COLE HONOR- ING S. E. J. COX

Members of Big Spring Give Banquet in Honor of Man Who Has Made Development Here

The Cole Hotel at eight o'clock Saturday night the business men of Big Spring tendered a banquet in honor of S. E. J. Cox, prominent oil man of Houston, as an expression of appreciation for the great oil development campaign he carried out in the Big Spring field, while he was in the employ of the General Oil Company; and to show their good will and confidence in his further efforts to develop oil and potash in West Texas. The banquet was held at the Cole Hotel and was presided over by Mortimer Lewis of the Houston Press Association, and Major W. W. Bix, president of the West Texas field managers of the General Oil Company. The banquet was a most successful one and the speakers reviewed the development work that was done by Mr. Cox's company and the credit for making the discovery conclusively determined in all in this section. Every speaker stated the hope that Mr. Cox would lead the work of carrying out the development which was started, and that his operations in this county, as well as in the counties west of us, would be a great help to the country.

Mr. Cox in an interesting talk to the people present for their maintenance and assured them he would never lose confidence in the Big Spring section but knew the oil field is to be developed and that he hoped to have the development that would be the oil pool there. He reminded them that on a previous visit he had told them that in several years and millions of dollars to develop an oil field in this section still holds. However, the oil developed here has not exceeded by his company and returned to the stockholders.

One of five amendments is approved. Austin, Texas, Sept. 8.—Of the five proposed amendments to the state constitution voted upon July 25 only one carried it became known when the official canvass was held by the secretary of state.

The one amendment to carry was that providing that only full fledged citizens of the United States should be allowed to vote. The vote on this amendment was 57,622 for and 53,910 against.

The amendment also authorizes absentee voting, and permits the husband and the wife to pay each other's poll taxes.

The one providing for an increase of the Confederate pension tax from 5 to 7 cents on the $100 valuation was defeated by a vote of 49,852 and 51,568 against.

The vote on the other three propositions which were defeated follows: To abolish the prison commission, for, 36,069; against, 17,830. To increase salaries of the governor and other executive officers, for, 35,778; against, 68,223. To increase per diem of legislators and lengthen the legislative session, for, 24,624; against 85,482.

Penn. Railroad Seeking Trouble
The Pennsylvania Railroad on Tuesday notified the United States Railroad Board that it would not obey the order to meet federated shop craft officials to draw up a new working rule agreement. We do not know what power the Labor Board has been given to enforce its orders, but we do know that unless it is given ample power to force the railway magnates to meet them as well as the laboring class it is a farce and should be abolished. There is not a doubt but that the railway owners are trying to force a railway strike, believing that they can crush the unions at this time when more than six million men are out of employment. This action of the Pennsylvania road is just such as to cause the public to lose all sympathy for the railroad magnates, for in order to gain their selfish ends they would work a hardship on the entire nation.

We wait to see the Labor Board make the Penn. road toe the mark.

Members of the Episcopal church and friends, to the number of thirty-three, enjoyed a delightful time at Signal Mount and Moss Springs, Monday afternoon, the occasion having been planned by Rev. Eteson. The company climbed Signal Mount and returned to Moss Springs in time to enjoy a sumptuous luncheon before dark. The occasion was pronounced a truly delightful one by everyone attending.

FARM LABOR UNION BUSY

Open Office in Basement of First State Bank Which Will Be a Busy Place During Cotton Season

The Howard County Farm Labor Union has opened an office in the basement of the First State Bank in Big Spring, with W. W. Satterwhite, secretary-treasurer of the organization, in charge.

The main business of the Farm Labor Union this fall will be to dispose of the cotton for the members; but every assistance will also be put forth to help them dispose of all other farm products to the best advantage; to secure needed labor to help pick cotton and harvest feed crops, and aid them in many other ways.

While the cotton crop will be sold in pools of one hundred bales or more whenever possible, because a better price can thereby be secured; the sale of distressed cotton can be authorized by the committee in charge.

In addition to Mr. Satterwhite, Messrs J. M. Cramer and H. Thad Hale of Coahoma, will assist in marketing the Howard county crop. Mr. Hale will be in charge at Coahoma, and Mr. Cramer will be the official cotton grader at both Big Spring and Coahoma.

That the business to be transacted by these men this fall is going to be enormous can be appreciated when you realize that the cotton grown by the five hundred members of the Farm Labor Union of our county will be handled by them. This Union now has a strong local organization at each of the following places: Big Spring, Coahoma, R-Bar, Center Point, Richland, Auto, Knott, Moore, Midway, Morris, and a total of 500 members in the county.

Mr. Satterwhite, in charge of the office here, wants it understood that the Farmers' Labor Union is not in the field to fight any organization, business or individual, but merely to secure fair prices for all products raised on the farms, by its members, and requests your cooperation and good will for most of us realize that prosperity on the farm means property for our entire citizenship. He extends a cordial invitation to the business men of Big Spring to visit him at his office at any time as all will be welcome.

There is not a doubt but that much better prices can be secured by the method of collective selling and the success of the movement will cause many more to line up with the Farm Labor Union.

New Mexico Ranchman Dies Here
William David Wilson, aged fifty-nine years, a prominent ranchman of New Mexico, was claimed by death at Mercy Hospital, in this city at 1:35 p. m., Friday, September 2nd.

His death followed an operation for a stricture of the oesophagus; the stricture resulting from an old injury, when he drank some lye by mistake, thirty-nine years ago at Cameron, Texas.

He was respected and esteemed by everyone who knew him and his death brings sorrow to many friends.

Two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Rogers, of Cameron, and Mrs. Will Rogers of Stanton, were with their brother when the end came. To these who mourn for a beloved brother is extended deep sympathy.

Funeral services were conducted in this city at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning and the remains were laid to rest in Mt. Olive cemetery.

Brooks-Bynum
James K. P. Brooks and Miss Vio Bynum slipped a wedding march on their many friends, when they drove to the home of the Justice of the Peace Thursday evening at 6 o'clock where they were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bynum and her friends are many. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brooks and a popular employe of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co.

We join a host of friends in wishing them joy and happiness without end.

Band Concert

The Lyric Theatre was comfortably filled Sunday afternoon for the concert given by the Old Belt Band of Eastland and the big crowd thoroughly enjoyed the musical program rendered.

The band was enroute to Eastland from Midland, where they furnished music for the three day celebration, stopping in Big Spring Sunday on request of Frank Williamson, a member of the band and a former Big Spring boy.

Littlefield Ball Team Fails to Come
The Littlefield baseball team failed to arrive Sunday for the three game series with the Big Spring Elks and a picked team took the Elks on Sunday and Monday afternoon. The scrubs with Faulkner pitching scored a six to five victory Sunday afternoon, but failed to repeat Monday; the Elks winning 11 to 2. The crowd was loyal to the scrubs in both contests and some old-time rooting was in order.

Hurt-Hall Wedding Thursday Evening.

The first fall day of 1921 was ushered in with brilliancy in social ablence in the beautiful wedding scene of Thursday evening at the First Baptist church when Miss Vivian Hall, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hall and Mr. Harry H. Hurt, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hurt of Big Spring were united in marriage at eight o'clock. Dr. Willard A. Jenkins, pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating.

