Old Time Medicine Show Here Thursday

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture will sponsor Tommy Scott's Old Time Medicine Show on Thursday, April 29, in the Bailey County Civic Center at 7:30 p.m. Free coupons, good for admission to the show, are being given away by many area merchants. The Old Time Medicine Show, billed as the last of its kind, follows the traditional format of the shows which at one time crossed the west in wagons, attracting the townspeople with a variety of entertainment in order to sell medicines guaranteed to "cure what ails

you."

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture will also be sponsoring the candy sale at intermission. The candy sale, which has become a traditional part of the show here in Muleshoe, will feature quite a few prizes hidden away in the bags of candy, all of them donated by Muleshoe merchants, to add to the fun.

Anyone who is unable to find free coupons for the show may pick up a ticket for the regular admission price of $3 per person at the office of the Chamber in the City Hall at 215 South First.

County Scales Balance Says Ag Department

Bailey County people can count on getting their money's worth in weight through the year if the products are weighed on local scales or gas pumps. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

In the county there are 164 weighing devices of different types, ranging from 62 fuel pumps to 47 supermarket scales.

"Our Department regularly checks the commercial scales in the county and has found that they conform to our previous surveys across the state. Of those that were above

City Approves Study On Lawn Irrigation

Officially, several items listed on the agenda for the City of Muleshoe city council Wednesday morning at a special meeting of that entity, occupied only a portion of the meeting.

The official business was taken care of in routine fashion, before the council members got into a lively discussion on the future of the water supplies for the City of Muleshoe.

Council members looked over the results of the recent city election, and certified Charles Bratcher as mayor. He was unopposed in his bid for reelection and received 122 of the 126 votes cast in the election. Bratcher was sworn in to take over the reins as head of the city government. A. V. Wood administered the oath of office to the mayor.

With very little discussion, the city council approved a request by Southwestern Public Service Co. to postpone the hearing for a rate increase as proposed by SPS.

As per a resolution approved by the council, ALL automobiles in the city of Muleshoe will be subject to a personal tax. The tax rate has been set at 62 cents per hundred valuation of the vehicle, and no vehicle will be exempt, as was in the case several years. In the past, automobiles older than five years were dropped from the tax rolls. This will no longer be the case.

In other action by the city, council members renewed contracts with the Bailey County Appraisal Cont. Page 9, Col. 1

Absentee Balloting Will End April 27

A report from the County Clerk's office indicates that absentee ballots have been cast for the May 1 Primaries numbering 32. To date, 31 Democratic votes have been cast and 1 Republican.

Absentee voting may be done until April 27, Tuesday, at 5 p.m. No absentee voting may be done after that time. According to Hazel Gilbreath, County Clerk the voting this year seems "a little tight, but we do expect it to get more active towards the deadline."

For those readers who may be unaware, there are several qualifications that must be met in order to be a qualified voter. One of these qualifications involves being a citizen of the United States. Also, a prospective voter must be 18 years of age on the day of the election and must be a resident of the county, or political subdivision conducting the election. Citizens must also be registered to vote.

Persons who are not entitled to vote include: those convicted of a felony whose Cont. Page 6, Col. 4

tered the law which required all states to switch except those whose legislatures specifically exempt them.

So... bad as you hate to, kids, this means going to school an hour earlier than usual. Moms and Dads will also be going to work an hour earlier.

Be sure to remember "Spring forward, fall back."

Daylight Savings Time Effective This Sunday

Daylight Savings Time officially begins Sunday, April 25 at 2 a.m. and will continue until October 25.

So in order to assure prompt arrival at church Sunday morning, be sure to set your clocks up one hour before retiring Saturday night. In other words: 2 a.m. will instantly become 3 a.m.

Changing time to take advantage of an extra hour of daylight was observed in the United States erratically during the 1800's. It was first formally observed to conserve resources during World War I and World War II.

Under the 1966 Uniform Time Act, the Transportation Department administered the law which required all states to switch except those whose legislatures specifically exempt them.

So... bad as you hate to, kids, this means going to school an hour earlier than usual. Moms and Dads will also be going to work an hour earlier.

'Aggie Muster' - An Honored Tradition

"It has been said that Aggies do not die, nor do they fade away, for they shall always live, if not in body, then in spirit..." these words from the 1982 welcome to Aggie Muster signifies the pride, unity and spirit of Texas A&M University.

Over 60 former Texas Aggies and their families and guests met Wednesday evening in the Civic Center to observe the traditional "Muster" held annually on April 21. This is a time of coming together for all alumni and the answering of roll call.

