Material Shortages Delay Hook-Up Of Santa Fe System

Shortage of materials has forced a "15 or 20 day" delay in the hook-up of the Texico-Farwell Waterworks lines with the recently leased Santa Fe water system property, V. C Venable, waterworks superintendent, said on Tuesday of this week.

Venable went on to explain that material which was thought necessary to do the job was purchased some weeks past, "but when we went to hook up the lines we found we must have some different pipes and of Chicago, but Venable estimated that it would be around 15 days before the pipes and valves could arrive here and be installed. Lines have been opened for the connection of the two water systems, the superintendent said Tuesday, and it should be a fairly quick job to get the entire set-up complete once the necessary material is on hand.

The huge water tank on the Santa Fe property has been scraped, disinfected and is now covered to prevent contamination. This tank will hold over 280,000 gallons of water, as compared to the 52,000 gallon capacity of the tank now in use in Farwell, and with the combination of the two, a strong pressure is assured for the Twin Cities.

The work has been particularly spurred on by the new Farwell city sewerage system, which will necessitate a stronger pressure and more water, Venable continued, going on to say, "we had hoped to have the Santa Fe tank hooked up to the lines this week."

An ex'ra feature of the combination hook-up will be a reversal valve set-up on the main lines, Venable said, explaining, "If needed, we can cut a switch throwing stronger pressure toward Farwell, or vise versa"

New Officers Will Be Elected For CC, January 29

New officers for the Farweil Chamber of Commerce will be elected on Monday night, January 29th, President C. M. Henderson said today, in announcing a meeting of the CC to which all interested parties in Farwell are invited to attend.

Latest developments on the proposed rural telephone project for Parmer, Deaf Smith, and Castro counties will be aired at meetings over the area slated to begin this. week, Leo Forrest, head of the REAL office in Hereford, announced this Specifically, these meetings are being held to discuss the financial end of the project. Forrest explained than an allotment of $454,000 had been approved in Washington for the telephone work, "but", he added, "weare asked to furnish 10 per cent of this amount-$52,000-as our equipy in the project. In other words, this allotment works much as an REC loan, with 90 per cent being allowed by the government and the borrowers putting up the remaining 10 per cent as their equity in the work.

"This is a little hard to explain to those who have been seeking rural phones, most of whom aiso enjoy the benefits of rural electriciy," he went on. Under the REA setup, Forrest explained, no equity was demanded of the users, with a 100 per cent loan being made by the government. "Unfortunately, this 15 not the case of rural telephone projects," he said.

Forrest also took occasion to point out that actually, the REA and the telephone project are not inter-related, but REA offices over the country have assisted in helping interested persons work out a telephone system for rural areas.

At the present time, some 953 individuals in the proposed area have already paid in $5, which was slated to be used for getting the project worked out, administrative costs, etc. Forrest emphasized the point that if they now paid another $45, which would make their investment $50 in all, "if something should arise and the project fall through, the $45 will be returned to each

Some complications may arise im working out the program due to the fact that three telephone companies will be involved in the area to be served, it is reported. Southwestern Bell Telephone serves the Hereford area in Deaf Smith county at present and is very interested in securing that portion of the proposed systems but disclined to take over the entire project. The Southern Association serves Bovina and Friona, whie Farwell is served by the Mountains States Telephone Company, with offices in Clovis. If the system is to be worked out, those interested believe, it will be advisable to get one company to handle the entire set-up. Present plans call for a dial system phone throughout, with central stations ser up near Oklahoma Lane, near Buvina and near Friona, in this county. All details of the program will be discussed at the slated meetings, Forrest said, in urging that rural resdents make it a point to attend the meetings in their particular area, where they can ask their questions pertaining to the program.

Harold Carpenter and Floyd Scnlenker are the Permer county men working with representatives from the other areas on the project.

county was 5600 acres, the measured acreage being 3608. Yield for 1950 is considered to be lower, although reports have been made. Average yield for 1949 was 2:5 pounds. Dry cool weather and high winds during planting caused difficulties; insects were also a hazard to the crop, the report stated.

The legume program in Parmer County has increased in the past year, the county agent feels, and will probably increase further as farmers realize the necessity for organic mater and nitrogen in the soil.

Another improvement in the farining system of the county is the increase in perennial pastures. With plenty of water available, farmers have begun to look for plants to furnish year round grazing for cattle, Jones adds.

There was about one third increase of irrigation wells in the county over the 1949 total, according to records and irrigation is becoming more and more widespread.

4-H club work in the county is built around five clubs with an enrollment of 210 boys. Clubs were located at Black, Bovina, Lazbuddy, Friona, and Farwell in 1950. Boys had demonstrations with crops, gardens, home grounds beautification, rabbits, swine, poultry, dairy and

It Was Big Fat Paper; Few Topped Tribune

When the editor of the Tribune Hop Graham, informed the staft that all he wanted for Christmas was 30 pages, they were quite skeptical, but they proved that it could be done.

But the local paper wasn't the only one with ideas of a bigger, fatter edition on Christmas, as was avidenced by an article in the Panhandle Publisher, official publication of the Panhandle Press association.

According to the story, 58 papers in this area "outdid" themselves on the Christmas paper and topped their usual number of pages. There were only seven others, however, who put their shoulders to the grindstone and beat out as many as 30 pages. The Hereford Brand and Borger News topped everyone with 48.

As for the two-color job in the local Christmas edition; it wasn't mentioned in the article.

Mrs. Harry Jesko and Mrs. J. H. Stone attended business matters in Lee, spent Monday and Tuesday in Muleshoe on Tuesday morning.

ENMU Professor Speaks At Bovina Zone Meeting

Dr. "Tiny" Reed of ENMU., who is New Mexico department commander of the American Legion was principal speaker at the Legion Zone meeting in Bovina Tuesday night.

According to Loyde Brewer, zone commander, Dr. Reed's discussion on 'Why I Am A Legionaire" was "very inspiring." His subject was centered around the preamble of the Constiution of the United States.

"We were fortunate in obtaining Dr. Reed as a speaker," Brewer emphasized, "because he is very much in demand and has obligations all over the state of New Mexico." Representatives were present at the meeting from all posts in the zone including Bovina, Farwell, Friona, Hereford, Dimmit and Vega.

Four visitors from Amarillo also attended. They were Lewis Fields, Roy Beard, Jim Johnson, and Mr. Attending from Farwell were Graham and Iris Thornton and Brewer. Next meeting will be at Dimmit on Feb. 13.

Locals Split Games With Adrian Teams

Playing last Tuesday night, January 9th, the Friona and Adrian teams divided cage games, Coace Raymond Cook reported today. First on the floor were the girls' squads, and the Squaws enjoyed a comfortable lead until late in the game, when a suddenly basket-hot Adrian forward trio almost upset the local substitutes.

Final score on the match was 31-30, favoring the Squaws. Cook said that his girls enjoyed a 11-7 lead at the half and had increased it to 25-14 at the end of the third quarter, when subs went into the fray.

The Chiefs, on the other hand were swamped by the Adrian quintet, which seems to be able to handle most of the Parmer County teams with ease. Final count on the boys' skirmish was 53-20.

Miss Nell Cunningham, who was Agent Jones Warns Dairymen To Check

Mastitis costs dairymen a large amount of money each year, Joe Jones, county agent, emphasizes, and herd owners should take extra precautions to alleviate the disease. An infected cow is a constant threat to other cows in the herd, he says.

According to the county agent, there are two kinds of mastitis, cute and chronic; chronic is usually a result of chronic, which is more common and not so easily recognized.

The acute form of the disease auses reddened, swollen, and painful quarter, Jones informs. Mastitis is caused by bacteria which enter the peat canal and lodge in the milk c. ern at the base of the test which causes a mild or low grade inflamation. No New License Tags Have Arrived Here

The 1951 license plates for Texas drivers have not been received at the office of Tax Collector Char-Lovelace, according to word released the first of the week by Mrs. Bess Mansfield, deputy collector.

"The tags will go on sale This year—as last—on February 1st," Mrs. Mansfield said, adding, "However, last year, they did not arrive until about January 30th, and it may be that late before we receive them this year."