The marriage solemnization was very beautiful. The church decoration very dainty and artistic to a degree unusual, the picture made being that of an old fashioned flower garden and the girls coming to this picture were gowned in old fashioned organdy frocks and carrying colonial bouquets of baby pink roses. This garden picture was developed with a background of lattice work over which trailed vines and dainty pink and orchid colored blossoms, the colors of pink and orchid making the entire wedding scene one of great beauty. The greatest profusion of flowers had been used to make the church most lovely and just enough of ferns and greenery to give the necessary touch for the garden effect. Dainty white pedestals on the altar were topped with the favored flowers and through latticed archways this garden was entered by the wedding party. The family and a few intimate friends occupied pews designated by white satin ribbon, while the remainder of the church was filled with friends, many of them life long friends of the bride.

While the audience waited a musical prelude was given in several of those soft and beautiful numbers so appropriate to the nuptial hour. Mrs. Alex Miller was the organist. Miss Mabel Becker of Big Spring, then sang with that beauty of voice that lovely song, "Because." The approach of the bridal cortege was heralded by the soft tones of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The bridesmaid group and the maid and matron of honor entered down the left aisle, opposite the men of the wedding party, several of whom had previously acted as ushers. The maids came first, Miss Grace Hord of Sweetwater, Miss Anna Morris of Fort Worth, Miss Mary Cooper and Miss Vivian Matthews, followed by the matron, Mrs. John Lawrence Comper, and the maid of honor, Miss Lila Bass, immediately preceding the bride. The costumes were all fashioned of organdy and lace and enhanced by the silver of slippers and stockings, Miss Grace Hord wore pink organdy exquisitely adorned with orchid organdy roses; Miss French wore orchid organdy and lace, an exquisite frock; Miss Morris was daintily costumed in pink organdy and lace; Miss Mary Cooper wore a lovely gown of orchid with silver trimmings; Miss Vivian Matthews was attired in a chic orchid organdy frock trimmed with lace and hand made roses. Miss Bass was exquisitely frocked in pink organdy adorned with hand made roses of pink. Mrs. Comper was handsomely gowned in a dress of silver lace and satin, her wedding dress.

The bride, who entered with her father and joined Mr. Hurt with the best man, Mr. Clifford Hurt, and the other members of the wedding party at the altar, was radiant in a gown of duchess satin trimmed with real lace and touches of silver, the train was of heavy satin and the veil of illusion fell to the hem of the long train and was held by sprays of orange blossoms. The nuptial flowers were a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. In the pathway of the bride rose petals were scattered from dainty baskets hanging on the arm of two fairy like little girls, Meta Young, daintily attired in orchid tulle, and Mildred Jenkins, whose pink tulle frock enhanced her brunette beauty. The ring with which the troth was pledged was carried in the center of a miniature colonial bouquet (a duplicate of the bouquets carried by the other members of the bridal party) by Little Patty Hanks, who was lovely in a blue-ribboned tulle frock, with a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair.

Mr. Hurt was attended first by his brother, Mr. Clifford Hurt of Big Spring, and Mr. Earl Hoppe, Mr. Emmett Hall Jr., Mr. Claud Hollabaugh of Cleburne, Mr. Edward Notestine of Big Spring, and Mr. Herman McDaniel.

A small reception for the wedding party was held after the wedding at the Hall home in Park Heights. Delightful decorations in orchid and pink adorned the table where the ceremony of cutting the bride's cake took place. The illness of the bride's mother prevented a larger reception to friends.

The bride's going away costume was a handsome tulle of midnight blue duvetyne, with accessories to harmonize. After a two weeks' tour of Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Hurt will return to Big Spring where they will make their home. Mr. Hurt, a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in Big Spring, has a responsible position in the First National Bank.

The bride is one of Abilene's most attractive and talented girls. She has a lovable disposition and is very popular in both social and church circles here.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Collins are here for a visit with his parents Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Collins.

SIX ATTEND ANNUAL MEETING

Delegates From Howard County Attend Annual Meeting Puget Sound to Gulf Highway Association

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Springman, Judge James T. Brooks and Aaron Johnson returned the first of the week from Fredericksburg, where they attended the annual meeting of the Puget Sound to Gulf Highway Association as delegates from Howard County.

They report one of the biggest and best meetings in the history of the association and with every town between Plainview and Corpus Christi, with one exception, represented. They report most cordial treatment and a royal good time during their stay in Fredericksburg, the citizens leaving nothing undone to make every visitor feel at home. The big barbecue on the enchanted rock was an especially delightful occasion and the delegates state that never before did they see such loads of good things to eat placed before a crowd.

Many important questions came up for discussion in the business session and one of especial interest was a resolution, prepared by the resolution committee requesting the State Highway Commission to designate as a Major Highway, that portion of the Puget Sound to Gulf Highway in Texas and naming the towns thru which this highway has been definitely located. This resolution was unanimously adopted by the association.

Another resolution, calling on the secretary to get in communication with the publishers of the Blue Book and other publications and have them correct misstatements concerning portions of the Puget Sound to Gulf Highway, carried unanimously. This measure is of great importance as it will do much to prevent the detouring of tourists thru towns not located on the highway.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. H. Burmeister of Jourdantown, President; O. L. Sims of Paint Rock, vice president; J. T. Boswell of Plainview, Secretary.

T. H. Johnson was reelected vice-president for Howard County and R. K. Burns vice president for Glasscock County.

The executive committee will select the place of holding the next annual meeting.

Furlong-Wills
News has reached here that Miss Margaret Wills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Wills, of this city, was married last Saturday evening to Mr. Edward Kem Furlong of Douglas, Ariz. The ceremony was performed at the Episcopal rectory by Rev. Simmonson. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Black.

Mr. Furlong was with the A. E. F. in France for eighteen months in the Engineering Corps and since his return he has been a peace officer in the city of Douglas.

After a short honeymoon in the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Furlong will be at home at 1328 F. Avenue, Douglas, Arizona.

Wife of Newspaper Man Dead
It is with regret we note the death of Mrs. R. B. Griffith of Breckenridge Her death took place at Dallas, Aug. 26th, following a two months' illness. Mr. and Mrs. Griffith were both members of the Breckenridge American staff and the death of Mrs. Griffith is regretted by the newspaper fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith were known in Big Spring having resided here in the fall of 1920 at which time they planned to publish an oil journal in this city.

Brotherhood Official Delivers Address.
C. W. Maier, special representative, appointed by the president of the national Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineermen, addressed several hundred union men at K. of P. hall at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Among those present were representatives of the B. of L. F. & E., B. of L. E., O. R. C. B. of R. T., Shop Crafts, Farm Labor Union, Railway Clerks and other organizations.

Elks Defeat Sweetwater League Team.

Baseball enthusiasm was at a high pitch Wednesday afternoon for the Big Spring Elks team defeated the Sweetwater Swatters, winners of the first half of the 1921 season in the West Texas League; and now playing a seven game series with the Abilene Eagles for the championship of the West Texas League.

Best of all, the Sweetwater crew cannot claim any abate for they were beaten fairly and squarely.

Sweetwater made the first score in the second inning on Pipkin stealing home from third. Big Spring tied the score in the fourth when Dingo secured a safe hit, was advanced to second on a sacrifice hit by Geo. White, and came home when Preacher True rapped out a two base hit.

Pipkin, Sweetwater's first baseman, parked a ball for a homerun in the sixth inning.

In the seventh, Hubert Rutherford, first batter up, rapped out a two bagger, and Anderson, next up, parked a homer; clinching the game for Big Spring by a score of 3 to 2. The fans went wild when Anderson secured the homer and a donation of more than twenty dollars was made up in the grandstand. Pitcher Sanders was also remembered by a donation for the great game he pitched.