During the 1890's April 21st became the tradition as the Corps made annual visits to the San Jacinto Battlefield, followed by a parade down Houston's Main Street. Then, in the early 1900's, it was agreed that in addition to honoring the freedom of Texas, April 21 would be a time to pay homage to all students and former students who Project Proficiency awards were also presented to the following students in their respective fields: Kay Lynn Prather, swine production; Tamara Gilliland, crop production; Kim Farmer, horse production; Kelli Overman, sheep production; Jerry Gleason, beef production; and Joey Chancey, poultry production.

Each year, the Muleshoe FFA Boosters present awards to outstanding individuals in the FFA organization. The "Hustler" award this year went to Todd Jones. Todd was described by presenter, Bill Harmon, as a young man who worked well and needed little supervision. One who does as he is asked and helps others. In addition to the Hustler awards, two $250 scholarships are presented each year to senior students. The winners this year were Curtis

Wheeler and Lynn Moore.

The Muleshoe FFA Chapter this year, chose to honor two men who have dedicated their time and services to all FFA members. They have hauled kids to stock shows, helped with animals, and just generally, have been there to pick up the pieces in many cases. These two honorees are Ronnie Black and Donald Prather.

As an expression of thanks and appreciation from the senior FFA members, commemorative plaques were presented to instructors, Carl Wheeler and John Reynolds, who, according to the dedication "have worked hard and shaped this FFA Chapter back into something we can be and are proud of. For all the hours and days (sometimes nights) that these men have given to the entire FFA Chapter." The presentation was made by FFA President, Starla Black.

Recognition was made of contributors who made the banquet a success. They are: Mohawk Auto Parts, Elanco, Steve McPete, Cliff Lillywhite, the FFA Boosters, Muleshoe Young Farmer's Chapter and the employers of all ag-co-op students.

Musters were held on campus. By 1929, however, meetings had become international, and in 1942 A&M Muster gained recognition when 25 men, led by General George Moore mustered at Corregidor Island in the Philippines.

The Muster held Wednesday was the first one held in some time in this area and drew Aggies from surrounding towns. Special guest and special speaker for the evening was Texas A&M Deputy Corp Commander Brent Gunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gunter of Muleshoe. Gunter, besides being the second in command in the corp, is a member of the Ross volunteers, the Firing Squad and the Governors Honor Guard. He is the epitome of the military and appears to be a young man who holds his country, his school, his family and his job in the highest esteem. The speaker showed some slides of A&M and gave a running commentary on them, speaking with pride of the traditions and spirit of Texas Aggies. Gunter assured those in attendance that the emotions, feelings and traditions of the Aggie spirit were still alive and still growing.

J. K. Adams was a representative of the oldest class present, being that of 1941; Gunter was a representative of the newest graduating class of 1982. Plans are underway locally to organize a Texas A&M Club, inviting all former and present Aggies' participation, as well as friends of A&M. Further details will be released as they are available.

'82 Grain Prices Outlook Bleak

With a new crop year dawning, Texas farmers face low grain prices because of a record U.S. crop last year and good crops throughout the world.

"High interest rates, strengthening of the dollar and the worldwide economic situation also have had negative effects on grain prices," says Dr. Roland Smith, economist in agribusiness and marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"The market concern now is on how fast corn and sorghum supplies can be used before the '82 harvest season," Smith explains.

How much grain is fed to livestock will be important this year, he says, especially since corn exports are off to a slower start than in the last two years even though sorghum exports are running ahead of last year. Corn exports are down 26 percent from a year ago while sorghum shipments are up 22 percent.

Add to this the fact that forward sales are considerably behind last year and the picture for feedgrains in 1982 looks bleak, says the economist.

"Of course, there is concern among livestock producers about the profitability of livestock feeding - even at lower grain prices," says Smith. "but it appears grain price levels early this year will be low enough to encourage more use."

However, Smith does not expect major increases in grain use until April-September because of the time it likely will take to increase the grain feeding base and grain consumption.

"Carryover levels of corn and sorghum probably will expand sharply in 1982," says Smith. "However, we could see some seasonal price increases this spring provided demand follows projected patterns."

But the economist cautions producers to evaluate increased holding costs against potential seasonal price increases.

Wheat producers also must deal with a large world and domestic crop from last year. However, early export projections for the current year are up 18 percent at 1.8 billion bushels. Nevertheless, wheat carryover still will rise some this year due to the record large 1981 crop.

Wheat prospects will depend greatly on the size of the '82 crop in Texas and elsewhere in the U.S., says Smith. Texas' wheat crop was estimated at 178 million bushels in a special April survey, down three percent from 1981. The rest of the U.S. winter wheat crop will be surveyed in May.

