Practice To Open Soon --

Dentist Arrives At Farwell Clinic

J. R. Ivins, DDS, has arrived in Farwell and is expected to open his dental practice at Farwell Clinic in about two weeks.

The new dentist is a native of Palestine, Tex., but for the past two years he has worked with the Choctaw Indians at Hugo, Okla. While in Hugo he was employed by the Indian Health Service.

Dr. Ivins is presently living in Clovis because "housing was not available here, but I hope to be able to move here in the future," he said.

He attended several junior colleges and is a graduate of the Baylor Dental School in Dallas. He attended that school for three years and also attended Baylor University in Waco for three years.

According to Ivins, Hugo had about 5,000 population and of that number 20 percent are Indian.

"I only worked with the Choctaw Indians," he explained, "but in case of an emergency I would also work with non-Indians."

Ivins said he became a dentist because he "likes the field and it is a rewarding way to help people."

"I enjoy working with people. I think a dentist can have a closer personal contact with people than a doctor can," he said.

Thus far, Ivins has been getting acquainted with the clinic's dental facilities and has been taking inventory and ordering supplies. The exact date his practice will open and the hours and days he will see patients has not been determined yet.

Besides dentistry, Ivins has many other interests. He is a Baptist. He does not have any pets, he says, but thanks to a "green thumb," he has a "houseful of plants."

Ivins says he also loves to read and camp out. In addition, he does oil paintings and makes pottery. Other interests include archeology and playing the piano. While at Hugo, Ivins said he took several pottery courses.

"I prefer primitive pottery -- the kind you fire outside," he said. Someday he hopes to further his study of pottery at Brigham Young University, Salt Lake City, Utah. He also collects Indian art.

He says he is familiar with this area and he has visited friends here for the past 10 years, adding that he "likes the area" and is "happy to be here."

Farwell's New Dentist

J. R. Ivins, DDS, recently arrived in Farwell and is in the process of setting up his practice at Farwell Clinic. Dr. Ivins, who graduated from Baylor Dental School in Dallas in 1977, has worked with the Choctaw Indians in Hugo, Okla., for the past two years.

City Council Grants Mobile Home Move

Texico City Council, during its regular Tuesday night meeting, granted permission to Weldon Dane to move a mobile home to 612 Florence.

In other action the Council denied permission to have a house moved from a location on Wheeler Avenue to a location inside the city limits due to the "condition of the building."

The Council also denied a request by an out-of-towner to establish a Spanish social club in the city. The decision was based on an investigation conducted by the Texico Police Department.

A bid from Stafford Bradshaw of Farwell was accepted for the city's two old police cars. The Council also voted to pay dues and to support the Eastern Plains Council of Government for another year. Insurance estimates for the City Hall and fire department buildings and contents are to be obtained.

The telephone ordinance will be rewritten and presented at the next meeting and the audit contract will also be signed at that time.

Present were Mayor Manfred Turnbough, trustees Lewis Cooper, Vane Doshier, Marie Christian, and city employee Billy Hammit. Mickey Fenn, city marshal, was excused to attend a police seminar.

Final Rites Tuesday For Mrs. Herington

Mrs. H. W. (Wessie Lee) Herington, 85, of the West Camp Community died Sunday, June 10, in West Plains Medical Center in Muleshoe following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church at Farwell with the pastor, Rev. Duane Knowlton, officiating. Burial was in Bailey County Memorial Park under the direction of Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe.

Mrs. Herington had been a resident of Bailey County since 1902, moving there from Colorado City where she was born. She was the seventh person to join Hamlin Memorial Methodist Church of Texico-Farwell and still continued her membership there. She was preceded in death by her husband, H. W. Herington.

Survivors include one son, J.W. of Muleshoe; three daughters, Mrs. Ila Ritchie and Mrs. Emma Wilhite, both of Muleshoe, and Mrs. Byrnee Doub of Sun Valley, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. Thelma Rhoades of Amarillo; 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A hot topic of coffee shop discussion around the Twin Cities is Gasohol. Is it feasible? Will it help the price of grain? Where will plants be located? Who will build and finance a plant? Where will a market come from? Will it damage any already existing industries? Will it help other local businesses? The questions are almost endless.

We do not have any direct answers to give on all these thoughts but we do strongly feel that the use of alcohol in the future production of energy is assured. As with any project that breaks new ground, careful attention must be given to past and proven examples. Certainly thought, consideration and extensive investigation must be directed toward a relatively new concept such as Gasohol.