Sanders had it on the Sweetwater bunch as it shown by his record of ten strike outs and only six hits secured by Sweetwater. Trammel pitching for Sweetwater had five strikeouts to his credit and the Big Spring batters secured eight hits—including a home run, three two-base hits and four singles.

The Elks sure won a home in defeating the Sweetwater bunch for the greater part of the crowd did not expect any such outcome and would not have felt peeved had the Swatters won, provided our boys kept the score from going too high in favor of Sweetwater. Most of the fans feared that the home team would get stage fright when going up against professional players but as it turned out it was the fans who were afflicted with stage fright.

About the best part of the game next to beating the Swatters was the "panning" the crowd in the grandstand gave the Swatters' catcher.

Tomorrow

He was going to be all that a mortal should be—tomorrow; No one would be kinder or braver than he—Tomorrow; A friend who was troubled and weary he knew, Who'd be glad of a life and who needed it, too; On him he would call and see what he could do—Tomorrow. Each morning he stacked up the letters he'd write—Tomorrow; And thought of the folks he would fill with delight—Tomorrow. It was too bad, indeed, he was busy today, And hadn't a minute to stop on his way; "More time, I will have to give others," he'd say "Tomorrow." The greatest of workers this man would have been—Tomorrow; The world would have known him had he ever seen—Tomorrow; But the fact is he died and faded from view, And all that he left here when living was through Was a mountain of things he intended to do—Tomorrow. —Edgar A. Texas Gridiron Star to Cast Lot With John Hopkins

J. I. Bonner, football star of the University of Texas, is the latest bright light to cast his lot with the Hopkins squad. Bonner, who has played both in the line and back field, is an old school-mate of "Tex" Barton, the big Hopkins guard, who also hails from the Lone Star State, and it is mainly thru Barton's influence that Bonner was persuaded to journey northward towards Camp Red Cloud.

It is probably that Bonner will be used as a running mate to Andy Knecht at tackle, as this is the one vacancy that has been giving Van Orman a great deal of trouble. The big Texan has had a great deal of experience in the line and should be the real man to fill the berth—Baltimore American.

The "Tex" Barton referred to in the above article is a graduate of the Big Spring High School and his many friends are indeed pleased to note that he continues to make good. J. I. Bonner is also a graduate of the Big Spring High School and his friends here know that he will continue to mount the ladder of success.

If a tax were levied on all the advice this country is receiving on how to promote prosperity, there would be need of no other kind of taxation! One of the most amusing of incompetent counsel is the oft-quoted call for production and yet more production. "Go to work!" is fine medicine to the army of 6,000,000 jobless workers who want work but cannot find it!

As a rule, advice of this stripe emanates from people with no practical insight, people who have never experienced the sensation of wondering anxiously about their rent money. They sit behind glass-top desks and philosophize about working conditions without knowing them first hand.—Sugarman's Indicator.

A big husky guy worked quite a few fellows here early Tuesday morning, on a plea of being hungry. He was not a bit bashful in asking you for fifty cents to get a feed. Some of the boys who gave this bird the price of a meal watched him and he never went near a restaurant until noon. He was seen blowing in money for cold drinks, however, before noon. It is this class of boob that makes it hard on those who really deserve charity; and if a few of these imposters were hanged up and given a good whipping it might lessen the number who are making a practice of imposing on our folks.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 7.—B. McAfee, an American scientist in London, and Prof. David Taylor, taking snapshots of Mars by means of a special telescope are "imposed" and offer no possibility of success, the opinion of Prof. Selen E. director of the Harvard observatory. "It is true that stars can be daylight from the bottom of or the bottom of a well, just as we see them through a telescope, a thunderstorm," Prof. Selen said. "But the idea of using a telescope in conjunction with a big dish to make Mars appear a two away is preposterous. I faith in the idea. It is a full scheme."

McKinney Examiner: State Press of The Dallas News refers to the Russian Bolsheviks as "crazy snake eaters." Verily State Press has names to fit most anything and any situation.

That term was applied to the rulers of the Bolsheviks, not the rank and file of them. Most of the Bolsheviks, in Russia as in this country, are ignoramuses, some of them plain numbskulls and the others semi-educated nuts who have drugged themselves with silly books and poisoned their feeble wits with foolish phrases. In Russia Lenin is the archetype of Bolshevism, or at least he was. A traitor and a tramp, he bought his way into leadership with German money, and has held more power since the autumn of 1917 than any man in the world. It is to him mainly that belongs the everlasting odium of Russia's ruin, its murdered thousands, its starved ten thousands, its scattered and hopeless millions.

Lenin, an atheistic Gentile, has had considerable help from Trotsky, an infidel Jew. These precious crooks see about destroying every sort of religion in Russia and preaching thievery, murder, adultery and idleness to the mob which supported them in office. They opened the prison doors and released the lowest thugs in the empire, with open or implied orders to rob and kill whatever "bourgeois" elements might presume to oppose them. No wonder scourges of famine and pestilence have assailed that unhappy land. God is not mocked. Today, with the results of four years of unparalleled idiocy greeting him on every turn, Lenin has become a defender of capital. He has abandoned his lunatic theories of government and is courting capital and giving grants to capitalistic exploiters. This is obtaining for his some kind words. Shame on any man or any nation that will condone his crimes. Shame on any publicist who will excuse the ruination of a once mighty people. Lenin and Trotsky and every member of their bloody band deserves to be hanged higher than Haman. There is not an honest bone in any one of their foul bodies.—State Press in Dallas News.

They went there for the benefit of the health of their baby boy and the little fellow certainly did rally in that cool climate. T. Notice to Hunters

It is being noted about that some of our hunters, when supposed to be on a dove hunting expedition, do not hesitate to kill quail whenever they have an opportunity. Everyone of them know it is positively against the law to kill quail out of season, and this is the only notice that these game hogs will be given to refrain from shooting quail, and all guilty ones will be prosecuted.

Upward Sweep Recorded in Cotton

Reports from all over the south tell of rejoicing over the certainty of paying prices for cotton held in storage and for the new crop a still better promise, following sensational rise in addition to the great upward sweep before the holidays.

Experts estimate the betterment on the new crop alone since the pit of last year's disastrous depression as in the neighborhood of $350,000,000.

Aside from a few millions reaped by lucky speculators in the wild exchange trading of the past week, all this will be distributed among the needy growers of the cotton belts, bringing relief far beyond the loans and other assistance extended and planned by the federal government.

Optimists are predicting today that, if congress ratifies the German treaty, cotton will go to 30 cents a pound before Christmas.

Our watch repair work is entrusted to the best skilled mechanics, and your work has the same attention as we give the Railroad inspection. CLOUGH JEWELRY COMPANY, Inspectors for T. & P.

If cotton keeps a jumping in price our short crop this year will bring in a greater net profit to the growers than did our 16,000 bale crop last year.

We have the best equipped optical department between Fort Worth and El Paso. CLOUGH JEWELRY CO.

Mr. Borah Talks Straight

Mr. Borah has one trait in common with the late Mr. Roosevelt—when he is in earnest you can generally detect the fact. Indeed, his earnestness is about the most obvious quality in his vicinity at such times. Mr. Borah talks straight, hits straight and usually sees straight. In any case he talks and hits and sees in the same direction. It is so with his fight for disarmament. He declines to give it a place subordinate to anything else whatsoever. For instance, in an article which occupies the place of chief prominence in the September number of the Nation's Business (Washington, D. C.), the Senator says:

Disarmament should not be postponed or subordinated or made incidental to the settling and adjusting of international questions. It should be made the controlling, dominating question. It is the most vital problem in the world today. Unless disarmament is effectuated, there is no possible relief from economic conditions under which we are now suffering. And any plan, or any program, which makes the question of disarmament a subordinate or incidental proposition, rather than the main and controlling position, will result in the future, as it has in the past, in no relief to the taxpayers and no relief from war."