Regarding the export situation, Smith notes that the British blockage of the Falkland Islands may impact on Argentina's grain exports and could result in increased shipments from other exporters.

"Grain producers must evaluate their marketing potential throughout 1982 and be prepared to take advantage of short-term upward price moves," advises the economist. "But they also need to be aware of how market prices compare to projected production costs."

Retirement Check Direct Deposit Available Soon

State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced today that electronic direct deposit of retirement checks will soon be available to the state's 75,000 retired school teachers.

"All Texans owe a debt of gratitude to these people who spent their careers educating our children. This is one small way of paying this debt," Bullock said.

"With direct deposit, retirees won't have to interrupt visits with their grandchildren to go home and wait for the mailman to bring their check. They will be able to depend on their money being there automatically to pay the mortgage or buy groceries," Bullock explained.

Bullock began electronic direct deposits for Austin-based current state employees late last year. So far, 5,882 employees who work for 80 state agencies have joined the program, which is due to be offered to all employees statewide later this spring. Each employee chooses whether to join the program or to continue receiving a paper warrant each month.

"We started this program to save tax dollars," Bullock said. "We save when fewer employees take time off the job to take their pay to the bank and we save the cost of printing and mailing warrants. Now we can save retirees the trouble of banking their retirement income and the worry that it might not arrive on time." *****

Why bother about getting ahead when all you can do is stay even, at best?

Cops can increase fuel efficiency and save tax dollars

COLLEGE STATION — Cops can cut fuel consumption in their patrol cars and save taxpayers' money, says a long-time lawman trained in fuel efficient driving.

"Altering some old driving habits and improving others can increase a vehicle's gas mileage by as much as 20 percent," says Charles Kenner, an instructor for the Law Enforcement Training Division of the Texas Engineering Extension Service. Kenner has spent almost 30 years in the law enforcement profession. *****

Political Sign Erecting Touchy Subject

Candidates for political office may violate the law if they erect campaign signs on some private property.

The highway beautification provisions of the Texas Litter Abatement Act control the erection of signs on property adjacent to Interstate and Federal-aid Primary Highways. Anyone desiring to erect a new sign along these highways must have a state license to engage in outdoor advertising and a permit for each sign.

Existing signs may be repainted or repaired; however, they may not be enlarged nor may lighting be added unless approved by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation or the city which issued the sign permit. Subject to city ordinances, signs may be erected at campaign headquarters.

No signs except official traffic control signs are permitted within the right of way of any highways in Texas. Maintenance crews may remove any signs not conforming to state law.

Candidates or their campaign managers are urged to contact the nearest district office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for further information if they are considering erecting campaign signs.

District and City Manager Dave Marr commented, "We are very, very pleased with the job done by the Appraisal District for the city. The Appraisal District here is doing so much more for less money than most of the other districts throughout the area."

One item on the agenda concerned the possible purchase of two new patrol cars for the city police. Although the purchase was approved after City Manager Marr explained the background, several questions were asked by Mayor Bratcher.

The city manager had explained that with the city police operating, for the most part, shorthanded all of this year, money had been saved in the salaries budgeted for the police department. He suggested amending the budget and use some of the unused salaries to purchase the needed police vehicles.

Mayor Bratcher expressed concern with the turnover in the police department here, and asked if the city manager, or the chief, knew of a solution for the turnover.

The city manager said most police departments on the South Plains and in the Panhandle were operating at less than authorized manpower, and said he could not determine if more money would solve the problem of turnovers.

In other action, the city approved an amendment to a speed limit, changing a highway department designation from Avenue M to Avenue K.

The city manager said the railroad crossing was scheduled to be replaced in the fall with either a rubber or steel crossing, hopefully eliminating what has been a continuing problem at the crossing on Highway 70-214.

In discussing the water well situation in the city, Marr pointed out that several of the wells are operating at less than peak efficiency, with some wells now operating at less than half their capacity.

Water discussions and the lack of water for the future occupied a long discussion for the city council. They cited a recent study conducted by High Plains Underground Water District, citing more effective use of water for watering lawns.

The city manager also told the council about the arrival of a used scraper for the landfill. He cited the $2,000 purchase as a major purchase for the city and council members were asked to look over the used equipment which had arrived in Muleshoe the previous night.

From 'The Cross Section':

"It has been estimated that there are 3.2 million acres of turf in Texas. All that grass is diverting 30 percent of the state's municipal water supplies through a variety of distribution systems into residential lawns, city parks, school and industrial landscapes. But not all that water is making it into the ground. We are discovering that a substantial percentage of that water being squirted, sprayed and jetted through lawn sprinklers never does its job of watering the grass, in fact, much of it never reaches the surface of the lawn.