The charge for plates will remain fees being based on the weight at with orange numerals, it is presumed As the bacteria affect the glands, that the 1951 tags will be orange with the WEST!

Western states have had substantial population gains in the past ten years. The average growth in the seven states we serve has been about 24%. But the number of telephones has more than doubled in most communities. That means more people you can call-more who can reach you.

Bringing a telephone into the world involves a lot more than just delivering it. It has to be connected with all other telephones in the community, and that takes more wires, poles, cables, switchboards and other equipment. Moreover, as telephones are added, the job becomes more complex and costs (particularly at today's high prices) go up.

We've spent $162 million since the end of World War II to meet service requirements in the seven states. Large additional amounts of new capital will be needed for continued expansion and improvement of service. There is only one source of money for such expansion: It must come from people with savings to invest. And they will do so only if our earnings compare favorably with those of other businesses.

Mystery of Cimarron Rose Among Best Kept Secrets of Oklahoma

Her name is remembered as just Rose - - "Rose of the Cimarron." Nothing else.

The rest is cloaked in mystery
- - an Oklahoma puzzle that probably never will be solved now that the principal actors in the old Indian Territory drama have departed from the scene, ushered from the staged by the hand of Death itself.

On that score there is only one possibility - - that "the Rose" still lives, an ancient and respected woman in some Oklahoma community - - and that she might, in the deep autumn of her life, reveal her identify. But even that possibility is highly remote.

Chances are that "Rose of the Cimarron" - - the lady with the gun in the picture - - will remain forever an enigma.

This is the story:

In the early '90s the nortorious Bill Doolin gang of outlaws was riding roughshod over the northern Indian Territory, looting banks and robbing stores.

With the redoubtable Doolin rode two members of the former Dalton gang, George Newcomb and Charlie Pierce. With them, too, was the lady known as "the Rose", said to be the sweetheart of Newcomb. Although she took no part in actual raids she tended their camps and helped them find refuge when refuge was necessary.

The association went on for years until it ended, as outlaw associations usually do, with buckshot. Newcomb and Pierce were shot to death as they lay sleeping, presumably by other outlaws, at a ranch near Pawnee.

Bill Doolin was arrested by U. S. Marshall Bill Tilghman at Eureka Springs, Ark., where he had gone to take mineral baths. Doolin later escaped from jail only to be killed by buckshot from the gun of U. S. Marshal Heck Thomas.

Federal officers then rounded up everybody who had been connected in any way with the Doolin outfit, and "Rose of the Cimarron" was one of those taken.

But U. S. marshals, considering that the gang leaders were now dead, decided to be lenient with "the Rose" and let her go, with a changed name. They agreed that they would never reveal her true identify, and they never did.

Heck Thomas died without talking. Bill Tilghman kept the secret until he was killed at Cromwell, Okla., by a U. S. prohibition officer in 1924. Emmett Dalton, only survivor of the old Dalton gang, always said he knew the story but he didn't talk before his death a few years ago in California.

They would only say that "the Rose" turned respectable and married, and that perhaps her husband never learned of her connection with one of the wildest outlaw bands that ever operated in Oklahoma.

It may be that "Rose of the Cimarron" still lives; it may be that she doesn't. But ,whatever the case, she was central figure in the best secret of the frontier. The mystery goes on . . .

Southwestern Press Vignettes

All those old jokes about women drivers are beginning to fall flat in New Mexico, according to the STATE LINE TRIBUNE of Farwell, Tex., which comments:

"Teen-age school girls who drive buses in New Mexico have the best record of accident-free operation of any category of drivers. Over-school ladies are next in line, followed by schoolage boys, and lastly by over-school age men. What was that remark about women drivers?"

An item in his own paper, the BASTROP (LA.) CLARION told Editor G. B. Herring, Jr., that the Rev. D. W. Burt of Central Baptist would preach about "Seven Ducks in a Muddy River." Said Mr. Herring, in his "Over the Editor's Desk" column:

"This writer couldn't help but go hear that one, with duck season at hand. The way it turned out, the word "duck" was meant as a verb instead of as a noun and referred to a Biblical character being ducked seven times in the muddy River Jordan in order to be cured of disease and sin."

Billiken, whoe page one "Newsgrafts" appear in the VERNON (TEX.) TIMES, seems to believe that bread cast upon the waters will return and so advises his police chief, as follows:

"Memo to Chief Walter Suttle: I see by the papers that over at Stamford—the chief of police is helping the visitors in that city by dropping in a nickel in the parking meters, and leaving them a note telling them about it. The plan has had some good results, too, I am told, inasmuch as one traveling salesman sent the chief a dollar bill and told him he appreciated the lift and that the money would help 20 other forgetful people that visited in that city. Okay, chief, want change for a quarter."

R. H. Wessel, who conducts the "Observer" column in the FRED-ERICK (OKLA.) PRESS, points with pride to his hometown's financial good fortune:

"Frederick is believed to be the only municipality in Oklahoma, and possibly in the entire United States, obtaining funds from its share of oil production. About a thosaund dollars a month, is the city's share of the oil wells in the Frederick oilfield according to Mayor Owen Fry."

The editor of the LA GRANGE (TEX.) JOURNAL comes out with a sensible plug for safe driving in his " 'Round the Town" corner. He says:

That little slip of paper called a driver's license is a document of trust. It shows that the State is trusting us as having enough gumption to operate a high powered vehicle on its highways, streets, and roads. It is entrusting us with the operation of a deadly weapon, and assuming that we have enough sense to "point it in the right direction." To overlook any one of the safety rules laid down as a condition of its issuance is to violate your agreement made with the State when it gave you the right to drive."

Boy Finds Plenty of 'Pen' Pals

When a 19-year-old boy in Ebute Mettia, Nigeria, British West Africa, asked an American the name of a newspaper in the United States that might help him get "some pen pals for a long time" the American suggested The Echo at Huntsville, Texas.

The other day The Echo received a letter from the boy asking for "as many pen friends as possible."

He had addressed the right place. The Echo is the official publication of the Texas state pen.

Rifles at 60 Paces!

Arkansas Editors Fought Duel to Settle Argument

A small group of gentlemen had gathered on the bank of the Arkansas, in the Cherokee Nation across river from Fort Smith; and as they talked, in low but earnest tones, the casual passerby might have figured that a hunt was being arranged—for that crisp morning in the spring of 1845 promised an ideal day for sport.

A little apart stood two of the men, each examining the flint of a long rifle, and each speculatively eyeing the other, but they gave no thought to deer or turkey shooting. This was something different!

The two rival editors from the Arkansas town of Van Buren were about to fight a duel—with rifles at 60 paces!

Politics the Cause

And now, with the seconds stepping off the distance, let us leave the grim preliminaries for a moment to look into the background of the affair.

At Van Buren, the year before, Thomas Sterne and J. D. Logan had founded the Western Frontier Whig, a journal embracing the politics implied in the masthead.

In the same town there was a contemporary but older sheet, the Arkansas Intellingencer, through which Editor George W. Clarke upheld the virtues of the Democratic party.

It was inevitable that the twain should disagree, and when Editor Clarke one day referred to Editor Logan as "Big Mush"—after a comical Indian then at large in the precincts—Mr. Logan, in his next issue, returned the compliment by calling the Intelligencer's editor "Toady" Clarke.

He Chose Rifles

The latter, being of an impulsive nature, resorted to the code and challenged Logan, who accepted and chose rifles, at 60 paces. All of which takes us back to the river bank, the two opponents facing each other with weapons raised.

"Ready, gentleman?" the referee asked, then gave the signal.

The two rifles cracked, almost at the same time, but the duellists remained standing. Both had missed.

There was a slight delay for reloading, and then the editors squared away for another try. The rifles lashed out again, and with no better results than wasted powder and lead, whereupon friends persuaded the gentlemen to shake hands, return to their separate sanctums, and confine their future duels to the printed page.

Went to Texas

Of such spirited nature were many of the early-day Arkansas editors. They wrote strong words, and were prepared to back them up with duels, but they usually shot straighter with the pen than with the rifle or pistol.