There's a Bull Moose note in the foregoing which becomes more clearly discernible through comparison with the program which is understood to be contemplated by the leader of Mr. Borah's party, President Harding. It is generally accepted as fixed upon by Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes that problems of the Pacific must be decided before disarmament is either safe or wise. Oddly enough Mr. Simonds, from the cold standpoint of world precedents in failure at diplomacy, and Mr. Borah from the standpoint of the crusader for disarmament as the one great need of the world at this time, agree in a gloomy prospectus for the coming conference at Washington should world relations be gone into again.

In the light of Mr. Borah's disagreement with the President it is not hard to believe Mr. Borah's rumored declining of an invitation to be one of the Administration's spokesmen in the Senate during the absence of Senator Lodge, who is expected to be a member of our delegation at the conference. Indeed, it is easier to believe that Mr. Borah declined the offer than that it was extended to him. Mr. Borah is reported to have replied to the invitation that he believed that he would be more useful if he retained his customary independent attitude. In that feeling it seems incontestable that he is correct, on the score of the advantage to be gained by the public through an honest, unstanding type of opposition in Government.

Mr. Harding and Mrs. Hughes take the attitude that, with the points of friction between nations previously removed, the proposal to reduce armament will have its road smoothed before it. Mr. Borah feels that unless the nations of the earth can trust each other enough to limit armament they will never arrive at a settlement of problems where interests clash. There must occur the surrender of the notion that force or the possibility of resort to it is necessary to the settlement of international disputes. Mr. Borah contends, and he declares that the only way to get rid of the notion is to get rid of armament.

Should Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes succeed in all their undertakings at the conference shortly to be held that outcome would serve somewhat to take the wind out of Mr. Borah's sails, but should the measure of disarmament fall short of a very material reduction in expenditures, military and naval, it may be doubted whether Mr. Borah would be content with an I-told-you-so attitude. In such a case the Bull Moose call might again be sounded. And even if Mr. Borah himself should happen not to be the sounder thereof, it is certainly too much to expect that he would fall to heed its summons. How else are we to read his words:

The world is waiting for someone to point the way along a different road, and someone will ultimately point the way. If we do not do so, the glory will pass to others. You may postpone and procrastinate, and timid men may still adhere to old precedents and practices, but a different program will be had. Someone will announce it and execute it.—Dallas News.

Home Town Paper Week

It is very rare that the average newspaper boosts its own business, but gives quantities of space in boosting the affairs of others.

Somebody suggested that it was for the newspapers of the country to adopt a week in which their own business should be given precedent and the Big Spring Herald thoroughly endorses the idea.

The date set is the second week in November, from the 7th to the 12th, including the great world event, Armistice Day.

The official title for the week will be: "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week".

Ever ready to help in any cause that is in the interest of a better community, better living conditions, and better government we now ask the readers and advertisers of the Herald to turn in and lend a hand during "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week" and boost for us.

An Appreciated Compliment

We consider the following extract from a letter from a subscriber in Georgia one of the nicest compliments the Herald has ever been handed: "When my subscription expired a few weeks ago, I decided that owing to the stringency of the money market, I could do without the Herald, but I find that I miss its coming each Tuesday morning. Why! I've read it so much, even the advertisements, that I feel almost personally acquainted with almost everybody in your little city, as you get out a very nice, readable, interesting weekly and I enjoy its perusal although I am a very busy woman and subscribe for several other papers and magazines. So please keep the Herald coming to me. Mrs. E. C. Meyer, Richland, Ga."

Entertains at Bridge

Misses Clara and Gulon Pool entertained their friends at Bridge, Thursday afternoon, and an especially delightful occasion this proved to be.

Four tables of players vied with one another for the honor of making high score of the afternoon, Mrs. Bernard Fisher being the victor and Mrs. W. W. Inkman making second high score. Delicious refreshments added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

John K. Rosser of Fort Worth, a member of the Commission firm of Campbell and Rosser, was here Thursday in a tour of inspection. According to Mr. Rosser a brighter outlook is in store for livestock raisers as he is of the opinion that prices for livestock are sure to advance in the near future.

W. A. Tucker, Clarence Miller, Eugene Nelson and Herbert Weir left Thursday for Temple to accept positions at the Santa Fe shops.

My dear Mr. Rachmaninoff:

Under a contract between yourself and Thomas A. Edison, Inc., dated the 24th of April, 1919, it is provided, in effect, that the royalties payable to you on various selections, which you have recorded for us, shall continue, only so long as you do not make phonographic recordings of such selections for anyone else.

I shall be very glad to give you permission to record these selections for others, without the loss of royalties under the aforesaid agreement. This will give you the opportunity to record your "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" and other important works, which you have already recorded for us.

Yours very truly,

Thomas Edison

READ Mr. Edison's letter to Rachmaninoff, the famous Russian pianist. In reality, it is an invitation to talking-machine manufacturers to record Rachmaninoff in the selections that he has recorded for the New Edison.

We fear that they will not dare this deadly parallel,—but, since Rachmaninoff has recorded other selections for talking-machines, you can draw your own parallels. Simply come here and

Hear Rachmaninoff on the NEW EDISON

You will hear Rachmaninoff exactly as he plays. Then listen to him as he sounds on a talking-machine.

The New Edison is so different from all talking-machines that Mr. Edison has offered $3 cash prizes, totaling $10,000, for phrases that will best distinguish the New Edison from talking-machines. Ask for folder, giving full particulars.

If you do not own a New Edison, fill out and mail, or bring, the coupon and we will loan you an instrument on three days free trial. Having a New Edison will give you ideas for phrases to submit in the contest. Act quickly—contest closes September 2nd.

West Texas Fair

Modern sports will be combined with the great old games of the stalwart frontier days in order to furnish amusement and thrills for the visitors to the West Texas Fair. Two big days of automobile races, three days of horse races and roping and riding contests and one day of college football will make up the afternoon programs arranged for the Fair, September 26 to October 1, inclusive.

Monday, Tuesday and Thursday of Fair week will be race and rodeo days. The harness events on the program originally arranged have been called off on account of insufficient entries. The running races, however, will be held as scheduled, with one of the biggest calf roping contests, open to the world, ever held in West Texas. Hand-some prizes for the frontier sports have been hung up and a big entry list of ropers is assured.

For the automobile race days, Wednesday and Friday, a total of $3,000 in cash purses is offered, assuring the entry of the fastest cars and best drivers in the South. Already a number of new cars are building in Texas for this meet, and all of the speed demons who raced here on July Fourth are expected to be at the starting line again.

On Saturday, the closing day of the Fair, the afternoon will be given over to a football game between Simmons College of Abilene and Texas Christian University of Fort Worth. Boys Bicycle races also will be staged on this day as a special feature for the youngsters.

We can readily believe there are five million men out of employment when we note the great number of young men "on the tramp" arriving on every freight train that reaches our city. If prejudice and jealousy could be cut from the category of sin, hell would have to close up and the devil go out of business. — Ballinger Ledger.