In this case it is not all that new. Research on the use of Gasohol has been going on for a number of years. The State of Nebraska has been pioneering the concept for a long time. The country of Brazil has committed vast sums of money and effort to make it self-sufficient in fuel for automobiles and trucks.

There are pilot plants already in production and several are now projected for the state of Texas. The small town of Santa Rosa in the Texas valley has announced a combination federal and state grant to establish an alcohol production facility.

If our community is really serious about competing for such a plant, then organized and financed committees should be promptly formed. Information, such as given at last week's meeting, should be disseminated to as many people as possible.

We believe that a plant to produce alcohol is not only feasible but would also be a tremendous economic boon to our community. We believe that this community has outstanding assets for such a plant.

Let us tick off a few. We are at the heart of a vast grain producing area. We have local elevator facilities of huge proportions. We have an unexcelled transportation network of highways, railroads and even a pipeline. We have adequate water for this type of industrial use. We have a stable, reliable labor force.

With these already built-in advantages, the establishment of a Gasohol plant should only await the active participation of the community. Getting an industrial plant in a community is an undertaking that requires everyone to work at it.

We feel that this is an unparalleled opportunity that we cannot afford to miss. Our area businesses need this shot in the arm. Our local taxing districts need to enlarge their tax base to help relieve the strain on local taxpayers. Without this or a similar industry in the future we may as well consign ourselves to being a bedroom community for a greater Clovis.

At the present time we do not know of a single significant drawback to a plant of this nature. We do know of a host of good things it would accomplish for us.

Our position at this time is that we should gather all the information possible and bend every effort toward the establishment of a Gasohol production plant right here.

If the community were to work as hard at getting this plant as Julia Symcox has worked on the park Gazebo we would be in business next year.

With Dad's
Help

Dads and their sons enjoy doing things together especially now that summer is almost here. Taking advantage of dad's day off is Richie Gulley, 6, who is learning to ride his bike -- without the training wheels -- under the watchful eye of his pop, Larry Gulley of Farwell. Father's Day is this Sunday, June 17.

City Council Changes Dump Ground Policy

Farwell City Council adopted a new dump ground policy Monday night during its regular meeting. Due to problems which have arisen in the past few months, the Council voted unanimously to discontinue using the small trash pit located outside the fenced-in larger dumping site and to charge for every load dumped.

Persons using the facility during regular office hours at the City Hall will be charged $2 for pickups, $5 for bob-tail trucks and between $8-$10 for semi-trucks. Persons needing to dump trash should contact the City Hall in order to obtain the key.

Anyone dumping after hours or on weekends will be assessed the following higher fees: $5 for pickups; $7.50 for bob-tail trucks, and $10 for semi-trucks.

Signs will be posted stating that the fine for illegal dumping is $200. For several months prior to this change in policy the City Council had allowed residents to dump in the smaller pit, which was thought to be more convenient for residents and city workers alike.

"It was a good idea if it had worked," Mayor Walter Kaltwasser said, "but then too many people have started abusing the privilege."

"People from neighboring towns have been using the city's dump grounds and instead of placing the trash in the proper pit, some people have been stringing it everywhere," Kaltwasser said.

The new policy will take effect within the next few days as soon as the smaller pit is covered over and the proper signs have been posted, the Council agreed.

In other action, the Council adopted a lengthy policy pertaining to employees, their sick leave, vacations etc. The policy was patterned in part after similar policies of neighboring towns.

An applicant for the position of city marshal also met with the Council, but no action was taken as Council members say they want to wait until several people apply for the job before making a decision.

They also accepted a bid from Mack Heald in the amount of $280 for spraying the city park and water tower area.

In other business, the Council decided to continue taxing automobiles in compliance with House Bill 1060, the Tax Relief Amendment, which negates the taxing of personal property -- unless it generates income -- and automobiles, unless the city passes a resolution keeping the cars on the tax roll.

After a brief executive session, the Council approved John Johnson's vacation for the first week in July. Johnson also received permission to have the radiator on the garbage truck repaired.

Attending the meeting were Mayor Kaltwasser; commissioners Fred Chandler and Johnny Curtis; and city employees Janie Bowers, Johnson, Berl Johnson, and Dale Baum.

Just Like
My Dad

Just like his dad is what Jason Schilling, 10, wants to be; so he stays close even while dad, Joe Schilling, adjusts equipment in the field while working on one of the family farms near Farwell. In a few short years the son will be able to do the job now being handled by the father. Meanwhile, Jason will be content to wear a cap like dad's and be on hand to run errands or maybe just watch the operation with admiration.