John Logan wound up in Texas. The year after the bloodless duel he and his partner, Sterne, closed shop in Van Buren, loaded their printing equipment on a boat and went to New Orleans, where they trans-shipped on a coastal vessel for Port La Vaca, Texas.

Moved to Victoria

Clarke, the rival editor, didn't chase them away. They merely believed that Texas, then about to be annexed by the United States, offered better advantages.

In Port La Vaca Logan and Sterne hired ox wagons and took their press to Yictoria where they set up shop in a small frame building and turned out—on May 8, 1846—the first issue of the Texan Advocate.

The paper, now the Vivtoria Advocate, is still publishing today — the second oldest paper of continuous service in Texas.

'How'! American Indians Have Their Say At Last

Our "First Americans" do all the talking in Charles Hamilton's new book, Cry of the Thunderbird, and the reader gets a new and novel slant on this countrys history from pre-Revolutionary days down into more modern times.

This modern times fd'etaoishrh This is the American Indian's own story and it is particularly interesting to Southwesterners because it contains quite a bit of lore from Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Author Hamilton—or, you might say, compiler—has combed various archives pretty thoroughly to come up with documents, letters, pamphlets and other papers in which famous Indians have expressed their views on life in general.

The book contains a hundred stories, with 50 authors and half as many tribes represented. Pontiac, Tecumseh, Sitting Bull, Geronimo, Black Hawk, Chief Joseph are just a few among those represented, and you'll find most of them keen critics of the white conqueror.

The writing is fascinating, filled with humor, rignity, naivete and wisdom that wall appeal to young and old alike. Cry of the Thunderbird is a first-rate reading adventure.

The Macmillan Co., New York, is publisher.

Books . . . By, and About, Your Neighbors

Famed Last Stand Fight Given Indian Viewpoint

Southwesterners will be particularly interested in Will Henry's new book "No Survivors," although it has the Northwest for its setting.

For this book is one of the finest Indian war novels ever written—the story of the grim events leading up to the tragedy of Custer's "last stand," but told this time from the viewpoint of the Sioux who laid Custer's command low at the Battle of Little Big Horn.

It's pure fiction in its essentials—the account of an ex-Confederate colonel who was captured by Crazy Horse's warriors and adopted into the Sioux tribe—but the writing is so flambouyantly realsistic that you get the feeling of reading authentic pages out of history.

And, in a way, that is true. Although the story is fictional the background of the Indian campaigns is correct in every detail. The hero, Col. John Clayton, was willing to become a "renegade" with the Sioux because he was embittered by the Army's two-faced policies in dealing with the Indians, and thus the whole story is sympathetic toward the Indian, which is as it should be.

Will Henry, now a Hollywood screen writer, is a fine writer, and it is evident that he knows Indians. Unhesitantly, we call his book the best Western in recent years. Publisher is Random House, New York, price $2.75.

Santa Fe Rail Story Recounted

When it was first proposed to push railroads across the West and Southwest toward California there were many skeptics who believed the projects foolhardy.

One U. S. Senator, Thomas Benton, thought rail lines across some parts of New Mexico and Texas was a ridiculous idea because they would enter country "where a wolf could not make a living."

One congressman, Z. Kidwell, was of the opinion that it "would seem idle and preposterious to talk of doing business in some of the regions, though every conductor be a Kit Carson and every traveler a Fremont."

But there were far-sighted people who went ahead—to build such rail empires as the Santa Fe and open up new country.

All these things are brought out in L. L. Waters new book, Steel Trails to Santa Fe, just published by the University of Kansas Press.

This volume tells the complete story of a rail enterprise, giving the full picture of the Santa Fe not only historically, but from the viewpoint of finance and technology. There's a lot of Southwestern stuff between its covers.

Child's Casket Kept in Attic 38 Years

EAGLE PASS, Tex.—A strange story that might well have come from a book by Edgar Allen Poe was revealed here when relatives of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elpidio San Miguel investigated the attic of the San Miguel home on Ferry Street.

They found a casket containing the bones of the San Miguel's daughter Velia, who died in 1912 at the age of five.

Both Elpidio San Miguel and his wife, Margarita, died last year—the father in April and the mother in September—and neither had ever mentioned to relatives anything about the coffin in the attic.

However, Mrs. San Miguel, when she realized that she was dying, called in a niece, Mrs. Olga Yzaquirre, and told her that there was a cradle in the attic that she wanted her to have when she was gone.

After her aunt's death Mrs. Yzaguirre thought no more about the cradle for awhile but finally, the other day, she sent her hsuband, Antonio, and her brother Jesus to get it.

It was then that the strange story of mother love was revealed. The two men found not only the small casket but an improvised altar set up around it. The story of the cradle had been Mrs. San Miguel's way of disclosing the presence of the casket.

Olga, the niece, and her brother Jesus Moncada had themselves lived in the San Miguel home for many years. They came to stay with the uncle and aunt when they were small children, but they were never told about the casket.

Court house records here show that the little girl died in 1912, and an uncle who still lives here, Felipe Moncado, recalls that her death resulted from tetanus.

Several of the surviving San Miguel relatives recall attending the child's funeral, but none is able to shed any light on how the casket happened to find its way to the attic of the home on Ferry Street 38 years ago.

Know Your Hose? Take Buying Tip From This:

More money is spent for hosiery than any other one item in the clothing budget, and the reason may be due to the fact that not enough attention is given to the size and kind of hosiery bought nor to proper care and laundering.

Hosiery, just the same as any other wearing appearel, should be selected for the occasion or for a particular use, and different type hose should be reserved for special dress occasions because they are too fragile for everyday use.

Price Not Guide

Sheer hose, on the other hand, are suitable for both dress and general wear, but are out of place on people who are active in sports and the like. Heavier weight hose are appropriate for household, active sports and winter wear.

Price alone is not a guide to hosiery quality. Some medium and low priced hose may have the wearing qualities sought while other higher priced hose may give poor service because durability was sacrificed for sheerness by the manufacturer.

Learn the Terms

Hosiery buyers should become familiar with the terms used to designate quality in the finished product. First quality indicates a stocking without flaws or irregulari-

All hosiery not thus designated is classified sub-standard and includes irregulars, seconds and thirds. The hose of sub-standard quality must each be marked to show how they are classified.

Irregular refers to hosiery that contain imperfections or irregularities in size, color or fabric but neither stocking in the pair has noticeable mends, runs, tears, or breaks. They could give very satisfactory wear and be a good buy.

Must Fit Well

Seconds and thirds are hose in which one or both stockings of a pair contain noticeable mends, runs, tears, breaks or defects. Seconds contain shorter mends or breaks than do the thirds.

Hosiery must fit well if the buyer is to get the most service and wear from them. Buyers should consider foot and leg length, and width, and calf and ankle measurements because all influence correct fitting.

Generally the foot of the stocking when measured flat should be one-half inch longer than the foot and a fleshy foot may require an even longer foot length.

The best quality and best fitting hose will not give satisfactory service unless they are properly cared for and laundered after each time they are worn.

Let's Make Cook's Tour And Do Some Good Eating

A lot of the fun in travel is in the eating, but if you can't make it around to foreign parts this winter let's go on a little Cook's Tour right here and experiment with some dishes that people like in other

How about, first, some Eggs a la Greta for a little touch of Swedish Smorgasbord? Here's how:

INGREDIENTS: Six to eight hard boiled eggs; one package of green peas; three tablespoons butter; onehalf teaspoon salt; dash of cayenne pepper; two tablespoons bread crumbs; two tablespoons grated cheese.

METHOD: Peel eggs and halve lengthwise. Remove yolks and rub through sieve. Pressure cook peas according to chart, or boil in salted water until tender. Mash them through sieve. Mix this pulp with egg yolks, butter and seasoning. Taste for flavor. Place egg whites in greased shallow baking dish. Fill each with generous mound of vegetable mixture. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and cheese. Set oven at 400 and let eggs heat 20 or 30 minutes. Garnish with parsley or radish rosebuds or tiny pickled

Chinese Chicken

Oriental dishes are easy to prepare at home, too, as witness this recipe for Chinese Fried Chicken:

INGREDIENTS: One chicken cut into frying pieces; one-fourth cup soy sauce; two teaspoons salt; oneeighth teaspoon pepper; two tablespoons minced green onions; oneeighth teaspoon powdered ginger; one cup hot water or stock from giblets; one-fourth cup cooking wine; one-half cup fat; one cup

METHOD: Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Dip in soy sauce, Rub well into chicken. Let stand five minutes to marinate. Heat fat in skillet, roll chicken in flour and fry to golden brown. Mix wine, ginger and hot water and pour over chicken. Sprinkle green onions over top, cover and cook over slow heat for 45 minutes. Remove to platter and cover with brown gravy. Garnish with toasted almonds and ripe olives if desired.