Correct, you are brother, but what trouble that little word "if" has caused the human race. Could we blot it out entirely what a glorious world this would be. Now "if" people would just determine that they would do right all along the line there would be supreme happiness throughout all the world. Dissension and strife, ill feelings, blood shed and misery would be ended, happiness and good cheer would abound throughout the land, this would be a brighter and better world, the songs of birds would be sweeter, the flowers would send forth sweeter perfume, and all nature would take on a brighter aspect, and life to all of us would be sweeter and grander in every way. Why people cannot learn to do this is beyond our comprehension. It seems easy to do, and should we reach the shining shores of that celestial city we must break away from that old idea we have of doing others before they do us. True Christianity and brotherly love is the only panacea for all of our ills, and we long to see the day when we shall practice the Golden Rule in all its entirety and the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man shall hold forth and our hearts made pure by the saving power of His love, who tells us plainly "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." — Sweetwater Reporter.

H. Ford, Railroader

Sending a clipping concerning the Arkansas-Missouri Railroad, which has ceased to function, and thereby left dozens of prosperous towns without adequate transportation, a Burkburnett constituent asks, "Why not let Henry Ford have a chance at that railway?" State Press is willing. Henry Ford is getting at this juncture almost as much advertising for his railroad as for his justly celebrated automobile except that the jokesmiths are not working quite so hard for his transportation line. Mr. Ford bought his railroad at the bargain counter. He paid 1c on the dollar for its common stock, 5c on the dollar for its preferred stock, and 60c on the dollar for its bonds. Having taken charge of his property, he took a look at the pay roll and said it contained too many names in proportion to the business transacted. He therefore let out 1,000 men, retaining 1,600, whose wages he raised, saying that he was willing to pay good money for good work, but would have no loafing cars, loafing engines, or loafing men on his railroad. Freight trains had been moving at the rate of less than sixteen miles a day. Mr. Ford said there would have to be more speed, so the rate is now thirty-six miles a day, and Henry says it ought to be 175. He proposes gradually to increase the per diem mileage of his freight trains by installing locomotives that weigh a third less than the common type. The big engines, Henry says, are good only for consuming fuel and ruining tracks. An engine can be built, he declares, which will deliver the same power at a third less cost. This indicates that he may intend to introduce the well-known flyover principle to railroad service. Already the Ford railroad is making large profits. He gives it a great deal of traffic by way of bringing raw materials to his factory and taking finished goods away. Also he is said to have made it plain to certain connecting roads that if they do not route a considerable portion of their traffic over his line he will route a considerable portion of his traffic away from their lines. They are glad to oblige. Notwithstanding the very great advantage the Ford has in the way of ready-made tonnage, the Ford experiment in railroading is being watched with acute interest by other railroad managers. They expect the Detroit magnate to introduce improvements, or novelties, that will be very valuable to the railroad business of the future. His arbitrary method of dealing with labor can not be followed by many other roads, because most of them are bound up in red tape of the Labor Board's making. But a vigorous policy, such as Ford has pursued, would unquestionably benefit not only labor itself, but the country in general. The enormous waste in present-day rail-road operation is reflected in freight rates that tax every loaf of bread and pound of butter in America. Mr. Ford has applied for permission to reduce his rates 20 per cent. The authority has not been granted, because it would give him an advantage which his competitors couldn't meet without permission to do as he has done—reduce expenses by declining to retain any names on his pay roll whose owners were not earning their pay. Ford is moving almost twice as much freight with 1,600 men as his road formerly moved with 2,700.—State Press in Dallas News.

The federal reserve system is not being credited with the incomparable service it has rendered the nation in the readjustment era. Men are prone to complain in such a time and to blame be hopeless bankrupts but for the financial system, but multiplied thousands of those who are complaining would now be hopeless bankrupts but for the financial system they criticize. Imperfect as the federal reserve system may be, it has rendered and is rendering the most prodigious service of conservation and salvage the business world has ever known.—Houston Post.

Advertising costs money—but it sells goods. Do not believe the merchant who argues that he can undersell others because his sales are smaller than theirs and his method of doing business proportionately less expensive. Common sense should teach you that the greater number of sales a dealer makes the cheaper he can afford to sell. And common sense should also convince you that if advertising doesn't increase sales hundreds of thousands of merchants would have quit it years ago.—Mart Herald.

The time for an era of economy in public expenditures has come; the public officials who realize it will have the approval of the public; those who do not will "get their later." More About Great Deposit of Potash

Federal and state chemists have been in West Texas more than a year watching a territory approximately 60,000 square miles in extent—and all within El Paso's trade range—to determine if it overlies the world's greatest supply of potash.

Though observations thus far, as a whole, have not been conclusive, they have proved that potash is to be found more or less small quantities throughout the whole territory in at least one case, near Pecos, indications are strong enough to cause one of the officials to declare it would warrant exploitation.

Indications are sufficiently favorable, it is declared, to make more than a vision the belief that in the near future shafts, perhaps as deep as 2500 feet, will be sunk to permit miners to work. Sinking of shafts would be accomplished by the provision of concentrators employing many highly skilled workmen. The time might easily come when the southwest will be the center of the world's potash production trade.

Potash is one of the most necessary of industrial commodities. Until 1914, the United States depended upon Germany for its supply, in 1913 buying 529,000 tons at $40 a ton from that country. The total cost was $21,160,000. The beginning of the war deprived the United States of its chief source of supply and caused federal and state geological bureaus to press with renewed enthusiasm a search for potash begun in 1909-10, when a "potash war" broke out between the United States and Germany.

First traces of potash in west Texas were discovered by Dr. J. A. Udden, head of the bureau of economic geology at Austin. Traces of the metal were found in an oil well being drilled near Spur, Texas, 400 miles east of El Paso.

As a result, D. D. Christner, chemist from the University of Texas, was stationed in West Texas as geological aid for the bureau and representative of the United States geological survey at Washington. Mr. Christner's territory, for the federal government, includes also southwest-Kansas, western Oklahoma and eastern New Mexico. Practically all his time, however, has been devoted to southwest Texas. His headquarters are at Big Spring.

The search since that time, Mr. Christner said, has been confined to the gathering of samples taken from oil wells drilling through his territory. Several samples have been taken from each of more than 50 wells, have been sent to Washington for analysis, and in almost every instance have been found to contain potash, usually in too small quantities to warrant commercial development, he said.

Mr. Christner's method has been to ask drillers of wells to take samples at various depths, to be given to him when he has opportunity to visit the well. They are asked to specify the depth at which the samples were taken.

"The method has not been the most satisfactory possible," Mr. Christner said. "Usually the drillers show every willingness to cooperate. But they are drilling wells, not working for the state.

"However, any showings of potash, under the conditions, probably would be most conservative. Actual underground conditions ordinarily would be far more promising than shown by analysis of samples taken under existing conditions.

"To warrant working as a commercial enterprise, it would be necessary to find a stratum of potash salts not less than five feet thick, at a depth of 2500 feet or less, and testing 10 per cent potash. Several samples have tested as high as 9 and 10 per cent.

"The only positive methods of determining the quality of underlying potash salts would be a 'core' test—that is, the sinking of a small hole. The cost of such a test would be about $25,000."

The territory most closely observed by Mr. Christner lies between Snyder and Pecos, from east to west, and from Lamesa, in the Texas panhandle, to Upton county, from north to south. The extremes, in each instance, are about 250 miles apart. Showings of potash have been found over the entire area, and probably would be found in other parts of Texas and New Mexico, though that fact remains to be determined.