"Poor sprinkler application efficiency has been cited as the primary cause of high water use for lawns and it is also responsible for a high percentage of water wasted on the High Plains.

"Poor sprinkler application efficiency has been cited as the primary cause of high water use for lawns. It is also responsible for a high percentage of water wasted on the High Plains.

"Dr. Charles Wendt, soil-plant-water specialist, and a team of researchers at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock conducted an urban water conservation study last summer which confirms and emphasizes the importance of evaluating lawn sprinklers in the climatic conditions where they are expected to be used. His team tested six models of commercially available lawn sprinklers, including an impact, oscillating, traveling, stationary ring, rotating and buried head model. Each unit was evaluated on a scale from 0 (worst) to 9 (best) for its flow rate, evenness of water distribution, evaporation loss and wind susceptibility.

"All six sprinklers performed with poor efficiencies, but two models stood out as sorely inefficient. The buried head sprinkler rated only two points on the study's performance criteria point scale, and the impact sprinkler rated a zero. The two models with high ratings in the study were the stationary ring sprinkler with a 7, and the traveling sprinkler, the overall top performer with a 9 rating. These ratings reflect the weighing of tests for all four variables measured in the study.

"The one factor which appeared to have the most effect on efficiencies was flow rate, or the rate at which the sprinkler applied water. The flow rate appeared to be the key variable influencing evaporation, distribution and wind susceptibility. The lower the flow rate, the higher the evaporation, wind susceptibility and time required to apply the same amount of water, and the poorer the distribution and application efficiency of the sprinkler.

"A big surprise was the discovery that every sprinkler lost much more water to evaporation than could be expected by the evaporative demand of the atmosphere. The losses were so high they could not be closely related to the evaporative demand of the atmosphere. They were better related to the design of the sprinkler. The smaller the water droplets, or spray vapor being applied, the more quickly water could be lost from the area of application. And, in general, the lower the flow rate the finer the spray, the greater the loss.

"It is also important to note that the atmospheric evaporation demand was in evaporation demand during the testing period was lower than usual, and was much lower than in June and July when the demand was greater than half inch per day. Although evaporation losses for the sprinklers were quite high under the low evaporative demand conditions of the study, even higher losses can be expected in the average summer. This underscores the inefficiency of commercial lawn sprinkling designs now available on the High Plains.

The percentages of water lost by the different sprinklers during a 24 hour period show the impact and buried head sprinklers lost as much as 70 percent of the water they applied during day watering and over 45 percent of the total water applied during that 24 hours. These two worst performers also lost twice the water and required more application time than did the ring and oscillating models to put on an inch application. This is related to the amount of watering area covered by each sprinkler.

"Another factor in these glaring inefficiencies was the effect of wind. Wind speeds measured during the study did not exceed 11 mph. The average low wind speed in this area is 15 to 18 mph. The low flow rate sprinkler models were very susceptible to wind. Wind speeds were found to be a primary cause of uneven pattern distribution, in particular for the buried head sprinkler. Wind also affected the oscillating sprinkler. As wind speed increased, the watering pattern was distorted and moved downwind. The lower the flow rate, the greater the shift in watering pattern. As the water pattern shifted, distribution got poorer. Dry patches, where NO water was caught in some cans under the watering area, were discovered on the impact sprinkler test. The uniformity of the spray pattern variation affects how evenly the lawn will green, and brown patches may well be the result of poor distribution patterns.

"The information obtained during the study suggests that sprinkler models with higher flow rates will be better performers. In general all models had lower evaporation rates during night watering. But if you have a buried head or an impact sprinkler system, water only at night in low wind conditions to avoid high evaporation losses and severe distortion in the pattern distribution.

"The oscillating sprinkler covers a large area and requires less frequent hand moving. It will also perform best with less evaporation or pattern warp if used for night watering. "For a small area, the ring sprinkler is very efficient. It had the highest flow rate and consistently low evaporation losses. But it must be moved often.

"The rotating sprinkler measured only 15 to 30 percent evaporation losses, and its application rate was fair, but its pattern uniformity was not good.

"The traveling sprinkler, also had a high flow rate and lost only 20 to 25 percent of its water; but it applies only an inch of water per pass and probably would need to be moved often. It's not for lazy irrigators.

"Most traveling sprinklers have adjustable arms that can be used to fit the watering pattern to the configuration of the irrigation area. The area covered by the other five models can also be adjusted simply by changing the water pressure. Even though the sprinklers that have higher flow rates are more efficient, care should be taken to be sure the soil will absorb the water at the rate at which you apply it to avoid runoff.