Mexican veal Birds

And here's one that will please most Southwesterners — Mexican Veal Birds:

INGREDIENTS: Two pounds veal steak; one can Gebhardt's deviled sandwich spread; one-half cup fat. one chopped onion; one chopped green pepper; one can tomato puree; one cup white wine; one teaspoon salt; two teaspoons Gebhardt's chili powder; boiling water.

METHOD: Cut veal steak into three by four inch stripes, Spread with sandwich spread. Roll up and fasten securely with skewers or tie with string. Dredge with flour, then sear in hot fat until golden brown. Remove meat. Fry onion add pepper in remaining fat. Add tomato puree, wine, salt, and chili powder. Bring sauce to boil, add meat and enough water to cover. Reduce flame and simmer 45 minutes or until meat is tender and sauce heavy.

Does Gas Range 'Fit' You! They're Tailored Jobs Now dream of buying a cocktail dress to wear everyday to the office.

Before Miss or Mrs. Shopper puts her hard saved money on the line she decides whether the dress that catches her eye is as suited to her personality and social habits as it is to her fancy.

as tailor-made to a woman's tastes and habits as her suits. What she has to learn now is how to get a good "fit."

There are gas ranges for career girls, gas ranges for women with so many children to feed they don't know what to do, gas ranges for husbands who think they're Escoffiers. And for TV bugs, there are even gas ranges with small TV screens set in the back panel.

How to Pick Them.

Just how does a housewife or career girl go about selecting the range made expressly for her? She can't buy one as she would a dress. The American Gas Assn. suggests she ask herself three basic questions.

1. How much baking, broiling, griddle cooking, top burner cooking does she do?

If she does a lot of baking, she should buy a range with two standard-sized ovens. If she likes broiled food she should buy one with two broilers. One range has an independent broiler with its own burner unit set right under the top burner surface.

2. How large is her family-how much entertaining does she do? Select an according size.

3. How many outside club and social activities is she involved in?

Hardly a woman now alive would Does she work as well as take care of her home? Does she have to leave home often to take her children to music or dancing lessons?

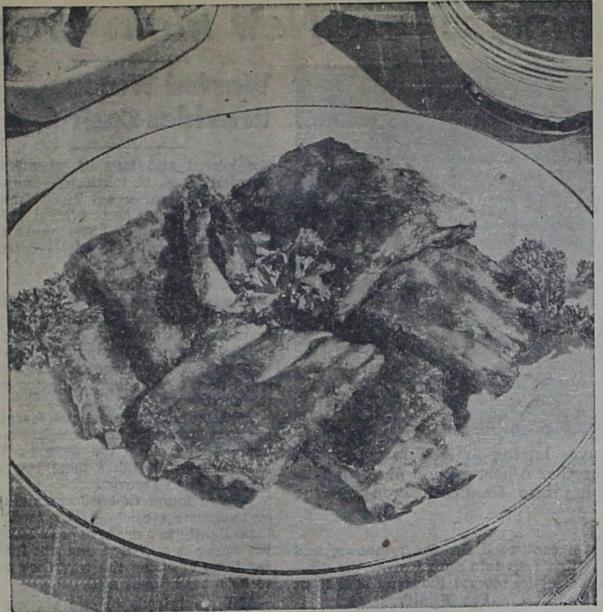

For Busy Women.

Busy women, the association believes, require completely automatic clock control cooking. A clock is set for the time the gas should go Today, automatic gas ranges are on, the foods cook in the oven and when done, the clock automatically turns off gas. There is, no necessity for the home-maker to be in the

WEAR 'EM LIGHTER

Sole leather tanners report greater demands for lightweight leather soles these days, especially from Southwestern states and California. New England still demands extra thick leather soles for winter wear. as do other cold-weather states.

SPARERIBS and barbecue sauce are practically synonymous. But remember to cook the ribs slowly so as to bring out all of their grand rich flavor.

Roast spareribs are simple to prepare, too. Just place the ribs on a rack in ah open roasting pan. Keep the oven temperature at 350° F. and cook for 11/2 to 2 hours.

Ingredients: 3 pounds spareribs, cut into servings; 2 tablespoons butter, margarine or bacon drippings; 1 demium onion chopped; 2 tablespoons vinegar; 2 tablespoons brown sugar; 1 small bottle or 1 cup catchup; 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce; 1 tablespoon prepared mustard; 1 cup water; 1/2 cup chopped celery (optional); salt and pepper to season.

Methods: Brown spareribs on all sides. Place fat in saucepan; add onion and brown. Add remaining ingredients and cook slowly until flavors are blended about 15 minutes. Pour sauce over browned spareribs. Cover fightly and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 11/2 to 2 hours or until done. 6 servings.

Macaroni and Spaghetti Quickies

For a grand hurry-up Friday night meal combine 11/2 cups grated American cheese, 1/4 cup chili sauce, 3 tablespoons Worchester Sauce, 1/8 teaspoon pepper and 1/2 teaspoon each of salt and prepared mustard. Add to macaroni which has been cooked in boiling salted water until tender (about 8 minutes). Melt 1/4 cup butter or margarine in skillet and add macaroni mixture. Heat appetites of the whole family.

A nourishing main dish for the children when they arrive cold and hungry from school for lunch is Spaghetti with Mushroom Sauce. It is quick to fix and will keep them satisfied during the afternoon hours at their desks. Put 11/4 cups condensed mushroom soup (1-101/2

GRILLED LUNCHEON - Use your broiler for this bacon grill. Arrange slices of bacon, rings of pineapple and cooked potato halves on the broiler rack. Dot the potatoes with butter or margarine and sprinkle with a bit of grated cheese. Broil at a moderate temperature until the bacon is done and pineapple and potatoes are heated through. Arrange on platter for serving with the bacon forming a border.

SAUSAGE NESTS - Bake large potatoes, then cut lengthwise and scoop out. Mash, season, and add just a bit of onion. Refill the halves, then top with two cooked sausage links. Serve with plenty of cream gravy made with the rich sausage drippings.

HAM, APPLE ROLL - Top a slice of ham with bright red apple bits. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon, then roll. Fasten the ham and cook in a slow oven. Baste occasionally with apple juice.

DOUGHNUT DESSERT - For a treat, fold 34 cup cooked sausages, quick dessert when company comes, split a plump doughnut and place a scoop of vanilla ice cream on the bottom half. Replace the top half and serve with thick chocolate sauce if desired.

A PRIZE WINNER!

Here's a wonderful suggestion from Mrs. J. A. Brown of Memphis, Tenn. . . . a suggestion for a soup with tantalizing appeal, Mrs. Brown boils a soup bone slowly, 2 or 3 hours, and strains the liquid through a thin cloth. Then she returns the liquid to the pot and adds one number 2 can of tomatoes, 1 onion, I potato (minced) and one can of GEBHARDT'S Chili . . . simmered for a short time. Mrs. Brown says that the chili not only gives the soup a more delicious flavor than anything she has ever tried, but provides an abundance of good lean beef. Add rice or spaghetti to thicken, if desired.

TAMALE CROQUETTES

It's tricks like this that take the monotony out of meals-and this one's easy: Knead one can of GEBHARDT'S tamales with parsley, chopped onions and salt. Shape and dip into beaten egg and then dip in cracker crumbs. Place in hot oven til-done and garnish with fresh parsley and catsup. They're good -believe me! Count on GEBHARDT'S tamales for that! Every bite of these tamale croquettes is spicy rich with tender beef and that grand GEBHARDT flavor everyone loves.