Marcia Cole is distressed -- and we don't blame her. Some vandal has been pulling up her kindergarten class flowers by the roots. This was a learning project for the young folks and it is a shame that some moron is not only spoiling the project but is also destroying some beautiful flowers in the process. If you see anybody vandalizing the flower beds around the school, please tell the authorities.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

A pickup owned by Ralph Romig was stolen from the parking lot of Bovina Supermarket, reports Farmer County Sheriff Charles Lovelace. The pickup was later recovered in Brownfield, but the guns which had been in the vehicle had been taken, he said.

According to Sheriff Lovelace, one of the pistols had been used by two Lamesa juveniles to commit an armed robbery in Zapata, Tex. Lovelace said the shotgun in the pickup had not been stolen.

Cross ties valued at $100 were stolen from the Santa Fe Railroad right-of-way located three miles east of Friona. Three batteries were taken from three wells on the Henry Haseloff place in the Oklahoma Lane community. Two batteries were taken from two wells on the Floyd Millican place three miles north of Friona.

Lovelace also reported that a family from Bay City, Tex., "gassed up" at Allsup's last week and apparently drove away leaving behind a 15-year old mentally disturbed youth. The family was in an old yellow school bus and their destination was the state of Washington.

The sheriff said the youth tried to break into the Convalescent Center breaking a glass window valued at $50 in the process. The youth was picked up and kept in custody until Monday at which time he was taken to the state hospital in Plainview.

Lovelace said no charges had been filed against the youth and that they are still trying to contact the family.

Work on the gazebo at Farwell City Park continues at a steady pace. Since last week the concrete block and dirt foundation has been laid and workers are now ready to proceed with the rest of the structure.

It is hoped that the gazebo will be finished in time for next month's Border Town Days celebration. The gazebo - a type of closed-in outdoor stage - will be used during the Old Fiddlers' contest and other BTD park activities.

So far $890 in pledges have been received. Most recent contributors are Texico-Farwell Rotary Club, $100; Farwell Young Homemakers, $50; Jesse Coburn, $5; Turner Paine, $10; and Raymond Martin, $10.

Karen Eichor Weds Jeffrey D. Brown

Karen Kay Eichor and Jeffrey David Brown were married April 27 at La Vista Church of the Nazarene in Los Alamos, N.M. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Richard Eichor of Los Alamos and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee J. Brown of Route 2, Texico.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar setting of candelabras, two baskets of white roses, blue carnations and blue ribbons. Kay Kollman, organist, provided the music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white pleated polyester featuring a high waistline and sheer sleeves applied with lace and closed with silk buttons at the wide cuffs. Silk buttons were also featured down the back bodice. A stand-up lace collar formed the V-neckline. She carried a bouquet of white roses, blue carnations and blue streamers. Following tradition she wore a blue garter.

Tami Schell of Los Alamos served as maid of honor and Susan Eichor, also of Los Alamos was the bridesmaid.

The bridal attendants wore dresses made of white silk and blue cotton enhanced with a bouquet pattern. They carried bouquets of white roses and blue carnations with blue streamers.

Rick Wooley of Clovis was best man. Ray Manly of Estancia served as groomsman and the candlelighters and ushers were Dwight Brown of Texico and Jim Eichor of Los Alamos. The bridegroom and his attendants wore tuxedos of baby blue with royal blue trim.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Eichor chose a floor length pastel purple gown. Mrs. Brown wore a soft pastel purple floor length skirt with blouse. They each wore a white rose corsage.

The reception followed at the bride's parents' home. Blue linen tablecloths covered the serving tables. The bride's table featured a three-tiered white wedding cake decorated with blue roses. The bridegroom's table served a horse-shoe shaped "good luck" cake.

Following a wedding trip to Tres Ritos and Eagle Nest, N.M., the couple is at home in Texico.

The bride is a graduate of Los Alamos High School and the bridegroom graduated from Texico High School in 1974. He is engaged in farming.

Serving Beef Becoming Father's Day Tradition

by Faye Plank

Father's Day has grown into one of our country's most cherished traditions since the idea was first conceived by a Spokane, Wash., woman almost 70 years ago.

While attempts had often been made to secure recognition for fathers, it wasn't until Calvin Coolidge recommended a national observance day in 1924 that Father's Day emerged. Its position among national holidays was confirmed by the signing of a Father's Day bill by Richard Nixon in 1972.