Potash showings found near Midland were at a depth of 2405 feet. At Lamesa they were 1860 feet. Showings elsewhere have ranged between the two. Samples are being taken at every five feet in a well near Pecos, while excellent showings have been found in another at Big Spring.

The potash market ordinarily is one of the most stable of all markets, though price of the product went to $125 a ton during the world war when Germany, chief source of supply for the world, was unable to dispose of its metals.

The outbreak of the war caused the United States to begin search for potash supplies, and resulted in the building of plants in western Nebraska and at San Diego, Calif., seaweed being burned at the latter for the potash it contained. In Nebraska, potash salts were found in brine underlying the bottoms of salt lakes. Both methods, however, are more expensive than the German process, and probably would be unable to compete with Germany on the open market.

In Germany, potash is brought to the surface in water. The water is forced to the potash deposits. The potash is soluble, and is carried to the surface in solution. At the surface the potash is taken from the water and solidified.

The same method probably would not be practicable should deposits be found in the southwest. The shaft method of mining probably would be more satisfactory and less costly, Mr. Christner said.

Potash is used principally for fertilizer, and has been the agent chiefly responsible for keeping fertile European lands after centuries of constant cultivation.

It also is used in soap and glass making, bleaching, dyestuffs, explosives, and has scores of other chemical uses.—H. L. Kiefer in El Paso Herald.

Time For Action

"It is time to throw off the blue glasses and revive trade and employment," says B. C. Forbes in his semi-monthly publication on business and trade conditions. He asks if we are to act with manliness and prove ourselves worthy of the best traditions of Americans or if we propose to shrivel up and act the role of mannikins; if we propose to adopt the course which will swell the army of unemployed, now almost 6,000,000, or if we intend to put the men back to work and hustle to market their output.

Mr. Forbes says the answer must be given to these questions by deeds and not by words, for it is the deeds that will largely control the course of business during the coming months. He insists that mere windy optimism will be both ineffective and foolish as a panacea for business ills. Optimism is all right but it must be attended with action and that action must be based on realization of what is necessary to restore the industries of the country and courage to carry out the purpose.

Upon the bankers of the country there rests a tremendous responsibility, according to Mr. Forbes, who says it is high time for them to encourage rather than to discourage absolutely trustworthy business men to use part of the abnormal idle reserves for legitimate purposes calculated to overcome long protracted stagnation and to stimulate that increase in activity which is now warranted in many lines of enterprise. He insists that bank reserves have reached "disgraceful proportions."

As encouraging signs, Mr. Forbes notes that stocks of merchandise have been generally reduced far below normal and buyers are beginning to fear that unless they build up their stocks soon there may be a stampede for goods and a sharp increase of prices; that the agricultural population is emerging from the slough of despond since exports of grain have increased in volume; the "buyers' strike" has been lifted wherever price reductions have been marked and savings deposits keep up in a way that is very gratifying in view of the large extent of the unemployment during the year. He urges above all things, however, that industry awaken to the necessity of giving employment to the army of the idle, so that every one of them may cooperate in bringing about better times. He says, "If we do not we shall certainly be faced with very much worse times when winter comes."

Honesty, Religion, Business

While this country could not have hoped to escape the painful experience we are passing through in the readjustment period following the war, it is possible to lighten the burden and shorten the period if the best method is employed and the right course followed. It is not a problem for the government alone, it is a problem for the individual citizen. There should be nation-wide support for the right method, cheerful co-operation from all lines of business, from all walks of life.

Since the close of the war many writers and speakers have appealed with suggested panaceas, remedies and cures. Roger W. Babson of Boston has spoken often and written much on that subject. It has been his contention from the first that the greatest need of the nation, the prime need of the business world was a full application of the Golden Rule in all affairs. He would have the stamp of individual integrity on each business transaction. He would have the people practice thrift and be industrious.

He would have personal honesty and individual industry and thrift made a part of one's religion and religion made a part of each line of business. He would put value received in each business transaction. With that done, with these qualities developed and applied, he says there would be business and it would be good business. In his professional work he has seen much of the evil results of the moral lapse in human affairs that came with the war. The weakness he sees is the individual weakness, the lack of wholesome, old-fashioned honesty and fair dealing. Restoring that, he feels, would restore the basis and give business a chance for right development.—Fort Worth Record.

DID YOU KNOW?

That the price of lumber and other building material has about reached the bottom? This must be a fact.

We had a tip the other day that we could expect higher prices on Lumber, Sash, Doors, and Mouldings. If these go higher, we may expect all kinds of flooring to advance.

Our prices are the lowest that they have been since the peak of War Prices, and are well in line with the cost of production; and with the renewal of confidence, and general expressions of optimism, now is the time for you to get busy and do your improving and repairing that you have been holding up on account of high prices.

Paints are also down so much that it no longer pays to allow your buildings to go unpainted, as the depreciation amounts to more than the cost of painting.

Some traveling men who have been visiting all points between Fort Worth and El Paso say that Big Spring is the best business town along the line, notwithstanding the fact that there are several towns with population considerably more than Big Spring can boast of. It begins to look as though this might be true from the number of new firms that are coming here to engage in business.

This day is a summary of the ages—and you are a part of tomorrow.

Men's Meeting at Y. M. C. A.

Last Sunday afternoon at five o'clock we had a splendid meeting for men at the "Y." led by Mr. Huston. Something like 60 men were in attendance at this the first men's meeting of the fall season. Next Sunday afternoon we will have another meeting for men at the same time and place. A special speaker from out of town will be present to speak to the men, and yet it will not be a meeting just for speaking and hearing alone; but we will have music and devotional exercises. A male quartet will be present to render some fine music, and most men enjoy music. An invitation is hereby sent out to all the men of Big Spring to attend these men's meetings. No matter who you are, or what your business is we want you to come. Let us lay aside our shell which we have crawled into, and our reserve which we cultivate to keep men at a distance from us, and let us come together just as men, men who work and toil in the various spheres of life, men who live together, do business with each other day by day. We meet together thru the week in twos and threes and larger groups, and we talk to each other of the difficulties and hardships of life, and then we become gloomy and pessimistic about things. And so it is a good thing for us to come together in larger groups to turn our thoughts together to the things of joy, and hope, and sympathy, and a brotherly feeling. Don't forget the Meeting. Time: Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. Place: The Y. M. C. A. Who are invited: YOU WHO READ THIS, and ALL THE MEN YOU CAN INVITE TO COME WITH YOU.

Home and School Club Notes

With the opening of our schools, Monday, September 16th, it is the earnest desire of the Home and School Club and faculty to cooperate with and serve the patrons and all those interested in our schools to the best interest of the pupils.

Everyone is most cordially invited to attend the meeting of the Home and School Club Friday afternoon at four o'clock, at which time you will have an opportunity to meet your children's teachers and spend a pleasant hour.

Please remember that for fifty cents a year you can be a member of the Home and School club and if you want to help our schools you should become a member.

Let us all together strive to make this a banner year for OUR schools.

The following program will be given at the meeting Friday:

- Invocation—B. Reagan, president of school board.
- Song—"America"—Audience
- Welcome address—Mrs. Dan O'Keefe, president Home and School Club.
- Response—A. W. Flanken, superintendent of schools.
- Reading—Miss Mary Johnson.
- Discussion—"What Shall We Do This Year?"