GREEN SALAD DRESSING

I mix my own salad dressings . . . and often add a new taste stang to our salads. My favorite is very simple to prepare. Just mix one portion of vinegar to two of salad oil, add one clove of garlic, chipped and rolled in salt, but less if necessary for taste. Then sprinkle in some GEBHARDT'S Chili Powder. You can always depend on GEBHARDT'S Chili Powder because it comes to you in air-tight containers . . . and retains its flavor. It is so finely ground and sieved that it is entirely free of any foreign particles. I chill the dressing until ready to serve.

Melons to Fish-Louisiana Farmers Make New Main Crop

Minnow Project Now Paying Off

SALINE, La.-William' A. Driggers and his brother Albert are unique among the farmers in this section of Louisiana.

They have turned their 150-acre tract near here into a paying proposition-all with an initial investment of $5 worth of minnows and 23 gold fish bought in Shreveport for 15 cents each!

They're now selling minnows to sportsmen and gold fish to Shreveport stores by the thousands, and making a lot more money that they used to make from their main crop, watermelons.

It all started when Bill Driggers considered that he was doing all right under soil conservation methods, but that he was wasting a lot of water from the seven springs that feed a pond on his place.

The pond was providing fish for the family table, but no revenue. Bill's brother, Albert, also had an adjoining farm of 180 acres on which a lot of water was being wasted.

So the Driggers had a talk with Soil Conservation Service men and the profitable project of today soon emerged. They scooped out some small ponds with their own farming tools and stocked them with the minnows and gold fish.

HARVEST TIME . . . A buyer having arrived for minnows, William Driggers, right, and his brother Albert seine a pond on William's Lousiana farm. It's turning into fine cash crop for the Driggers-minnow raising.

Today Bill has 14 ponds covering about four acres, and Albert has seven, and the two brothers work as a team, helping each other.

This year they were selling fishminnows by the hundreds of thousand to dealers from all over this part of the state who transport the fish from the farms in truck tanks. The Driggers also are selling thousands of gold fish to Shreveport pet stores at three cents each. They get a cent each for the minnows, and that runs into money since the dealers take several thousand at a time. Use Fertilizer

The Driggers brothers treat their minnows like any other crop. They keep their ponds treated with 5-10-5 fertilizer at the rate of 400 pounds an acre in the growing season, from about April 1 to June 30.

The minnows are fed cotton seed meal and wheat shorts (made from the kernel and hull of wheat) in powder form. It takes ten pounds of this food for about 10,000 minnows a week. It costs around $3.75 a hundred pounds. The minnows are fed daily with the powered food thrown on the water.

Headaches, Too

The minnow business is not without its headaches, the Driggers have learned. If they don't keep an eye on their business, herons and snakes will eat their minnows. If bull frogs aren't controlled, tadpoles eat the food.

Albert and William have learned too that minnows get seasick while being hauled from the farm to the bait dealers. It takes them two or three days to recover.

"We've found that we can reduce or overcome seasickness by feeding them lightly two or three days before the buyer is expected and not feeding them at all on the way they are to be moved," Bill said.

William intends to add six more ponds and two acres and Albert is figuring on a similar expansion.

The brothers also raise corn, timber, livestock and truck on their farms, besides a lot of watermelons; but the way they're going at things, minnows and gold fish are going to be their biggest crops.

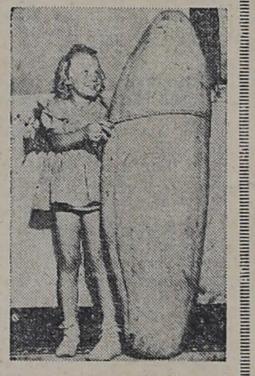

King-Size Vegetable

Who could ask for a better contribution to a big meal than the overgrown vegetable pictured here?

What is it? Well, you may not believe it, but it's a banana squash, and it tips the scales at 112 pounds. It measures 53 inches long.

Grown on a ranch near Hemet, Calif., it's believed to be the largest squash ever produced.

The giant is being measured here by five-year-old Val Deane Sly, who figures she would be a pretty big girl before managing to eat that much squash.

More, Better Pig Theory Advanced

Most Southwestern swine producers realize the value of feeding well-balanced rations to gilts during the pregnancy and lactation periods, but many fail to provide the correct rations for their gilts before the breeding season.

The ration fed to gilts before they are bred greatly influnces the pig crop. As to the number and size of pigs farrowed, and their rate of growth during the first few weeks.

Probably the most practical ration for gilts is corn or some other grain. along with plenty of protein supplement and free access to a legume pasture, says E. M. Regenbrecht, extension swine specialist of Texas A. & M. College.

If a legume pasture is not available, Regenbrecht recommends providing legume hay in racks for the gilts. He suggests substituting ground oats for some of the corn, when this is practical. He also emphasizes the value of minerals.

The animal possessing the greatest attachment for man is woman.

Here's Good News On Bluestem Front

There's good news for farmers and cattlemen about King Ranch bluestem — that grass which has shown itself so sturdy that it can chase Johnson grass right out of a

The Texas Research Foundation has announced a first year seed yield of $200 an acre from land planted to the variety in experiments conducted by Dr. Howard B. Sprague, the foundation head.

"KR bluestem has now proved its value on three agricultureal fronts," said Dr. Sprague. "It helps rebuild depleted soil, it makes excellent pasturage, and its seed provides a good cash crop."

He said that the grass thrived during dry periods because of a deep and extensive root system capable of drawing moisture from soil levels not reached by other grasses.

STOCKPILE WOOL

The government has announced plans to purchase 100 million pounds of clean wool-this, for stockpiling as finished cloth against possible military emergency.

New Note in Wild, Bive Yonder

Southwest Leading World In Giving Farm New Wings

The Southwest is leading the higher," said Mr. Weick, "because world in putting tailor-made wings on its farms.

Down at Texas A. & M. College they are completing experiments on a new type, college-constructed airplane designed for farm and ranch work and it may revolutionize present day methods of aerial dusting and spraying.

This plane, built under supervision of Fred Weick, designer of Ercoupe, is a strictly agricultural product, the technical advisors on the job being the pilots who make a business of dusting, spraying, seeding and fertilizing crops from the air.

It's full of built-in features that these men believe will make their work easier . . . like dust hoppers in front of the pilot's compartment, and 150-gallon spray tanks, one in each wing.

It even has sharpened surfaces that can slice wire in event the plane should contact wire during the low flying that goes with the business of using a plane in agricultural work.

The ship, under construction for more than a year, has been built under an original $50,000 grant from the Civil Aeronautics Authority with cooperation from two other federal agencies, the Agriculture and Commerce Departments.

"But actual costs will run even many firms have contributed equipment, and the experimental job, only plane of its type ever made, was put together with college labor."

Need for the specialized farm plane, Mr. Weick points out, is stressed by the fact that last year more than 8,000 aircraft were used for agricultural purposes--3,000 for dusting, 2,000 for spraying, 2,000 for seeding, 1,500 for fertilizing, and 264 for insecticide application. But in the past pilots have used just any type plane.

The new model will make the pilot's work a lot quicker and easier and assure a better job for the farmer who hires him, government officials believe.

Got a Sick Horse?

STILLWATER, OKLA .- Twentysix intellectually tired but happy men will be graduated from the Oklahoma A. & M. College School of Veterinary Medicine next June, according to Dr. C. H. McEelroy,

"They started in the first class in March of 1948," Dean McElroy said. "They've done a good job and we're proud of them."

To be graduated from the school normally requires six years of study.

Serving You At All Leading Markets Kansas City Fort Worth San Antonio

What Makes Meat Price Is Up to You

STILLWATER, Okla.—That steak you had for dinner last night possibly caused a fluctuation in the cattle market.

Along with changes in supply brought about by different seasons of the year, consumer demand is one of the important causes of price variation in the livestock markets over the nation, according to Leo Blakely, Oklahoma A. & M. College agricultural economist.

The supply of meat on hand is not large, relative to the demand, said Blakley, and the price of livestock is felt by the consumer through his retail meat market. Practically all meat handled by packers is sold within 12 to 14 days after the animal is slaughtered.