The tradition of serving beef for Father's Day has had a similar rise to national recognition. It began in 1953 when Mrs. Thomas C. Currier of Grand Junction, Colo., urged the Plateau Valley CowBelles to begin promoting beef as an ideal Father's Day dish.

In 1955, the CowBelles (the women's auxiliary of the National Cattlemen's Association) extended their Beef for Father's Day program nationally and in 1962 joined efforts with the National Livestock and Meat Board's Beef Industry Council.

Together, the two groups work with retailers and the various national and local cattlemen's organizations to establish good-tasting, nutritious beef as the food to serve dad on his special day. In fact, beef has been endorsed as the official Father's Day entree by the Father's Day Council.

This year the New Mexico CowBelles' effort is spearheaded by Patsy Clavell of Roy, N.M., who says beef for Father's Day makes sense for so many good reasons.

"Beef is the right meat for so many sound reasons, and good taste is but one," she said. "Besides being a versatile food, beef is also one of the most complete nutrition 'packages' in nature. It includes high quality protein, essential minerals and vitamins like iron and vitamin B-12. It tastes good and it's good for you. That's important to people today."

The Clavell family plans to carry out the Father's Day tradition by featuring New Mexico Big Country Beef in dad's honor. "This makes Father's Day a special day for everyone," Mrs. Clavell added.

Periwinkles For Hot Texas Summers

Hot Texas summers can be brightened a bit with colorful periwinkles.

According to a landscape horticulturist, periwinkles flourish during hot weather and bloom until the first heavy frost.

The tropical perennial, Vinca rosea, ranges from 18 to 30 inches high and produces 1- to 1-1/2-inch flowers varying from pure white to pink to lavender, says Everett Janne with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

New dwarf varieties grow 10 inches high and spread about two feet, making them excellent edgings. Coquette and Little Pinkie have rosy-pink flowers while Bright Eyes has red-centered white flowers.

Trailing and spreading varieties are perfect as ground covers, hanging baskets and window boxes, points out Janne. Polka Dot has a white flower with a cherry-red center while Rose Carpet boasts a rose flower with a deep red center.

Plant periwinkles in full sun or partial shade. Janne says they thrive in almost any soil but do best with the addition of liberal amounts of organic material. Continuous blooming results if soil is kept moist.

Apply a complete fertilizer to the prepared flower bed. Add additional fertilizer every four to six weeks throughout the growing season, suggests the specialist.

In neutral and alkaline soils, foliage may turn yellow due to iron chlorosis. So Janne advises adding iron chelates or iron sulfate to fertilizer.

NMFLB Head Says Wilderness Program In 'State Of Confusion'

The New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau this week charged that the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) Wilderness program is currently in a state of utter confusion.

L. E. "Pete" Davis, president of the state's largest farm and ranch organization, said that ranchers involved in the Wilderness program cannot get the answers they need from BLM personnel which is now in its initial stage.

"We really don't know if the problem lies in the local BLM offices, at the state BLM office or in Washington, D.C., but as far as we are concerned this program so far is a disaster," Davis said.

"It's obvious that the initial inventory conducted by BLM was done in a haphazard way," Davis said, adding that one area recommended for intensive inventory in Dona Ana county has a major utility line running down the middle of it and also has numerous roads which are used heavily crisscrossing throughout the area.

"Our ranchers are getting different answers to questions everytime they attend a meeting and they are frustrated," Davis said.

Davis charged that during the initial period for public comment it appears that areas can be added into the wilderness study but that no areas will be deleted, giving the program a built-in bias towards wilderness. "This situation means that public land users who know that an area is obviously unsuited for wilderness must be literally run through the mill over the next year if they attempt to have the BLM remove land from the Wilderness study," Davis said. "Our ranchers have no assurance under this program that they will be allowed to continue grazing livestock using sound management principles under this program," he said. "This could cause the price of meat to rise over the next 10 years," he concluded.

A New Way To Control Grassy Weeds In Corn

By Steve Cornett

control of some broadleaf species than do the dinitroanilines. But also, if the weeds come up with the corn, they may be too big for control by the time Prowl or Treflan can go on.

Second, Abernathy says the crop should be large enough to cultivate before the dinitroaniline is applied. He cultivates before putting the chemicals on. That breaks up the soil surface, controls existing weeds and - more importantly - allows him to throw dirt up around the plants to protect the brace roots from excessive contact with the chemicals.

The Prowl or Treflan is applied at the same rates recommended for cotton (1.0 to 1.5 pints of Treflan or 1.25 to 1.75 pints of Prowl per acre) in a broadcast treatment.

