CIO) would make an attempt to dislodge a crew of men housed inside the plant.

The plant has continued operation since a strike was called three weeks ago by the UAW because of a 10 per cent pay cut.

Pickets and police clashed yesterday. The injured included an Associated Press photographer, Bede Irvin, 27. Police department officials started an investigation of the photographer's injury today. A policeman admitted striking him with a club.

National Draft Plans Worked Out

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10 (AP)—Details of a national lottery plan for conscripting citizens into the armed forces of the United States in wartime, were worked out here today by U. S. war department officials and army officers.

Thirteen million men between 21 and 31 years of age would be summoned in the first draft, military officials disclosed.

Colonel V. J. O'Kellher and Major Lewis B. Hershey, both of the army general staff in Washington, headed a group of army authorities who met here yesterday for a four-day conference. Their visit was to perfect in the seven western states the far-flung mechanism of the selective service plan for the next war.

Major Hershey said the draft would be conducted by an independent government agency, permitting the armed forces to concern themselves entirely with the enemy.

Wilkinson Test Is Cleaning Out

Bailing oil and some water, the Texas Cox No. 1 H. H. Wilkinson, wildcat test eight miles west of Big Spring, continued to clean out Tuesday from a 300 quart shot Sunday from 2,309-3,454 feet.

Whether the water was coming from the 3,469-75 foot level where sulphur water was logged before it was shut off by plugging to 3,454 feet, or whether it was from the oil sand or the water put in with the gravel tamp shot was not determined immediately.

When bridge from the shot was drilled out Monday evening, tools were blown some 200 feet up the hole, according to reports. With the shot apparently having helped the small shows in the rank wildcat, it was indicated Tuesday that a heavy acid treatment may follow. Location is in the northwest quarter of section 32-34-1n, T&P.

In the Snyder pool of southeast-Texas, the Iron Mountain No. 6 Snyder, 1,650 feet east and 330 feet from the south lines of section 28-30-1n, T&P, was completed for 776.29 barrels flowing in 24 hours. It was shot with 800 quarts from top of pay at 2,680 to 2,890 feet in lime.

FEW FARMS TO BE WITHOUT COTTON

Dominance of cotton as a money crop in Howard county was shown Tuesday in a compilation of farm applications by the county agent's office.

Of 983 farms on which applications for cooperation in the farm program have been received, only a half dozen are non-cotton units.

The same total showed that this year there will be 60 ranch operators cooperating in the range program. There is a possibility that this number will be increased before a deadline is reached.

VOTE IN SEATTLE PORT DISPUTE IS POSTPONED

SEATTLE, May 10 (AP)—Maritime unions delayed a vote today on a proposal to close the port of Seattle by calling their men off ships. Port operations went ahead as usual, although five ships were tied up. No union had scheduled a membership vote on the proposal.

Peter B. Gill, business agent of the sailors' union of the Pacific, said his group was awaiting "legal advice" before staging a vote.

The committee's recommendation yesterday, an aftermath of the closing of the port of Tacoma 10 days ago by the waterfront employers' association in a jurisdictional dispute between the union-affiliated sailors' union and an east coast sailors' CIO union, was to enforce the ban here on good destined to or from Tacoma. The five ships are tied up in the "hot cargo dispute."

TELEGRAMS SENT

Telegrams urging that Big Spring be given the 1939 conference of the 127th district of Rotary International were dispatched from here to the district governor, Ed McLaughlin, at Breckenridge where the current district parley is drawing to a close.

FLIERS KILLED

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—Seven Royal Air Force fliers were killed in three crashes today, a day after King George made flying visits to four air force stations.

ORGANIZE RECORDS ON COTTON SALES

Anticipating a frantic rush around July for cotton adjustment payments on 1937 crops, the county agent's office is seeking to organize its records on cotton sales here last autumn.

Sales reports by producers are being checked against those by ginners. Where there is a discrepancy, the producer is to be called in to clear up the matter.

M. Weaver, assistant agent, said that efforts were being made to have all this information in hand before the rush days before the deadline on July 15.

The cotton adjustment payments are for those cooperating in the current program who produced cotton in 1937. The payments will amount to three cents a pound or 85 per cent of the adjusted yield on the base acreage operated in 1937.

Chart Route For Flight To Warsaw

LOS ANGELES, May 10 (AP)—Five Polish airmen studied the maps of a 16,500-mile route today over which they hope to fly their California-built transport monoplane to Warsaw.

Only thing lacking before the Poles can hop off from Union air terminal tomorrow or Thursday is permission from certain South American countries to cross their territory.

Pan-American Airways said the five aviators had asked for use of the facilities on a non-stop flight to Mexico City, thence along the west coast to Chile, across South America to Argentina and northward to Natal, Brazil.

From the Brazilian city, they face a 1,800-mile journey over the South Atlantic ocean to Dakar, Africa.

Major MacIaw Makowski, president of the Polish L.O.T. air line, is leader of the quintet.

Local People In Auto Collision, Escape Injury

Seven Big Spring people escaped unharmed in a car crash near O'Donnell in Lynn county early Tuesday.

Those in the car were Mrs. Clyde Tingle, driver, Mrs. Pat Kenney, Mary Ruth Ditt, Shirley June Robbins, Gwendolyn Schmitz, Betty Bob Ditts and Jane Marie Tingle. Mrs. Tingle was talking the group to Lubbock to appear before the district 2-T Lions convention as representatives of the local club.

Details on the accident were not learned, although it was ascertained that the Tingle car was badly damaged in a collision with a truck on the sweeping curve near O'Donnell. Mr. Tingle left for the scene on learning of the crash.