It would be a fine thing if the hunters of Howard County would enter into a gentlemen's agreement to refrain from killing quail a year or two and give these game birds an opportunity to become plentiful once more. You can and will kill them out completely so why not take steps to preserve these birds. There are only a small per cent of folks who make a practice of hunting and they can afford to deny themselves this sport for a season or two.

For a time it looked as though our folks were going to have a hard time "getting by" due to the shortage in crops caused by the long spell of dry weather but the outlook is much better since the price of cotton is on the increase. If cotton continues to advance, not only will our folks be able to get by, but most of them will be able to wipe out some of their debts.

The Lyric has a picture listed for a future date which every young man and woman should see. It is a portrayal of what might be the history of an average American family and you will find it especially appealing and will touch you as no sermon ever has; if you have a heart. Don't miss seeing "The Old Nest" when it is shown.

We have not heard many discussing the proposed auto race track, but consider one suggestion offered an especially good one and that was: that automobile owners organize an Auto Club for the purpose of securing an auto race course, a scenic drive and for the further purpose of looking after the interests of the members.

With no big celebration planned for Labor Day—many of our folks found it rather hard to kill time during the greater part of the day. A matinee at the Lyric, a scrub baseball game and horse racing in the Cole & Strayhorn addition were in order during the afternoon.

Beginning Sept. 12th, the State Bank Commissioner will begin mailing checks in payment of non-interest bearing and unsecured deposits of the Guaranty Bank of Ranger. The affairs of the Guaranty State Bank of Ranger will be liquidated as rapidly as possible.

Care of Batteries

This article is written to impress on car owners the great importance of preventing electrical trouble instead of remedying it.

Owners who for one reason or another do not care for to do the actual work themselves go once or twice a year to a garage and have their cars overhauled and put in good condition. Such an important task as this ought to be done at least twice a year, and by a competent electrician.

Care of the electrical system means a great deal more than just care of the battery. No battery works alone, nor is it responsible for the working of the car. When it is in service it is only one part of the electrical circuit or closed path around which electricity must always travel. Another part is the generator. When starting another is the electrical motor. Then there is the distributor, the coil, the wires, and even the steel frame of the chassis by which current finishes its circle of travel. Now every one of these parts has to be always "on the job." Every wire has to be whole. Every connection has to be clean and tight. Every moving part has to be working properly. If there's a weak link anywhere, your battery may suffer.

Here is what happens when you start: The instant you put your foot on the starting switch you close the connection so that current can flow from battery to starting motor. The starting motor begins to turn, spinning the engine. If you have also closed the ignition switch you allow current to flow through the coil and distributor and finally to the spark plugs.

Your engine now turns under its own power. The starting motor is automatically disengaged. Current from the generator is being supplied to the battery, so that it will be there available for light start and ignition.

There are not a great many things that can happen to an electrical system and almost all come from one of three causes, looseness, dirt and wear. Just where these three things come in, is a matter that a good many car owners learn from sad experience. The sad part of it is that the experience nearly always is charged up as shortened batter life.

Of course a loose connection, dirty distributor, or worn generator brushes are all bad for the battery, but an even more serious trouble may come when you try to diagnose your case and go about it in a haphazard way. The trouble may hardly affect the life of the battery at all, but the hunt for the trouble may seriously shorten its life.

Here is an average case: Starting motor seems weak. Engine is barely turned over. The owner is puzzled. Lids up hood. Looks at engine. Tries the starter again. Looks to see if he has gasoline. Tries starter again. Opens pet-cocks to relieve compression. Tries starter again. Battery seems weaker than ever. Tries starter again, again, and again.

Now, this man's trouble may not have been battery trouble at all. The battery weakness may have only been a symptom, aggravated by the owner's way of trying to force so crippled part to work at the expense of the battery. Suppose, for instance, that the fault lay back in the starting motor—in a worn brush.

The faulty brush interrupts the current. Some reaches the motor winding, but not enough to give a good pull. All that was needed here is a new brush, which only costs a few cents, but the owner may not even know that his motor has a brush and may kick and kick at the starter switch putting needless work on the battery until it becomes discharged and its life shortened by just so much.

Of course motor brushes are only one little link of the current path—one point that might cause trouble. There is brushes in the generator too. Both motor and generator brushes ought to be watched to see that they make good contact with commutator.

Again there may be dirt or water in the distributor. The result is that your ignition system is hindered so that instead of a single push that gives you a quick start at the first few turns of the motor, you keep on kicking the starter and using the battery for work that could have been saved by attention—not to the battery—but to the working parts of the distributor. Another important link in the system is the spark coil. Every bit of current that goes to your spark plugs goes through it. Here the low voltage of your battery is stepped up to very high sparking voltage. If it don't work properly the spark that should put life in your engine is weak or perhaps isn't present at all. This trouble isn't common, but when it does come along you should not work the battery to death trying to start without current going to your spark plugs. It is a lot easier to make a test of the plugs to see if you are getting a good spark than to run your battery down and have to crank the car by hand.

Dirty spark plugs are far too common. The carbon that accumulates in the plugs and allows the current to pass without sparking, hurries thousands of batteries toward their end. "Keep your spark plugs clean" is one of the most important rules of motoring. If you follow it you'll find that you will not only have a quicker starting, smoother running motor, but a longer-lived battery. Connections and cables are important. Every inch of your wiring system ought to be looked over from time to time to make sure that there is no broken wires, and no dirty or loose connections.

One break or a single ground in an otherwise perfect circuit will interfere with the working of the lighting, starting and ignition system so that the battery may be run down near the danger point if the starter is operated time after time. ELERO TRICITY.

Care of Electrical Equipment

Dairy Sections Prosperous
Recent investigations disclose the fact that those sections of the country where the dairying interests are prominent have suffered least from business depression during the last eighteen months. Wisconsin, because of its vast dairying interests, is the most prosperous agricultural State in the Union. In that State more than 75 per cent of the farmers produce their own butter, milk, eggs, poultry, small fruits and vegetables and have their weekly and monthly pay checks from a vast surplus product from their fine dairy herds. Their soils have been enriched from year to year until a farm of forty acres produces a large revenue even though the season is short and the winters long and cold.

Grundy county, Iowa, is said to be one of the richest agricultural counties in that State. The soil is black and deep. For years most of the farmers in Grundy have devoted their attention to the growing of corn and oats and the breeding of hogs. Business depression came and these farmers found that the bottom had dropped out of the purebred hog business and corn and oats hardly brought the cost of production. In a way they found themselves as hard pressed as the one crop farmer of the South. Over in one corner of the county dairying was started several years ago. In one township there are three creameries and three cheese factories. Hard times never crossed the border of this township. These dairy farmers are of necessity diversifiers. They have their weekly check and produce the food, the butter, milk and poultry that the other farmers of that section must buy. No stronger or more apt illustration of the value of dairying can be found in the United States, according to those who are familiar with the situation.

The value of milk and milk products as a food for man is just beginning to be appreciated. For many years it was thought that milk was good for children only, but now it has been demonstrated that milk and milk products are among the most essential foods for the maintenance of good health and the development of muscle and brain. As a food, dairy products are rapidly taking precedence over all other foods. The demand for this food is on the increase. It will increase from year to year far beyond the proportionate increase in population.

No industry has brighter prospects, but to take advantage of the situation, the industry must be developed in communities where the best animals may be obtained, the best secured, maintained and the best co-operative marketing methods employed.—Farm and Ranch.