Abernathy likes to incorporate with a rolling cultivator. A regular cultivator can be used, he says, but most knife-type rigs don't stir the ground enough for adequate protection.

With the treatment, he's been able to get up to 90 percent control of barnyardgrass, and he thinks that for many farmers that will be all the benefit needed to pay the costs.

He's found no crop injury where it was done right, and he says he's been able to come back in with either corn or sorghum the following year with no carryover problem.

Part of the key to that lack of carryover is the shallow incorporation, which allows the herbicide to break down more quickly than it would if it were incorporated deeply.

Both Joe Schilling of Farwell and James Brown of Muleshoe have used the new post-emergence herbicide treatment to control barnyardgrass in their corn crops and they like the results.

Schilling figured that it took twice the water plus extra fertilizer to maintain yields with a barnyardgrass infestation. Brown found that it cut into his corn yield.

Here are the systems they've used.

Schilling applies dry fertilizer, discs, deep rakes or chisels, applies ammonia, uses deep rippers to loosen soil and plants.

After the corn is up, he uses a field cultivator with sweeps to work the fields. Next, a rolling cultivator gets the beds in shape while it incorporates Treflan when the corn is 12 in. tall.

Schilling installed a 200 gal. tank on the front of his tractor and spray nozzles on the front of the rolling cultivator to apply the herbicide and incorporate it in the same trip. He set the six-row cultivator to cut about two in. deep and operated it at six to eight miles per hour. The herbicide was applied in 20 gal. of water per acre.

The Farwell farmer found he could average over 100 acres per day with the rig.

"Usually, we work our beds before the corn is knee high, apply Treflan to control the weeds, and water every row before the corn gets too dry," explains Schilling.

"In addition to saving water and fertilizer, we reduce the weed seed carryover for the next year when you control the grass. It also makes fall tillage easier. After the corn nears maturity, it uses only a small amount of moisture unless there is a grass problem. Enough soil moisture after harvest makes the ground easier to till."

Brown's overall cropping program helped him get an average of 160 bu. of corn per acre. He followed a similar program to Schilling to control barnyardgrass and crabgrass on his 600 acres of corn.

"We were having to use up to four two-in. siphon tubes to get the water down our half-mile-long rows that were infested with grass," he said. "By following our program with the herbicides, we were able to get the water out with a two-in. tube and a one and a half in. tube. The faster you get the water across the field the better."

Brown is on a cotton-to-corn rotation, while Schilling grows continuous corn. After harvest, Brown worked his cotton fields with a disc. A moldboard plow was used and followed with a disc and land plane.

He fertilized, made beds, and then planted the corn. He applied and incorporated his herbicide with an eight-row cultivator when the corn was about 12 in. tall.

Two 200-gal. saddle tanks were installed on the tractor and nozzles added to the front of the cultivator. He applied 3/4 pint of Treflan per acre on sand soils and incorporated it with the cultivator in one trip across the field. When properly set, one pass with the cultivator provides adequate soil incorporation of herbicide.

The two corn growers figure their weed control programs have made it easier to harvest their crop in the fall and helped them get some high yields.

Cultivator-Spray Rig

Joe Schilling, Farwell farmer, guides his tractor-cultivator rig through his corn while also incorporating a post-emergence herbicide treatment to control barnyardgrass in his crop. The tank on the front of the tractor holds the herbicide and spray nozzles are just in front of the rolling cultivator so he can apply and incorporate on one trip.

Adjusts Cultivator

Adjusting his rolling cultivator while in the process of cultivating and applying herbicide to his corn crop is Joe Schilling who farms near Farwell. Schilling says he thinks that controlling the barnyard grass in his crop in this manner saves him water and fertilizer while also helping increase his corn yield.

Until the last couple of years, the fellow who wanted a herbicide to control grassy weeds in corn or sorghum pretty well had to give up the idea of following with a broadleaf crop like cotton or soybeans the next year.

But EPA has now cleared both Treflan and Prowl for post-emergence use in corn, and the manufacturers are fast working toward similar clearance for sorghum.

Dr. John Abernathy at Texas A&M's Lubbock station has been working on the concept for three years, and he says he's been able to use the two dinitroanilines with no crop injury and get excellent control of grassy weeds and some broadleaves.

Abernathy, in fact, thinks the big promise is in sorghum, where watergrass or barnyardgrass is an especially bad problem. Grass growing in sorghum rows is a two-pronged threat - not only does it rob the crop of moisture and nutrients, but it often gets so thick that it impedes the flow of water in the furrow, thus adding a hefty chunk to the irrigation bill.

