CHRISTIANITY Is The Bulwark of Our Way of Life

WHAT MEN DEMAND OF GOD WHAT GOD DEMANDS OF MEN

In Matthew 12:39 we read these words: "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign..." This picture as portrayed by Christ was directed to the people living at the time he was preaching.

Whenever one refuses to believe the light which God has given, he in a most graphic way is making a demand of God to act in a manner to satisfy man.

God hears man's demand for more signs, but replies, "I demand that you accept and believe what I have given through the prophets, my Word, and the Living Word, Jesus; and if you refuse you must pay the price that all unbelievers pay."

God demands that you consider Christ, his death and a resurrection for the salvation of the world, and consider the transformation that takes place in the life of each one that finds him.

What's the Difference?
They Look Alike

WHETHER it's girls or cigars, you can't be sure about their quality by appearance alone. Some that look very much alike may turn out altogether different in performance. Fortunately, at least insofar as cigars and most other items of an inanimate nature are concerned... we can determine quality in most cases before we buy.

By reliance on advertised and jealously guarded Brand Names, we can buy with confidence. A particular brand of shirt, for example, bought in the city is identical with the same brand and model of shirt we buy at home.

There is, however, one significant difference in a particular brand of shirt bought from a merchant neighbor, and the same shirt bought in some other city... a difference which lies in the fact that here the transaction is much more than a simple exchange of money for goods; it is also part of the system that supports our own individual social and economic interests.

Because, every single dollar we spend at home makes a little more secure our own jobs or businesses; and every dollar we spend elsewhere makes these a little less secure.

Uncle Ray's "Hot Air"

A man accidentally swallowed a ping pong ball and he was rushed into surgery for its removal. The patient insisted on having only a local anesthetic so he could watch the operation. He winced a little when the first incision was made, but he didn't actually feel it; nor did he feel the next cut nor the next. However, he did become a little alarmed at the number of incisions, as the surgeon cut here and there, in what seemed a rather random manner.

"Why do you have to cut in so many places?" he asked. "They don't seem to be consistent."

"Well," replied the surgeon, cutting away, "that's the way the ball bounces!"

HEY, WHAT GOES ON HERE? These two official-looking markers are on or near the state lines of Texas and New Mexico where Texico and Farwell join. Chances are you've noticed them, but have you ever noticed that they don't agree on where the line is? Go look for yourself and see if you can explain this enigma. Either Texas has borrowed some of New Mexico, or New Mexico has invaded Texas, or we've got a no-man's land!

Interplanting On Skip-Row Cotton Proves Rewarding

Interplanting of other crops in skip-row cotton operations could well prove to be another way to increase individual farm income. This fact is shown by an analysis of skip-row planting tests conducted in 1962 by the High Plains Research Foundation of Plainview. Of eleven different skip-row systems tested, six involved interplanting of grain sorghums, soybeans and castorbeans on skipped rows, and results generally show a higher gross income from these interplanted plots. The tests were conducted in an effort to determine how best to take advantage of the Department of Agriculture's 1962 ruling which permitted farmers to count against acreage allotments only land actually devoted to cotton in any skip-row system. A similar policy has been announced for the year 1963, but could be changed in any future year at the discretion of the Department. Prior to 1962, any system which skipped less than four rows was considered to be solid cotton for acreage allotment and marketing quota purposes.

In eight of the eleven High Plains tests, both cotton and the interplanted crop showed yield increases over solid planting. Cotton production was increased in all of the tests, as was production of castorbeans. Soybeans showed an increase in all but two of the tests, while grain sorghum yield was improved in all except one. In each test, the skip-row system was followed until a maximum of one acre of cotton was planted. The remaining land in the three-acre plots was planted solid to the interplanted crops or left fallow on those plots where interplanting was not utilized. Obviously such tests do not reflect returns on a total land use basis, but can be used in a general way for adaptation to an individual farm.

The two tests showing highest returns each involved interplanting, with no land left fallow. The greatest money yield was shown on a plot where two rows of cotton were interplanted with four rows of grain sorghum. In this test cotton produced 950 pounds per acre, which was an increase of 45.9 per cent over solid planted yield. The plot produced 5683 pounds of grain sorghum for an increase of 6.7

per cent over solid planting. The second highest return came from a system using two rows of cotton interplanted with two rows of castorbeans. Cotton in this test yielded 716 pounds of lint, showing a 10 per cent increase over solid planted plots, and castorbeans yielded 2481 pounds per acre, which was 76.7 per cent greater than solid planting yield. It should be noted that insufficient water was available for solid planted castorbeans used for comparison, which could account for at least a part of the large increase shown.