Meat retailers watch the market and try to buy at lower prices. This enables them to pass the saving on to the consumer. This buying while the price is down has the effect of increasing demand, however, and causes the price of livestock to rise.

When the price goes up, consumer demand drops, This causes an increase in the supply of processed meat products and the price goes down. Again consumer demand rises. The market follows this circle continually.

Red, White, Blue Can Mean Little Cause for Cheer

You may well sing "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue" when it's Old Glory that you're referring to. But when the red, white and blue are the color changes taking place in your arms or legs, there's no room for three cheers. You'd do better to march one, two, three to your doctor.

The arm from the shoulder down and the leg from the hip bone to the end of the big toenail are called extremities in medical parlance, upper and lower extremities as the case may be. They are examined separately in a physical check-up for any signs of deformities, diseases of the joints, and circulatary or nourishment disorders.

Important Symptoms

Redness, paleness and blueness of the extremities are associated with circulatory disorders, congestion or blockage of the various vessels that feed those parts of the body.

Sometimes these changes in color are combined with feelings of heat, cold, pain or no feeling at all, a deadness of the affected area, and sometimes those feelings may be present without the change in color.

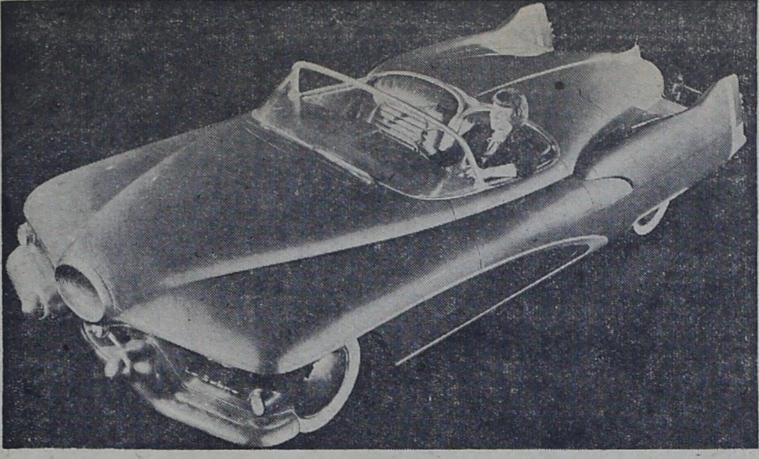

These are all important symptoms. They may result from lung disease, heart disease, or just be localized difficulty at that particular area. Sometimes they stem from disorders of the nervous system.

So the mere report of such sensations or discolorations may mean a detailed check of other parts of the body, which fits into the general picture of the physical examination.

Here's a Revival

Every now and then comes the urge for old-time desserts. Remember this old chestnut? Rice cooked in milk, over hot water of course, sweetened and served hot with slices of lovely golden canned cling peaches. A sprinkle of cinnamon over all is a delightful touch.

AUTO OF THE FUTURE?—You're seeing here for the first time General Motors new full-scale model of 'Le Sabre', a custom-built sports car that will be a laboratory on wheels for testing advanced design and mechanical features. With the sweeping lines of jet aircraft, the experimental car is only three feet high, has a clearance of six inches and a wheel base of 115. Car of the future? GM doesn't know for sure, but it's best bet so far.

New Plastic Pipe Made in Oklahoma

SAND SPRINGS, OKLA. — A new industry has come to the Southwest with the start of production here by a factory making four-inch plastic oil well pipe, a type that may revolutionize the casing phase of the petroleum industry.

The plant is operated by Perrault Bros. company of Tulsa, and it will turn out 20-foot sections of pipe to be used for well casing and line laying.

The new product is made of resin and glass fiber and, its manufacturers says, will last for 50 years whereas iron pipe has a normal usage from 16 to 20 years.

A 20-foot section of four-inch weighs only 37½ pounds and a worker can carry one under each arm. A jeep can carry as much of the new pipe as the largest truck can carry when loaded with iron pipe.

Chest is Target For Skin Rashes

The skin of the chest is subject to practically all the rashes that might crop out on the rest of the body, though a fungus growth known as tinea versicolor is among the commonest skin infection in the Southwest.

The color of the chest may be related to some general condition of the body whether it be the paleness of pallor, the redness of flushing, the blue tinge of cyanosis or the darkened skin of pigmentation. Darkened spots or white spots that have no sensation to touch may be an important part of the inspection of the chest.

Fever is Cause

Tough, dry, scaly skin on the chest may result from fever arising in other parts of the body, just as hard and thickened skin may be due to an underlying infection. Sweating that is confined to the skin of the chest is frequently associated with lung disease.

The muscles and the joints are part of the inspection of the chest with attention paid to any redness or swelling around such joints as where the breast bone and the collar bone meet. The glands under the arms are always checked for any soreness or swelling.

Dilated vessel in the chest and obstructed circulation may lead to discovery of tumors that would not otherwise be deteced.—Prepared by Texas State Medical Assn.

Don't 'Spike' Drinks For Barnyard Chicks

Barnyard fowls are 'finicky' drinkers, so don't fill their water containers with drugs supposed to prevent various diseases.

Such drugs are usually distasteful to the birds and will prevent them from drinking all of the water they should consume to keep them in a good healthy condition.

Drugs such as some of the sulfa drugs are sometimes supplied to good advantage to sick or disease exposed birds for a limited time. But to medicate the water continually is considered by most veterinarians as a bad practice.

Chemicals Become Big Export Item

A lustily growing industry on the Texas Gulf Coast today is producing cargo that may soon rank with cotton, oil and grain in exports from the Southwest. It's the chemical industry.

Since 1945 more than $350,000,-000 have been invested in chemical plants in the Houston area alone, and activity is increasing.

More than 40 big plants now line the Texas coast, producing more than 100 chemicals used in making fertilizers, insecticides, plastics, explosives and other items.

"Woolies" Coming Into Money Again; Consumers to Pay

The New Mexico and West Texas wool growers may like this story but the consumers who like lamb chops and wear the clothing that comes from the sheep's back may not be too pleased.

Economic experts in Washington say that both wool and lamb prices, already at the highest level in history, will be going much higher, and before very long.

As they see it there's little chance, short of a depression, for a price decline during the next few years, and there's nothing to stop a general rise unless the government steps in with consumer subsidies.

The sheep population of the country has been decreasing because ranchers and farmers have been able, during the past few years, to make more money raising cattle. That has caused wool and mutton prices to move steadily upward to the present record level.

Now, it is believed, those high prices will cause a rebuilding of sheep herds, and it will take time for the herds to grow to a size that will cause a new price decline to Experts estimate that it will take about five years to build up the sheep population to the 1942 level.

Like Classics?—Well, That's New Film Trend

HOLLYWOOD. - The movies, which have exhausted just about every subject from paraplegia to the bubonic plague in their quest for different and experimental stories, seem to be embarked now on another screen cycle-filming the literary

These tried-and-true story staples have recently become something of a novelty in moviedom, what with "offbeat" pictures about minorities, mob violence and similar problems.

Dore Schary, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production chief, whose studio is in forefront of the studios now filming classics, thinks that the "offbeat" pictures may have been overdone.

"In times like these," he says, "there is a growing disinterest on the part of the audience for stories of modern violence, and so we are looking to the classics.

M-G-M HAS already completed Rudyard Kipling's "Kim," a spy story set in India, with Errol Flynn. Schary says that this property was on the studio shelf for a long time and that he "reactivated" it.

Stewart Granger is slated to appear in movie versions of Kipling's "Soldiers Three," another action picture with an Indian background, which, with love interest added in a prologue, is set for a February starting date.

Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe," which Schary acquired from Para- Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wondermount when he was at RKO and then purchased from RKO when he came to Metro; and a remake of Rafael Sabatini's "Scaramouche," which was done as a silent picture with Ramon Navarro, also are in the making.

ALSO ON THE agenda is "Show Boat," which has been made twice before. This time it will have Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel and Joe E. Brown in the cast when it goes before the cameras next month. Another one coming up is a musical version of Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," with Gene Kelly.

Other classic now shooting are the mammoth "Quo Vadis," in Rome, and Stephen Crane's Civil War story, "The Red Badge of Courage."