He says the post-emergence program with Treflan or Prowl will stop the problem. But there are a few precautions the grower should take to make sure he doesn't hurt his crop or miss his weeds. First, he says, it is necessary to maintain a traditional weed control program at planting.

A traditional corn herbicide, for one thing, offers better

A faucet with its nozzle bent downward is called a bibcock.

TWO MINUTES WITH THE BIBLE
BY CORNELIUS R. STAM PRES. BEREAN BIBLE SOCIETY CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60635

"TRUE EVANGELISM"

In St. Paul's mighty Epistle to the Romans he declares "the gospel (good news) of God... concerning His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 1:1-3).

The good news which Paul proclaimed was essentially about Christ. He was always talking about Christ. His epistles were filled with Christ. In his message Christ was everything.

This is in striking contrast to much of modern evangelism, which is not Christ-centered, but man-centered. Dr. A. W. Tozer, shortly before his death, wrote: "The flaw in current evangelism lies in its humanistic approach... It is frankly fascinated by the great, noisy, aggressive world with its big names, its hero worship, its wealth and pageantry... This gross misapprehension of the truth is back of much... of our present evangelical activity..."

This concept of Christianity is a radical error, and because it touches the souls of men, it is a dangerous, even deadly error... It is little more than a weak humanism allied with weak Christianity to give it ecclesiastical respectability... Invariably it begins with man and his needs and then looks around for God, while true Christianity reveals God as searching for man to deliver him from his ambitions."

Tozer was right. God's good news for the world is about Christ and His power and love in defeating Satan, overcoming death, nailing the law to His cross and paying for man the just penalty for sin, so that all who believe might be justified. This is why Paul's gospel is called in Scripture "the gospel (good news) of the grace of God" (Acts 20:24) and "the gospel of the glory of Christ" (II Cor. 4:4).

To enter experientially into the truth of this good news is the greatest blessing one can possibly enjoy. It will give the believer the absolute assurance of salvation and cause him, like Paul, to boast in the Cross of Christ (Gal. 6:14), in what He has accomplished there and in what He is waiting to do in the life of any sinner who will trust Him.

Fathers play a vital role in their children's development, according to new research. Also, more researchers are studying father's roles, as men take a more active role in managing the home and children while their wives pursue careers outside the home. One popular image of "dad" as the helpless creature at his child's birth is rapidly changing. Increasingly, fathers are attending the births of their children, sharing the experience of the delivery room with their wives.

One study finds that contented infants will crawl to their fathers at least as often as to their mothers and sometimes more frequently. Babies can learn who plays with them, and it's often dad.

In addition, many men involved in child rearing say it is personally rewarding. Overall, research reports that fathers' involvement in child rearing is beneficial and satisfying for the children and for both mother and father.

One study found fathers as competent as mothers in caring for their new-born children.

Fathers still spend less time with their children than they probably should, but studies show that the quality of time spent with a child can be more important than the quantity of time.

Infants at very early ages recognize the difference between mom and dad. In fact,

Packs For Band Trip

Dondra Geries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Geries of Farwell, has been busy this week packing her bags in preparation for her tour with the New Mexico Lions Band. Deciding which articles of clothing to take was quite a chore, but a "must" on the list was Dondra's trumpet. She left for Las Cruces, N.M., today [Friday] where she and approximately 30 other band students will participate in a three-day clinic prior to traveling to Montreal, Canada, where they will perform for the International Lions Club Convention.

Tournament Proceeds To Goldsmith

Proceeds from the volleyball tournament played recently in Farwell will be donated to Gayla Goldsmith, a Farwell band student who will tour several European countries June 29-July 26 with the American Youth In Concert 1979. Gayla, the daughter of Mrs. Mae Goldsmith, will receive $933.76 from the event's proceeds. The tournament grossed $1169.50 and of that sum $235.74 was for expenses, say Theta Rho members.

The tournament was sponsored by Theta Rho Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha with assistance from numerous local organizations, businesses and individuals.

Originally the proceeds were to have been divided between Gayla and Dondra Geries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Geries, who will perform with the New Mexico Lions Band this month at the International Lions Club Convention in Montreal, Canada. However, at the conclusion of the tournament it was learned that Dondra already had all her expense money. The Texico-Farwell Lions Club and other local organizations and persons also contributed toward Dondra's trip expenses. The local sorority then decided to donate all the proceeds to Gayla as her European tour is more expensive than the trip to Montreal.