"Finally, Dr. Wendt and others see these study results as clearly pointing to the need to redesign our lawn sprinkler systems in West Texas. Their ideal would be an underground catchment system for both irrigating and runoff that could hold water in the soil until it was absorbed. Clogging problems, however, make it an ideal that has so far been easier to imagine than to design."

"I'm Thirsty"

Such a familiar cry to any parent, and who could resist such an appeal. Many times the cry of "I'm thirsty" is a genuine one, but there are times when it is a scheme to linger a little longer, the result of a strong desire to remain awake and play with the dolls and toys that loving parents have provided.

While meeting the physical, play, and comfort needs, don't forget the need for "Living Waters." Take the family to church, where all may hear of, and be drawn closer to our loving Father.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Brown suggests branding to prevent horse theft

AUSTIN--Horse theft, considered a third degree felony in Texas punishable by two to ten years imprisonment and/or a fine not to exceed $5,000, is on the increase in Texas, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said.

"It is especially active now during livestock shows. I received a call from Commissioner Jim Buck Ross of Mississippi informing me that horsebreeders in his state suspect that horses stolen there have been brought to Texas," Brown said.

Most stolen horses end up at one of the four slaughterhouses in Texas. Slaughterhouse owners are required to have a bill of sale and must keep records on purchases and slaughter. "A phony bill of sale will be used by the thief either at the auction or slaughterhouse," Brown said. "We are urging all slaughterhouse owners to hold horses of good quality as long as possible until ownership is revealed. It is possible that a $40,000 horse can be killed for $500 to $600 worth of meat if records are not checked," Brown said. High quality horsemeat is an export commodity, most of which is shipped to France, Belgium, or the Netherlands.

animals do not have a highly visible brand, but may be tattooed in the lip area. Brown urged horse owners to brand their stock in some manner for quicker detection.

New Type Greenbug Increased Disease Threat

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

The new greenbug, biotype E, is strictly bad news to farmers and breeders of sorghum, wheat and corn, because it not only has the ability to break resistance genes presently being used, but it also is a more efficient agent for spreading the virus causing maize-dwarf-mosaic disease.

The greenbug is a serious pest of sorghum and wheat and has been for many years in many parts of the world, according to Dr. R. W. Toler, a virologist at Texas A&M University, and member of a team of scientists working on the problem.

In addition to being a serious pest by itself, Toler says, the greenbug is also an efficient vector (carrier) for another serious sorghum and corn disease, maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV), which can cause substantial yield reductions.

The greenbug was not as serious a problem until the late 1960's, when a new type of the aphid, biotype C, was found infesting sorghum in the Texas High Plains.

As a consequence, a breeding program by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, (TAES), developed greenbug-resistant sorghum and wheat that saved millions of dollars for producers.

However, in 1979, a new biotype (designated "E") was found infesting these previously resistant varieties. Resistance to "E" in sorghum was developed and released in 1982; resistance in wheat has been developed but not yet released.

While TAES and cooperating plant breeders are seeking new resistance genes and entomologists are developing new methods to combat this menace, Toler and his associates have been assessing the problem to find out how effectively the new virus, "E," is able to transmit MDMV in comparison to the older biotype, "C."

This virus is transmitted by aphids in a process known as nonpersistent transmission, according to Toler.

This means that though an aphid can acquire virus from an infected plant and transmit to a healthy plant in a matter of seconds, aphids don't retain virus for long periods of time, hence the virus is nonpersistent to the vector (carrier).

"By allowing both types of aphids to acquire virus from a 'standard' host under identical conditions," Toler explained, "and by then placing them on healthy, susceptible seedlings, we can determine how many of the seedlings are infected, and thus, what percent of the aphids transmitted MDMV."

"For the A strain of MDMV, biotype E is 47% more efficient as a vector (carrier)."

"For the B strain of MDMV, a strain that is common in the central Great Plains but rare in Texas, biotype E is 128% more efficient as a vector than biotype C.

"This points up the seriousness of this new pest and the importance of the research being done by TAES and other scientists to bring it under control," Toler concluded.

Texas is almost $2 billion richer, thanks to Bob Bullock.

Since BOB BULLOCK became Comptroller, state tax collections have increased from $3.4 billion in 1975 to $8.1 billion in 1981. Inflation and growth accounted for just over two-thirds of that. But almost one-third of the increase was due solely to BOB BULLOCK's efficiency and thoroughness in collecting every tax dollar legally due the state.

That's amounted to $1.9 billion since '75, thanks to BOB BULLOCK.

Bob Bullock makes money for Texas.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have. The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season. Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.