Lowest gross return for any of the interplanted tests was received on a plot where four rows of cotton were interplanted with two rows of other crops.

While the High Plains tests cover only one year, similar results have been obtained by other tests at Texas Agricultural Experiment Stations at Lubbock, Big Spring and Spur. Farmers who wish to consider interplanting should contact any of these experiment stations or Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. of Lubbock for additional details.

Production and harvest costs were not taken into consideration in comparing the various systems in these tests. Costs, grain sorghum base, cotton allotment, irrigation water available, and diverted acreage payments are among the factors that must be considered in choosing the system best suited to a given farm.

FARMER COUNTY WINNER in the 1962 DeKalb Selected Five-Acre Yield contest was Kenneth Christie, (L) with a yield of 8,091.76 pounds with DeKalb F-63. Second-place winner was Keith Brock (not shown), with a yield of 7,997.34 pounds with DeKalb F-63. Third-place winner was J. W. Wright, with a yield of 7,752.93 pounds with DeKalb F-63. Christie and Wright are shown at a recent awards banquet where they received their awards.

GSPA Pushes Research For Midge Control

The Grain Sorghum Producers Association, through its president, Elbert Harp, and vice president for research and education, A. W. (Dub) Anthony, has begun a push for establishing research leading to control of the midge, according to a recent newsletter published by the GSPA.

Midge -- the pesky little microscopic insect that cost many farmers 20 to 50 per cent of their 1962 sorghum production, also knocked up to 1,000 pounds per acre off expected seed yields of commercial companies.

No studies as to habitat, wintering areas, host plants, insecticide or other factors leading to midge control are now underway by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, or Land Grant colleges in the entire "Sorghumbelt"

Ironically, a representative of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station asked the association and other industry groups to consider putting forth token funds to initiate such studies as much as five years ago -- ahead of any area damage -- but through complacency on the part of farmers, seed producers, grain dealers and others now suffering loss -- funds were not generated.

In an effort to help correct this, the seed industry at a recent conference named M. D. Lacy, Waco, to work with GSPA officials in seeking the initiation of the midge control research.

Report number 2257 of the TAES, Lubbock, says, "With the exception of the early-maturing hybrids, all other hybrids planted (after April and May) suffered midge damage." The need for producer-trade-industry push for midge control is here.

A special account has been established by the GSPA to receive trade and industry funds as a voluntary investment along with our producer funds to initiate interim studies in accordance with a USDA-TAES project expected to be submitted for approval within the next two weeks.

Twelve Geese do Work of One Man

It has been estimated that twelve young weeder geese, properly managed, will replace the work of one man and hoe. Substitute your cost for hand labor ($150.00 is probably low for most sections of the country) to obtain an idea of how much you can save. Cost of $36.00 for twelve geese includes costs of purchasing goslings, brooding, supplemental feeding, etc. for an average cost of $3.00 per goose per season. The returns from marketing the geese should be deducted which will make the actual cost far less than this figure. (Courtesy J. H. Williams, Natchitoches, La.)

Efforts Intensified To Help Farmers Conserve Water

Tent stakes won't hold in sand or snow. Therefore, tie guy ropes around a rock or twigs and bury a few inches in the ground.—

Efforts are being intensified by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District to meet and work with irrigators throughout the District who have trouble keeping water on their land.

According to Tom McFarland, General Manager of the High Plains Water District, it is difficult to irrigate excessively sloping land. At the same time, a farmer who owns excessively sloping land and still has strong wells, feels that he must produce an irrigated crop on the land to make it pay dividends.

McFarland points out that here is where the problem lies - how can the irrigator adequately water his land and at the same time retain the irrigation water on his own farm.

The Water District has been working on this, a major problem facing many irrigators, for several years, but especially during the past year.

McFarland says that many methods are presently being used by farmers in the area to alleviate waste water problems. Even though he knows that each farm has individual and distinct problems, by utilizing one or a combination of the several methods of conservation which are being successfully used, he believes that waste water problems can be minimized. Wayne Wyatt, District Field Representative, and McFarland have been spending much time in Bailey, Castro and Parmer Counties where heavy soil and large capacity wells are prevalent and conducive to waste problems, visiting with irrigators in an effort to help solve waste problems. They have expressed their anxiety for all those in the Water District who have waste water problems, to meet with them in an attempt to make water use more efficient on individual farms.