Are we about to see demonstrated that long-held opinion that the South can profit more by raising 7,000,000 bales of cotton at twenty cents than 14,000,000 bales at ten cents? The market has been steadily advancing for the last several days, with a varied daily fluctuation. The trend is upward, and if the government forecast September 1 is as unfavorable as most observers seem to think it will be then we should not be surprised to see cotton advance to twenty cents before the season fairly starts. The shortage of the Texas cotton crop does not seem to be worrying anybody particularly. Of course, if the farmer depended entirely on cotton and produces little or none, he is in a bad way; but if he diversified and also makes ten or twenty bales of cotton, he will not be so bad off considering that cotton is steadily advancing 20-centward. The shorter the crop, the easier it is to produce and the greater the price. It is unprofitable, however, for a farmer to spend $2,000 worth of labor on a crop of cotton which ought to produce 100 bales, and then have it produce no more than 25 or 50 bales. Slowly but surely diversification is getting in its work, and less and less is the farmer depending on cotton for a safe crop.—Abilene Reporter.

The state tax rate for the fiscal year has been fixed at 22 cents on the $100 valuation by the State Automatic Tax Board. This is the same rate as was paid during the last fiscal year. The total revenue for the next year will be between $20,000,000 and $21,000,000 and appropriations made for the year to come slightly under this figure.

The district judge at Georgetown, Texas, in commenting on the Ku Klux Klan in his charge to the grand jury said: "We have ample laws to cover all crime, and we cannot have two sets of government; there is no place or need in this country for an invisible government."

Nothing has quite so delicate a pulse as human character. Whispers may dislodge it. That's the tragedy of it all.

Ludendorff's Great Vision

Germany won the war in the eastern area and lost it in the western. Moltke and Falkenhayn, on the Marne before Ypres, and at Verdun, respectively, lost it in the west, while Ludendorff in the east achieved the military overthrow of Russia, a colossal feat, conquering from Riga in the north to Odessa in the south. His performance was one of the most stupendous in military history, and his speech in East Prussia the other day was not the vain-glorious utterance of a boaster, but the recital of the sober truth and the testimony of a most capable General and administrator to the faith that is still in him and in hundreds of thousands of his fellow-countrymen.

Therefore, to dismiss his comments and exhortation as light words of no practical significance, now that the war is over and the Prussian power broken, might prove to be a costly mistake. The cables speak of the reactionary tide as moving more and more strongly in Germany. The Republic may be permitted to function officially, the Hohenzollerns never may return, but the fabric of administration and martial organization that was Prussia still exist and govern two-thirds of Germany, and are sustained by the system of thought and loyalty which Ludendorff at Koenigsberg himself expressed in no uncertain phrases.

Ludendorff is Prussian in his angle of vision, which opens eastward. Russians, Poles, the whole Slavic assortment are the immemorial foes of the Prussians, whose whole possessions eastward of the Elbe represent conquests, running back a thousand years, of Slavic lands. Especially East Prussia, divided now from Germany by the Vistula Polish "corridor" to Dantzic and the Baltic, has been the Tenton outpost and stronghold. That military masterpiece of Hindenburg and Ludendorff, achieved in August, 1914, is styled "Tannenberg" in commemoration of the decisive victory centuries ago attained there by the Knights of the Teutonic Order over the surrounding Slavs.

While Ludendorff exulted for the triumphs of the German armies at Tannenberg and on the Duna that broke the Czar's military might in 1914 and 1915, he expressed the hope and uttered the thought of the forthcoming Prussian policy of stating that God willing, never again should Prussians and Russians fight; that hereafter there should be alliance between them, which should be blood and iron, by sacrifices and slaughter, regain what had been lost in Flanders and in France.

That is the governing German policy of the future with which Western civilization may have to reckon. It is a policy that ought to be thwarted from the outset, blocked piecemeal at every opportunity, since if it succeeds it will confront Western Europe and America some future time with a menace as terrible as the one which by superhuman efforts Western civilization overcame in 1918.

Paris sees the point, even if London does not. Yet British policy of trade revival with Russia may do as much to thwart Prussian imperialistic design as will French intelligent support of Poland and endeavor to prevent German military resuscitation. Minneapolis Journal.

The New Taxes

Longview Times-Clarion: Good enough. The income tax exemption figure is to be $2,500 next year, and by dint of extreme prodigality the poor man may be able to keep his net income within that figure.

What the taxes are to be is not yet known. Congress recessed without completing the tax measure. We were promised, you will remember, that our business-like friends, the Republicans in power, would hurry to reform the fiscal affairs of the Government, as well as all its other affairs. The weeks have come and gone, the months have appeared and disappeared, but our Republican friends have not relieved us of a cent of taxation that we know of. Their Mr. Dawes, whose reputation for profanity is at least equal to his notoriety as an economist, was to set up various administrative reforms, each accompanied by a saving of public money, but so far the taxpayer has not felt the effect of Mr. Dawes' salvagings. State Press, though a Democrat, and prejudiced, does not despair of relief, however. Having everything in their own hands, the Republicans must make a showing, and more than showing, or be expelled from office. Their tax bill, when they eventually get around to it, may bring some help to the burden bearers. If so, State Press will say so. But the constant reminders from authoritative administration men that the national expenses must remain high for several years leads to misgivings on the part of the taxpayers. If there is anything in the Republican theory that high tariffs compel foreigners to pay a portion of our taxes, we perhaps will see that theory worked out, although the tariff bill has been shelved for the time being, with some hints to the effect that it may never again see the light of day, unless in a guise greatly dissimilar to its recent aspect. State Press in Dallas News.

Cost 25c Pound to Raise Is Claim

Austin, Sept. 7.—The cost of producing the 1921 cotton crop in Texas is 25.8 cents per pound, according to a statement given out today by George B. Terrell, Commissioner of Agriculture.

Terrell said that any price under 25 cents would not cover the cost of production, pointing out that his estimate was a conservative one based on reports from farmers in fifty-six counties who kept the cost of producing the 1921 crop.

Terrell said in view of the fact that the recent Government crop estimate of 7,037,000 bales is the shortest in twenty-six years that cotton should bring 25 cents per pound or more.

In figuring his estimate Terrell allowed $1 per 100 pounds for picking and 40 cents for ginning. He also included depreciation of machinery, taxes and other similar expenditures.

Save a Little Each Month

"Don't spend it all! Save some of it!" has been a motto that has been followed pretty well here, according to Postmaster B. Reagan.

"While some folks still have the idea that it is beneath their notice to salt four dollars and a few cents in a $5 War Savings Stamp, others have acted on the principle that 'what you save is yours, what you spend is the other fellow's,' and they have put Uncle Sam to work for them making their savings produce compound interest," said Postmaster Reagan.

"The popularity locally of the new $25, $100 and $1000 Registered Treasury Savings Certificates has surprised me, although I had every reason to look for a liberal buying of this security. Their safety, the fact that the produce interest every month, coupled with the fact that they are liquid and can not depreciate, accounts for this, I suppose. "August has been a good month in saving so far as postoffice sales of War Savings Stamps and Registered Treasury Savings Certificates are concerned, though commercial business has been slack.

"The way people are turning from reckless spending to sure saving is certainly pleasing to us at the postoffice because every dollar wisely saved in this community helps the people and the merchant alike. Money makes the mare go, according to the old saying, but it is safely saved money that makes a community and its people prosperous. Growing bank accounts, increasing sums invested in Government Savings Securities and economy in spending make business better for all. We are indeed gratified to have played a part at the postoffice in increasing the asset standing of Big Spring."