Schary points out that many of these classics have a pre-sold audience of children who have read the books, as well as an audience of adults who remember the novels from their growing-up years.

The late Theodore Drieser is supplying his share of literary properties for the movie mill. Universal-International is filming one of Dreiser's short stories, "The Prince Who Was a Thief," with an Arabian Nights setting. Paramount has completed his "An American Tragedy" and is now shooting "Sister Carrie."

D. A. DORAN, Paramount story executive, denying that this presages a trend, says simply that "we love to do a good story whether it is a classic or anything else."

But Doran admits that Paramount has a pile of literary classics which it owns, such as Joseph Conrad's "Lord Jim," which are on hand for filming. "We've got a great library of them," says Doran. "We own just about everything Metro doesn't."

Warner Brothers has finished "Captain Horatio Hornblower," the C. S. Forester sea story, which has become a Gregory Peck vehicle.

WALT DISNEY, who recently released "Cinderella" and "Treasure Island," is now at work on a featurelength animated cartoon version of land," with Sir James Barrie's "Peter Pan' and the fairy tale, "The Sleeping Beauty,' to follow.

RKO has "The Sword of Monte Cristo," derived from Dumas, and Columbia is about to bring out another Dumas tale, "The Mark of the Avenger."

At Columbia, too, "Lorna Doone," based on the Richard Blackmore classic and "Dick Turpin's Ride," adapted from Alfred Noyes' "The Highwayman," are in the works. That studio will soon start filming Sir Walter Scotts "Lochinvar," a romantic costume adventure, which

A Cutlass Stab in the Back!

Pity Those Poor Buccaneers After Hollywood Treatment

For the sake of a movie plot, Hollywood has given historical fact another stab in the back.

At Universal-International, five famous pirates who had never laid eyes on each other were banded together in buddy-buddy style to share a sequence in "Double Crossbones" with Donald O'Connor, who stars in the Technicolor comedy.

Cinematic delineators of Henry Morgan, Blackbeard, Capt. Kidd, Long Ben Avery and Ann Bonney have occupied a tavern in the Tortugas in the year 1700, in spite of the fact that:

(1) Henry Morgan had been dead for 12 years at the time;

(2) Ann Bonney, twenty years away from the historical moment she became one of the first women pirates, was a squawling infant

Now Movie Stars Get 'Plastered'

A recent survey showed that seventy-five percent of the stars working on the Universal lot during the 35 years of its existence were "plastered" by Donald Kit-

To get the stars "plastered" may have seemed an unimportant job to the casual observer, but old Don Kittitas has always known that without it the best actor or actress in the world might very well be out of focus.

Plastering the stars consists of taping down the stars' positions in front of the camera with adhesive plaster, usually at the toe mark, so that, walking toward camera in a scene, they will not overstep their dramatic bounds.

Kittitas has plastered the mightiest since he first taped the toe marks of Priscilla Dean and Harry Carey. daughter of a Cork, Ireland, attorney and his serving maid:

Blackbeard was still an honest sailor on a merchant ship, with 16 years of law-abiding activity ahead of him before he turned to piracy;

(5) Captain Kidd, who swore on the gallows that he was a privateer commissioned by William III, was enroute from Boston to England in chains after one of the leastproductive buccaneering careers ever lived.

"So what?" shrugged Lt. Comdr. K. D. Ian Murray, noted pirate expert and technical advisor. "Story tellers have fictionized the true facts about pirates so eloquently that hardly anyone is aware of the truth."

Twisting the radio Dial

SINGING BEFORE an audience is an old story to Rosemary Clooney. When she was 3, she sang at political rallies in her native Maysville, Ky., in behalf of her grandfather's campaign for mayor. He won. Nowadays Rosemary does her singing on "Songs for Sale" on Friday nights.

Comedian Rod Brasfield of NBC's Saturday night Grand Ole Opry recalls that when he made his radio debut he was so nervous that his knees sounded like an introduction with castanets.

Bob Hawk asked a man on his CBS Monday night quiz show how he got along with his wife. "Anything I tell her goes," he said. "It goes in one ear and out the other."

A woman in the studio audience of the Strike It Rich program was asked if she could define a myth. "Yes," she said, "it's a female moth."

Vaughn Monroe, the CBS-TV and radio star, says that when color television becomes a regular thing many actresses who have roles in love scenes will have to learn to blush all over again.

Gene Autry's radio fans have become so fond of Louise Heising, the cowboy's secretary, that there is now a Louise Heising Fan Club.

Bill Boyd, otherwise known as Hopalong Cassidy, says that he gets along with everybody by treating kids like grownups and vice versa.

The late Huey Long is said to have taken his self-styled title of Kingfish from the character in the Amos and Andy radio show.

Jan Murray of the Songs for Sale show got his start by attending vaudeville shows and then reenacting them at home for his ailing mother.

Herb Rawlingson, who appears on Hollywood Star Playhouse, once was acclaimed as the ukulele king of motion pictures.

Don Ameche, NBC television star, overheard some Moscow propaganda to the effect that the favorite TV show of American Capitalists is called "Ku Klux, Klan and Ollie."

When Jack Benny played his famous violin solo "Love in Bloom" at Carnegie Hall, the comic retitled it "L'Amour Fleurissant."

Sandy Becker, "Young Dr. Malone," made his own puppets, did shows at local churches at the age of eight.

Bill Goodwin, emcee of "Dollar a Minute," has played in such films as "Spellbound," "The Jolson Story" and "To Each His Own."

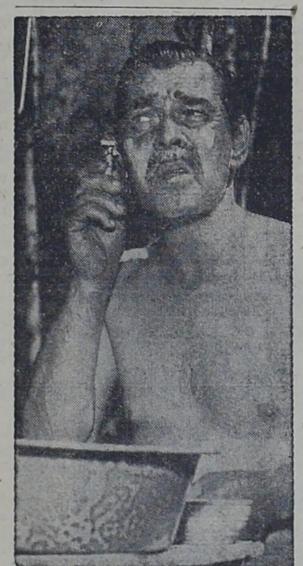

Tom McKnight, producer of "Beulah," abandoned a business career with General Motors to become a writer of vaudeville sketches.

Eighty performers and technicans now travel with the mobile "Horace Heidt Show."

When Rosemary Clooney was hospitalized recently, her sister Betty filled in for her on "Songs for Sale."

Mary Jane Higby, of "Romance of Helen Trent," did her first "walk-on" before she was one, in her father's stock company.

Ralph Edwards, producer-star of "Truth or Consequences," says 13 is his lucky number. He was born June 13, 1913.

CLARK GABLE rids himself of the three-months-old beard he grew while on location in the Rocky Mountains of Colorado for his role of a fur-trapper in the outdoor picture, "Across The Wide Missouri."

CONTENTED PAIR . . . Tony Martin and Jo Stafford are the singing stars of "The Contented Hour," the popular musical series heard Sunday nights over Columbia network.

JOHN REED KING: I don't know. In the old days the big slogan was, "Live within your income." Today, after taxes, you have to learn to live without it.

'Give and Take."

Art Linkletter, "House Party host, worked his way across the country years ago as a typist.

Dr. Lyman Bryson, "We take Your Word" panelist, was a newspaper reporter in Omaha and Detroit before he turned to teaching.

Cedric Adams, whose cozy chatter is heard five days weekly on CBS, once was a seed salesman in Texas.

Jay Stewart, emcee of "Carnation Family Party," totals four and a half hours a week on the air, doing five different radio shows.

Jeff Alexander, conductor for CBS' "Hollywood Star Playhouse" and "Amos 'n' Andy," began his musical career as arranger for Horace Heidt.

Raisin-Bran Bread

Here's a good combination for both flavor and high nutrition, raisins and bran. The kids go for this in a big way:

Ingredients: 1 egg; ¼ cup sugar; ¼ cup molasses; 1 cup sour milk or buttermilk; 2 tablespoons melted shortening; 1 cup All-Bran; 2½ cups sifted flour; 2 teaspoons baking powder; ½ teaspoon soda; 1½ teaspoon salt; ½ cup chopped raisins.