To prolong the irrigated-agriculture economy of the southern High Plains is the desire of all who live in the area. Working together on the problems that would tend to shorten the economic life of the supply of underground water is just good common sense, which is after all, "water conservation."

An old farmer made a trip to the city and decided to startle the wife by appearing in brand new raiment. To save wear on the new suit he placed it in the back of the wagon. A few miles from home he took off his old clothes and tossed them off a bridge into the river.

Reaching for the new clothes, he was surprised to see that they had dropped out of the wagon and were floating down the river. "Giddap, Maude," yelled the old man, pulling down his shirt-tail as he realized his plight. "We'll surprise her anyhow!"

Hart Animals Get Rare Certificates

Three Performance Registry International Certificates, certifying Performance Gains have been received by Dale & Laura Hart on three of their Registered Polled Milking Short-horn calves. P. R. I. of Denver, Colo. states that this is the first herd of Milking Short-horn or of Dual-Purpose Breeds to ever be entered in P. R. I. These three Hartsdale calves was also the first Dual Purpose animals to qualify for and receive the Performance Registry certificates.

The three, two bulls and one heifer had an average weight per day of age of 2.38 pounds. They weaned at an average of 239 days at 570 pounds with an actual daily gain of 2.09 lbs. Their adjusted daily gain was 2.19. These all surpassed the P. R. I. Standards by a good margin. The two bulls each received a 99 and the heifer 102. Hartsdale Polled Milking Shorthorns are to be featured in a coming issue of POLLED PROGRESS, a nationally circulated Triton publication of Polled Cattle.

Careful Use Of Agricultural Chemicals Is Recommended

The "secret" of avoiding poisoning farm animals, or any other crop, with agricultural chemicals is to follow directions on the container, a Texas A&M College veterinarian says. This tongue-in-cheek advice comes from Dr. R. D. Turk of the Veterinary Parasitology Department, a speaker at the 12th annual Texas Agricultural Aviation Conference held at A&M.

Dr. Turk paraphrased the old axiom: "When everything else fails, try following the directions."

But then there are always persons who feel that if a little bit is good, a little more is better, he said.

"We have the cropduster who turns over a lake without shutting off the spray or dust, and dead fish result," he said. "We have them turn over pastures where cattle are grazing, or over fields of forage crops, and we even have some who poison themselves. However, these incidences are becoming fewer and fewer."

Referring to current unfavorable publicity about alleged effects of pesticides upon humans, livestock and wildlife, Dr. Turk posed this question to the 200 persons attending the conference: "Do we need chemicals?"

"If you have ever seen a mangy bull, a bollweevil infested cotton field, or a good pasture eaten up by army worms, the answer must be yes," he said. "Some persons say we don't need chemicals."

Actually, we don't need meat, clothing, automatic washers, and many things."

The veterinarian cited statistics showing how chemicals have made U. S. farm production the world's best, and how chemicals have improved human health. But he added that chemicals can be improperly used.

"Certainly chemicals are dangerous. So are automobiles, airplanes, electricity and even bathing. Did you know that last year twice as many deaths were caused by misuse of aspirin as from agricultural chemicals. There were a few dozen people killed by chemicals. More than 35,000 deaths were caused by automobiles," Dr. Turk said.

The seven-year-old fisherman aspirant accompanied his father to a stream and wandered off for a walk. A few minutes later the father heard a strange cry of anguish, and found a man hopping on one foot, caressing the other foot, and groaning with pain.

"What's happened?" asked the father. "I guess it's my fault," said the seven-year-old. "This man told me he hadn't had a bite all morning - so I bit him."

Put stale or dry rolls in a pressure cooker with a very small amount of water. Bring the pressure up and let it cool before you remove the rolls. This makes them fresh-tasting again.

"Sorry, sir," said the ship steward, "but you can't be sick here." The passenger regarded him weakly for a moment. "Watch," he said.

Cattle Market Continues On Its Downward Trend

The fed cattle market continued on a downward trend in February.

A slackening in demand for beef appeared to be the primary factor in the lower market, according to the latest monthly summary published by the Cattle Feeders Division of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Lloyd Bergsma, director of the Cattle Feeders Division, said supplies have not been particularly burdensome under normal conditions, but reports from packers indicate that beef is difficult to move. There has been an air of pessimism in all segments of the beef industry, and price forecasts for the next 90 days have been mostly toward lower prices.

Markets in Texas have not been as depressed as in the midwest, and this has resulted in rather heavy shipments of both dressed beef and live slaughter cattle.

Good and choice slaughter steers weighing 950 pounds and up declined $2.50 to $3 per hundred weight during the month. Fed calves have been in best demand but this class of cattle has also been affected by the price declines, and packers have generally become more weight conscious in purchasing fed calves. Calves under 600 pounds were in best demand.

Standard and good calves were bringing mostly $22 to $24.50 the fourth week in February with special sales up to $25. Good and choice steers 950 pounds and up were moving at $22.50 to $24.50 during the same period.

Wholesale beef prices have been generally lower during the first four weeks of February.

The undertone of the market has been weak and even lighter supplies have failed to push prices upward to any degree. The fourth week of February, choice steer beef 600-700 pounds was selling in Omaha at $38 to $38.50 compared to $41.50 to $42 four weeks earlier. Choice heifer beef at Omaha was down $2.50 and good declined $2.75 during the same period. At Denver, choice heifer beef was down to $37 to $37.50 compared to $41 to $41.50 at the close of last month. Steer beef at New York, choice 600-700 pounds, moved at $40.50 to $41, down $4 to $5 during the first four weeks of the month.

At Houston, choice steer beef, 400-700 pounds, sold during the same period at $42 to $42.50, down about $3.50 per cwt, during the four week period. Calves at the same market sold at $41 to $43.50 for good 200-375 pound carcasses. This compares with $42.50 to $44 four weeks earlier. Standard calves during the same period declined $1.50, all on the top end of the quotation.

Feeder cattle prices have not followed the lower price trend of slaughter cattle. There has been some price weakness in feeder cattle prices, but only on the heavier weights and lower grades. The lighter weight, good quality calves have been fully steady to strong during the month.

BEWARE FLYING golf balls. A nationwide survey made by the Institute for Safer Living reveals that more than 15,000 golfers, caddies and workmen were hurt in golf accidents in 1961. Swinging clubs, heat prostration and lightning bolts took their toll but, the report states, at least half the injuries were caused by the golf ball itself, striking victims at speeds around 200 m.p.h. . . . TWIST marathon dance championships in Harlow, England are supervised by an "official Twist Board of Control." The board lists minimum movements and sets official standards.

"Cross-Compliance" Provision Is Important In F-G Program

The "cross-compliance" provision of the 1963 feed grain program is important to producers, stated Prentice Mills, office manager of Parmer County ASCS this week. Growers participating in the program will be required to meet the cross-compliance provisions in order to qualify for any of the Program's benefits.

The term "cross-compliance" means that a farmer taking part in the 1963 feed grain program will not only reduce the feed grain acreage on the participating farm by at least the minimum 20 per cent of the feed grain base acreage, but he will also not exceed the feed grain base acreage on other farms in which he has an interest in any of the three feed grain crops.

A farmer (this also includes the landlord or owner) who has an interest in the corn, grain sorghum, or barley crops on more than one farm would not have to divert feed-grain acreage into a conserving use on all his farms in order to qualify for payments and price support on one farm. But, if he wishes to obtain the benefits of the feed grain program by diverting acreage on any one farm, he will have to hold his acreage of the three feed grains on his other farm within the base acreages of those farms, Mills said.

Failure to cooperate with the cross-compliance provisions of the feed grain program, would result in loss of the diversion and price-support payments, as well as loss of eligibility for the regular price-support loan on corn, grain sorghum, and barley.

Producers who are giving thought to participating in the program are urged to get in touch with the ASCS office at an early date. The program sign-up is now under way. Approximately 70 per cent of the producers in Parmer County have signed to-date. Deadline for signing up under the program is March 22.

Beef Team To Attend Convention

The state winning 4-H club beef business demonstration team will delve into the whys and wherefores of the beef industry in the Southwest in a 4-H demonstration which will highlight the Tuesday morning session of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association's annual convention in San Antonio, March 18-20.

Team members Dewey Smith, Jr., of Edinburg and Walter McCay of La Blanca followed the movement of beef from the ranch, to the feedlot, through the market, to the packers and into the meat counter in gathering information for the demonstration.

Their findings will be described and illustrated in the demonstration which last year was judged best in the state. The team is coached by Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Smith of Edinburg.

The 4-H members' presentation will be one of several pertinent subjects which will be covered by leading livestock authorities at the convention, according to Joe Fletcher, TSCRA secretary - general manager. Headquarters will be in the Gunter Hotel.