Method: Beat egg well. Add sugar, molasses, milk, shortening and All-Bran; mix well; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Add sifted dry ingredients with raisins and stir only until combined. Spread in greased loaf pan with waxed paper in the bottom. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350° F.) about 1 hour. Yield: 1 loaf (4½ x 9½-inch pan).

GEORGE. If you keep track every time you write a check, you should know how much money you have left in the bank at the end of the month. Now, do you have any idea where you made your first mistake?

LIZ: Yes. When I married a banker.

Law of Sanctuary Still Holds Good

The age-old law of sanctuary still holds good.

On a recent Sunday at Shaw's Bend, near Ellinger, Tex., the pastor of the local congregation was leading his flock in prayer when an unexpected visitor strolled in through the front door-a tame deer that had been living at the home of Lee Sommerlatte.

The animal, which had strayed into the woods, took refuge in the church when attacked by dogs, thus saving its life. Services were delayed until the deer could be removed and taken home.

them wherever they go, sometimes as many as four at once. The babies cling to the mother's fur.

Few baby animal can defend themselves, but this isn't true with the baby porcupine. He can defend himself right from the start because he's born with his sticker quills on.

Do you know why lots of dogs are named "Fido"? Well, the name comes from a Latin word meaning "the faithful one". That's because no other animal so openly shows its devotion to man.

Cats won't come to their master upon call unless they feel like it at the moment. But make a scatching noise and every kitten within hearing distance will come running.

When Baby Needs New Pair of Shoes

Eighty percent of all school children have foot troble, says Nena Roberson, associate clothing specialist for Texas A. & M. College.

She says that most of this trouble results from children wearing outgrown and badly fitted shoees.

The first shoe, which the baby wears when he begins to walk, should be made of soft material, with a flexible sole and a full, puffy toe. It should have a very thin heel, or no heel at all.

Miss Roberson suggests drawing an impression of the baby's foot while he is standing on a piece of paper and then selecting a shoe that is one-half an inch longer and one-fourth an inch wider than the foot. This extra room will allow for several month's foot growth.

Outdoor Notes For Sportsmen

Nelson Crebassa was driving down a moonlit road recently when he witnessed a most unusual sight. A dark shadow swooped down out of the heavens, touched a speeding car ahead, and made off with something in its claws.

Both Crebassa and the driver of the other car stopped to see what the bird had stolen. It was a squirrel tail, snatched from an aerial on the lead car by a hungry owl!

Nature-Born Sleuth

This story sort of stinks, you may have heard it before, but if you've ever had any dealings with skunks, and can stand a little corn now and then, I think you'll like it.

Mama skunk was worried because she could never keep track of her children. They were named In and Out, and whenever In was in, Out was out. If Out was in, In was out. One day she called Out to her and told him to go out and bring In in. So, Out went out and in no time all he brought In in.

"Wonderful!" said mamma skunk.
"How, in all this wide forest, were you able to find In in so short a time?"

"That's easy,' said Out. "Instinct!" Well, anyhow, I warned you . . .

Tough Coon

George Alloway, 80-year-old Ohio farmer, was attacked recently by a ferocious animal in the darkness of his hay loft, where he had climbed to throw out some hay for his horses.

The farmer scrambled down his ladder with what he thought to be a giant tomcat swarming all over him, scratching and biting. Gale, his son, investigated the loft. He also came out fast.

Finally, the local game warden was called in. He discovered the animal to be a female coon. Apparently, bereft of her own young, she had adopted two kittens after driving the old cat away. The warden managed to remove the old coon without injuring her.

Modern David

Pierre Perry, a former French boxer, went to Utah to hunt uranium. When the deer season opened he switched his Geiger counter for a rifle. But Pierre didn't have any luck.

So he switched the rifle for a sling-shot to bring down a chicken hawk. That's when a 165-lb. buck appeared. Pierre flipped a ball bearing into the sling-shot and let fly. The pellet caught the deer just below the temple. Pierre finished off the animal with his knife.

What's Cookin', Doc?

Chum, unless you've collaborated with a squirrel under the conditions described below, you haven't eaten a real Brunswick stew yet! Start it off this way: One small can corn; 1 pint lima beans, 4 potatoes, 1 onion, 1 quart sliced tomatoes, 3 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 lb. butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper. Clean squirrels (two or three of them) and cut into pieces. To four quarts boiling water, add salt, minced onion, beans, corn, potatoes, squirrels and pepper. Cover and simmer for two hours. Add sugar and tomatoes. Simmer an additional hour. Add butter. Simmer ten minutes, bring to boil, and remove from fire. Add additional salt and pepper to suit taste. Brother, she's good!

SPORTS

Rabbits Lead In All Game Hunted

B'rer Rabbit seems to be on the spot. He's the most hunted animal in these United States.

At least, that seems to be the story following a survey by scientists of the Remington Firearms Co. on the use of shotgun shells.

The survey showed that 29.6 per cent of all shells are used for rabbit hunting, with squirrel hunters next in line with 14 per cent. Quail is third with 13.9, followed by ducks and geese at 10.5; pheasants with 9.5; doves seven per cent, and other game 3.5 per cent.

The statistic gatherers concluded that rabbits and squirrels were most hunted because they are easier to find than other game.

Check On Quails

A checkup on the status of Bob White is being made by the Texas Game Commission, with cooperation from hunters during the quail season.

In an effort to determine the per centage of young birds and get an idea of the survival for next year, the department is making a study on the basis of wings sent in by hunters.

Biologists asked that only one wing from each bird be sent in, together with the date of kill and the county where bird was bagged. In formation on the number of coveys seen in a day of hunting also is asked.

He's Got the Big Head!

Wildlife research is bringing out some startling facts these days. At a deer station, experiments partly concerned with antler growth have caused a yearling buck to grow a heavy set of antlers with nine points. The theory is that periodic shots in the legs with hormones might do the job. Next year, this youngster may need a derrick to hold his head up! But game officials can hardly be expected to chase down all bucks in the wild and give them antlergrowing hypo shots! Who knows some day in the future a way may be found to treat soil so that deer, browsing upon growth that carries the chemical, will grow rocking chair antlers with comparative ease.

Guide for Hunters

J. Frank Dobie, famous author, naturalist and outdoorsman, wrote a whole book in one sentence when he summarized the deer hunting problem in an article recently:— "Deer," he said, "may be found in two places. One is where they are likely to be. The other is where they are not likely to be!"

FAST AT FISHING

BETHANY, Okla.—E. N. George won his fishing laurels fast. On a single cast he hauled in 11 pounds of bass—two fish of five and a half pounds each. And he has witnesses to prove it.

GIGGING SEASON OPEN

Oklahoma now has an open season for gigging non-game fish such as carp, redhorse, buffalo and catfish other than the forked-tail variety. Gigs must not have more than three points and two barbs.

"Crown" That Cereal

Is junior not cooperating when you diligently prepare hot cereal for his breakfast? Serve it with a crown of canned fruit cocktail, and there'll be plenty of cooperation. Adults like it, too.

Little Lines In Sports World

The 1938 Duke football team was not scored upon until the final seconds of the final game of the season, the Rose Bowl contest.

The 1950 season is Notre Dame's 62nd football campaign.

Syracuse University's 1949 eleven set an Orange mark when it gained 1,300 yards via the passing route.

In 15 seasons of coaching, Wallace Wade has had only one losing football campaign—1946.

Forty-two of the 66 players on the 1950 Michigan State roster hail from the Wolverine state.

Eleven members of the Cleveland Browns are newcomers to the club this season.

Nine of the 11 players named to the all-Big Ten football team in 1949 were seniors.

The 1950 Army football team was the most traveled in Cadet history; the Blaikmen played only three games at home.

Iowa has 31 lettermen and nine starters from the 1949 football team.

Too Many Scalps

The New Mexico Game and Fish Department is getting over burdened with scalps—the scalps of predatory animals, that is.

So great has been the number of pelts and scalps received by the department that Asst. Game Warden Homer Pickens has been issuing public statements pointing out that although hunters and trappers may kill predators the state no longer pays bounties, and hasn't for a number of years.

But still the scalps continue to pour in—along with requests for bounty fees.
